I am sorry it is not in my power to comply with your requisition for heavy cannon, without leaving our port and harbour of New-London in too defenceless a state. By a return from the overseer of our cannon-foundry at Salisbury, I find they have cast fourteen six, eighteen nine, and eight twelve-pounders, and are proceeding to bore them out and fit them for use. He has my orders, when the twelve-pounders are finished, to deliver them to your Excellency's order, to be used where they may be most wanted, without waiting for further orders from me. Ball for twelve-pounders are also to be had there. Should you have occasion, you will please to give orders accordingly. I expect eighteen-pounders will be soon cast there, which is the largest size we can hope for from that furnace.

I have ordered two of our row-galleys to proceed to New-York, and trust they will be with you at the receipt of this; they have no guns larger than nine-pounders. I wish it may be in your power to make them more useful, by placing heavier metal upon them, whilst they continue in your service.

The Continental regiment raising in this Colony is now in some measure filled up, mustered, equipped, and ready to march; but as there seems to be much danger from the prevalence of the small-pox in Boston, should they march there, and as the whole force of the enemy on this side seems to be directed against you at New-York, I have thought it best they should suspend their march towards Boston till your pleasure might be known whether they should join the Army at New-York or proceed for Boston.

Since the arrival of the fleet and army at the Hook, several frigates and ships have been stationed between Montauk Point and Block-Island, to intercept the trade from the Sound, in which they have been so successful that they have derived great advantage from the provision vessels they have taken; and by frequent advices from the Captains of our armed vessels, and others, it appeared highly improbable that any vessel going out or coming in by that passage could avoid falling into their hands; and as several vessels were prepared and preparing in sundry places to proceed to sea with cargoes of provision, the owners of which must be presumed to be ignorant of the hazard they ran in getting out; and sensible of how great importance it is that all supplies of provision should be kept back from the enemy; and having good grounds to believe that some evil-minded persons had designedly carried provisions to the enemy, or thrown themselves in their way, as your Excellency will see by the enclosed copies of depositions taken and sent to Congress,—I have given orders to the Captains of the armed vessels in the service of this Colony to stop and detain all provision vessels coming out of any port in this Colony, or through the Sound, and bound to sea, for the present, and until the Continental Congress and the Congresses or Conventions of the Colonies or States to which they respectively belong, may be apprized of the hazards attending their proceeding in their voyages, and, on consideration, shall give such orders as they may think fit respecting the same. The apparent necessity of this measure will, I flatter myself, justify me in taking it, where it is known and properly explained. To prevent or obviate any misrepresentation, is my motive for troubling your Excellency with this account.

I am, with great esteem and regard, sir, your obedient humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

19th.—Received your favour of the 15th instant, which induced me to send orders immediately to Theo. Stanton, Captain of our other row-galley, the Shark, to proceed with her forthwith to New-York, and subject himself to your command. Wish him safe, and serviceable to your designs.

20th.—Colonel Ward, of the Continental battalion lately ordered to be raised here, and mentioned above, informs that his regiment is not much beyond half filled, occasioned by their being raised for a longer time and receiving less bounty than others. Since many are ordered from Boston, and this may be stationed on the works below or in the environs, at places out of danger of the infection from the small-pox, will it not be best this battalion should be ordered to march to that place, first mentioned for their destination? They are principally men who have not seen service. Please to give the earliest notice of your pleasure therein.

Nathan Spicer, (late a hand on board the sloop Macaroni), of New-London, of lawful age, testifies and says: That on the 22d of May last he was made a prisoner, carried to Halifax, and there detained on board the Ministerial fleet until they sailed for New-York, when he was put on board a transport, and removed near to Staten-Island, and from thence escaped on the 14th instant; that while this deponent was on board said transport, viz: on the 5th instant, there arrived and sailed up and near to the fleet a ship of about two hundred tons burden, marked and called the Charming Polly; that she was conducted near to the Admiral's ship, where she lay several days, during which this deponent's duty was often to row near to and by said ship; that on Sunday, about the 7th instant, this deponent, when passing said ship, saw the people on board selling fowls, &c., to the people of the fleet; that this deponent often heard the officers, and others belonging to the fleet, say that said ship belonged to New-York; that she was loaded with flour, live stock, &c., and that she came on purpose to supply the fleet. And this deponent further adds, that had not the fleet been successful in making prizes of American vessels when on their passage to New-York, they must have been much distressed for provisions, their allowance being very short before they had made prizes of nine vessels, chiefly loaded with flour. And further saith not.

Samuel Smedley, Second Lieutenant of the brig Defence, of lawful age, testifieth and saith, That on the passage from New-London to Boston, in said brig, by order of Captain Harding, commander of the said brig, having boarded sundry of the Block-Island boats on his way thither, and in conversation with the people belonging to said boats, this deponent formed in his mind the judgment that they were not so friendly as they ought to be to the American cause; and further saith not.

Robert Niles, of lawful age, and Captain of the schooner Spy, testifies and says: That in the beginning of the present month, a ship, to appearance of about one hundred and sixty or seventy tons burden, loaded with flour, lay at anchor in Fisher's Island Sound, for the term of about one week; that during said term this deponent spoke with said ship, and advised and ordered her to make New-London harbour, assigning for reasons, that her situation was unsafe, being exposed continually to the ships of the enemy; and also that her remaining there was very disagreeable to the people of New-London, fearing that her cargo would fall into the hands of the enemy. However, the commander refused to comply with said advice and order, but remained in that situation until a number of small vessels came up and joined her, when she sailed, without waiting or attending to any signal of safety, as has been practised by other vessels. This deponent further says, that when cruising on his station he very frequently has seen the Block-Island boats passing to and from; that he has good and sufficient reason to believe that they are much employed in furnishing the enemy's ships and vessels with intelligence, supplies, and every comfort in their power to afford; and that the people of New-London, Groton, and Stonington, are generally of the same opinion, appear to have no doubt of the truth of that fact, and are much dissatisfied with that circumstance. This deponent further says, that at the time of the Commodore's fleet lying in the harbour of New-London, after his return from New-Providence, one Littlefield, of Block-Island, came over to Stonington, and there, or near there, purchased a hogshead of Jamaica spirits, and paid therefor about one hundred and twenty dollars in milled money, as it was then and ever since has been universally said and believed, and returned with it to said Island, at which time there lay watering at said Island one of the King's ships; and further saith not.

Ebenezer Colefax, late mate of the schooner Macaroni, of lawful age, testifies and says: That on the 22d of May last he was made a prisoner by a British ship, carried to Halifax, and there detained until the British fleet sailed for New-York, when he was put on board one of the transports, and removed near to Staten-Island, and from thence escaped on the 8th of July instant; that while this deponent was on board said transport, viz: on the 5th instant, there arrived within the Hook, below New-York, a ship of near two hundred tons burden, loaded with flour; that she continued her course up until not far distant from the fleet, when the Admiral sent out a boat, which met and conducted her up near to the stern of the Admiral's ship, soon after which this deponent heard Captain Knowles, commander of said transport, say to the people on board, that the ship then arrived was not a prize, but that she came from New-York on purpose to supply them, and that she was loaded with flour; and further saith not.

The testimony of Matthew Thompson, of London, in the kingdom of Great Britain, late of the armed brigantine Diligence, Dodd, commander, mounting twelve carriage guns, belonging to the King of Great Britain, of lawful age, is as follows, viz: The deponent, some time in the month of April, deserted from said brig, when sent on shore on Block-Island to assist in watering said brig, when the deponent remained on said Island six days; the deponent applied to several of the boatmen for assistance to get to the main, who refused; and finally this deponent, together with one Thomas Nixon, a fellow-deserter, obtained their passage from said Island in a canoe. The deponent further says that the livers on the Island, except as above said, treated him very kindly, excepting also one John Wright, a taverner on said Island, and his brother-in-law, who used their endeavours to prevail on this deponent and Thomas Nixon to return on board said brig. And the deponent further says, that he observed a number of cattle, sheep, and horses, on said Island, and that the brig Diligent and the ship Cerberus were supplied from said Island with calves, hogs, ducks, geese, and fowls, which articles this deponent assisted in transporting on board said vessels. And further this deponent saith, that John Littlefield, of said Island, was very kind in using his endeavours to get this deponent off said Island; and further saith not.

Thomas Kanady, master of the ship Mary, of lawful age, testifies and says, That some time in the beginning of the present month, he discovered lying at anchor at Fisher's Island a ship of about one hundred and eighty tons burden; that this deponent, when on board said ship, found her to be partly loaded with provisions, &c., some valuable house furniture in the cabin, &c., and on board Mr. Damune, of New-York, part owner, and two youths, sons of the Captain, John Hilton; that this deponent observed to the Captain, that he admired at his lying in that situation, as he must be exposed to be taken by the enemy's ships, &c.; to which Captain Hilton replied, that he was not in the least afraid of being taken; and if they did take him, he was not in the least afraid that they would take from him any of his cabin furniture; and further saith not.

MAJOR HAWLEY TO ELBRIDGE GERRY.

Northampton, July 17, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have often said that I supposed a Declaration of Independence would be accompanied with a declaration of high treason. Most certainly it must immediately, and without the least delay, follow it. Can we subsist—did any State ever subsist, without exterminating traitors? I never desire to see high treason extended here further than it is now extended in Britain. But an act of high treason we must have instantly. The Colonies have long suffered inexpressibly for want of it. No one thing made the Declaration of Independence indispensably necessary more than cutting off traitors. It is amazingly wonderful, that having no capital punishment for our intestine enemies, we have not been utterly ruined before now. For God's sake, let us not run such risks a day longer. It appears to me, sir, that high treason ought to be the same in all the United States, saving to the Legislature of each Colony or State the right of attainting individuals by act or bill of attainder. The present times show most clearly the wisdom and sound policy of the common law in that doctrine, or part thereof, which consists in attainting by an act of the whole Legislature. Our Tories (be sure the learned of them) knew very well the absurdity of punishing as high treason any acts or deeds in favour of the Government of the King of Great Britain, so long as we all allowed him to be King of the Colonies. Dear sir, this matter admits of no delay; and when the act declaratory of high treason is passed, the strongest recommendation for a strict execution of it, I humbly conceive, ought to accompany it. Our whole cause is every moment in amazing danger for want of it. The common understanding of the people, like unerring instinct, has long declared this; and from the clear discerning which they have had of it, they have been long in agonies about it. They expect that effectual care will now be taken for the general safety, and that all those who shall be convicted of endeavouring, by overt act, to destroy the State, shall be cut off from the earth.

The levying an army for the war, after the 1st of January next, lies heavy upon me. The present levies for reinforcing the armies, are, by order of Congress, only till the 1st of December next. It appears to me high time to set seriously and in the greatest earnest about it. I observe, sir, that you charge the miscarriages in Canada partly to the short time for which the troops were raised. You know that nothing will detain our people after the expiration of the term for which they were engaged. It will be in vain to attempt to enlist New-England people for a longer term than two years. No bounties will induce them to engage for a longer time—I fear for no longer time than one year.

I have not time to add a word more. Too early or earnest care cannot be taken for the providing good barracks and covering for our Northern Army, or Armies, against the cold season of the year. They suffered much last campaign, when about Boston, for want of seasonable covering and firing. We are apt to delay. Let us strain every nerve. Don't let us hesitate a moment at any necessary expense. We will conquer or die. Amen.

If you judge anything in this confused epistle worth communicating to your brethren of this Colony, to whom I present my sincerest respects, you are at liberty to communicate it.

And I am, dear sir, your true friend, and faithful humble servant,

JOSEPH HAWLEY.

To Mr. Gerry.

GENERAL LINCOLN TO THE COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston, July 17, 1776.

How to remedy the inconveniences that may arise to this State from the removal of the Continental troops, and how we shall supply forces sufficient to garrison the works already thrown up, complete and garrison those that are begun, is a question truly important—a question that has or will call for the attention of the honourable Board. And as it is necessary to know the state of the several fortifications in and near Boston, previous to a determination what number of men will be necessary for the purpose aforesaid, the Committee, under whose eye the fortifications have been erected, thought it their duty to lay before your Honours the following state of the forts, and their idea of the number of men necessary to garrison them: The fort in Boston, that in Charlestown, one on Noddle's Island, and one on Governour's Island, are nearly finished. Properly to man the lines of the fort in Boston, it will require seven hundred men, and an equal number, considering the unarmed state of the inhabitants of Boston, as guards in the different parts of the town. As Charlestown and Noddle's Island can be reinforced by the Militia, if at any time a reinforcement should be necessary, it is therefore proposed that one company only be placed in Charlestown and two on Noddle's Island; and that one company be placed on the small redoubt on Governour's Island, of seventy-five men each.

The works on Castle Island are quite incomplete. How much the security of the town of Boston depends on our maintaining that post is too evident to need a comment. It hath been thought that five hundred men at least, were necessary to complete the works there, and to defend them when completed. The two forts on Dorchester Heights are in the same unfinished state as are the works on Castle Island. Such hath been the idea of the importance of those posts and the post on Dorchester Point, that seven hundred men have been assigned as absolutely necessary to complete and garrison them. The Committee are of opinion, as these posts are justly considered as a key of the town of Boston, that the number was not extravagant, and, indeed, far short of what they ought to be, was there not the highest probability that they could be reinforced by the Militia from the neighbouring towns in case of an alarm.

Orders have been issued to us from the Court, that works should be erected on Long Island. Very little hath been done there, as we had no cover for the men. Barracks are now ready to receive them. Four hundred men are proposed for that post.

The next is Nantasket. To maintain that ground, which commands the road, is too important to be neglected. The post is about half finished. It is in a state that it may be defended by musketry. The cannon for it are not yet stocked, nor are the works ready to receive them. From the many convenient places there are in town for an enemy to land, and from the situation and height of the neighbouring hills, the possession of which, if possible, must be secured, and from the extent of the works, it will be found that a large number of men will be necessary—one thousand, at least. We cannot promise ourselves a reinforcement from the Militia.

As a further security to the several posts, the Committee beg leave to suggest whether it will not be necessary to have a small camp formed in the vicinity of Boston of one thousand men, to act in any part where they may be wanted in an emergency.

When we mention garrisons, we suppose that a suitable number of the Train are to be in addition to them. We are also of opinion, as the Continental Train is to be removed, and as our number was insufficient before, that it will be necessary to add three companies more to Colonel Crafts's regiment. The number for the several garrisons, without the Train, amounts, as estimated, to five thousand three hundred. In Colonel Whitney's and Colonel Marshall's regiments, and in the four Independent companies from Weymouth, Hingham, and Braintree, if full, there are seventeen hundred and forty; which leaves three thousand five hundred and sixty, upon our estimate, to be raised. From a view of the services in which they must be employed, it is, in the opinion of the Committee, very evident that draughts from the Militia will by no means answer the purpose; as in that case, perhaps, men will be drawn out who have good estates and large families. To content these for any considerable time from their homes, hath, by experience, been found impossible; and the present busy season of the year will make it very difficult to keep them even for a short time.

The Committee beg leave to ask whether it is possible to garrison properly our fortifications, &c., but by inlisting the men to serve a certain term; and to wish, as the circumstances of this State are so materially altered since the Court was prorogued, and it being so evidently necessary for them to be together, that the House might be summoned to attend on this matter, for in a few days we shall not have men in the pay of this Colony, near its capital, for a proper garrison thereof.

BENJ. LINCOLN, per order.

To the Honourable Council of the State of Massachusetts-Bay.

CAPTAIN FISK TO MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY.

Salem, July 17, 1776.

This may serve to acquaint your Honours that in the latitude 40° 26' north, longitude 65° 50' west, I fell in with the armed schooner Despatch from Halifax, bound to New-York; and after an engagement of one-and-a-half hour, she struck to the American arms. I boarded her, and found on board eight carriage guns and twelve swivel guns, twenty small-arms, sixteen pistols, twenty cutlasses, some cartridge-boxes, and belts for bayonets, nine half-barrels powder, all the accoutrements for said cannon. The commander and one man were killed, seven others wounded. The crew consisted of thirty men and one boy. I lost one man killed and two wounded, and my vessel was much shattered, which obliged me to return with the prize, which I have at anchor in Salem Harbour, and wait your Honours' orders how to proceed with the prisoners. All the Captain's papers and orders were thrown overboard.

I am your Honours' humble servant, JOHN FISK.

To the Honourable Council and House of Representatives of the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay, now sitting at Water-town.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO COL. WINGATE.

In Committee of Safety, July 17, 1776.

You are directed to repair to Charlestown, on Connecticut River, and there take charge of such companies as you may find there, whose officers are commissioned under you; and take all necessary care, with the persons appointed at that place to supply the troops, to have the soldiers fixed off, taking their route for Crown-Point, or Ticonderoga, or the place where the Continental Army may be; and when you have done what appears necessary to you to do at Charlestown, you will proceed forward and join the Continental Army as aforesaid, putting yourself and regiment under the command of the General and Commander-in-Chief of said Army. If no Continental officer has made provision at Charlestown for the soldiers, you will apply to Benjamin Giles, Esq., appointed by the Colony, to deliver six days' provision at marching, to last the troops to Crown-Point.

By order of the Committee:

MESHECH WEARE.

To Colonel Joshua Wingate.

FRANCIS SALVADOR TO WILLIAM H. DRAYTON.

Camp near Dewett's Corner, July 18, 1776.

DEAR SIR: You would have been surprised to have seen the change in this country two days after you left me. On Monday morning one of Captain Smith's sons came to my house with two of his fingers shot off, and gave an account of the shocking catastrophe at his father's. I immediately galloped to Major Williamson's to inform him, but found another of Smith's sons there, who had made his escape and alarmed the settlement.

The whole country was flying; some to make forts, others as low as Orangeburgh. Williamson was employed, night and day, sending expresses to raise the Militia; but the panick was so great, that the Wednesday following, the Major and myself marched to the late Captain Smith's with only forty men. The next day we were joined by forty more, and have been gradually increasing ever since; though all the men in the country were loath to turn out till they had procured some kind of fancied security for their families. However, we had last night five hundred men, but have not been joined by any from the other side of the river.* I rode there last Saturday, and found Colonels Williams and Liles, and two companies from Colonel Richardson's regiment, amounting to four hundred and thirty men. They were attacked on Monday morning, July 15th, by Indians and Scophelites,† but repulsed them, taking thirteen white men prisoners; the Indians fled the moment day appeared. I will not trouble you with more particulars, as Major Williamson will send a circumstantial account to his Excellency.

I am afraid the burden of the war will fall on this regiment, and that the people over the river will do nothing. They grumble at being commanded by a Major; and I fear, if they join us at all, (which I doubt,) they will be very apt to prejudice the service by altercations about command. I cannot help saying, that if Williamson is fit to conduct such an expedition, he certainly ought to have a much higher rank than any of these chaps, who don't object to his person but his rank. I likewise think it an omission that the Colonels on the other side the river have no written orders to put themselves or their men under his command.

On the last accounts from town, that Cunningham and his companions were set at liberty, we were very near having a mutiny in camp; and it is really a measure which, though certainly intended for the best, is very alarming to all ranks of people. The ignorant look upon it as turning their enemies loose on their backs in the day of their distress; and the sensible part consider it as a dangerous exercise of a dispensing power, assumed contrary to the express determination of Congress, and a corroborating resolve of the succeeding House of Assembly.

† Scophelites, alluded to those who had joined the Royal cause, being named so after one Scophel, of infamous character, who had done so.

Pearis's house having been a rendezvous for the Indians and Scophelites, Colonel Thomas intended to attack it on Monday. We are not yet informed if he did or not; but one of our spies was there on Tuesday, and saw many of our spies about the place, and all the buildings in ashes. Whether they were burnt by friends or foes is still uncertain; if by the first, I fear Pearis will injure us much. Our men seem spirited, and very much exasperated against our enemies. They are all displeased with the people over the river for granting quarter to their prisoners, and declare they will grant none, either to Indians or white men who join them. We have just received an account that two of the Cherokee head warriors were killed in the late skirmish at Lindley's Fort.

July 19.—Cunningham and Pearis came here last night, and by the conversation of the former, I imagine he was much caressed in town. Here he was treated politely, but with reserve; the Major and myself having advised him to go home and mind his private business, at which he seemed chagrined. I am clear he had not yet given up the idea of being a man of consequence; but the friends of liberty in this part of the world are determined to have no connexion with him, and to consider him for the future merely as an individual, and not as head of any party. We have just heard from over the river, that the white people in general had quitted the Indians after the repulse at Lindley's, and were delivering themselves up to Colonel Liles. He has sent all those to Ninety-six Jail against whom there is proof of having been in the action.

I hope you will pardon the freedom with which I express my sentiments, but I look upon it as an advantage to men in power to be truly informed of the people's situation and disposition. This must plead my excuse; and believe me to be, with great respect, dear sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

FRANCIS SALVADOR.

To the Hon. Mr. Chief Justice Drayton, Charlestown.

NORFOLK (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Norfolk County, July 18, 1776:

It having been made appear to the Committee for this County, held on the 20th of June last, that Bennet Armstrong had violated the ninth article of the Continental Association, which was then ordered to be published in the Gazette, and the said Armstrong this day appearing, and presenting a recantation, promising in future to give no just cause of complaint:

Resolved, That the said Bennet Armstrong, on publishing his apology in the Gazette, be recommended to the publick as a proper object of clemency.

LATIMER HOLSTEAD, Clerk pro tempore.

Whereas I have been so imprudent as to act contrary to the 9th article of the Continental Association, as well as of a Resolution of the Committee of Norfolk County, in the sale of a parcel of corn; I do now declare my sincere sorrow for the said offence, which proceeded entirely from my misunderstanding the matter; and I promise so to conduct myself in future as to give no just cause of complaint, and humbly hope the publick will accept of this acknowledgment, by again receiving me into their favour and protection.

BENNET ARMSTRONG.

Norfolk, July 18, 1776.

JOHN WEST TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Alexandria, July 18, 1776.

SIR: At a meeting of the Committee for this County and District, a resolution was entered into to write to your Council of Safety, and the Committee appointed me for that purpose,

I am informed that your commanding officer or officers in each County have it not in their power to raise the Militia (on any occasion) under his or their command, without application to your Council of Safety, and instructions from them for that purpose.

Permit me to say, I apprehend many dangers may be avoided, many good consequences (in case of a sudden attack from the enemies of America) are obvious, had the commanding officers in each County on Potomack river full power to raise the Militia, and order them to march where there was a real occasion, either in your own Province or to the assistance of a sister Colony. We have been frequently alarmed with Dunmore and his banditti, with the vessels of war, paying us a visit; and when he lately made his appearance in our river, it was presumed his intention was to make this place an object worth his attention. His well known enmity to liberty, his untoward disposition towards this Commonwealth in particular, and his corrupt principles, capable of committing the most atrocious villainies, give cause to suspect his intention might be to distress this place, and the inhabitants of each side the river, by which your Province would experience the dire effects of the marauders.

Should you be attacked, and our assistance necessary, we would cheerfully obey the summons of liberty, humanity, and neighbourly affection, and fly to your assistance; we should be wanting in duty if we did not, because we are not bound up by any ordinance, nor command, but are at full liberty to exert ourselves in behalf of ourselves and in that of a sister Colony.

I hope that you and the gentlemen of your Council of Safety, will excuse this remonstrance to you, and that you will see the necessity in the same light that we do of empowering at least your commanding officers on the river to raise the Militia under their respective commands, in case of danger, and to march them where there may be a call for them. I am convinced the gentlemen and soldiers would cheerfully do it, from a principle of humanity and friendship, though the danger was more remote from them, was this request put in execution.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN WEST, Chairman pro tem.

To the Honourable the President of the Council of Safety at Annapolis.

COLONEL DORSEY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Elkridge, July 18, 1776.

SIR: When the Elkridge Militia went from this place for Annapolis, I promised to send down an equal number on Sunday, the 21st, to relieve them; but as Captain Daniel Dorsey's company, of the Flying-Camp, will certainly be down on that day, and Captain Edward Norwood's the day following, I am at a loss to know whether you will stand in need of the Militia. Please to inform me by Mr. Larkin Dorsey, that I may take measures accordingly.

I am, with respect, your most obedient servant,

THOMAS DORSEY.

To the Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq., President of the Council of Safety of Maryland.

N. B. Captain Norwood and Dorsey's companies will have few or no fire-arms.

CAPTAIN NICHOLSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, July 18, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I was favoured with your orders of the 16th. I shall finish heaving down the ship this evening, and expect to sail from this on Sunday or Monday at farthest. I have been detained in caulking the ship all round. This I have sent by the small tender to wait your further orders until the ship comes down. The large tender sails this morning with the ten nineteen-pounders, shot, wads, &c.

I am, gentlemen, your most obliged humble servant to command,

JAMES NICHOLSON.

To the Hon. the Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THE COMMANDING OFFICER AT ST. MARY'S.

[No. 53.]

Annapolis, July 18, 1776.

SIR: We have received your favour of yesterday, and observe the contents. Some powder and ball we despatched to you yesterday, and shall immediately send you four field-pieces, &c. You will receive by Mr. Hopewell £300, according to your desire. You will judge what additional number of the upper Militia may be necessary, and order them down. It gives us concern to hear that Captain Beall is wounded, but hope it is not dangerous; and as we understand you have several Surgeons with you, trust he will soon do well. We are, &c.

To the Commanding Officer, St. Mary's.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL SOMERVILLE.
[No. 54.] Annapolis, July 18, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of yesterday we have received, and approve of the disposition you are making. By Mr. Hope-well we send you £50. We are, &c.

To Lieutenant-Colonel Alexander Somerville.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CHARLES RIDGELY, SEN.
[No. 55.] Annapolis, July 18, 1776.

SIR: We are in immediate want of a number of round shot, of the different sizes, particularly eighteen, nine, six, and three; also, some grape, and request you will immediately send them down to Baltimore, and write to your correspondent there, as soon as he receives them, to apprise Captain Nathaniel Smyth of it, that he may forward them to Annapolis. We are, &c.

To Mr. Charles Ridgely, Sen.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN SMYTH.
[No. 56.] Annapolis, July 18, 1776.

SIR: We have written to Captain Ridgely, with whom we have contracted to supply us with cannon-shot, immediately to send down a quantity to Baltimore; and as we are in immediate want of them, we desire as soon as they arrive there, that you will forward them to Annapolis.

We are, &c.

To Captain Nathaniel Smyth.

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE.

At a special meeting of the Committee, July 18, 1776:

Present: Samuel Purviance, Jun., Chairman; James Calhoun, William Buchanan, Edward Talbot, Isaac Griest, Thomas Sollers, William Aisquith, John Cockey, Darby Lux, and Benjamin Griffith.

The gentlemen appointed by the Committee at the last meeting, to examine a situation near Armstrong's to build a Magazine, report several places which they examined suitable for the purpose. On consideration of which, it was agreed, that Messrs. Benjamin Griffith, James Calhoun, John Cockey, and Edward Talbot, be directed to bargain with Captain Charles Ridgely & Co., for one acre of Land, which was thought most convenient, near to the spring at Armstrong's.

Ordered, That Mr. Darby Lux, with the gentlemen above mentioned, be a Committee to agree with the Workmen for constructing the Magazine for the publick use, and that they make a report of their proceedings at the next meeting of this Committee.

It is agreed that the dimensions of said Magazine shall be forty feet long, and eleven feet wide, in the clear, and arched over with brick or stone, and covered with a shingled roof.

GEO. LUX, Secretary.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.
Philadelphia, July 18, 1776.

SIR: Mr. Griffin delivered me your letter of the 15th, with the packets, which I have laid before Congress. No resolution is taken in consequence thereof, nor has anything new occurred since my last, except the enclosed resolves.

I have the honour to be, sir, your obedient humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Washington.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO PENNSYLVANIA CONVENTION.
Philadelphia, July 18, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have it in charge from Congress to inform you, that they have come to a resolution of raising a battalion in the Counties of Westmoreland and Bedford, in Pennsylvania, for the defence of the western parts of that State.

I am, therefore, to request you will immediately recommend proper persons to Congress for Field-Officers of said battalion.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Convention of Pennsylvania, now sitting.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, July 18, 1776.

SIR: In consequence of the resolve of Congress respecting the petition of Captain Benedict, I am most earnestly to recommend to you to give attention to the subject-matter of it, and to desire that the proper payments may be made, so far as they appear just and well supported, or that the objections to the adjustment of the accounts, as set forth by the petitioner, may be explicitly stated to Congress, to prevent any prejudice arising to the general service.

I am, with respect, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Schuyler.

WILLIAM ALLIBONE'S REPORT ON FLINT QUARRIES.

Wednesday, July 17.—In search of flint-stone near the Delaware, in Upper Makefield, Bucks County, on the plantation of John Knouls, in a gully made by former inundations of the Delaware, I find the black flint-stone, but not in an entire bed, as I supposed, but mixed with other stone and sand, the best of which, that had lain near the surface, carried away for domestic use; but find the low lands near the river, for two or three miles, (which is, in general, stony,) to be mixed with the same kind of black flint-stone, but nowhere in separate quantities. I went as far up as Pitcock's Creek, in the lower part of Salisbury township.

Thursday, July 18.—Like for rain. Made what inquiries I could in the neighbourhood.

Friday, July 19.—At John Lacey's, in the lower part of Buckingham township, about three miles from Wright's Town Meeting-house, from former digging in a bank, find the earth and other stone mixed with black and bluish flint, as per samples. The same day find the white and the gray, as per sample. In a ridge of land about three-quarters of a mile, on the Bristol road, from a place known by the name of the Four Lane Ends, great quantity of the white, and a little gray. Find one single small piece of yellow flint, which I think much superior to any other in this County, and has been much used formerly by the natives to head their arrows, the heads being frequently found in the fields to this day; also some black and white ones. I have no doubt but some quantity of the yellow lies in the neighbourhood of the Delaware; but cannot as yet discover where, and hope some more successful hand has been employed.

Saturday, July 20.—Find the dark flint in scattered stones on land of Mr. Denormandie, Bristol road, eighteen miles from Philadelphia; and, fifteen miles from Philadelphia, on the post road, great quantities of the white; and, at sides of Perryfork Creek, one hundred and seven miles from Philadelphia, considerable quantities of light gray flint mixed with other stone.

A sample.

W. ALLIBONE.

SAMUEL CHASE TO GENERAL GATES.

Philadelphia, July 18, 1776.

DEAR GATES: I wrote to you from this city immediately on my arrival. I was obliged to return to Maryland on account of Mrs. Chase's illness. Every moment of my stay there was engrossed by my attendance on my lady and our Convention. On yesterday, I came to Congress with Mr. Carroll.

I am extremely concerned for the very disagreeable situation of our affairs with you. I am apprehensive, unless some effectual and speedy measures are taken, we shall lose the command of the lakes. While we are masters of Lake Champlain, the enemy cannot penetrate into the Colonies.

If they become superior, I cannot conceive the propriety of erecting fortifications at Crown-Point. How can a garrison there be relieved, if the enemy can prevent supplies by water? I took the liberty of communicating my opinion on these subjects to General Arnold, by a letter from Saratoga, and if you think the sentiments of a gentleman not of the military, worthy of perusal, General Arnold will show it to you.

I am very anxious to know the real state of your Army, and to know what you think proper to be done by the Congress.

I am compelled to return to Maryland on the 8th of August. Farewell.

Your affectionate and obedient servant,

SAMUEL CHASE.

To General Gates.

LANCASTER (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE TO COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

In Committee, Lancaster, July 18, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: At the time the officers absconded from Lebanon, they were indebted to sundry persons there, particularly to one Matthew McHugh, for their diet, &c., about £100. After the confinement of Lieutenant Barrington in this jail, McHugh applied to him for payment of his quota of the debt, and obtained an order from this Committee for Mr. Barrington's baggage to be brought from Lebanon to this place, to be delivered to him on payment of his debts. Upon his baggage being brought here, Mr. Barrington proposed to McHugh to pay him his whole demand against all the officers, if the Committee would order all their baggage to this place, and give it into his custody, as his security for what he should advance for his brother officers. The Committee thought it best to have all their baggage secured in this place; therefore sent for it, and have it now deposited in a part of the new jail here, packed up in upwards of twenty trunks and boxes, besides some bales and portmantaus. The keys to the trunks we likewise have; but have not yet opened them to examine their contents, neither have we delivered them to Mr. Barrington, choosing to have the sentiments of the Committee of Safety, or Congress, on the propriety of that measure. The members of the Committee of Lebanon have sent us an account of their expenses in advertising, pursuing, and endeavouring to retake those gentlemen, amounting to above £30, besides carriage of the goods.

Perhaps by selling a part of the goods at vendue, the whole moneys might be raised. The Committee of Lebanon are desirous to have their moneys refunded. Mr. McHugh mentions that he has gone to join the camp in the Jerseys, and wants his money to leave with his merchants in Philadelphia. We therefore beg the sentiments of the Committee of Safety, and their directions how to proceed in this matter; but should the Committee think the instructions ought more properly to issue from Congress, as those officers were Continental prisoners, we hope the Committee will not charge us with presumption in requesting the favour of them to obtain the directions of Congress for our government.

We also beg leave to mention to you, gentlemen, that we have now about seven hundred men, women, and children, prisoners in the Barracks here, over whom, agreeable to order of Congress of the 10th instant, we keep a strong guard, and are erecting a stockade fort round the Barracks. The number confined there we conceive full enough, and rather too many, for the building to contain at this warm season. It is rumoured here that a large number more of prisoners are intended for this place. Should any more arrive, it will be necessary to make some additional buildings to the Barracks, that these poor people may not suffer by being crowded; and that work might be best done at this time, when we have a number of tradesmen of different kinds employed at the place, and the whole work might be superintended at the same time. We beg the advice of the Committee of Safety therein. In placing the stockades, we shall place them at such a distance from the Barracks that there may be a free circulation of air, to keep them as healthy as possible, and that there may be room for additional barracks, and are digging wells within the stockade to supply them with water.

Lieutenant Barrington now asks to be released from confinement, on his parole. We beg to know if his parole may be taken, and he sent to the place of residence of the other officers of his corps; and are, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

W. ATLEE, Chairman.

COLONEL BURD TO LANCASTER COMMITTEE.

Middletown, July 18, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I herewith send you, by the worthy Captain John Reed, who commands the first draught of my battalion, the returns of eight companies. The ninth company has not yet come to my hand, owing to the resignation of Captain Robert Elder, but it shall be sent to you as soon as it comes to my hand. I also send you a certain John White, prisoner, with what information is come to my hand from the County of Northumberland; and I think he is guilty of the allegation, but this I leave to your better judgment; and I am, with much esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient and humble servant,

SAMUEL BURD.

To the Chairman of the Committee of the County of Lancaster.

[Endorsed: Letter and examinations relating to John White, a prisoner, charged with assisting the officers to escape from Lebanon. Read July 20, 1776.]

NEW-JERSEY ORDINANCE FOR PUNISHING TRAITORS AND COUNTERFEITERS.

In Convention of the State of New-Jersey, }
Trenton, July 18, 1776. }

Whereas it is necessary, in these times of danger, that crimes should receive their due punishment, and the safety of the people more especially requires that all persons who shall be found so wicked as to devise the destruction of good Government, or to aid or assist the avowed enemies of the State, be punished with death:

Therefore be it Resolved and Ordained by the Convention, and it is Resolved and Ordained by the authority of the same, That all persons abiding within this State of New-Jersey, and deriving protection from the laws thereof, do owe allegiance to the Government of this State, as of late established on the authority of the people, and are to be deemed as members of this State; and that all persons passing through, visiting, or making a temporary stay in this State, being entitled to the protection of the law during such passage, visitation, or temporary stay, during the same time owe allegiance to this Government.

And be it further Resolved and Ordained, That all and every person or persons, members of, or owing allegiance to this Government, as before described, who, from and after the date hereof, shall levy war against this State within the same, or be adherent to the King of Great Britain, or others, the enemies of this State, within the same, or to the enemies of the United States of North America, giving to him or them aid or comfort, shall be adjudged guilty of high treason, and suffer the pains or penalties thereof, in like manner as by the ancient laws of this State he or they should have suffered in cases of high treason.

And be it further Resolved and Ordained, That all and every person or persons, who, from and after the date hereof, shall be found guilty of reviling the Government of this State, as by this Convention established, or of other seditious speeches or practices, shall be punished in like manner as by the former laws of this State such person or persons might or ought to have been punished, for such seditious speeches and practices against the Government then in being.

And be it further Resolved and Ordained, That all and every person or persons, who, from and after the date hereof, shall be found guilty of counterfeiting or altering the Continental Bills of Credit, the Bills of Credit issued by the late Provincial Congress of this State, or the Assemblies, Conventions, or Congresses of any of the United States of North America, or uttering the same knowing them to be counterfeited or altered, shall be adjudged felons, and be punished with death, in like manner as persons found guilty of counterfeiting or knowingly uttering the former Bills of Credit of this State might or should have been: Provided always, That no person or persons shall suffer death, or other pain or penalty, for any of the offences aforesaid, until he or they shall have been first found guilty of the same offence or offences whereof he or they shall be charged and accused, in a due course of law, and by the verdict of a jury. Provided also, That nothing in this Ordinance contained shall be construed to divest any Committee of the power they now possess of examining and committing any offenders, so that they do not proceed to the infliction of punishments for any of the offences in this Ordinance contained, but leave the same to be determined in due course of law, in manner aforesaid.

By order of Convention:

SAMUEL TUCKER, President.

GENERAL MERCER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Elizabethtown, July 18, 1776.

SIR: If nothing unlooked for intervenes, I intend to prosecute the plan mentioned in my letter by Major Putnam, to-night. We hope to defer the attack till break of day, but if discovered before that time our operations will commence sooner. From our being able to discover no unusual movements in the enemy's quarter, it is presumable they have no hint of being surprised. Our men are drawing together near this place. Some guides are provided, on whom I hope we may depend, and doubt not but our officers and soldiers will with alacrity execute this service.

Your Excellency's most obedient,

HUGH MERCER.

GENERAL MERCER TO MAJOR KNOWLTON.

Elizabethtown, July 18, 1776.

SIR: You are to march your party of three hundred men to attack the enemy's post at New Blazing-Star. If possible, have your men near the enemy before break of day. While you attempt to surprise the enemy, be careful that you are not discovered. Have a small guard advanced, and if they come unexpectedly on a sentinel, endeavour to seize his arms and prevent giving an alarm by firing, unless the enemy is prepared and formidable. Let a profound silence be observed during the march, and keep your men in Indian file, about one pace asunder. If obliged to appear openly against the enemy, have some of your best Riflemen on your flanks, with orders to gain, if possible, the flanks of the enemy. If they have artillery, a sudden push is necessary to gain possession of them. Should you be successful enough to take any of the British troops prisoners, secure them well and treat them with humanity. Use the people on the Island with civility, unless they appear in arms. As soon as it is light, send out flanking parties to secure you from surprise.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

HUGH MERCER.

To Major Knowlton.

SAMUEL B. WEBB TO GENERAL WARD.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 18, 1776.

SIR: His Excellency General Washington, having occasion to ride out early this morning, has dictated and ordered me to acknowledge and answer your two letters of the 11th instant, which came safe to hand by yesterday's post. He is not a little displeased at the Agent's taking the liberty of removing, or rather disposing of the cargoes of, the prizes, without your knowledge, and begs you immediately to forbid anything of the kind again. He is surprised that, out of upwards of four hundred prisoners, only seventy-three arms have been sent on, as he supposed every man must have had his arms with him. He begs your attention in collecting, from the Agents and others, all the arms that have been taken, and forward them immediately to this place, where they are much wanted. Enclosed is a list of articles he has taken from the invoices, and would have you send on as soon as may be.

By express, yesterday, we learn of the arrival of the northern Army at Crown-Point, where those infected with the small-pox will be immediately sent to a distant Hospital, so that the troops from your State bound that way need not be under any apprehension of danger from that disorder. The enemy on Staten-Island remain as when I last wrote.

I have the honour to be, with respect and esteem, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

SAMUEL B. WEBB, A. D. C.

To General Ward.

List of articles, taken in the Transports, which his Excellency General Washington requests General Ward to forward from Boston to New-York as soon as possible:

From ship GEORGE: All the fuses, small-arms, and bayonets, shoulder-straps, gun-straps, leather bullet-pouches, hair knapsacks, canvass knapsacks, belts, flints, markees, and soldiers' tents, common tent poles, tin canteens, camp-kettles, blankets, watch-coats, soldiers' clothing, stockings, black plumes.

From ship ANNE: All the checked and striped Hollands, check shirts, writing paper, thread stockings, check trowsers, men's shoes, ticking trowsers, men's hats.

From ship LORD HOWE: All the small-arms, bayonets, and cartouch-boxes, part of canteens and kettles, soldiers blankets, cutlasses, canvass knapsacks, markees.

From brig ANNABELLA: All the small-arms, shoes, soldiers' tents, sheet lead, pack-saddles, cartouch-boxes, leather bullet-pouches, shoulder-straps, gun-straps, cutlasses, bayonets, and belts.

By order of His Excellency General Washington:

SAMUEL B. WEBB, A. D. C.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 18, 1776.

SIR: The General has rode out this morning, and directed me to acquaint your Honour, that on the arrival of the Light-horse, under the command of Colonel Seymour, he acquainted them that they could not be of use as horsemen; on which they concluded to stay and do duty as foot, till the arrival of the new levies. The latter part of the time they grew uneasy, and refused their duty as soldiers, though their services were much wanted, pleading, in excuse, that there was an express law of the Colony which exempts them from doing duty separate from their horses. It was only requested that they should mount guard, which they refused; on which the General was obliged to discharge them yesterday, although but a small proportion of the new levies had arrived.

I have the honour to be, yours, &c.,

S. B. WEBB, A. D. C.

To Governour Trumbull, Connecticut.

TO MALCOM McEWEN AND DANIEL GREEN.—INSTRUCTIONS TO SUPERINTEND EAST-RIVER FERRIES.

It is General Washington's orders, that Malcom McEwen and Daniel Green do daily attend, from sunrise to dark in the evening, at the East-River Ferry to Long-Island, and Peck's Slip, at which, or between which places, all boats coming to the east of the town are to land, where they, in the first place, are to examine all passengers going from town, and to see that they have genuine passes from the Committee, or one of the General Officers.

In the next place, they are to be particularly attentive to the passengers who arrive in town. If they are travellers, such as they can have no suspicion of, they are only to require their names, and the places where they intend to lodge, and report them to the General at noon, and in the evening. If they are, in any manner, of suspicious characters, they are to detain them at some convenient house, to be appointed for that purpose in the neighbourhood, until they can send their report, which is to be done immediately, to Head-Quarters, and the General's determination be had thereon.

They are also to examine the passengers of all other boats, besides the ferry-boats, which may arrive, and report in like manner.

And, in order the better to enable Malcom McEwen and Daniel Green to carry these instructions into execution, the commanding officer of the East-River Guard is to give them every necessary aid in his power.

The said McEwen and Green are to communicate these instructions to the Committee appointed to give passes.

By the General's orders, at Head-Quarters:

STIRLING, Brigadier-General.

July 18, 1776.

If officers or soldiers of the corps posted on Long-Island should come to town with passes from their commanding officer, the same are to be sufficient to pass them out of town again. Artillerymen are to pass by Colonel Knox's order; and those in the Quartermaster-General's department by Colonel Moylan's, or Mr. Hughes's, Deputy Quartermaster-General.

Mr. McEwen is, by the General's order, to be allowed one dollar a day, after deducting his pay in Colonel Lasher's regiment. Mr. Green is to be allowed one dollar per day, he having no employ in the Continental service.

By the General's orders:

STIRLING, Brigadier-General.

July 18, 1776.

TO CAPTAIN JOHN JOHNSON AND LIEUTENANT ABM. MESIER.
INSTRUCTIONS TO SUPERINTEND NORTH-RIVER FERRIES.

Similar to the above, with directions to attend the ferries to Powles Hook and Hooghbook, and all the boats on that side. Each to have half a dollar per day, in addition to their regimental pay.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO ROBERT MORRIS.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 18, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I received this letter by Lord Howe, from a gentleman of character in England. You will observe it has the appearance of a mere private letter; but from the contents, and some corresponding circumstances, I have reason to believe it was not intended merely as such. In this view, I communicated it to the General, and now forward it, to be made use of as your good judgment may direct. If it can be improved, in any respect, for the publick advantage, either to give time to discover the true powers these Commissioners have, or in any other way, I shall most cheerfully take such a post as my situation and abilities will admit, and as may be directed. Or if you think no advantage or benefit can arise from taking notice of it, you will please to suppress it.

I fear the die is irrevocably cast, and that we must play out the game, however doubtful or desperate. My principles have been much misunderstood, if they were supposed to militate against reconciliation. I had one dogma of political faith, to which I constantly adhered, that as united councils and united strength alone could enable us to support this contest, private opinions and those of mere local authority should be subservient to the supreme decision of Congress. From the purity and extent of its intelligence, and the abilities of its members, I derived my hopes of political safety, and therefore beheld with concern every attempt to control the judgment and bind down the opinions of any of its members by instructions or other devices, formed, as they must be, on the partial intelligence of some, and the interested or timid views of others. My private judgment led me to think, that if the two great cardinal points, of exemption from British taxation, and charge of internal Government, could have been secured, our happiness and prosperity would have been best promoted by preserving the dependence. The Declaration of Independence is a new and very strong objection to entering into any negotiation inconsistent with that idea. But I fancy there are numbers, and some of them firm in the interests of America, who would think an overture ought not to be rejected; and if it could be improved into a negotiation which could secure the two points I have mentioned above, would think the blood and treasure expended well spent. I have no idea, from anything I have seen or can learn, that if we should give the General and Admiral a full and fair hearing, the proposition would amount to anything short of unconditional submission; but it may be worth considering whether, that once known, and all prospect of securing American liberty in that way being closed, it would not have a happy effect to unite us into one chosen band, resolved to be free, or perish in the attempt. There was a time when one sentiment pervaded the whole country. Whig and Tory, however differing in other things, agreed that the claims of taxation by a British Parliament could never be admitted. If these Commissioners have no concessions to make on this point, it must be evident to the whole world that resistance cannot be called our choice. It is the only alternation left to slavery and wretchedness.

What will become of our affairs in Canada, or rather in this Province, in the Northern Department? Our General has more trouble and concern with that department than his own; and yet, after every step taken, and supply sent, we are told of great necessities and wants, arising from incredible waste. If Mr. Schuyler is so good a Quartermaster and Commissary, why is there such incredible waste? In short, my dear sir, if some speedy measure is not taken in this matter, in my opinion that Army will waste and disperse, leaving the enemy an easy passage into the heart of these Colonies. I trust and hope, amidst the changes which have been made in our Province, and in most of which I could not agree, the publick will not lose your services in Congress. I know many things must be very repugnant to your temper and judgment; but so it has proved in the struggles of all free States and countries. The time and place will come when publick virtue will meet its reward—

"The firm patriot there,
Who made the welfare of mankind his care,
Though vex'd with envy, and by faction cross'd,
Shall find his gen'rous labour was not lost."

Be pleased to present my respects to Mr. Willing; and believe me, with much truth and esteem, &c., &c.

To Robert Morris, Esq., one of the Delegates of the Province of Pennsylvania in the honourable Continental Congress.

DR. MORGAN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, July 18, 1776.

SIR: The Congress having come into a number of resolves respecting the General Hospital, &c., I find that one of them, as it now stands, gives great uneasiness to the regimental Surgeons. It is that which prohibits them from drawing upon the Hospital of their department for any stores, except medicines and instruments; and orders, that when any sick person shall require other stores, they shall be received into the General Hospital, and the rations of the said sick persons be stopped so long as they are in the said Hospital.

The regimental Surgeons seem to think, that if this resolve should remain as it now stands, without any palliative construction in favour of supplying the sick under their care with necessary articles of diet, &c., (for no provision is made by any of these resolves for changing the diet of the sick, and their rations would be very improper diet,) they have nothing left but immediately to order the whole of their sick into the General Hospital. What would be the consequence? Instead of about three hundred, which is the present number of the sick in the General Hospital, it would immediately amount to two thousand or upwards, and the number would increase every day. But where we shall get room for them, is the difficulty; and in case of an action, and many persons being wounded, that difficulty would increase. The General Hospital would be crowded, and the regimental Surgeons, who profess their ardent desire of being usefully employed, would complain of having nothing to do. But what is the worst part of it, as the dysentery and fevers of a putrid kind now prevail, the crowding so many together into the General Hospital would certainly engender a malignant, pestilential fever, that would threaten the ruin of the Army.

These difficulties, in my opinion, might, for the present, be got over in one of these two ways, the choice of which is left to your Excellency:

The first, is by adopting a set of regulations, drawn up and agreed upon betwixt the regimental Surgeons and myself, (if it met with your Excellency's approbation,) and which I laid before your Excellency a fortnight ago for your consideration.

Otherwise, let the regimental Surgeons be suffered to keep such men in their own Regimental Hospitals, under their own care, whose cases would endanger the spreading of putrid and infectious distempers. Let them be reported to, and borne on the list of patients admitted into the General Hospital, but remain with the regimental Surgeons under their care. Then their rations will be stopped, discounted with the Commissary-General, and in lieu thereof, they will receive supplies of such articles as the General Hospital can furnish them with, of wine, vinegar, molasses, meal, &c., which, I believe, would not far exceed the amount of those rations.

This would answer to a plan I proposed to your Excellency last winter, and which was approved. Your Excellency only wished then, that some method might be taken to prevent the rations of the sick being twice drawn. I prehend that matter is fully guarded against by the method pointed out by the sixth resolve of Congress, of July 17, on the subject of the General Hospital. The first method would give the greatest satisfaction, not only to the regimental Surgeons, but to the officers and to the men; and an experiment would be made of the real expense attending Regimental Hospitals, and every cause, or even shadow of complaint, vanish. It would encourage the soldier in his duty; and if it is found, on trial, subject to any abuse, I imagine that abuse could be easily remedied by future regulations, or a stoppage in the men's pay at the time of a new enlistment.

The present increase of the sick is a serious matter, and requires a speedy remedy. I regret the calling for your Excellency's attention (for ever so short a time) to my department; but I flatter myself the importance of the subject, and the advantages which may accrue to the service from it, will evince the necessity, and be a sufficient apology for it.

I remain, your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN MORGAN.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL WADSWORTH TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-York, July 18, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: As I have the honour to command a brigade of Militia from the Colony of Connecticut, I think it my duty to give such information from time to time as may relate to the interest or honour of the Colony. I am therefore to inform your Honour, that on the 8th instant Colonel Seymour arrived here, and informed the General that a body of about five hundred of the Troop of Horse from Connecticut had arrived near this city, and also showed him his instructions. The evening following, at a meeting of the General Officers, the matter was under consideration, when it was unanimously agreed that the men were much wanted here; but, as Troopers, could be of no service in case of an attack, and that those men who were not armed with carbines, or good fire-arms, should return to Connecticut with the horses, as forage for them could not be had here, and that the detachment whilst here should do duty in the brigade under my command. And thereupon I received the General's command to acquaint Colonel Seymour with said resolution next morning, which I accordingly did; when he informed me he thought it would be disagreeable to his party to leave their horses, but said he would return to them and sound their minds; when a plan of sending their horses, at their own expense, (or trust the Colony to reimburse them,) so far back as not to prejudice the foraging of the Army, was proposed, and, as I understood by Colonel Seymour, was approved by the General; and thereupon, upon the 10th instant, they marched into the city, were barracked, drew provision, ammunition, &c. Yet many of the officers objected to their being subjected to fatigue duty, on account of their clothing; but were answered, that a partial treatment of the several parts of the Army would create jealousy, animosity and strife, and would produce great mischief in the Army. Little duty was required of them till the 16th instant, when a number were warned out to mount guard, who complied; a number of others being ordered on fatigue duty did not go. The same day I received a writing, addressed to me, signed by Colonel Seymour and some of the principal officers of the Troop, representing, that by the laws of the Colony of Connecticut, the Troop were not obliged to do garrison duty, or on foot, yet were willing to mount guard, but could not consent to do fatigue duty, and unless exempted therefrom, should presume they were at liberty to return home. Which writing, by reason of the General's absence and my tour of duty that day, was not communicated to the General till done by Colonel Seymour in the evening, when the General, as Colonel Seymour informed me, said he could make no distinction in favour of any one part of the Army on this ground, but offered Colonel Seymour's regiment liberty of going to Bergen Point in the Jerseys, to relieve Colonel Bradley's regiment, which is there at present. To this it was objected many of them had no blankets. The General replied, if they had not blankets, they could not go; and further added, if they would not submit to the duty in camp, in common with others in the Army, he did not care how soon they returned home. Being advised of what had passed, I suggested every argument I was able, to Colonel

Seymour and those of his officers I saw, to induce them to tarry; but if they were determined to return, not to do it without the General's permission in writing. In consequence of which, application was made to the General, who wrote a letter to Colonel Seymour, which I have not seen, but have it from the Colonel that it contained in substance the declaration made to him the night before, and that he had used his utmost endeavours to persuade his men to stay; notwithstanding which they have almost all left this city.

The troops are almost daily arriving from Connecticut in small parties, which makes it difficult to ascertain the number every day. I hope they will soon be completed—an event much to be wished, under our present circumstances.

Last Friday two ships passed all our batteries, up the North-River, under a heavy fire from our guns, which they returned without any loss on our side, except six men by an accident in firing one of our cannon. What damage the ships sustained I cannot learn, or how far they are gone up the river.

Two flags have come from the fleet, but the letters not being properly addressed, were not received. The officers in one of them were very polite, and one of them said Lord Howe was very unhappy that he did not arrive a few days sooner.

I am, with great truth and respect, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

JAMES WADSWORTH.

To the Hon. Governour Trumbull.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, July 18, 1776.

SIR: I received a line from Colonel Webb last evening, directing me to inquire how many ships had passed the Narrows. Colonel Hand reported one yesterday morning, which I thought was reported in my morning's report, and if it is not reported there, it was an omission of mine. I beg your Excellency to examine it. Colonel Hand reported at four o'clock in the afternoon that a brigantine had gone down towards the Hook; and that the ship that went through the Narrows in the morning, had come to, off New-Utrecht shore. At seven in the evening, he reported that the ship had gone down to the Hook, and that the enemy were intrenching on the heights of Staten-Island.

The two last reports I did not come to the knowledge of until within night. I went over to the city at five, and did not return until eight. I thought it would be too late to get them to Head-Quarters seasonably, therefore concluded to report them in the morning.

I have not received Colonel Hand's morning report yet. I was down at Red-Hook about sunrise, and saw a sloop stretching down towards the Narrows. Nothing extraordinary has happened the last twenty-four hours. Our outguards suspect that there are spies about the camp. The sentries have fired half-a-dozen times a night the three preceding nights.

Colonel Hand's morning report is this moment come in; he mentioned everything continues in the same situation as last evening, except the sloop going through the Narrows, that I observed from Red-Hook.

I wrote to your Excellency yesterday morning that I thought it would be an advisable measure to have Cobble-Hill fixed upon to give notice by the fire of one, two, or three guns, that the enemy had landed on this Island. Colonel Cary wrote me an answer to that proposition, and said your Excellency had no objection. If it is to alarm the camp on your side, it should be mentioned in general orders, that the guards may govern themselves accordingly. We don't want it to alarm this camp; what I proposed it for was, to give your Excellency earlier intelligence than could be done by express, and the express to follow with the particulars. I submit it to your Excellency's further consideration.

I am, with all due respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

N. GREENE.

To His Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters, New-York.

New-York, Thursday, July 25, 1776.

On Thursday last, pursuant to a resolve of the Representatives of the Colony of New-York, sitting in Congress, the Proclamation issued at Philadelphia the 4th instant, by the Continental Congress, declaring the Thirteen United Colonies to be free and independent States, was read and published at the City-Hall, when a number of true friends to the rights and liberties of America attended, and signified their approbation by loud acclamations. After which, the British arms from over the seat of justice in the Court-House was taken down, exposed, torn to pieces, and burnt. Another British arms, wrought in stone, in the front of the pediment without, was thrown to the ground and broken to pieces, and the picture of King George III, which had been placed in the Council-Chamber, was thrown out, broken, torn to pieces, and burnt, of all which the people testified their approbation by repeated huzzas. The same day, we hear, the British arms from all the Churches in the city were ordered to be removed and destroyed.

New-York, July 18, 1776.

Under a tyrannical Government it generally happens that the officers in Administration, from the highest to the lowest, are a set of villains, who countenance and support each other in every species of oppression, injury, and abuse of the unhappy people who fall into their clutches. The laws, even those that were well intended, in the hands of such officers, are only instruments of oppression, but afford no protection from it. Of this, the following Narrative of Captain Robert Campbell affords a remarkable instance, and is a slight specimen of what every American might expect, if ever these Colonies should again fall under subjection to the tyrannical power of Great Britain or any other State or person.

Narrative of the case of Captain ROBERT CAMPBELL, of New-York.

On the 24th of October, 1775, Captain Robert Campbell, master of the sloop America, having on board sixty-five hogsheads of sugar, a mare, and a chariot, shipped by and belonging to inhabitants of St. Croix, sailed from that place, bound to New-York, where he intended to pay the duties, having refused other freight offered, on condition of his attempting to run it at New-York. Meeting with bad weather soon after he sailed, his vessel and rigging received some damage. On the 24th November, latitude 35°, longitude 68°, he was brought to by the Viper sloop-of-war, Captain Graves, who sent for and examined him, looked over his papers, and returned them, saying he would put an officer on board to keep the sloop by him, as he was going to New-York; but soon after took the papers again, saying he would enclose and send them to Boston, where sugars bore a better price than at New-York. However, he assured Captain Campbell that if his vessel had no powder on board she should not be condemned. Some time after Captain Campbell was returned to his sloop, the man-of-war's boat came again, with a message from Captain Graves, demanding Captain Campbell's sword and pistols, which the officer having received, took of his own accord a small box, containing six bottles of castor oil and a small cup of jelly; meanwhile the men were not idle, but, like their officer, took many little things that lay in their way, and broke open a cask of sugar, from which they stole as much as they could conveniently hide from their superior thief. Captain Graves, as he proceeded in villany, growing more callous, now demanded and took away Captain Campbell's mate and people, putting five of his own men on board in their stead, with orders to steer N.N.E. for Boston. Soon after setting sail, Captain Campbell perceived that neither of Graves's men understood working the vessel nor taking an observation, and told them that as they proceeded they would never reach Boston. On the 30th of November, all the provisions the Viper's men had brought being expended, and having only ninety pounds of bread on board the sloop, which he observed the men used very lavishly, he proposed dividing it among them, which was done, and amounted to about ten pounds each man. The sun not having appeared for five days, they now stood south, and continued so three days, to latitude 35° 11'; then put it to vote whether to go on the coast or to the nearest port. The bad condition of the vessel and shortness of bread and water induced Captain Campbell to vote for the nearest port; which being agreed to, they sailed for Bermuda three days, but not being able to reach it, the officer ordered his second to sail for Antigua, where, with Captain Campbell's best assistance, they arrived in St. John's harbour the 21st day of December last. On the day of his arrival, the vessel was seized by a custom-house officer, on suspicion of having on board foreign rum and sugar. Captain Campbell then entered his protest against Graves and the custom-house for all losses, &c., occasioned by the detention, seizure, &c. Captain Campbell perceiving his vessel detained, and no likelihood of any redress, applied for advice to a lawyer, one Philip Hicks, who, on his behalf, drew up and presented a petition to the Honourable Robert Christian, Esq., Judge of the Court of Vice Admiralty for the Island of Antigua, reciting the foregoing particulars, and setting forth the great injury he had sustained in his property, and the many personal insults he had suffered by opprobrious language, &c.; that though Captain Graves was arrived, and pretended the sloop America and her cargo were lawful prize, yet he had instituted no process, nor taken any step towards her condemnation; the petition, therefore, prayed that the Judge would issue a monition against him and all other persons concerned in the seizure and detention, &c., citing them to appear at a certain day, and answer to the complaint against their conduct respecting the said sloop. The Judge granted the petition, and appointed the 26th day of January for holding a Court of Admiralty, for the purposes mentioned in the petition. After this monition, Graves found it necessary to bestir himself, in order to secure the plunder (which, by an act of piracy, he had violently taken from an innocent man, and the right owner,) from being wrested out of his rapacious hands. He therefore applies first to the officers of the custom-house, who had, as well as himself, seized the vessel, and as they no doubt agreed to share the plunder between them, they jointly concurred in a letter to the Attorney-General, who was also a Justice of the Peace and the King's Proctor, of which Letter the following is the substance, viz:

"To Thomas Warner, Esq.:

"What can or shall we do with the vessel we have taken, brought into port, and seized? Though her papers are good, and she has not broken any of the acts of trade, neither is there anything on board that will confiscate her, but her owners are in a state of rebellion against the King and his Parliament."

The Attorney had as yet come upon no terms with them, and therefore it was necessary he should let them know his importance, in order to enhance his share in the plunder. The following is a copy of his Answer:

"Though you have the vessel in port, and you actually know that her owners are in a state of rebellion against the King and Parliament and his troops, yet their goods and effects cannot be forfeited nor confiscated before they are convicted or fled."

What secret measures were taken after this to induce the Attorney-General to become an accomplice in the villany, we know not; but that he did become an accomplice, appears from the part he afterwards acted in the business. In order to embarrass Captain Campbell, and put it out of his power to prosecute his suit, two of his sailors, Thomas Pacey and John Lawrence, were tampered with, treated, and intoxicated, when they were suborned to swear, on the 23d January last, before the same most conscientious Attorney, Proctor, Justice, &c., Thomas Warner, Esq., (at least so he certifies,) that Captain Campbell had to each of them acknowledged, that since the rebellion in North America he had served as an artillery soldier in the Rebel Army, and that when he was at New-York and St. Croix he wore a cockade in his hat. Therefore, he (the illustrious Thomas Warner, Esq.) issued a warrant to John Jackson, Constable, requiring him to take up and keep in safe custody the said Captain Campbell, till he should be dealt with as the law directs. After this warrant was served on Captain Campbell, he was not immediately put under close confinement, as might have been expected from the tenour of the warrant, but suffered to go at large for several days, no doubt to give him an opportunity to go off, if he chose to do so, because, in that case, by the new act, the vessel and cargo becomes forfeited. But Captain Campbell, aware of the snare, made no effort to go off, but, on the contrary, urged on his suit. Finding this plan ineffectual, it was dropped, and recourse had to another. He was now taken up, and closely confined in a jail with felons, at a short allowance of raw provisions, which were to be dressed by the common negro hangman; and under this rigorous and ignominious confinement and treatment he continued for eight weeks and three days, during which time, and afterwards, till his departure, he was treated with continual insults and the utmost contempt, being shunned by the men with whom he had been acquainted, who would scarcely deign to speak to him; some, indeed, told him that they should give offence to their superiors if they showed him any countenance; and one considerable merchant, with whom he had often done business, told him that he feared his coming to his house would expose him to censure, and be a disadvantage to him; after which Captain Campbell never went near him. During this time, (on a combination of all the villains concerned,) there was exhibited (on the 9th of March, 1776) against the vessel and cargo a libel, which was designedly made a false one; that upon its being proved false another might immediately take place, upon another act, which was not in force till after the commencement of the first process. In the libel, the seizure of the vessel by the Viper, which was on the 24th November, (when no act by which it could be seized was in force,) was set forth to be on the 6th of January, when the act for seizing American vessels was in force. After the (allegation or) libel above mentioned was issued, (signed by George William Jackson, Register in Admiralty,) Mr. Hicks, (before mentioned,) Captain Campbell's attorney, acquainted him by note that he (Mr. Hicks) was employed to prosecute the claim of Mrs. Alletta Heyliger, for twenty-eight hogsheads of sugar, her property, (part of the sixty-five,) on board the America; that he was clear the vessel could not be condemned, and advises Captain Campbell to put in his claim, and give security as the law directs. It appears by a note of Isaac Harvey, that he had provided security for the vessel, and Captain Campbell was at liberty to take every advantage on that account that the law would afford him. On the 3d of May came on the trial; when, after a full examination and hearing, the judgment sets forth "the claim of Mrs. Heyliger, that it was allowed, and her property ordered to be restored; but that, no other claim being made, the Court, as their definitive sentence, declared the sloop America, her tackle, apparel, and furniture, and the lading on board, (except Mrs. Heyliger's twenty-eight hogsheads of sugar,) to be condemned as lawful prize, for the use of the captors." The night before the trial, Mr. Hicks, the lawyer, who appeared to be very intimate with Mr. Christian, the Judge, was a long time in close conversation with him. Mr. Hicks told Captain Campbell that he had said, if a claim for the vessel and remainder of the cargo should be made by Captain Campbell, it would have been allowed in Court, and the whole restored; but if it should be done, preparations were made to exhibit another libel immediately on the new act, which would certainly have produced a condemnation of the vessel and cargo, at fifty or one hundred pounds more expense; so that, by Mr. Hicks's advice, Captain Campbell thought proper to waive his claim, and acquiesce in the judgment. The custom-house officer had thought proper to quit his claim on the seizure he had made of the vessel, which being at that time in custody of the man-of-war, was of no real damage to Captain Campbell, and therefore he could recover no damage on that account; and of the Captain of the man-of-war none could be recovered, because, by the act, no damage shall be recovered of any persons seizing vessels, though it should appear on trial that the seizure had been illegally made, and the vessel should be cleared. Thus every way was Captain Campbell cut off from any redress; and after suffering a long and cruel imprisonment and innumerable insults, was obliged to acquiesce in the loss of vessel and cargo, without the breach of any law, even those oppressive and tyrannical laws of our enemies themselves.

N. WOODHULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

White-Plains, July 18, 1776. }

SIR: I have the honour to enclose your Excellency a copy of a letter this moment received from Colonel Van Cortlandt and Captain Zephaniah Platt, who were sent from this Convention for the purpose of providing for and stationing the Militia that might come down from the country to guard the river, and assist the other Militia at the forts in the Highlands.

I am, with the greatest respect, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

By order: NATHANIEL WOODHULL, President.

To His Excellency General Washington, at Head-Quarters, New-York.

P. VAN CORTLANDT AND Z. PLATT TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Peekskill, July 18, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We proceeded, in consequence of your orders, up the river. When we came to Croton, found the ships anchored in Haverstraw Bay. We posted Colonel Hammond, with one hundred and forty men, on the banks of the river to the best advantage, and proceeded to Peekskill, rallying, as we went along, the people near the river, to keep out proper sentries along the river to watch the motions of the enemy. As soon as we came here, we despatched an express to Dutchess County to call in half of the Militia, and forwarded your letter to Captain Van Zandt, &c.; at the same time sent out for half of the Militia of Cortlandt's Manor to march immediately to this place. Wednesday morning went over to Fort Montgomery, to confer with General Clinton, where, to our great joy, we found six hundred of the Militia of Orange and Ulster Counties, and great numbers had been sent back, all in high spirits. We then returned back, in order to go up to Fort Constitution, but, on our return, being informed that a number of troops were within six or eight miles of this from Connecticut, we thought prudent to stay until they came, in order to provide for them and fix their stations. About this period, one of the tenders hove in sight, beating up into Peekskill Bay. She beat up within about two miles of Fort Montgomery, and then bore away and stood down the river, when our people at the fort fired one gun at her. She ran round the point of the Dunderbergh, sent her barge ashore and plundered a poor man's house and garden, stole a hog, and put off. As she went down between Verplanck's Point and the west shore, our men galled them much with their musketry. The tender, in her turn, returned a heavy fire with her cannon, but did no damage that we have heard of. About three o'clock Major Gay, of Sharon, came in with two hundred and sixty men. Soon after, General Ten Broeck, from Dutchess, and General Fellows, from Massachusetts, arrived, with part of their brigades, and many more are on their march. We sent an express last evening to General Clinton, to send for Colonel Clinton to meet us at Fort Montgomery at ten o'clock this morning, to confer with us and Generals Ten Broeck and Fellows, in order to form a general plan of operation. The returns are not properly made out as yet, but conclude there are about six hundred men now here, and expect there will be, by night, twelve hundred.

From, gentlemen, your very humble servants,

PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT,
ZEPH. PLATT.

To the Hon. the Representatives for the State of New-York

COMMITTEE OF NEW-YORK CONVENTION TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort Montgomery, July 18, 1776.

SIR: We informed your Excellency of our appointment, in consequence of which we took a survey of the fortresses in the Highlands. We are extremely sorry to say that, notwithstanding their importance and advantageous situation, they are by no means in a proper posture of defence. Part of the few cannon at Fort Constitution were sent away, and the whole number now there, and at Fort Montgomery, are not sufficient; this want, we suppose, your Excellency will be unable to supply; we have, therefore, sent for those that were designed for the ships that are building at Poughkeepsie; but if we should obtain them, they will be of little use unless some Matrosses can be spared from New-York, since there are only fourteen at both forts. If your Excellency could spare a few howitzers, they might be of singular use at this place. A skilful engineer could be at no place more serviceable than here, as many small posts which command this ought to be fortified. We cannot think the garrison by any means proportioned to the extent of the works or the importance of the place. We know the difficulty that your Excellency will find in supplying these wants; yet we cannot but suggest them, since we are satisfied that even if the enemy should be defeated at New-York, they might take such posts here as we should find it impossible to dispossess them of.

We remain, with the greatest respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servants,

ROBERT YATES,
JOHN JAY,
ROBERT R. LIVINGSTON,
CHRISTOPHER TAPPEN,
GILBERT LIVINGSTON.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq., at New-York.

P. S. Since writing the above, we have been informed that the Salisbury furnace, at which place the cannon are cast, is under the direction of the Government of Connecticut; so that we have some doubt whether we can procure those for which we wrote, unless your Excellency will be pleased to lend us your assistance, by writing to Governour Trumbull on the subject.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

German-Flats, July 18, 1776.

DEAR SIR: General Washington has enclosed me the Declaration of Congress of the 4th instant, declaring the American Colonies free and independent States; and directed that it should be proclaimed throughout the Northern Army; for which purpose I do myself the honour to enclose it to you.

Fifty carpenters from Connecticut I hope have reached Skenesborough by this time, and a like number from Philadelphia are, I hope, on the point of arriving. Fifty more are to come from the Massachusetts, and as many from Rhode Island. To employ all these to advantage will require great exertions. I wish, therefore, that General Arnold should pay a visit to Skenesborough, and arrange matters there.

General Washington has ordered three of the fullest regiments from Boston to join you; these, with the Militia, will, I hope, give us a superiority, and enable us to prevent the enemy from doing anything decisive in that quarter.

I have ordered all the lead at Albany to be cast into balls of various sizes, and into buckshot.

General Washington writes me that Congress "have determined the matter between Mr. Trumbull and Mr. Livingston, and decided the right of supplying the Northern Army, and appointing persons for that purpose, to be in the former." I mention this that you may conduct yourself accordingly upon any application in the Commissary-General's branch.

I have assured Congress and General Washington that the difference in opinion between you and me had not caused the least ill will, or interrupted that harmony which is so essentially necessary to subsist between their officers; and I have entreated them not to entertain an uneasy thought on that account, for that a good understanding will be carefully cultivated between us.

Adieu, my dear sir; and believe me, with unfeigned regard, most sincerely yours, &c., &c., &c., PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable General Gates.

GENERAL WATERBURY TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, July 18, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I received your favour of the 16th, and your Honour may be assured I shall execute your orders as far as lies in my power. I would inform your Honour there are no troops arrived yet. I have had intelligence of their being on their march to this place, and hope they will soon arrive. I have a small party now clearing out Wood Creek, and a small party building a place proper to keep a guard on the hill east of the mill, and the rest are employed in getting timber for the carpenters, and mills, and on guard. I have not men sufficient to begin the fortification on the west side of the mills. Your Honour will see by the return, that there are but few men here; but what there are I shall endeavour to keep well employed; and as soon as others come in, I shall do the same by them. I have picked up all the axes, and the blacksmiths have overhauled them. But there are but very few here in the whole. I shall stand in great need of tools at the arrival of the troops.

Sir, I shall with pleasure receive your orders as you see cause to send them, and hope I shall be able to put them into execution, agreeable to your Honour's expectation; and am, with the greatest esteem, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

DAVID WATERBURY, Jun.

P. S. Would acquaint your Honour there were thirteen carpenters at work at the galley, separate from Colonel Schuyler's company, who were not included in the return, by not knowing of the same when the return was made out.

The saw-mill is not yet got at work on account of a mistake in the irons, and I was obliged to send them here to get them done. They are now altered and returned. It is expected the mill will soon get at work, as I have used my utmost endeavours to forward the thing. I have this moment received your favour, per Doctor Ely, and everything shall be complied with, so far as lies in my power.

Still remain yours, &c.

RESOLUTIONS FOR ARREST OF SUSPECTED PERSONS IN CONNECTICUT.

At a meeting of the Governour and Committee of Safety of the Colony of Connecticut, held at Lebanon, on the 18th day of July, A. D. 1776:

Whereas many persons inimical to the United States of America, do wander from place to place, with intent to spy out the state of the Colonies, and give intelligence to their enemies, whereby confederacies may be formed and strengthened, and other great inconveniences may ensue therefrom: Which to prevent,

Resolved, That no person or persons unknown or suspected, whether they appear in the character of gentlemen, expresses, travellers, or common beggars, be permitted to travel or pass from town to town in this Colony, unless he or they can and do produce a certificate from some Congress, Committee of Safety or Inspection, some Magistrate, Justice of the Peace, or General, or Field-Officer in the Army, therein mentioning from whence and to what place the person producing the same is travelling, and that he is friendly to the liberties of the American States, unless he be a person well known, and friendly as aforesaid.

And all officers, civil and military, Selectmen, Committees of Inspection, Sheriffs, Grand Jurors, and Tythingmen in this Colony, are directed to require every person travelling as aforesaid, to produce such certificate, and to stop and examine such persons travelling without such certificate as aforesaid; and unless he or they can give full satisfaction that he or they are pursuing their lawful business, and are friendly to the liberties and interests of the United American States, and has no design to hurt or injure them in his or their journey, that they apprehend such person or persons, and him or them carry before the civil authority, Selectmen, or Committee of Inspection of the town in which he or they shall be found, to be further examined and dealt with as the nature of the case, in his or their opinion, may require.

And it is further recommended to the civil authority and Selectmen of the larger towns in this Colony, that proper watches and wards be kept in suitable places in said towns, by night, to apprehend any such persons as aforesaid, that may travel from place to place, and practise mischief against this or the rest of the United Colonies, and bring them before proper authority, that they may be dealt with in such manner as the nature of their several cases may require.

A true copy,

Attest:

WILLIAM WILLIAMS, Clerk.

TIMOTHY PARKER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-London, July 18, 1776.

SIR: I received your Honour's favour of the 11th instant, wherein I am made acquainted with my appointment to the First Lientenancy of the Colony ship, to be commanded by Captain William Coit, a gentleman I much esteem for his patriotick principles, as well as the bravery and valour he hath so often manifested in the cause of this our much injured and oppressed country.

I have to thank your Honour and his Council for the good opinion they must entertain of my skill and ability in naval affairs, as being worthy the appointment.

Sir, I am diffident of my own ability in the performance of so great a trust; and am sorry I am under the necessity of declining so honourable an appointment, for reasons (to me of weight) already communicated to Benjamin Huntington, Esq., one of your Honour's Council.

I am, with the greatest esteem, your Honour's and Council's most obedient and humble servant,

TIMOTHY PARKER.

To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Lebanon.

JEHIEL TINKER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-London, July 18, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I received yours of the 16th instant, ordering me to New-York.

I shall be ready by to-morrow night, if the small-arms are ready, that I am to apply to Colonel Huntington for. I have applied for them, but Colonel Huntington was not at home. I could not get them. There is a postscript on the back of the letter your Honour sent me, informing me there is a letter at Lebanon to General Washington, which I shall wait for. I have got on board three cannon, (nine-pounders,) of the five that were here, which is all that will answer; and two three-pounders out of the old fort. I should be glad if your Honour would give me an order on Captain Dickerson, at Saybrook, for part of a hogshead of rum that is there, as cider is very scarce and dear, and it is likely rum will be dear at New-York.

From your most humble servant, JEHIEL TINKER.

To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esq.

Boston, Thursday, July 18, 1776.

This day, pursuant to the orders of the honourable Council, was proclaimed, from the balcony of the State-House in this town, the Declaration of the American Congress, absolving the United Colonies from their allegiance to the British Crown, and declaring them free and independent States.

There were present on the occasion, in the Council Chamber, the Committee of Council, a number of the Honourable House of Representatives, the Magistrates, Ministers, Selectmen, and other gentlemen of Boston and the neighbouring towns; also, the Commission Officers of the Continental Regiments stationed here, and other officers. Two of those regiments were under arms in King Street, formed into three lines, on the north side of the street, and into thirteen divisions; and a detachment from the Massachusetts regiment of Artillery, with two pieces of cannon, was on their right wing. At one o'clock the Declaration was proclaimed by Colonel Thomas Crofts, the Sheriff of the County of Suffolk, which was received with great joy, expressed by three huzzas from a great concourse of people assembled on the occasion; after which, on a signal given, thirteen pieces of cannon were fired from the fort on Fort-Hill; the forts at Dorchester-Neck, the Castle, Nantasket, and Point-Alderton, likewise discharged their cannon; then the detachment of Artillery fired their cannon thirteen times, which was followed by the two regiments giving their fire from the thirteen divisions in succession. These firings corresponded to the number of the American States united. The ceremony was closed with a proper collation to the gentlemen in the Council Chamber; during which, the following Toasts were given by the President of the Council, and heartily pledged by the company, viz:

Prosperity and perpetuity to the United States of America.

The American Congress.

The General Court of the State of Massachusetts-Bay.
General Washington, and success to the arms of the United States.

The downfall of tyrants and tyranny.

The universal prevalence of civil and religious liberty.

The friends of the United States in all quarters of the globe.

The bells of the town were rung on the occasion, and undissembled festivity cheered and brightened every face.

On the same evening, the King's arms, and every sign with any resemblance of it, whether Lion and Crown, Pestle and Mortar and Crown, Heart and Crown, &c., together with every sign that belonged to a Tory, was taken down, and made a general conflagration of in King Street.

Watertown, Monday, July 22, 1776.

Last Thursday, a number of the Members of the Council, (who were prevented attending the ceremony of proclaiming the Declaration of Independence at Boston, on account of the small-pox there,) together with those of the honourable House of Representatives who were in town, and a number of other gentlemen, assembled at the Council Chamber, in this town, where the said Declaration was also proclaimed by the Secretary from one of the windows; after which, the gentlemen present partook of a decent collation prepared on the occasion, and drank a number of constitutional toasts, and then retired.

On the same day, the Tyrannicide privateer, in the service of this State, commanded by John Fisk, carried into Salem an armed schooner of eight carriage and twelve swivel guns, and thirty men, which he took off George's Banks, about three weeks ago, after an obstinate engagement of three glasses. The schooner belonged to and sailed with the fleet which is arrived at New-York, and was one of those which belonged to the rear division. The Tyrannicide had one man killed, and one wounded, and was much shattered; but is now refitting, and will soon be ready for another cruise. The Captain of the schooner and one man were killed; the master lost one arm, and about ten were wounded, several mortally.

The King's arms in this town were, on Saturday last, defaced.

The post for Crown-Point sets out this day (and every Monday) at ten o'clock, from the house of Mr. Stephen Harris in this town, where letters are to be sent, in order to be forwarded gratis. He returns on Saturdays.

TIMOTHY PICKERING, JUN., TO RICHARD DERBY.

Salem, July 18, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by the Selectmen and Committee of Safety of this town to inform you, that the inhabitants are very uneasy, and urge the erecting a gate at the entrance of the town to secure them against the small-pox, of which they think themselves in danger, by means of persons coming from Boston unexamined and uncleansed, which they do to this day, and it is feared will continue to do, unless the honourable Council take some effective order to prevent it. Captain Peele tells us that he came out of Boston yesterday, without seeing any guard, or being asked a question. If there be a continuance of such carelessness in Boston, the infection may be spread far and near, and a great many towns put to a very great expense in erecting gates and providing guards. The Selectmen and Committee pray you to use your endeavours in Council that effectual measures be taken to prevent such extensive mischief. The Selectmen and Committee are also desirous that the poor of Boston may be removed from our Hospital. Their continuance there any longer will be attended with many disadvantages to the town. We have two patients already with the natural small-pox, and we expect many more. It is no longer expedient to remove them to the Neck, because, in case of an alarm in that quarter, the whole country would be in danger, if they ventured on to the Neck, and perhaps they would refuse to go. The Court of Sessions may also order it to be used as a County Hospital. There are other reasons; but the bearer is waiting with impatience. You are requested to urge this point also in Council. In haste.

I am, yours,

TIM. PICKERING, JUN.

To the Honourable Richard Derby, Esq.

SELECTMEN OF NORTHFIELD TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Northfield, July 18, 1776.

HONOURED GENTLEMEN: These are to inform you, that five of the prisoners from Northampton came to us on the ninth day of July last, and are in want of some supply of money for their present subsistence. Some of them are in want of some clothes. Having an opportunity now to send to your Honours of their need, we beg the favour that you would be pleased to send some here by the bearer, Captain Hopkins King, or give order on the Town Treasurer of Northfield, as there is some money ordered there, to be paid to the Treasurer of the Massachusetts-Bay, which we hope will be sent in soon. Doctor Samuel Mattson is now Town Treasurer.

We would also inform your Honours that many people are very uneasy. The prisoners are sent so near our frontiers, that they may easily make their escape, and inform our enemy of our poor situation to defend ourselves. They can also, with the liberty the Congress gives, have an opportunity of converse with Tories every day, which has been observed from time to time. If your Honours, in your wisdom, shall think proper to remove them to some more interior part of the country, it would be greatly pleasing to your very humble servants,

ELIJAH HUNT,
EBENEZER JANES,
EDWARD WRIGHT,
Selectmen of Northfield.

To the Hon. Council of Massachusetts-Bay.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO COLONEL JACOB BAYLEY.

In Committee of Safety, July 18, 1776.

The Committee are in expectation that you will accomplish your desire of keeping in Continental pay, per order of General Washington, the sixty men employed by you to clear a road to Canada; and as you have thought fit to desist working on said road, that you now employ them as scouting parties to guard the country. But if you should be directed to disband them, you are hereby empowered to enlist fifty men, to be under the pay of this Colony, until the first of December next, unless sooner discharged, and see that the men fairly choose a Captain-Lieutenant and Ensign to command them. Said company, if raised, to take orders, from time to time, from yourself, Colonel John Hurd, and Colonel Charles Johnson, to direct their conduct. Said men to receive 30s. bounty, and 40s. per month wages.

By order of the Committee.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

M. WEARE, Chairman.

To Colonel Jacob Bayley.

ORDER ON SAMUEL DYER.

In Committee of Safety, July 18, 1776.

Samuel Dyer, an inhabitant of Berwick, in the County of York, and Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay, being brought before the Committee, charged with being unfriendly to the liberties of this country; and, after hearing his defence, and considering the matters objected against him, the Committee do determine that the said Samuel Dyer ought to confine himself to the aforesaid town of Berwick, and in no case to come within the limits of this Colony, under pain of imprisonment, unless Captain John Langdon should see fit to receive him aboard the Continental frigate under his care at Portsmouth; in which case, he may enlist and continue in that service.

By order of the Committee.

Portsmouth, New-Hampshire, July 20, 1776.

The day before yesterday, pursuant to an order from the Great and General Court of this State, the Independent Company under Colonel Sherburne, and the Light-Infantry Company under Colonel Langdon, were drawn up on the parade, in their uniforms, when the Declaration of Independence from the Grand Continental Congress was read, in the hearing of a numerous and respectable audience. The pleasing countenances of the many patriots present spoke a hearty concurrence in the interesting measure, which was confirmed by three huzzas, and all was conducted in peace and good order.

An express passed through this town last Thursday, who brought an account that Captain Mowat, in the Canceaux, had taken all the fishing-boats that lay within his reach, to the number of twenty sail, at the eastward of Casco-Bay, and is supposed to have carried them into Halifax.

Last Wednesday set out on their march for our Northern Army, the first company of the first battalion of New-Hampshire forces, commanded by Captain James Arnold, late of Boston, consisting of about one hundred stout, active, enterprising volunteers, who have all engaged in the service, and marched off with great spirit and good order, within the short space of ten days. Such is the ardour, such the resolution of freemen to support a cause in which their all is interested.

GENERAL LEE TO A MEMBER OF CONGRESS.

Charlestown, South-Carolina, July 19, 1776.

MY DEAR FRIEND: I have received yours of the 28th of May, and did not think it possible that anything could come from your hand to give me so disagreeable sensations. You tell me a dark, mysterious story of a certain great General, of whom Prince Ferdinand has declared, si l'on vent un officier, &c. This great General in the clouds will, it seems, graciously condescend to serve America, on condition that Congress will give him assurances of stepping over the heads of every officer but one, and this he submits to, only on consideration of the confidence due to an American. You ask my opinion on this subject; but the palpable meaning of your letter is, to prepare me for a cession of my rank in favour of some impudent adventurer. Buckwith is the man, as you conjecture, from his known political principles and military abilities, which are so transcendent that I ought, for the public interest, to make a second sacrifice. I am not, I believe, naturally proud; I do not think myself conceited of my talents; but to be put in competition, much more to be spurned aside, to make room for so despicable a character as Buckwith, a generally reputed coward, and a b——d sycophant,—I say, to be kicked out of my station for such a creature as this, would swell a man more humble than myself into a trumpeter of his own merits. Great God! is it come to this? I am not, it seems, an American; but am I not (if I may so express myself) Americanior ipsis Americanis? Have I not, such has been my zeal for your cause, once already waived my military claims in deference to the whim and partiality of some of your members? Did I not consent to serve under an old Churchwarden, of whom you had conceived a most extravagant and ridiculous opinion? Your eyes were at length opened, and Deacon Ward returned to his proper occupation; and would you now, a second time, (do you think it consistent with decency, I may say gratitude or common honesty,) load me with a similar disgrace? Have I betrayed any ignorance in my profession? Have I shown a deficiency in courage? Am I slackened in my zeal or industry? What have I done to merit such an indignity? What part of my conduct can justify your harbouring such an idea? Have not I staked my fortune, life, and reputation, in your cause? Is there a service in Europe, to speak proudly, (your injurious proposal forces me to it,) is there a service in Europe, where, with some small reputation and my powerful friends, I might not expect the same rank I now hold? Have I not made myself a voluntary slave for the insurances of American freedom? Have I, sleeping or waking, employed a single thought but for her welfare, glory, or advantage?

But enough of this. You ask my opinion, and I will freely, explicitly, and concisely give it to you. If the Congress supersede me, I will, I must obey; but I hope, in common justice, and for their own honour, that they will reëstablish me, at least in part, in the easy fortune which I have forfeited, so as to enable me to retire from a service to which I am no longer thought adequate.

Before I conclude, let me once more repeat confidentially to you, that if Buckwith is the man in whose favour you meditate so gross a piece of injustice, you will make a very bad bargain, as he is certainly, unless fame belies him, neither possessed of courage, abilities, or integrity. In God's name, if a real genius, or acknowledged hero, favoured by Heaven with a more than common portion of ethereal spirit, should present himself, (a la Lippe, or Braganza,) receive him with open arms, as an immediate present from God, and invest him with the command of the whole. No man loves, respects, and reverences another, more than I do General Washington. I esteem his virtues, private and public; I know him to be a man of sense, courage, and firmness; but if a hero should start up, endowed with the attributes which, according to my persuasion, reside in the two I have mentioned, and who would charge himself with the mighty task of your political salvation, General Washington ought, and, I am convinced, would resign the truncheon. But that a little, paltry, impudent adventurer should sneakily stipulate for the second rank, when, if his motives were pure, he could be equally serviceable in the third, fourth, fifth, or sixth, it is not to be endured, it is a gross imposition on common understanding, and a grosser attempt to rob an individual. I must beg and conjure you, my dear friend, for such I am sure you are, to consider the delicate, perhaps you will say false, notions in which soldiers are bred; and that you will be careful of putting to so severe a trial the sensibility of one, who is, most sincerely, devotedly, and affectionately, yours,

CHARLES LEE.

To * * *.

P. S. I am extremely shocked with the pallid complexion of your publick councils. Is it possible that such a despicable group as the Maryland Convention should lay an embargo on the great vessel of the Commonwealth! Can you be so weak as to hunt for the chimera Absolute Unanimity! Why do you not advise the aggregate of the people to enfranchise themselves? Your idea of quitting Canada from want of specie is to me inconceivable, when you can or ought to command plate sufficient to purchase ten Canadas.

Williamsburgh, July 19, 1776.

From Hampton we learn, that advice was brought there, from the Eastern-Shore, of a tender, mounting two carriage and twelve swivel guns, being driven ashore in a squall of wind, five or six days ago, with eighteen pirates on board, (among them Mr. James Parker, late of Norfolk, merchant,) who immediately surrendered themselves to a party of our troops, and begged for quarters. A boat from another tender, her consort, attempted to cut her out from the creek where she was secured, but our people, perceiving their design, laid in ambush for them, and, when nigh enough, rushed into the water and fired upon them, killing five of the crew, it was supposed, as three were seen to fall overboard, and two to drop down in the boat; upon which the pirates tacked about, and rowed faster than they came to their tender.

Benjamin Woodward, against whom an information was lodged for attempting to counterfeit the paper currency of the American States, was brought to town last Wednesday, with four other persons, suspected to be accomplices, and lodged in the publick jail. They were taken in Pittsylvania County, with types and other implements to carry on their wicked and destructive schemes.

COLONEL A. SOMERVILLE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

July 17, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: You will be informed by Mr. Hopewell that the enemy hath landed on St. George's Island; that Captain Beall is wounded; that they want men in St. Mary's. I shall proceed down to their assistance with about fifty of the best men that I can get, now stationed at Drum Point, and shall leave orders for as many more to follow, unless ordered otherwise by you, and shall leave a guard at Drum Point. I shall want cash to victual the men who go to St. Mary's. Please send us such sum by bearer as you may think sufficient, which shall be accounted for. You will also send orders. Major Wilkinson commands in Calvert until Colonel Marshall's return.

Gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

ALEX. SOMERVILLE.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

GEORGE SCOTT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Fredericktown, July 19, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: Some time past I purchased a parcel of country linen, about four hundred and twenty yards, in order to send into the lower Counties to get a quantity of wool for our factory, but on inquiry found it could not be had, there being a great scarcity of that necessary article. It is very well calculated for the troops, and I have been told that the Council of Safety wanted a quantity for that purpose. Should you incline to take it, please give me an answer by Mr. John Ross Key, the bearer of this, who will return in a few days.

I am, honoured sir, your obedient servant,

GEORGE SCOTT.

THOMAS BOURK TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Cambridge, July 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have to acquaint you that we have not met with the wished-for success in raising the company you ordered us to raise in this County. The Militia having been discharged till after harvest, we have not had an opportunity of recruiting the men; add to this, that on my returning from Annapolis, the Cambridge Blues were ordered to march to the straits, where the enemy was said to have landed; unwilling to desert them at a time of danger, I commanded them on that occasion, so that it has not been in my power to exert myself as yet. Mr. Lynch has made up his complement; they are here, and are a likely set of men. We have about forty or fifty men engaged; in Somerset there were none willing to engage. I expect some next week from Worcester, I wait to know how many, which, when informed of, shall proceed to Annapolis, to receive your orders whether I shall continue to enlist or not. Our Militia companies will meet next week, when we shall have a better opportunity of completing our number. Could I have engaged to take the men into immediate pay, the company would have been nearly completed. Mr. Lynch carries our warrants.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient humble servant,

THOMAS BOURK.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

GENERAL HOOPER TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Dorchester County, July 19, 1776.

SIR: On receipt of yours of the 15th instant, I immediately ordered a draught of fifteen privates and proper officers to be made from each company of Militia of this brigade, and those draughted in Dorchester and Caroline Counties to be stationed in Dorchester, and the draughted Militia of Somerset and Worcester Counties to be stationed in Somerset County. The men so draughted are ordered to be at the several places of rendezvous on Wednesday, the 24th instant.

If your Board should not approve of this disposition of the Militia, you will please to let me know it, and I shall make such alterations therein as you may direct. Although I have ordered out the Militia, to be in readiness to repel any attempt of the enemy to land in this district, agreeably to your directions, yet I think it will be difficult to keep them together without some money. The country people here who have provisions to sell show a great unwillingness to part with it, unless paid for at the same time. I would therefore wish that your Board would take some order about subsisting the Militia of this district, when called out in defence of the Province, by directing that the Treasurer of the Eastern Shore should pay to the Committee of Observation for Dorchester County such a sum of money as you may think necessary, to be applied for the purpose of victualling and subsisting the Militia of the lower district when in actual service, as the commanding officer of said brigade shall direct. I have applied to General Chamberlain for four hundred pounds of gunpowder and sixteen pounds of lead. If you should have received any further intelligence of Dummore and his fleet, I should be glad to know it.

I am, respectfully, sir, your very humble servant,

HENRY HOOPER.

To the Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, President of the Council of Safety.

COLONEL WILLIAM HARRISON TO THE MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Charles County, July 19, 1776.

SIR: Under cover hereof you will please receive enrolments of two Militia Companies, viz: John Thomas's and Richard Bennett Mitchel's, the former in the Twelfth and the latter in the Twentieth-Sixth Battalion. They have been properly examined; and as I am in momentary expectation that the whole or part of the Militia here may be called to the aid of St. Mary's, must request your Board to issue commissions thereon, and have them transmitted me by the earliest opportunity.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,
WILL. HARRISON.

GENERAL DENT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Charles River, Head-Quarters, July 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: On my arrival at this place on the 16th instant, I found there had been an engagement with the enemy, with no other loss but the misfortune of Captain Rezin Beall being badly wounded, though it is hoped not mortally.

By four deserters who came over to us yesterday, we are informed the mate or Midshipman of the Roeback was killed in the action. By the best information, the enemy have not more than fifty regulars of the Fourteenth Regiment, about one hundred and fifty Tories, and one hundred negroes, that bear arms; all of whom are landed every morning and embarked in the evening, under cover of the fleet, which continues in the mouth of the St. Mary's river, opposite to the lower end of St. George's Island. Our strength at present is about four hundred Militia, exclusive of the Independent and Captain Forrest's company. I made bold, immediately on my arrival (the strength of the enemy being much magnified) to order to our assistance three full companies of Militia from Colonel Hawkins's battalion, to be selected from the interior part of the County, which I expect will arrive about to-morrow evening, when I shall discharge an equal number of the most necessitous of those now on duty. The fleet (which at first consisted of eighty sail) is now reduced to little more than half that number, many of the tenders and square-rigged vessels having gone to Virginia, opposite the mouth of Potomack, where a pretty constant cannonade has been kept up ever since I have been here.

We are told by the deserters (two more of which have come over since I began to write) that the fleet intend only to wood and water on the Island, burn all or most of their small craft, and proceed to sea.

Had we a few great guns at a place called Cherry Fields Point, well planted and served, we might annoy the fleet so as to oblige them to quit their station. Captain Forrest's company has relieved an equal number of the Militia, who readily parted with their arms, such as they were.

I shall, as often as anything of consequence happens, communicate it to you with the utmost despatch; till when, I am your most obedient servant,

JNO. DENT.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety.

CUNNINGHAM'S EXAMINATION.

Q. In what occupation did you act in Virginia? A. I was a book-keeper there to Messrs. Jameson & Co.

Q. What became of Mr. Jameson? A. In the fleet.

Q. What vessel were you on board? A. The Dolphin brig.

Q. Did you continue in the same vessel, or did you land at Gwin's Island? A. No. I never landed.

Q. What time did you leave Gwin's Island, and what was the cause? A. We were obliged to leave it by batteries being erected on shore.

Q. Was any damage done to the shipping? A. To Dunmore's vessel: the boatswain was killed; a man lost his arm.

Q. None killed on the Island? A. None.

Q. What condition were the people in on board? A. Sickly—the small pox; the negroes had the jail fever.

Q. What number were there? A. Not above three hundred in arms.

Q. Who commands them? A. Col. Bird's son commands.

Q. How many died and were buried at G. Island? A. I think there must have been five hundred.

Q. How were you provided with provisions? A. Salt beef enough for troops.

Q. How many families on board the fleet? A. I suppose one thousand souls.

Q. How many did the ships bring from the Eastern Shore? A. One hundred and fifty; fifty belonging to the Fourteenth Regiment. They did not exceed three hundred in all.

Q. How many did land upon St. George's Island? A. I don't know. None but soldiers.

Q. How many marines on board? A. Roeback 75, Fowey 25, Otter 15.

Q. Did you know where they were going? A. No.

Q. Did you come up, or did you drift ashore? A. I came up voluntarily.

Q. Whose property was that in the vessel? A. It was sold at vendue.

Q. Were the people inoculated on board? A. Yes.

Q. Whose property was the molasses? A. I bought part.

Q. Was Governour Eden on board the Fowey? A. Yes, I have seen him walking the deck.

Q. Did you know the Fowey was upon the Eastern Shore? A. Yes. The Governour was not on board.

Q. Did they consent you should come off? A. No.

Q. Was it in the night that you left the fleet? A. In the night; the fleet was after wood and water.

Q. Have you plenty of bread? A. Yes.

Q. Were there any troops armed at G. Island? A. No. No troops, but part of the Fourteenth Regiment.

Q. Do the tenders ply out in the bay? A. Yes. They were cruising.

Q. Do you know when Governour Eden goes home? A. Yes; he goes in a store-ship.

Q. How much stock was got upon Eastern Shore? A. The private families get no share of it. I saw cattle on decks.

Q. Do the tenders go out in the bay a cruising? A. Yes; I have seen them out in the bay.

Q. How long were they inoculated, and was it done to communicate it to the people on shore? A. By no means; every one in the fleet inoculated that had it not.

Q. How many men in the gondolas? A. Ten men on each side. As to the fleet, Captain Hammond and Lord Dunmore at variance. I don't think Governour Eden has anything to do with the fleet. The Lively frigate at the Capes. Molasses at a bit; good West-India rum at 2s. 2d. Marines and sailors would desert, but no others. Not the 14th.

Q. What distance Fowey from the shore? A. Musket-shot.

Q. What number of vessels in the fleet? A. Seventy-two. Many small boats.

Q. Did you not say that the fleet was going to sea? A. Yes; a signal given from Dunmore for masters of ships to come on board to receive orders, that they were going to St. Augustine.

Q. Did you leave any vessels? A. Two tenders in the straits. Two four-pounders, two two-pounders. Dunmore three six-pounders fired, &c. Slipt her cables. The Otter upon careen with her guns out.

Q. How long was it after the cannonade commenced before you left it? A. Immediately upon the first discharge of cannon.

Q. Where did you get beef? A. From Antigua: a brig with five hundred barrels; a store-ship with five hundred barrels.

Q. What execution was done to your tenders on the Eastern Shore? A. One man killed, and eight or nine wounded.

Q. Money plenty? A. Yes. Commodore Hammond the best man in the Navy. Captain Hammond will convey them all out safe to sea.

Q. Has not Lord Dunmore sent people about to communicate the information? A. Not to my knowledge. Captain Hammond not to continue on the Eastern Shore—to go to New-York.

Q. How many guns has the Lively? A. Thirty or thirty-six. Eleven shot. The Dunmore, eighteen.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL DORSEY.

Annapolis, July 19, 1776.

SIR: At present we do not desire you to send in any more of your Militia. Should it be necessary hereafter, we will inform you; and from their readiness, which we have hitherto experienced, doubt not their being here in proper time.

We are, &c.

To Colonel Dorsey.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COUNCIL OF SAFETY OF VIRGINIA.

[No. 58.]

Annapolis, July 19, 1776.

SIR: Your favour communicating the intelligence that the enemy's fleet had been driven from their station, and their forces obliged to abandon Guin's Island, came safe to hand, and demands our acknowledgments.

They have since arrived in Potomack, and landed some men on St. George's Island, at the mouth of St. Mary's River, where they have thrown up intrenchments. We are making preparations to dislodge them as soon as possible.

In return, we congratulate you on our success in the southern quarter; and we are, &c.

To the Hon. John Page, Esq., President of the Council of Virginia.

P. S. We have ordered Mr. Hughes to send immediately to Georgetown two eighteen-pounders, for the use of your Colony, to be delivered to Messrs. Mayson and Dalton's orders.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DOCTOR WEISENTHALL.

Annapolis, July 19, 1776.

SIR: Doctor Tootle has been with us. Since his journey to Baltimore, he is uncertain how far you intend to act as physician to the Matross company now at Baltimore town, or any of the Militia of the Flying-Camp that may be stationed there, in lieu of those companies of the battalion who are marched to New-York. We should be obliged to you for a line given in answer to these doubts of his, that we may know how to conduct ourselves in the nomination of an assistant to act in that department. We are, &c.

To Doctor Charles Frederick Weisenthall.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO JOHN WEST.

Annapolis, July 19, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of yesterday I received, and laid it before our Council, who have directed me to assure you, that every friendly assistance in their power shall be cheerfully afforded our neighbours, upon every emergency that may require it. We derive great comfort from the competence of your powers and the promise you have been pleased to make, of flying to our assistance whenever it should be necessary. We can order our regular forces out of the Province; the Militia we cannot; but the Colonels in each County are authorized to call out the Militia to act in the Province, whenever they see occasion to do it. I am, &c.

To John West, Esq., President of the Committee of Alexandria.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO STEPHEN STEWART.

Annapolis, July 19, 1776.

SIR: James Cray attends you, with a vessel that he is offering for sale to the Council of Safety; but as we are by no means judges of the value, or whether or not she will answer our purpose, we have referred him to you for examination, and shall be very glad to hear from you upon that head. We are, &c.

To Mr. Stephen Stewart.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THE CHARLES COUNTY COMMITTEE.

[No. 62.]

Annapolis, July 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have sent you £200 by Charles Lansdale, which we request the favour of you to apply to the account of subsistence of that part of Captain Beall's company stationed at Port-Tobacco. We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation of Charles County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

Annapolis, July 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed we send you copies of some letters we have received from Colonel Barnes and Colonel Jordan, giving us an account of Lord Dunmore's squadron having appeared near the mouth of St. Mary's River, in a hostile manner, and that some of them had landed on St. George's Island. In consequence of these advices, we have countermanded the orders to Captain Thomas and Captain Hindman, whom we wish to keep in the Province, to assist in repelling the invasion. We do not expect Dunmore will stay long at St. George's Island. Expect he will move up Potomack, or to the Eastern-Shore; perhaps up the Bay to Annapolis, or Baltimore town. We shall send you further intelligence as soon as we receive it.

Our Flying-Camp are coming in almost every day. But many a question has arisen as to their subsistence. Neither Congress nor Convention have made any provision for rations during the time the men are drawing together, nor whilst they remain unarmed, and unprovided with necessaries, which will amount to something considerable. We intend finding rations for the battalion that is to supply the place of our own regulars. We wish you to apply to the Congress, and let us know what is to be done about subsistence for the other battalions. They are all coming to us to be supplied with almost every necessary, and you may judge our situation is very disagreeable, not having it in our power to answer their demands. Our Militia, in a general way, during this time of invasion, cannot be persuaded to lend their arms. Most of those who enlist have none of their own. We take it for granted, it would answer very little purpose to send you a number of men unarmed, and unprovided with necessaries, and therefore do not order them forward.

We congratulate you on the victory that hath been obtained in South-Carolina by the Americans over the British fleet. Some of Commodore Parker's squadron have met with a severe drubbing, according to the particulars we have heard, of which we doubt not you have more perfect information before this time. We send you the Maryland Gazette, in which are inserted some particulars of the damage sustained by Commodore Parker.

We have information from below, that Lord Dunmore hath been beat off at Gwin's Island; and we have too much reason to believe, by intelligence from a deserter, who was examined before us yesterday, that Governour Eden is still on board the Fowey. They have seventy-two sail of vessels—divers of them small sharp-rigged sloops or boats.

We have received Mr. Stone's letter of the 12th; but know not what answer to give as to supplying tents, until we can see how our canvass holds out. Do not believe it will be in our power to furnish any in time.

We are, &c.

To the Deputies for Maryland, in Congress.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, July 19, 1776.

SIR: My earnestness to convey to you, as soon as possible, the intelligence this moment received from South-Carolina, on which I most sincerely congratulate you, I am confident, will apologize for my not adding more than to tell you, that enclosed you will find the copy of General Lee's letter, and the account from the deserters who escaped after the action. I am loath to hinder the express one moment. He is ready; and I will only say, that the enclosed resolves of Congress were this day passed, and to which I beg leave to refer you. I will write General Schuyler to-morrow.

You will please not to print the letter, &c., received from General Lee, as by to-morrow's post I shall write you again, and forward the account printed for the publick information.

I have the honour to be, with great regard, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

N. B. I cannot detain the express to give you the particulars of Governour Rutledge's letter; but will print it, with the other parts submitted to me by Congress, and forward you by to-morrow's post.

God bless you, my dear sir. May you ever be under the Divine protection, and see a happy issue to your noble exertions! Yours,

J. H.

Charlestown, July 2, 1776.

SIR: I should have done myself the honour sooner of informing the Congress of the attack made by the enemy's squadron on Sullivan's Island, and their repulse, but conjectured that by waiting a day or two I might probably be furnished with the means of sending a more minute, full, and satisfactory account. My conjecture was right; for yesterday five seamen made their escape, one of whom is a more intelligent fellow than is commonly found amongst men of his level. Enclosed is a copy of their narrative: some parts of it are perhaps too whimsical and trivial to merit the attention of Congress; but I think it my duty to present it as it is, without adding or curtailling a circumstance. I think, sir, I may venture to congratulate the Congress on the event: not only the advantages must be considerable, but the affair reflects no small credit on the American arms.

On Friday, about eleven o'clock, the Commodore, with his whole squadron, consisting of two line-of-battle ships and six frigates, the rates of which are marked in the enclosed narrative, anchored at less than half musket-shot from the Fort, and commenced one of the most furious and incessant fires I ever saw or heard of. It was manifestly their plan to land at the same time their whole Regulars at the east end of the Island, and of course invest the Fort by land and sea. As the garrison was composed entirely of raw troops, both men and officers, as I knew their ammunition was short, and as the bridge by which we could reinforce or call off the troops from the Island was unfinished, you may easily conceive my anxiety. It was so great that I was in suspense whether I should evacuate it or not. Fortunately, whilst I was in this state of suspense, some ammunition arrived from the town, and my aid-de-camp, Mr. Byrd, returning from the Island with a flattering report of the garrison's spirit, I determined to support it at all hazards. On this principle, I thought it my duty to cross over to the Island, to encourage the garrison by my presence; but I might have saved myself that trouble, for I found on my arrival they had no occasion for any sort of encouragement—I found them determined and cool to the last degree; their behaviour would in fact have done honour to the oldest troops. I beg leave, sir, therefore, to recommend, in the strongest terms, to the Congress, the commanding officer Colonel Moultrie, and his whole garrison, as brave soldiers and excellent citizens. Nor must I omit at the same time mentioning Colonel Thompson, who, with the South-Carolina Rangers and a detachment of the North-Carolina Regulars, repulsed the enemy in two several attempts to make a lodgment at the other extremity of the Island.

Our loss, considering the heat and duration of the fire, was inconsiderable. We had only ten men killed on the spot, and twenty-two wounded, seven of whom lost their limbs; but with their limbs they did not lose their spirits, for they enthusiastically encouraged their commander never to abandon the standard of liberty and their country. This I do assure you, sir, is not in the style of gasconading romance, usual after every successful action; but literally a fact. I with great pleasure mention the circumstance, as it augurs well to the cause of freedom. At eleven the fire ceased, having continued just twelve hours without the least intermission.

What the enemy's intentions are now, it is impossible to divine. I am inclined to think they will (if they can repass the bar) bend their course to Chesapeake or Hampton Bay. Perhaps shame and rage may prompt their land forces to some attempt before their departure. On my part, I shall spare no pains to discover their intentions and baffle their schemes.

As Georgia is a district of the command with which you have honoured me, I thought it prudent to request some of their Members to a conference with the President of this Province and myself; they accepted the invitation, and gave us great satisfaction, from their intelligence and good sense. Enclosed is their deliberation.

That Province is certainly of the last importance to the common cause, and the mode of protecting it pointed out by these gentlemen is, in my opinion, in all its parts, wise and necessary. They had conceived a notion that I had powers to augment their establishment. I assured them that I had no such powers; but both Mr. Rutledge and myself gave it as our opinion, that any expenses manifestly beyond their faculties, which they might incur in the common cause, would be repaid by the Congress; and in this persuasion we ventured to encourage them to augment their Cavalry without loss of time, and make the proposed present of cattle to the Indians. Indeed, sir, without a strong corps of Cavalry, I do not see how it is possible to protect these southern Colonies; and with one thousand good Cavalry I think I could insure their protection. From the want of this species of troops, Charleston and its dependencies had certainly been lost, if the enemy had acted with the vigour and expedition we had reason to expect; but a most unaccountable languor and inertness on their part saved us. If the scheme I proposed in Virginia had been approved and adopted, it would have been not only a security, but considerable economy; the forage was to have been the only expense. Now I am upon this subject, I cannot help mentioning that I have been informed that this project has been considered by some gentlemen as a sort of presumption in me arrogating such a power; but I fancy the affair was not properly understood: I saw the immediate necessity of such a corps; I knew they could be raised immediately by these means; and at the same time I was given to understand by several gentlemen of the Virginia Convention, that, should the Continental Congress disapprove of the expense, (trifling as it was,) there was little doubt of their Convention defraying it. But in fact, sir, the measure seemed necessary for the salvation of the Provinces, and not a day was to be lost, which I hope will fully justify my conduct. And I must beg leave to repeat my assertion, that without Cavalry these Provinces cannot be easily defended.

I wish some means could be devised of reducing East Florida to an American Province. Had I force sufficient, I should, with your permission, certainly attempt it. The advantages would be great and manifold. The augmentation of the Georgia Cavalry, I sincerely hope may be approved of by the Congress. Enclosed is the establishment and pay proposed for them. I think the terms not high.

I shall now, sir, conclude, with expressing the high satisfaction I have received from the zeal, activity, and publick spirit, of the gentlemen and inhabitants of this city and Province, from the President of Council down to the lowest order of the people; and assuring you that I have not in my military capacity met with the least obstruction or difficulty, but that we have all worked in concert and harmony for the common good.

I most earnestly request you will pay my respects to the Congress; and be persuaded, sir, that I am, most entirely and devotedly, your most obedient servant, CHARLES LEE.

To the Honourable John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress.

P. S. As Georgia has been particularly unfortunate in their adventures for powder, and as my command is so extensive, I must conjure Congress to send an ample supply.

Circumstantial account of the proceedings of the BRITISH Fleet and Army, both before and after their defeat at SULLIVAN'S ISLAND, on the 28th of JUNE, 1776.

On the 1st of June, his Excellency the President received advices of a fleet of forty or fifty sail being at anchor about six leagues to the northward of Sullivan's Island. Accounts of the arrival of Sir Peter Parker's fleet in North-Carolina, and that it was destined either for Virginia or this Province, having been received about three weeks before, put it beyond a doubt that this was his fleet. Next morning the alarm was fired, expresses having been sent, ordering the country Militia to town. The fortifications were all visited by his Excellency and General Armstrong, and preparations for the most vigorous defence ordered. In the evening a man-of-war, thought to be a twenty-gun ship, beat up to windward, and anchored off the bar; next day she was joined by a frigate; and on the day following, (June 4), by upwards of fifty sail of men-of-war, transports, tenders, &c. We have since learned that the men-of-war were the Bristol, of fifty guns, on board of which the Commodore had his flag; the Solebay, Captain Symonds, twenty-eight; Syren, Captain Furneaux, twenty-eight; Active, Captain Williams, twenty-eight; Acteon, Captain Atkins, twenty-eight; Sphinx, Captain Hunt, twenty; Ranger sloop of eight; Thunder (bomb) of six guns and two mortars, one of them thirteen inches, and the other eleven; an armed ship, called the Friendship, of eighteen guns, with some smaller armed vessels. The same day Captain Mowat arrived from North-Carolina, with an express from General Lee, informing that the fleet had left North-Carolina, and that he would be here as speedily as possible, with several Continental regiments, to our assistance.

A few days after the arrival of the fleet, several transports and small armed vessels went to Long-Island, (situated to the eastward of Sullivan's Island, from which it is separated by a small creek called the Breach,) where they landed a large body of troops, who encamped there. The wind and tide being favourable for the four following days, about thirty-six vessels came over the bar, and anchored at about three miles distance from Sullivan's Island. Two of their transports got aground in coming over; one got off, but the other went to pieces. On the 10th the Bristol came over, her guns being previously taken out.

On the 7th, a boat, with a flag of truce from the enemy, came towards the Island, but was fired on by an ignorant sentinel. The boat thereupon immediately put about, and would not return, notwithstanding the officer who was sent to receive the flag waved his handkerchief, and desired them to come ashore. Next day Colonel Moultrie sent an officer to the fleet to acquaint them of the sentinel's having fired without orders, and that he was ready to receive anything they had to send. General Clinton was satisfied with the apology, and said the intention of the flag's being sent was only to deliver the following Proclamation, which the officer brought ashore:

By Major-General CLINTON, Commander of His Majesty's Forces in the Southern Provinces of NORTH AMERICA:

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas a most unprovoked and wicked rebellion hath for some time past prevailed, and doth now exist within his Majesty's Province of North-Carolina, and the inhabitants (forgetting their allegiance to their Sovereign, and denying the authority of the laws and statutes of the Realm) have, in a succession of crimes, proceeded to the total subversion of all lawful authority, usurping the powers of Government, and erecting a tyranny in the hands of Congresses and Committees of various denominations, utterly unknown and repugnant to the spirit of the British Constitution; and divers people, in defiance to all legal authority, are now actually in arms, waging unnatural war against their King; and whereas all attempts to reclaim the infatuated and misguided multitude to a sense of their error have unhappily proved ineffectual,—I have it in command to proceed forthwith against all such men, or bodies of men in arms, and against all such Congresses and Committees thus unlawfully established, as against open enemies to the State. But, considering it a duty inseparable from the principle of humanity, first of all to forewarn the deluded people of the miseries ever attendant upon civil war, I do most earnestly entreat and exhort them, as they tender their own happiness and that of their posterity, to appease the vengeance of an injured and justly incensed nation by a return to their duty to our common Sovereign, and to the blessings of a free Government, as established by law, hereby offering, in his Majesty's name, free pardon to all such as shall lay down their arms and submit to the laws, excepting only from the benefit of such pardon Cornelius Harnett and Robert Howe. And I do hereby require that the Provincial Congress, and all Committees of Safety, and other unlawful associations, be dissolved, and the Judges allowed to hold their Courts according to the laws and Constitution of this Province, of which all persons are required to take notice, as they will answer the contrary at their utmost peril.

Given on board the Pallas transport, in Cape-Fear River, in the Province of North-Carolina, the 5th day of May, 1776, and in the sixteenth year of his Majesty's reign.

H. CLINTON.

By command of General Clinton:

R. REAVE, Secretary.

Major-General Lee, Brigadier-General Howe, Colonel Bullitt, Colonel Jenifer, Otway Byrd, and Lewis Morris, Esqs., Aids-de-camp to General Lee, with some other gentlemen, arrived at Haddrell's Point in the morning of the 9th. After having viewed the fortifications there and on Sullivan's and James's Islands, they came to town. Orders being given on the 10th for a number of buildings on the wharves to be pulled down, intrenchments to be thrown up all around the town, and barricadoes to be made in the principal streets, every person, without distinction, were employed on those works.

On the 12th there blew a violent storm, in which an hospital ship and the Friendship, which were at anchor on the other side of the bar, were obliged to put out to sea, but returned in a few days after. A schooner having on board some provisions and coals, drifting a little way from the fleet, was taken by one of our pilot-boats, and brought to town. Her crew took to their boat on observing the pilot-boat's approach.

His Excellency the President on the 14th proposed to the Militia under arms an oath of fidelity, which was voluntarily and readily taken by every one present excepting three. The next morning it was proposed to the country Militia doing duty in town, and to the Artillery companies, when it met with their unanimous assent.

A sloop from the West-Indies for this port, with a cargo of gunpowder, arms, rum, &c., having, in the afternoon of the 16th, descried the fleet, attempted to make her escape; but, through the ignorance of her pilot, run aground and bilged. Next day she was discovered by the men-of-war; and a tender, with several boats full of armed men, came towards her. The crew, being only twenty-two men, unable to cope with such a force in the situation the vessel was in, quitted her. She was soon after boarded, set on fire, and blew up with great explosion.

By some sailors who deserted from the Ranger sloop, lying near Long-Island, we were informed that the land forces were about two thousand eight hundred (some say three thousand three hundred) men, under the command of Major-General Clinton, who had under him Major-General Lord Cornwallis and Brigadier-General Vaughan.

On the 21st, our advanced party at the northeast end of Sullivan's Island fired several shot at the armed schooner Lady William, an armed sloop, and a pilot-boat, lying in the creek, between Long-Island and the main; several of which hulled them. For several mornings and evenings the enemy threw shells, and fired from some field-pieces on our advanced post, but without any effect.

A large ship hove in sight on the 25th, in the morning. She was thought to be the Roebuck, but we have since learned she was the Experiment, Captain Scott, of fifty guns. Next day she came over, having her guns out. On the day following, the 27th, between nine and ten in the forenoon, as soon as the Experiment had her guns all in, the Commodore hoisted his topsails, fired a gun, and got under way. His example was followed by several others of the men-of-war; but a squall coming on, and the wind shifting from southeast to the opposite quarter, prevented their coming much nearer at that time. In the afternoon, the Commodore again got under way, and came about a mile nearer Sullivan's Island.

Next morning, June 28th, the following was the disposition of the ships-of-war: The Friendship, at the distance of about a mile and a half from Sullivan's Island, covering the Thunder (bomb); the Solebay, Sphinx, Bristol, Active, Experiment, Acteon, and Syren. About half an hour past ten o'clock in the forenoon, the Thunder began throwing shells on Fort Sullivan, and the Active, Bristol, Experiment, and Solebay, came boldly up to the attack, in the order their names are put down. A little before eleven o'clock the garrison fired four or five shot at the Active, while under sail, some of which struck her; these she did not seem to regard till within about three hundred and fifty yards of the fort, when she dropped anchor and poured in a broadside. Her example was in a few minutes followed by the other three vessels, when there ensued one of the most heavy and incessant cannonades perhaps ever known. The bomb vessel was at the same time throwing shells; a firing was heard from the advanced post at the northeast end of the Island, and more vessels were seen coming up. Our brave garrison, (consisting of the Second Regiment of Provincials, a detachment of Artillery, and some Volunteers,) under all these difficulties, which to the far greater part were entirely new, encouraged by the example of their gallant commander, Colonel William Moultrie, and the rest of the officers, behaved with the cool intrepidity of veterans. Our cannon were well served, and did dreadful execution. About twelve o'clock the Sphinx, Acteon, and Syren, got entangled with a shoal, called the Middle Ground. The two first ran foul of each other; the Sphinx got off with the loss of her bowsprit, but the Acteon stuck fast. The Syren also got off. Much about the same time, the bomb vessel ceased firing, after having thrown upwards of sixty shells. We have since learned that her beds got damaged, and that it will require much repairing before she is fit for service again. In the afternoon the enemy's fire was increased by that of the Syren and Friendship, which came within five hundred yards of the fort.

Till near seven o'clock was the enemy's fire kept up without intermission. It slackened considerably after that, and they only returned the garrison's fire, but generally twentyfold. At half after nine, the firing on both sides ceased, and at eleven, the ships slipped their cables.

About the time the ships came up, an armed schooner and sloop came nearer our advanced post, in order to cover the landing of their troops, and every other preparation for that purpose was made. The soldiers even got into their boats, and a number of shells were thrown into our intrenchment, but did no other damage than wounding one soldier. Notwithstanding which they never once attempted to land. At the advanced post were stationed Colonel Thompson, with his Rangers, some companies of Militia, and a detachment of Artillery. They had one eighteen-pounder and two field-pieces, from which they returned the enemy's fire. They were reinforced in the afternoon with Colonel Muhlenberg's Virginia battalion.

Next morning, all the men-of-war, except the Acteon, were retired about two miles from the Island, which they had quietly effected under cloud of night. The garrison fired several shot at the Acteon, which she returned. But soon after, her crew set her on fire and abandoned her, leaving her colours flying, guns loaded, with all her ammunition, provisions, and stores on board. They had not been long gone before several boats from the Island went to her. Lieutenant Jacob Milligan, with some others, went on board, and brought off her jack, bell, some sails, and stores. While the flames were burning out on all sides, he fired three of her guns at the Commodore. In less than half an hour after they quitted her, she blew up.

The Bristol, against which the fire was chiefly directed, is very much damaged. It is said that not less than seventy balls went through her. Her mizenmast was so much hurt, that they have since replaced it with another. The mainmast is cut away about fifteen feet below the hounds, and instead of her broad pendant soaring on a lofty mast, it is now hardly to be seen on a jury-mainmast, considerably lower than the foremast. The Experiment had her mizen gaff shot away; the other vessels sustained little damage in their rigging.

The loss in the fleet, according to the report of the deserters, is about one hundred and eighty killed and wounded; among the former, is Captain Morrison, of the Bristol. Sir Peter Parker had the hind part of his breeches shot away, which laid his posteriors bare: his kneecap was hurt by a splinter. There have been several funerals in the fleet since the engagement, and from the parade of some, it is conjectured they were of officers of rank. Some of the deserters say that Captain Scott, of the Experiment, is among the killed.

The loss of the garrison was as follows:

Artillery: Killed, one Matross; wounded, two Matrosses. Second Regiment: killed, one Sergeant, nine rank and file; wounded, Lieutenants Gray and Hall, the Fife-major, one Sergeant, nineteen rank and file.

An officer's mulatto waiting-boy was killed.

Total killed, twelve; wounded, twenty-three.

Both the officers were but slightly wounded, and are now well. Five of the wounded privates are since dead.

The works are very little damaged; but hardly a hut or tree on the Island escaped the shot entirely. Many thousands of the enemy's shot have been picked up on the Island.

General Lee was at Haddrell's Point at the beginning of the action, and went in a boat, through a thick fire, to the fort, where he staid some time. He says, in the whole course of his military service, he never knew men behave better; and cannot sufficiently praise both officers and soldiers for their coolness and intrepidity. The behaviour of two Sergeants deserves to be remembered. In the beginning of the action, the flag-staff was shot away; which being observed by Sergeant Jasper, of the Grenadiers, he immediately jumped from one of the embrasures upon the beach, took up the flag, and fixed it on a sponge-staff; with it in his hand, he mounted the merlon, and, notwithstanding the shot flew as thick as hail around him, he leisurely fixed it. Sergeant McDonald, of Captain Huger's company, while exerting himself in a very distinguished manner, was cruelly shattered by a cannon-ball; in a few minutes, he expired, after having uttered these remarkable words: "My friends, I am dying; but don't let the cause of liberty expire with me." His comrades felt for him; the gallant Jasper immediately removed his mangled corps from their sight, and called aloud, "Let us revenge that brave man's death!" The day after the action, his Excellency the President presented Sergeant Jasper with a sword, as a mark of esteem for his distinguished valour.

We hear that the fort on Sullivan's Island will be in future called Fort Moultrie, in honour of the gallant officer who commanded there on the memorable 28th of June, 1776.

The men-of-war dropped down several miles further from the Island a few days after. The carpenters in the fleet had sufficient employment in repairing the vessels. Several deserters came from both fleet and army, who all agreed we need not expect another visit at present; that it was talked, that the two large ships would go to English harbour, in Antigua, to get refitted; the transports, with the troops, to proceed to New-York, under convoy of some men-of-war, to join the grand Army; and that two frigates would be left to cruise between North-Carolina and Georgia.

On the 2d of July, General Lee sent a flag to the enemy, with a proposal to exchange a prisoner for Colonel Ethan Allen, who, it was said, was in the fleet; a present of some meat and vegetables was sent at the same time. General Clinton being at Long-Island, an answer was not received till two days afterwards, when he informed General Lee that Colonel Allen was not on board; and in return for his present, sent some porter, cheese, &c. Two engineers came in the boat; but as they were received at some distance from the Fort, they were deprived of an opportunity of seeing what they were probably sent to observe.

A sloop from the West-Indies, with gunpowder, &c., ran aground on the 5th, in coming into Stono Inlet. She, a few days afterwards, went to pieces, the cargo having been previously taken out.

A number of the enemy's transports went to Long-Island, about ten days after the repulse, and took on board all the troops on it and Goat-Island. About the same time, some of their frigates and armed vessels went over the bar; and on the 14th, the Bristol made an attempt to go out, in which she failed, having struck on the bar. She succeeded in another attempt four days after, and came to an anchor off the harbour.

The transports, with the Solebay, Thunder, Friendship, and some of the small armed vessels, sailed on the 20th, steering a southward course. They were afterwards seen standing to the eastward. On the same day, a brigantine, having on board fifty soldiers and six sailors, got aground near Dewees's Inlet. She was left unobserved by the rest, and on the day afterwards was taken by an armed flat or floating battery, commanded by Lieutenant Pickering. The brigantine could not be got off, and was therefore burnt. She was mounted with six four-pounders. The soldiers threw their small-arms overboard, on seeing the approach of the flat. Four of the crew escaped in their boat.

On the 25th, the Experiment went over the bar, her lower tier of guns being taken out. She came to anchor near the Commodore, Syren, and three transports, lying off the harbour. A frigate, which had not been here before, came to the Commodore in the afternoon of the 25th. Next morning, she sailed for the southward, and two days after, the Syren followed her.

On the 2d of August, the Active, Sphinx, and a large transport, being all of the enemy's vessels within the bar, went out, and with the Bristol, Experiment, three transports, and a tender, stood out to sea, steering an E.N.E. course.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO NEW-JERSEY CONVENTION.

Philadelphia, July 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Congress being informed that there is a large quantity of stock on the sea-coast of your Colony, which are much exposed to the incursions of the enemy, and that many of the proprietors of them, actuated by motives of interest, or disaffected to the cause of their country, would be glad to dispose of them to the enemy, I am ordered to forward to you the enclosed resolution, and earnestly recommend it to you to cause the stock to be removed back into the country to a place of safety.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Honourable Convention of New-Jersey.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO NEW-JERSEY CONVENTION.

Philadelphia, July 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have only time to acquaint you, that a letter from your agent to Mr. Kinsey was read in Congress; in consequence of which, I am desired to forward you the enclosed resolve; and enclose you copies of Lord Howe's letter and declaration, which require no comment. I am to inform you that Congress wish to know by what means that letter to Mr. Kinsey reached his hands, and am to desire you will take every method to prevent any communication with the enemy from your Colony. This I have in charge most earnestly to recommend to you, and beg your immediate attention to it.

I most sincerely congratulate you on the agreeable intelligence just received from South-Carolina, by express. Have not time to be particular; can only say the enemy twice attempted to land, and were repulsed; their capital ships disabled, one blown up, and, in short, a total stop put to the business of the fleet for a long time; the Commodore wounded, one Captain killed, one Captain lost an arm, and many officers and men killed on board the several ships. General Lee writes, the officers and men on our side behaved as well as any old troops could. Our loss very trifling, not one officer killed, and not more than ten men killed, and twenty-two wounded. General Lee writes, he never saw such a fierce, incessant fire in all his life. I hope He who controls all events will still espouse our cause, and give such success to our arms in other quarters, as, from the righteousness of our cause, and our real reliance on Him, He shall judge fit.

I am, with real regard, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Honourable Convention of New-Jersey.

N. B. I am vastly hurried. Excuse me, I have not time to have it copied.

WILLIAM GODDARD TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

Philadelphia, July 19, 1776.

RESPECTED GENTLEMEN: Your complaisant reception of my application to be taken into the service of my country, and your attention to the meritorious officers of the Army, in which I am desirous of serving, do equal honour to the benevolence and justice of your Board, and call for my warmest acknowledgments. As I presume the cause of my not being hitherto provided for arises from a want of information how it might be done with propriety, I beg leave to lay before you the following particulars, collected from several officers of distinction. At the same time, permit me to assure your honourable Board, that I do not wish to be gratified at the hazard of disobliging any worthy officer; neither, indeed, should I incline to serve in any corps in which I was not perfectly agreeable.

In the Army under the immediate command of his Excellency General Washington, there are two regiments whose Colonels are removed, viz: the Fourth, late Larned's, and the Twentieth, Arnold's. Lieutenant-Colonel Tyler, of Colonel Parsons's regiment, is the first Lieutenant-Colonel in rank in the lines; and Lieutenant-Colonel Shepherd, of the Fourth Regiment, is the second in rank. These two gentlemen served all the last war, and distinguished themselves as brave and gallant officers, and during the present struggle for "peace, liberty, and safety," have been highly esteemed. It appears, therefore, to be their right to take the command of those regiments. Arnold's was raised in Connecticut, and Lieutenant-Colonel Tyler would, I am persuaded, be as acceptable to them as any man out of the regiment. Lieutenant-Colonel Shepherd, if preferred, will command the regiment he now belongs to. Major Prentis, of Colonel Parsons's regiment, is the first Major in rank in the lines, and has always approved himself an able commander. Lieutenant-Colonel Putnam, of Colonel Wyllis's regiment, is chief Engineer, and does no duty in battalion; and as he cannot act in both capacities, and he is very skilful in that important profession, the good of the country, it is thought, might be better promoted by making an establishment for Engineers, and confirming Mr. Putnam in that office, with the rank of Colonel. If this should take place, and Major Prentis should be preferred in Colonel Wyllis's regiment, there would then be a vacancy in Colonel Parsons's regiment, in which I am assured there would be no objection to my appointment to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. Captain Chapman, of the same regiment, an officer of real worth, would then of course be appointed to the rank of Major, he being the oldest Captain in the regiment.

In addition to what I have here recited, I am further informed that there is a Lieutenant-Colonelcy vacant in a new battalion of Artificers, commanded by Colonel Parke.

I have mentioned these several particulars with great deference to your honourable Board, as well as to his Excellency the General, and hope I shall not be considered as in the remotest degree dictating to either. If I have gone further than I ought, I beg it may be imputed to my anxious desire of stepping forth, at this very interesting crisis, in defence of my country.

I am, gentlemen, with the highest esteem, your most obedient humble servant,

WILLIAM GODDARD.

To the Honourable the Board of War, &c., for the United States of America.

To the Honourable Commissioners, or Delegates, from the several AMERICAN States, now sitting in General Congress in the City of PHILADELPHIA:

The Memorial of WILLIAM GODDARD, most respectfully sheweth:

That the intolerable severity of Ministerial oppression having exposed to innumerable hardships your memorialist, and other printers who manifested their zeal in defence of the invaded rights of America; and the iron hand of tyranny having, by means of the Parliamentary Post-Office, pressed upon him more heavily, perhaps, than upon any other; his own sufferings, and an ardent desire of serving his country, prompted him to devise a plan for the total abolition of that engine of Ministerial extortion, fraud, and revenge, by substituting to it a Post-Office on constitutional principles.

His undertaking was countenanced by all the friends of American freedom, several of whom contributed largely towards raising a fund sufficient to prosecute his plan, which the artifices used by the tools of despotism to discourage it rendered more expensive than it might otherwise have been. He was, however, very near reaping the fruits of his labour, and reimbursing his friends, when your most honourable House appointed one of your colleagues to superintend that important department, under your direction; but the worthy officer intrusted with it, not having been authorized to indemnify your memorialist or his friends for the expense incurred by establishing Postmasters, hiring riders, and bringing the temporary establishment, in all its parts, to that state where your officer found it when it was resigned with all those advantages, a great loss is sustained by your memorialist, as well as the persons who were more intimately connected with him in that voluntary service of the publick.

The Secretary and Comptrollership (the two principal places which the Congress instituted under the Postmaster General) having been disposed of, it was judged that, as your memorialist has repeatedly travelled through most of the Colonies, for the purpose of carrying on his own projected plan, he was more capable than many others to make a proper choice of inferior officers, and knew many local circumstances that would be essentially useful in the regulation of that department, should he be invested with the Surveyorship, on the present establishment.

To serve this country, he accepted it, insufficient as the salary was to afford him a decent maintenance, and though he well knew that the greater his exertions should be, the sooner his office must be discontinued, all sinecures being inglorious to the incumbents, and burdensome to the State.

Having brought the Surveyorship to that period, for one year at least, he entreats your honourable House to favour him with an opportunity to serve his country in the Army, wherever the scene of action may be, if he be permitted to share in the glorious struggle in which his country is now engaged, and be rendered as serviceable as may be reasonably presumed from his known principles and character.

He is informed, by officers of distinction, that there are three vacancies, one of which, the Mustermaster-General's, being more lucrative, might indemnify him for a part of the pecuniary losses already mentioned; but as it is less liable to those personal dangers which his natural disposition impels him to encounter, he would think himself more happy should you honour him with a commission amongst the genlemen who shall be appointed Field-Officers, to supply the consequential vacancies occasioned by the alterations expected to happen in two regiments, which have no Colonel.

Your Memorialist would not presume to solicit employment to the prejudice of the officers in any regiment; but he is assured that it will give no disgust to the worthy gentlemen of two corps on this station, who, having honourably served in them, might with propriety claim such preferments.

Now that this country is threatened with a most formidable invasion, to assist in defending, at the risk of his life, those sacred rights which, as a citizen, he has asserted on every opportunity that his humble station offered him, is the most fervent wish of your memorialist, who will strive to render himself worthy of the confidence that may be reposed in him by your honourable House, and to demonstrate that he is ever ready to sacrifice his own advantage to the publick good.

WILLIAM GODDARD.

New-York, June 21, 1776.

GENERAL MERCER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Elizabethtown, July 19, 1776.

SIR: After making such preparations as our circumstances would admit of, I marched, about eight o'clock yesterday evening, to the mouth of Thompson's Creek, with the Continental troops under the command of Major Knowlton; the Rifle battalions were to follow. The wind and tide being against them, the boats could not be so soon brought to us as we expected. In the mean time the weather became too tempestuous to venture over the Sound in scows. We remained on the shore, in hopes of calmer weather, till near eleven o'clock, but finding no probability of getting over in time to reach the enemy's quarters before day, were under the necessity of relinquishing the enterprise. It cannot be renewed till we have more forces here; nor would it be prudent to attempt any surprise for some days, as our motions are probably communicated to the enemy.

I have the honour to be, sir, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

HUGH MERCER.

A PLAN FOR ATTACKING STATEN-ISLAND.

First. A party to attack the southeast part of the Island, at a landing called Pullion's, about two miles westward from the Narrows, where are several scattered farm-houses, where it is said troops are quartered; this party to consist of four hundred, and to go from Long-Island.

Second. A party to embark at Piscataway Landing, on Raritan River, about six miles above Amboy, to make their descent on the southwest side of the Island, about two miles east of Billop's Point; to consist of five hundred men, to endeavour to surprise the rear of the camp, opposite to Amboy.

Third. A party to embark from the Old Blazing-Star, near Woodbridge, and to make their descent on the best landing opposite, and to endeavour to surprise the town of Richmond, or Cuckold's Town; to consist of five hundred men.

Fourth. A party to embark at a place about three miles south from Elizabethtown Point, where there is a wood that will cover them to the place of embarkation; to make their descent on the Island on the opposite shore, where there is a good landing on the upland, covered with woods not far off. The object here is uncertain, but there are a number of good, large farm-houses in the neighbourhood, where it is probable troops are lodged without much caution; to consist of four hundred men.

Fifth. A party to embark in Newark Bay, from a place about a mile below Brown's Ferry, to make the descent at a place opposite the east end of Shutter's Island, marked Mushereau; this party to consist of eight hundred men, two hundred of which are immediately to march westward, in order to cut off the guard opposite to Elizabethtown-Point; the remaining six hundred to march slowly, firmly, and carefully, eastward, towards the church at Decker's, with small parties ahead to surprise and break up the parties lodged in the houses along the shore.

Sixth. A party to attempt to surprise the enemy's guard on Buskirk's Point, which is the southeast corner of Bergen Point; this party, or guard, does not seem to be large, but it is said they are possessed of two six-pounders. The party that makes the attack must not attempt to go over the causeway or road over the meadow, the cannon being in all probability pointed to command that pass, but should be provided with some boards, and proceed in two or three columns over the meadow, where they will meet with no other obstruction than a small creek or ditch, which they will easily pass with the help of the boards. If this place is carried, a cannonade and bombardment should, as soon as possible, commence on the ships, a great number of which now lie within reach of the place. A cannonade should also commence on Bergen Point, opposite the church and Decker's, where it is said about six hundred men are posted; this cannonade, with round and grape shot, would confuse the troops in forming, and prevent their succouring the guard at Elizabethtown-Point or opposing our party who make their descent near Shutter's Island. The cannonade should also be kept up on such parts of the shore of Staten-Island where any boats are collected or may assemble. The party for these several matters on Bergen-Neck should be about seven hundred men, besides the Riflemen.

About the time the troops make the descent, which should be at the beginning of the ebb, as great a number of fire-rafts and fire-ships as can be provided, should be towed down, so as to fall in with the head of the fleet.

The commanding officer of each party to reconnoitre the ground where he is to embark, and where he is to make his descent, in the best manner he can, by the help of glasses or otherwise; and also to get the best information he can of the roads and country in general in the way to the place of his destination; they should also be provided with faithful, good guides: plenty of them are to be had in New-Jersey.

All the boats in New-Jersey, from Raritan River to Powles Hook, should immediately be collected and secured under proper guards, as well to prevent intelligence going to the enemy as to serve for these embarkations. The commanding officer, before he sets out, to determine whether the boats are to remain at the place of descent, or to meet him at some other place, and to direct the guards of boats accordingly. A number of spare boats should be collected in Elizabethtown-Creek, Newark-Bay, and towards Blazing-Star, to be ready to serve on any emergency.

As the success of the attempt will depend on a proper timing of the different attacks, the commanding officers of all the parties should regulate their watches by one standard, and be punctually at the place of their destination at the time agreed on.

Suspected persons on Bergen should be immediately removed: there are several gone from New-York.

As the safety of the troops in these enterprises will entirely depend on securing a safe retreat, the utmost caution and attention must be paid to the having the boats ready at the proper places, to take off the respective parties.

Instead of the fourth article, it is proposed to adopt a plan of Major Knowlton's, which is, to march a body of about one thousand men to the point X, and there to embark and proceed to the place A, and to march up the Neck into the country by the prickled line to the place B, and there to send off a party toward C, to fall upon the rear of the troops posted in the houses along the north side of the Island; the rest to proceed to D, and there to divide and proceed to the several places E, F, G, and in their way to sweep the whole country before them, and then to embark again at the two last mentioned places, where the boats must be ready to receive them; but the guard of the boats should be cautious of going to those places before they are sure of our people being in possession of them.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read July 20, and referred to the Board of War.]

New-York, July 19, 1776.

SIR: I have been duly honoured with your favours of the 16th and 17th, with the several resolves they contained, to the execution of which, so far as shall be in my power, I will pay proper attention.

In my letter of the 17th instant, I transmitted you a copy of one from General Schuyler, and of its several enclosures. I confess the determination of the council of General Officers on the 7th, to retreat from Crown-Point, surprised me much; and the more I consider it the more striking does the impropriety appear. The reasons assigned against it by the Field-Officers in their remonstrance, coincide greatly with my own ideas and those of the other General Officers I have had an opportunity of consulting with, and seem to be of considerable weight—I may add, conclusive.

I am not so fully acquainted with the geography of that country and the situation of the posts as to pronounce a peremptory judgment upon the matter; but if any of my ideas are right, the possession of Crown-Point is essential to give us every superiority and mastery upon the Lake. That the enemy will possess it as soon as abandoned by us there can be no doubt; and if they do, whatever galleys or force we keep on the Lake will be unquestionably in their rear. How they are to be supported there, or what succour can be drawn from them then, is beyond my comprehension. Perhaps it is only meant that they shall be employed on the communication between that and Ticonderoga. If this is the case, I fear the views of Congress will not be answered, nor the salutary effects derived from them that were intended. I have mentioned my surprise to General Schuyler, and would, by the advice of the Generals here, have directed that the posts should be maintained, had it not been for two causes: an apprehension that the works have been destroyed, and that if the Army should be ordered from Ticonderoga to the post opposite to it (where I presume they are) to repossess it, they would have neither one place or another secure and in a defensible state. The other, lest it might increase the jealousy and diversity of opinions which seem already too prevalent in that Army, and establish a precedent for the inferior officers to set up their judgment whenever they would in opposition to those of their superiors, a matter of great delicacy, and that might lead to fatal consequences, if countenanced; though in the present instance I could wish their reasoning had prevailed. If the Army has not moved, what I have said to General Schuyler may, perhaps, bring on a reconsideration of the matter, and it may not be too late to take measures for maintaining that post; but of this I have no hope.

In consequence of the resolve of Congress for three of the Eastern regiments to reinforce the Northern Army, I wrote General Ward, and, by advice of my General Officers, directed them to march to Norwich, and there to embark for Albany, conceiving that two valuable purposes might result therefrom: first, that they would sooner join the Army by pursuing this route, and be saved from the distress and fatigue that must attend every long march through the country at this hot and uncomfortable season; and, secondly, that they might give succour here in case the enemy should make an attack about the time of their passing. But the enemy having now, with their ships-of-war and tenders, cut off the water communication from hence to Albany, I have written this day, and directed them to proceed by land across the country. If Congress disapprove the route, or wish to give any orders about them, you will please to certify me thereof, that I may take measures accordingly.

Enclosed I have the honour to transmit you copies of a letter and sundry resolutions, which I received yesterday from the Convention of this State. By them you will perceive they have been acting upon matters of great importance, and are exerting themselves in the most vigorous manner to defeat the wicked designs of the enemy, and such disaffected persons as may incline to assist and facilitate their views. In compliance with their request, and on account of the scarcity of money for carrying their salutary views into execution, I have agreed to lend them, out of the small stock now in hand, (not more than sixty thousand dollars,) twenty thousand dollars, in part of what they want, which they promise speedily to replace. Had there been money sufficient for paying the whole of our troops, and not more, I could not have done it; but as it was otherwise, and by no means proper to pay a part and not the whole, I could not foresee any inconveniences that would attend the loan; on the contrary, that might contribute in some degree to forward their schemes. I hope my conduct in this instance will not be disapproved.

I enclosed to Governour Trumbull a copy of their letter, and of their several resolves, to-day, by Colonel Broome and Mr. Duer, two members of the Convention, who are going to wait on him; but I did not think myself at liberty to urge or request his interest in forming the camp of six thousand men, as the levies, directed by Congress on the 3d of June to be furnished for the defence of this place by that Government, are but a little more than one-third come in; at the same time, the proposition I think a good one, if it could be carried into execution. In case the enemy should attempt to effect a landing above King's Bridge, and to cut off the communication between this city and the country, an army to hang on their rear would distress them exceedingly.

I have the honour to be, with sentiments of great esteem, sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

P. S. The enclosed paper should have been sent before, but was omitted through hurry.

P. S. After I had enclosed my letter I received one from General Ward, a copy of which is herewith transmitted. I have written to him to forward the two regiments now at Boston by the most direct road to Ticonderoga, as soon as they are well, with the utmost expedition. I consider their having had the small-pox as a fortunate circumstance. When the three arrive which had marched for Norwich, I shall immediately send one of them on, if Congress shall judge it expedient, of which you will please to inform me.

New-York, White-Plains, July 16, 1776. }

SIR: We cannot but express our satisfaction at the unre-mitted attention which your Excellency manifests to the interests of this State. We see the force of your observations, and have taken, and shall continue to take, every measure which we conceive most conducive to defeat the designs of our enemy. This will in part appear from the enclosed resolution.

We are extremely sorry that the state of our finances reduces us to the necessity of applying to your Excellency for a loan, which it may perhaps be inconvenient for you to make, but we shall take the earliest care to replace what nothing but urgent necessity would have induced us to borrow.

As our troops are but ill supplied with ammunition, we hope that your Excellency will order them an immediate supply, as part of them are already in motion, as well as direct the Commissary-General to take the necessary steps for their subsistence. New levies, who have never seen service, will, without doubt, require a commander of some experience. Such an one, we trust, your Excellency will supply as soon as possible.

Our apprehensions of an attempt on the part of our enemies to cut off the communication between the city and country, by landing above King's Bridge, makes us wish to have some force ready to hang on their rear in case such a step should be taken: for which reason we have not only called out all the force we could possibly collect, (exclusive of that which may probably be wanted in the frontier Counties,) but would take the liberty, if it should meet your Excellency's approbation, to suggest the same idea to Governour Trumbull, who, by forming a camp on Byram River of six thousand men, might render any design which the enemy may have to land above King's Bridge extremely hazardous.

We have been just informed that the ships which sailed this morning have anchored about ten or twelve miles below Fort Montgomerie. We have great reason to believe that their design is to pass it, and burn our shipping at Poughkeepsie.

We shall be happy to coöperate with your Excellency in every measure which may tend to secure the liberty of America, which we conceive to be nearly connected with the preservation of this State.

We have this moment heard that the Phoenix is aground in Haverstraw Bay, and have some reason to believe it.

We remain your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servants,

By order: NATHANIEL WOODHULL, President.

New-York, White-Plains, July 16, 1776. }

Resolved, unanimously, That all persons abiding within the State of New-York, and deriving protection from the laws of the same, owe allegiance to said laws, and are members of the State; and that all persons passing through, visiting, or making a temporary stay in the said State, being entitled to the protection of the laws during the time of such passage, visitation, or temporary stay, owe during the same time allegiance thereto. That all persons members of, or owing allegiance to, this State, as before described, who shall levy war against the said State within the same, or be adherent to the King of Great Britain, or others the enemies of the said State within the same, giving to him or them aid and comfort, are guilty of treason against the State, and being thereof convicted, shall suffer the pains and penalties of death.

Extract from the Minutes:

ROBT. BENSON, Secretary.

New-York, White-Plains, July 16, 1776. }

Whereas this Convention have the strongest reason to believe that the British Armies in New-York and Canada will endeavour, by means of Hudson's River, to effect a junction, and thereby cut off all intercourse between the Eastern and Southern States: And whereas the Counties contiguous to the Sound and Hudson's River will be greatly exposed to the ravages and incursions of a cruel and unnatural enemy, which, if not prevented, will render them a scene of ruin and desolation: And whereas, from the situation of said country, intersected with defiles and narrow passes, it will be extremely practicable to repel the hostile attempts of the enemy, provided the inhabitants exert themselves in its defence with the union, spirit, and alacrity, of men determined to defend their rights, and transmit the blessings of freedom to posterity: And whereas it is the indispensable duty of this Convention, by every means in their power, to provide for the happiness and security of their constituents, reposing the highest confidence in their virtue and publick spirit: Therefore,

Resolved, That one-fourth part of the Militia of the Counties of Westchester, Dutchess, Ulster, and Orange, be forthwith drawn out for the defence of the liberties, property, wives and children, of the good people of this State.

And as at this busy season of the year the service may be inconvenient to many of them,

Resolved, That each man be allowed twenty dollars as a bounty, with Continental pay and subsistence, and be continued in the service until the last day of December next, unless sooner discharged.

Resolved, That it be recommended to such of the inhabitants who remain at home, to give all possible assistance to the families of those spirited persons who stepped forth in defence of the rights and liberties of this invaded country; and that the Sub-Committees in the several Districts in those Counties pay particular attention to see this recommendation be complied with.

Resolved, That the Brigadier-General, and the Field-Officers of the Militia of each County, be directed to adopt the most equitable and expeditious mode of raising these levies, and of furnishing with arms those who are not supplied, (the price of the arms to be deducted out of each man's pay;) and that they be authorized to call on the Committee of each County for their assistance.

Resolved, That the levies be formed into Companies, to consist of one Captain, two Lieutenants, three Sergeants, three Corporals, one Drummer, one Fifer, and fifty Privates; and that the Captain and Subalterns be appointed by the Field-Officers of each Regiment of Militia from which the quotas were to be raised, and the Non-Commissioned Officers by the Captains of each Company.

Resolved, That each man furnish himself with a Blanket and Knapsack, and every six men with a Pot or Camp-Kettle.

Resolved, That two Deputy-Commissaries be appointed to provide four months' Provision for six thousand men, to be deposited in two Magazines, one on each side of the river, at such places as his Excellency General Washington shall think proper to appoint.

Resolved, That all the men now raised in the Counties of Ulster and Orange be stationed in the Highlands, on the west side of the river, to guard those defiles the possession of which Brigadier-General Clinton shall think most conducive to the safety of the State.

Resolved, That the men raised in the Counties of Westchester and Dutchess repair immediately to Peek's Kill; and that General Washington be requested to appoint an Officer to take the command of all the levies on both sides of the river, to fix upon what station they shall occupy, and to nominate the two Deputy-Commissaries for the Troops on each side the river.

Resolved, That General Washington be informed of the measures which this Convention have taken for the safety of the State; and that he be requested to advance the sum of £20,000 in order to expedite the raising these levies.

Resolved, That all the Troops raised in the above Counties shall be subject to the Articles of War established by the Continental Congress.

Resolved, That his Excellency General Washington be requested to write to Governour Trumbull, desiring him to devise and carry into execution the most expeditious and effectual measures for keeping up the intercourse betwixt the Army now at New-York and the State of Connecticut; and that two of the members of this Convention wait on Governour Trumbull, to enforce, by such arguments as they shall think of most weight, the purport of General Washington's letter.

Resolved, That the Brigadier-Generals and Committees of the respective Counties be immediately furnished with copies of these Resolutions.

Extract from the Minutes: ROBT. BENSON, Secretary.

Boston, July 15, 1776.

SIR: I am this moment favoured with your Excellency's letter of the 11th instant. I have also received yours of the 7th and 9th. I have paid, and shall pay, the utmost attention to all your directions. Two regiments will march on Thursday morning, one on Friday, and the other two as soon as they are well, which I trust will be in ten days.

As the small-pox prevailed so much in Boston, the Legislature of this Government gave permission for the inhabitants to inoculate; and as so many of the troops in town had taken the disorder, I thought it might be most for the general good to permit the remainder of the two regiments in town to be inoculated.

I have made a return to the Board of War and Ordnance of the stores in this division of the Continental Army.

I am, sir, your Excellency's obedient humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I enclose you a copy of a resolution of the Provincial Convention of the State of New-York, dated the 16th instant, recommending it to all the General and Sub-Committees, to apprehend and secure all such persons whose going at large, at this critical time, they may deem dangerous to the safety of the State.

As this city is hourly threatened with an attack from a powerful enemy, and as there is too much reason to apprehend, from their vicinity to this city, and from the number of suspicious characters still in it, that they may receive intelligence which may counteract all my operations for its defence, I strongly recommend it to you to remove for some time all equivocal and suspicious characters. This appears to me to be the spirit of the resolution of the Provincial Convention; and the propriety of it is founded on the law of self-preservation, and confirmed by the practice of all nations in a state of war.

I esteem it my duty to add my recommendation to that of the Provincial Convention, that if, through an ill-timed lenity, my attempts to secure this Province should be baffled, the blame of it may not be imputed to my want of vigilance.

I have enclosed a list of persons represented as dangerous. As I can only speak from information, I must rely upon your taking proper steps with them; unless, from your better knowledge, you determine them to be of a different character than represented.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Committee of the City of New-York.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO ROBERT LIVINGSTON AND OTHERS.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am favoured with yours of the 17th instant. My unacquaintedness with Hudson's River, and with every other circumstance necessary to form a judgment of the mode of defending it, will incapacitate me from giving you the assistance and advice you politely ask. I must entirely refer it to your own judgment and skill, only assuring you that it will give me great pleasure if anything effectual can be done, and that I will most readily give all the assistance in my power. I had some intentions of throwing obstructions in the passage at Mount Washington, but so many difficulties and obstacles have retarded it, that I much fear my being able to complete it. However, it is a matter so purely confidential, if it can be effected, that I must desire the most profound secrecy may be observed on the subject. I heartily wish you success in the measures you may adopt; and am, with much truth and esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Robert Livingston, Esquire, and others, Members of the Secret Committee of the Convention of the State of New-York.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: By Messrs. Broome and Duer I was yesterday favoured with your several resolves of the 16th instant. The spirit and decision in which they are formed will, I doubt not, appear in their execution; and, as far as I can coöperate, I shall most cheerfully contribute all my aid and assistance. The state of this Army would make it improper for me to send up any General Officer in the Continental service to take the command of the levies proposed to be raised; and, from the nature of the service, I should apprehend a knowledge of the country and its inhabitants would be very necessary. General Clinton, on all accounts, appears to me the most suitable person; and as the appointment is made dependant on me, I shall nominate him, unless some objection should be made or difficulty arise, which I do not now know of. The Deputy-Commissaries I will take advice upon, and have them appointed as soon as possible.

The state of the pay office here did not admit a full compliance with your request of the loan of £20,000, there not being so much in the Paymaster's hands at this time; however, that so good a work might not be delayed, I immediately gave a warrant for $20,000, and as fast as circumstances will admit, shall make up the remainder.

I have enclosed your resolution to Governour Trumbull, on the subject of forming a camp at Byram River, for the security of the communication with New-York, but at the same time I very much doubt his ability to carry it into execution. The quota of troops to be furnished by Connecticut for the assistance of this Army is not half completed, notwithstanding the most urgent and pressing instances on the subject; which affords a very dull prospect of fixing a new camp adequate to the intended design; and I very much fear the attempt would obstruct the raising the levies now ordered, and in the end prove ineffectual. At the same time I most heartily approve the measure, and should rejoice to see it carried into execution in the completest manner.

Since writing the above, your favour of the 18th instant, enclosing Colonel Cortlandt's and Captain Platt's report, is come to hand. The spirit and alacrity of the Militia in so readily turning out at this busy season is a very encouraging circumstance, and does them great honour.

I observe Colonel Fellows, of Massachusetts-Bay, mentioned as having marched in. If his troops compose a part of those destined for this Army, it is my intention that all under that circumstance should come immediately down and properly arranged; and I observe there will be the less inconvenience, as Messrs. Van Cortlandt and Platt observe that they had such a surplus of men as to enable them to discharge a number.

I am, gentlemen, with the greatest respect and esteem, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. the Convention of the State of New-York.

P. S. With respect to ammunition, I had flattered myself that the Provincial stock would not only have been sufficient for the purposes of its immediate defence, but, in case of necessity, to have assisted us. I shall endeavour, under a late direction of Congress, to procure what is to be had from the adjoining mills.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-York, July 19, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed extract from the proceedings of Congress, which I have the honour to transmit you, will discover their anxiety respecting our Army here, and their wishes to have it reinforced. I shall only add, that the situation of our affairs demands the most speedy succour, and my request that you will use your good offices for expediting the new levies as fast as possible. I have also enclosed you a copy of a letter, and sundry resolutions, which I received yesterday from the Convention of this State. You will perceive thereby that they have been deliberating on sundry important measures, and are exerting themselves, in the most vigorous manner, to defeat the wicked designs of our common enemy and such disaffected persons as may attempt to favour their views. They also contain a request that I should solicit you to devise some mode for keeping up a communication and intercourse between your State and this, and suggest the expediency of your forming a camp of six thousand men about Byram River, to coöperate with those they are collecting, in order to hang on the rear of the enemy in case they land above King's Bridge, and attempt to cut off the communication between the country and this city. As the quota of men requested by Congress for the defence of this place is not yet arrived, I could not conceive myself at liberty to ask of you to furnish such an additional number, although I cannot but observe that the scheme seems well calculated for the purposes they have in view, and might be productive of the most salutary consequences in case of an attempt of that sort. Colonel Broome and Mr. Duer, two members of the Convention, wait on you upon the subject, and will fully point out the object they have in view, and their ideas of the importance and expediency of the plan, and to them I beg leave to refer you.

I am, sir, with great regard and esteem, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL GATES.

New-York, July 19, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I expected ere this to have heard from you; and I will open the correspondence, by expressing my exceeding great concern on account of the determination of your Board of General Officers to retreat from Crown-Point to Ticonderoga, assigning (contrary to the opinion of all your Field-Officers) for reason, that the former place is not tenable with your present force, or the force expected.

My concern arises from information, and a firm belief, that your relinquishing Crown-Point is, in its consequences, a relinquishment of the Lakes, and all the advantages to be derived therefrom; for it does not admit of a doubt but that the enemy will possess themselves, if possible, of that pass, (which is a key to all these Colonies,) the moment you leave it, and thereby confine your vessels to the narrow part of the Lake in front of that post; or, by having them in the rear of it, cut off all kind of supplies from, and intercourse between, your camp and them, securing, by this means, a free and uninterrupted passage into the three New-England Governments for invasion thereof.

Nothing but a belief that you have actually removed the Army from Crown-Point to Ticonderoga, and demolished the works at the former, and the fear of creating dissensions, and encouraging a spirit of remonstrating against the conduct of superior officers by inferiors, have prevented me, by advice of the General Officers, from directing the post at Crown-Point to be held till Congress should decide upon the propriety of its evacuation. As the case stands, I can give no order in the matter, lest, between two opinions, neither of the places should be put into such a posture of defence as to resist an advancing enemy. I must, however, express my sorrow at the resolution of your council, and wish that it had never happened, as everybody who speaks of it also does, and that the measure could yet be changed with propriety.

We have the enemy full in view of us; but their operations are to be suspended till the reinforcement, (hourly expected,) arrives, when I suppose there will soon be pretty warm work.

Lord Howe is arrived. He and the General, his brother, are appointed Commissioners to dispense pardons to repenting sinners.

My compliments to the gentlemen with you of my acquaintance. I am, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Gates, Ticonderoga.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL WARD.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 19, 1776.

DEAR SIR: In my letter of the 7th instant, I mentioned the propriety of forwarding a quantity of powder, and lodging it between this and Boston. I am now more fully convinced of the necessity of such a measure, and would wish you to forward, with all convenient speed, five hundred barrels, to be stored at Norwich, in Connecticut, till further orders. In a postscript to my letter of the 9th of June, I was of opinion it would be much easier for the troops bound from Boston to the northward, to proceed this way, for the benefit of water-carriage; but this being entirely cut off by the ships up Hudson's River, you will speed their march by the nearest and most convenient route. The several articles wrote for in my letter of yesterday, you will please to forward to Norwich, with orders for them to be sent on by water, provided the enemy's ships should not stop the communication, in which case land-carriages must be procured.

I am, sir, &c., Go. WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Ward, Boston.

P. S. In speaking of the troops marching to the northward, I have reference to the three regiments bound to Ticonderoga. The other two I hope will be on their way for this place before this reaches you. G. W.

P. S. Since writing the above, your letter of the 15th instant came to hand. If the three regiments you mention have marched, they may proceed to this city; if not, one of them to march for Ticonderoga, the two remaining (sick) to follow to the last-mentioned place, by divisions, as fast as a Field-Officer's proportion is well enough, as they will be much the properest (having had the small-pox) for that department. G. W.

EPHRAIM ANDERSON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

New-York, July 19, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: I have the honour now to inform you that I am preparing for the destruction of the British fleet in this harbour, and hope in a few days to be able to give a good account of the greatest part of them.

I should be extremely thankful if the Congress will honour me with the appointment of Deputy Adjutant-General to the Flying-Camp. It is a department in which I am sure I can be of infinite service to the cause, by disciplining young troops, both officers and men. I will leave myself upon the Congress for the above, or any other appointment they may honour me with, &c.

I am, honoured sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

EPHRAIM ANDERSON.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress, at Philadelphia.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL (COMMISSARY-GENERAL) TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

New-York, July 19, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: Walter Livingston, Esquire, Deputy Commissary-General at Albany, writes of the 15th instant, as he has done several times before, that large supplies of fresh beef, &c., are wanting in the Northern Army; that he has no money to procure them with; and that the chest there is empty. That the chest is empty, is confirmed to me by my brother's letter of the same date. Mr. Livingston writes me that he is in debt already more than $30,000; and my brother, that the whole $500,000 ordered some time ago, $200,000 of which went by General Gates, would not pay their old debts.

For fear my department should suffer for want of cash, I am sending an express this afternoon to Mr. Livingston, with $18,000, which can but illy be spared from here; but as eating cannot go on without cash, and they are worse off for it than we are at present, I thought it my duty to do it, and at the same time to write Congress, and beg that my department to the northward may not suffer for the want of so necessary an article as cash.

I am, honourable sir, your most humble servant,

JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Congress of the United States of America, at Philadelphia.

P. S. Mr. Gerry is here—better than when he left Philadelphia.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, July 19, 1776.

SIR: Colonel Hand reports that the ship that went down the day before yesterday morning, still continues there at the Hook. An armed sloop came up last night. All the rest of the fleet continue as they were. Nothing extraordinary has happened since yesterday in this camp.

I am, with all due respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

NATHANAEL GREENE.

To His Excellency General Washington, at Head-Quarters, New-York.

COLONEL HAY TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Haverstraw, July 19, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of yours, directed to the County Committee of this County. The enemy now lie in Haverstraw Bay, and are using every effort to land and destroy the property of the inhabitants. The great extent of shore I have to guard obliges me to keep the greatest part of my regiment on duty, in order to prevent their depredations. I have received a reinforcement from General Clinton, at Fort Montgomery, of about eighty men, and hope when he receives your Excellency's letter he will send me further relief, as the enemy seem to direct their operations against the west shore. We are in want of powder and ball—a supply will be absolutely necessary. If I had had two or three small cannon, I should have been able to have destroyed one of the cutters that grounded near Stony-Point, and lay there six hours.

The enclosed examination of a deserter from Captain Wallace, will give your Excellency all the information I am able to communicate at present.

I am, with esteem, your most obedient servant,

A. HAWKES HAY.

To His Excellency General Washington, New-York.

P. S. The bearer can bring up in his saddle-bags twenty weight of powder.

The Examination of Richard Turpin, a native of the town of Boston, in the Province of the Massachusetts-Bay, who saith: That in his passage from Bedefort, in New-Hampshire, to the West-Indies, he was taken in a schooner called the Hannah, commanded by Captain Peurly, on the 17th of May last, by the ship Rose, Captain Wallace, on board of which ship he has been ever since; that he sailed from Halifax with the fleet, which consisted of about one hundred and fifty sail; that from the best information he was able to procure, the troops consisted of about ten thousand men fit for service; that the ships that came from Halifax were, the Chatham and , each of fifty guns, the Rose, Greyhound, Swan, and the Tamar, each twenty guns; that when they arrived at Staten-Island, a man came off and informed Captain Wallace that there were five hundred men ready to join their troops, and the next morning about one hundred and fifty men came down and joined them, and the next day the rest joined them—in all about five hundred; that the inhabitants appeared very ready to afford them every necessary; that they got a number of cattle on the Island. That they lost no men on board the Rose, but three men were wounded on board the Phoenix, in passing New-York; that the Rose received three shot in her hull, and her rigging was damaged; that the Phoenix was also damaged in her hull and rigging; that the intention of the ships in coming up the river was, to procure stock, receive Tories, burn the ships building up the river, and destroy the buildings on the shore; that a few people (not exceeding twenty) had come on board in the river; that they had received no provisions since they came up; that they have but two months' provisions on board, and their water is very bad; that it is the general talk on board, that they will not attempt to pass the forts in the Highlands till they hear from Governour Carleton. That there were two transports from Greenock, that had joined General Howe, with three hundred men; that these were all that were with General Howe when the examinant left the fleet; that it was expected that the Hessians were to join them at New-York. That yesterday Captain Wallace went up to the Highlands, with the tender, and went on shore and set fire to a house, and then went off with six poor hogs and pigs; that he heard before he left the ship last night, that they intended to land at Mr. Kiers's house and burn the buildings; that on Wednesday the tender went up the river, and one gun was fired from the fort, which struck the tender's stern; that there are not above four hundred men on board the ships and tenders in all; Wallace has about thirty negroes, which he brought from the eastward, who are entered, and receive pay. That a man left the ship on Monday last, with letters to Governour Carleton, who undertook to go by land; he appeared to be about twenty-eight years old; had on a short light cloth coat and vest, about five feet eight inches, has a blemish in his right eye, sandy hair, and says he is a native of Old England: he came on board on Sunday last from Haverstraw; he gave information that there was pork, rum and molasses in Mr. Kiers's store. That when the fleet came into the Hook, a considerable number of men joined them from Long-Island and Amboy, and a party of about seventeen Lighthouse from New-Jersey; that the man who first came from Staten-Island on board Captain Wallace, he understood had the command of the Continental colours on the Island; he is a tall well-made man, with black hair and brown complexion, and is now employed as a Colonel of the Staten-Island men in the Ministerial service.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

German-Flats, Friday, July 19, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have this moment received the enclosed, from General Washington, with an order to forward it to General Burgoyne. You will please to appoint an officer to carry it to him, after having sealed it.

The Indians come on so tardily, that I am afraid of being detained much longer than I expected. A scout just now returned from Oswego advises that all is well there, and no signs of an enemy approaching.

The Honourable President Hancock informs me that Colonel Greaton, and he believes some other Colonels, before they left Boston, took some French horns, bassoons, and other instruments of musick, which he had imported for the use of a corps under his command, and requested that I would order Colonel Greaton, and such others in whose possession they may be, to deliver them to me, to be sent to Philadelphia. Will you be so good, my dear sir, as to order one of your Aids-de-Camp to make inquiry, and to cause the instruments to be collected, safely packed up, and sent directly to me at Albany.

I am, dear sir, most sincerely, your most obedient humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. General Gates.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, German-Flats, July 19, 1776.

First Lieutenant Robert Hagan and Second Lieutenant Samuel Hazelet, both of the Third New-Jersey Regiment, commanded by Colonel Elias Dayton, being by sickness rendered incapable of doing duty in the regiment, and having requested leave to resign their commissions, the General has accepted their resignations, which causing a vacancy and promotion in the regiment, the General has been pleased to promote Second Lieutenant William Gordon to the rank of First Lieutenant, Ensign Joseph Anderson and Cornelius Kenion to the rank of Second Lieutenants, in the said regiment; he has also been pleased to appoint Messrs. Edmund Disney Thomas and John Kinney, volunteers in said regiment, to be Ensigns therein.

By order of the General:

JAMES VAN RENSSELAER, Aid-de-Camp.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Tyonderoga, July 19, 1776.

SIR: I have this morning received a letter from General Waterbury, at Skenesborough. He says the Militia are not any of them arrived from the eastward, but that he has heard of their being upon the march, and hopes they will soon arrive at that post. The General has employed a party in clearing Wood-Creek, and another to erect a small work upon the hill to the eastward of the saw-mill. He complains for the want of tools, and particularly felling-axes. Not one gondola is arrived since that which came with us, (the 4th instant,) from Skenesborough, and I am assured by the officer who came from thence yesterday, that we cannot expect more than two by this day se'nnight. So you must be much deceived in expecting that Mr. Schuyler would get five finished every week.

Sixty carpenters are now employed at Skenesborough: they must be very ill-attended to, or very ignorant of their business, not to do more work. At this rate our superiority upon the Lake will be of short continuance; and I hope you will not deceive yourself, or the Congress, by fancying otherwise. General Waterbury tells me the saw-mill at Cheshire's is not yet got to work, on account of a mistake in the irons. They were obliged to send the irons to Skenesborough to be altered. That is now done, and the mill expected to get soon to work.

Your letter of the 17th, is just come to hand, from the German-Flats. I shall immediately send you all the Indian goods here. General Arnold will get them collected to-day, and send them without delay by the best person we can find to make despatch, to Herkimer's. He must take his directions in regard to the route from Lake George to the Flats, from the commanding officer at Fort George, as I know nothing of that road.

I am, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To General Schuyler.

WALTER LIVINGSTON TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, July 19, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: The King of Britain's ships having cut off the communications between this and New-York by water, and the pork which the Commissary-General promised to send me not being arrived, I have written to him to send some from the magazine which lies above the ships, if any is left. My stores are entirely empty, except a few barrels I want here. I have sent out ten hands different ways to purchase cattle, and have ordered five hundred head to be sent up immediately, many of which I hope are arrived. I have ordered two hundred head to be delivered every week. I know not who acts as Commissary to your Army at present, therefore take the liberty to request that you will order nothing but fresh meat to be delivered out while there is any on the ground. I cannot get a barrel of pork, neither do I expect that the Commissary-General will be able to send me any. When, upon emergencies, pork is issued to the troops, I must entreat you to order the Commissary to issue only twelve ounces to a man per day. This is the allowance of Congress; and pork is become so exceeding scarce that more cannot be given them, unless the Commissary-General can furnish me with an additional supply.

The three kegs of sturgeon will be ready on Monday, when they shall be forwarded, and all other your orders complied with by, dear sir, your most humble servant,

WALTER LIVINGSTON.

To Major-General Gates.

NICHOLAS MARSELIS TO WILLIAM COBB.

Bennington, July 19, 1776.

SIR: I send you by the bearer, William Ferrin, thirty fat cattle, marked with the left ear cut off and the end of tail, which I have purchased by order of Walter Livingston, Esq., at Albany. You will please to receive them, and send your receipt for them.

I am, sir, your humble servant.

By order of Walter Livingston, Esquire:

NICHOLAS MARSELIS.

To William Cobb, or Commanding Officer at Ticonderoga.

PETITION OF THE INHABITANTS OF SHELBURNE, ON LAKE-CHAMPLAIN.

To His Excellency General GATES, Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Forces at TICONDEROGA and CROWN-POINT:
The Petition of the Inhabitants of SHELBURNE, on LAKE-CHAMPLAIN, humbly sheweth:

That we live twenty-six miles from Crown-Point, and twelve from Onion River. Being well attached to the American cause, were much alarmed when we heard of the retreat of our Army out of Canada to Crown-Point, and thought we must be forced to leave here. But when the Army came down, Colonel Winds not having had the small-pox, halted here with fourteen men, and obtained leave of General Sullivan to stay here some time; upon which the inhabitants got together, and, in conjunction with Colonel Winds, built a stockade fort, and have continued here since. We beg leave to inform your Excellency that the place where the fort stands is a very good harbour; and as the Lake is often ruffled with sudden gusts in the summer, the boats that pass are often wind-bound here, and sometimes out of provision, as hath been the case with two boats coming from Onion River since Colonel Winds hath been here, and were supplied with provision at this place. We, the inhabitants, being but few in number, and having considerable large crops of wheat and other grain on the ground, besides stocks of cattle, we humbly beseech that his Excellency would be graciously pleased, if he thinks it consistent with the good of the service, to let some of the men who were there go back again, or some others as a small guard. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

MOSES PIERSON, REUBEN ROWLEE,
JAS. LOGAN, RUFUS COLE,
SAMUEL TEILER, LODWICK POTER.
JOHN —,

To General Gates.
Shelburne, July 19, 1776.

SAMUEL SQUIER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Fairfield, July 19, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: By yours of the 10th instant I observe you want to know how much pork I have procured for the Colony's use, where it is stored, and the price. I have purchased three hundred barrels of pork, chiefly from the farmers. There is yet about two hundred barrels of pork more at Newtown. The owners don't care to part with it, and for excuse have told me it is engaged to the Commissary-General, which I am since informed is not so. I expect to know the truth of the matter very soon, and shall act accordingly. The reason why I have not procured more pork is, that Mr. Wadsworth, of Hartford, and Mr. Coult, of New-Haven, had been into this County and engaged it before I got home from the Assembly. As to the hunting-shirts, I have no other voucher than Daniel Gray's receipt for them, who went with Colonel Webb last summer to Cambridge to carry his baggage. By him I sent those shirts. Said Gray has taken a receipt in his own name of the Quartermaster-General's clerk for them, a copy of which I sent before, and now you have herein enclosed the original. I made those shirts out of cloth which I had before purchased and charged the Colony with for tents. I therefore took an account of how much cloth it took for the shirts, which was three yards apiece. I also charged the making to the Colony, not then knowing there should be a separate account kept of the price of the tow-cloth, which, upon an average, was nearest 16½d. I therefore formed my former account that I sent you, from my common account with the Colony, and kept no other copy, as also I have done this account, and expected to give the Colony credit if ever the shirt-account should be paid separate from the other. I have made out this account at 6s. per shirt, which will be very near the cost, as the cloth and making will be 4s. 10½d. per shirt. The one-and-a-half per cent. commissions, carting, &c., will make up the rest.

I am, sir, your Honour's obedient servant,
SAMUEL SQUIER.

N. B. The thirty-five barrels of pork I left in the farmer's cellar, judging that to be as safe a store as I could get. I find there is more pork among the farmers, which I trust I shall be able to procure.

CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety, by adjournment, July 17, 1776:

Present: His Honour the Governour, his Honour the Deputy-Governour, Eliphalet Dyar, Jz. Huntington, Wm. Williams, Titus Hosmer, Jedh. Elderkin, Nathl. Wales, Benj. Huntington, William Hillhouse, Esquires.

Voted, That the Paymaster of Colonel Ward's Regiment be, and he is hereby, directed to pay as a premium to the Soldiers who shall provide themselves with Fire-Arms, &c., the sum of 6s. for each Gun so provided, and the sum of 4s. for each Bayonet, Belt, and Cartouch-Box, and Knapsack.

Colonel Mott came in with sundry motions, &c., respecting his Regiment, &c., and many matters to consider.

This Board do appoint Messrs. Andrew Huntington, Joshua Elderkin, Chancey Whittlesey, of Middletown, Jonathan Fitch, Samuel Squier, and Lynde Lord, a Committee to purchase all the suitable Tow-Cloth, and other suitable Cloth for Tents, to be obtained in their respective Counties, and cause the same to be made up into proper Tents, for the use of the Troops of this Colony, in the most expeditious manner they can, and report to his Honour of what they shall respectively do in the premises.

The Continental Congress having recommended to the Assemblies of the United Colonies to procure a quantity of Clothing for the Continental Army,

Voted and Resolved, That a quantity of home-made Cloth, or other if that can't be obtained, as far as may be, of a brown or cloth colour, sufficient for three thousand Coats, and the same number of Waistcoats, and as many Blankets as can be obtained in the Colony; three thousand Felt Hats; cloth of check Flannel, or some Linen if that can't be obtained, sufficient for six thousand Shirts, and also six thousand pair of Shoes, to be collected as soon as may be, and deposited in the proper stores in the several Counties; and the same above-named Committee are appointed to procure the same; and the said articles are proportioned to the several Counties as follows, viz:

	Coats and waistcoats.	Felt hats.	Shirts.	Shoes.
Hartford County.....	1,000	800	1,600	1,600
New-Haven County.....	400	450	1,000	900
New-London County.....	700	850	1,400	1,300
Fairfield County.....	300	300	600	1,000
Windham County.....	400	400	1,000	800
Litchfield County.....	200	200	400	400
	3,000	3,000	6,000	6,000

And Letters to be prepared to each of said Commissaries, directing them accordingly; and is done.

On motion, &c., considered, and this Board do appoint, Timothy Larabee, Paymaster of Colonel Mott's Regiment.

On application by Colonel Mott that it is expedient his men should be furnished with a small quantity of Ammunition on their march, &c.,

Resolved, That his Soldiers, supplying themselves with four Bullets each, Colonel William Pitkin be desired and directed to deliver Colonel Mott, or his order, at the rate of one pound of Powder to every eight men of his Regiment, and the same quantity to Colonel Swift, or his order, for the use of his Regiment.

Being informed by Colonel Porter that eighteen nine-pound and other Cannon are cast at the Furnace in Salisbury, which are greatly wanted, &c., on consideration, this Board do appoint Colonel Jonathan Pettibone a Committee to procure proper Teams and Carriages for transporting twenty nine-pound Cannon from Salisbury Furnace to Hartford; and he, said Colonel Pettibone, is authorized and appointed to take care of and procure the same, to be brought and transported in the cheapest and most proper manner he shall be able, and the same deliver to Captain William Tuley, at Hartford, with all convenient speed, and make report to his Honour the Governour.

N. B. Ordered eight hundred pounds of Powder from Colonel Pitkin's Mill, to be sent to Colonel Porter, for use at Salisbury Furnace.

Adjourned till to-morrow morning.

Thursday, July 18, 1776.

Met according to adjournment.

Present: His Honour the Governour, Hon. Deputy-Governour Griswold, Elipht. Dyer, Jz. Huntington, William Williams, Titus Hosmer, Jedr. Elderkin, Nathl. Wales, Benj. Huntington, Wm. Hillhouse, Esquires.

Letters prepared for General Schuyler, &c., and sent by Brown, the Albany Post, and for Colonel Porter, about the Cannon, and Colonel Pettibone's appointment to procure Cannon to be brought to Hartford; and copies of the appointment of the Commissaries to procure Clothing, &c., as mentioned page 456.

Mr. Root came in, and moves in the name of the Committee of Prisoners and the County Court, to have a yard erected around the Jail at Hartford, to secure the Prisoners, &c.; and is considered and largely discoursed, &c.; and it being represented to this Board by a Resolve of the honourable County Court of the County of Hartford that it is absolutely necessary that a good yard be forthwith built around the Jail in said County, which they judge will be particularly useful to secure the Prisoners of War that are or may be taken in, or sent into, this Colony; and, on consideration, Voted and Resolved, That it be recommended to the County Court for the County of Hartford, forthwith to make and construct a good and sufficient yard for said Jail, with pickets or plank, in the best and most prudent manner they can.

And it is further Resolved, That one-half the expense of constructing said yard be borne and paid out of the public Treasury of this Colony, the residue by the County of Hartford aforesaid.

Whereas the Regiment raised in this Colony for Continental service, under the command of Colonel Andrew Ward, is now in great measure raised, mustered, equipped, and ready to march, and his Honour the Governour hath given orders for their march to Boston: And whereas intelligence is received that Lord Howe, with a very large body of troops, hath joined General Howe at New-York, and the whole force of the enemy seems ready to fall upon the city of New-York and parts adjacent, and the small-pox now greatly prevailing in and about Boston, and would probably spread in said Regiment and disable it from service should they march there:

Resolved, That it will be most advisable and best, that the Colonel of said Regiment be ordered to suspend their march for the present, until further orders from the Congress or General Washington may be had, which, from the state of publick affairs, may be expected.

The matter of publishing the Independency taken up again, and largely discoursed; and the manner of choosing the Delegates, &c., a good deal considered, &c.; and finally thought best to let the matter of publishing the Independency remain for the determination of the General Assembly at their next stated session.

Whereas many persons inimical to the United States of America do wander from place to place, with intent to spy out the state of the Colonies, and give intelligence to their enemies, whereby confederacies may be formed and strengthened, and other great inconveniences may ensue: Thereupon, which to prevent,

Resolved, That no person or persons, unknown or suspected, whether they appear in the character of Gentlemen, Expresses, Travellers, or common Beggars, be permitted to pass from Town to Town, in this Colony, unless he or they can and do produce a certificate from some Congress, Committee of Safety or of Inspection, some Magistrate, Justice of the Peace, General or Field-Officer of the Army, therein mentioning from whence, and to what place, the person producing the same is travelling, and that he is friendly to the liberties of the American States, unless he be a person well known and friendly as aforesaid; and all Officers, civil and military, Selectmen, Committees of Inspection, Sheriffs, Constables, Grand Jurors, and Tithingmen, in this Colony, are directed to require every person travelling as aforesaid to produce such certificate, and to stop and examine such persons travelling without certificate as aforesaid; and unless he or they can give full satisfaction that he or they are pursuing their lawful business, and are friendly to the liberties and interests of the United American States, and hath no design to hurt or injure them in his or their journey, that they apprehend such person or persons, and him or them carry before the civil authority, Selectmen, or Committee of Inspection of the Town in which he or they shall be found, to be further examined and dealt with as the nature of the case, in his or their opinion, may require. And it is further recommended to the civil authority and Selectmen of the larger Towns in this Colony, that proper watches and wards be kept in suitable places in said Towns by night, to apprehend any such persons as aforesaid that may travel by night from place to place, and practise mischief against this or the rest of the United American Colonies, and bring them before proper authority, that they may be dealt with in such manner as the nature of their several cases may require.

An attested copy delivered Mr. Root, to be printed in handbills.

Adjourned to eight o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Friday, July 19, 1776.

Met according to adjournment.

Present: His Honour the Governour, Honourable Deputy-Governour, Elipht. Dyer, Jz. Huntington, Wm. Williams, Titus Hosmer, Jed. Elderkin, Benj. Huntington, Nathl. Wales, and William Hillhouse, Esquires.

Letters preparing for General Washington, &c., for Congress, &c. Copies made of a number; about six Depositions taken at New-London, of the conduct of some New-York Provision vessels throwing themselves into the enemy's hands, &c.—in order to send General Washington. Originals for the Congress.

On representation of Messrs. Elderkin and Wales, of the necessity of a Magazine to store the Powder wrought or to be wrought at their Mill, Voted, That Colonels Elderkin and Wales be directed to build a good and sufficient Magazine of stone, of the dimensions of eight feet by ten, at least; to be arched, covered with earth, and situated in a good dry side hill, near their Mill and Works; and that they receive out of the publick Treasury a sum not exceeding £14, to enable them to perform said service, for which they engage to erect such Magazine, so as to well and thoroughly answer the end proposed, and to be, and belong to the Colony, and they to supply the deficiency, if any there be.

On pressing application from Mr. Brooks, one of the Selectmen of Stratford, for a supply of Powder for the Town,

Voted, That an Order be drawn on Messrs. Doolittle & Co.'s Powder-Mill, at New-Haven, for eight hundred pounds in favour of the Selectmen of Stratford—they to account for to the General Assembly, or to this Board, at the rate of 5s. 4d. per pound, or in such manner as shall be further considered and ordered. (Order given; sent in letter by the Deputy-Governour.)

On repeated application from General Washington, &c.,

Ordered, That Captain Stanton, of the Row-Galley Shark, shall, in addition to the order before, immediately repair to General Washington, at New-York, and subject himself to the command of said General, until further orders.

Voted and Ordered, That Captain Harding, of the Brig Defence, immediately cause said Brig to be fitted and repaired with necessary repairs, and that he cruise in the Sound, and in proper places and grounds, for the best advantage and interest of the Colony.

Voted, That his Honour the Governour be, and he hereby is, desired to give proper Commissions to such Officers as shall be duly chosen and returned as Commission Officers, in all such Companies of men not obliged by law to bear arms in the Militia in this Colony, as shall associate into military order, and stand ready to serve the publick, under the command of the Captain-General.

Adjourned till Tuesday next, unless sooner called.

MEETING OF COMMITTEE FOR SYMSBURY, CONNECTICUT.

At a meeting of the Civil Authority, Selectmen, and Committee of Inspection for the Town of Symsbury, on the 19th day of July, A. D. 1776:

Colonel JONATHAN PETTIBONE, Chairman.

Whereas, by frequent complaints, it appears to this meeting that there is great grounds of suspicion, that inimical combinations and correspondence are formed and carrying on with the enemies of the United American States, by means of persons travelling from one town and part of the country to another, under pretence of selling Indigo, Feathers, Wooden Dishes, Teas, and many other goods and wares of various kinds: Therefore,

Resolved, That no person or persons belonging to said Town of Symsbury, on any pretence whatsoever, shall carry, vend, or offer for sale, any of the aforesaid goods, wares, or merchandise, or any other goods or merchandise whatsoever, from house to house, or from one Town or part of the County to another, or purchase any such goods, wares, or merchandise, or any other merchandise whatsoever, from any such strolling petit chapmen, in like manner, without leave or license first had and obtained from some one of the Civil Authority or Selectmen of this Town, on penalty of being treated as enemies to the interest of the United States of North-America, and dealt with accordingly.

Published by order of said meeting.

Certified from the Minutes.

Test:

JOHN OWEN, Clerk.

At a Court of Inquiry held in Symsbury, in the County of Hartford, upon the 19th day of July, 1776:

Present: The Civil Authority, Selectmen, and Committee of Inspection for said Town.

Pursuant to a complaint of the Grand Jurors of said Symsbury, John Moses and Jesse Cosset, of said Symsbury, appeared upon an arrest; and upon examination, and hearing the witnesses, and considering their cases, each of them were found guilty of inimical conduct towards the interest of the United States of North-America; and judgment was rendered that each of them should be immediately disarmed, and also each of them were bound to their peace and good behaviour, and to answer to said complaints before the next Superior Court of this Colony, to be held at Hartford, on the first Tuesday of September next, and be further treated agreeable to the statute of this Colony in such cases made and provided.

Likewise, Ordered, That these proceedings be published in the Connecticut Courant.

Certified from the Minutes.

Test:

JOHN OWEN, Clerk of said Court.

BENJAMIN GREENLEAF TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read July 30, 1776. Referred to the Board of War.]

Watertown, July 19, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of the 25th of June, enclosing a resolution of Congress earnestly recommending it to this State to send immediately two regiments of their Militia to augment the troops destined for the Northern or Canada Department, has been communicated to the General Assembly; and considering the disagreeable complexion of our affairs in that quarter, and the absolute necessity of the measure, they have ordered such a proportion of the Militia of this Government forthwith to be draughted for that purpose as will be sufficient to make up the regiments requested. Since which, General Washington, agreeable to the power vested in him by the Congress on the 4th and 8th of July, has ordered the whole of the five regiments stationed in Massachusetts-Bay to the southward; so that our lines and fortifications in and near Boston are left entirely destitute of Continental troops; for the General Court have been so closely engaged in taking effectual measures for furnishing the troops they were desired to send to New-York and Canada, that they have not had opportunity to raise the two regiments they were permitted to raise upon the Continental establishment for the defence of this Government, and as the General Court is now prorogued, it cannot at present be done. Under these circumstances, the Council have thought it absolutely necessary for the security and protection of this State to order such a proportion of the Militia of this Government to be forthwith draughted out, and to march to the lines and fortifications in and near Boston, to supply the place of the Continental troops ordered from thence to the southward; and for their encouragement, have assured them that they will have the same pay and establishment as is allowed to the troops of the United Colonies. They are to tarry until the first of December next, and to be under the same regulations as the Continental troops, and their service is confined to the limits of this Government. We request, therefore, that the honourable Congress would give orders to their Commissary-General to furnish these men with their rations, and to the Paymaster-General to furnish them with their pay as it may become due.

Before we conclude, we beg leave to observe, that besides the six thousand five hundred men lately ordered to New-York and Canada, agreeable to the requisition of the honourable Congress, nineteen regiments raised within this Government have been all ordered out of it, a great number of men have been taken from our sea-coast to serve on board the Continental Navy, and over and above these, we have been obliged to keep a great number of companies in pay for the defence of our sea-coast. All these calls have so greatly thinned us of men, that it has become extremely difficult, if not impracticable, to raise any more, or even to carry on our necessary husbandry business. The Courts have been obliged already to give a bounty of seven pounds lawful money, in addition to which many of our towns have been obliged to give thirteen pounds more, in order to raise their several quotas, and the price of labour is at least double to what it used to be. However, we are engaged in a good and righteous cause, and, heavy as our burdens are, we are determined to exert ourselves to the utmost; but cannot refrain from representing our circumstances to the honourable Congress, and praying their consideration of the same, that so they may, as soon as the general safety will permit it, order a number of the Continental regiments to return to the lines and fortifications in and about Boston, for the security and protection of this Government.

In the name and by order of the Council, I am, sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

B. GREENLEAF.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress.
(To be communicated.)

BENJAMIN AUSTIN TO THOMAS CUSHING.

Boston, July 19, 1776.

SIR: I have looked over the Court and Council files for October last, and can find nothing of the order of Court for presents to the Penobscot Indians; I am therefore at a loss what to do in procuring the presents for the St. John's and Mickmacks. I beg the favour you would desire the Secretary to examine the files preceding October, and those that follow. I was told they were all in Boston; but it's not so. If these articles are not to be found, I beg the favour that the honourable Board would let me know what articles I am to procure, as I shall wait in town this day for the same. The gorget and heart I have two men at work upon, and hope to have them by Tuesday.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant, B. AUSTIN.

To the Hon. Thomas Cushing, Esq.

GENERAL LINCOLN TO THOMAS CUSHING.

Boston, July 19, 1776.

MY DEAR SIR: It is not necessary that the Council should give orders immediately that the Militia in the neighbourhood of Point Shirley, Noddle's Island, Charlestown, Dorchester-Heights, and Nantasket, be detached, and ordered to hold themselves in readiness to march on an alarm to those posts; and that alarm posts be assigned to such Militia; that signals for an alarm should be ordered; and that publick notice be given what they are; and, at the same time, notice be given that, on a certain day, the signals will be made. This will call up the attention of the neighbourhood; the people will make such remarks with regard to them as will probably prevent their being deceived when a real alarm is designed. Also, if the signals agreed on will not sound the alarm so generally as we could wish, further measures may be taken in the matter before it be too late.

Give me leave to propose that one beacon be erected at Cape Ann, one at Marblehead, one at Malden, one at Boston, one at the Blue-Hills, and one at Nantasket; that a sentry be constantly kept at each beacon, whose duty it should be to observe and report when the beacon in the neighbourhood is fired—(the expense of this will be small, as troops are stationed at each of the places, excepting Malden and the Blue-Hills); that an old cannon be carried to the Blue-Hills—such an one there is at Dorchester, near the mills, with an old carriage; and one be carried to Malden; and that upon the approach of a fleet of more than sail, an alarm be made by firing the beacons, and by a discharge of three cannon at each place successively, at one minute's distance between each discharge between the rising and setting of the sun, and two in the night. And that on an alarm being made, the detached Militia aforesaid immediately repair to their alarm-posts, and there wait further orders.

In order that people may generally know what signals will be given on the approach of an enemy, &c., and when the same signals will be given for an experiment, would it not be well to have it published by the Clergy in the same manner as the Declaration of Independence is to be made known? It appears to me necessary that some order should be taken for a general spread of an alarm through this State.

I am, with esteem and regard, your most humble servant,
BENJAMIN LINCOLN.

To the Hon. Thomas Cushing.

TRISTRAM DALTON TO ELBRIDGE GERRY.

Newburyport, July 19, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I wish you joy on the late full Declaration—an event so ardently desired by your good self and the people you particularly represent. We are no longer to be amused with delusive prospects. The die is cast. All is at stake. The way is made plain. No one can now doubt on which side it is his duty to act. We have everything to hope from the goodness of our cause. The God of justice is omnipotent. We are not to fear what man or a multitude can do. We have put on the harness, and I trust it will not be put off until we see our land a land of security and freedom—the wonder of the other hemisphere—the asylum of all who pant for deliverance from bondage.

Wishing every blessing to attend you, I am, dear sir, with great regard, your obedient servant,

TRISTRAM DALTON.

H. WENTWORTH TO THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Portsmouth, July 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Mrs. Levins having informed this Committee that she was about to apply to you for leave to depart this place, in order to proceed to her husband at Quebeck, we beg leave to acquaint you that the situation of her family is such as that, if she can go with safety, we should think it expedient. Major Meigs and Captain Dearborn inform us that Mr. Levins interested himself with General Carleton to obtain leave for them to revisit their families; and that in return for his kindness, they promised him to use their utmost endeavours to have his family sent him. If this measure meets with your approbation, we can see no reasonable objection to Mrs. Levins's going with her family as soon as she can get away.

I am, by order of the Committee of Safety, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

H. WENTWORTH, Chairman.

To the Honourable the Committee of Safety at Exeter.

H. WENTWORTH TO THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Portsmouth, July 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Captain Roach, in the schooner Polly, having cleared from this port to the eastward, with a cargo consisting of two hogsheads of salt, twenty bushels of corn, three hundred pounds of tobacco, three barrels of rum, and three barrels of cider, sundry of the inhabitants of this town have made application to us to forbid his departure, supposing the risk too great at this time. We have had Captain Roach before us, and he acquaints us that he intends to go to St. Peter's, and to carry with him, exclusive of the above articles, cash sufficient to purchase a cargo there of such commodities as he supposes will be suitable for this market. We think it our duty to inform you of this matter, and have desired Captain Roach to wait on you, and request your opinion thereon.

I am, by order of the Committee of Safety, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

H. WENTWORTH, Chairman.

To the Honourable the Committee of Safety, at Exeter.

JOSEPH WENTWORTH TO THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Portsmouth, July 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Pursuant to an order from Major-General Sullivan of the 3d instant, to me directed, to raise one hundred and fifteen men out of the First Regiment, I now have the pleasure to enclose the return of that number, who have voluntarily engaged in the service of their country.

Gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JOSEPH WENTWORTH.

To the Honourable the Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-Hampshire.

CAPTAIN RICHARDS, OF THE LISBON PACKET, TO THE POSTMASTERS-GENERAL.

Falmouth, England, July 20, 1776.

MY LORDS: Saturday, June 15, received two mails from Mr. Bell, for the Duke of York packet, and sailed for Lisbon, in company with the Anna Theresa and Eagle packets. Tuesday, June 25, arrived at Lisbon with the Eagle packet in company, and off the Bar saw a fleet of French men-of-war, consisting of six sail of the line, two frigates, two sloops, a brig, and two cutters. The 29th arrived six sail of Spanish men-of-war in the Tagus. On Monday, the 8th of July afterwards, we sailed in company with the Spanish fleet, which consisted of three sail of the line, one frigate, and two sloops. In the evening saw four sail more of Spanish ships-of-war going in—three sail of the line, and one frigate. The French fleet sailed to the northward.

On the 4th of July, his most faithful Majesty of Portugal issued a decree prohibiting all ships and vessels belonging to British-America entering into any ports of the dominions of Portugal; and in case they should arrive, prohibiting any of his subjects from giving them any succour, but immediately turning them out of the ports; and for those in the ports, immediately after eight days from the above date; and, in case of disobedience, all such ships or vessels are to be confiscated to the use and benefit of the publick works; and in case of departure, a strict charge is given to the outward Consulada to search them, that they do not carry with them any implements of war.

I am, my Lords, your Lordships' obedient, humble servant,
JOHN RICHARDS.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER RECEIVED IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED LONDON, JULY 20, 1776.

The Ministry seem so confident of reducing the Colonies with the formidable force which they have sent for that purpose, that they are already employed in devising means for keeping them in subjection after they have subdued them. Lately, there was presented to the King a project for that purpose, which his Majesty approved of. The proposal is, to keep up ten thousand troops, of which two shall be battalions of Artillery, and two of Light-Dragoons; and to establish on the Continent two Bishopricks, the titles of which shall be, the Protectors of the English Church. Such are the brilliant chimeras which are spread by the Ministerial party, and which the opposite party are labouring to destroy, by publishing to the world that the Colonies combating for liberty will not yield but to force; that the force already sent out by the mother country, which at present appears irresistible, will soon be reduced to nothing, if the first consequences of it should not equal the expectations of Administration. Dissatisfaction will soon succeed, and diffuse itself through all ranks of people, already much fatigued with civil intestine war; that in this case the consequences must necessarily be very fatal to England, especially if strangers, taking advantage of these dissensions, and in support of America, should attack the most remote English settlements, and occasion a diversion which will greatly weaken the power of Great Britain.

It appears plainly already that the formidable armaments which they are fitting out in the ports of France and Spain, have no other object but war; that we may be convinced of this by the evasive answers given to our Ambassadors at the Courts of Versailles and Madrid, as we have them from their representations on that subject; that the distinguished marks of respect with which they have received the Deputies of Congress in these two Courts, does not leave the least doubt that a treaty has been already formed between them and the Americans, the effects of which, in all probability, will be felt as soon as Independence shall be declared, a period which cannot be at a great distance, since the resolutions sent to the General Congress by every of the United States to that effect are already publick. It is by these means that Opposition seeks to weaken the specious reasonings which Government employs, to warn the people of the melancholy consequences of the war, information which already begins to alarm the nation.

SAMUEL CURSON TO COMFORT SANDS.

St. Eustatia, July 20, 1776.

SIR: My last respects were of the 30th May. I then forwarded you duplicate of sales of Captain Pullar's cargo, with bill of lading and invoice of what I shipped in return; also the honourable Congress's account current: balance due me £620 7s. 2d. If you find it right, I shall be much obliged to you to pay it to Messrs. Curson & Seton, as I owe them a large sum.

Powder continues in great plenty. It has lately been sold as low as 30 piastres. Won't you be in want of blankets next winter? they may be had here at 2 and 3 ps. apiece.

Provisions are likely to be very much wanted soon. There's but little good in these Islands. If we have not larger supplies than heretofore, we may suffer much. The English Islands already feel the effect of America withdrawing their trade from them, and some begin to think with us, Great Britain will lose her object.

I am, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,
SAMUEL CURSON.

VIRGINIA COUNCIL.

In Council, Williamsburgh, July 20, 1776.

Ordered, That the Printers publish in their respective Gazettes the Declaration of Independence made by the honourable the Continental Congress, and that the Sheriff of each County in this Commonwealth proclaim the same at the door of his Court-House the first Court day after he shall have received the same.

ARCHIBALD BLAIR, Clerk.

BATTLE NEAR THE GREAT ISLAND OF HOLSTEIN.

Williamsburgh, August 2, 1776.

Last Wednesday an express arrived with the following account of a battle fought between the Militia of Fincastle, and some of the Cherokee and Creek Indians near the great Island of Holstein, on the 20th of July last.

On the 19th our scouts returned, and informed us that they had discovered where a great number of Indians were making into the settlement; upon which alarm, the few men that were stationed at Eaton's completed a breastwork sufficiently strong, with the assistance of what men were there, to have repelled a considerable number, sent expresses to the different stations, and collected all the forces in one body; and the morning after, about one hundred and seventy turned out in search of the enemy. We marched in two divisions, with flankers on each side, and scouts before. Our scouts discovered upwards of twenty meeting us, and fired on them. They returned the fire, but our men rushed on them with such violence that they were obliged to make a precipitate retreat. We took ten bundles, and a good deal of plunder, and had great reason to think some of them were wounded. This small skirmish happened on ground very disadvantageous for our men to pursue, though it was with the greatest difficulty our officers could restrain their men. A council was held, and it was thought advisable to return, as we imagined there was a large party not far off. We accordingly returned, and had not marched more than a mile when a number, not inferior to ours, attacked us in the rear. Our men sustained the attack with great bravery and intrepidity, immediately formed a line. The Indians endeavoured to surround us, but were prevented by the uncommon fortitude and vigilance of Captain James Shelby, who took possession of an eminence that prevented their design. Our line of battle extended about a quarter of a mile. We killed thirteen on the spot, whom we found, and have the greatest reason to believe that we could have found a great many more, had we had time to search for them. There were streams of blood every way; and it was generally thought there never was so much execution done in so short a time on the frontiers. Never did troops fight with greater calmness than ours did. The Indians attacked us with the greatest fury imaginable, and made the most vigorous efforts to surround us. Our spies really deserve the greatest applause. We took a great deal of plunder and many guns, and had only four men greatly wounded. The rest of the troops are in high spirits, and eager for another engagement. We have the greatest reason to believe they are pouring in great numbers on us, and beg the assistance of our friends.

PRESIDENT OF COUNCIL OF VIRGINIA TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

In Council, Williamsburgh, July 20, 1776.

SIR: We had the honour to receive your letter of the 8th instant, enclosing the Declaration of Independence, and the resolve of Congress respecting the augmentation of the Rifle corps at New-York. We shall take care to have the Declaration immediately published, so as that the people may be universally informed of it, who, we have the pleasure to inform you, have been impatiently expecting it, and will receive it with joy.

We are perfectly satisfied of the utility of riflemen, and wish it was in our power to assist in raising the number in our County voted by Congress for the support of New-York, but the Convention has adjourned, and we are vested with no powers which can in any manner enforce or carry into execution that vote. If commissions could be sent to proper persons, they might raise companies which would have a right to march to New-York, but we could not oblige them to do so.

It is with pleasure, sir, we observe that you say, in consequence of the Declaration, you are fully convinced that our affairs may take a more favourable turn; and we firmly rely on the protection and continuance of the powerful interposition of that Being whose power no creature is able to resist.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

JOHN PAGE, President.To Hon. John Hancock, President of Congress, Philadelphia.

ELISHA WINTERS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Chestertown, July 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Having been absent on business to Philadelphia, did not receive your much esteemed favour of the 12th instant till this day. I am willing to undertake the repairing the arms which may be borrowed or purchased on the Eastern-Shore for the Flying-Camp, with all convenient speed, though I am sorry to inform you there is no probability that Colonel Hollingsworth can answer your order in my favour for four hundred bayonets time enough to despatch the business equal to your wishes. I will use the utmost industry to procure them elsewhere, the Province to be chargeable with the extraordinary expense I may incur, unless you have any other means to furnish me with them. Ramrods and swivels fitted I can and would choose to furnish.

Holding in view my contract, and assuring you I will exert every effort for your interest, I remain, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

ELISHA WINTERS.

CAPTAIN MARTIN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

July 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Oxford being a place much exposed to danger, and from which a guard has been lately removed, should you think proper to place a small body of men there, my company is very convenient, and will engage to raise thirty for that purpose, under such officers as you may think proper, that are already officers in my company.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

NICHOLAS MARTIN.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

GENERAL DENT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

St. George's, Head-Quarters, July 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: From the accounts given me by several deserters, that the fleet entered up Potomack River to water, and from the motions of the Roebuck, five other ships and a sloop, I have the greatest reason to believe they are now on their way for that purpose. Nanjemoy we suppose to be the place of their destination. I have, by letter, informed the Committee of Correspondence of the motions of the above ships, and shall endeavour to watch their motions, and prevent their depredations, with all my might. There was a brisk and severe cannonade from two or three tenders and a row-galley off Smith's Creek about six o'clock this morning, the consequence of which I have not yet heard.

I am, gentlemen, with much esteem, your most obedient servant,

JOHN DENT.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO MAJOR SHRYOCK.

[No. 64.]

Annapolis, July 20, 1776.

SIR: We received yours of the 1st of July, by Captain Reynolds, and have no particular orders to give at present, more than to request you would forward the Militia of the Flying-Camp. Use your endeavours to have the men well armed, furnished with blankets and all necessaries. Colonel Williams, we are told, has declined. You stand in the way of promotion; therefore exert yourself to the utmost, and may you be crowned with success. We wish you health, and are yours, &c.

To Major Henry Shryock.

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE.

At a special meeting of the Committee, July 20, 1776:

Present: Samuel Purviance, Jr., Chairman; W. Lux, Vice Chairman; J. Calhoun, B. Griffith, J. Grist, T. Rutter, W. Aisquith, J. Boyd.

A Letter from John Andrews, Esquire, Chairman of the Committee of Caroline County, was received by express, informing that they had apprehended John Amos, who lately went away from Baltimore town; and, upon examining him, found a certificate from George Woolsey, of his having paid his fine of £10, as a Non-Associate, which had induced them to confine him till the further order of this Committee. An answer was accordingly returned, signifying that (the Convention having, at their last meeting, resolved that the Committee should not hereafter take any further cognizance of Non-Associators or Non-Enrollers, and the Committee having no other charge against Mr. Amos,) he might be discharged.

Attested:

GEORGE LUX, Secretary.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Congress Chamber, 3 o'clock, A. M., July 20, 1776.

SIR: I have only time to inform you that this morning your favour of the 19th is come to hand. Enclosed is this morning's paper, to which beg to refer you.

My best wishes attend you; and am, your most obedient servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM JOHN ADAMS, DATED PHILADELPHIA, JULY 20, 1776.

We had yesterday an express from General Lee, in Charleston, South-Carolina, with an account of a brilliant little action between the armament under Clinton and Cornwallis, and a battery on Sullivan's Island, which terminated very fortunately for America. I will endeavour to enclose, with this, a printed account of it. It has given us good spirits here, and will have a happy effect upon our armies at New-York and Ticonderoga. Surely our northern soldiers will not suffer themselves to be outdone by their brethren so nearly under the sun. I don't yet hear of any Massachusetts men at New-York. Our people must not flinch at this critical moment, when their country is in more danger than it ever will be again, perhaps. What will they say if the Hoves prevail against our forces at so important a post as New-York, for want of a few thousand men from the Massachusetts?

I will likewise send you, by this post, Lord Howe's letter and Proclamation, which has let the cat out of the bag. These tricks deceive no longer. Gentlemen here, who either were, or pretended to be, deceived heretofore, now see or pretend to see through such artifices. I apprehend his Lordship is afraid of being attacked upon Staten-Island, and is throwing out his barrels to amuse Leviathan until his reinforcements shall arrive.

MONSIEUR PELISSIER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read July 20, 1776, and referred to the Board of War.]

Philadelphia, July 20, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: Anxious as I am to avoid giving trouble to this honourable House, I am, nevertheless, obliged to lay before you the following particulars of my situation. At the time the first address from Congress to the Canadians appeared in that country, I was among the foremost who sought to give it support; and, impressed with a strong desire to free this Western world from European tyranny, I hesitated not to furnish petards for the Continental Army, iron, stores, and every other material in my power, on the credit of the officers' notes, which money has since been paid me at Albany. I have been studious and attentive to the success of the cause, by giving every useful information in my power; which circumstance, I presume, some of this honourable House can testify to. I have accepted a commission of Colonel, for the District of Three Rivers, from General Arnold; by which act I have put the finishing character to what Mr. Carleton will call rebellion, which renders it impossible for me to appear in that country again with safety.

In consequence of an order from General Arnold, I prepared works for casting and supplying the Army with four thousand shells and twenty-two thousand cannon-balls, and such other supplies as the Army might require of that kind; in doing which, I was at a very great expense; which works, on the retreat of the Army, I was obliged to abandon, together with all my property, and an estate in land which cost fifteen thousand pounds, being six miles long and twenty acres broad. In consequence of these misfortunes, I am likely to suffer great inconveniences; I therefore request that this honourable House will take the matter into their consideration, and enable me to support myself in some decent character under them, until such time as affairs will permit me to put myself in possession of my Canadian property; and, in the mean time, I beg that Congress will dispose of my service in any way in which I can be most useful.

I am, honourable sirs, with great respect, your most humble servant,

PELISSIER.

To the Honourable Continental Congress.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE.

In Committee of Inspection and Observation for the } County of Philadelphia, July 20, 1776. }

Resolved, unanimously, That this Committee most earnestly exhort the Captains of the Militia of this County to use their utmost abilities to complete their Companies, and march them, under the orders of their Commanding Officer, to Trenton; and that the Associators would, with becoming alertness, join their respective Companies, as they value the reputation of freemen, and wish to hold the foremost place in the esteem of their countrymen.

By order of the Committee:

JOHN BULL, Chairman.

ROBERT MORRIS TO COLONEL JOSEPH REED.

From the Hills on Schuylkill, July 20, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I received your obliging letter of the 13th, yesterday, in Congress, and should have been tempted to have laid the enclosure immediately before Congress, had not a letter from the same person, on the same subject, and in a similar style, addressed to Mr. Kinsey, of New-Jersey, been read in Congress the day before. The temper of the House was plain; and you may judge what it was, when I tell you that the only inquiry the letter produced was, how it got into Mr. Kinsey's hands. I am sorry to say there are some amongst us that cannot bear the thought of reconciliation on any terms. To these men, all propositions of the kind sound like high-treason against the State; and I really believe they would sooner punish a man for this crime than for bearing arms against us. I cannot help condemning this disposition, as it must be founded in keen resentment, or on interested views; whereas we ought to have the interest of our country and the good of mankind to act as the main-spring in all our publick conduct. I think with you, that if the Commissioners have any propositions to make, they ought to be heard; should they disclose powers different from what we imagine them to be vested with, and an inclination to employ those powers favourably for America, it is our duty to attend to such offers, weigh well the consequences of every determination we come to, and, in short, to lay aside all prejudices, resentments, and sanguine notions of our own strength, in order that reason may influence and wisdom guide our councils.

If the Admiral and General are really desirous of a conference, I think and hope they will address our General properly; this may be expected, if they have powers beyond granting pardons; if they have not, it is idle for them to solicit any intercourse, as no good can possibly arise to them or their cause from it; but, on our part, I think that good policy requires that we should hear all they have to say. I am not for making any sacrifice of dignity; but still I would hear them, if possible; because, if they can offer peace on admissible terms, I believe the great majority of America would still be for accepting it. If they can only offer pardons, and that is fully ascertained, it will firmly unite all America in their exertions to support the independence they have declared; and it must be obvious to everybody, that our united efforts will be absolutely necessary. This being the case, why should we fear to treat of peace, or to hear the Commissioners on that subject? If they can offer terms that are advantageous and honourable for this country, let us meet them; if they cannot, we are not in a situation or temper to ask or receive pardons; and all who do not mean to stoop to this ignominious submission will consequently take up their arms with a determination to conquer or to die. If they offer or desire a conference, and we reject it, those who are already dissatisfied will become more so, others will follow their example, and we may expect daily greater disunion and disaffection in every part of these States; at least such are my apprehensions on this subject.

I have uniformly voted against and opposed the Declaration of Independence, because, in my poor opinion, it was an improper time, and will neither promote the interest nor redound to the honour of America; for it has caused division when we wanted union, and will be ascribed to very different principles than those which ought to give rise to such an important measure. I did expect my conduct in this great question would have procured my dismissal from the great Council, but find myself disappointed, for the Convention has thought proper to return me in the new delegation; and although my interest and inclination prompt me to decline the service, yet I cannot depart from one point which first induced me to enter the publick line: I mean an opinion, that it is the duty of every individual to act his part in whatever station his country may call him to in times of difficulty, danger, and distress. Whilst I think this a duty, I must submit, although the councils of America have taken a different course from my judgment and wishes. I think that the individual who declines the service of his country because its councils are not conformable to his ideas, makes but a bad subject; a good one will follow, if he cannot lead. Until the good news from Carolina raised our spirits, they were constantly depressed by every account we received from the Northern Army. Such scenes of mismanagement, misconduct, and ill success, as have been exhibited in that quarter, ever since the loss of the brave Montgomery, have no parallel.

I hope you are, or will be, properly strengthened and supported at New-York. For my own part, I don't like your situation there, but think you had better give up that city to the enemy than let them get behind and pen you in there, as they were cooped in Boston last year. However, I don't pretend to any judgment in this matter, nor to have considered the subject. My confidence in the abilities of General Washington is entire. His life is the most valuable in America; and whenever an engagement happens, I sincerely hope he will think how much depends on it, and guard it accordingly.

The publick papers will announce to you the new appointments and changes here; and as I have not much unemployed time, I am always ready to spare the use of my pen. This being Sunday morning, and in the country, I have spun out this letter to a length not common with me now-a-days. I beg my compliments to the General. I dined in company with Mrs. Washington yesterday, at Colonel Harrison's, and expect her here at dinner to-day. Remember me to General Mifflin, Colonels Shea and Moylan, and believe me to be, very sincerely, yours,

ROBERT MORRIS.

P. S. I will lay the London letter before Congress to-morrow.

SAMUEL TUCKER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

In Convention of New-Jersey, Trenton, }
July 20, 1776. }

SIR: Before the arrival of your packet this morning we had received the letter from Mr. Kinsey, of which the enclosed is a copy. We had thought the step necessary, which Congress have been pleased to intimate, of inquiring through what channel a letter had been conveyed from Lord Howe. You are now possessed of the letter, which will speak for itself.

The very agreeable and important news from the southward, for which we had felt the anxiety of brethren for brothers in danger, gives us a joy we cannot name. We hope it is a happy presage of our own success. It will at least animate our people, and thus greatly contribute to our exertions.

We shall do everything in our power respecting the cattle. We have such an extent of shore, (more than three hundred miles,) all of which is more or less exposed, and a great part of it in such a situation that the owners have no places to which they can remove their cattle, that the task is not a little difficult. The Tory cattle of all kinds we shall lay our hands upon at every opportunity.

We are, sir, your most humble servants,

By order of Congress:

SAMUEL TUCKER, President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

July 19, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The letter you mention is marked on the back, "Favoured by Lord Howe," and came to Mrs. Reed enclosed in a packet from her brother. While my clerk was copying it, my barber came in, and he told Hewlings. Hewlings desired a sight, which, as it was expressly desired to be communicated to the Assembly, I did not think myself (though really inclinable to do it) at liberty to deny. He then desired he might take a copy, which copy was immediately (I have reason to think) carried and shown to Odell; since which I have shown it to such as have applied to me. I have sent, or rather written a copy to send, to our Delegates, which I intend to forward by the first opportunity. This is all the information you request.

I am, with esteem, your obedient servant,

J. KINSEY.

To Samuel Tucker, Esq.

Bridgetown, Cumberland County, May 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: As our situation on the Delaware exposes us to the frequent depredations of our enemies—we having already had two alarms, and this day a number of our cattle killed and taken away, and we not having a sufficient quantity of powder and ball in store to protect our shore, and hourly expecting more visits from the ships that lie in the bay—I am directed to apply to you to solicit the Congress for a further supply of two hundred pounds of powder and one thousand pounds of lead. Your compliance will oblige your very humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

THOMAS HARRIS, Chairman.

To the Delegates of New-Jersey in the Continental Congress.

GENERAL MERCER TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Referred to Board of War.]

Head-Quarters, Elizabethtown, July 20, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 17th instant, with the resolves of Congress of the 16th, which I had the honour to receive yesterday, I shall pay all possible attention to.

Some days ago I came to this place with a view to execute a plan to surprise some of the enemy's posts on Staten-Island, formed by consent of General Washington. From what we could observe, and the intelligence we received, there were three stations, including the New Blazing-Star, which, together with some few houses off from the Sound, contained from five to six hundred men. Two creeks enclosed these stations all but a narrow neck of land, so as to prevent an easy access of reinforcements.

It was intended to pass the Sound from the mouth of Thompson's Creek, a little below this town, to Staten-Island, at a proper time of night, so as to be on the back of the enemy's quarters before daylight appeared. We were first to have secured, by a strong party, the neck of land between the two creeks, and then to have divided our force in such a manner as to have attacked all the posts at once as soon as it was light, then to have retired, if successful, by the ferry at the New Blazing-Star. The night before last was fixed for this enterprise. The first division, consisting of Continental troops under Major Knowlton, marched with me to the mouth of Thompson's Creek by nine o'clock, with design to pass the Sound. Immediately the two battalions of the Pennsylvania Riflemen, together with the first battalion of the Pennsylvania Militia, were to follow. The whole force would then have consisted of about thirteen hundred. Some of these troops were rendered unfit for service by having had a very fatiguing march from Brunswick. This obliged us to think of contracting our plan; but very tempestuous weather coming on, obliged us to desist altogether from the enterprise, some gentlemen, being well acquainted with the passage there, being of opinion that we should endanger the loss of our whole party in attempting to cross in such boats as we were provided with.

I have troubled you with this narrative, partly with design to point out the necessity of having boats of a proper construction built for the service of this Army, either to afford a safe and speedy passage to the troops for the attack of the enemy on Staten-Island, or to move our men with expedition to New-York or Philadelphia, should the service require their assistance at either place.

I have relieved with the troops sent from Pennsylvania all the Militia of New-Jersey, who occupied sundry posts from South-Amboy to Paulus Hook, to enable them to secure their harvest. When that is effected, they will again cheerfully give their assistance.

The command of the Flying-Camp, which the Congress have been pleased to honour me with, will render the assistance of an Adjutant-General and a Secretary very necessary. Mr. David Ross, a young gentleman of Maryland, had joined me in hopes of having the appointment of Brigade-Major. I beg leave to represent him to the honourable Congress as fit to perform the duty of Deputy Adjutant-General, or of Brigade-Major, as may be thought most expedient.

Give me leave to add my most hearty congratulations on the happy success of our arms in South-Carolina, this moment communicated to me by yours of the 19th instant.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

HUGH MERCER.

To the Hon. John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress.

(Copy to be forwarded to General Washington.)

PHILIP B. BRADLEY TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Bergen, July 20, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: I have made strict inquiry, pursuant to your orders, into the conduct of Captain Ephraim Burr; and, upon examination, find that, by order of General Putnam and Colonel Moylan, he was authorized and empowered to secure the property and effects of all the Tory refugees which he could come at, and am of opinion that he no more than fulfilled his orders. I believe that some of his men, without his knowledge or approbation, did take some things which were the property of persons whose principles were not inimical; but these, together with those secured by himself, are safely deposited in the hands of a gentleman in the Jerseys, by orders which he produced from under the hand of Colonel Moylan. Captain Burr has fully satisfied the owners of the last mentioned effects as to his conduct, and the principles by which he was actuated. Upon the whole, am of opinion that Captain Burr's conduct, upon the strictest scrutiny, will appear unexceptionable.

Nothing worthy of observation hath transpired since I reported last to your Excellency, except that our men discovered this morning, on an eminence near the Ministerial shipping, that the enemy were erecting a fortification.

I have the honour to be, with every possible mark of esteem and respect, your Excellency's most humble servant,

PHILIP B. BRADLEY.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq.

GENERAL WADSWORTH TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-York, July 20, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: Mine of the 18th instant not going by the conveyance I expected, gives me an opportunity of enclosing a return of my brigade, mentioned yesterday, by which you will see that little more than half are arrived, an event very disagreeable under the present circumstances of our Army. Though I cannot undertake to ascertain its number with precision, having never seen a return of the whole, or been advised thereof minutely by the General, yet I have reason to believe that he most earnestly wishes our battalions complete, and on this ground. If the enemy should attack us, hope, by the blessings of Heaven, to be able to defend ourselves, and defeat the cruel designs of the enemies of the independent States of America.

I am, with great truth and regard, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

JAMES WADSWORTH.

To the Honourable Governour Trumbull.

New-York, July 22, 1776.

On Sunday afternoon, the 14th, a barge from the fleet appeared in our Bay with a white flag, which was there met by the General's barge, with several gentlemen of the Army on board. The flag was sent from Lord Howe, with a letter to his Excellency General Washington. But as the letter was improperly directed, it was not received, though much solicited by the officer, who, we hear, said it contained nothing of a hostile nature; that Lord Howe came over possessed of unlimited power, and was much concerned he had not arrived a few days sooner, which would have effected a reconciliation, &c. However, it seems his unlimited power did not extend even to the necessary preliminaries of a negotiation—an acknowledgment of the right of the persons to whom he came to treat with him.

Indeed, the idea of coming over to propose a plan of reconciliation is, in every view, absurd and ridiculous; for as the Colonies never invaded the rights of Britain, and only defended their own, there was no occasion at all for negotiation. The moment Great Britain receded from her unjust claims, the war was at an end. The very proposition, therefore, of a negotiation, was a proof that Great Britain persisted in her encroachments on the rights of the Colonies, and was, in itself, an act of a hostile nature.

On Tuesday, another flag from the fleet appeared, and was met as above; when a letter from General Howe was again offered, but, for the same reason as the former, was rejected.

On Friday, a third flag from the fleet appeared, which, we hear, brought only an open letter, directed to Miss Margaret Moncrieffe.*

Saturday forenoon, our people discovered a fourth flag of truce, whereupon the Mechanick's barge was sent to meet it, and conducted the officer (said to be Adjutant-General of the forces under the command of Lord Howe) to the dwelling of Colonel Knox, in this city, where his Excellency General Washington, attended by his Body-Guards, waited his arrival, which was a little past one o'clock. The interview was short, and the particulars, we believe, are, as yet, not made known. We can therefore only say, that, at parting, much courtesy was seen to pass between the gentleman who bore the flag and those of the Continental forces who had the honour to be present.

* LETTER FROM GENERAL PUTNAM TO MISS MONCRIEFFE.

New-York, July 26, 1776.

I should have answered your letter sooner, but had it not in my power to write you anything satisfactory.

The omission of my title in Major Moncrieffe's letter, is a matter I regard not in the least; nor does it, in any way, influence my conduct in this affair, as you seem to imagine. Any political difference alters him not to me in a private capacity. As an officer, he is my enemy, and obliged to act as such, be his private sentiments what they will. As a man, I owe him no enmity; but, far from it, will, with pleasure, do any kind office in my power for him or any of his connexions.

I have, agreeably to your desire, waited on his Excellency, to endeavour to obtain permission for you to go to Staten-Island. He informs me that Lieutenant-Colonel Patterson, who came with the last flag, said he was empowered to offer the exchange of _____ for Governour Skene. As the Congress have reserved to themselves the right of exchanging prisoners, the General has sent to know their pleasure, and doubts not they will give their consent. I am desirous to inform you, that if this exchange is made, you will have liberty to pass out with Governour Skene; but that no flag will be sent solely for that purpose.

Major William Livingston was lately here, and informed me that you had an inclination to live in this city; and that all the ladies of your acquaintance having left town, and Mrs. Putnam and two daughters being here, proposed your staying with them. If agreeable to you, be assured, Miss, you shall be sincerely welcome. You will here, I think, be in a more probable way of accomplishing the end you wish, that of seeing your father; and may depend upon every civility from, Miss, your obedient servant,

ISRAEL PUTNAM.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER IN THE ARMY AT NEW-YORK, DATED JULY 22, 1776.

On Saturday, the 20th instant, came up from Lord Howe a flag of truce, Adjutant-General of the British Army. He was met by Colonel Reed, our Adjutant-General, about two miles from the town, who took him into the General's barge. He landed near our Battery, and passed through the Life-Guards of General Washington. He was introduced to the General by Colonel Reed, and had a private conference with him at Colonel Knox's, for near half an hour, the particulars of which I am just informed by a person of distinction. The main point was, with great politeness and complaisance, to induce the General to receive a letter he had brought from Lord and General Howe, saying it was the customary mode of address even to foreign Ambassadors. He apologized much for General Howe's sending a letter with such an address, and said that nothing was further from his thoughts than any failure in respect to his Excellency; that Lord and General Howe both lamented exceedingly that any misunderstanding should interrupt that frequent intercourse between both armies, which the course of the service might require. He said Lord Howe had come out with exceeding great powers. The General replied, he had heard that his Lordship had come with great powers to pardon, but he could not apply that great power to the Americans, who had never offended, for where there is no offence, a pardon cannot be necessary. Colonel Patterson seemed confused, and made no reply. After many compliments and polite expressions, he departed, with saying: "Has your Excellency no commands to my Lord, or General Howe?" "None, sir," replied the General, "but my particular compliments to both of them."

DUTCHESS COUNTY COMMITTEE TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Dutchess County, in Committee of Safety, }
July 20, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: With pleasure we acknowledge the receipt of the resolution of the Convention, directing the raising of two regiments in the County; and be assured we shall enter upon the business with the utmost alacrity. However, we conceive the levies will be completed with infinitely greater despatch if we can be furnished with money in order to pay the bounty immediately upon inlisting. Indeed, we conceive it will be impossible to procure a sufficient number of volunteers without it. We must, therefore, earnestly entreat that a sum necessary for that purpose may be transmitted to us immediately. We have authorized Mr. Paul Schenck, of Poughkeepsie, to receive it, and we will pledge ourselves that the utmost care and attention will be observed in the disposition of it.

Brigadier Ten Broeck has appointed next Tuesday for the officers and the Committee to meet to fix the quotas of the several regiments. The business would be greatly expedited if we could have the money on that day, to distribute it, and give to each regiment its respective proportion.

I remain (by order of the Committee) your most obedient servant,

EGBERT BENSON, Chairman.

To the Deputies of the County of Dutchess in the Convention of the State of New-York, White-Plains.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read August 1, 1776.]

German-Flats, July 20, 1776.

SIR: I am honoured with your favour of the 13th instant, covering the resolutions of Congress of the 6th and 11th instant. I shall take the earliest opportunity of collecting and auditing the publick accounts of the late General Montgomery, and include his pay and table allowance, agreeable to the resolve.

It is with infinite pain that I see no prospect of erecting a fort at Oswego, or building galleys on Ontario, during this campaign. With all the assistance that his Excellency General Washington has been able to afford us, with all the exertions we have been able to make to procure a sufficiency of intrenching tools for the Army to the northward, we still are greatly deficient of what is absolutely necessary. Nails, carpenters' tools, whipsaws, and a variety of articles that do not now occur to me, and which are indispensably necessary, are not to be procured, at least not in time.

Such of these articles as are to the northward will be wanted there, and even considerably more. Besides these, the great scarcity of pork, which cannot now be got from New-York, will be an insuperable obstacle; but nevertheless, as it is probable that a very few weeks will determine whether troops can be spared from New-York or the northward, I shall make what preparations I can to carry into execution the wishes of Congress.

My long stay here must necessarily greatly retard our affairs to the northward, and distress General Gates; and I had proposed to return, if the Indians did not arrive in a day or two hence, and to leave the business to Messrs. Douw and Edwards. The Indians have prevented me, by sending a message and belt, importing that they were informed of my intentions to go down the country, and insisting that I should remain. The necessity of humouring these people, and a deference to the opinion of my colleagues, put it out of my power to comply with my wishes.

I am, sir, most respectfully, your obedient and very humble servant,
PH. SCHUYLER.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

German-Flats, July 20, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Both of your Excellency's favours of the 15th instant were delivered to me yesterday.

The letter for General Burgoyne, and the resolution of Congress to accompany it, were immediately despatched to General Gates, with a request to forward it without delay.

To carry into execution the resolution of Congress of the 21st of June, respecting the mal-conduct of some of our officers in Canada, will be, as your Excellency very justly observes, "a work of difficulty and delicacy." Congress was doubtless furnished with a detail of some of the offences, and, most probably, with the names of the offenders, previous to their entering into the resolution. If these, however few they might be, were pointed out and brought to trial, others in the course of the examination might be impeached, and probably most of the offenders be discovered. Perhaps your Excellency may think proper to desire Congress to mention some particulars. I shall, however, as soon as I return to the Army, confer with Generals Gates and Arnold, and try to adopt such measures as will best answer the wishes of Congress.

Colonel Nicolson's case, agreeable to your orders, shall claim my earliest attention, and I will order a trial immediately on my return.

It would give me great pleasure if the situation of our affairs would admit of my doing what Congress has recommended to me, in the resolution of the 11th instant; but unless a considerable body of troops and carpenters are moved from Ticonderoga, and the variety of articles necessary for erecting fortifications at Oswego, and building galleys on Ontario, can be procured, it will not be possible to carry that resolution into execution; and I doubt much whether such a movement would be prudent at this juncture, even if intrenching tools, materials for building, and the various other necessary articles, could be spared from the northward, or elsewhere procured. A few weeks will probably bring about events that will enable us to determine with more certainty what can be done. If these should be favourable to us, I will not lose a moment thereafter, but immediately possess ourselves of Oswego, and shall therefore take measures accordingly, and make what preparations I can.

The Indians have not yet arrived; the more remote ones have sent to apologize for their tardiness on account of the death of one, and the extreme illness of another sachem; but that they propose to be here on Thursday next. Mr. Ryckman, on his return from Niagara, passed through most of the Six Nations, and he and his party were at every one of their villages entertained with the accounts brought by those that have lately returned from New-York and Philadelphia; and such is the idea they have conceived of our power and resources, that the opinion that we shall be an overmatch for our enemies, begins pretty generally to prevail. If this be true, (and I have no reason to doubt it,) we shall meet with no trouble from the savages.

The account of the two men-of-war and three tenders passing New-York, as transmitted by your Aid-de-camp, reached Albany on Sunday last, and Colonel Van Schaick informs me that he has given the necessary directions to prevent any of our vessels falling into the enemy's hands.

I am greatly apprehensive that the service will suffer in this quarter for the want of money; very little, if any, is left in the military chest, and our debts are very considerable.

The five officers, prisoners who deserted from some part of Pennsylvania, were met by Mr. Ryckman on his way from Niagara. Would it not be proper to request General Burgoyne to deliver these and all other prisoners in Canada who have slighted their parole and joined him?

General Arnold writes me that two or three hundred swivels will be wanted, with a number of hand-grenades. Be so good as to order up all (of both) you can spare.

I am, dear sir, with every affectionate wish, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL WATERBURY TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, July 20, 1776.

SIR: I received yours by Doctor Ely, with the provision and ammunition, which came safe to hand, except the bullet-moulds and thread. The former is not wanted, as there was no bar lead sent, and there were several boxes of ball; but the latter is much wanted, and would be glad your Honour would send some by the first boat. I have sent a boat to Cheshire's for boards, and it has returned empty by reason of there being none saved; but the mill is now got at work, and hope we shall soon be furnished.

This moment there is part of a company of carpenters from Connecticut arrived. The remainder is at Cheshire's, and I shall send a boat for them to-morrow morning. The rain has flowed so, that they cannot pass by land. I shall do everything that lies in my power to forward business for the publick good here and at Cheshire's.

I am, dear sir, your Honour's most obedient servant,

DAVID WATERBURY, Jun.

To Major-General Gates.

P.S. Some cordage is very much wanted here.

GENERAL GATES TO NATHAN CLARKE.

Tyonderoga, July 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received your favour by the bearer, and have sent you by him the eighteen commissions filled up as you request. I have no authority to appoint any Field-Officer to command the six companies, nor do I see the necessity of it, as they are to act separately for the protection of the inhabitants in the several districts where they are posted. You will please to observe that the officers are to rank in the order you recommended. As to advancing money, I have no power or authority to do it; nor has it been done for any troops raised for the protection of the places they inhabit. When they are raised, and have served a month, they may receive a month's pay.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

HORATIO GATES, Major-General.

To Nathan Clarke, Esq., Chairman of the Committee at Manchester.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR LIEUTENANT-COLONEL HARTLEY, GOING UPON COMMAND TO CROWN-POINT.

Upon your arrival at Crown-Point, you will post the detachment under your command in the most secure manner, taking care to preserve a communication with your batteaus and the vessels stationed at the Point.

You will constantly report all extraordinaries, and by every means in your power procure intelligence of the motions of the enemy. Such as you think of consequence must, without delay, be sent by an express-boat to Ticonderoga.

As the Indians, especially those of the Six Nations, seem strongly disposed to a neutrality, I would by no means commence hostilities against them. If they begin to act offensively against us, there is no doubt but we must repel force by force.

As the detachment under your command is meant more as an advance guard than a post to be defended to the last extremity, you are carefully to keep your retreat open to your batteaus; and when the enemy appear with a force to which, from all circumstances, you are convinced you and your detachment are unequal, and with whom it would be rashness to contend, you are then to make as secure a retreat as possible to Tyonderoga.

Given at Tyonderoga, this twentieth day of July, 1776.
HORATIO GATES.

BARON DE WOEDTKE TO GENERAL GATES.

Fort George, July 20, 1776.

SIR: I have to inform you that I still remain in a very weak and low situation. I find the Canadians are gone on to Albany. I beg leave to advise the General to recall them to this place, with the person who has assumed to himself the title of Major, one Mr. Hare, who, when he arrives here, I pray may be put under an arrest, and deprived of that commission he has assumed to himself, which, I assure you, I never authorized him to take.

I have the honour to be, your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servant,

BARON DE WOEDTKE.

To Major-General Gates.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Newport, July 20, 1776.

SIR: I am favoured with your Excellency's letter of the 15th instant, which I have communicated to the General Assembly now sitting here. Agreeable to your request, the Captains of the row-galleys are ordered to proceed immediately to New-York, there to receive your orders, and to govern themselves accordingly.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esquire, General and Commander-in-Chief of the United States of America, New-York.

RHODE-ISLAND ASSEMBLY.

State of Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations, }
In General Assembly, July Session, 1776. }

Whereas the General Congress of the United States of America, by their Resolution of the 4th instant, after enumerating many of the various acts by which George the Third, King of Great Britain, hath demonstrated his intention to establish an absolute tyranny over the said States, have declared that "a Prince whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people;" and have further declared, that the said States "are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown; and that all political connexion between them and the State of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved:" which said Resolution hath been approved and solemnly published by order, and in presence of this General Assembly:

It is therefore Voted and Resolved, That if any person within this State shall, under pretence of preaching or praying, or in any other way and manner whatever, acknowledge or declare the said King to be our rightful Lord and Sovereign, or shall pray for the success of his arms, or that he may vanquish and overcome all his enemies, shall be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanour, and shall therefor be presented by the Grand Jury of the County where the offence shall be committed, to the Superior Court of the same County; and upon conviction thereof shall forfeit and pay, as a fine, to and for the use of this State, the sum of £100 lawful money, and pay all costs of prosecution, and shall stand committed to Jail until the same be satisfied. And that a copy of this Act be inserted in the Newport and Providence newspapers.

A true copy. Witness: HENRY WARD, Secretary.

Newport, July 22, 1776.

Last Saturday, the honourable the General Assembly of this State being then sitting at the State-House in this Town, at twelve o'clock, the Brigade stationed here, under the command of the Colonels William Richmond and Christopher Lippitt, Esquires, marched from Head-Quarters, and drew up in two columns on each side the parade, before the State-House door; his Honour the Governour and Members of Assembly then marched through and received the compliments of the Brigade; after which the Secretary read, at the head of the Brigade, a Resolve of the Assembly, concurring with the Congress in the Declaration of Independence; the Declaration itself was then read; next, thirteen cannon were discharged at Fort Liberty; the Brigade then drew up and fired in thirteen divisions, from east to west, agreeable to the number and situation of the United States. The Declaration was received with joy and applause by all ranks. The whole was conducted with great solemnity and decorum.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read July 29, 1776.]

Lebanon, July 20, 1776.

SIR: This Colony has been so unfortunate as to employ two brigs, one after another, both of which have proved bad sailers. The last of the two, being well recommended, was purchased by this State and fitted in the best manner; this, indeed, by divine favour, was successful in taking one ship and brig in Nantasket Roads, near Boston, and afterwards assisted in taking another ship in the bay, of which you have received information. Captain Harding, the gallant commander of her, complains that she is a dull sailer, and not fit for the service.

There is a sloop of one hundred and fifty tons, Bermudas-built, brought from New-Providence by Commodore Hopkins, which the Captain informs might do well to be turned into a brig. The clothing and military stores on board our brig Defence may be put on the sloop, and she fitted out in a very short time to proceed on a cruise against our enemies. Our request is, that this State may have the sloop at appraisal, or on such terms as the honourable Congress may judge reasonable, that so she may be fitted and employed accordingly.

Colonel Williams, who brings this, and comes to take his seat in Congress, agreeable to the appointment of our General Assembly, will inform fully on the subject, which renders it unnecessary to add, only my hope for a favourable and a speedy answer.

22d.—Your letter of the 16th instant, with its enclosure, is received. Our General Assembly finished its sessions on the 7th June. On the 10th, the resolution of Congress of the 3d of June came to hand, and forthwith warrants were sent to convene the Assembly on the 14th of same June.

They complied with your requisition. The battalions of Militia were ordered to be raised, armed, and equipped for the service mentioned. Great diligence hath been used to promote the same; and lest they should fail arriving seasonably, three regiments of Lighthouse were ordered forthwith to New-York, to put themselves under the command of General Washington, till our Militia could be raised and come in; also to afford further aid if needed. I gave orders to the commanding officers of five regiments lying next towards New-York, to march forthwith on the requisition of the General to strengthen our Army. Our proceedings are well known to, and can be fully communicated by Colonel Williams, to whom take leave to refer you. The good people of our Government do not hesitate to do all in their power to be freemen while they live, and to leave their posterity the heirs of freedom and its blessings.

I am, with great truth and regard, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JONA. TRUMBULL.

To the Hon. President Hancock.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO NATHANIEL SHAW, JUN.

Lebanon, July 20, 1776.

SIR: I received yours of the 17th instant per Captain Harding. I am very sorry we have been so unfortunate in getting two brigs, one after another, that do not answer our designs. Am rejoiced to hear that there is a sloop that may probably be had that will answer our purpose. Colonel Williams sets out for Congress to take a seat therein. I shall send by him to obtain the sloop you mention. I think it highly probable shall have success to obtain the sloop on some reasonable terms. She may be soon altered and fitted for a cruise. In mean time think that the brig Defence be used for such purpose, as she may answer without laying out further cost upon her. Have ordered Captain Harding to do only what may be barely needful, and to secure the navigation of the Sound as far as in his power.

I am, with esteem and regard, sir, your humble servant,
JONTH. TRUMBULL.
To Nathaniel Shaw, Jun., Esq.

WILLIAM LOUD TO JOHN TAYLOR.

Muscowgus Island, near Bristol, July 20, 1776.

SIR: I saw a letter from Colonel William Jones, of Bristol, to Captain James Hilton, of said place, informing him of the capture of General Thompson, and many officers, as also the retreat of General Sullivan to St. John's, and the doubt of his ability to support that post; as also that fifteen hundred Canadians and five hundred Indians were employed by General Burgoyne to attack our back settlements; also, orders for said Hilton to have his company of Militia in order for defence. Captain Hilton sent intelligence eastward, to the settlements; but, sir, in my opinion, intelligence without ammunition would be of little service; and I do not think one-tenth part of the inhabitants have any, neither do I think it possible for them to be supplied except by the Congress, and are therefore at present in a woful condition if attacked. I doubt not, sir, that you remember Mr. Waterman Thomas, of Waldoborough, who was up to the Congress the year past, on account of supply for many settlements, but could not obtain it. Now, if no speedy supply, and the enemy approach, you may expect dismal news from this quarter.

As the inhabitants have been driven to great straits on account of not having a market for their lumber the year past, and the supports of life having been so dear to them, I cannot see how it is possible at present for them to raise cash for ammunition; and if some way cannot be proposed as to furnish for a hereafter-pay, then farewell to defence.

I imagine it will be some time before the many settlements will be notified of the danger, and be able to meet and consult measures for safety; and as there are many settlements and Islands that have no representatives or acquaintances in the Congress, I desire that you would be so good as to use your endeavours to have a supply for them on such terms as you may think proper, which will be ever esteemed as a favour done to your humble servant,

WILLIAM LOUD.

N. B. I believe the Islands and non-incorporated places are not omitted in the Province tax; and as for my part, I am, and ever have been, ready to pay such, and have done it many years.

Sir, the favour of a line from you, to inform me what dependance may be had on account of ammunition, directed to myself or Waterman Thomas, Esq., of Waldoborough, will greatly oblige yours, &c.,
W. L.

N. B. I have four that bear arms.

COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS TO SELECTMEN OF BOSTON.

Council-Chamber, Watertown, July 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: It appears that there is a great uneasiness in the minds of the people, in various parts of the State, that no greater care has been taken to prevent the spreading of the small-pox; and unless such care should now be taken as may be reasonable and satisfactory, great mischief must certainly ensue, and still greater if the distemper should further prevail in the country towns. To prevent which, and in order that the town of Boston may not in a special manner be subjected to inconveniences, which they are certainly liable to, we request you to use every means in your power for getting clear of the infection of that distemper as soon as possible, and, in the mean time, that you use every precaution to prevent the communication thereof to other towns, and particularly that you employ trusty and proper guards at the ferry places, and at the Neck, to prevent any persons from going into the country, until they are entirely cleansed from the infection, so as to be beyond the possibility of communicating it to others; otherwise the country towns will think themselves under a necessity of setting guards and preparing smoke-houses, &c., the great expense and trouble of which may be saved, if they can be ascertained that you do not fail of doing what is thought to be your duty to do.

To the Selectmen of Boston.

JONATHAN GLOVER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Marblehead, July 20, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I am extremely sorry to take up one moment of your attention, engaged as it is in concerns of the highest import to the United American States; but seeing, without your kind interposition, that I may be materially injured, I hope you will excuse me.

Your Excellency was pleased to appoint me one of the Agents for the Continental armed vessels; which office I have endeavoured to discharge with diligence and fidelity, and conducted, I would fain suppose, to your satisfaction. Among other things, when the ship Hope, laden with powder, was taken, I hastened to Pulling-Point Gut, through which they attempted to carry the ship to Boston; but she got aground; so I procured small craft, and, before night, got out twelve hundred barrels of powder. I procured a guard of one hundred and fifty men from General Ward, lest the enemy should take the ship by their boats in the night. I engaged the best pilot in Boston to carry up the ship; but he despaired of doing it in the night, because he could not see the marks, as the channel was crooked. I told him I did not choose to trust her there that night, and that she must be got up. He said it was impossible. I then proposed placing at anchor a number of the small vessels, with lanterns on board them, at the shallow places and bends of the channel; and after they were thus stationed, the ship fluting and the wind being fair, we made sail, and got her up to Boston safe at anchor off the wharf before daylight; and I ceased not till, with vast labour and fatigue, the whole cargo was secured. On account of this business, for four days and three nights I did not pull off my clothes, and scarcely slept at all. Afterwards I labelled the ship and cargo, and attended the trial and condemnation. In one word, I have taken the whole care of them; and nothing now remains to be done but making sale of the ship, and a few articles that are not military stores—the work of a day. In this stage of the business, Mr. John Bradford, of Boston, steps in and desires to sell this ship Hope and her cargo, and claims a commission on some others, against which I have either finished or commenced prosecutions.

I will take the liberty to fairly state his pretensions: He received a private letter, about six weeks since, from Mr. Hancock, informing him that, through his friendship, he was appointed Agent for all prizes brought into this Colony, and that his commission should be forwarded as soon as might be, and advising him, when he should receive it, to make known his appointment in the publick newspapers. This letter Mr. Bradford communicated to me. As I have received no intimation of this from your Excellency, who appointed me an Agent, nor from any person under the authority of Congress, and as Mr. Bradford's commission has not arrived, and perhaps never may, I thought it my duty, not only to myself, but to your Excellency and the Continent, to continue acting in that capacity as far as respected those vessels that had come into my hands; those that have been since brought in, to avoid any colour of dispute, I have not meddled with. Under these circumstances, I flatter myself my conduct will receive the approbation of your Excellency and the Congress. And if your Excellency shall judge it expedient, a line from the Marine Committee of Congress may settle this matter, as in justice it ought to be, which is all I wish. Mr. Bradford has lately received a letter from the Marine Committee, which considers him as Agent respecting some matters yet to be done. This, with Mr. Hancock's letter, is all that give him any authority.

I hope I shall be excused for thus troubling you. I was afraid the publick service would suffer by an altercation between us and the captors. I shall esteem it a favour if your Excellency will give directions to have the military stores taken in the ship Hope appraised, in order that the captors may have their shares, as they are greatly in want of it, many of them.

I am, with the utmost respect, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,
JONATHAN GLOVER.

To His Excellency General Washington, Esq., Commander-in-Chief, in New-York.

Exeter, New-Hampshire, July 20, 1776.

Tuesday last Mr. Blunt, who went to the Northern Army, with a number of letters, returned to this town. He left Crown-Point the 10th instant, to which place the American Army had retreated, with all their artillery, baggage, sick, &c., and proposed to make a stand at Ticonderoga, fifteen miles this side; that the Ministerial Army had got down to St. John's, (one hundred and twenty miles from Crown-Point.) which consists, as is said, of only five or six thousand Regulars, but how many Canadians and Indians is very uncertain. From this body they lately sent a few Indians, and took the miller at Crown-Point, and carried him to St. John's, who has not since returned. This is the first visit they have dared to make since the retreat of the American Army.

An express passed through Portsmouth last Thursday, who brought an account that Captain Mowat, in the Canoeaux, had taken all the fishing-boats which lay within his reach, to the number of twenty sail, at the eastward of Casco-Bay. It is supposed he has carried them to Halifax.

RECOMMENDATION TO THE COMMITTEE OF POPLIN RESPECTING ZACCHEUS CLOUGH.

Colony of New-Hampshire, in Committee of Safety, }
July 20, 1776. }

Upon considering the complaint of Zaccheus Clough, Esquire, of Poplin, representing that he hath been much injured in his character by designing persons, who (he says) have falsely insinuated to the publick that he converted to his own use a Donation with which he was intrusted by the Parish of said Poplin to deliver persons properly appointed to receive the same, for the use of the Poor of Boston, suffering by the Port Bill:

The Committee recommend that the Committee of said Poplin would call in to their aid the Committees of two of the nearest Towns or Parishes to them, jointly to sit and hear all accusations against said Clough, on the aforesaid affair, and also his defence thereon, giving notice of the time and place of meeting, sufficient for his accusers to be present; and, after impartially hearing the matter, to declare their opinion thereon, that all concerned may be satisfied of the truth of the premises. M. WEARE, Chairman.

JOHN BELLOWS TO MESHECH WEARE.

Walpole, July 20, 1776.

SIR: Lieutenant Sargents hath returned from Crown-Point, in order to collect some soldiers who deserted at the time when Major Butterfield resigned himself and men to our foes, and also to obtain a copy of the muster-rolls for the four companies which I mustered. As the soldiers can draw no pay until the rolls are exhibited to the Paymaster, I desire you would send the copies by Mr. Trott, because Sargents must return as soon as possible.

I am, your humble servant,

JOHN BELLOWS.

COLONEL WAIT TO COLONEL HURD.

Onion River, July 20, 1776.

SIR: I received yours of the 14th instant. I am at present at this place with two hundred men; and when ordered here, I expected to have been stationed here till fall of the year, and to have built some stockades from this to Cohos; but it seems it is otherwise ordered. I am ordered to join the Army again, which I expect to do in five or six days, but Colonel Warner, of the Green-Mountains, is ordered to raise three hundred men immediately, to proceed to these frontiers and to guard the same, but the particulars of his orders I know not. Have sent a man from hence to know whether he is to relieve me or not.

I applied to General Sullivan for this station, as soon as the Army retreated, that I might be a safeguard to our frontiers, which was readily granted; but he is now superseded by General Gates, and the scene is now changed; and what will be done next, I know not; but it seems this must be our unhappy fate, the change of command so often, that it keeps our Army in continual confusion.

You must spare a little by way of complaint. This Northern Army has been treated with most cruel neglect, or we might have been in possession of Quebeck. Sir, when I arrived there, I found Generals without men, and a small Artillery without supplies, and Commissaries without provisions, Paymasters without money, and Quartermasters without stores, and Physicians without medicines, and the small-pox very brief in our Army: which has been our destruction. But must beg you will excuse me, and subscribe myself your humble servant,

JOSEPH WAIT.

To John Hurd, Esq.

BENJAMIN GILES TO MESHECH WEARE.

Charlestown, No. IV., July 20, 1776.

HONoured SIR: Would inform you I pursued, agreeable to instructions to be in readiness to give the troops a quick pass from Charlestown, arriving here last Sabbath, &c. I need not write the particulars of my conduct, or the cause of purchasing stores. Mr. Trott can inform, as he is particularly knowing to my conduct, both before and after Captain Farnsworth came to No. 4, whose orders are to purchase beef, and that only for the troops. A difficulty I am afraid will arise: his orders are to give provisions to a complete company only; and as I suppose it is next to impossible for complete companies to march without being notified, I thought it my duty to advertise you, sir, that, if possible, the Captains of each company may have notice thereof. Billeting, mileage, and some other allowances, are all to be paid at Ticonderoga, the money being sent forward. Captain Farnsworth came here last Thursday, and is gone off this morning. According to direction, I have dismissed the business, but have some pork on hand, can't say how much; Mr. Trott will inform you of the circumstance. I sent him to Hadley, to purchase pork. I paid his expenses, being 17s. 9d., and have charged it. Would be glad of further directions respecting what I have taken in.

I rest, sir, your real friend and very humble servant,

BENJ. GILES.

To the Hon. Meshech Weare, Esq.

P. S. I should have written in a different manner, but Mr. Trott can inform you of every particular.

P. S. I borrowed forty-four dollars, which I have paid for wheat and pork. Would be glad if it can be sent by Mr. Trott. I promised to pay it directly. In hurry, Mr. Trott is waiting.

BENJ. GILES.

Providence, July 20, 1776.

A gentleman from No. 4 informs, that a Missionary arrived there a few days since from the Indian country, and brought advices that the Chiefs of the Six Nations, in a grand council, had determined to call in their young men immediately, and to remain neuter during the present conflict between Great Britain and the American States.

COLONEL HURD TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Haverhill, July 20, 1776.

SIR: Yesterday afternoon came in here to Cohos, a Frenchman from the river St. Francois, with whom and the Committees of Haverhill and Newbury, I spent the evening till late, to obtain what intelligence we could. He tells us that he has been out from thence nineteen days, and undergone great hardship on his journey, having mistook his path from the head of St. Francois to this river; that there were seventy-two ships arrived at Quebeck, and the Ministerial Army made up ten thousand British and Canadians, under General Carleton. He knows nothing of Burgoyne; the Indians of St. Francois and Caughnawaga remain neuter, and refuse to take up arms on either side. He does not think there are any Indians out upon the scout on this quarter. He fled, as he says, for fear of his life, having been a Captain in the Continental service, at the Parish of Three Rivers, and advanced considerable effects for our Army. He is desirous of being conveyed to the General and to the Continental Congress. His appearance to me is open and honest, though some of our people are jealous of him. Keep a guard to watch the house where he lodges, and intend to send him over to Crown-Point to the commanding officer there.

We are anxious for Colonel Bayley's return, to know in what manner the men designed for our protection are to be raised; and we shall look for him this evening, so that I hope I shall have the pleasure of some advices.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your most humble servant,

J. HURD.

To the Hon. Colonel Weare.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM CHARLESTOWN, SOUTH-CAROLINA, DATED JULY 21, 1776.

You are undoubtedly informed before this, that that detestable villain, Steuart, has prevailed upon the Cherokees to take up the hatchet against our countrymen. This, however, does not in the least intimidate us. Our people march forth against the Savages with all the alacrity and cheerfulness you can conceive, and with a full determined resolution to extirpate the whole tribe. The damage done to us by them is yet trifling. A number of the heads of the Tories in this Province, when they heard of the breaking out of the Indians, wrote to our Governour, and told him that they never dreamt the King would descend to such low and diabolical designs; that they were now willing to do everything in their power to assist their brethren in America. These are men of influence on the frontiers, and will be very useful against the Indians.

In a little brush with the Indians the other day, our people were successful; killed, wounded, and took prisoners, a considerable number. Colonel McIntosh, of Georgia, with a party of his regiment, went out a few days ago to reconnoitre the situation of the two young Wrights, who are posted on St. Mary's River, which separates Florida from Georgia. When he came within two miles of their fort, he was fired on from an outpost of theirs; our Colonel returned the fire, killed one, and took nine prisoners; upon which the fort fired an alarm gun. The man-of-war below hearing this, immediately detached a barge with a Lieutenant and nine men; all these the Colonel thought proper to seize upon. In the brig lately taken here with Highlanders, on board was found about £600 sterling worth of goods.

Williamsburgh, Virginia, August 10, 1776.

A correspondent has favoured us with extracts of letters from officers of rank in Fincastle, from which we learn, that on Sunday, the 21st of July, a large party of Indians attacked the Watauga Fort, in which were one hundred and fifty men. They fired on a great number of women, who went out at daybreak to milk their cows, and chased them into the fort, but providentially did not kill one of them. They fired briskly on the fort till eight o'clock, but without effect, and then retired, with considerable loss, as was supposed from the quantity of blood found; but they returned to the attack, and were besieging the fort six days after, as a messenger, who was slipped out, informed our men on Holstein. A detachment was sent to relieve the fort, and it was expected they would do so on Monday, the 29th. A party of one hundred men of the Militia fell in with a party of forty Cherokees, who were fifty miles on this side the Island, at one of the deserted plantations, and killed five, took one prisoner, and twenty guns. It is worthy of our observation, that in these several skirmishes with the Indians, in all of which we did more execution than in some of the principal actions of the last war, we lost not a man. No one can reflect on this, and many other circumstances which have attended the present war with the British tyrant, without acknowledging that he sees evident proofs of the Divine interposition in our favour.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GENERAL DENT.

[No. 65.]

Annapolis, July 21, 1776.

SIR: Your favours of the 19th and 20th instant are before us. We approve of your ordering an additional number of Militia from Colonel Hawkins's battalion, and don't doubt your doing everything necessary to repel the invaders.

We have ordered Major Price down, with three field-pieces and one nine-pounder, with Captain Thomas's Independent company, which we rest satisfied are arrived with you by this time. These will enable the Major and you to speak more properly with the row-galley than you hitherto could do.

You apprehend the enemy are moving up the river: it is not improbable but they may be. You will (as you have done) continue to watch their motions, and, from time to time, inform us. We wish to be acquainted how many and what sort of deserters have come over—whether they be soldiers, sailors, Tories, or prisoners taken by them.

Wishing you all success, we are, &c.

To Brigadier-General Dent.

P. S. Please to say in your next how Captain Beall may be.

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. I.

JAMES TILGHMAN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Sunday morning, July 21, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Thomas, who was to have delivered you the enclosed, is now with me. The company is very anxious to be furnished with the arms which arrived at Chin-goteague, but I have informed Mr. Thomas of the resolution of the Council as to them. It will be very difficult, if not impossible, to procure a sufficient quantity of guns here, the Militia having but few, and will not part with them, unless to the company which is to defend Kent-Island. They, I believe, will soon be supplied, from what I can learn. I cannot, however, speak with certainty.

I shall meet the Committee next Thursday, and shall then have an opportunity of forming some judgment myself of the practicability of arming them. Pray write me if anything extraordinary.

I am your obedient humble servant, JA. TILGHMAN.
To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

B. JOHNSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Fredericktown, July 21, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Yesterday I received part of Captain Good's company. Lieutenant Ghislen now waits on you for commissions and orders. Captain Good informed me that it will be out of his power to procure arms unless you will be pleased to furnish him with money, and then he can get both arms and blankets. I submit it to your consideration whether it would not be best. I believe Captain Good to be a man of honour. I know him to be a man of property, and will, I dare say, lay the money out to the advantage of the publick.

Some villain or other has propagated through this County that Colonel Beatty and myself have destroyed the recommendation of Field-Officers by the Committee, and the several petitions of the people for a further representation. I hope you will not think me troublesome, when I request the favour of you to inform me by letter, that they are in your possession, by Mr. Ghislen. I hope to receive your answer.

I am, gentlemen, with respect, your obedient servant,
B. JOHNSON.

To the Council of Safety of Maryland, at Annapolis.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO COLONEL HASLETT.

Philadelphia, Sunday morning, July 21, 1776.

SIR: In consequence of a resolution of Congress passed yesterday evening, I am to direct you, immediately and without loss of time after the receipt of this, to march with the troops under your command to Philadelphia, there to do duty until the further orders of Congress. If the company ordered to Lewistown be still there, you are not to include that company in your marching orders for Philadelphia. On your arrival here, you will station your troops in the barracks.

I am, with respect, sir, your most obedient servant,
JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Colonel Haslett, or Officer commanding the Battalion of Continental Troops in the Delaware Government.

DR. FRANKLIN TO LORD HOWE.

Philadelphia, July 21, 1776.

MY LORD: I received safe the letters your Lordship so kindly forwarded to me, and beg you to accept my thanks.

The official despatches to which you refer me contain nothing more than what we had seen in the act of Parliament, viz: "offers of pardon upon submission;" which I was sorry to find, as it must give your Lordship pain to be sent so far on so hopeless a business.

Directing pardons to be offered to the Colonies, who are the very parties injured, expresses, indeed, that opinion of our ignorance, baseness, and insensibility, which your uninformed and proud nation has long been pleased to entertain of us; but it can have no other effect than that of increasing our resentments. It is impossible we should think of submission to a Government that has, with the most wanton barbarity and cruelty, burned our defenceless towns in the midst of winter, excited the savages to massacre our peaceful farmers, instigated our slaves to murder their masters, and is even now bringing foreign mercenaries to deluge our set-lements with blood. These atrocious injuries have extinguished every spark of affection for that parent country we once held so dear. But were it possible for us to forget and forgive them, it is not possible for you (I mean the British nation) to forgive the people you have so heavily injured. You can never confide again in those as fellow-subjects, and permit them to enjoy equal freedom, to whom you know you have given such just causes of lasting enmity; and this must impel you, were we again under your Government, to endeavour the breaking our spirit by the severest tyranny, and obstructing, by every means in your power, our growing strength and prosperity.

But your Lordship mentions "the King's paternal solicitude for promoting the establishment of lasting peace and union with the Colonies." If by peace is here meant a peace to be entered into by distinct States now at war, and his Majesty has given your Lordship powers to treat with us of such a peace, I may venture to say, though without authority, that I think a treaty for that purpose not quite impracticable before we enter into foreign alliances. But I am persuaded you have no such powers. Your nation, though, by punishing those American Governours who have fomented the discord, rebuilding our burnt towns, and repairing, as far as possible, the mischiefs done us, might recover a great share of our regard, and the greatest share of our growing commerce, with all the advantages of that additional strength to be derived from a friendship with us; yet I know too well her abounding pride and deficient wisdom to believe she will ever take such salutary measures. Her fondness for conquest as a warlike nation; her lust of dominion as an ambitious one; and her thirst for a gainful monopoly as a commercial one, (none of them legitimate causes of war,) will join to hide from her eyes every view of her true interest, and continually goad her on in these ruinous distant expeditions, so destructive both of lives and of treasure, that they must prove as pernicious to her in the end as the Croisades formerly were to most of the nations of Europe.

I have not the vanity, my Lord, to think of intimidating, by thus predicting the effects of this war; for I know it will in England have the fate of all my former predictions—not to be believed till the event shall verify it.

Long did I endeavour, with unfeigned and unwearied zeal, to preserve from breaking that fine and noble porcelain vase—the British empire; for I knew, that being once broken, the separate parts could not retain even their share of the strength and value that existed in the whole, and that a perfect reunion of those parts could scarce ever be hoped for. Your Lordship may possibly remember the tears of joy that wetted my cheek, when, at your good sister's in London, you once gave me expectations that a reconciliation might soon take place. I had the misfortune to find these expectations disappointed, and to be treated as the cause of the mischief I was labouring to prevent. My consolation under that groundless and malevolent treatment was, that I retained the friendship of many wise and good men in that country, and, among the rest, some share in the regard of Lord Howe.

The well-founded esteem and, permit me to say, affection which I shall always have for your Lordship, make it painful to me to see you engaged in conducting a war, the great ground of which (as described in your letter) is "the necessity of preventing the American trade from passing into foreign channels." To me it seems that neither the obtaining or retaining any trade, how valuable soever, is an object for which men may justly spill each other's blood; that the true and sure means of extending and securing commerce are the goodness and cheapness of commodities; and that the profits of no trade can ever be equal to the expense of compelling it, and holding it by fleets and armies. I consider this war against us, therefore, as both unjust and unwise; and I am persuaded that cool and dispassionate posterity will condemn to infamy those who advised it.

I know your great motive in coming hither was the hope of being instrumental in a reconciliation; and I believe, when you find that to be impossible, on any terms given you to propose, you will then relinquish so odious a command, and return to a more honourable private station.

With the greatest and most sincere respect, I have the honour to be, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient humble servant,

B. FRANKLIN.

To the Right Honourable Lord Viscount Howe.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read July 23, 1776, and referred to the Board of War.]

New-York, July 21, 1776.

SIR: I have just time to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 19th. The interesting intelligence of the success of our arms in the Southern Department gives me the highest satisfaction. Permit me to join my joy in the congratulation of Congress upon the event. To-morrow, I will write more fully.

Two o'clock, p. m.—I this moment had report made me, that ten ships were seen in the offing coming in—I suppose part of Admiral Howe's fleet.

I have the honour to be, with sentiments of the greatest respect, sir, your most obedient,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO SAMUEL TUCKER.

New-York, July 21, 1776.

SIR: As we have the strongest reason to believe the period is just at hand, or will soon be, when we shall have the most pressing occasions for troops successfully to oppose and defeat the formidable army we expect against us, I confess I feel myself not a little concerned for the slow manner in which the levies come in that were required by Congress, and which will be essential to counteract the efforts of our enemies.

Not many more than twelve hundred of the quota to be furnished by your State are yet arrived; and I am apt to conclude that it will be a long time before the whole can be made up by voluntary enlistments. As the succour they are meant to afford, by the delay that may attend that mode of raising them, may be too late, and after an important stroke has been given us, I submit it to your consideration whether it may not be prudent to devise some other way by which they may be raised, and their aid immediately had.

Voluntary enlistments, without doubt, are preferable to any other mode, if they could be effected in time, and what I would wish for. But as there is too much reason to fear they cannot, from the small progress already made, the critical situation of our affairs requires that other means should be used; and in full confidence that nothing will be omitted on the part of your honourable body to forward the quota required of them by Congress, I am, with great respect, your and their most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Samuel Tucker, Esq.

P. S. Ten sail of ships are just discovered in the offing, below Sandy Hook. What they are I know not, as yet.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO ROBERT YATES AND OTHERS.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 21, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Yours of the 18th instant I duly received, and note the contents, and am very sorry to hear the forts in the Highlands are in so defenceless a situation. Through such variety of business, which calls my closest attention, it has been, and still is, impossible for me personally to reconnoitre all the different posts under my command; but was so sensible of the importance of the fortresses in the Highlands, that I ordered Lord Stirling to visit them, which he did early in the summer, and reported to me their situation at that time; and through his representations I continued two gentlemen in Continental pay, who were acting as Engineers, under orders from the authority of this State. I have repeatedly pressed Colonel Clinton to spare no pains to put them on the best footing possible; and, indeed, I had reason to suppose they were in tolerable order to receive the enemy. By the returns there appear to be six thirty-two-pounders, besides some nine, six, four, and three-pounders; and enclosed is a letter for Governour Trumbull, begging him to assist you all in his power. We were so short of Matrosses that I was necessitated to draught six hundred from the different battalions to join the Artillery in this place. The fourteen with Colonel Clinton, are of the old regiment, and experienced; to these he may add, by draughting a sufficient number of stout, active men, from the other corps under his command, and put them immediately to exercising the artillery. It is not in my power to reinforce those garrisons with more men, as but about five thousand of the new levies have yet arrived in camp, out of fifteen thousand ordered. I will this day send up Mr. Machin, a Lieutenant of the Train, who has just returned from overseeing the works at Boston. He is as proper a person as any I can send, being an ingenious, faithful hand, and one that has had considerable experience as an Engineer. I shall enjoin on him to attend closely to the business he is going to execute. Rest assured, gentlemen, that every assistance in my power shall be most cheerfully granted; and that I am, with esteem, yours, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Messrs. Yates, Jay, Livingston, Tappan, and Livingston, the Secret Committee of the New-York Convention, at Fort Montgomery.

[To the above was added the account of the battle of Sullivan's Island, Charlestown, South-Carolina.]

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL JAMES CLINTON.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 21, 1776.

SIR: The bearer, Lieutenant Machin, I have sent to act as an Engineer in the posts under your command, and at such other places as may be thought necessary. He is an ingenious man, and has given great satisfaction as an Engineer at Boston, from which he has just returned.

I have received from the Secret Committee a representation of your want of Matrosses, which can be supplied in no other way but by draughting those that are proper from other corps, and exercising them to the artillery; it is what we have been obliged to do here. The men thus draughted may be considered as remaining with their own regiments, and only doing duty with the Train on the present occasion.

I am, sir, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Colonel Clinton, 3d N. Y., Fort Montgomery.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO LIEUTENANT MACHIN.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 21, 1776.

SIR: You are, without delay, to proceed for Fort Montgomery or Constitution, in the Highlands, on Hudson's River, and there put yourself under the command of Colonel James Clinton, or the Commanding Officer there, to act as Engineer in completing such works as are or may be laid out for the defence of the river and adjacent defiles on each side of the river. Your being steady and giving close attention to this business is necessary. It is, therefore, expected and required of you that you personally attend where you may be most wanted to forward the works. In case of an attack from the enemy, or in any engagement with them, you are to join the Train of Artillery on that station, and act according to your office.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Lieutenant Machin, of Artillery.

COMMISSARY TRUMBULL TO JAMES BOWDOIN.

New-York, July 21, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: Your favour of the 19th instant, signed in the name and behalf of the Council of Massachusetts-Bay, is this day delivered me. I received that referred to from Mr. President Powell, and answered it per post the next day. A person is now at No. 4, and everything in readiness to receive and forward the troops from New-England, going to Crown-Point, as fast as they arrive there, agreeable to your expectations and my engagements.

I most sincerely congratulate you on the success of General Lee and his troops in South-Carolina, the particulars of which will undoubtedly be transmitted to you by General Washington, by your express. It appears they are disabled from further action this season.

I am, with the greatest esteem and respect, your Honours' and the Council's most obedient and humble servant,

JOS. TRUMBULL.

To the Honourable James Bowdoin, Esq., President of the Council of Massachusetts-Bay.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, July 21, 1776, two o'clock.

SIR: Colonel Hand reports seven large ships are coming up from the Hook to the Narrows.

A negro belonging to one Strickler, at Gravesend, was taken prisoner (as he says) last Sunday at Coney-Island. Yesterday he made his escape, and was taken prisoner by the rifle-guard. He reports eight hundred negroes collected on Staten-Island, this day to be formed into a regiment.

I am your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,
N. GREENE.

To His Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters, New-York.

ROBERT YATES TO GENERAL GATES.

Poughkeepsie, July 21, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed copy of some late resolutions of the Convention of the State of New-York will inform you that we are a Committee of that body, and charged with the execution of the business mentioned in them. As the chain intended to obstruct the navigation of the river Sorel cannot now be applied to that use, and will serve to prevent the enemy's ships from going beyond the forts on Hudson's River, we must beg the favour of you to send the whole, or such parts of it as may expeditiously be had, to Poughkeepsie, and consign it to Messrs. Van Zandt, Lawrence, and Tudor, with the utmost despatch. Be pleased to inform those gentlemen of the length of such part of the chain you can send, in order that they may direct the deficiency to be supplied.

We shall by this opportunity request of the Committee of Albany immediately to furnish us with one hundred and fifty sawed logs of the largest size, to support the chain, and we flatter ourselves that your attention and influence will be extended to both these objects.

We have the honour to be, sir, with the greatest esteem and respect, your most obedient and humble servant.

By order of the Committee:

ROBERT YATES, Chairman.

In Convention of the Representatives of the State of }
New-York, July 16, 1776. }

Resolved, unanimously, That a Secret Committee be appointed to devise and carry into execution such measures as to them shall appear most effectual for obstructing the Channel of Hudson's River, or annoying the enemy's Ships in their navigation up the said River, and that this Convention pledge themselves for defraying the charges incident thereon.

And Resolved and Ordered, That Mr. Jay, Mr. Robert Yates, Major Tappen, Mr. Robert R. Livingston, Mr. Gilbert Livingston, and Mr. Paulding, be the said Committee.

A true extract from the Minutes:

ROBERT YATES,
Chairman to the Secret Committee.

WILLIAM GILLILAND TO GENERAL GATES.

Crown-Point, July 21, 1776.

SIR: I am very sorry to be a complainant against one of my own, one of my first settlers on Lake Champlain; but his threatenings have been so frequent and so severe against the Continental Officers, and against me, for the part I have taken on their side, that it has been thought proper to confine him. I have just now heard, with much astonishment, that he is gone from hence to Ticonderoga, under the patronage of Major Udney Hay. Should he be released without inquiry, adieu to American or to political virtue. I shall stand forth as his prosecutor, and think I have sufficient evidence to support me; and am, with the most profound respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

WILLIAM GILLILAND.

N. B. The prisoner's name is George Belton.

COLONEL HARTLEY TO GENERAL GATES.

Crown-Point, July 21, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: As soon as I arrived here yesterday evening, I sent off the goods, &c., wanted for the Indians. I presume they arrived at Ticonderoga last night. I also yesterday evening sent an officer and seven men after Brown, but he is gone. Unless he is at Ticonderoga, he is fled to the enemy. However, I have sent in search of him this morning again; but have no prospect of success.

There is no news yet from down the Lake. I wish I could get a couple of canoes from Head-Quarters, as we have not one here. We want also some cordage for ropes to the sails of the batteaus.

I have laid out my encampment near the Grenadier-Redoubt. The sick I will keep in the long store-house. From the numerous detachments and sickness, I have not two hundred men now here fit for duty. Part of these are daily employed in the boats.

Mr. Hops, a young gentleman from York, in Pennsylvania, was wounded in the action at Trois Rivières, where he behaved with the utmost bravery. He stood far back in point of seniority in the regiment, so that I could have no prospect of advancing him soon, without giving disgust. He was recommended to General Arnold, and was commissioned as a Lieutenant of Marines on board the large schooner. He was to have twenty-five men. We would willingly furnish the whole number from our regiment, were it not for the losses and distresses we have suffered. At present, from our low state, it would be almost impracticable. There is not one day of intermission scarcely between one day and another. I would propose that good men should be draughted from the Army as marines, when we shall cheerfully afford our proportion.

The vessel will be ready to sail in a few days. I would wish that you would be pleased to take such steps as to have him the complement of twenty-five marines. He is a gentleman of the greatest worth, and will prove himself deserving of his office.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most humble servant,

THOMAS HARTLEY.

P. S. Brown is taken just now. I send him with Lieutenant Hops. I send also all the oars that are now ready. I imagine it must have been a bad place for timber where the oar-makers were first sent. They are changing their ground.

T. H.

COLONEL HARTLEY TO GENERAL ARNOLD.

Crown-Point, July 21, 1776, 8 o'clock, P. M.

HONOURED SIR: I just now received your favour of this day. A few minutes before it came to hand, eight batteaus, with forty-four pieces of timber, under Captain Polliphemus, arrived from the mouth of Onion River. In the late storm, the raft broke, and the timber was scattered on the sands. They say there was one hundred and twenty pieces in the whole. Seventy-four men were employed in bringing up these eight boats, and I am told the timber is but of a very indifferent quality, and that much better can be had nearer Head-Quarters. The men on this party have experienced the greatest fatigue. They have been three weeks gone, and if we might calculate on the future by what is past, it would require three weeks for two hundred and ten men to bring up the rest of the timber. There are also boards collecting there. It is said they bring them fourteen miles overland. This is certainly very bad policy, when we can procure boards from other saw-mills, without any land-carriage. The saw-mill by this place could be put in order in five or six days by four or five carpenters and as many labourers. If the carpenters of our regiment now at Ticonderoga are sent down, with proper tools, it shall be done immediately.

Our regiment is now very weak from sickness and the numerous detachments that have gone from it; so that ordering a considerable party from it, would prevent us keeping the necessary guards. We have not one hundred and seventy fit for duty on the spot. Some are coming in daily, and others are recovering their health.

We have no smith nor tools here. If the smiths of our regiment were sent here from Ticonderoga, I would make search for tools, though I much doubt if any good ones can be had, notwithstanding what Mr. Gilliland said. It will, I apprehend, be absolutely necessary to have some smiths here.

Captain Wilson was at Onion River with his party four days ago. He was within a few hours of the party of five which you sent off a few days before, and intended to overtake it, which no doubt he effected, as he had a fair wind; so that, from the whole, you have a right to expect success from our friends. It is said still, that the enemy are cutting timber about the Isle-aux-Noix. If that be the case, we shall soon know.

There is, it seems, a Tory, who has a saw-mill about fifteen miles below the mouth of Onion River. He may, perhaps, supply the enemy, or do the Army here an injury.

I enclose you a note which I have just received. If a party is to be sent down the Lake, Major Dunlop, who was down with me, would be a very proper person to command it. We shall be ready to add our proportion to those who come from Ticonderoga from the main Army.

I would submit, whether a quantity more than sufficient for this regiment in provisions should not be here, to supply any parties who may accidentally stand in need. One Mr. Nicholl I have appointed, to take care and act for the regiment. He would be proper to do the other business, and I would be accountable for his conduct.

I have collected the above facts, and I make no doubt such steps will be taken as the exigency of affairs requires.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most humble servant,

THOMAS HARTLEY.

P. S. The eight boats with timber will be up to-morrow at Ticonderoga. Captain Hay is gone up. Quere: Would he not be very proper to go down the Lake?

S. METCALF TO COLONEL JACOB BAYLEY.

Prattsburgh, July 21, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I am sorry I had not the pleasure of seeing Mr. Witherspoon, &c., &c. The bearers hereof are four Canadian officers, late of Colonel James Livingston's regiment, who inform me that the forces in Canada are no ways equal to what they were at first reported; and that General Carleton has miscarried in the plan he had laid to make himself master of this Lake, by drawing three vessels, which had been previously built for the purpose, over sand, past the rapids of Chambly, they being entirely broke to pieces in the attempt, and now totally abandoned; so that General Sullivan will undoubtedly remain master of this country for the season at least, he having fortified with an intrenchment and cannon. Point-au-Fer, on the north end of the Lake, where stands a brick house, commonly called the White-House, is a very advantageous situation, as it commands the navigation towards St. John's, and is formed into a kind of an island, by a deep morass that runs behind it from one bay to the other. I having no boat to assist these people with, who are on their way to Albany, they were constrained to go this road; and as they speak very little English, you had better give them a pass to Albany.

I am, dear sir, your friend and obedient humble servant,
S. METCALF.

COLONEL A. WILLIAMSON TO W. H. DRAYTON.

Camp at Baker's Creek, South-Carolina, }
July 22, 1776. }

DEAR SIR: Your favour of the 12th instant is now before me, giving an account of the agreeable news of your having beat the British fleet. I shall try my utmost endeavours to follow your example, and beat the Cherokees, of whose treachery and faithless behaviour you are well acquainted.

I am now encamped here with about seven hundred effective men from this regiment, which, with one hundred and thirty who do duty in the different forts, you will perceive have turned out pretty well. My numbers would soon increase if I had arms. If any can be spared from Charlestown, you can never do this part of the country a greater service than by using your endeavours to have them immediately sent here.

Captain Tutt's and Prince's companies of Riflemen have just now joined me; they consist of ninety-three effective men; and to-morrow Colonel Williams (who has been at least fourteen days contriving a mode to cross Saluda River) will also join me with about two hundred men. Captain Hammond marched off with a detachment of one hundred picked men on Friday morning for Pearis's house, where, I am informed, a party of the enemy have been skulking about these some days past. I expect hourly to hear from him, and some agreeable news. He has my orders, if he can conveniently join Colonels Thomas and Neel, to act in concert with them, and proceed directly into the nation by Estatoe, while I penetrate by way of Seneca and the Sugar town. Thomas has acted in every respect agreeable to his declaration when at his house. I have written and sent him express upon express to no purpose; it is really disagreeable to have any connexion with such men; he has not written me a line since the Indians first commenced hostilities. Lieutenant-Colonel Polk, of Neel's regiment, with three hundred men well armed, has joined Thomas; and I am told by Captain Purves, who I sent on purpose to see his strength, and marked out a plan to act in conjunction with them, that Polk is eager to join me; it is agreeable to his sentiments communicated by letter to me lately. Judge, then, what feelings such a man must be possessed of, who, in the place of hastening to save and revenge his country, can content himself with doing nothing.

Robert Cunningham and Pearis came to my camp; the former, on his arrival, declared himself our fast friend, and that he came to stand and fall with us. I was sorry I could not show him the countenance I could have wished, owing to the people being so much exasperated at the behaviour of Hugh Brown and others, who have lately joined the Indians against us, thirteen of whom were taken prisoners a few days ago, and sent to Ninety-six Jail, four of whom were painted as Indians. I have no doubt of Cunningham proving true to his declaration; but, at present, it would be improper to confer any publick trust on him. Mr. Salvador has been with me since my first taking the field. I showed him your postscript; he thinks of making the campaign to the nation. I understood last night the Indians struck at North-Carolina and Virginia the very day they commenced hostilities against our frontiers. If these two Colonies join heartily with us, I hope soon to have the pleasure of congratulating you of a happy issue being put to this expedition, and reduce the savages to such a state as to wish they had never broken their faith with us.

I am, with much regard, dear sir, your most humble servant,

A. WILLIAMSON.

To the Hon. William Henry Drayton, Charlestown.

GENERAL H. CLINTON TO GENERAL LEE.

Off Charlestown Bar, July 22, 1776.

SIR: On my return to the fleet I found a letter from you by a flag of truce, with some refreshments you were pleased to send me; in return for which I must beg your acceptance of a cask of porter and some English cheese.

I have made inquiries concerning the person mentioned in your letter, who, it seems, has occasioned this correspondence between us, but can learn nothing further about him, than that he is not a master of a vessel, as he has represented himself to you. And you will have been already informed by Mr. Byrd, that Ethan Allen, and those that were with him, are gone to the northward.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

H. CLINTON.

To Charles Lee, Esq., Major-General in the service of his Polish Majesty.

PITTSYLVANIA COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Committee held for the County of Pittsylvania, at the Court-House, the 22d day of July, 1776:

Present, the Chairman, and a majority of the Members. This Committee being informed that George Herndon, George Murdoch, John Mack, Samuel Callan, Zachariah Smeed, William Mitchell, and Archibald Smith, are suspected to be enemies to the rights and liberties of America, they having appeared before this Committee agreeable to citation, refused to take the oath prescribed by the General Convention: Whereupon, it is Ordered, That the Clerk do transmit a copy of these proceedings to Mr. Alexander Purdie, that the same may be inserted in his Gazette.

Extract from the Minutes:

WILLIAM TODD, Clerk.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER RECEIVED IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED JULY 22, 1776.

On Sunday last I was informed that Lord Dunmore was landing his troops on Thacker Washington's plantation, a little below Hooe's Ferry. About twelve o'clock the same night, the Major of the County came express to let me know that the fleet was then at Marlborough, a few miles above Boyd's Hole. The alarm was soon spread, and in a very little time the shores were covered with men. I went over early yesterday, and discovered four ships and three tenders. They appeared, as near as I can guess, to be somewhere about Dumfries. The remainder we supposed to be below, either coming up or attempting to land. Some few of us then pushed down the river, but found the Militia dispersing just before we got to Boyd's Hole. They had received information that the balance of the fleet was at anchor near the mouth of the river. This morning early, we returned up Potomack River, and saw only three ships and two tenders; and hearing very distinctly at the same time a heavy cannonade at or near Alexandria, we concluded the other ship and tender had made the town a visit, where they will certainly meet with a warm reception. As yet we have no account. I shall proceed to-morrow morning up the river Potomack, and continue there till the fleet goes down.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM DUMFRIES, VIRGINIA.

On Monday, July 22, the Roebuck, Mercury, Otter, and an armed ship, came up Potomack, and anchored about two miles below Dumfries, where the river is yet quite fresh. On Tuesday, about twelve o'clock, they sent off two tenders, a gondola covered, and eight boats, mostly large, and full of men, consisting of the remains of the Fourteenth Regiment, Marines, &c. They landed at William Brent's Esq.; where about sixty of the Stafford Militia were posted, without any cover. The gondola, drawing but sixteen inches water, run in close to the shore, and, with a nine-pounder and grape-shot, obliged the Militia to retreat, when about one hundred and fifty men landed and burnt the house, out-houses, hay-stacks, &c., and intended to have burnt Mr. Brent's fine merchant mill, and several other houses along shore; but on the Roebuck's observing that the Prince William Militia were on their march to Mr. Brent's, she hoisted a white flag, and their men immediately retreated, so that no further damage was done. The fleet having taken in fresh water, fell down the river the next day. I followed them to the Narrows, about thirty miles below this, and found they had done no other mischief. As I returned on Friday, I was informed that three white men and four negroes were found dead on the shore, two of the whites sewed up in hammocks and shot through the breast; they had fine Holland shirts, and are supposed to be of some distinction; and a gold-laced hat was found, with a bullet-hole through both sides of the crown. As the Riflemen had some fair shot at them, it is not doubted but several are killed. No damage was done on the side of the Militia.

GEN. THOMAS JOHNSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Fredericktown, July 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In conversation with Mr. Ringgold, as he had thought, he told me that General Dent was collecting the Militia below to attack Lord Dunmore. I am apprehensive they will want arms for the purpose, and that a good many of the men, notwithstanding their desire to go on the service, very reluctantly leave their own neighbourhoods, unhappily full of negroes, who might, it is likely on any misfortune to our Militia, become very dangerous. I have spoken with several here, and it seems to be a general sentiment that we ought to assist; and I believe, though our exertions are already as great as we can well make, that for a short expedition on this very interesting occasion, we might now collect a battalion, and borrow the arms which would be wanting. If you, who are acquainted with all circumstances, think it necessary to have men from hence, I shall most gladly execute any orders you may think proper to give for that purpose.

Mr. Ringgold gave me your letter for my brother. The furnace is not now in blast. I went out to him as soon as I got the letter. We have now by us a few pots of about the size you describe, a few kettles, and a few Dutch ovens, of much the same contents; the covers we could lay by, and of all sorts make up perhaps sixty or upwards. We shall have bails made to them, and (unless you have an opportunity of supplying the men with others more to your satisfaction) send them to Baltimore as soon as we can; the prices must depend on their size, and the whole shall be so reasonable as to give satisfaction. But if you can be better provided, please to advise of it. Mr. Butler is getting his furnace into blast with all diligence, and hopes to effect it within a fortnight. You may then have any number of pots and kettles that you please within a short time. We shall also attempt to cast such guns as are wanted, but cannot contract for them in all events, because the metal may not suit, though we have every reason to expect it will. If we succeed in making good guns, the publick may have them delivered at Baltimore at £40 a ton, the guns being proved at the works at the publick expense; the swivels at their convenience; but I should be glad if you would ascertain the length, and other descriptions, as the make of cannon carrying the same shot vary very much. If anybody else will contract for a certainty, he should be preferred, even at a greater price.

I am, gentlemen, with great respect, your very obedient servant,

THOMAS JOHNSON.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

JOHN SCOTT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Monday, nine o'clock.

GENTLEMEN: I take the liberty to inform you that I came to town early this morning, and beg to know at what hour to-day my attendance will be expected by the Council.

I am, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

JOHN SCOTT.

To the Honourable the President of the Council of Safety.

JAMES MURRAY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Cambridge, July 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: At our last May Convention, an order was drawn by your Board in my favour on the Treasurer of the Eastern-Shore, for £7 10s., to pay wagon hire, &c., for carrying arms, ammunition, &c., down to Snow-Hill, in Worcester County. This order I have carelessly lost. If in this you could furnish me with a duplicate of same date, should be obliged to you, or signify what necessary steps I must take by probate or certificate, and it shall be done. The President may remember something of my application for it. I am, with esteem, your obedient servant,

JAMES MURRAY.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

RICHARD DALLAM TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

July 22, 1776.

SIR: Since my last, I have had what guns I had proved by gentlemen appointed by the Committee of Observation, for which purpose they have passed twenty-three guns ready fitted. I have five more ready; and shall have as many more next week as will pay the sum I received; and unless you can raise the price to me, I must give over. By the parcel I have now made I shall be near £30 loser. Our Committee have given £4 for guns worse than mine. If you want any quantity of bayonets made, I will undertake to make a parcel at 10s. Please to let me know.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

RICHARD DALLAM.

To the Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer.

MATTHEW TILGHMAN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Talbot, July 22, 1776.

SIR: I must beg the favour of you to lay before the Council the enclosed petition. If I have not paid absolute obedience to their order, I hope they will impute it not to a disposition to dispute their authority, but to the real cause: the saving to the publick a considerable expense, or to myself a heavy and irreparable loss. If the Council consider the matter in the light in which I have endeavoured to place it, and which, in my opinion, is the true one, I am confident they will have no difficulty in granting my prayer. And I hope they will pay some attention to the hint of keeping an armed boat to ply for the security of this part of the Eastern-Shore. Be pleased to offer my petition immediately to the Board, and whatever may be their determination, I must beg the favour of you to transmit it to me by the bearer, who will wait.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

MAT. TILGHMAN.

To the Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq., Charles Carroll, or any other of the Members of the Council of Safety, in Annapolis.

THOMAS STONE AND WILLIAM PACA TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, July 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The five hundred dollars granted by Congress for raising the four German companies in our Province, have been paid into our hands, and retained by us for the purpose of exchanging it for our Maryland Convention money, and by this means to give our currency credit and circulation here. Had we not taken this measure, our emissions would have been useless here, and the commercial connexion between this and our Province would have been greatly, if not totally, obstructed. We had exchanged the whole sum with the merchants and shopkeepers, and we have advanced, as per account enclosed.

Mr. Hughes having obtained a large sum of Continental money, he exchanged with us as far as we had our Convention money in our hands. This gives us a fresh fund to keep up the credit of our money here. You will be pleased to advise us whether this measure of ours meets with your approbation; if not, we will remit the whole immediately to you.

Captain Stricker being appointed Lieutenant-Colonel of the German battalion, and being desirous to proceed immediately to Frederick County, to forward with all expedition the raising of the companies, we thought proper to advance him $1,520 of the sum appropriated for that purpose; and we also have taken the liberty of advancing Colonel Ware £15, and Major Gist £67 10s., which sums they request you will charge to their account.

We are, gentlemen, your obedient, humble servants,

T. STONE,

WM. PACA.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland, at Annapolis.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN PERKINS.

[No. 66.]

Annapolis, July 22, 1776.

SIR: The Council of Safety will fix upon some day not far distant to issue the several commissions for the officers belonging to the Flying-Camp, when you may depend upon you and your officers receiving yours. We have no muskets to supply your company with, or any other belonging to the Eastern-Shore battalion. It at present remains doubtful whether or not we shall, after all our endeavours, procure sufficient arms to arm the battalion to be stationed upon this Shore, in the stead of Colonel Smallwood's, which is marched to the northward. We expect to be supplied from Baltimore with knapsacks and haversacks, a part of which, when received, will be appropriated to the use of the Eastern-Shore battalion. At present we have no tents, nor are we possessed of the necessary materials to make them. When your company is equipped for marching, and any of the men at that time should prove non-effective, we think if others offer to supply their places, you may safely incorporate them in your company. We are, &c.

To Captain Perkins.

P. S. Orders are lodged with the Eastern-Shore Treasurer.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GENERAL HOOPER.

Annapolis, July 22, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of the 19th of July was this day handed to the Council of Safety; and agreeable to your requisition we have sent you enclosed an order upon the Eastern-Shore Treasurer for £300, to be applied to the pay and subsisting of the Militia within your district when called into service.

Your arrangement of the Militia meets with the entire approbation of this Board.

We have just received information that a part of Dunmore's squadron have moved from the mouth of St. Mary's River pretty far up the Potomack, with intent to wood and water, which they are in the greatest distress for the want of. When they obtain those articles, it is not improbable but they may think proper to visit you for fresh provision. Should that event happen, we have full confidence that every military exertion will be used to give them a proper reception. We are, &c.

To Brigadier-General Hooper.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COMMITTEE OF KENT COUNTY.

[No. 68.] Annapolis, July 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We received, by Captain Berry, the following articles, viz: fifty barrels of powder, four half-barrels ditto, fifteen chests of arms, two large and two small pieces of lead. We send him back again for another load, and the schooner Resolution is to follow her, to bring away everything she leaves. The money for wagon hire and other contingent expenses, we have ordered into the hands of Mr. Thomas Smyth. Sixty barrels, or six thousand weight, of powder, and lead in proportion, is to be left for the Eastern-Shore Magazine, and five barrels for your County. We want the swivels, blunderbusses, &c., to fit out a small vessel immediately. Should Elisha Winters have any guns, please let them come down by the schooner Resolution.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation of Kent County.

P. S. We expect the sixty barrels for the Eastern-Shore Magazine were left at Talbot Court-House.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THOMAS RINGGOLD AND OTHERS.

[No. 69.] Annapolis, July 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: You are hereby requested to deliver the barrel of gunpowder, and lead in proportion, lately lodged with you by the Council of Safety for the defence of Kent-Island, to Captain Thomas Barnes and Captain Thomas Ellicott, or their order, and take their receipt for the same.

Per order, &c.

To Messrs. Thomas Ringgold, Aquila Brown, and Doctor Jacob Ringgold.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL LEE.

Philadelphia, July 22, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 2d instant, containing the very agreeable intelligence of the success of the American Army under your command, I had the honour of receiving, and immediately laid the same before Congress.

It affords me the greatest pleasure to convey to you, by their order, the most valuable tribute which a free people can ever bestow, or a generous mind wish to receive—the just tribute of gratitude for rendering important services to an oppressed country.

The same enlarged mind and distinguished ardour in the cause of freedom, that taught you to despise the prejudices which have enslaved the bulk of mankind, when you nobly undertook the defence of American liberty, will entitle you to receive from posterity the fame due to such exalted and disinterested conduct.

That a handful of men, without the advantage of military experience, animated only with the sacred love of liberty, should repulse a powerful fleet and army, are circumstances that must excite gratitude and wonder in the friends of America, and prove a source of the most mortifying disappointment to our enemies.

Accept, therefore, sir, the thanks of the Independent States of America, unanimously declared by their Delegates to be due to you and the brave *Officers and Troops under your

*List of the Officers who were in FORT MOULTRIE on the 28th of JUNE, 1776.

William Moultrie, Colonel; Isaac Motte, Lieutenant-Colonel; Francis Marion, Major; Andrew Dellient, Adjutant.

Captains: Peter Horry, Nicholas Eveleigh, James McDonald, Isaac Harleston, Charles Mott, Francis Huger, Richard Ashby, Richard Shubrick, William Oliphant, John Blake.

Lieutenants: William Charnock, Thomas Lesseesne, Thomas Moultrie, Daniel Maryeck, Jacob Shubrick, Thomas Dunbar, William Moultrie, Jun., Thomas Hall, Henry Gray, Isaac Dubose, Richard B. Baker, Adrian Proveaux, Richard Mayson, Peter Gray, Basil Jackson, Gad Marion.

command, who repulsed with so much valour the attack that was made on the State of South-Carolina, on the 28th of June, by the Fleet and Army of his Britannick Majesty, and be pleased to communicate to them this distinguished mark of the approbation of their country.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Major-General Lee, Charleston, South-Carolina.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO COLONEL MOULTRIE.

Philadelphia, July 22, 1776.

SIR: I am extremely happy to have it in my power to transmit to you, by order of Congress, the thanks of the United States of America for your patriotick and spirited exertions in behalf of liberty and your country.

This success of our arms, attended with every circumstance that can add lustre to the characters of those who conducted it, will render your name forever estimable with every friend of America; and posterity will be astonished when they read, that on the 28th of June an inexperienced handful of men, under your command, repulsed with loss and disgrace a powerful fleet and army of veteran troops, headed by officers of the first rank and reputation. May you go on thus to merit and to receive the gratitude of your country; and as a reward for your military services, may your name be enrolled in the list of American worthies, on whom posterity will bestow the most grateful and unceasing applauses.

I have the honour to be, with great respect and esteem, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Colonel Moultrie, Charleston.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO COLONEL THOMPSON.

Philadelphia, July 22, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by Congress to convey to you the thanks of the United States of America, for the very distinguished and important part you acted on the 28th June, when the fleet and army of his Britannick Majesty were repulsed with so much valour in an attack made on the State of South-Carolina.

Your own feelings must have already taught you that there is a conscious pleasure arising from patriotism. Be pleased now, sir, to accept from your country, on whose behalf you have exerted your patriotism, that accession of pleasure which it is just you should receive from their grateful approbation of your conduct.

I have the honour to be, with great respect and esteem, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Colonel Thompson, Charlestown.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE GOVERNOUR OF VIRGINIA.

Philadelphia, July 22, 1776.

SIR: The Congress having directed General Lewis to order two battalions of Continental troops, in the State of Virginia, to march immediately to the Flying-Camp, in New-Jersey, under the command of General Mercer, I have it in charge to inform you, that should you have reason to apprehend an invasion of that State, and in consequence thereof call forth an equal number of Minute-men or Militia, the Congress have resolved, that while in service they shall be in Continental pay.

I do myself the honour of congratulating you on your appointment to preside over the Councils of the free and independent State of Virginia.

I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Hon. Patrick Henry, Governour of Virginia.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL LEWIS.

Philadelphia, July 22, 1776.

SIR: As it is impossible to ascertain the strength of our enemies, or the force destined for the attack of New-York, it is incumbent on us to be prepared to defend ourselves against any number of troops that may be ordered against that place. For this purpose, the Congress have judged it necessary to augment the Flying-Camp. I have it therefore in command to direct, that, immediately on the receipt of this, you order two battalions of the Continental troops in the State of Virginia to march with all possible despatch to the Flying-Camp in New-Jersey, under the command of General Mercer.

The state of our affairs, and the hourly expectation of the arrival of the foreign troops, render it absolutely necessary that the troops should be sent forward with the greatest expedition.

I am further to direct that you forward to South-Carolina the whole five tons of powder which were sent to you for the use of Virginia and South-Carolina.

Should the Governour and Council of Virginia have reason to apprehend an invasion of that State, and in consequence thereof call forth two battalions of Minute-Men or Militia, the Congress have agreed that they shall, while in service, be in Continental pay. I shall write by the present conveyance to the Governour and Council, to inform them of this resolution.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Brigadier-General Lewis, Virginia.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO PENNSYLVANIA CONVENTION.

Philadelphia, July 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: As it is impossible to ascertain the strength of our enemies, or the force destined for the attack of New-York, it is incumbent on us to be prepared to defend ourselves against any number of troops that may be ordered against that place. For this purpose, the Congress have come to a resolution to increase the Flying-Camp. I have it therefore in command from Congress to request, that you will immediately augment your quota for the Flying-Camp with four battalions of Militia, in addition to those formerly desired by Congress, and send them with all possible despatch to the Flying-Camp.

You will please to exert yourselves, as the greatest despatch is indispensably required by the situation of our affairs.

I have the honour to be, with respect, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Honourable Convention of Pennsylvania.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO CONVENTION OF NEW-JERSEY.

Philadelphia, July 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Congress, taking into consideration the strength of our enemies and the force destined for the attack of New-York, have come to a resolution to increase the Flying-Camp. For this purpose, I have it in charge to request that you will immediately augment your quota to the Flying-Camp with three battalions of Militia, in addition to those formerly desired by Congress, and send them, with all possible despatch, to join the Flying-Camp.

The battalions are to be officered, paid, and provided, agreeable to former resolutions of Congress for establishing said Camp.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Honourable Convention of New-Jersey.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO COLONEL GRIFFIN.

Philadelphia, July 22, 1776.

SIR: The Congress, in consideration of your merit and uniform attachment to the liberties of the American States, have been pleased to appoint you Deputy Adjutant-General to the Flying-Camp, with the rank of Colonel.

I enclose your commission with the greatest pleasure, being fully persuaded your abilities and attention will enable you to discharge the duties of your department with reputation to yourself and advantage to your country.

As it is necessary this important department should be immediately filled, you will please to repair for that purpose to the Flying-Camp as soon as possible, and put yourself under the direction of the commanding officer in that quarter.

I am, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,
JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Col. Griffin, Dep. Adj. Gen. to the Flying-Camp.

DR. FRANKLIN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, July 22, 1776.

SIR: The bearer, Mr. Joseph Belton, some time since petitioned the Congress for encouragement to destroy the enemy's ships of war by some contrivances of his invention. They came to no resolution on his petition, and, as they appear to have no great opinion of such proposals, it is not easy, in the multiplicity of business before them, to get them to bestow any part of their attention on his request. He is now desirous of trying his hand on the ships that are gone up the North River; and as he proposes to work entirely at his own expense, and only desires your countenance and permission, I could not refuse his desire of a line of introduction to you, the trouble of which I beg you to excuse. As he appears to be a very ingenious man, I hope his project may be attended with success.

With the sincerest esteem and respect, I have the honour to be, &c.

B. FRANKLIN.

JOSIAH BARTLETT TO JOHN LANGDON.

Philadelphia, July 22, 1776.

MY FRIEND: By yours of the 6th instant, I received your genteel but just reprimand for not answering your letters, and shall, in future, endeavour to give you the trouble of a line at least every week, without further excuse or ceremony.

By the enclosed paper, you will see the account of General Clinton's and Sir Peter Parker's defeat in South-Carolina. The Virginians have likewise driven Lord Dunmore from Gwin's Island, with loss. These are agreeable events, after our repeated crosses in Canada. Some of our southern brethren seem much elated with their success. By all accounts, the troops there behaved with incomparable bravery. I am sorry I can't say the same of our troops in Canada. Some of the southern gentlemen say America must be saved by the Southern, not the Northern troops. However, I hope it will yet appear that the New-England troops are not behind any on the Continent in point of bravery.

The papers will inform you of the march of the Militia of this State to New-Jersey. Three regiments are ordered from Virginia to the Jerseys. I hope soon there will be an army there of fifteen or twenty thousand men, besides those at New-York. We must, at all events, prevent their getting possession of New-York and Hudson's River, which I believe is their principal view, and by that way, open a communication with Canada.

Lord Howe's Proclamation has now convinced everybody that no offers are to be made us but absolute submission. I think it very happy for America that Britain has insisted on those terms; for had she proposed a treaty, and offered some concessions, there would have been danger of divisions, or at least of our not acting with unanimity and spirit, as I think will now be the case.

The Convention here have taken on them the government of this Colony, and have appointed Delegates for Congress, men who will forward, and not hinder, spirited measures. In short, there is a far greater harmony in carrying on spirited measures in Congress than heretofore. The Conventions even of Maryland and New-York seem now to be in earnest.

The Confederation is now before a Committee of the Whole. By reason of so much other business, it goes on but slowly. When it is laid before our Legislature, brother Whipple expects to be at home, and can inform them of some things they may want to be informed of concerning it. Our Court, I hear, is to sit again the 1st of September.

With sincerity, I am your friend,

JOSIAH BARTLETT.

P. S. I have omitted enclosing this day's paper, as brother Whipple has sent one to you in his letter.

WILLIAM WHIPPLE TO JOHN LANGDON.

Philadelphia, July 22, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have your favour of the 6th instant. In answer to the part of it respecting the commissions, I can only say, I am perpetually dunning the President to send them. If any alteration in the wages of the commission officers, they will be higher; so there can be no difficulty with them. If any are lowered, it will be the mates, midshipmen, coopers, sailmakers, and perhaps some other of the petty officers, and perhaps boatswain, carpenter, and gunner. If the three last are altered, it will be but a trifle—say one dollar. The number of men I sent you some time ago: eighty seamen, eighty landmen, and eighty or ninety marines; but it is my opinion, if a greater proportion of seamen are entered and less landmen, there can be no harm done. If the officers have boys, no doubt they must be on the roll. It cannot be a question whether the men are to have hammocks—to be sure they must. The men to be entered for a year, and as much longer as you can get them. If you can get arms, the sooner the better. The Agent will have a commission for the business he does; therefore, I suppose, will employ what clerks he thinks necessary.

I always thought you had ample powers to fit the ship for sea, and I believe it is so understood by the Committee. It is impossible to get the exact dimensions of the guns, as there are but few made here, and it is altogether uncertain whether they can be sent to you. The furnaces here have met with many accidents, and I am of opinion your guns must come from Providence, or some other furnace eastward. I shall not have the pleasure of seeing you so soon as I hoped, as some very important matters are now on the tapis, which I want to hear debated; besides, I would fain have the marine matters settled before I leave this. I therefore think it will be the latter end of August before I shall be able to enjoy that satisfaction which I have flattered myself would be much earlier.

How goes on the courtship? Have you well considered the matter? I would just beg leave to remind you of an observation of one of the first philosophers of the age: that a man who thinks of marrying a woman twenty years younger than himself, ought to consider who is to be her husband twenty years hence. I hope you won't think by this hint that I have any objection to the connexion. So far from it, you may be assured, my dear sir, that whatever contributes to your happiness will be an addition to mine.

I am in pain for the frontier settlements in our Colony; not that I think there is any immediate danger, but I know that the people must be alarmed. I think there should be scouting parties immediately placed on the frontiers. I wish I may have directions to make application to Congress for that purpose.

Our late successes at the southward are almost a balance for our misfortunes in Canada, considered Continentally. Must refer you to the papers for news. I hope the bravery of the Carolians will inspire the Yankees with new courage, and not let it be said that they have transferred the whole of that virtue to their southern brethren.

This Colony and New-Jersey are all alive. The Associates are all gone from this city. Men of fortune don't think themselves too good to march in the character of private soldiers, and I hope won't be ashamed to face the enemy. Colonel Dickinson, and all the other Colonels, have marched with their battalions. In short, the Declaration of Independence has done wonders.

I have Mr. Hancock's promise that the commission and blank warrants shall go off in a day or two by express. The gentlemen are appointed agreeable to your recommendations. There can be no difficulty in their acting, though they have not their commissions, as they will soon have them.

I am much obliged to you for mustering the regiment. It would give me great pleasure to see them in as good order as the battalions of this city; but that is next to impossible, owing to their being so much scattered, and the want of uniforms. However, we must do the best we can with them. I am, with great respect, yours,

WILLIAM WHIPPLE.

P. S. The order the Officers stand appointed: Peter Shores First Lieutenant, John Wheelwright Second Lieutenant, Josiah Shackford Third Lieutenant; George Jerry Osborne Captain Marines, Stephen Meads First Lieutenant, Nathaniel Thuing Second Lieutenant.

Warrants will be filled up with the names you sent.

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. I.

PETITION OF LEVI ALLEN.

To the Honourable the Continental Congress: The Petition and Memorial of LEVI ALLEN, humbly sheweth:

That he has the greatest reason to believe that his brother, Colonel Ethan Allen, is now a prisoner on board the British fleet lying off the coast of South-Carolina; that he is in a low state of health, occasioned by the inhuman usage of barbarous enemies; that his wife and children, with his relations and friends, have the greatest anxiety for and desire to recover him from the chains of captivity, and the wretched state worse than death into which he hath fallen in the defence of his injured country. Your petitioner, therefore, moved with the highest principles of fraternal regard for a suffering brother, most humbly requests the honourable Congress to take this matter under their consideration, and make out an order for the immediate exchange of his brother, together with the prisoners taken with him, for such other prisoners, and in such way and manner, as they shall think proper, and that the same order may be transmitted to all the General Officers or Commanders-in-Chief for the time being in the Continental Army, as your petitioner determines to spare no cost or trouble until this exchange is effected, if within the bounds of possibility, being now on his way to South-Carolina, where he has no doubt of finding his brother, if the British fleet should not quit the coast before his arrival. Your petitioner has the highest assurance of the interposition and assistance of the honourable Congress in this particular. It is clear and evident that at the time of his brother's engaging in the hazardous enterprise in which he was taken, the late General Montgomery assured him and Colonel Brown, that in case of captivity, every method should be taken and proposed for his or their redemption as soon as might be.

And, as in duty bound, your petitioner ever prays, &c.

LEVI ALLEN.

Philadelphia, July 22, 1776.

To the Honourable Congress of the free and United States of AMERICA:

We, whose names are undersigned, take the liberty to recommend Mr. Levi Allen as a person fit and proper to be intrusted with a flag to the fleet of the King of Great Britain, now within the harbour of New-York, in order to recover his brother, Colonel Ethan Allen, from his captivity, who is supposed to be on board said fleet, under such instructions and limitations as the honourable Continental Congress shall think proper.

JOHN BROWN'S CERTIFICATE RESPECTING COLONEL ALLEN.

This certifies, that at the Isle-aux-Noix, at the time when Colonel Allen was sent on the enterprise in which he was taken prisoner, Generals Schuyler and Montgomery promised and engaged that in case Colonel Allen should have the misfortune to be taken prisoner, that every proper method should be taken for his redemption and exchange consistent with the rules of war in such cases.

JNO. BROWN.

COLONEL THOMPSON TO LANCASTER COMMITTEE.

July 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The bearers hereof, viz: Messrs. Ross, Johnston, and Paxton, are Captains of three companies in Colonel Porter's battalion, who have more men in their companies willing to turn out in defence of their country than can be fitted off in firearms. They now call upon you for their part of the publick guns, which I put no doubt you will get for them as soon as possible, as the want of guns is the only thing that hinders their marching according to orders.

I remain, with due respect, your most humble servant,
ROBERT THOMPSON.

To the Standing Committee for Lancaster County.

GENERAL MERCER TO JOHN HANCOCK.

Head-Quarters, Perth-Amboy, July 22, 1776.

SIR: The declaration enclosed in the letter to Captain Morgan was brought to me yesterday evening. It was found in the fork of a road leading from South-Amboy ferry. We have no reason to suspect the integrity of Morgan, or his attachment to the American cause. He is Captain of Militia in South-Amboy, and a very intimate acquaintance of Cortlandt Skinner. Morgan, on reading the letter, told me he was ready, as soon as I pleased, to pass over to Staten-Island, with all his company, and would convince Skinner he had mistaken his man.

Some ships have appeared within a few days coming in from sea. The enemy seem a little alarmed at the number of troops assembled here, but have not changed their position along the shore of Staten-Island. Three battalions of Provincial Regulars and three of Militia from Pennsylvania, together with one company of Artillery and two field-pieces, are now on duty here, stationed from Bergen Neck to South-Amboy, to the great relief of the New-Jersey Militia.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,
HUGH MERCER.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER IN THE 2D PHILADELPHIA BATTALION, DATED AMBOY, JULY 22, 1776.

We arrived here Saturday morning, from Woodbridge, with all our battalion, except Captain Wilcock's company, who are stationed at Smith's farm, on Woodbridge Neck. We are now in full view of the enemy, only separated by the Sound, which is about as wide as Schuylkill. Our men are in high spirits, and longing for an opportunity to have a skirmish with them.

Yesterday Colonel Atlee's battalion came in, and marched along the beach. They made a good appearance, and I think alarmed the enemy not a little. We could distinctly see a number of the officers observing with glasses, and their men, drawn up in a line, appeared greatly surprised. We have here Colonel Miles, Colonel Atlee, the Second Battalion, Captain Moulder's company, and a Jersey company of Artillery: in all about fifteen hundred men. It is supposed the enemy have about one thousand men opposite us. When our numbers are a little more augmented, it is expected we shall do something. To-day our encampment will be marked out, and to-morrow I expect the battalion will pitch their tents.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read July 29, 1776, and referred to the Board of War.]

New-York, July 22, 1776.

SIR: Congress having been pleased to appoint Mr. Wilpen to the command of a company in the German battalion now raising, I have directed him to repair to Philadelphia for their orders. From my acquaintance with him, I am persuaded his conduct as an officer will meet their approbation; and, thanking them for their kind-attention to my recommendation of him, I have the honour to be, with sentiments of the highest respect, their most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. John Hancock, President of Congress.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Received and read July 23, 1776.]

New-York, July 22, 1776.

SIR: Your favours of the 18th and 19th, with which you have been pleased to honour me, have been duly received, with the several resolves alluded to.

When the letter and declaration from Lord Howe to Mr. Franklin and the other late Governours come to be published, I should suppose the warmest advocates for dependence on the British Crown must be silent, and be convinced, beyond all possibility of doubt, that all that has been said about the Commissioners was illusory, and calculated expressly to deceive and unguard, not only the good people of our own country, but those of the English nation that were averse to the proceedings of the King and Ministry. Hence we see the cause why a specification of their powers was not given to the Mayor and City of London on their address requesting it. That would have been dangerous, because it would then have been manifest that the line of conduct they were to pursue would be variant from that they had industriously propagated and amused the publick with. The uniting the military and civil offices in the same persons, too, must be conclusive to every thinking one, that there is to be but little negotiation of the civil kind.

I have enclosed, for the satisfaction of Congress, the substance of what passed between myself and Lieutenant-Colonel Patterson, Adjutant-General, at an interview had yesterday, in consequence of a request from General Howe the day before; to which I beg leave to refer them for particulars.

Colonel Knox, of the Train, having often mentioned to me the necessity of having a much more numerous body of Artillerists than what there now is, in case the present contest should continue longer, and knowing the deficiency in this instance, and their extreme usefulness, I desired him to commit his ideas upon the subject to writing, in order that I might transmit them to Congress for their consideration. Agreeable to my request, he has done it; and the propriety of his plan is now submitted for their decision. It is certain that we have not more at this time than are sufficient for the several extensive posts we have, including the draughts which he speaks of, and which, I presume, not only from what he has informed me, but from the nature of the thing, can never be qualified to render the same service as if they were regularly appointed and formed into a corps for that particular purpose.

I beg leave to remind Congress that some time ago I laid before them the proposals of some persons here for forming a company of Lighthouse, and of the President's answer a little time after, intimating that the plan seemed to be approved of. As those who wanted to make up the troop are frequently pressing me for an answer, I could wish to be favoured with the decision of Congress upon the subject.

By a letter from General Schuyler of the 14th instant, dated at Albany, he informs me that the day before some desperate designs of the Tories in that quarter had been discovered, the particulars of which he could not divulge, being under an oath of secrecy; however, that such measures had been taken as to promise a prevention of the intended mischief; and that four of the conspirators, among them a ringleader, were apprehended about one o'clock that morning not far from the town. What the plot was, or who were concerned in it, is a matter I am ignorant of as yet.

With my best regards to Congress, I have the honour to be your and their most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

P. S. Congress will please to observe what was proposed respecting the exchange of Mr. Lovell, and signify their pleasure in your next. The last week's Return is also enclosed.

Memorandum of what passed at the interview between His Excellency General WASHINGTON and Colonel PATTERSON, Adjutant-General of the Army under General HOWE, JULY 20, 1776.

After usual compliments, in which, as well as through the whole conversation, Colonel P. addressed General Washington by the title of Excellency, Colonel Patterson entered upon the business by saying: That General Howe much regretted the difficulties which had arisen respecting the address of the letters to General W.; that it was deemed consistent with propriety, and founded upon precedents of the like nature by Ambassadors and Plenipotentiaries where disputes or difficulties of rank had arisen; that General W. might recollect he had last summer addressed a letter to General Howe To the Hon. William Howe, Esq.; that Lord

Howe and General H. did not mean to derogate from the respect or rank of General W.; that they held his person and character in the highest esteem; that the direction with the addition of &c., &c., &c., implied everything that ought to follow. He then produced a letter, which he did not directly offer to General W., but observed that it was the same letter which had been sent, and laid it on the table with a superscription To George Washington, &c., &c., &c. The General declined the letter, and said that a letter directed to a person in a publick character should have some description or indication of it, otherwise it would appear a mere private letter; that it was true the &c., &c., &c., implied everything, and they also implied anything; that the letter to General Howe alluded to was an answer to one received under a like address from him, which the officer on duty having taken, he did not think proper to return, but answered it in the same mode of address; that he should absolutely decline any letter directed to him as a private person when it related to his publick station. Colonel P. then said, that General Howe would not urge his delicacy farther, and repeated his assertions that no failure of respect was intended.

He then said that he would endeavour, as well as he could, to recollect General Howe's sentiments on the letter and resolves of Congress, sent him a few days before, respecting the treatment of our prisoners in Canada: "That the affairs of Canada were in another department not subject to the control of General Howe; but that he and Lord Howe utterly disapproved of every infringement of the rights of humanity." Colonel P. then took a paper out of his pocket, and after looking it over, said he had expressed nearly the words. General W. then said that he had also forwarded a copy of the resolves to General Burgoyne. To which Colonel P. replied, he did not doubt a proper attention would be paid to them; and that he (General W.) was sensible that cruelty was not the characteristick of the British nation.

Colonel P. then proceeded to say he had it in charge to mention the case of General Prescott, who, they were informed, was treated with such rigour, that, under his age and infirmities, fatal consequences might be apprehended. General Washington replied, that General Prescott's treatment had not fallen under his notice; that all prisoners under his particular direction he had treated with kindness, and made their situation as easy and comfortable as possible; that he did not know where General Prescott was, but believed his treatment very different from their information. General W. then mentioned the case of Colonel Allen and the officers who had been confined in Boston Jail. As to the first, Colonel P. answered that General Howe had no knowledge of it but by information from General Washington, and that the Canada department was not under his direction or control. That as to the other prisoners at Boston, whenever the state of the Army at Boston admitted it, they were treated with humanity and even indulgence; that he asserted this upon his honour, and should be happy in an opportunity to prove it.

General Washington then observed, that the conduct of several of the officers would well have warranted a different treatment from what they had received, some having refused to give any parole, and others having broken it when given, by escaping, or endeavouring to do so. Colonel P. answered, that as to the first, they misunderstood the matter very much, and seemed to have mistaken the line of propriety exceedingly; and as to the latter, General Howe utterly disapproved and condemned their conduct; that if a remonstrance was made, such violations of good faith would be severely punished, but that he hoped General W. was too just to draw publick inferences from the misbehaviour of some private individuals; that bad men were to be found in every class of society; that such behaviour was considered as a dishonour to the British Army.

Colonel Patterson then proceeded to say, that the goodness and benevolence of the King had induced him to appoint Lord Howe and General Howe his Commissioners to accommodate this unhappy dispute; that they had great powers, and would derive the greatest pleasure from effecting an accommodation; and that he (Colonel P.) wished to have this visit considered as making the first advances to this desirable object. General W. replied, he was not vested with any powers on the subject by those from whom he derived his authority and power; but, from what had appeared or transpired on this head, Lord Howe and General Howe were only to grant pardons; that those who had committed no fault wanted no pardon; that we were only defending what we deemed our indisputable rights. Colonel P. said, that that would open a very wide field for argument. He then expressed his apprehensions that an adherence to forms was likely to obstruct business of the greatest moment and concern. He then observed that a proposal had been formerly made of exchanging Governour Skene for Mr. Lovell; that he now had authority to accede to that proposal. General W. replied, that the proposition had been made by the direction of Congress, and having been then rejected, he could not now renew the business, or give any answer, till he had previously communicated it to them.

Colonel Patterson behaved with the greatest politeness and attention during the whole business, and expressed strong acknowledgments that the usual ceremony of blinding his eyes had been dispensed with. At the breaking up of the conference, General Washington strongly invited him to partake of a small collation provided for him, which he politely declined, alleging his late breakfast and an impatience to return to General Howe, though he had not executed his commission so amply as he wished. Finding he did not propose staying, he was introduced to the General Officers, after which he took his leave, and was safely conducted to his own boat, which waited for him about four miles distant from the city.

New-York, July 9, 1776.

From a view of the present important contest with Great Britain, it appears that the war is but in its infancy. To carry it on with vigour and success, a well-regulated and numerous body of Artillery will be necessary. The present number of officers and men of the regiment of Artillery here, are not sufficient for the posts in and round about this city. To supply this deficiency, a number of men from the different regiments have been draughted into Artillery pro tempore. This is a present remedy; but if the service should require a few companies of Artillery to be sent on command, it could not be complied with unless many posts were left entirely naked. For a variety of extensive service, more officers and men of this profession will be wanting. If it should be thought proper to raise another battalion of Artillery upon the same plan as the present, it could be very easily effected, by taking the men lately draughted into the different companies and forming separate companies; or by taking some officers and men of experience out of the different companies, and incorporating them with the new, they would soon be fit for action.

The number of men draughted into the different companies would form eight companies of sixty men; Captain Bauman's, lately raised, would make nine; three companies more would make up a battalion of twelve companies. Upon this plan the Continent would have eleven companies and sixty officers more than they now have, applying themselves to the particular art of gunnery, and ready for any emergency.

HENRY KNOX,
Colonel Regiment of Artillery.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 13, 1776.

(Parole, Ulster.)

(Countersign, Winchester.)

The Guard at Fort-George to be reinforced with a Field-Officer, two Captains, four Subalterns, six Sergeants, six Corporals, and seventy Privates.

The General was sorry to observe yesterday that many of the officers and a number of men, instead of attending to their duty at the beat of the drum, continued along the banks of the North-River, gazing at the ships. Such unsoldierly conduct must grieve every good officer, and give the enemy a mean opinion of the Army, as nothing shows the brave and good soldier more than, in case of alarms, coolly and calmly repairing to his post, and there waiting his orders; whereas a weak curiosity at such a time makes a man look mean and contemptible.

A well-dressed Orderly-Sergeant, from Generals Scott's, Wadsworth's, and Heard's Brigades, to attend at Head-Quarters every day.

The Majors of the new Brigades, and all other officers of those corps, are directed to look over the Orderly books before they come into camp, and acquaint themselves well with former orders. They are also to be very careful that the daily orders are delivered, so as that neither officer nor soldier may plead ignorance, as in that case they will be deemed answerable.

A party of eight hundred men, properly officered, to parade to-morrow morning. Learned's and Wylls's Regiments to receive tools for making fascines: they are to take their dinner with them. Ensign Field, of Learned's Regiment, to attend this party. All the other regiments to attend at the Engineer's store for tools and orders. Three hours allowed for dinner, and to work till seven, and so continue till further orders. All who have tools belonging to the Engineer's store, to return them immediately.

If any Brigade or Regiment are exempted from fatigue at any time, the Brigade-Majors to inform the Engineer thereof, (except it be in General Orders,) that he may proportion what are sent accordingly.

The safety and success of the Army depends so much upon having the works in all possible forwardness, that the General is much concerned to find the Brigade Majors represented as deficient in their part of the duty. Only five Regiments—Learned's, Reed's, Bailey's, Parsons's, and Wylls's Regiments—have turned out their working parties this day. The General hopes this is the last time he shall have occasion to take notice of any such neglect.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 14, 1776.

(Parole, Andover.)

(Countersign, Bristol.)

A Court of Inquiry to sit to-morrow morning, to examine into the conduct of Colonel Ritzema, who stands charged with practices contrary to the rules and discipline of the Army: Brigadier-General Heath, President; Colonels Wylls and Malcolm, and Lieutenant-Colonels Johnston and Brearly.

The Judge-Advocate General and witnesses to attend the Court at Mr. Montagnie's Tavern in the fields, at ten o'clock.

The Regiment of Artificers, under command of Colonel Parke, to join Lord Stirling's Brigade. They will receive orders from the Brigadier, with respect to their alarm posts, arrangement and duty, in case of action.

The Regimental Surgeons to meet on Tuesday next, at nine o'clock, A. M., at the Coffee-House, on business of importance. The Adjutants of the several Regiments to give them special notice.

The Majors of Brigade and Adjutants of Generals Scott's, Heard's, and Wadsworth's Brigades, are to send into the Adjutant-General's office a daily report of every Regiment or Company belonging to their several Brigades, as they join the Army, in order that proper arrangements may be made while time will admit. The Majors of Brigade are to be answerable for obedience to this order, and if the Adjutants refuse or neglect their duty, they are to be put in arrest immediately.

All the Brigade-Majors and Adjutants are again reminded, that the Weekly Returns (as well Brigade as Regimental ones) are to be brought in every Saturday at Orderly time to the Adjutant-General's office. And as inaccuracy and neglect in their Returns will create difficulties in the payment of their men, the Colonels, or officers commanding, should carefully examine the Returns, compare them with those of the preceding week, and have all the alterations accounted for.

The General strongly recommends it to the soldiers to be careful of their arms and ammunition at all times, but more especially in rainy weather. An enterprising enemy, depending upon neglect in this article, often makes an attack, and too frequently with success. Officers will also be very attentive to this order, and see it complied with.

John Andrews, Jeremiah Williams, and William Cary, late belonging to General Lee's Guard, to join Captain Ford's company of Artificers.

The Chief Engineer was mistaken in his report yesterday as to Colonel Baldwin's, Colonel Huntington's, and Colonel Ward's Regiments' neglect of fatigue, and takes the first opportunity to rectify it.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 15, 1776.

(Parole, Chatham.)

(Countersign, Durby.)

The Pay Abstracts for the month of June are immediately to be made up carefully, examined by the Colonels, or officer commanding the Regiments, and then certified by the Brigadiers; after which to be lodged with the Paymaster-General.

A working party of one hundred and fifty men, with a Field-Officer, three Captains, six Subalterns, twelve Sergeants, twelve Corporals, and three Drums and Fifes, to parade to-morrow on the grand parade, at six o'clock, and go up to King's Bridge, to relieve the party sent up the 7th instant; to take their arms and two days' provision; to apply to General Putnam for boats for transportation; and when at King's Bridge, apply to General Mifflin for orders.

It is intended that all detached parties to King's Bridge shall be relieved once a week in future.

General Scott's Brigade to do duty hereafter in their own encampment.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 16, 1776.

(Parole, Essex.)

(Countersign, Fairfax.)

The honourable Continental Congress have been pleased to increase the pay of the Regimental Surgeons to thirty-three dollars and one-third per month, to take place from the 5th of June last; and that the pay of the Troops in the Middle Department shall be six dollars and two-thirds per month, from the 10th of June last. The Pay Abstracts are to be made out accordingly, and care taken to prevent confusion or delay.

The hurry of business often preventing particular invitation being given to officers to dine with the General, he presents his compliments to the Brigadiers and Field-Officers of the day, and requests, while the camp continues settled in this city, they will favour him with their company to dinner, without any further or special invitation.

The officers, under whose care and direction the cartridges are made up, having neglected to make daily returns to Head-Quarters, they may depend upon it, that after this day, any officer omitting to send a daily return of the number of cartridges made, will be put under an arrest for disobedience of orders.

After Orders.—Colonel Reed, President of the present sitting General Court-Martial, being unable to attend, Colonel Webb is to succeed him as President: said Court-Martial to assemble to-morrow morning, nine o'clock, at the brick-house near Colonel McDougall's encampment.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 17, 1776.

(Parole, Georgia.)

(Countersign, Hartford.)

A working party of fifty men, properly officered, to parade to-morrow morning, six o'clock, with their arms, near the Laboratory. There Captain Anderson will attend, from whom they are to receive directions: Quartermaster-General to supply such tools as they may want.

John Berrian, Henry Wilmot, and John Ray, Jun., a Committee of the town, are appointed to give passes to citizens going over the ferries. Officers and soldiers who want passes over the ferries, are to apply to their own Brigadier-General. And the General desires that they will give no passes to officers or soldiers of another Brigade. The officers at the Ferry-Guards, to attend to this order particularly, and make it known to the sentries.

The two Companies of Colonel Van Cortlandt's Regiment at Long-Island, to join their regiment at New-York. Captain Kelsey's Company, and the Company under the command of Lieutenant Borden, of Colonel Newcomb's Regiment, to replace them to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

The Court of Inquiry upon Colonel Ritzema's conduct, having reported that no other of the charges made against him was supported, except that of using disrespectful expressions of Brigadier-General Lord Stirling, and his Lordship generously overlooking the personal affront offered him, the General orders that all further proceedings cease, and Colonel Ritzema to be discharged from his arrest.

Yesterday the detachment of one hundred and fifty men, ordered for King's Bridge, to march from the parade at six o'clock, did not leave it till nine, by which they lost the tide, and then much short of the proportion of officers, an evil which is every day increasing. The Brigade-Majors will hereafter be deemed answerable for such neglects, unless they report to the Adjutant-General the same day what Adjutant fails in bringing on his quota of men on the parade in time, or put such Adjutant immediately under arrest, and report it at Head-Quarters.

The Adjutants and Colonels of the new troops arriving, are to take notice that Weekly Returns of their Regiments are to be sent in at Orderly time every Saturday. Blank returns will be given out at the Adjutant-General's office to those who apply for them, and an Orderly book for each Company.

A working party of one hundred and fifty men, properly officered, to parade to-morrow morning at six o'clock, with their arms, near the Laboratory, to take one day's provision with them, to relieve the party which went up the 10th instant; this party to stay one week, and then to be relieved.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 18, 1776.

(Parole, Italy.)

(Countersign, Kent.)

Although the General is very sensible that the great fatigue duty of this Army (which he is highly pleased to see the officers and men go through with so much cheerfulness and zeal) does not allow much time for manœuvring and exercising the troops; yet it is a matter of so much consequence to have them as well practised as time and circumstances will admit, that he earnestly recommends it to the Brigadiers, Colonels, or commanding officers of Regiments, to take time for that purpose; and particularly, to have the men instructed and practise the evolutions, manœuvring, and as much of the manual exercise as respects loading and firing, not only with quickness but calmness.

John Priest, of Captain Maxwell's Company, Colonel Prescott's Regiment, Duncan Grant, of Captain McFarland's Company, Colonel Nixon's Regiment, Jason Kemp, of Captain Bolster's Company, late Colonel Learned's Regiment, William Baker, of Captain Waterhouse's Company, Colonel Parsons's Regiment, all tried by a General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Webb was President, for "desertion," and found guilty, were sentenced to receive thirty-nine lashes each; Baker to receive his punishment at three different times, thirteen lashes each time. The General approves the above sentences, and orders them to be executed at the usual time and place.

Two guns fired from Cobble-Hill, on Long-Island, are to be the signal that the enemy have landed on that Island.

Complaints having frequently been made that the sentries, especially those along the river, fire wantonly at boats and persons passing, officers of guards are to be careful upon this head, and acquaint the sentries that they are not to fire upon boats coming to the town, and that they are not to molest or interrupt the ferry-boats.

The present number of fatigue to be augmented with one hundred men, properly officered; the whole to parade precisely at six o'clock in the morning; to continue so till further orders.

Colonel Malcolm, of General Scott's Brigade, to have the superintendence of the work laid out near that encampment, and to be excused from other duty.

The General invites the Brigade-Major of the day to dine with him in course, with the other officers of the day.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 19, 1776.

(Parole, Lewis.)

(Countersign, Maryland.)

A detachment of three hundred men, properly officered, to parade to-morrow morning, six o'clock, on the grand parade, with two days' provisions, to go in boats, by way of East-River, to King's Bridge, to execute such work as shall be laid out for them by the Engineer. Lieutenant Champion, of Colonel Wylls's Regiment, to oversee said works. Major Reed to furnish this party with such tools as Colonel Putnam shall direct.

A working party of fifty men, properly officered, to parade to-morrow morning, at six o'clock, on the grand parade, without their arms, to receive their orders from Captain Anderson, and tools from the Laboratory.

William Herenden, of Captain Warren's Company, Colonel Read's Regiment, David Ludlow, of Captain Ledyard's Company, Colonel McDougall's Regiment, both tried by a General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Webb was President, for desertion, and found guilty, were sentenced to receive, the former thirty-nine lashes, the latter twenty. The General approves the sentences, and orders them to be executed at the usual time and place.

The Field-Officers of the Picket are directed to attend, on the grand parade, punctually, at a quarter after eight o'clock in the morning, and to continue there till the guards are marched off; for there has been great remissness lately of that kind.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 20, 1776.

(Parole, Newington.)

(Countersign, Ormond.)

Daniel Grimes, of Captain Shaw's Company, Colonel Marshall's Regiment, tried by a General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Webb was President, was found guilty of "desertion;" but some favourable circumstances appearing in the prisoner's behalf, his punishment is remitted. The Provost-Marshal is ordered to deliver him to Captain Tilton, in order to be put into some Regiment, to do duty here until a good opportunity offers to send him to his own.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 21, 1776.

(Parole, Philadelphia.)

(Countersign, Quebec.)

William Baker, of Captain Johnson's Company, in Colonel McDougall's Regiment, charged with "absenting himself several days from the camp without permission," having been tried by a General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Webb was President, and found guilty, was sentenced to receive twenty lashes. The General approves the sentence, and orders it to be executed at the usual time and place.

Sergeant Ballard, late of General Lee's Guard, now in custody for having presumed to give a pass to a person to cross the East River, appearing to have done it more through ignorance than design, the General is pleased to discharge him; but if any inferior officer shall hereafter take such a liberty, he will be severely punished; it being again declared that passes to citizens or country people are only to be granted by John Berrian, Henry Wilmot, and John Ray, Jun., or one of them; passes to officers and soldiers, only by a Major-General, the Brigadier-General of the Brigade to which the person belongs, the Adjutant-General, or General's Secretary or Aids-de-Camp.

The General has great pleasure in communicating to the officers and soldiers of this Army, the signal success of the American arms, under General Lee, at South-Carolina. The enemy having attempted to land at the same time that a most furious cannonade, for twelve hours, was made upon the fortifications near Charlestown, both fleet and army have been repulsed with great loss by a small number of gallant troops just raised. The enemy have had one hundred and seventy-two men killed and wounded, among whom were several officers; two capital ships much damaged; one frigate of twenty-eight guns entirely lost, being abandoned and blown up by the crew; and others so hurt that they will want great repair before they can be fit for service. And all with a loss on our part of ten killed and twenty-two wounded. The firmness, courage, and bravery of our troops has crowned them with immortal honour. The dying heroes conjured their brethren never to abandon the standard of liberty, and even those who had lost their limbs continued at their posts. Their gallantry and spirit extorted applause from their enemies, who, dejected and defeated, have retired to their former station, out of the reach of our troops. This glorious example of our troops, under the like circumstances with us, the General hopes will animate every officer and soldier to imitate, and even outdo them, when the enemy shall make the same attempt on us. With such a bright example before us of what can be done by brave and spirited men fighting in defence of their country, we shall be loaded with a double share of shame and infamy if we do not acquit ourselves with courage, or a determined resolution to conquer or die. With this hope and confidence, and that this Army will have its equal share of honour and success, the General most earnestly exhorts every officer and soldier to pay the utmost attention to his arms and health, to have the former in the best order for action, and by cleanliness and care, to preserve the latter; to be exact in their discipline, obedient to their superiors, and vigilant in duty. With such preparation, and a suitable spirit, there can be no doubt but, by the blessing of Heaven, we shall repel our cruel invaders, preserve our country, and gain the greatest honour.

A working party of one hundred and fifty men, properly officered, to parade to-morrow morning on the grand parade, at six o'clock, with their arms and one day's provision, to go up to King's Bridge, by water, to relieve the party which went up the 15th instant; to apply to General Putnam for tents.

The General is much pleased with the alacrity of the men in doing fatigue duty; and being resolved to ease them as much as the service will admit, directs that, until further orders, the men who are to go upon fatigue shall be excused from turning out to their alarm posts for that day, unless in case of real alarm.

Return of the Army in the service of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, in and near the City of NEW-YORK, commanded by His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esquire, General and Commander-in-Chief.

New-York, Head-Quarters, July 20, 1776.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JOHN AUGUSTINE WASHINGTON.

New-York, July 22, 1776.

DEAR BROTHER: Whether you wrote to me last, or I to you, I cannot undertake to say; but as it is some time since a letter has passed between us, and as I expect every hour to be engaged in too busy a scene to allow time for writing private letters, I will take an opportunity, by this day's post, to address to you a few lines, giving a brief account of the situation of affairs in this quarter.

To begin, then: We have a powerful fleet within full view of us, distant about eight miles. We have General Howe's present Army, consisting, by good report, of about eight or nine thousand men upon Staten-Island, covered by their ships. We have Lord Howe just arrived, and we have ships now coming in, which we suppose, but do not know, to be part of the fleet with the expected reinforcement. When this arrives, if the reports of deserters, prisoners, and Tories, are to be depended upon, the enemy's numbers will amount at least to twenty-five thousand men; ours to about fifteen thousand. More, indeed, are expected; but there is no certainty of their arrival, as harvest and a thousand other excuses are urged as the reasons of delay. What kind of opposition we shall be able to make, time only can show. I can only say, that the men appear to be in good spirits; and, if they will stand by me, the place shall not be carried without some loss, notwithstanding we are not yet in such a posture of defence as I could wish.

Two ships (the Phoenix, of forty-four guns, and the Rose, of twenty) ran by our batteries on the 12th, exhibiting a proof of what I had long most religiously believed; and that is, that a vessel, with a brisk wind and strong tide, cannot, unless by a chance shot, be stopped by a battery, unless you can place some obstruction in the water to impede her motion within reach of your guns. We do not know that these ships received any capital injury. In their rigging they were somewhat damaged, and several shot went through their hulls; but few, if any, lives were lost. They now, with three tenders which accompanied them, lie up the North or Hudson's River, about forty miles above this place, and have totally cut off all communication, by water, between this city and Albany, and between this Army and ours upon the Lakes. They may have had other motives inducing them to run up the river, such as supplying the Tories with arms, and the like; but such a vigilant watch has hitherto been kept upon them, that I fancy they have succeeded but indifferently in those respects, notwithstanding this country abounds in disaffected persons of the most diabolical dispositions and intentions, as you may have perceived by the several publications in the gazettes, relative to their designs of destroying this Army by treachery and bribery, which were providentially discovered.

It is the general report of deserters and prisoners, and a prevailing opinion here, that no attempt will be made by General Howe till his reinforcement arrives, which, as I said before, is hourly expected. Our situation at present, both in regard to men and other matters, is such as not to make it advisable to attempt anything against them, surrounded as they are by water, and covered with ships, lest a miscarriage should be productive of unhappy and fatal consequences. It is provoking, nevertheless, to have them so near, without being able to give them any disturbance. Their ships that passed us are also safely moored in a broad part of the river, out of reach of shot from either shore.

Mrs. Washington is now at Philadelphia, and has thoughts of returning to Virginia, as there is little or no prospect of her being with me any part of this summer. I beg of you to present my love to my sister and the children, and compliments to any inquiring friends, and to do me the justice to believe that I am, &c.,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To John Augustine Washington, Esq.

BARON DE CALBIAC TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, July 22, 1776.

MY GENERAL: Though it is easy to see your Excellency, by the kind reception with which you entertain everybody, I have, with a good deal of repugnancy, imposed a law to myself, in discontinuing to go and present to you my humble duty—in the first place, by the reason of the difficulty that I have to make myself understood; and, secondly, in the apprehension to trouble you from your business.

In the mean while, a sentiment of patriotism obliges me to trouble you again, being wounded by the sorrow in seeing my countrymen in the greatest want; and what afflicts me the most is, that it is no more in my power to do for them what I have done for the others: so that you will permit me to represent to your Excellency, that the good mind that led those gentlemen to serve under your orders, and to help this Continent against her enemies, has determined them to leave their families, their country, and to despise all sorts of dangers, in order to join you. You know, sir, that necessity has no law, and you must not be surprised if some Frenchmen have behaved so scandalously. I hope that you will be so good as to observe my representation; having the honour to be, of your Excellency, Mon General, the most humble and most obedient servant,

LE BARON DE CALBIAC.

P. S. The 6th June, 1776, four battalions of the regiment of Champagne arrived at Guadaloupe, to garrison that place, while the fleet and army of France go to Quebeck to retake Canada. This account I have just received from that Island.

JEDEDIAH HUNTINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Camp, New-York, July 22, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: It passes for some apology in my own mind, for not writing so often as at some times I think I ought to, that, in the first place, my letters cannot carry news, because, in your publick station, you have the best and earliest from all quarters; in the second place, that the urgency of the publick affairs needs all your attention.

Since the British fleet placed themselves so near us as Staten-Island, the most of the principal inhabitants of the city have been moving away with their effects. The late adventure of the Phoenix and Rose determined all the hesitating to fly. I should be willing to part with all of them, unless we had some skilful assaiyst to separate the bad from the good.

Since the Declaration of Independence, I have often thought how anxious you would be that the leaders of the present day, though they themselves may not reap the fruits of their labours, should not spare any pains to have the foundations of the great Continental government well laid, and as well that of particular States, that publick virtue and liberty, which make the publick happiness, may be secured and perpetuated. It is plain to see, from a small acquaintance with the manners of this people, the pernicious influence of some overgrown estates. The landlords, though few in number, have the power of disobliging their numerous dependants, and therefore assume the right of dictating to them in their most interesting and tenderest concerns. Ought not or cannot a timely remedy be provided against the limitation of the descent of large tracts of land that carry such evil power with them?

General Sullivan is returned to this place; he did not meet a very cordial reception, I am told, from G. W. General Washington and the Adjutant-General of the British Army at Staten-Island had an interview at Colonel Knox's, near Fort George, last Saturday. The application was from their side, and very importunate. Our expectations were raised to look for something considerable; but it proved to be very frivolous—a proposition to exchange Master Lovell for Governour Skene, which heretofore they had refused to us. The General told him it could not be done without an order of Congress. The Adjutant-General wished for a familiar intercourse between the two armies, and that all proceedings be carried on on the highest principles of honour and humanity. Our General treated him rather coolly, and they parted soon.

A small party of the enemy landed on the Jersey side yesterday, under the protection of a tender. Our people repulsed them without firing but a few small-arms. What loss, or whether any, do not learn.

My love and respects to all, as is due. I remain, your affectionate son,

JEDH. HUNTINGTON.

P. S. The papers of this day do not contain the joyful news from South-Carolina; therefore I enclose you a hand-bill.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, July 22, 1776.

SIR: Colonel Hand reports this morning that the ships that came in yesterday have troops on board. They appear to be dressed in the Highland habit. Nothing material has happened in this camp since yesterday.

I have the honour to be, your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,
N. GREENE.

To His Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters,
New-York.

WILLIAM HOPKINS TO OYSTER-BAY (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE.

In Committee for Township of Oyster-Bay, July 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: By request of Captain Daniel Noorstrant, we do make application to your honourable House for a commission for Jacob Totten, First Lieutenant under above-said Captain, instead of Daniel Hendrickson, who absolutely refuses executing his commission. Reasons may be given sufficient for his excuse.

N. B. The company belonging to Captain Daniel Noorstrant hath unanimously appeared and chosen Jacob Totten First Lieutenant.

By order of the Committee:

WILLIAM HOPKINS, Chairman.

To Chairman of County Committee, or his Deputy.

ROBERT YATES TO WILLIAM PAWLING.

In Committee, Poughkeepsie, July 22, 1776.

SIR: We have, among other things, determined to fit out two armed sloops at Albany, in order to protect the river against the depredations of tenders. To effect this, we have written to the Committee at New-York to furnish us with gunners, or persons who in anywise are used to the management of cannon on board of ships, and a quantity of combustible matter for fire-arrows, and by all means a person who understands the making of them. If your business will possibly admit, we must entreat your attention to this matter also. Mr. Jay is gone to Salisbury for cannon, Messrs. Yates and Livingston to Albany, and Tappen and G. Livingston remain to superintend the works here, where we request your attendance as soon as you conveniently can.

We are, sir, your most humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

ROBERT YATES, Chairman.

To William Pawling, Esq., Member of Congress for Westchester County, at New-York or elsewhere.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO COLONEL DAYTON.

German-Flats, July 22, 1776.

DEAR SIR: From the advice contained in an intercepted letter which was yesterday delivered me, there is reason to suspect that Lieutenant McDonald, of your regiment, is concerned in the embezzlement of the effects at Johnstown. You will therefore be pleased to send him immediately, under arrest, to this place, together with such other officers, if any there are, who may lay under similar suspicions, and all such officers and soldiers who may, by their testimony, elucidate a matter which reflects so much disgrace on the regiment.

The Representatives of the United American States have lately transmitted me a resolution deprecating, in the most pointed terms, the abuses of a like kind committed to the northward, and have ordered every military offender to be brought to justice. You will, I doubt not, exert your best endeavours to convict the delinquents, and to wipe away that stain which now sullies the whole corps. I beg you will attend here yourself, and bring with you the orders I sent you previous to your leaving Albany. I have a sufficiency of officers here to hold a general court-martial.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To Colonel Dayton.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Tyonderoga, July 22, 1776.

SIR: This morning I received your favour of the 18th instant from the German-Flats. General Arnold has written to you, with the Indian goods he sent you, by this conveyance. He is disappointed that he has not more to send you. The same express that brought me your letter brought me one from Mr. Livingston, a copy of which I send you enclosed. I have also ordered Mr. Commissary Avery to send you an exact state of his magazine here. The fresh provisions mentioned in Mr. Livingston's letter is not any of it arrived here yet, nor do I know of any cattle being upon their way hither; so we must eat pork, or go without meat. The Militia are beginning to arrive at Skenesborough; so the demands upon our magazine will increase daily. General Arnold sets off to-day for Skenesborough, if possible to expedite the building the gondolas. I hope we shall not be too late with our fleet. Four gondolas are all that are built, and it will take a fortnight to finish those that are upon the stocks. This I am assured of by an officer who left Skenesborough yesterday; he is an intelligent young man, is well versed in maritime affairs, and is to command one of the gondolas. The corps of carpenters, which you tell me are ordered to Skenesborough, will arrive late; but that, if the enemy move slow, may answer. I have acquainted Mr. Commissary Avery with the paragraph in your letter which relates to Mr. Trumbull, and have directed Mr. Avery to govern himself accordingly. I am told Colonel Gansevoort stopped my letter to the postmaster at Albany, and sent the messenger I ordered down with it back to Tyonderoga. The Army here are outrageous in having their letters stopped at Albany, all correspondence with the lower country being entirely precluded. I have written to Colonel Gansevoort upon the subject, and will certainly bring him to immediate trial, if he dares, for the future, to stop any letters going to or from the Army that he is not very particularly ordered to intercept. The Eastern Governments have established a weekly post to the Army, free of all expense to the officers and soldiers.

I am, &c.

HO. GATES.

To General Schuyler.

P. S. Enclosed is a return of all the provisions at this post. There is at Crown-Point only a bare sufficiency to supply one weak battalion posted there.

JOHN TRUMBULL TO COLONEL READ.

Head-Quarters, July 22, 1776.

SIR: By the General's order, I wrote you four or five days since, desiring you to collect all the well at Fort George of every corps, and return to the Army with them. Perhaps you have not received that letter. There is now a still more urgent necessity of your immediate return, as you are appointed to the command of a brigade, with whom your presence is absolutely necessary. You will, therefore, sir, on the receipt of this, immediately collect all who are able to return to their duty, and repair with them to this place as soon as possible.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN TRUMBULL.

To Colonel Read.

CAPTAIN WILSON TO GENERAL ARNOLD.

Three-Brothers, July 22, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: We arrived at the east side of the Isle-au-Motte on Friday night, about one or two o'clock, concealed our boats, and kept a good look-out till about six in the afternoon of Saturday, when we perceived a canoe creeping up under the east shore of the Lake. A party was immediately detached in pursuit of her, and took her, with a Frenchman in her. We had no interpreter amongst us, and therefore found considerable difficulty in understanding him. Thus much we learned, that he had been to St. John's, and had informed himself of the number of troops there, of the works they were chiefly employed at, and of the number of boats they had in readiness. He informed us, as we understood him, that he met two men in a canoe about a league on this side of Isle-aux-Noix, who informed him that two of our boats lay at Isle-au-Motte. He says they live near Gilliland's Creek, and (if we understood him properly) went down with information to the enemy. We hope to be able to intercept them on their return.

We have taken a certain John Davie, who, from the manner in which he was travelling, and the account which he gave of himself, appears to be a very suspicious person. The prisoners are sent up in charge with the bearer, Lieutenant Clark, with one batteau and part of the men. With those who remain here we propose to return to Isle-au-Motte this evening. A party of four men was in readiness on Saturday evening to have proceeded on the east side of the Lake from opposite Point-au-Fer by land to St. John's; but upon learning from the Frenchman that intelligence was gone down of our being at Isle-au-Motte, it was thought most prudent not to send them. We have neither a bark canoe nor a good pilot.

I am, dear, sir, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

JAMES A. WILSON, Captain.

To His Excellency Brigadier-General Arnold.

COLONEL SEYMOUR TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Hartford, July 22, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: As the troops of Lighthorse returned yesterday from New-York, I thought it my duty to give your Honour the earliest account of our conduct and proceedings, with every attending circumstance. I before mentioned the immediate forwarding of your Honour's orders to the Majors of the several regiments named therein, as soon as they came to my hand. The companies made so great despatch in their march, that most of them came on (though well-spirited) without the precaution of a blanket, or even a change of clothing. They had conceived the idea, from the suddenness and urgency of the orders, that they were immediately to be called to action, and soon to return, which made them too incautious. I must, however, in justice, say, that a better body of substantial yeomen never appeared on such an occasion. They were admired and applauded for their spirit and zeal.

We no sooner arrived at King's Bridge, on Monday morning, than the General's letter met us, copy of which I now enclose. This at once seemed to check and mortify. We had no idea of sending back our horses, especially as the men had left their farms and crops in the most critical situation, and must return as soon as possible. I ordered them, however, to halt at the bridge, and, with Majors Starr and Sheldon, waited upon General Washington. He soon told us that forage could not be had upon the Island, (the drought being extreme that way,) and that he would by no means be justified to pay for it, if it could be found. This again flung us into some perplexity, for we thought at least if there was so great need of the men, from the danger of a sudden attack, as the General often expressed it, that the Continent ought to undergo the burden of detaining us. There was, however, no reasoning upon the subject. We then proposed finding pastures for our horses, at and this side of the bridge, and depend upon the Colony, and so tarry a short time, rather than be turned directly back, which might throw a discouragement upon the honest intentions and wishes of men forward to serve their country on any emergency. To this the General graciously consented; and after much difficulty to obtain pastures for a small space, we marched into the city, through dust and sweat. Our numbers were soon trebled, and the sound of it rung through the enemy's camp. The same day our horses were sent out, and the men were put into houses, with nothing but the clothes on their backs, for lodging. As soon as a return of our men could be made, a number were ordered upon guard. This was something unexpected, but cheerfully submitted to. Soon after, a further order came for mounting guard, and for eight of our men to go to King's Bridge upon fatigue, there to remain one week. The first of these requisitions was complied with, but the last declined, as unreasonable for men under our circumstances. Colonel Silliman, as well as others, advised against submitting to fatigue; that it was counter to the laws of the Colony, and what your Honour had no idea of subjecting us to. Major Hart, with me of course, (by direction of General Wadsworth,) waited upon General Washington, and stated the case, mentioned the exemptions of our law, &c., at same time suggested that the men would freely furnish guards of every kind, and man the lines, as they had done, if they might only be excused from working parties, for which they were in no measure prepared. We were answered, that no distinction could be made between our men and the rest, and if they would not submit to these terms, they might be dismissed. This reply, after we had come so far, left everything at home in the most suffering condition, had made such despatch, and placed out our horses at so much risk and expense, and had done every other duty in the time of the alarm, and also at other times (except that of the pick-axe, the shovel, and the wheelbarrow,) was indeed very humiliating. We could not account for such treatment, unless it was from the quarter of such who always viewed the existence of a body of Lighthorse with a jaundiced eye. It was the opinion of several General Officers that we ought to be excused; that it might be done consistently, and that we deserved thanks and applause instead of the reverse. And, in short, if so large and respectable a body of men, scattered through the Colony, are to be blamed, under particular circumstances, for not complying with every formal round of duty in camp, from which they knew themselves excused, it must rather create disaffection than otherwise. We are, however, willing, if we have done amiss, to stand amenable at your Honour's bar.

We left the city on Thursday noon last, when the most, if not all of our enlisted levies had arrived. About seven thousand of the Flying-Camp had also reached the Jersey shore. These at least must treble our number to that of the enemy. Lord Howe also arrived the Friday before, without fleet or army (save a ship or two.) Under these circumstances, no prospect of any sudden attack, our horses not to be kept any longer, the pressing circumstances of our affairs at home, and the general opinion that we could not be needed soon, (even General Putnam said we were not wanted,) together with the sudden and unexpected reply from the General, all induced us to return.

I have troubled your Honour too long with a relation of facts, but thought it necessary, that no mistake might arise from differing accounts. I ought to mention one circumstance further: that is, that just before I left New-York, after the men were all gone, Generals Spencer and Heath called upon me, and said there was a misunderstanding in the matter, and that they had just come from the General, and he meant to excuse us from fatigue. The matter was now over, the men gone and irrecoverable. And besides, the General had otherwise expressed it the evening before, when Major Hart, with me, waited upon him for the purpose.

I can't help remarking to your Honour, that it may be with truth said, General Washington is a gentleman of extreme care and caution; that his requisitions for men are fully equal to the necessity of the case; and that if more attention was had to the Northern Department it would be as well.

It is much to be lamented that our numbers of volunteers are so slow and deficient. Am persuaded that detachments must, after all, take place, as our only remedy.

I should have stopped here, but am this moment informed by Captain Hooker that Mr. Webb, General Washington's Aid-de-Camp, has written your Honour something dishonourable to the Lighthorse. Whatever it may be I know not, but this I do know, that it is a general observation, both in camp and country, if the butterflies and the coxcombs were away from the Army, we should not be put to so much difficulty in obtaining men of common sense to engage in the defence of their country.

Your Honour will excuse my freedom and prolixity in this, as it proceeds from no other motive than a sacred regard for the community of which I have the favour to be a member.

I am, with every sentiment of esteem and regard, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

THOMAS SEYMOUR.

GENERAL WARD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Boston, July 22, 1776.

SIR: The company of Artificers in the Continental service here, under the care of Captain Eayrs, your Excellency did not mention in your directions respecting the troops, and I must request your directions respecting said company. It is a very good company, and if such a company be wanted in the Continental service, I believe a better cannot be had.

Sargent's and Hutchinson's regiments marched the 18th instant for Norwich; Glover's marched the 20th. The two remaining regiments are recovering fast of the small-pox, and as soon as they can march with safety I shall order them forward. I shall use every precaution to prevent the marching regiments from communicating the small-pox, and for this purpose will endeavour that they shall be thoroughly cleansed, being sensible of the destructive consequences that would result from spreading this disorder in our armies, which are every hour liable to be called to action.

Application was made to me some days since by the Government of New-Hampshire for some ammunition to supply the Continental regiments now on their march from that State to join our Army in Canada; and as they had none to march through the woods with, and it would be unsafe to go without, I furnished them with eight barrels of powder, two thousand pounds of musket-ball, and two thousand flints.

I have ordered the proper returns, that I may be able to make such a return to your Excellency as mentioned in yours of the 11th instant.

I am your Excellency's obedient and very humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To General Washington.

COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS TO COLONEL FOSTER.

In Council, July 22, 1776.

SIR: In the list or return by you made out and signed in behalf of the Field-Officers of the Sixth Regiment of Militia in the County of Lincoln, of the Captains and subalterns chosen by the several companies belonging to said regiment, you express a desire that commissions may be made out, &c., except those for the third company, for the reasons for which exception the Council are referred to a copy of a petition annexed to said return, signed by Joseph Swett and others, which has been read; and thereupon

It is Ordered, That the Field-Officers of the Sixth Regiment of Militia in the County of Lincoln be, and they hereby are, directed to make a full inquiry whether the facts set forth in the said petition are true, and whether any corrupt practices were used in the choice of said officers; and they are directed to make return hereof to the Council as soon as possible.

To Colonel Benjamin Foster.

Worcester, Massachusetts, July 22, 1776.

On Monday last a number of patriotick gentlemen of this town, animated with a love of their country, and to show their approbation of the measures lately taken by the Grand Council of America, assembled on the green near the Liberty Pole, where, after having displayed the colours of the Thirteen Confederate Colonies of America, the bells were set a ringing and the drums a beating; after which the Declaration of Independency of the United States was read to a large and respectable body (among whom were the Selectmen and Committee of Correspondence) assembled on the occasion, who testified their approbation by repeated huzzas, firing of musketry and cannon, bonfires, and other demonstrations of joy; when the arms of that tyrant in Britain, George III., of execrable memory, which in former reigns decorated, but of late disgraced, the Court-House in this town, were committed to the flames, and consumed to ashes; after which a select company of the sons of freedom repaired to the Tavern, lately known by the sign of the King's Arms, which odious signature of despotism was taken down by order of the people, which was cheerfully complied with by the Innkeeper, where the following toasts were drunk, and the evening spent with joy, on the commencement of the happy era:

1. Prosperity and Perpetuity to the United States of America.
2. The President of the Grand Council of America.
3. The Grand Council of America.
4. His Excellency General Washington.
5. All the Generals in the American Army.
6. Commodore Hopkins.
7. The Officers and Soldiers in the American Army.
8. The Officers and Seamen in the American Navy.
9. The Patriots of America.
10. Every Friend of America.
11. George rejected, and Liberty protected.
12. Success to the American Arms.
13. Sore eyes to all Tories, and a chesnut burr for an eye stone.
14. Perpetual itching without the benefit of scratching to the enemies of America.
15. The Council and Representatives of the State of Massachusetts-Bay.

16. The Officers and Soldiers in the Massachusetts service.

17. The Memory of the brave General Warren.

18. The Memory of the magnanimous General Montgomery.

19. Speedy redemption to all the Officers and Soldiers who are now prisoners of war among our enemies.

20. The State of Massachusetts-Bay.

21. The Town of Boston.

22. The Selectmen and Committees of Correspondence for the Town of Worcester.

23. May the enemies of America be laid at her feet.

24. May the Freedom and Independence of America endure till the sun grows dim with age, and this earth returns to chaos.

The greatest decency and good order was observed, and, at a suitable time, each man returned to his respective home.

JOSEPH PALMER TO JAMES BOWDOIN.

Germantown, July 22, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have sent expresses to the commanding officers of the several regiments in my brigade for the draught ordered, which I expect will be immediately complied with. I think it was a wise and necessary measure; but permit me to suggest whether it is not necessary that there should be an appointment to general command at Hull, and also at the Castle, if not at each of the other fortified posts. I shall always consider ourselves weak until there is a general command appointed over all the forces when at such or such a station, whether they be Colonial or established regiments, Militia, or any others who may, upon an alarm or otherwise, be there. At present, it is apprehended that there is no such officer; for the particular commander of the Train has no command over Colonel Whitney's or Marshall's regiments; nor have either of them over the Militia, or others (excepting their own corps) who may be at such or such a post, upon any alarm; nor have the Militia officers any command but only over their own corps. The necessity and danger without it is so obvious when attended to, that I doubt not immediate provision will be made for it. I mentioned Hull and the Castle, because they are singly of more importance than some others, particularly Hull, which I consider is the key of the whole harbour, and therefore demanding more particular and immediate attention.

Upon this occasion, as new regiments will be doubtless raised, I would beg leave to mention my son for a Colonel, which is his rank. Upon account of the connexion, I have not pushed him forward; it was a delicate point. I now mention it, not as a favour to be conferred upon him or myself, exclusive of right, but founded therein. He was early engaged on the side of liberty, and was complained of to Governour Hutchinson by the Commissioners as a dangerous person. The tea affair witnessed his zeal, which was confirmed in a different way on the memorable 19th of April; and Colonel Hancock, of the Cadets, gave testimony to General Washington of his military knowledge. His conduct as the first Quartermaster-General, in the most difficult times, has been approved of by General Ward, and his removal from that office was, professedly, by General Washington, to make way for a worthy gentleman of another Colony, and not for any fault or incapacity; and by the General's recommendation, Mr. Mifflin offered him the deputyship in that office; but he, considering that all the blame, if any, would be thrown upon him, and all the praise, if any, would be given to another, declined an acceptance; since which he has been neglected, for what reason I know not. As a gentleman of letters, as a sufferer in the cause, having given up everything to it, as one whose moral character does honour to his religious profession, and as a person of military knowledge, he is, at least, equal to some who have been appointed. He has held himself in readiness to serve the publick, when he might have served his private interest with much greater prospect of advantage. I have not consulted him upon this application, nor has he seen what I write. He will not dance daily attendance at the levees of the great, humbly petitioning for that which his country ought to thank him for accepting. If he is neglected this time, we shall consider the publick as saying to him, "we have no occasion for your services, we have better men;" in consequence of which he will look out for other means to provide for his family and serve the State; and I shall really suspect that I am a stranger to his true character, that the publick know more of him than I do, and that he is not the man I have taken him to be.

I herewith enclose abstracts of the returns of the four Independent companies. They have never had any Commissary, which has occasioned much difficulty to them and me. They have not had any pay since December, as I think, and are now in straits for want of it, being part at Dorchester Heights and part at Hull, and very uneasy at their unsettled and ill-provided state. If those at Dorchester should be returned to Hull, where they are more wanted, the Commissary directed to supply them all, and they ordered to make up their rolls and billeting to a certain day, they may be kept quiet until they are regimented, or a Field Officer appointed over them; and when they are upon the same footing as others, they will cheerfully do their duty. I think they may be made part of the new regiments which it is supposed will be raised.

I am, dear sir, your very humble servant,

J. PALMER.

To the Honourable James Bowdoin, Esq., President of the Council.

PETITION OF THE TOWN OF WARREN.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety for the Colony of NEW-HAMPSHIRE:

The Petition of us, the Committee of the Town of WARREN, humbly sheweth:

That the inhabitants are destitute of fire-arms and lead, and pray that your Honours will grant us a sufficient quantity of fire-arms and lead, or otherwise grant us a sum of money to purchase them, as you in your wisdom shall think proper; for which we, the Committee of Safety for said Warren, will account, in behalf of said town.

We shall ever pray, &c.,

JOSHUA MERRILL,

JOSHUA COPP,

OBED. CLEMENT,

Committee for the Town of Warren.

Warren, July 22, 1776.

COLONEL DAVID GILLMAN TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Head-Quarters, Portsmouth, July 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have the pleasure to inform you that the works at New-Castle go on very well. If nothing extraordinary happens, I am in hopes the walls of that important fortress will be almost completed this week. I believe I may venture to say, it will be one of the most complete ones upon the Continent of America, when finished. I should have been almost ready to have mounted all the cannon on the fort by this time, could I have got timber to have laid the platforms, but am still at a loss. Should be glad to know how soon some might be procured for that purpose. I flatter myself, gentlemen, when I have got these works a little out of the way, shall have an opportunity to discipline my men, and make them somewhat respectable, in case we should be attacked. I should think it proper to have some person appointed to muster the men here, as the Captains are daily recruiting.

I am, gentlemen, with great respect, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

DAVID GILLMAN.

To the Committee of Safety.

Plymouth, England, July 23, 1776.

This day Commodore Fielding, with the last of the Hessians, Waldeckers, &c., Burgoyne's Lighthouse, horses for the Artillery, &c., &c., sailed for America. The Repulse, with the remainder (fifteen hundred) of the former division of the Hessians, sailed for America on the 25th of May.

B. JOHNSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Fredericktown, July 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I omitted in my letter in favour of Mr. Morris, to mention anything relative to equipping Captain Hardman's company. I have since had conversation with the Captain, and he is of opinion, that if you would furnish him with money, he could get guns, blankets, &c. For my own part, I think, from his assiduity, he will soon do it. Nor do I think it will be in his power to do it without.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant,

B. JOHNSON.

To the Council of Safety of Maryland.

MAJOR PRICE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Upper Camp, St. George's, July 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I arrived at this place the 21st instant, with one of the four-pounders; the other two I left at Leonardtown till further orders. After inspecting this camp, and giving the necessary orders, I went over to the lower camp, commanded by Colonel Barnes, who is stationed much nearer to the fleet than to this camp. I think a nine-pounder could reach the Fowey from one of the points, though I doubt our doing her much damage. The rest of the fleet lay outside of her. They are very quiet, and give us no disturbance. The Roebuck, and three or four large ships, went up the river the evening before I got here, since which a number of cannon have been fired, as I suppose, near the mouth of Nanjemoy. I have ordered the other two pieces of cannon to the lower camp, and shall, as soon as the nine-pounder arrives, order that there; and, if intrenching tools, which I have sent after, can be had, throw up an intrenchment as near the Fowey as possible. I find great difficulty in providing necessaries; it is the poorest part of the country I ever was in. I suppose there are not three spades and shovels to be had within ten miles.

We have several deserters from the enemy, most of them in the small-pox. A valuable negro made his escape from us last night, he not being so well guarded as he ought to have been, owing to the people's being afraid of the small-pox. The shores are full of dead bodies, chiefly negroes. I think, if they stay here any time, they must be ruined; for by deaths, desertions, and the , I think their business must be done completely. The officers who have been here some time, imagine about fifty corpses have been thrown on the shores.

Upon my arrival here, I was informed that General Dent had ordered a flag of truce on board the Fowey, to request a passage for Mr. Daniel Wolstenholme to go to England with his property; and this was done in consequence of a passport Mr. Wolstenholme obtained from the Committee of this County; and that he expected a boat every day to take him on board; but as matters are circumstanced, I thought it advisable not to suffer Mr. Wolstenholme to leave the Province, until your knowledge and approbation could be had relative to this business; therefore hope for your instructions by the return of this express, who promises to return immediately.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

THOMAS PRICE.

To the Council of Safety for the Province of Maryland.

P. S. The Fowey and Otter, with about fifty sail of vessels, are still here. This express to be paid by your Board.

MAJOR PRICE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Upper Camp, St. George's, July 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: About two hours after I sent off the express to you, which I had promised to detain till twelve o'clock, and did so, to give Mr. Wolstenholme an opportunity of writing to your Board, I received the enclosed packet from Colonel Barnes. The messenger told me, on delivering it, that it was for me, and, without looking at the direction, I broke the seal. A number of gentlemen were present. However, I discovered the mistake without knowing the contents, and enclosed it immediately. I hope you will pardon this blunder.

I am, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

THOMAS PRICE.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland, at Annapolis.

COLONEL BARNES TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

St. George's Neck, July 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed you will receive the papers relative to our permitting Mr. Wolstenholme to go on board the fleet here. The first application received from Mr. Wolstenholme was by myself directed to the commanding officer of the station where I was. On perusing it, I sent a message by the gentleman that brought it, to inform Mr. Wolstenholme, that as I understood General Dent was at the station at the Narrows, I should consult him about it, and send him an answer; which answer was, that it was not thought proper for him to depart, as you will see by a paragraph in one of Mr. Wolstenholme's letters; on receiving of which, he sent me his passport from the Committee of the County, a copy of which you have enclosed. Upon demanding of him that he would say nothing to the prejudice of the Province, he answered, that he defied his worst enemy to say that he had ever done or said anything inimical, or that had a tendency that way, but that he would not be bound to anything; but that the same principle that had ever been the rule of his actions would govern his future conduct. Well knowing, from the knowledge I had of Mr. Wolstenholme, that he was a man of honour, and his word not to be doubted, and as he had for several years been very anxious to go to England, and an opportunity now offered, which, in all probability, would not again occur for some time, and his passport from the Committee being unanimous, which, without very particular reasons, in my opinion, ought to be adhered to, particularly by the military, were the reasons for me to agree, with General Dent, that Mr. Wolstenholme should depart. By one of the letters written by Mr. Wolstenholme to Governor Eden, with my certificate to it, which was sent with a flag on board one of the men-of-war, it was understood by all the gentlemen here, and must have been by the fleet, that Mr. Wolstenholme was to depart, if they thought proper to send for him. Whether it is consistent with the honour of the Province to detain Mr. Wolstenholme after what has passed, I leave you to determine. But I must confess to you that I think the honour of the Province, together with General Dent's and mine, are concerned in it. I am really astonished at the slight received from Major Price, not to have been consulted or asked how the affair was really conducted, before he counteracted General Dent's and my conduct. I doubt not Major Price will inform you of our affairs here, which prevents my troubling you thereon.

Reports have been spread to Mr. Wolstenholme's prejudice, relative to a conversation passed between him and a gondola under his bank, without any foundation, as I am informed by several of his family, who heard the conversation, and were called on by him for that purpose.

I remain, with regard, your obedient servant,

RICHARD BARNES.

To the Council of Safety of Maryland.

P. S. The substance of the letter from Mr. Wolstenholme to Governor Eden was, to beg that he would use his endeavours to procure him a passage in a ship that was going to England, and that, if he could be received with conveniency, a flag might be sent from on board the fleet for him. Under which I wrote the following certificate:

"By order of General John Dent, I do hereby certify, that if the above shall be approved of, and a flag should be sent on shore, every due respect shall be paid to it.

"RICHARD BARNES."

Papers referred to by Colonel BARNES.

St. Mary's, July 17, 1776.

SIR: Doctor Keyman is so kind as to wait on you, in order to acquaint you of the danger my house and family were in this morning from a covered vessel, or galley, in his Majesty's service, the commanding officer not knowing who was the proprietor.

The manner in which it was prevented, and the conversation that passed between the commanding officer and myself on the occasion, which I have great reason to believe caused his immediate return, without any intention of doing further damage, and what happened afterwards to Mr. Morris's house, as well as the action which occasioned it, I flatter myself you will hear from persons whose veracity may, in general, be less questioned than my own at so critical a juncture. As I mentioned the term of four days, and it was found convenient to be received by the flag, I thought it necessary to acquaint you therewith, in order that you might appoint a proper officer on the occasion, and that every due respect may be paid to it, as the Militia, who have returned to my house since the affair, are, I apprehend, very little acquainted with ceremonies of this nature.

I am, very respectfully.

(Signed by Mr. Wolstenholme.)

To the Commanding Officer of the Maryland Provincial Troops, at St. George's, Maryland, St. Mary's County.

St. Mary's, July 19, 1776.

SIR: By Colonel Read, I am just now favoured with yours of this date, acquainting me that you have communicated my request to General Dent, "relative to sending and receiving a flag of truce from the fleet, and that he is against sending a flag on board, and permitting any one to go on board from this part, and that you therefore hope I will decline all thoughts of going at present."

If you will please to refer to my letter sent on the occasion, I presume you will find that the purport of it hath been entirely mistaken, as I only acquainted the commanding officer at St. George's, (which I find you were at that time,) that I thought it necessary to inform him a flag would be sent for me, and desiring that a proper officer might be appointed on the occasion, and that every due respect might be paid to it, as the Militia, who had returned to my house since the affair which I had mentioned in my letter, were very little acquainted with ceremonies of that nature. How, from the above request, it could be imagined that I asked the General's permission to depart the Province, or to go on board any ship in the fleet for that purpose, I am at a loss to determine; as he must, no doubt, be well acquainted with the genteel treatment I met with from the Committee of Observation of this County, and the unanimous consent they gave me to embark at any time I should judge most convenient to my health and private concerns. If, by the permission granted me, the Committee have exceeded the power delegated to them by the Convention, which it is my opinion they have not, to that body only, I apprehend, they are answerable; but their determination is no way subject to any controlling orders of the General; so that, unless the military power is authorized to supersede that of the civil, the General cannot possibly have any right to give the least obstruction to my intended embarkation. I therefore beg you will desire him to consider well the consequences of such a step, as well with regard to the rights which every freeman in this Province is entitled to, as the danger of that resentment which may possibly be expressed against innocent persons here, from a detention of an officer in his Majesty's service, without the least charge of any crime whatever against him. I am far from disputing the General's authority to receive, or not to receive, the flag; but I do deny that the military power hath any right to control that of the civil. If it has, the people of this Province are as complete slaves as any in Turkey.

As a friend, therefore, to the rights and privileges of a freeman of Maryland, I do expect and demand that no hinderance or molestation whatever be given to my departure for Great Britain, in any vessel I please, provided that it is the General's pleasure the flag of truce should not be received. Doctor Keyman, who is so kind as to promise the delivery of this letter, will, at the same time, furnish you with the passport granted me by the Committee, in order to be shown to General Dent, which, after his perusal of it, I must beg you will be pleased to return to him. Should its authority be still disputed, I shall be under the indisputable necessity of appealing to that power which, as in the case of his Excellency Governor Eden and Mr. Purviance, I flatter myself will support the rights of freemen against every undue invasion whatever.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your very humble servant,

DANIEL WOLSTENHOLME.

To Colonel Richard Barnes, at St. George's.

Court-House in Leonardtown, July 1, 1776.

In Committee:

Present: Colonel Abraham Barnes, (in the chair,) Major James Eden, Major Samuel Abell, Captain John Smith, Captain Edward Abell, Captain Everard Bond, Captain Vernon Hebb, Colonel John H. Read, Major Ignatius Fenwick, Mr. Wilfred Neale, Mr. William Taylor, Mr. Henry Tubman, Mr. Nicholas L. Sewell.

On reading a Letter from Daniel Wolstenholme, Esq., Collector of his Majesty's Customs on North Potomack, setting forth that, by advice of his Physicians, he intended to leave this Province and return to Great Britain, his native country, on account of his infirm state of health, for which purpose he had obtained a warrant from the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of his Majesty's Board of Treasury in London; yet the peculiar circumstances of the times, joined to his own inability to prosecute the intended voyage, had unfortunately prevented him from embracing the opportunity within the time limited by the aforesaid warrant, by which means he is utterly disabled, by peculiar circumstances, from making a second application to their Lordships for a renewal of it, and hoping, under such a predicament, to be able to justify his conduct in his proposed departure, finds himself under the necessity of making immediate application to this Committee for the grant of such a passport as may enable him to leave the Province with safety to himself and that security to his property which he hath ever hitherto enjoyed, so soon as he can, with convenience to the present situation of his affairs, procure a passage for that purpose: Thereupon,

Resolved, unanimously, That the said Daniel Wolstenholme, Esq., have leave to depart this Province (with his effects unmolested) to Great Britain, at any time hereafter as shall by him be judged most convenient for his health and private concerns; and that the Chairman make out a passport, to be delivered to the said Daniel Wolstenholme, Esq., agreeable to this resolve.

Test:

TIMOTHY BOWERS, Clerk.

MAJOR WILLIAMS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Fredericktown, July 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Colonel Stull informs me that at your last Convention, at Annapolis, you did me the very great honour of appointing me Colonel of the Frederick County Battalion, to serve the United States of America in the Flying-Camp, until the first day of December next.

Ever since the commencement of the unnatural war waged by a wicked Ministry against this country, I have considered it as my indispensable duty to exert my feeble abilities in its defence; and entering early into the service, have had the good fortune to be so far recommended to the honourable the Continental Congress as to obtain a commission as Major of a battalion of Riflemen, to serve the United States three years; and being diffident of my abilities to discharge the duties of a more exalted station at present, beg leave to decline the very honourable appointment by which you, gentlemen, have conferred an obligation on me ever to be most gratefully remembered and acknowledged.

I beg leave in a particular manner to profess my gratitude to those worthy gentlemen by whose recommendations I obtained so respectable an appointment. Their favourable opinion I trust will always be maintained by a propriety of conduct in, gentlemen, your most obliged and obedient humble servant,

O. WILLIAMS.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress of Maryland.

T. HANSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Green-Hill, July 23, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed I send you a list of my proportion of men raised as part of the Flying-Camp. This return I should have made sooner had I conceived it a necessary step. Officers that have made their returns taught me to believe that by this opportunity the end would be equally as well answered as if I had come up a few days sooner. I was unwilling, too, to leave the Province whilst I thought I might be of service in repelling Dunmore's men from landing. I hope, therefore, I shall not be suspected of negligence or inattention, as my design was for the best.

I should thank you for any information respecting arms for our men; if any money is allowed the officers to purchase arms; and when the men are to march.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,

T. HANSON.

To the Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, President of the Council of Safety.

JAMES MURRAY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee of Observation, Dorchester County, }
July 23, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: We received yours of the 16th instant, requesting our assistance in furnishing firelocks and blankets for the use of the Flying-Camp; which you may be assured we shall endeavour to comply with, as far as our situation will admit of; but we think we should be wanting in our regard for the publick cause and the safety and welfare of our country, if we omitted to repeat to your Honours, what we have on several occasions informed you of, our weak and defenceless state. We are satisfied at this time there are not more than a fourth part of the Militiamen in our County who have arms that can be depended on, and these only fowling-pieces and squirrel-guns, not fixed with bayonets. There are others, which are defective, some of which may be repaired, which we are endeavouring to have done; but a great part of these can never be made fit for service. As to publick arms, we have none that we know of in our County, and but twenty-two taken from Non-Enrollers and Non-Associates.

As to blankets, there are none that we know of in any of the stores here; nor is there any way we can think of by which there appears any probability of getting any, unless it be by applying to different families, some of whom may, on this occasion, perhaps, furnish a few, though this is uncertain, as there seems a scarcity of blankets among the people; however, on our receiving cash, you may be assured we shall endeavour by every means in our power to procure them.

We know of no person this way that can be engaged to make knapsacks with haversacks, priming-wires and brushes, camp-kettles, canteens or wooden bottles; if we should hereafter be informed of any such, we shall advise you of it.

We are, gentlemen, your obedient and very humble servants. Per order of the Committee of Observation:

JAMES MURRAY, Chairman.

To the Council of Safety of Maryland.

P. S. We learn from Mr. Goldsborough that we are to receive a supply of powder and ball or lead. We should be glad to be furnished with it as quick as possible, being in great want of it.

GENERAL DENT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Charles County, July 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The enclosed is the commission under which I have had the honour to act, and more especially by your late order, until the 21st instant, when an order was presented to me from your Honours, appointing Major Thomas Price to the command.

Be pleased to take notice that I will not in future accept of any commission from any body of men, under whom the same controlling power exists that has deprived me of my late command. If you have had any insinuations touching my conduct during the short time I have been in actual service, justice requires that I should be heard, when, I flatter myself, I shall be able not only to justify my conduct, but in some measure be entitled to the thanks of every sensible and judicious man; which, together with the success of the American arms, have been and still shall be, the study and sincere wish of, your obedient servant,

JNO. DENT.

GENERAL JOHNSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Fredericktown, July 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Peter Harrison, who was appointed a Lieutenant in Captain Hardman's company of Militia, having been named by the Committee as Lieutenant of the company of Riflemen now raising in this County, Captain Hardman has had the aid of one Mr. Morris, in Harrison's stead. Morris is a fine, lively young fellow, has been very serviceable in raising the men, and, I think, from what I hear of him, will make a good officer. I shall be glad that his application to fill Harrison's place in Hardman's company may prevail.

I am, gentlemen, very respectfully, your most obedient servant,

THO. JOHNSON.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee, July 23, 1776:

Present: Samuel Purviance, Jun., (Chairman,) J. Boyd, C. Ridgely of William, J. Calhoun, J. Cockey, J. Griest, J. Standeford, B. Griffith, T. Rutter, J. Moale, W. Buchanan, J. Gittings, E. Talbot, D. Lux, W. Tolly, Jun., A. Britain, T. Sollers, T. Gist.

On application from John Hatton to be relieved part of his Tax on account of his poverty, and it appearing to the Committee that his excuse is just, he is excused.

A Letter from the Committee of York County, in Pennsylvania, was read in Committee, respecting the circulation of Convention Money of this State in that State, requesting that this Committee would endeavour to promote the circulation of said Money in that State:

The Committee resolved, that they would represent the matter to the Legislative authority of this State, to remedy the said inconvenience.

A Letter from the Council of Safety of the 16th instant, on the subject of the Declaration of Independence; also a Letter from the Honourable President of the Congress, enclosed by them to our Board on the subject aforesaid, were read: Whereupon, it was Resolved, That on Monday next the Declaration of Independence, dissolving all connexion between Great Britain and the Thirteen United Colonies, and declaring them free and independent States, be proclaimed at the Court-House of the County.

Ordered, That Messrs. William Smith, John Boyd, and Benjamin Levy, together with the General and Field-Officers of the Town Battalion, and of the Independent Company, be a Committee to form the regulation of the procession for the Declaration of Independency.

The Committee acquainted Mr. Robert Christie, Jun., (Sheriff of this County,) of the time agreed on for the Declaration of Independency, and at the same time requested him to attend at the same time, and proclaim Independency; which he promised to do.

The Committee, taking into consideration that part of the Letter from the Council of Safety requiring our assistance to furnish the Militia from this Province that are to join the Flying-Camp with Firearms and Blankets, were of opinion, that, in order the more speedily to comply with their requisition, the Committee of Safety be immediately desired to furnish this Committee with £1000; which sum, when obtained, is to be lodged with Messrs. James Calhoun, William Aisquith, and John Boyd; who are requested to use the utmost expedition and industry in applying to the inhabitants of this County, and earnestly request all those who have it in their power, to supply the publick with Firearms for the purposes aforesaid; for the return of which in the like good order as when received, or, in case of loss, the value thereof, agreeable to an appraisement to be made by two reputable freeholders, the publick faith be pledged; and that they also be requested to purchase as many good Blankets as the inhabitants in the respective Hundreds in this County can spare; provided they do not exceed the sum of 20s. for every Blanket of equal quality with the best new striped Duffil Blankets, and not much injured by use, and so in proportion for those that, in their judgment, are much impaired by use, or of inferior quality.

Messrs. Calhoun, Aisquith, and Boyd, are appointed to write, and acquaint the honourable Council of Safety of the measures taking by this Committee to effect the purposes mentioned in their Letter. They are also to give Instructions to the persons employed in collecting Blankets and Arms, and to write to Mr. David McLure, in York-Town, to know whether any Blankets can be procured in that place in a short time.

The above-mentioned gentlemen are appointed a Committee to prepare and get printed, sixty copies of Lists for taking the number of inhabitants in this County, which they are directed to send to the persons appointed to take the numbers in the respective Hundreds.

The following persons were appointed to collect the Blankets and Arms in the different Hundreds in this County, viz:

Darby Lux, in Back River Upper, Back River Lower, Middle River Upper, and Middle River Lower Hundreds.

Captain Thomas Rutter, in Middlesex and Patapsco Lower Hundreds.

Shadrach Bond, in North and Soldier's Delight Hundreds.

Walter Tolly, Jun., in Gunpowder Upper and Mine Run Hundreds.

Charles Ridgely, of Wm., in Patapsco Upper Hundred.

William Lux in Delaware Hundred.

Colonel William Buchanan in Pipe Creek Hundred.

Mr. John Cockey Owings having by a note advised this Committee, that he declined acting as a Collector of the Fines assessed on the Non-Enrollers in Back River Upper Hundred, Mr. Shadrach Bond was appointed in his room.

Attest:

GEO. LUX, Secretary.

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, July 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your order of the 16th, for the purchase of blankets and arms, was yesterday taken into consideration by our Committee, by whom we are directed to inform you of the measures resolved on to accomplish your intentions. Several persons of judgment and activity, and of the most influence, are appointed to ride through different districts of the County, to use their best endeavours to prevail on the inhabitants to spare part of their blankets on the present emergency. The same persons are instructed to purchase all muskets which are either good or capable of being made so. We conceived there was so little chance of borrowing any, that it appeared to us vain to attempt, as those who are well disposed to defend their country will use their own arms, and those who are otherwise disposed, will be more influenced by the money than by any other arguments. In order to despatch this very urgent business the more expeditiously, we have borrowed a few hundred pounds, and given it to several of the gentlemen appointed for the purpose, who set off to the country this day. As we have recommended the greatest industry to the gentlemen who manage this business, we shall probably be able to inform you against next week of their success.

We have some information, which induces us to expect that a quantity of new country-made blankets may be procured in York County; therefore shall send an express this day to a person in York town, who can inform us on this subject.

The house-keepers in town spared all the blankets they could in the spring to accommodate the Regulars that were stationed here; so that few can be expected from them. Please to send the Committee £1000, to answer the intended purchase. Should we not be able to procure to that amount, the surplus may be returned.

We are, with much respect, by order and in behalf of the Committee, gentlemen, your most obedient servants,

SAML. PURVIANCE, Jun., Chairman.

WILM. AISQUITH,

JNO. BOYD,

JAS. CALHOUN.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

MUSTER-ROLL OF CAPTAIN GRAYBILL'S COMPANY.

A Roll of thirty-four men enlisted by Captain Philip Graybill, in virtue of a warrant issued by the honourable Council of Safety, for that purpose, and to him directed, bearing date the twelfth day of July, in the year of our Lord seventeen hundred and seventy-six.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO JOHN YOST.

Annapolis, July 23, 1776.

SIR: We are very desirous of knowing exactly what arms you have ready for the publick, that we may send for them. As soon as you get a wagon load, or such number as will be worth while sending for, let us know by first good opportunity, and if none offers, and your arms be ready, hire an express, and we will pay him. We are, &c.

To Mr. John Yost.

AFFAIR OF THE GALLEYS NEAR SANDY-POINT, JULY 23, 1776.

Captain CONWAY's Statement.

Alexandria, August 10, 1776.

To the Printer of the MARYLAND GAZETTE:

SIR: No other motive than in justice to my own character, as well as that of my officers, could ever induce me to request of you to publish the following Narrative and Depositions; more especially at this important juncture, when it is the duty of every individual to propagate the general harmony, and to discountenance every domestick contention that would seem in any way tending to frustrate the general good.

About five weeks ago, I had the honour to be appointed to the command of the Protector row-galley, belonging to this Commonwealth; I went down to Yeocomico to recruit men; I enlisted six hands; from the capacity and good behaviour, as well as the character that was given me of three of them, I appointed one my Second Lieutenant, and the other two Midshipmen. We knew that part of the enemy's fleet had gone up the river Potomack before us. Instead of coming up in a pilot-boat as we at first intended, we came up with two row-boats, thinking by that means to pass the fleet with greater safety. What happened after we came in sight of the fleet will appear by the following Depositions:

"The Deposition of JOHN THOMAS, Second Lieutenant to Captain ROBERT CONWAY, of the PROTECTOR row-galley, belonging to the Commonwealth of VIRGINIA.

"Alexandria, in Fairfax County, ss.

"This day came before me the subscriber, one of the Magistrates for the County aforesaid, John Thomas, Second Lieutenant to Captain Robert Conway, of the Protector row-galley, and made oath, that on Tuesday, the 23d day of July last, about nine or ten o'clock in the forenoon, near Sandy-Point, seven of us, with two boats, landed on the Maryland shore, within about half a mile of the enemy's fleet, which consisted of four ships, two tenders, and one row-galley, expecting, as soon as we landed, to have been guarded by a party of the Maryland Militia, having no fire-arms ourselves, thinking to pass the fleet the following night. As soon as we landed we conveyed our baggage to an adjacent house, when, after inquiry, we were informed the troops were opposite the Roebuck, to whom four of us immediately went; from whence we observed the fleet manning their boats, with intent (as we thought) to land on the Maryland shore, from which the Roebuck man-of-war seemed to be two or three hundred yards; when a gentleman they called Colonel Harrison, said, Come, let us march down; to which several replied, I can't bear to shoot a man; others, that their guns were out of order, with sundry other excuses; to whom Colonel Harrison said, You that have not a mind to go, give your guns to those men that came with Captain Conway. I then said, Give me a gun and ammunition, and I will go; which one of the Militia readily did; so down we marched, under the command of Colonel Harrison. Soon after we came down to the shore, the enemy gave three loud huzzas, and rowed over to the Virginia side, with two tenders, one gondola, and ten row-boats; from which they landed and burnt Mr. Brent's house, from whence they returned in about an hour to their respective vessels. In the mean time we thought ourselves very safe under the protection of the Militia; who, by this time, as we were informed had increased from between thirty and forty men, to between three and four hundred. In justice to Colonel Harrison, I must not omit informing, that he seemed very active and resolute, encouraging his men, and telling them that nature could not form a more convenient place than where he proposed they should be stationed. About three or four o'clock in the afternoon, the enemy's gondola and a schooner tender put off and made for our boats; seeing that, I said, Gentlemen, I hope, as we came to offer you our services, you will be kind enough to assist us in taking care of our boats, having no fire-arms ourselves; they said one company should go with us; then we ran down ourselves, and hauled the smallest boat about thirty or forty yards into a marsh, the other, which had ballast in, we hauled on the beach and staved. By this time the company of Militia came down, but the enemy being close ashore where our boat was, they stopped in a valley about fifty or sixty yards distance from the boat on the beach; the enemy's row-galley rowed several times towards the boat on the beach and back again; at last the row-galley and tender fired, on which the sentinels the Colonel had placed, ran across a cornfield and made for the woods; to whom the Colonel called, Come back; No, (says I,) they will not come back till they get to Port-Tobacco, (at which he laughed.) They would peep at the enemy when they rowed close to our boat, but never offered to fire, excepting it was the Colonel, who presented once, but recovered without firing. Some of them said, if the row-galley landed she would rake them up the valley, (which indeed was impossible;) at which they ran, the men first, after whom the Colonel retreated; notwithstanding, I am pretty well assured the Colonel would have stood, had he been supported by his men. When the enemy saw them (from the Roebuck's mast-head) running off, they hallooed at them, and called their sundry names; then made signs for the row-galley to pull ashore, which they did, and launched our boat off, then gave three huzzas, and fired several shot, both small and great, at the house where our baggage had been taken to; then returned to their ships with their booty, without having one gun fired at them. Colonel Harrison seemed to have that good opinion of Captain Conway as to say, he was assured that Conway would not be backward in taking a firelock. And further this deponent saith not.

"JOHN THOMAS.

"Sworn to before me,

"WM. RAMSEY, Justice of the Peace."

"The Deposition of EDWARD COLES and CUTHBERT ELLISTON, Midshipmen on board the PROTECTOR row-galley, commanded by Captain ROBERT CONWAY.

"Alexandria, in Fairfax County, ss:

"Likewise Edward Coles and Cuthbert Elliston, two Midshipmen belonging to the Protector row-galley, came this day before me, the subscriber, one of the Magistrates for the County aforesaid, in the Commonwealth of Virginia, and took the accustomed oaths, by virtue of which they depose and say: That on Tuesday, the 23d day of July last, coming up the river Potomack with Captain Conway, came in sight of the enemy's fleet, consisting of four ships, two tenders, and one row-galley, when we made for the Maryland shore, and landed about half a mile below them, expecting to have been protected by the Militia on shore, the number of whom (as we were informed soon after our landing) was between three and four hundred; we were seven in number, with two boats. Soon after we landed, four of us went up to the troops. After we were with the troops about an hour and a half, some of the men offered to give up their firelocks to us, and one in particular gave his gun to Mr. Thomas, our Second Lieutenant. We saw the enemy's two tenders, one row-galley, and some row-boats, filled with men, and making for the Virginia shore, (instead of coming to the Maryland shore, as we expected,) where they burnt Mr. Brent's houses; from thence they returned to their ships. Between three and four o'clock in the afternoon, we observed their row-galley and a schooner tender making down for the place where our boats lay. The little boat we pulled into a marsh out of their way, and hauled the big boat on the beach, which was staved by James Sorrell, by Captain Conway's order, before the enemy could come nigh enough to fire at us with any certainty. As soon as the enemy's row-galley began to fire, the Militia made a precipitate retreat, and ran up to the woods, after whom Colonel Harrison went up; then the enemy came and took the boat from off the beach, without having one gun fired at them, although some of the Militia were within less than one hundred yards of the boat when they took her off, and gave three huzzas. Further said deponents say not.

"EDWARD COLES,

"CUTHBERT ELLISTON.

"August 10, 1776.

"Sworn to before me:

WM. RAMSAY, J. P."

Soon after I arrived at Alexandria, my row-galley was ordered down to watch the motions of the enemy's fleet, but at my return, to my great surprise, I found the following Advertisement had been stuck up at several publick places in this town:

"ADVERTISEMENT.

"Alexandria, July 31, 1776.

"Whereas it appears, by certificates now in my possession, under the hands of Captain John H. Lowe, Mr. John

M. Burgess, and Mr. George Fraser Hawkins, of Maryland, that Captain Robert Conway has propagated a report, much to the dishonour of the Twenty-Sixth Battalion of the Militia of Maryland, viz: that three or four hundred of the said Militia betook themselves to flight as soon as the Ministerial row-galley began to fire: in order, therefore, to remove every ill impression made by the said report, I take this method of asserting that it is a malicious, infamous falsehood; as many gentlemen who were present, as spectators, when Captain Conway says this scene of cowardice was acted are ready upon oath to testify.

No man, conscious of his own integrity, would lay silent under such opprobrious epithets; therefore, in vindication of what I have already asserted, which was altogether to the same effect as the foregoing Depositions, I desire you will publish the foregoing Narrative, for the truth of which I appeal to every impartial spectator; and remain, sir, your humble servant,

ROBERT CONWAY.

Certificates of Captain JOHN N. LOWE and Mr. JOHN M. BURGESS and Mr. GEORGE FRASER HAWKINS.

Prince George's County.

I do hereby certify to all whom it may concern, that some time last week I fell in company with several people, who were on their way, by water, to Alexandria. Amongst these there was one Mr. Conway, as I understood, who said he was just from Sandy-Point, where a party of three or four hundred of the Maryland Militia was stationed; that as soon as the row-galley began to fire, the said Militia all ran; that Colonel Harrison walked after them, laughing at them, and never attempted to rally them; that the only man of spirit amongst them was one Jones, as he described; that the galley landed a parcel of her men and launched one of his boats, carrying her off, after giving three huzzas, without meeting with any opposition. This conversation, and a great deal more, passed in the presence of many gentlemen. I would have been more particular, but being very unwell with a bad fever, cannot at this time recollect every particular conversation that passed.

Given under my hand this 29th day of July, 1776.

GEO. FRASER HAWKINS.

To all whom it may concern.

We, the subscribers, John H. Lowe and John M. Burgess, set out on Wednesday last from Mr. George Hawkins's, with some other gentlemen, by water, in order to view the situation of the Ministerial fleet that was then lying opposite Sandy-Point; and on our way down we met with Mr. Conway, who said he was from Sandy-Point, where a party of three or four hundred of Militia were stationed, and at the appearance of a row-galley, which directed her course to the shore, and on firing, the said Militia ran off. He was asked whether the Colonel did not endeavour to rally the men; he said no, but walked after them and laughed. He said, as the row-galley approached the shore, the Colonel addressed his men in the following manner: You that will not fight, give your guns to those that will. On which declaration every man left the field but himself and one who we suppose to be one Jones. The row-galley landed a parcel of her men, launched one of his boats, gave three cheers, and carried her off, without meeting with any opposition. There were several other matters that he spoke, the particulars of which I do not at present remember, but all tended to the discredit of said Militia.

July 29, 1776.

Colonel HARRISON's Statement.

Charles County, October 21, 1776.

Mr. GREEN: SIR: Reports having been propagated by a certain Robert Conway, of the Protector row-galley, belonging to the Commonwealth of Virginia, his Second Lieutenant, and two Midshipmen, with design to dishonour the Twenty-Sixth Battalion of Militia of this Province; which reports being, within my own knowledge and that of many other persons, entirely without foundation, I had determined to treat them with contempt; but finding that they have carried the joke rather far, by publishing part of their story in the Baltimore and Virginia gazettes, and some of them swearing to the same, I think it high time to publish a little too, as a piece of justice due myself and those whom I had the honour to command. You will, therefore, be pleased to insert in your next paper the whole which Captain Conway has published in the Baltimore paper of the 20th of August, herewith sent you; also, the certificates under the hands of Captain John H. Lowe and Mr. John M. Burgess and Mr. George Fraser Hawkins.

The variation between Captain Conway's own narrative (as certified by Messrs. Lowe, Burgess, and Hawkins) and the depositions of his Lieutenant and Midshipmen, and again, the variation in what they depose, must make every impartial reader suspect the truth of them. Captain Conway asserts, that as soon as the row-galley began to fire, the said Militia (being three or four hundred in number) all ran; that as the row-galley approached the shore, every man left the field save two. Mr. Lieutenant swears that only one company out of the three or four hundred men ran. Messrs. Midshipmen swear that the whole three or four hundred made a precipitate retreat, and ran up to the woods; then they swear, that some of the Militia were within less than one hundred yards of the boat when the enemy took her off.

Men who mean to wound the characters of others in the eyes of the publick, by inventing and circulating falsehoods, should be extremely circumspect in what they say or swear; and, as I have already observed, the variation and inconsistency in the assertions and depositions of Captain Conway and his party, would make every impartial man suspect their veracity. However, to evince to every one that they are founded only in malice and mischief, I have taken the depositions of Messrs. Finley, Hunter, and Lawrason, of Alexandria, and Messrs. Matthews and Stoddart, gentlemen volunteers, which you will also insert, with the certificate under the hands of the Rev. Mr. Fendall and Mr. Warren Dent.

“Alexandria, October 4, 1776.

“On Tuesday, the 23d of July last, we, the subscribers, set off from this place with intention to see the enemy's ships, which we were informed were proceeding up Potomack, and arrived opposite them at Sandy-Point, in Maryland, about half an hour past six o'clock in the evening, where we found a body of Militia stationed, who informed us there were more men a little lower down the river, to whom we immediately went, and were by them told that Colonel Harrison, with a detachment of twenty-five men, was gone down to prevent the enemy's taking off Captain Conway's boats, by means of a gondola and armed schooner, which had left the ships for that purpose, as was conceived. We saw the Roebuck under way turning down, and firing now and then across the field, between the detachment and main body, and heard other great guns, which we supposed were from the gondola and armed schooner. We returned to the main body, when we immediately heard a brisk firing of small-arms and swivels, which was thought to be an engagement betwixt the detachment and the enemy. We think about sixteen cannon were fired in the whole. The men appeared to be all drawn up ready with their arms, and during the firing seemed in good spirits; and we heard several of them ask if they ought not to go to the assistance of the detachment. We neither saw nor discovered anything like cowardice, but, on the contrary, a willing spirit seemed generally to prevail.

“Sworn before me,

WILLIAM RANSAY, J. P.”

“Charles County, October 18, 1776.

“We, the subscribers, joined three Companies of the Twenty-Sixth Battalion of Militia, under the command of Colonel Harrison, at Sandy-Point, on Tuesday, the 23d of July last, early in the morning, in the character of volunteers. About nine o'clock the ships began to man their tenders and small boats; when Colonel Harrison ordered the three companies to stand to their arms, and, after watching the motions of the enemy a few minutes, gave orders for Captain Mustin's company, consisting of about forty-five men, including officers, to repair to the head of a valley which led down to the river nearly opposite the Roebuck. We fell in with this company at the head of the valley. A little while after, there came three or four strangers, who were questioned by Colonel Harrison, and informed him that they had come up the river, were going to Alexandria, and had landed a little below in two small boats. Those we understood to be Captain Conway, his Lieutenant, and two men. By this time ten row-boats, two tenders, and a gondola, were filled with men alongside of the Roebuck, which lay near four hundred yards from the Maryland shore. It was every moment expected the enemy would land and attack us. Colonel Harrison told Captain Mastin's company, that in case the enemy attempted to land there, he should instantly march down at their head and post them behind the beach; and after admonishing them, begged that if any one felt confused or under any paniek, to candidly inform him, and turn out of the ranks; on which one of the privates turned out, and told him that he did not like to march down the hill. He was then ordered to give up his gun and ammunition to some other that would, and Colonel Harrison delivered his gun to Captain Conway's Lieutenant, who said he would march down with us. About ten o'clock the enemy's boats, tenders, and gondola, left the Roebuck, giving three cheers, and, contrary to our expectation, went over to Virginia, where they landed, and set fire to Mr. Brent's houses. Colonel Harrison marched the company down to the beach, in order to show them where he intended to post them, had the enemy attempted, or in case they should attempt, a landing at that place. Before the enemy returned from Virginia, we were reinforced with about one hundred and twenty men under Colonel Hanson. About five or six o'clock in the afternoon, the enemy's small tender and the gondola were observed to be manning, and in a few minutes left the Roebuck, and directed their course towards the Bay, where Captain Conway's boats were landed. Colonel Harrison immediately ordered the men to arms, and conceiving the enemy's design was to take off Captain Conway's boats, gave Captain Mastin orders to take about twenty of his best armed men, and follow him down, to watch the motions of the tender and gondola. This detachment we joined, with two other volunteers; in the whole, we think it consisted of twenty-five persons. We proceeded down towards the Bay with all haste, and near the head of a valley met with Captain Conway and some of his men. Captain Conway went down the valley with Colonel Harrison, to show where his boats lay, and we followed close after in Indian file, and were halted at the mouth of the valley. He told the Colonel that one of his boats was drawn over the beach into a marsh; the other was on the shore staved, which was about fifty yards from us, though we could not see her from the mouth of the valley, on account of some bushes which grew on the beach. The tender had got in the Bay before we reached our post, and lay about one hundred and fifty yards off. As soon as we were halted, the tender fired one of her carriage-guns, which was presently succeeded by a discharge of grape-shot from the gondola; this load grounded within a few paces of us, and many of the shot, with several cannon-balls, were picked up the next day. Sundry great guns were discharged at us whilst we remained at this post. The gondola, after she came against the boat, rowed off and on, and, after a short time, seemed to be gradually getting more into the Bay, as if designing to open the valley and rake it. We heard Captain Conway say to Colonel Harrison that he thought she was endeavouring to rake the valley, and advised him to order a retreat, or words to the same purpose. The Colonel, after taking a view of the gondola, turned about, and, in a low tone, gave orders for a retreat to the head of the valley—the gondola being within seventy or eighty yards of us at the time. Five or six of the men who were in the rear, retreated some distance beyond the place intended, which we firmly believe proceeded from their not having heard the orders distinctly, as most of them returned immediately to the head of the valley, on being called to by some of the officers. From this place we observed the Roebuck had got under way and fallen down, and began to fire on us; also the tender, our situation being open to them both. The Colonel returned to the mouth of the valley, and we and others went different ways, to take another view of the gondola, which we found lying quite still, nearly opposite the boat, with her hatches close shut, and nothing visible but her oars and guns, though Captain Conway's Lieutenant had just before informed that her hatches were up and men exposed, which raised our hopes of getting a shoot. We recollect that, previous to our leaving the mouth of the valley, Captain Conway asked Colonel Harrison to let the gondola be fired at, to scare her off from the shore, which was refused, as there was no living object to shoot at. A retreat was then ordered to the main body by Colonel Harrison, and the detachment directed to scatter as they retreated through the old fields, to observe the flash of the enemy's cannon, and to fall down whenever they saw it. The fire from the Roebuck, armed schooner, and gondola, grew very warm, and the frequent falling down of the men occasioned a general laughter. We retreated to a fence at the edge of a wood, and lay behind it until the enemy's fire ceased, then returned to the main body, with which we remained until the ships went down the river, and the troops were discharged.

"Then came Messrs. John Matthews and William Stoddert, gentlemen, and made oath on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, that the above is a true state of the transactions at Sandy-Point, under Colonel William Harrison, on the 23d of July last.

"Charles County, October 20, 1776.

"Whereas we find, by sundry depositions published in the Baltimore Gazette, and by certificates under the hands of George Fraser Hawkins, Esq., Captain John H. Lowe, and Mr. John M. Burgess, that reports have been falsely and industriously propagated, reflecting on the courage, and tending to injure the character of the Twenty-Sixth Battalion of Maryland Militia, under the command of Colonel William Harrison: And whereas we think it a duty incumbent on us; and on every man, to rescue injured merit from undeserved reproach, and check any idle reports that may reflect disgrace on the American arms:

"We think it but common justice to declare, that many of the most injurious aspersions contained in the above mentioned publication and certificates, are, within our knowledge, totally false, and in every sense groundless. And we do further assert, that we attended the said Militia from the Monday of the enemy's arrival at Sandy-Point until their departure from said place; and that said Militia appeared to us to assemble with cheerfulness and alacrity. And we have all the reason in the world to believe, that had the enemy attempted a landing, they would have been warmly and vigorously opposed; for, on two different occasions, the one on Monday during a thunder gust, when the men were obliged to take shelter in a small house, the sentries gave an alarm that the enemy were preparing to land, they, so far from exhibiting any symptoms or signs of fear, were, on the contrary, in our opinion, too warm and impetuous, by springing out of the house without waiting for orders, and running towards the shore in an irregular manner; the alarm proved groundless, and their too eager behaviour drew from the Colonel a gentle reprimand. The other instance happened on the Tuesday morning when the alarm was given that the enemy were manning their boats, and preparing to land; and the general opinion was, and every man expected, that they would attempt a landing at Sandy-Point; on which Colonel Harrison ordered the men to stand to their arms, and in a very short time after, ordered Captain Mastin's company to the head of a valley which led down to the shore where it was expected the enemy would land. On this trial (and we do not believe men can be put to a greater or severer one) the men behaved with the most undaunted courage and cool intrepidity. Upon the whole, not only in the above particularized instances, but in the whole of their conduct, they appeared spirited, brave, and ready to engage.

"HENRY FENDALL,
"WARREN DENT."

Were it necessary, a variety of other evidence could be procured to invalidate these idle tales; but I firmly trust that the testimony now offered will fully satisfy every impartial and well disposed person. I would observe, that the gentlemen who depose and certify are not of the battalion—three of them residing in Alexandria, Virginia—and can have no further interest in its character than as good members of community. What motive induced Captain Conway and his officers thus to assert, and thus solemnly to depose, I am at a loss to say, unless it was to divert their constituents from an inquiry into their own conduct; for, be it known to the publick, that Potomack River at Sandy-Point is near four miles wide, and they, like persons wanting sense, landed their boats within a small distance of the enemy's ships, on the Maryland shore, when they might have evaded them at least three miles by passing along the Virginia side; and in case they had been noticed and pursued by the enemy, could at any rate have gone ashore, and sued for protection from the opposite Militia of Virginia. Had Captain Conway and his officers reported facts as they happened, they must have given the publick a favourable opinion of the Militia in general at Sandy-Point. A single company, armed and equipped as our Militia too generally are, was drawn up in their presence, ready to advance down to the beach, there to receive the attack of ten row-boats, two tenders, and a gondola, filled with men. On the commanding officer's admonishing this company, and begging that if any of them felt confused or afraid, to candidly inform him, one of the company, out of about forty-eight persons, said he did not like to march down the hill, and turned out of the ranks. Whether this be an instance of general cowardice, or not, the impartial publick will say. For my part, his refusal by no means surprised me, as the expedition appeared very dangerous, and was really so, though I thought it necessary. We were, agreeable to every one's idea, to oppose the landing of at least four times our number, and could we not have repulsed them, must have retreated up the hill, exposed to a near fire from the Roebuck, two tenders, and a gondola.

The retreat of the detachment in the afternoon, which went down to prevent the enemy's taking off Captain Conway's boats, was by my orders. If it was wrong, I am chargeable with it and not the men. However, I thought it prudent, and, in a similar situation, should act again in the same manner. I shall not, to humour Captain Conway or his crew, expose men to the fire of a gondola, when the chance of killing is only on the side of the enemy; but hope ever to be found ready and willing, with those whom I have the honour to command, to risk life whenever any valuable end can be answered.

Before I conclude, I must declare that, from the trial of the men at Sandy-Point, I entertain the highest opinion of their bravery in general; and were they equipped as men going into battle should be, would risk my life with them as soon as with any men in the world. And as Mr. Lieutenant Thomas has, in the course of his deposition, given his opinion of me, I must in return give mine of him: which is, in the sincerity of my heart, this, that he would at any time, to oblige a person on whom he was the least dependant, swear that black is white, or white black.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM HARRISON.

SAMUEL CHASE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, July 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Yesterday's post brought us yours of the 19th instant. The copies of the letters from Colonels Barnes and Jordan you omitted to enclose. We hope the necessity of recalling Captains Thomas and Hindman will soon be removed, and that they will be permitted to march to the Flying-Camp as soon as possible. It is of the last consequence to collect a sufficient force to oppose the British Army, which may be hourly expected at Staten-Island. General Washington has not above fifteen thousand troops. Two battalions of the Virginia Regulars are ordered to New-York. Four battalions in this Province, and two more in New-Jersey, are ordered to reinforce the Flying-Camp.

We agree with you that it will be useless to send men without arms. We have had no opportunity to consult Congress relative to subsistence of the men during the time they are collecting. We doubt not the expense will be Continental. If they should be employed upon your works, it would contribute to their health and defray the expense of provision.

A man who professes to be an adept in the refining of sulphur has applied to us, and enclosed are his terms. We are ignorant whether any quantity of sulphur has been discovered in our Colony, and do not know whether you want such a man.

We have no intelligence from New-York since the 19th; Lord Howe's fleet had not then arrived. We shall be obliged by the communication of any intelligence worthy of notice, and at all times ready to obey your commands.

Your most obedient servants,

SAML. CHASE,
T. STONE.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

LETTER FROM A MEMBER OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL LEE.

Philadelphia, July 23, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: It would take a volume to tell you how many clever things were said of you and the brave troops under your command, after hearing of your late victory. It has given a wonderful turn to our affairs. The loss of Canada had struck the spirits of many people, who now begin to think our cause is not abandoned, and that we shall yet triumph over our enemies.

The Declaration of Independence has produced a new era in this part of America. The Militia of Pennsylvania seem to be actuated with a spirit more than Roman. Near two thousand citizens of Philadelphia have lately marched towards New-York, in order to prevent an incursion being made by our enemies upon the State of New-Jersey. The cry of them all is for battle. I think Mr. Howe will not be able to get a footing in New-York, and that he will end the present or begin the next campaign in Canada, or in some one of the southern Colonies—the only places in which America is vulnerable. We depend upon Gates in the North, and you oblige us to hope for great things from the South.

The Tories are quiet, but very surly. Lord Howe's Proclamation leaves them not a single filament of their cobweb-doctrine of reconciliation.

The spirit of liberty reigns triumphant in Pennsylvania. The Proprietary gentry have retired to their country seats, and honest men have taken the seats they abused so much in the government of our State.

The papers will inform you that I have been thrust into Congress. I find there is a great deal of difference between sporting a sentiment in a letter, or over a glass of wine upon politicks, and discharging properly the duty of a Senator: I feel myself unequal to every part of my new situation, except where plain integrity is required.

My former letters to you may pass hereafter for a leaf of the Sibyls. They are full of predictions; and what is still more uncommon, some of them have proved true. I shall go on, and add, that I think the Declaration of Independence will produce union and new exertions in England in the same ratio that they have done in this country. The present campaign, I believe, is only designed to train us for the duties of next summer.

Adieu; yours sincerely,

AN OLD FRIEND.

To Major-General Lee.

DR. CADWALADER'S CERTIFICATE.

War Office, July 23, 1776.

The bearer, James Carmichael, a Continental soldier, says he is so ill as not to be able to join his regiment. Any physician of eminence certifying this will be of service to the man, as he wants to remain until cured.

RICHARD PETERS, Secretary.

I have examined James Carmichael, and am of opinion that he is incapable of doing the duty of a soldier.

THOMAS CADWALADER.

Philadelphia, Thursday, July 25, 1776.

Last Tuesday, the Convention of this Province appointed the following gentlemen as a Council of Safety, viz: David Rittenhouse, Samuel Mifflin, Jonathan B. Smith, Timothy Matlack, Samuel Morris, Jun., Owen Biddle, James Cannon, Samuel Howell, Nathaniel Falconer, Frederick Kuhl, Samuel Morris, Sen., Thomas Wharton, Jun., Henry Keppele, Jun., Joseph Blewer, George Gray, John Bull, Henry Wynkoop, Benjamin Bartholomew, John Hubley, Michael Swoope, Daniel Hunter, William Lyon, Peter Rhoad, David Epsey, John Witzel, and John Moore, Esquires.

WILLIAM MACLAY TO RICHARD PETERS.

Sunbury, July 23, 1776.

SIR: On notification from the War Office that flints were wanted, I immediately determined to examine what could be produced in that way in this country, my former general acquaintance with the country, in the practice of surveying, enabling me to prosecute such an inquiry with the greater advantage. The bearer, Mr. Ball, will produce you specimens of our success. Some of our gunsmiths, who have tried them in firearms, do not hesitate to pronounce them superior to imported flints. I will, however, be sufficiently happy, if, on general experience, they are found only equal. The vein or quarry appears inexhaustible, situate along the banks of Penn's Creek, down which and Susquehannah there is a safe and expeditious navigation for boats and canoes great part of the year; the distance from Sunbury about ten miles. I will only add, that if it is thought advisable to establish a manufacture of flints at this place, I will cheerfully render every assistance in my power.

And am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient and very humble servant,

WM. MACLAY.

To Richard Peters, Esq., Secretary of the War Office at Philadelphia.

G. NOARTTS TO RICHARD PETERS.

Sunbury, July 23, 1776.

DEAR SIR: In consequence of an advertisement put out of the War Office, a number of gentlemen of this County have taken pains to discover a quantity of flint-stone, and have sent Mr. Thermond Ball to you with some of it. If, from the specimen which will be delivered to you, it should be found necessary to establish any kind of manufacture of them, I am desired to acquaint you that the gentlemen here are ready to give any assistance in their power.

I am, sir, with respect, your most humble servant,

G. NOARTTS.

To Richard Peters, Esq., Secretary at War, Philadelphia.

WILLIAM ALLEN TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

July 23, 1776.

SIR: Since I had the honour of receiving a commission of Lieutenant-Colonel in the Army of the honourable Continental Congress, several circumstances have intervened, which render it extremely inconvenient, and indeed impossible, for me any longer to execute the duties of the said commission; wherefore, with the greatest sense of gratitude for your past favours, I humbly beg leave to resign it into your hands.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

WILL. ALLEN.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

LANCASTER COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Observation, Inspection, and Correspondence, at the house of Adam Reigart, the 23d day of July, 1776:

Present: William Atlee, William Bowsman, Lodwick Lowman, Jacob King, Henry Dehuff, Michael Mussen, Adam Reigart, Edward Shippen, John Miller, and Christopher Crawford.

William Atlee in the chair.

The Chairman handed the Committee two packets, received last night, between ten and eleven o'clock, by express; one containing Ordinances of Convention for disarming the Non-Associators; and the other containing Circular Letters from the Convention to the different Colonels and Commanding Officers of the Battalions in this County; which Circular Letters and Ordinances are sent off by expresses, as directed by the honourable the Convention.

The Chairman read to the Committee copies of two Letters: one from the Committee to Richard Peters, Esq., Secretary of the Board of War, acknowledging the arrival of the Prisoners sent here under the conduct of Captain Sterling, from Burlington; and the other of them to the Honourable Benjamin Franklin, Esq., the President of the Convention of this Province; which being read, are approved of, and ordered to be transcribed and forwarded as expeditiously as possible.

It is Ordered by the Committee, That John Leggit, of Captain Watson's Flying-Camp, do deliver to Captain Paxton, of Colonel Porter's Battalion, the Gun which Captain Paxton sometime ago intrusted him with; and if the said Gun should be in the hands of any other of Captain Watson's Company, he is desired to direct the same to be delivered to Captain Paxton, who hath engaged, in a Company now forming, to join the Camp in the Jerseys.

A number of the reputable inhabitants of Earl Township represent to the Committee, that the Militia in that district are about to march in a few days, under Colonel Peter Grubb, for the Camp in the Jerseys; that several families of the Associators who are obliged to march, will in a short time be in a suffering condition; and request this Committee to appoint such persons as may be proper to take charge of such as may be found not of ability to maintain themselves; and they, at the same time, recommend Mr. Gabriel Davis as a person that may be confided in.

The Committee, taking the same into consideration, do, by virtue of the authority to them given by the Resolve of the Committee of Safety of the 15th of July instant, nominate and appoint the said Gabriel Davis to take care of, and distribute to such distressed families in that district the allowance he shall judge reasonable; and he is requested to undertake this duty, and keep an account of his disbursements, that this Committee may draw on the Committee of Safety for the necessary sums of money, and return the proper account to that Board of his expenditures.

Joseph Park, of the Seventh Regiment, and John Langford, of the Seventh Regiment, are permitted to work with Ernest Born, Weaver—Mr. Michael Musser and Mr. Lewis Peters, here in Committee, engaging to be answerable for them, agreeable to the Resolves of this Committee.

William Craig, of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment, is permitted to work with William Tanner, Weaver—he, here in Committee, engaging to be answerable for him, agreeable to the Resolves of this Committee.

Robert Borreas, of the Seventh Regiment, is permitted to work with John Jordon—James Bickman, Esq., engaging for his good behaviour, &c.

Thomas Matchin, of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment, and John Jack, of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment, are permitted to work with Jacob Curry, Weaver—he here in Committee engaging to be answerable for them, agreeable to the Resolves of this Committee.

John Dare, of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment, is permitted to work with Joseph Simons, at the Silversmith's business—he here in Committee engaging to be answerable for him, agreeable to the Resolves of this Committee.

WILLIAM ATLEE TO BENJAMIN FRANKLIN.

In Committee, Lancaster, July 23, 1776.

SIR: Your express arrived here last night between ten and eleven o'clock, with the Ordinance of Convention for disarming the Non-Associators, and the Circular Letters to the Commanding Officers of the Battalions of Associators in this County; and this morning, about eight o'clock, we despatched three expresses to different parts of this County, with a Circular Letter and Ordinance to each of the Commanding Officers of the Battalions, agreeably to the orders of Convention; so that by twelve or one o'clock, to-day, we expect those officers will be possessed of them, and have no doubt will do everything in their power to forward the march of the Militia.

We shall, with great cheerfulness, agreeably to the requisition of Convention, aid and assist them, as far as in our power, to carry the recommendation of Congress into the most immediate and effectual execution, by providing them with every necessary which we possibly can. We have assisted such Captains as have had companies ready, or nearly so, with cash, camp-kettles, and a few muskets and bayonets, and our gunsmiths have been busy for a few days past in repairing their arms. But we think it our duty to mention to the Convention that our stores are nearly exhausted. We have distributed our muskets and bayonets, so that we have hardly sufficient in good order to relieve our necessary guards. Our tin-workers are out of tin, so that no more camp-kettles can be expected from them; and we have taken up the chief part of the cash to be found amongst our moneyed men, which we have distributed amongst the officers, to enable them to advance something to such of their people as stood in need of it; and beg leave to submit to the Convention, whether money should not be immediately lodged here in proper hands, to be paid by discretion of the Committee to the officers that march with the Militia, for the use of their men, most of whom require some little necessities, and many of them have families with whom they would choose to leave a few shillings. We should be happy to have it in our power to supply these or any other necessities to our Militia as they march. Their applications are to us; and they expect here to be equipped and assisted, and it gives us pain to see their disappointment.

Our tin-workers say there is no tin to be had in Philadelphia. Should there be any in the publick magazines to spare, we should keep our tinmen employed in making kettles and canteens for the troops. We shall use our best endeavours to keep our gunsmiths busy, and do everything in our power to execute the orders of the Convention, and promote the general interest; and are, sir, your most obedient humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

W. ATLEE, Chairman.

To the Honourable Benjamin Franklin, Esq., President of the Convention of Pennsylvania.

WILLIAM ATLEE TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

In Committee, Lancaster, July 23, 1776.

SIR: Captain Sterling arrived here on the 21st instant, and delivered us your letter of the 16th, mentioning his being appointed to conduct a number of prisoners to this town. The prisoners arrived here with him; and as our barracks were full, we have been under the necessity of taking a house for their accommodation till some additional buildings are made at the barracks; to do which we hourly expect orders from the Committee of Safety, Convention, or Congress.

Captain William Goodwin, of the Artillery, before he left this place to proceed with Captain Sterling for Fredericktown, assured the Committee in writing, under his hand, that, upon his arrival at Fredericktown, he would sign the parole directed by Congress. We therefore permitted John Brown, one of the prisoners sent to our care, to attend him, with directions to have him sent back under the care of Captain Sterling, if Captain Goodwin, upon his arrival at Frederick, should refuse to sign his parole, and engage for the good behaviour and appearance of his servant.

As Captain Gamble experienced the like indulgence at Philadelphia, and had his servant from among the prisoners, upon his signing the parole and engaging for him, and as Captain Sterling assured us the Congress would have permitted all the prisoners to have had their servants had they not absolutely refused signing the parole, we ventured to favour the application of a gentleman who was represented to us by Captain Sterling as a worthy good man, with a family in a distressed situation.

We are, sir, your very humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

WILLIAM ATLEE, Chairman.

To Richard Peters, Esq., Secretary of the Board of War, Philadelphia.

PETITION OF JONATHAN ROLAND AND OTHERS.

Earl Township, Lancaster County, July 23, 1776.

Whereas the Committee of Safety, Philadelphia, July 15, 1776, making a recital in the Gazette, No. 2,482, that the Assembly of this Province did, in a former session, resolve, that if any Associator called into actual service should leave a family not of ability to maintain themselves in his absence, the Overseers of the Poor, with the concurrence of one Justice of the Peace of the City or County where such Associator did reside, shall immediately make provision by way of out-pension for the maintenance of such family; and said Committee considering that the funds of said Overseers will prove greatly insufficient whenever a considerable number of Associators are drawn into actual service, the said Committee have resolved, that out of the funds of which they have the disposition, they will make such provision as they shall think necessary to answer the said purposes, and that it is recommended by said Committee to the Committees of Inspection and Observation for the City of Philadelphia, and the several Counties in the Province, to nominate and appoint a proper number of judicious persons residing in said City and Counties, respectively, to distribute to such distressed families the allowance they shall think reasonable.

Whereas we the petitioners, in behalf of ourselves, in this time of emergency, do make our address to you, gentlemen, who are the Committee of Inspection and Observation for the County of Lancaster, as we are to set out under Colonel Peter Grub in a few days for the Flying-Camp now in the Jerseys, and finding that several families belonging to such Associators as are obliged to march away will in a short time be in a suffering condition, in consideration whereof we the petitioners, request, gentlemen, you would nominate such persons as you may think proper to take the charge of such as may be found not of ability to maintain themselves in our district.

Gentlemen, if it might not be thought impertinent in your petitioners to mention a person for the above purpose, we would be satisfied you would nominate Gabriel Davis, as he is a person we confide in to give us satisfaction in our absence; and your petitioners are in duty bound to pray.

CAPTAIN CREGIER TO THOMAS RANDALL.

Cranberry Inlet, July 23, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour about four weeks since, by the hands of Dr. Boyd, wherein I found you advised me to join Captain Rogers; but understanding Rogers was gone to the Sound in order to refit; and what more induced me to keep to the southward was my having expectation of meeting with some of the fleet, which I much expected this way, but have been deprived of that satisfaction. There appeared six sail one day, and seven sail the other day; but they were all large ships under strong convoys, so there was no doing anything with them, and every day frigates cruising along this coast. Three days ago fell in with a ship and sloop tender about ten guns, the frigate being about a mile and a half from the sloop, and was determined to give the sloop battle, but could not bring her to battle. I have been assisting in bringing into this and Egg-Harbour Inlet, two prizes taken from the West-Indies by two different privateers. One of those prizes I had much trouble with, and in short was three days at work getting the other into port, who lay aground on the bar of Egg-Harbour, a ship of three hundred tons, laden with sugar, rum, and molasses, bound to Bristol.

I am too well informed that your city is invaded by pirates and ruffians, whom I hope in God to hear a good account of, and that very shortly.

My provisions grow short, and in a little time shall want a new supply, unless I fall in with some of the enemy's store vessels; but as for that I cannot promise myself, but will discharge my duty in the search of them; and as for being supplied by the way of Long-Island, I believe there is no prospect, as I do imagine the troops intend landing on the said Island. My bread is but very indifferent, and does not keep good; although it is aired every fortnight, yet it moulds very fast, and believe it never was made of sound flour. You know I laid in only four months' provisions, and you may judge how long what remains will serve me.

My people begin to want many articles, and I would be glad if you will send me some cash, that I may furnish them with a little. I have advanced of my own cash to the officers and men £39. The custom out of Philadelphia is to advance half of their wages monthly, and beg you will send me whatever you think proper, and charge the same to me.

I beg your advice in every respect; and any instructions given me I shall gladly comply with. Myself, officers, and men, are willing at any time to march to your assistance, on the shortest notice; and I am willing to sacrifice both life and everything to serve my country. Whatever instructions you may have, let me have by the bearer, my chief Lieutenant.

I remain, with due respect, your humble servant,

THOMAS CREGIER.

To Thomas Randall, Esq., Member of the Provincial Congress in New-York, or any of the Marine Committee in New-York.*

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read July 24, 1776. Referred to the Board of War.]

New-York, July 23, 1776.

SIR: I was honoured with your favour of the 20th, by yesterday's post, since which, and my letter, nothing of moment has occurred.

The ships mentioned in my letter of the 21st to have been in the offing, got in that day, and are supposed to be part of the Scotch fleet, having landed some Highlanders yesterday.

Enclosed I have the honour to transmit you copies of a letter and sundry resolutions, which I received last night from the Convention of this State. They will inform you of the computed number of inhabitants and stock upon Nassau-Island, and their sentiments on the impracticability of removing the latter, and also of the measures they think necessary and likely to secure them.

I have also enclosed a letter from Mr. Faesh to Lord Stirling, upon the subject of a cannon furnace for the use of the States. Congress will see his plan and proposals, and determine upon them as they shall judge proper.

I am, sir, with every sentiment of respect, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

*To the Honourable the Congress of New-York, assembled at the WHITE-PLAINS, in the State of New-York:

The humble petition of us the subscribers sheweth: That we have been four months in the service of the American States, on board the schooner General Putnam, during which time we have not been to sea but eleven days, all the rest of the time we have spent inactively at the head of inlets, five or six miles from the mouths thereof, from whence, at any emergency, we could not put out without great difficulty, and often not at all. That we have at sundry times lain a week, sometimes longer, in an inlet; and in one we have lain at anchor, four or five miles from the mouth, a full month, without ever attempting to go out, or scarcely offering to send any person to look out. That numbers of vessels have passed and repassed without our endeavouring to speak them, notwithstanding it was the opinion of the officers we had several opportunities very favourable. That with our commander, Thomas Cregier on board, we have not been out of this inlet in seven weeks. That our said commander hath several times insulted the officers when they have candidly advised him, and gave them to understand that their business was only to answer a question when asked, and not attempt giving advice. That in correcting the people for slight or no offences, he hath used unlawful weapons; once presenting a pistol to the breast of one Byrns for only requesting to know what his stated allowance was, and swearing by God he would blow a ball through him. At another time, with a large hickory club, striking one Belt on the head and much wounding him, for what, in our opinion, scarcely appeared a crime. That in no one thing has he complied with the resolves of the Congress, his whole conduct being one series of folly, vice, and inconsistencies, setting the most scandalous examples to the people, swearing, lying, and frequenting the company of the most contemptible of women, presenting the private property of others to them. Also at sundry times giving the ship's and cabin stores away. We are sorry to have occasion to lay these charges against our commander; but, black as they are, they can be proved by the journals of the officers and the evidence of the most respectable persons in these parts. That, by these means, he hath rendered himself despicable to every man on board; has greatly dissatisfied every friend of the cause, and become the derision of its foes. That we cannot with honour serve any longer under the command of the said Thomas Cregier. That it is our sincere opinion (with him as our commander) we have not done the least service to our country, and the season of the year being so far advanced, we humbly conceive the vessel unfit to be continued in the service, she being weakened, and consequently would endanger our lives in a gale of wind; besides, she leaks so that not a man in the hold can lay dry in the cabins. And, at the same time, we solemnly declare our ardent desire to exert our utmost abilities in defence of our distressed country in any station where there is a probability of doing it, and profess ourselves fully satisfied with the conduct of our Lieutenant, Mr. Quigley, and the officers in general. And though we confess it would be most agreeable to have a discharge from this vessel, yet, if your honourable House should think proper to continue us therein, (as long as the season will admit,) under the command of Mr. Quigley, or any other person you shall appoint, except the said Thomas Cregier, we shall cheerfully comply; for we beg leave to assure you that we glory in yielding obedience to your commands; but humbly request, for the honour and interest of our country and ourselves, that the said Thomas Cregier may be cashiered. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

July 20, 1776. }

SIR: I have the honour to enclose your Excellency, by order of the Convention, a copy of sundry resolves which were yesterday agreed to, for the defence of the inhabitants and protection of the stock on Nassau-Island; and beg leave to submit to your consideration a short state of the situation and circumstances of that Island and its inhabitants, from which you will see the inutility of any attempts for a total removal of the stock from thence.

It is supposed there are near one hundred thousand head of horned cattle, besides a much larger number of sheep and other stock, the removal of which would necessarily consume the greatest part of the campaign. But supposing the same could be effected in a short time, vast numbers of the stock must inevitably perish for want of subsistence, as it could not be procured within any reasonable distance. Besides, such a measure would reduce the inhabitants, computed from twenty-five to thirty thousand, to the most deplorable and insuperable difficulties and distresses. These considerations have induced the Convention to give over the thought of removing the stock from the Island, as not only impracticable, but not advance of the publick service, especially as the waste and common lands in the easternmost part of Queen's and Suffolk Counties are so covered with thickets of wood, as to render it too dangerous for foraging parties to attempt to penetrate.

I trust that the Militia now to be raised, (which is expected to form a corps of between seven hundred and nine hundred men,) with the troops already stationed at the east end of the Island, may be sufficient to remove the stock from those places which are most exposed, and prevent the depredations of small detachments. And should the enemy attempt, with their main Army, to fix themselves on any part of the Island, I doubt not but your Excellency will give a good account of them.

The Convention have received information that there are a considerable number of fatted cattle and sheep on the Island. They submit whether it would not be proper that the Commissary-General should be requested to give the preference in purchasing to these cattle.

I cannot conclude without expressing my wishes that the detachment under Lieutenant-Colonel Livingston may be continued at their present post, for that part of the Island is so much exposed to be insulted by the enemy's cruisers, that I fear the inhabitants would totally abandon the country should those troops be drawn off.

I have the honour to be, most respectfully, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

NATHAN. WOODHULL, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

In Convention of the Representatives of the State of New-York, }
July 20, 1776. }

This Convention having taken into consideration the expediency of removing the Stock from Nassau-Island:

Resolved, That it will not be for the publick good, provided it were practicable, to remove the Stock from the Island, except such Cattle, Sheep, and Hogs, as are fit for the use of the Army.

2d. That the common Stock in Suffolk, King's, and Queen's Counties, be put in such convenient and secure places in each County as may be most convenient, to be guarded by a sufficient number of Troops, and to be driven off into the interior parts of Nassau-Island, whenever the Commanding Officer or Officers of the said Troops shall order, to prevent such Stock from falling into the enemy's hands; leaving, if he shall judge it safe and necessary, with each large family, three Milch-Cows, two Cows to a middling farm, and one to a small family. And if the said Commanding Officer finds that he cannot prevent the Stock from falling into the enemy's hands, he may order them to be killed or destroyed.

3d. And to the intent that no person may be a loser by said Stock being killed or destroyed,

Resolved, That the oath or affirmation of the owner of Cattle, describing their number, age, and qualities, shall be a direction for the valuation of such Cattle, driven from his possession: Provided, That no person who has joined, or shall go over to and join the enemy, or who has been or shall be in anywise aiding or assisting the enemy, shall, in consequence of this resolve, be entitled to a compensation for any loss he shall or may sustain.

4th. That the Commanding Officer of each Battalion of Minute-Men and Militia in Suffolk, Queen's, and King's Counties, be ordered immediately to draught out one-fourth part of the Minute-Men and Militia of said Counties, and carry these resolves into execution; and that the Field-Officers of the Minute and Militia Regiments in each County do appoint such Captains and Subalterns to command such draughts, out of the Militia or Minute Officers, as they shall judge most proper; and that the draughts be formed into Companies, to consist of one Captain, two Lieutenants, three Sergeants, three Corporals, one Drummer, one Fifer, and fifty Privates. And in case any draughts shall be left after the Companies are completed, and not sufficient to form another Company, Officers shall be appointed for them in the following proportion: one Captain and one Lieutenant, two Sergeants and two Corporals, for forty Privates; two Lieutenants, two Sergeants, two Corporals, for thirty Privates; and one Lieutenant, one Sergeant, and one Corporal, for twenty Privates—each man to find his own arms and accoutrements. That the Field-Officers of the said Militia, so to be draughted, be appointed by this Convention. The troops so raised to have Continental pay and rations, and to continue in service until the last day of December next, unless they shall be sooner discharged. That the Non-Commissioned Officers and Privates of the said Troops, who shall furnish themselves with a good and sufficient Musket or Firelock, Cartouch-box and Belt, and Bayonet or Hatchet, shall be allowed ten dollars bounty to each man.

5th. Resolved, That the Brigadier-General of Suffolk and Queen's Counties be directed to order the Militia of those Counties to hold themselves in readiness to march into either of the said Counties, or any other part of Nassau-Island, on the shortest notice, with five days' Provisions. And that the President of this Convention be, and he is hereby, directed to write a Letter to the Colonel of the Militia of King's County, ordering that he hold his Regiment in the like readiness, to march to any part of Nassau-Island, with five days' Provisions.

6th. Resolved, That Colonel Josiah Smith, of Suffolk County, be First Colonel of the Troops to be raised by draughts from the Militia on Nassau-Island; that Colonel John Sands be Second Colonel of those Troops, with the rank of Colonel, but with the pay of a Lieutenant-Colonel; and that Abraham Remsen be Major; that Colonel Benjamin Birdsall, at south side of Queen's County, take the command of one Company of those draughts, with Chaplain's pay, saving his rank.

7th. Resolved, That the Rations of the said Troops be estimated at the rate of 10½d. each, which they are to receive in Money, in lieu of Provisions.

JOHN MCKESSON, Secretary.

White-Plains, July 22, 1776. }

Resolved, unanimously, That the Colonels of each Regiment of Troops to be draughted from the Militia of the Counties of Dutchess, Westchester, Ulster, Orange, Suffolk, King's, and Queen's, be each of them, respectively, a Muster-master of the several Regiments draughted or inlisted in the said Counties; and that each of said Colonels do return, upon oath, to this Convention, a Muster-Roll of the Regiment by him so mustered as aforesaid; and that no person so draughted or inlisted, receive his Bounty until he shall have passed muster.

Resolved, unanimously, That the one-half of the Bounty to be given to the draughts from the Militia in the said Counties, be sent to the Committee of each County, to be paid unto the said Troops immediately upon and after their passing muster as aforesaid; and that the remainder of the Bounty be paid when the said Troops shall be mustered by the Continental Muster-master, at their respective places of rendezvous; and that his Excellency General Washington be requested to cause the said musters to be completed with all possible despatch.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read July 25, 1776.]

New-York, July 23, 1776.

SIR: Since I had the pleasure of writing you, by this morning's post, I was favoured with a letter from Governour Trumbull, a copy of which is enclosed, and to which I beg leave to refer you.

In regard to the stock he mentions, I wrote to him requesting that they might be removed from the Island on which they were, as I conceived it of great importance to distress the enemy as much as possible in the article of fresh provisions. I wish the other Governments may follow his example, and have it removed from the Islands belonging to them respectively.

When the ships of war and tenders went up the river, it was thought expedient that application should be made for the Connecticut row-galleys and those belonging to Rhode-Island, in order to attempt something for their destruction. As soon as they arrive we shall try to employ them in some useful way; but in what, or how successfully, I cannot at present determine.

Congress will please to observe what Mr. Trumbull says respecting the Continental regiment raising under Colonel Ward. If they incline to give any orders about their destination, you will please to communicate them by the earliest opportunity, as their march will be suspended till they are known.

The orders Mr. Trumbull has given to the officers of the cruisers to stop provision vessels, seem to be necessary. We have too much reason to believe that some have gone voluntarily to the enemy; and that there are many persons who would contrive to furnish them with large supplies; and however upright the intentions of others may be, it will be a matter of the utmost difficulty, if not an impossibility, for any to escape falling into their hands now, as every part of the coast, it is probable, will swarm with their ships of war and tenders. I had proposed writing to the Convention of this State upon the subject before I received his letter, and am now more persuaded of the necessity of their taking some steps to prevent further exportations down the Sound. In my next I shall inform them of the intelligence received from Mr. Trumbull, and recommend the matter to their attention.

I have the honour to be, with great esteem, sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

P. S. It appears absolutely necessary that the exportation of provisions should be stopped; our Army is large, and otherwise may want; nor can individuals be injured, as they have a ready-money market for everything they have to dispose of in that way.

Lebanon, July 17, 1776.

SIR: Your favours of the 7th and 9th instant are duly received. It gives me pleasure to meet your approbation of the measure of sending our regiments of Horse to join you. I make no doubt they will cheerfully acquiesce in whatever you shall direct respecting their horses, as the general good of the service ought to be, and I believe is, their governing principle. I find our battalions are filling up fast, and moving to your assistance.

The stock of horned cattle and sheep are removed from Fisher's Island and the Elizabeth-Islands. Block-Island lies in the Colony of Rhode-Island, and the Elizabeth-Islands and Martha's Vineyard are in the Province of Massachusetts-Bay: I cannot, therefore, with propriety, give any orders for the removal of the fresh provisions from them.

I am sorry it is not in my power to comply with your requisition for heavy cannon without leaving our port or harbour of New-London in too defenceless a state. By a return from the overseer of our cannon-foundry at Salisbury I find they have cast fourteen six, eighteen nine, and eight twelve-pounders, and are proceeding to bore them out and fit them for use. He has my orders, when the twelve-pounders are finished, to deliver them to your Excellency's order, to be used where they may be most wanted, without waiting for further orders from me. Ball for twelve-pounders are also to be had there. Should you have occasion, you will please to give orders accordingly. I expect eighteen-pounders will be soon cast there, which is the largest size we can hope for from that furnace.

I have ordered two of our row-galleys to proceed to New-York, and trust they will be with you at the receipt of this; they have no guns larger than nine-pounders. I wish it

Red-Hook, July 22, 1776.

SIR: As I mentioned to you before, Captain Read is soliciting for a discharge. The reason, he is informed by letters which he cannot discredit, that his wife is verging to the close of life by means of a chronick disorder, which appears too inveterate to yield to the efficacy of medicine. He cannot so far stifle the tender emotions of conjugal affection as to remain in absence. The distance is so great that he cannot wish to injure the service by requesting a furlough, leaving a weakness in the command of his country. From these circumstances I am induced to request you to represent his prayer to the Commander-in-Chief, whose exalted wisdom and humanity cannot fail of directing what is right in so disagreeable a situation.

I am, sir, your very humble servant, J. VARNUM.
To General Greene.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER DATED HUNTINGTON, LONG-ISLAND,
NEW-YORK, JULY 23, 1776.

Yesterday, the freedom and independency of the Thirteen United Colonies was, with beat of drum, proclaimed at the several places of parade, by reading the Declaration of the General Congress, together with the Resolutions of our Provincial Convention thereupon; which were approved and applauded by the animated shouts of the people, who were present from all the distant quarters of this district. After which, the flag which used to wave on Liberty Pole, having "Liberty" on one side, and "George III." on the other, underwent a reform—i. e., the Union was cut off, and the letters George III. were discarded, being publickly ripped off; and then an effigy of the person represented by those letters, being hastily fabricated out of base materials, with its face black, like Dunmore's Virginia regiment, its head adorned with a wooden crown and stuck full of feathers, like Carleton's and Johnson's savages, and its body wrapped in the Union, instead of a blanket or robe of State, and lined with gunpowder, which the original seems to be fond of,—the whole, together with the letters above mentioned, were hung on a gallows, exploded, and burnt to ashes. In the evening, the Committee of this town, with a large number of the principal inhabitants, sat round the genial board, and drank thirteen patriotick toasts, among which were, The Free and Independent States of America; The General Congress; The Conventions of the Thirteen States; Our principal military Commanders; and success and enlargement to the American Navy. Nor was the memory of our late brave heroes, who have gloriously lost their lives in the cause of liberty and their country, forgotten.

Southampton, Suffolk County, New-York, July 23, 1776.

Last Monday afternoon, was exhibited to view in this town a very agreeable prospect: the old gentlemen, grandfathers, to the age of seventy years and upwards, met, agreeably to appointment, and formed themselves into an Independent company. Each man was well equipped with a good musket, powder, ball, cartridges, &c., and unanimously made choice of Elias Pelletreau, Esq., for their leader, (with other suitable officers,) who made a very animating speech to them, on the necessity of holding themselves in readiness to go into the field in time of invasion. They cheerfully agreed to it, and determined, at the risk of their lives, to defend the free and Independent States of America. May such a shining example stimulate every father on Long-Island in particular, and America in general, to follow their aged brethren here.

CAPTAIN DENTON TO GENERAL WOODHULL.

New-York, July 23, 1776.

SIR: Some weeks ago, the Second Lieutenant of my company secretly deserted it; but, previous to his leaving me, he assigned his warrant over to Cadwalader Moore, one of my Sergeants, a young man every way well qualified to act in the capacity of an officer, and who bears an unexceptionable character, and is of good family. Upon relating the circumstance of my being destitute of a Second Lieutenant to my company to some of the members of the late Committee of Safety, they told me they would mention the matter in Committee; and shortly afterwards I was informed by Mr. Cooper, (one of the members I had mentioned the affair to,) that the Committee had ordered that James Mil- ler, my Ensign, should be Second Lieutenant, and Cadwalader Moore Ensign; and upon that, Moore went to some expense in purchasing regimentals, and has ever since appeared in the character of an officer. Lately, the commissions were issued for most of the officers of the regiment, but Mr. Miller's commission was detained from him, and no commission issued to Mr. Moore, which occasions some uneasiness in my company. I must therefore request the favour of you to lay the affair before the Convention; and if any further light is required on it, Mr. Strong, the bearer, will be able to give it. I have the only full company in the regiment, which makes me take the greater liberty of mentioning the affair to you.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,
DANIEL DENTON,
Captain in Third Regiment New-York Forces.
To Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq.

REPORT ON COMMISSIONS FOR CAPTAIN DENTON'S COMPANY.

Your Committee, appointed to take into consideration the letter received from Captain Daniel Denton, dated 23d instant, and from such information as they could collect, do report:

That a commission be made out for James Miller, as a Second Lieutenant, bearing date the 3d day of May last; and another for Cadwalader Moore, as Ensign, bearing date the same day, both in the company commanded by Captain Denton, and in Colonel Ritzema's regiment.

COLONEL CORTLANDT AND CAPTAIN PLATT TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Peekskill, July 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: There was yesterday a council of war held at Fort Montgomery, where it was agreed that three hundred men would be a sufficient guard on the east side of Hudson's River, from Anthony's Nose to Croton; but as all the troops belonging to this State are withdrawn, the whole draught has fallen on the New-England forces, who have agreed to stay until Saturday next, but we think it will be impracticable to prevail on them to stay any longer there. Beg the Convention would order such parts of the new levies as may be raised to be on the ground at that time, to relieve them. Colonel Cortlandt's regiment has been called out, and I think there may be depended on about fifty or sixty of the new levies from the said regiment by Saturday. About three hundred of the New-England troops returned home this day; and by some pay-rolls delivered in, it appears that their subsistence money, for men and horses, will amount to near six hundred pounds. Therefore, in order to pay said subsistences, and discharge sundry other accounts, request the Convention to give an order on the Treasurer of this State for six hundred pounds, to be paid to the bearer, John Levinus.

No particular occurrences have happened. The ships remain a little below Verplanck's Point. Have made no attempts to land lately. One of their barges was seen night before last rowing down the river by Teller's Point. We have since ordered twenty men stationed at Albert Aarsen's, below Croton. The detachment from General Ten Broeck's brigade have also left Fort Constitution and the heights they were ordered to occupy above Anthony's Nose, it is supposed in order to raise their men.

Remain, gentlemen, your very humble servants,
PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT,
ZEPHA. PLATT.

To the Honourable the Representatives of the State of New-York.

P. S. This instant an officer arrived here by order of General Washington, in search of three French gentlemen, whom he found here. They are suspected of being spies from Canada.

GENERAL GEORGE CLINTON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort Montgomery, July 23, 1776.

SIR: I am favoured with your Excellency's commands of the 17th instant, and am happy to find the measures taken here for the reception of the enemy's shipping approved. Yesterday some of the carpenters from Poughkeepsie arrived at this place with the fire-rafts. They are constructed on the plan lately transmitted to your Excellency by my brother. We are busy preparing, and hope to be able to-morrow or next day to draw them across the river, though I fear we will be put to great difficulty in procuring anchors, cables, &c., for securing them. The combustible matter with which they are filled will, I apprehend, hardly be quick enough, for want of spirits of turpentine and saltpetre. We have neither, and I don't know where to apply for or how to procure these necessary articles. Should the enemy ever attempt to gain possession of this fortress by land, with equal numbers only, we are in a bad situation to defend it. The hill on the south side of Poopen's Kill, and not above one-seventh of a mile distant, overlooks every gun almost in our battery, which lies in open view of it. It is accessible to the enemy from a landing that we cannot command with our batteries, by a road along which field-pieces may easily be brought up. We must, for the safety of these works, keep a large body of men there, should the enemy attempt landing, if no works are erected. If fortified, a less number will hold the ground, annoy the enemy's shipping, and render us safe from that quarter or any attempt by land. Indeed, it is the spot where our first works should, in my poor judgment, have been made. Mr. Jay, Messrs. Livingston, Mr. Tappen, and Mr. Yates, a Committee of Provincial Congress lately at this place, are of opinion with me, that this fortress is by no means safe, unless that height is secured. General Fellows and other officers from the eastward are all of the same opinion. They advised me to begin some small works there. I have laid such out, as well as I know how; and the Militia are employed in making fascines and other necessary preparations which are not attended with any publick expense; but I can't think of doing anything more than making a small breastwork for musketry, until I receive your Excellency's orders on this head, especially as there may be good reasons against erecting any such works, which, from my want of military knowledge, don't occur to me. A few cannon would serve them; and these, I think, may be spared from other fortifications here, where they cannot be so serviceable.

I find large arrears are due to the few artificers, carters, &c., employed in completing these works. Since the Commissioners of Congress were dismissed, I believe there has not been any money furnished the commanding officer for that purpose. They are uneasy, discontented, and, in my opinion, do not half work. We dare not drive them till able to pay them, and are obliged to use our own private cash and credit to prevent their leaving us, which they threaten, and we can't as yet do without them.

Nothing of any great importance has happened since my last. On the 16th instant the enemy's shipping came under way, and proceeded up the river opposite the stores at Haverstraw, about eight miles above where they first lay, opposite Tarrytown. They discharged a few shot at the houses on the west shore, without doing any damage. I went down there next day, caused the goods to be removed out of the stores, and the cattle, sheep, &c., contiguous to the shore, to places of safety, and ordered one hundred and eighty Militia, under a prudent officer, to protect that neighbourhood and prevent the enemy getting any supplies. In the afternoon a tender sloop made sail, and ran up within full view and long-shot of our battery, sounding the river carefully as she beat up. We gave her a thirty-two-pounder, which hit her; she put about, and fell down to the shipping, plundering a small house on her return, near the shore, before our people could possibly get there.

The 17th instant, the Rose, Captain Wallace, and the same tender, came under sail. The tender, soon after, endeavouring to cover a barge in shore at which our people were firing, ran aground, and did not get off before evening. The Rose proceeded up within three miles of this, plundered a poor man's house, and set it on fire. Captain Wallace headed the party who committed this little robbery; his share of the plunder was a handkerchief full of salad and a pig so very poor that a crow would scarcely deign to eat it. The house stood single under a mountain, and we thought the poverty of the owner would be a sufficient protection, though we had a party not far distant, but they were not able to arrive time enough to prevent the mischief. Their being able to move from place to place so much quicker by water than we can by land, is much against us. However, I think I have my party so disposed of now as to prevent effectually any mischief in future. The Rose fell down in the evening near to where the tender run aground, and the next day the Phoenix moved up to her; so that they now all lay about five or six miles below us.

A deserter swam on shore from the Rose a few nights ago. I directed Colonels Nicoll and Hay to take and transmit to your Excellency his examination, which I hope you have received. He was a volunteer in our service last summer, was taken on board of one of our privateers last winter by the Rose, is now here, and well known by our Artillery officer and people.

I am very apprehensive that the enemy's shipping (from their moving up so near us, and other little circumstances) mean to take the advantage of a dark night, and slip by us. The shores are high and bold, and the navigation of course safe and easy. To prevent this, I keep out an advanced guard every night on the extreme point in view, about two and a half miles below our works, properly prepared to kindle up a large light fire on the shipping's heaving in sight; I have also on the shore, opposite the battery, for a considerable distance up and down the river, large piles of dry brushwood, mixed with leaves and the best combustible matter I can procure, with proper persons to set them on fire upon the signals being given from the first point; so that, by having them between us and those lights, we will be able to play upon them with great advantage, while our shore will be thereby darkened to them.

The Militia from New-England, on the opposite shore, have lately applied to our Congress at White-Plains for leave to return home. They referred the matter to a council of war to be held here, and yesterday General Fellows and other officers attended on that business. The result was, that all should be dismissed but three hundred, who were to continue to defend the shore. I think that number sufficient.

I am sorry to trouble your Excellency with so long a letter. I am induced to give you so particular an account of the motions of the enemy here, that, by comparing them with their movements below, some judgment may, perhaps, be formed of their designs, while diffidence of my own judgment in military operations leads me to inform your Excellency of every little step we have taken. These considerations, I hope, will apologize for my being so prolix.

I am, with the highest respect, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

GEO. CLINTON.

To His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. Since writing the above, Messrs. Livingston, Van Zandt, and Lawrence, arrived here to consult upon the most advisable way of fixing a chain across the river, and to view the shores. The ship-carpenters at Poughkeepsie are making more rafts and other matters advised by the Committee of Congress. The bearer may be trusted with your Excellency's commands for this post.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER DATED AT FORT MONTGOMERY, IN THE HIGHLANDS, JULY 23, 1776.

The British piratical rovers up the river were then below Verplanck's Point. Their intentions were unknown; but it plainly appeared that their design in coming up was entirely frustrated. They were far from expecting we were so well prepared to receive them, especially at the Fort. They were well watched on both sides the river; and, on Friday last, one of their tenders having got aground, would have been destroyed by our people on shore, had it not been for want of boats. A continual fire of musketry was kept upon her till she was relieved by the assistance of the Rose man-of-war.

Captain Wallace, the noted pirate, with about thirty men, landed at Haverstraw, where they set fire to the house of Captain Lilly, a noted Tory, who was the first and only one who received a specimen of the kind treatment they as well as others may expect from their newly-adopted friends. The British Act of Parliament makes no distinction between such and the freemen of America.

We have at this post one thousand men, well equipped; seven hundred at Fort Constitution; and several thousands at Peekskill, on both sides of the river. At General Clinton's request, I came down here to assist in preparations for a proper reception of the enemy, should they deign to favour us with a visit.

Last Thursday, a prisoner escaped by swimming from on board the Rose man-of-war. He is a native of Boston, well known to many officers and men from thence, in the Train. Was last summer in the service. He was taken by the Rose, on his passage from Ipswich to the West-Indies; so that his information respecting those worse than freebooters may be relied on, viz:

That by the conversation of the Rose's crew, he found that they expected, on coming up, to be joined by five hundred Tories, who were to have driven down with them plenty of stock of all sorts; that they had been informed great quantities of provision and goods of all kinds were deposited in the stores at Peekskill, which they were to have destroyed, and then, proceeding through the Highlands to Poughkeepsie, were there to destroy our men-of-war on the stocks; that they appeared highly mortified in finding everything in a situation so different from what they had been made to expect; that the Rose had on board one hundred and ten men, (boys included,) and twenty marines; that in passing New-York, the greatest damage they received was from the batteries at Paulus-Hook Ferry, and the Blue-Bell; that the cook and another man had each a leg, and another his thigh, taken off by a cannon-ball; that two twelve-pound shot lodged in the head of the foremast just below the hounds, one went through and through the quarter; one into the quarter gallery and cabin, and three were cut out just above her black streak. Her shrouds and rigging were much hurt.

The Phoenix's damage he was unacquainted with, and, being a prisoner, it could not be expected they should inform him. He only heard, accidentally, that she had a twelve-pound shot in her bowsprit.

CAPTAIN WYNKOOP TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, July 23, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I send you down one gondola, and I expect to send you one more the latter end of this week. The vessel and one gondola which are now on the stocks, I expect to have done next week, and will send them down also.

I have sent this day to the saw-mill concerning boards, and there were none sawed. But I am going to-morrow to the saw-mill myself, and I will have them sawed as quick as possible, and sent down to you.

There are this day twenty-nine carpenters more arrived at this place. There are none of General Waterbury's men arrived yet; so that I find I am too weak at present to supply the saw-mills and carpenters with what they want to forward the business.

I would be glad if the General would order those two small companies of my regiment now in the Fort here to help me. Then I think I would be able to forward the work in a proper manner.

I find thirty men here of Colonel Van Dyke's regiment. I would be glad if the General would please to order them over to Ticonderoga, where part of their regiment now lies; for as they are Militia, I find them to be under no command, and I am tired of being plagued with people of so many different corps as I have been already this year.

I would be glad if the General would order some rum over here for the carpenters, for we have none at all; and among rum, I would be glad of one barrel of West-India.

I find we want one set of blacksmith's tools more, which I have sent for by express to General Schuyler, at Albany.

I have no more; but conclude, dear General, with my compliments to you, and so remain your affectionate friend and humble servant,

CORNS. WYNKOOP.

To Major-General Gates, at Ticonderoga.

GENERAL GATES TO COLONEL HARTLEY.

Tyonderoga, July 23, 1776.

SIR: Your letter to me of the 21st instant, with that to General Arnold of the same date, are now before me. Mr. Brown was brought here by your party. I am much obliged to you for your address in securing him. The Indian goods are received, and sent forward to General Schuyler. The raft, with the party under Captain Perams, of Colonel Burrell's regiment, arrived last night. If the procuring the boards and timber is attended with all the labour and difficulty you mention, I think Colonel Wait had better desist, and return to his regiment; but he should first destroy the remainder of the raft, and such ship-timber as may be useful to the enemy.

When the command down the Lake returns, you will be strengthened by their reinforcement. Mr. Hops is intended to be employed in the capacity you mention, where I wish his behaviour to be such as to merit further promotion. The service in the vessels will be the post of honour. Those who distinguish themselves therein may depend upon my protection. I will direct Lieutenant-Colonel Baldwin to send down the carpenters of your regiment as soon as possible, to be employed at the saw-mill in the manner you recommend. I will consider whether it be proper and convenient to send smiths to Crown-Point. If that is determined, such as can be spared from hence shall be sent there.

This will be delivered to you by Major Bigelow, of the Artillery, who goes by the positive command of General Washington, and the honourable the Convention of the United States of America, with a letter to General Burgoyne. You may send your orders to Onion-River by him, and he should be directed to send back all the parties now upon the scout down the Lake. The commanding officers of those parties should have some private signals, that they may not attack or interrupt each other's discoveries. They ought all to be called in, and desist from further progress, while the flag of truce is going up and down the Lake. As some more batteaus will go to Crown-Point to-morrow morning, I shall consider what I have further to say to you, and write by that opportunity.

The oars for the gondolas should be forwarded with all expedition. I am, sir, &c.,

HORATIO GATES, Major-General.

To Lieutenant-Colonel Hartley.

GENERAL GATES TO THE COMMANDING OFFICER AT ALBANY.

Tyonderoga, July 23, 1776.

SIR: The prisoner (Brown) who is sent with this, has been a conductor of artillery stores, and is accused, among many acts of villany, of selling the publick stores of ammunition, &c. He is suspected, likewise, of attempting to escape to the enemy. He has, by some means, put the principal evidence in this case out of the way, so that, at present, it is not possible to proceed in his trial. For this reason, I send him to you, with my orders to confine him in close jail, under care of a guard, in the city of Albany, till you receive orders from me to release him.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES, Major-General.

To the Commanding Officer at Albany.

REUBEN FOSTER TO GENERAL SULLIVAN.

Newbury, Cohos, July 23, 1776.

SIR: The bearer of this, Monsieur Traversé, having come over to this part of the country from the parish of St. François, by a tedious journey, claiming our protection, as being in danger of suffering there by his attachment to the general cause of American liberty, and having served as Captain of Militia in the said parish, under commission of Captain Goforth, while commanding a party at Trois Rivières, as appears by his papers; by which, and the account he gives of himself, we think him an honest man, and have shown him all the civility in our power, at the same time taking the most prudent and cautious method of conveying him through the country to the Head-Quarters of our Northern Army, where he expressed his desire of going, having been known to Major-General Sullivan, and several officers of our American Army, that he might give the best intelligence he could. We hope for your approbation in our conduct; and, with our warmest wishes for the success of our Army under your command, remain, very respectfully, sir, your most humble servants,

REUBEN FOSTER,
SAMUEL BAYLY,

Chairmen of Committees of Newbury and Haverhill.

To the Hon. Major-Gen. Sullivan, or the Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army at Crown-Point.

GOVERNOUR OF RHODE-ISLAND TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.
Providence, July 23, 1776.

SIR: On Sunday last, in the afternoon, Lieutenant Calcott, of the Merlin, came into Newport with a flag, and delivered me a letter from Lord Howe, with his declaration. I do myself the honour to enclose copies of them and of my letters to him. Mr. Calcott also left with me three letters from Lord Howe, I suppose of the same tenour with that to me, directed to the Commander-in-Chief of Massachusetts-Bay, Connecticut, and New-Hampshire, to be forwarded.

The General Assembly have passed an act for the punishment of traitors, and have also appointed a Committee to procure clothing for the Continental troops in this State. I enclose a copy of the act approving the resolution of Congress declaring the United States independent of the British Crown. The Declaration was published on Saturday last, at Newport, with great solemnity, in presence of the whole General Assembly, the brigade being under arms, thirteen cannon fired, &c. It will be published here on Thursday, and in the several towns in the Colony at their next stated meetings.

I am, with great truth and esteem, sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

NICHs. COOKE.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

P. S. The carpenters are all inlisted. Their baggage proceeds to-day, and they follow to-morrow.

East-Greenwich, Rhode-Island, July 26, 1776.

On Tuesday last, the Kentish Guards, commanded by Colonel Richard Fry, appeared in their uniforms. About twelve o'clock they drew up on the parade before the State-House, when the Declaration of the General Congress, declaring these Colonies free and Independent States, was read; likewise a Resolve of the Assembly, concurring with the same, which was announced by a discharge of thirteen cannon at Fort Daniel. Next, the Guards fired thirteen volleys. This was followed by three huzzas from a numerous body of inhabitants. They then repaired to Arnold's Hall, where, after partaking of a very decent collation, the following patriotick toasts were drunk:

1. The Thirteen United States of America.
2. The General Congress of the American States.
3. General Washington.
4. The American Army.
5. Augmentation of the American Navy.
6. In memory of those immortal Heroes who have fallen in the American cause.
7. May a happy rule of Government be established in the State of Rhode-Island.
8. American Manufactures.
9. Free trade with all the world.
10. May true patriotism warm the breast of every American.
11. May the Independency of the American States be firmly established, and a speedy peace take place.
12. May Liberty expand her sacred wings, and, in glorious effort, diffuse her influence o'er and o'er the globe.

CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety, July 23, 1776:

Present, His Honour the Governour, Eliphalet Dyer, Jz. Huntington, Benj. Huntington, Jed. Elderkin, and Nathan-iel Wales, Esquires.

Mr. Daniel Dee is appointed Second Lieutenant of the Company of Matrosses, under command of Captain Nathan-iel Saltonstall, at New-London, in the service of this Colony.

Voted, That this Council do approve of an order drawn by his Honour the Governour, dated the 22d, on the Pay Table, for £200, in favour of Ephraim Bell. To render his account.

Voted, That this Council do approve of an order drawn by his Honour the Governour on Colonel William Pitkin, to sell to Mr. James Phelps, of Spencer town, of the Colony of Massachusetts, fifty pounds of the Gunpowder in said Colonel Pitkin's hands, belonging to this Colony, at the price of 5s. 4d. per pound.

Voted, To draw an order on the Pay Table for £200 in favour of Josiah Elderkin, to enable him to purchase Tents and Clothing for the Continental Army; to be paid out of the money lodged by Mr. Sherman in the Treasury, if lodged there for that purpose; otherwise, to be paid out of the proper Treasury of this Colony; and to render his account. Order given 23d July, 1776, and delivered Colonel Elderkin.

RICHARD DERBY, JUN., TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read July 29, 1776.]

Council Chamber, Watertown, July 23, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 16th instant is now before us, and in answer thereto we have little to say in addition to what this Board wrote you in their letter of the 19th instant. Marching orders were issued some time ago to the commanding officers of the regiments ordered to be raised for Canada and New-York, and we have now the pleasure to inform you that many of the men have already marched for their several destinations, and we expect the whole will be gone in a few days.

The fifteen hundred men last ordered for the Northern Department are now raising with all possible expedition, and the necessary preparations are already made for their marching, so that we hope that Army will soon receive such reinforcements as will enable them to prevent the enemy from making any further advances upon us in that quarter. And we again assure you, that we will still continue to exert ourselves zealously for the publick good, hoping shortly to hear matters have taken another turn, and that our publick affairs will soon wear a more favourable aspect.

In the name, and by order of the Council, I have the honour to be your most obedient servant,

RICHARD DERBY, Jun., President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

REUBEN SWAIN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Nantucket, 7 mo., 23d, 1776.

RESPECTED FRIEND: I have desired the bearer, Micajah Coffin, to wait on thee to request thy permission for liberty to make a request to Lord Howe for the liberation of a son of mine and two sons-in-law, that were taken about five weeks ago on their return from a long and tedious whale-voyage on the coast of Brazil. One of my sons-in-law and my son were in the brig Speedwell Pembroke, Obed Bunker master, and now supposed detained on board the Greyhound, ship-of-war, Captain Dixon. The consideration and anxious concern that must attend parents and near relations, who have their children and near connexions placed in such disagreeable situations, I hope will induce thee to suffer some mode of application for their relief; which shall be accepted with gratitude, as a favour done to thy respectful and assured friend,

REUBEN SWAIN.

To George Washington, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army in America.

BENJAMIN BARNARD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Nantucket, 7 mo., 22, 1776.

RESPECTED FRIEND: I have desired the bearer, Micajah Coffin, to wait on thee to request thy permission for liberty to make a request to Lord Howe for the liberation of a son and brother of mine, who were taken on board the brigantine Mercury, (on their return from a long and tedious whale-voyage on the coast of Brazil), George Bunker master, about four weeks ago, and are detained on board the Cerberus frigate, Captain Symons. The consideration of the anxious concern that must attend parents and near relations who have their children and near connexions placed in such disagreeable situations, I hope will induce thee to suffer some mode of application for their relief; which shall be accepted with gratitude, as a favour done to thy respectful and assured friend,

BENJAMIN BARNARD.

To George Washington, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army in America.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

In Council, July 23, 1776.

Whereas Edward Mitchell, Theophilus Cushing, and William Drew, Esqs., were appointed a Committee to provide fifteen hundred Canteens, and two hundred and fifty Camp-Kettles, and Camp Equipage, for the last fifteen hundred men to be raised agreeable to a late Resolve of the Continental Congress, and were directed by a Resolve of the General Court, of the 12th of this instant, to send them forward to the several places and in like proportions with those by a Resolve of the said Court ordered for the other forces destined to the same place, which, if complied with, will be very inconvenient, and retard the business: Therefore,

Resolved, That the said Committee be, and they hereby are, directed to provide and send forward the aforesaid articles forthwith to Charlestown, in the Government of New-Hampshire, to the care of Samuel Hunt and Church, Esqs., or either of them, by them to be delivered, one-half to Colonel Samuel Brewer, or his order, and the other half to Colonel Aaron Willard, or his order, for the use of their regiments; and this order to be printed in the several Newspapers in this State without delay.

A true copy.

Attest:

JOHN AVERY, Dep. Sec.

PETITION OF THE COMMITTEE OF BROOKFIELD.

To the Honourable the Council of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in NEW-ENGLAND:

Most humbly shew, the subscribers, the major part of the Committee of Inspection for the Town of Brookfield, that the inhabitants of this town have always been ready, and have freely exerted themselves in the common cause of America; that they have near one-third their men in the service at New-York and in the Northern Department, including their proportion of what are now to march for Boston; that it is a large and ancient town, and suffered, perhaps, as much as any town in this State by former wars; that there is but one Field-Officer now belonging to the same in the publick service; that Captain King, a gentleman of reputation among us, would be glad of an appointment as Field-Officer at Boston station, if it would be agreeable to the honourable Board.

Wherefore, we earnestly recommend him to your Honours, and pray that he may be appointed accordingly, and your petitioners will pray, &c.

THOS. MOOR, DAVID HITCHCOCK,
JOHN WAITE, JABEZ CROSBY,
TULLY RICE, JOHN HAMILTON.

Brookfield, July 23, 1776.

I, the subscriber, who have the honour to command the Fourth Regiment, in the County of Worcester, do also join in the prayer of the foregoing Petition.

JAMES CONVERSE.

Brookfield, July 23, 1776.

JOSEPH CUSHING TO JOHN TAYLOR.

Hanover, July 23, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I have lately received the orders of Council for mustering the Militia and raising men to supply the places of the Continental regiment ordered to New-York and Canada. We have, through difficulty, raised our men for New-York, and some for Canada. I hope by the middle of next week to complete the number required. I have not given out orders, as yet, for mustering the Militia and raising the men to supply the places of the Continental regiment, lest it might totally defeat getting the men for the Canada department, thinking it best to see the orders for men to reinforce the Army for Canada first complied with and executed. I imagine we shall soon get the men to supply the places of the Continental troops.

I am informed the Field-Officers are not appointed for the Militia regiments that are to supply the places of the Continental regiment. Would, therefore, beg leave to recommend my friend, Jeremiah Hall, who now is a Lieutenant-Colonel of the Second Regiment of Militia, in the County of Plymouth, as a suitable man for a Colonel of one of these regiments, as he now is an officer in the Militia, and has been out several campaigns heretofore, and known to be firmly attached to the cause of his country, and known by the people of this quarter. I should take it as a favour if you would use your influence with the members of the honourable Board for his appointment; and I am, with respect, your friend and servant,

JOS. CUSHING.

To the Hon. John Taylor, Esq., at Watertown.

P. S. I purpose to be inoculated, if the weather is cooler. I hope my non-attendance will be excused on account of small-pox. Great danger is apprehended in the natural way.

MAJOR HAWLEY TO COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Northampton, July 23, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: The Councils favour of the 15th instant, I received by Mr. Cranston, enclosing an order to Brigadier Fellows, directing him to march his brigade by the way of No. 4 to Lake Champlain; which order I make bold to enclose and remit, concluding, (as the lawyers say,) improvide emanavit. I judge so, because I know that Mr. Fellows's brigade was originally destined to New-York; and although his command might be since varied, yet I find it expressed in the same letter, which enclosed the said order, that Brigadier Briskett commands the reinforcement destined to Crown-Point; which Mr. Cranston also confirms by word of mouth.

Your Honours have been pleased to send me orders for inlisting Hampshire's quota of fifteen hundred further recruits; but as your Honours have not been pleased to send any money to me, or to any other of the Committee for that purpose, we are at some loss how to proceed without further instructions.

The levies for the Hampshire battalion, in the northern part of the County, have succeeded beyond expectation. Two companies proposed to march this day, and another company of ninety-eight men, effective and well equipped, are to march on the morrow. I believe several of the companies from this County, without any express license from the Committee, will presume to march by Bennington, and not by No. 4, because they are informed by Mr. Farnsworth, that he is scarce able to provide rations at No. 4 for the troops of this Government, exclusive of Hampshire County men, and that he has great plenty of stores at Bennington. I saw the orders of the General Court to the Captains, but say nothing to divert them from their purpose; for I believe there is no provision to pay the men their mileage at No. 4, and very scanty provision for their rations. I fear there will be great complaints in that quarter. Besides, there is a great plenty of small-pox there at No. 4, and none the other way, and all the accounts now are that the Bennington route is much the most feasible. The men will run the risk of going with but little ammunition, rather than run the risk of the small-pox and submit to the other inconveniences there is a prospect of in the No. 4 route. The Field-Officers of this battalion being in the small-pox, the whole business is devolved on the Committee.

I am your Honours' respectful, and most obedient servant,
JOSEPH HAWLEY.

To the Honourable Council.

Salem, July 23, 1776.

Friday last arrived here Captain Fisk, in the privateer sloop called the Tyrannieide, in the service of this State, mounting fourteen carriage-guns and two swivels, having been out about twelve days on a cruise. He, on the 12th instant, in latitude 40° 23' fell in with the armed schooner Despatch, one Gutteridge commander, mounting eight carriage-guns and ten swivels, having thirty-two men, in the service of the King of England; when a warm, obstinate, and well-disputed engagement ensued, and which lasted upwards of an hour, when the schooner struck to Captain Fisk, which he safely brought in with him, having in the engagement lost her Captain and one man killed, the Master and four of her sailors wounded, and a Midshipman, who was passenger on board, bound in this schooner to New-York. Captain Fisk had one man killed and three wounded, one of whom is since dead of his wounds, the other two likely to recover. The six wounded men belonging to the schooner are likely to recover. The schooner has on board, besides her guns and provisions, seventeen half-barrels of powder.

Sunday last was sent in here by Captain Lander, in a letter-of-marque schooner belonging to this place, a sloop from the West-Indies, bound to Halifax, laden with salt. She has on board some brass-blunderbusses and a quantity of English goods; was taken about a fortnight ago. About the same time was taken, by the above letter-of-marque, a ship from Jamaica, bound to London, laden with three hundred and ninety-three hogsheads of sugar, one hundred and forty-four hogsheads of rum, twenty-four pipes of wine, twenty-six pieces of cannon, from nine to four-pounders, and fifteen tortoise. This ship is thought to be worth between twenty and thirty thousand pounds sterling. She is not yet arrived here.

Last Sunday a store-ship from Ireland, being one of those which were blown off our coast last fall, bound to Boston, not having heard that the Ministerial fleet and army had left it, ran close in with the Islands in the harbour, and immediately came to anchor, when the first salute she received to welcome her was from an American battery erected at Point Alderton; when, after receiving a few shot therefrom, she struck.

FLAG FOR CAPT. ROACH TO CARRY MRS. LIVIUS TO QUEBECK.

Colony of New-Hampshire, in Committee of Safety, {
July 23, 1776. }

Captain Henry Deaborn, who was of Colonel Arnold's detachment, and made prisoner at the attack upon Quebeck on the 31st of December last, having had liberty to come home on his parole, and represented to this Committee that the Honourable Peter Livius, Esq., at Quebeck, treated him and other prisoners with great humanity, and that said Mr. Livius was desirous that his lady and children, now at Portsmouth, in this Colony, might be permitted to come to him at Quebeck, it is therefore determined by the Committee that the schooner Polly, Thomas Roach master, with James Stoodley, John March, and John Bowman, mariners, have liberty to depart from the port of Piscataqua for Quebeck, with provisions sufficient for the voyage, for the sole purpose of conveying Mrs. Livius and her children there, not doubting but liberty will be granted for said schooner and men to return to this Colony as soon as may be. In witness whereof, we have affixed the seal of the Colony, the day and year above mentioned.

By order of the Committee:

M. THORNTON, Chairman pro tem.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO L. BARRETT.

[No. 71.]

Annapolis, July 23, 1776.

SIR: We have, in consequence of yours of the 15th inst., sent to Fredericktown eight hundred and six pounds of lead, and have desired the Committee of the Middle District to forward it to you. We are, &c.

To Mr. Lemuel Barrett, Chairman of Skipton District, Frederick County.

THOMAS SMYTH TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Chestertown, July 24, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 22d instant to the Committee of Observation for this County, was this morning delivered to Mr. Ringgold and myself, and we immediately ordered all the powder and sailcloth in the care of the Committee on board Captain Barry, for which, enclosed, you will receive his receipt. The second escort of wagons is expected at town to-night, by which time I hope the schooner Resolution will appear, that the powder, &c., may be delivered to me out of the wagons. The money sent to me by my son for the payment of the wagonage of the powder and other contingent charges, did not reach me until after the arrival of the wagons that brought the first load from Chingoteague; they have since been paid off.

I am, with much respect, sir, your most humble servant,
THOS. SMYTH.

To the Honourable Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, President of the Council of Safety.

JOSIAS BEALL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Piscataway, July 24, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I received your favour by last post. You have no doubt an account of our situation, from the proceedings of the enemy up Potomack. I took the liberty last week to mention the want of more powder at Piscataway, &c. As you said nothing on the subject in your letter, permit me to mention the matter again, as there is uneasiness, from the apprehensions of the people on account of the small quantity we have. I hope your honourable Board will consider the matter, and order for the best. I have the satisfaction to say our people have shown a manly disposition. On Monday last, when (from the alarm-guns from the Virginia vessels, fired in their way up to Alexandria) the enemy were expected every hour up, they marched to the shore with great firmness. I was with them all the day, and, from their behaviour, make no doubt they would have behaved well had the enemy appeared and tried them. I much wish they were provided better, if it can be done.

I am this morning so unwell with the cholic, that sitting to write is uneasy, and prevents adding further than that I am, with esteem for your honourable Board, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

JOSIAS BEALL.

To the Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq.

GENERAL DENT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Charles County, July 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: On the evening of my return home from the camp at St. George's, yours of the 22d instant came to hand, wherein you say you don't doubt of my doing everything necessary to repel the invaders, and likewise, that you have ordered Major Price, with three field-pieces and one nine-pounder, &c. These, you say, will enable the Major and myself to speak more properly with the row-galley than I hitherto could do. You likewise request I will (as I hitherto have done) continue to watch their motions, and from time to time inform you thereof, with several other requests equally irreconcilable to me, after having, by a short order, given me nothing to do. I have the highest opinion of the Major's abilities and attachment to the cause, and doubt not he is equal to the task; all that I request is to be informed whether you have any reason (from the disposition of the troops while under my command) to believe that I was wanting, either in military knowledge, assiduity, or personal courage; for the first of which, I would beg leave to refer you to Major Price, and for the two latter, to the officers of the several corps while under the command of your most obedient servant,

JNO. DENT.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

B. GRAVES TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

July 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Some time ago I tendered you an account of some repairs done to gun-locks, in consequence of instructions from Brigadier-General Chamberlaine. I did not exceed my orders in any one thing, to my knowledge, particularly with respect to the circumstances of the persons for whom the repairs were done.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

B. GRAVES.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

ROBERT L. NICOLS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Talbot County, July 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Captain Veazey's demand upon me, due from the commencement of his company, renders me under the necessity of begging a small order on our Treasurer for payment of the lower troops. About four hundred pounds will be sufficient. As the time draws near for payment, you will please to forward it.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

ROBT. LLOYD NICOLS.

To the Council of Safety of Maryland.

J. CONTEE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

July 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: At the request of the Committee of Observation for Prince George's County, I am to acquaint you, as Chairman appointed for this day, that there is but little probability at present of borrowing or purchasing any guns, well fixed, in this County, at the price of £4 10s., or of collecting any blankets; but if any such should hereafter be got, the Committee will send them to the Council as soon as they may be obtained. Also, I am to inform you, that the collectors appointed some time past to receive fire-arms from Non-Associates have not as yet made any return thereof.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

J. CONTEE.

To the Honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GOVERNOUR RUTLEDGE.

Philadelphia, July 24, 1776.

SIR: The Congress being of opinion that the service of the United States will be promoted by taking into pay a number of troops in the State of South-Carolina, who are to act either as Infantry or Lighthorse, as occasion may require, have come to the enclosed resolves, which I do myself the honour of transmitting in obedience to their commands. In consideration that these troops will go through more than ordinary duty, and be put to greater expense than others, the Congress have augmented their pay in proportion. I have delivered blank commissions to the Delegates of your State.

With most hearty and sincere wishes for your health and happiness, and the prosperity of the State over which you preside, I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Governour Rutledge, of South-Carolina.

[Same to the Convention of Georgia.]

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, July 24, 1776.

SIR: I do myself the honour to enclose sundry resolves, to which I must entreat your attention. The Congress, you will there find, reposing the most entire confidence in your judgment, have left the disposition of the troops at New-York, the Flying-Camp, and Ticonderoga, wholly with you, being fully assured you will make such an arrangement as in your opinion will conduce most to the publick good.

The Commissioners appointed to audit the accounts of the Army in the York department have been with me. They are preparing to set out as soon as possible, and I expect will be at New-York in a few days.

You will observe that the Congress have empowered the Commander-in-Chief in each department to negotiate an exchange of prisoners, which you will please to conduct agreeably to the enclosed system.

I have written to General Schuyler, and forwarded a copy of the enclosed resolves.

I have the honour to be, with the highest esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, July 24, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed resolves, which I do myself the honour of transmitting, are so explicit that I need only refer your attention to them. The Congress are extremely concerned to find there should be a necessity of recommending harmony to the officers and troops of different States under your command. At a time like this, when the greatest confidence is so essentially required, nothing can show greater weakness or wickedness than to throw provincial reflections on one another, which must have a direct tendency to impede the publick service, and to weaken the union of the American States. I am, therefore, to request that you will discountenance and suppress, by every means in your power, such ungenerous and base practices, and promote discipline, order, and zeal, in the Army, as much as possible.

The Commissioners appointed to audit the accounts of the Army in the Northern Department have been with me. They are preparing to set out immediately, and I expect will be in New-York in a few days.

The Congress having empowered the Commander-in-

Chief in each department to negotiate an exchange of prisoners, you will please to conduct the business agreeably to the enclosed system.

In consequence of a flag from Lord Howe, with a letter directed "To George Washington, Esq.," which he declined receiving, as an improper direction, considering his rank and station, the Congress came to a resolution, not only expressing their approbation of his conduct, but ordering for the future that no Commander-in-Chief, or other the commanders of the American Army, should receive any letters from the enemy but such as are directed to them in the characters they sustain.

You will please to inquire into the complaints of the soldiers as soon as possible, and give strict orders that the goods furnished them shall not be charged at a higher price than the first cost of them, and an allowance of five per cent. for charges.

I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Schuyler, Albany, or elsewhere.

THOMAS STONE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, July 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I send you herewith forty barrels of powder and fifty-four boxes of arms, the arrival of which I informed you by the post. I have agreed with the wagoners for 30s. per day, each, going and returning. They are to travel twenty miles per day going and twenty-five returning. This seems to be the usual practice, though I think it very exorbitant. I have paid them £12 each, and have informed them they will receive the balance from you upon delivery of their charges, or if it be more agreeable to you, they may be paid here on your certificate. I have paid £15 2s. for cartage from Egg-Harbour, and shall settle the freight to-morrow, which, according to agreement with Harrison & Vanbibber, is ten per cent. on the gross sales here; and powder which came with ours has sold by the quantity for £25 per hundred weight, which, I suppose, will ascertain the rule for the freight. The guns came loose, and are hurt by it; I had them put into boxes, to prevent their being further damaged. Two are left out to guard the powder. Others, &c., will be delivered you. I have thought it advisable to send two men to guard the powder and arms, at 5s. per day each. My brother Delegates think this mode of conveying these very necessary articles to you right, and I hope it will also meet with your approbation.

Nothing since ours by the post. The wagons to be paid from this day.

I am, with great respect, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

T. STONE.

To the Hon. Council of Safety of Maryland, at Annapolis.

JOHN COVENHOVEN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

In Convention of the State of New-Jersey, }
Brunswick, July 24, 1776. }

SIR: In answer to your letter of the 21st instant, we can inform you that a considerable number of the levies required from this State by Congress are now on their march to New-York. We have written to General Heard to make return as soon as possible of the deficiencies in each County, and you may rest assured we shall use our utmost efforts, at this critical period, to complete the brigade ordered for the reinforcement of the Army at New-York, and also to afford you all such other assistance as the weal of the United States shall require and the condition of this State admit of.

We are, sir, with great respect, your obedient humble servants.

By order of Convention:

JOHN COVENHOVEN, Vice-President.

To His Excellency General Washington, New-York.

GENERAL MERCER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Perth-Amboy, July 24, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed is a return of the troops in this Colony. Two battalions joined yesterday. We are told of numbers being on the way from Philadelphia. In a few days the harvest will be secured, when General Livingston will have it in his power to call in a considerable body of Militia to take post along the Jersey shore. And these troops may be employed on such other service as you judge proper.

Proper persons are employed to examine and secure all the craft, of which I shall transmit a return as soon as possible.

The returns of the troops are not so accurate as I could wish; the number of rank and file may, however, be supposed tolerably exact, making some allowance for the sick, of which I have been able to procure distinct lists. Of the troops who joined yesterday (the fourth battalion,) twenty of the men had no muskets. They were furnished with pikes about twelve feet long.

The enemy have reinforced their guards on this part of the Island. Three battalions appeared on the point opposite this place yesterday morning, with four pieces of field-artillery. Probably this arises from their perceiving our force daily increasing here.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,
HUGH MERCER.
To His Excellency General Washington.

HUGH MERCER, Brigadier-General.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.
New-York, July 24, 1776.

SIR: I have been honoured with your favour of the 20th instant, with its several enclosures. I observe the sentiments of your honourable body on the impracticability of removing the stock from Nassau-Island, and the measures they have adopted for securing them there and protecting the inhabitants. and sincerely wish they may prove adequate.

I have long since and frequently requested the Commissary to purchase all the fatted cattle and sheep from the Island that he possibly could, in preference to any other. He informs me that he has had many from thence, and that he now has persons employed in different parts for that purpose. The expediency of the measure strikes me so forcibly, that you may depend every means in my power will be directed to its execution.

Agreeably to your request, I shall continue Colonel Livingston at his present post, for the protection of the inhabitants against the insults of the enemy's cruisers, unless something should happen to make his removal necessary.

When the several regiments are raised, and I am certified thereof, and of the places of rendezvous, I will direct the Mustermaster-General to attend and complete the musters.

Governour Trumbull having informed me by letter, yesterday, that since the arrival of the fleet at the Hook, many of the enemy's frigates and ships have been stationed between Montauk-Point and Block-Island to intercept the trade from the Sound, and in which they had been but too successful in taking several provision vessels, and of the impossibility that any should escape falling into their hands, he had ordered the armed vessels in the service of Connecticut to stop and detain all vessels going down the Sound with provisions, till the Continental Congress, or the Conventions of the States to which they belong, could be apprized of the hazards attending their proceeding in their voyage, and give orders thereon. I beg leave to recommend the matter to the consideration of your honourable body, and submit it to them whether it may not be expedient to lay a general embargo or prohibition upon all exports of this kind from your State, except such as Congress or yourselves may order.

The propriety of keeping the enemy from supplies of this sort, and providing a sufficiency for our Army, is so evident that words are unnecessary upon the subject. However, I cannot but observe, as my opinion, that the former will be impossible to effect, unless some general restraining regulation is come into. No care, nor industry, nor honesty, on the part of exporters, will be able to elude the vigilance and activity of their almost innumerable cruisers. But when it is considered, that as long as a free export of any articles of this nature is tolerated, disaffected persons may easily fall into their hands with impunity, nor any means be left us to ascertain their guilt; when there is strong reason to believe that some have designedly done so, and almost incontestable proof, from sundry depositions of deserters and others, that a ship that went from hence sailed with no other view, and joined the enemy at the Hook,—I incline to think the measure not only advisable, but necessary; especially as the large consumption of provisions by our Army affords, and will afford, a ready cash market for all that individuals may have to dispose of, and take away every objection of injury on that head. Were it otherwise, private advantages and emoluments must always give place to the publick good, when they are incompatible.

The last deserters from the enemy inform us, since they have heard of our forming a camp at Amboy, they have talked much of turning their views to Long-Island, and regaling themselves with large supplies of provisions they intend to get from thence. This is an additional circumstance to induce the Commissary to purchase the cattle there before any other.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,
Go. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President, &c.

P. S. When the ships of war, &c., ran up the river, I wrote to Governours Trumbull and Cooke for some of their row-galleys, supposing they might be of service in attempting something against the ships. I expect three or four every hour, besides the one I have. If the Secret Committee are forming any plan against the ships, in which they may think they may be usefully employed, and will let me know, I shall be glad to coöperate with them, and furnish every assistance the galleys can give, if not otherwise materially engaged.

I am just now informed that the ship mentioned above to have gone to the enemy, was fitted out by the Congress, under the command of a Captain Hilton, who has acted this base part.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.
New-York, July 24, 1776.

SIR: I was honoured yesterday with your favour of the 17th instant, and return you my thanks for your kind attention to, and compliance with, my request for the row-galleys. They are not yet arrived, that I know of.

I wrote Congress by the return express that brought yours, respecting Colonel Ward's regiment, and as the post comes in every day, it is probable I shall soon have their answer. The result I will transmit you by the first opportunity, and would recommend that the regiment be put under marching orders, that they may proceed without loss of time whatever way Congress shall direct.

The orders you have given to your armed cruisers for stopping provision vessels, appear to me extremely necessary. I have mentioned the matter to Congress, and shall warmly recommend it to the consideration of the Convention of this State. If it should be attended with inconvenience to individuals, yet necessity and publick utility ought to be first considered, and outweigh everything else: but it cannot; there is nothing but what they can readily dispose of for the use of the Army and for ready cash; so that every ground of objection must be nugatory. I am, &c.

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull.

New-York, Wednesday, July 24, 1776.

The men-of-war that lately went up the North-River, lie in Haverstraw-Bay. Their tenders cruise about, and last Saturday one of them went near the Fort; upon which our people fired a thirty-two pounder at her, which went through her quarter, when she tacked about and stood down the river. Some time after, they landed a party of their men at Peekskill, set fire to a wheat field, and burnt the house of Mr. John Lilly. A number of the Militia were soon collected; who attacked and killed seven of them, without any loss on our side.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, July 24, 1776.

SIR: Colonel Hand reports nothing new; everything remains in much the same situation as they were yesterday.

I am, your most obedient, humble servant,

N. GREENE.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

German-Flats, July 24, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your Excellency's favour of the 17th instant was last night delivered me by Mr. Bennet.

If I had with me the remonstrance of the Field-Officers against quitting Crown-Point, I should attempt to point out the insufficiency of each of the several reasons they give against the removal of the Army to Ticonderoga, and which would at the same time show on what I founded my opinion of the propriety of the measure; but as the paper was left at Albany, I shall cursorily enter into some observations. The little time I have for reflecting on the subject, the constant interruptions from the Indians, indisposition of body, and my inability to convey my ideas with that perspicuity the subject merits, I hope will plead for the inaccuracies which you will discover.

Crown-Point is a peninsula which projects from the west side of Lake Champlain, and runs down and almost parallel to both sides of it. The east side of the peninsula is bounded by the waters of that part of the Lake which flow from Skenesborough and Lake George, passing by Ticonderoga in their way; and the northeast corner of the peninsula is distant from the east shore of Lake Champlain about half a mile, or something better, but under three-quarters of a mile. The northwest corner of it is nearly, if not quite, two miles distant from the western shore of the Lake. If the enemy should have a naval superiority, our armed vessels must retire to the southward of Crown-Point, between that and Ticonderoga, or take shelter under any fortifications we might have there. In either case the enemy may go along the western shore, land in the bay that forms the peninsula, and attack any force that may be at Crown-Point from the rear, or they may land on the east side of the Lake, below Crown-Point; and as the country is flat, and in some parts improved, they may possess themselves of the east shore, between Crown-Point and Ticonderoga, without any great difficulty, however strong any fortification on the east side, opposite to Crown-Point, might be; and hence all supplies must be cut off, unless our force at Crown-Point should embark in batteaus, and be sufficiently strong to land and repulse them. And there is little prospect that such an attempt would succeed, considering how infinitely better they are provided than we, and what advantages they would receive from the works they might throw up.

Besides the last considerations, permit me to subjoin, that such is the nature of the ground at Crown-Point, (the Point faces to the north, fronts the Lake, and is indented with small bays, and about one mile broad on a straight line from the northeastern to the northwestern point,) that the fort which General Anherst erected there was so exposed, from the grounds about it, that it required three or four strong redoubts to cover it—redoubts that were in themselves very considerable fortifications, and built at much expense on account of the scarcity of earth, insomuch so, that all the fortifications ten thousand men could make in the course of the campaign, would be far from formidable.

At Ticonderoga we are not exposed to these dangers or difficulties. The Lake between the fort and the intended encampment on the east side of it, does not exceed half a mile in breadth. Let us now suppose that the enemy are capable of forcing our armed vessels to seek shelter at Ticonderoga: nothing then is to obstruct their coming to that place. Being come, let us suppose that they would land on the east side of the Lake: the intended camp is defended on the north by a large creek and sunken country, which effectually prevents any approaches from that quarter; they must therefore take a tour of several miles to head the sunken country, before they can get into our rear. If they do, are our supplies cut off? No; for we have the communication by Lake George open. Can they drive us out of the strong camp on the east side? I think not. I think it impossible for twenty thousand men to do it, ever so well provided, if the camp consists of less than even a quarter of that number, indifferently furnished, such is the natural strength of the ground. But let us suppose that the enemy should land on the west side and attempt to drive us thence: here we fight on an equal footing, (except what advantages our lines and fortifications may give us,) and we can oppose nine-tenths of our Army to them; for they cannot prevent the junction of our troops either way, whenever they please to join. Let us suppose the worst: they drive us from the ground; we lose our cannon; but they cannot prevent such as do not fall in the engagement, from retiring to the strong camp. A bare inspection of a good map, if I had one to send your Excellency, would, I hope, convince you of the weight of these observations.

But if we are obliged to retreat from Ticonderoga, will not their vessels pass our strong camp and get between that and Skenesborough? I think it impossible for them to pass. The passage is narrow; the channel more so; our vessels lying in line of battle on the south side of the camp; theirs obliged to come up by two at a time at most, exposed to our cannon in getting there, and when there, at once attacked by our vessels and our batteries within point-blank shot.

But if the enemy have possession of Ticonderoga, will they not cut off our supplies? Yes, effectually, any supplies attempted to be sent by the way of Lake George, but not those sent by the way of Skenesborough, or through the towns lying in this Colony on the east side of Lake Champlain, between the camp and New-Hampshire, and the northern parts of the Massachusetts.

But cannot the enemy, when in possession of Ticonderoga, penetrate into this Colony by the way of Lake George, and leave our Army in the strong camp? Yes, provided they take their boats, provisions, &c., out of Lake Champlain, on the north side of Ticonderoga, and convey them by land into Lake George—the distance between three and four miles; but as they cannot do this without our knowledge, we can move any part of our Army by the way of Skenesborough to Fort George, before they can reach it; but as we have no naval force on that Lake, nor any strong fortifications, and if they are superior, and our Army not reinforced by Militia, (which I should hope would not be the case,) we can retire from thence to some place in the vicinity of Fort Edward, and bring away all the carriages from the few inhabitants that live there; and I conceive that they would find it extremely difficult, if not impossible, to move only such of their boats and necessaries as they cannot dispense with, over a fifteen-mile land-carriage, even if they should be able to bring a considerable number of carriages from Canada, for it will take one hundred carriages, each carrying four barrels of pork or flour, (and they can bring no carriages that will convey more,) to transport one day's provision for ten thousand men, and the carriages can only complete a trip in two days.

Upon the whole, I do not only think Ticonderoga infinitely preferable to Crown-Point for a stand to be made, but so happily situated for us, that I have very little apprehension of General Burgoyne's being able to succeed in that quarter, unless there should be too great a disparity of numbers in his favour.

I had almost forgotten to observe that your Excellency, from the information you have had, seems to entertain an idea that the situation of Crown-Point "is of the utmost importance, especially if we mean to keep the superiority and mastery of the Lake;" and that "if it is abandoned by us, it is natural to suppose the enemy will possess it; and if they do that, then our vessels will be in their rear, and it will not be in our power to bring them to Ticonderoga, or the post opposite to it."

Your Excellency will pardon me for a few remarks on that passage of your letter.

Crown-Point lies about forty-three miles from the extreme south part of Lake Champlain, which is at Skenesborough, and about one hundred from the northern extreme, which is at St. John's. The part of the Lake south of Crown-Point is seldom, in any place, above two miles wide. From Crown-Point to about eighteen miles north of it, it may be at a medium about three and a half miles, three and four being the extremes; beyond that, for about fifty-six miles, it is seldom less than six, or more than fourteen or fifteen; but a chain of islands, running nearly parallel to the sides of the Lake, lie in the broadest part, on and nearly in the middle, so that the width on each side is about six miles.

Let us now suppose our Navy to be in any part of the Lake to the northward of, and out of the reach of the cannon that may be at Crown-Point, and there attacked by the enemy: What assistance can it receive from any fortification at the Point? None, surely; and, if worsted, it must fly to the south side of Crown-Point for shelter, and the enemy have the entire mastery of the Lake. If Crown-Point was totally abandoned, and if the Navy was attacked and worsted in any part to the northward of Ticonderoga, whether in sight of that place, or towards the north end of the Lake, the consequences are exactly the same. It must retire to the south of where the Army is. If we abandon Crown-Point, that the enemy will possess themselves of it is certain, if they can do it; but if we suppose they can, we must not only suppose that they can and will pass our fleet, although theirs should be inferior, or that they must have a naval superiority. If they can pass our fleet anywhere beyond Crown-Point, their Army can attack ours at Crown-Point, if it is there, or at Ticonderoga, if there: in either case our ships will be in their rear.

But supposing they could and would, by some means or other frustrate our intentions in having a Navy in the Lake, (which intention appears to be to prevent any boats coming up,) and pass by it, although superior to theirs; is it probable they will do it? Will they risk the danger they may run if a fair wind should enable our ships to get up with them? Will they risk an interception of their supplies, and a prevention of retreat in case of a repulse? I think not; but if their Navy is superior, the keeping possession of the Lake is impossible; and then the question recurs, where is the best place to make a stand with the greatest prospect of advantage to us? I think that place to be Ticonderoga and the grounds opposite to it. I may be mistaken. The only view I had in giving my opinion for removing the Army to these places was, that I thought it would there most advance the interest of the cause we are engaged in. Although I do not recollect that in the resolution of the General Officers to move the Army from Crown-Point, that it is observed that a small post was to be kept there, from whence our vessels might be supplied more readily than from Ticonderoga, yet that was determined on.

I have always deprecated jealousies and contentions in the Army. I believe the officers that have served under me will do me the justice to acknowledge it. I shall invariably continue in that line of conduct, and, if seconded by the inferior officers, I hope the evil will soon vanish.

Your Excellency's conclusion is too just, "that the most lavish and extravagant waste has been made of provisions." The difficulties I experienced last campaign on this account are incredible; and I was in hopes that the orders I had issued to the officers, and the directions I had given to the Commissaries in the course of the winter, would have been effectual, and have put a stop to many infamous practices. On this side of Canada I experienced the good effects; such of the Commissaries appointed by the Colonies at the beginning of the struggle as were then employed, and were found incompetent, were removed as soon as it could be done without giving umbrage to particular Colonies. This removal took place last fall, and things have been carried on regularly since that time. But otherwise in Canada; a return was asked of such as were employed; and the orders by which they, as well as the officers, were to govern themselves, were transmitted to the commanding officer in February last, with a request to publish them. I am informed they were never made publick, nor was any return sent of who were employed, and the Deputy-Commissary could not tell, as they were appointed in Canada, and acted independent of him. When Mr. Price was appointed Deputy Commissary-General for Canada, I gave him a copy of these orders; copy of which, and a copy of my instructions to him, I think I transmitted to your Excellency. I never received a single line from him during the time he was in Canada; and I am informed by Mr. Swart, whom Mr. Livingston sent into Canada as his deputy, that the soldiers have been permitted to go to the barrels and take what they liked, and that this was by general orders. On my last arrival at Crown-Point, I found the provisions lying in parcels on different parts of the beach, exposed to the weather and to be stolen. I ordered it, and did see it, put into the stores, and then found much less than I had expected, although I had supposed that great waste and loss had taken place in the retreat from Canada. When I observed that fresh beef was not to be had, I conceived that it could not be immediately procured in sufficient quantities, as all stall-fed beef was expended, and the grass-fed then hardly fit for killing; nor was I much mistaken, although a few days after I found that Mr. Livingston, by his exertions, and with borrowed money, had made shift to engage such a number that my apprehensions on that score are at an end. But Mr. Trumbull was certainly ill-informed in supposing that fresh meat could be easily procured at the time alluded to. If Mr. Livingston had been less industrious than he was, we should have experienced a scarcity of provisions, both from the then scarcity of beef, and money to purchase it with. I am, however, still uneasy on account of pork, lest any accident should hereafter be occasioned by not having a sufficient quantity in store.

Before General Sullivan's brigade arrived at Albany, the troops were contented with the Continental allowance; and when only bread, pork, and peas, could be got, they had a pound of each of the two former, in lieu of all the other articles; but a regiment of his brigade refusing to draw less than eighteen ounces of pork, and General Sullivan assuring me that the additional ounces had been allowed them since December last, in lieu of milk, I ordered the Commissary to issue it, taking receipts for the quantities delivered. This extra-allowance has not only made the calculation I sent you some time ago extremely erroneous, but will greatly distress us.

I am so well convinced of the difficulties you labour under to procure the necessary supplies of every kind for the Army, that I have only asked for such things as could not be procured at Albany or in the neighbouring country, and have written to Committees and employed persons in every quarter of the County. I tried, but in vain, to procure the articles for the gondolas; but as the navigation is since interrupted, I hope to be able to get them, and shall write immediately to Albany on that head.

I shall, immediately on my return, give out in orders that no double commissions are to be held, except by the officers you mention. I hope your Excellency will approve of my leaving it to the choice of the officers what commission to keep.

I believe I forgot to mention that General Thomas and I concluded that it was highly necessary to have an active Deputy Quartermaster at St. John's and Chamblly. I mentioned Lieutenant-Colonel Buell, of Burrell's regiment as an officer whose activity and prudence I could rely on. He accepted the office, but with much persuasion, as he wished to remain with the regiment. He is now at Fort George, and I am really at a loss to find one to replace him, who will be equal to the duty he is obliged to do.

My Secretary, who had orders to open any despatches that might come from you, and to transmit such parts to General Gates as contained orders that required more immediate despatch than the roundabout way of first sending them here would admit of, informs me that the omitted part of my letter of the 12th was, "enclose returns of the Army at Crown-Point, the garrison of Fort George," &c. "When I was at Crown-Point, I proposed to a council of officers an expedient to procure the return of the deserters of the Northern Army, and it was" unanimously, &c.

I am just now informed that the Pennsylvania carpenters arrived at Albany on the 20th instant. I left directions for forwarding them, and I hope they are now at work.

I have no hope that the conference with the Indians will open before the 29th, and I fear it will then last a week. Their delays distress me beyond imagination. I have represented to them that important business required my attendance at Albany; they will not, however, suffer me to leave them; and my colleagues apprehend if I do that it will essentially injure us. I must, therefore, comply with their wishes, although my presence on the communication was never more wanted than at this juncture.

Mr. Trumbull, the Deputy Paymaster-General, informs me that his chest is quite empty. So early as the 22d of May Congress voted half a million of dollars for the Northern Army; $200,000 have only been received. Will your Excellency please to represent to Congress that the service suffers very materially for want of money, and that the officers in the different departments are put to inconceivable difficulties on that account.

That Heaven may protect and pour its best blessings on you, is the unfeigned wish of your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL WATERBURY TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, July 24, 1776.

DEAR SIR: After my regards to your Honour, I would inform you that the letter received with the provision and ammunition mentioned five barrels of powder. There were but two barrels powder come to hand, which was in provision barrels; and whether your Honour included the five in the two, or whether there was a mistake, I cannot tell, and should be glad your Honour would inform me by the first opportunity.

I should be glad your Honour would see fit to appoint and send some proper person here, to act as Commissary, which I think is very much wanted.

I am, dear sir, respectfully, your Honour's humble servant,

DAVID WATERBURY, Jun.

To the Hon. Major-General Gates, at Ticonderoga.

GENERAL ARNOLD TO GENERAL GATES.

DEAR GENERAL: I arrived here last evening, and found three gondolas on the stocks; two will be completed in five or six days, the row-galley in eight or ten days. Three other gondolas will be set up immediately, and may be completed in ten days. A company of twenty-seven carpenters from Middletown are cutting timber for a row-galley, on the Spanish construction, to mount six heavy pieces of cannon. One hundred carpenters from Pennsylvania and Massachusetts-Bay will be here this evening. I shall employ them on another row-galley. In two or three weeks, I think we shall have a very formidable fleet. No canvass or cordage is yet arrived, though much wanted. Not one syllable of news from below. There are only one hundred barrels of pork and two hundred of flour here. I have desired Mr. Schuyler to purchase beef for the troops and workmen here. A Commissary of Provisions is much wanted here, and will be more so when the Militia arrive, who are daily expected. If Mr. Taylor can be spared, he will be a proper person to send, and may purchase a considerable quantity of beef in this neighbourhood. I hope the vessels and gondolas will not be retarded for want of seamen or marines. Those seamen who were sent from Crown-Point with Captain Mayhew, and afterwards joined their regiments, I would wish were ordered on board the vessels and gondolas. We shall not be able to procure a sufficient number without them.

The mills at Cheshire's are sawing, and will produce about four thousand feet of boards each day. All that can be sawed in a fortnight will be wanted here. I have ordered the next gondolas that go down to be loaded with boards. I think it will be best to send to Onion River for the boards there, and for a parcel lying between Ticonderoga and Crown-Point. Mr. Hay can inform where they lie. As soon as I can give the carpenters proper instructions, and set them at work, I will return to Ticonderoga.

I am, very respectfully, dear General, your obedient and humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

To the Honourable Major-General Gates.

COLONEL HARTLEY TO GENERAL GATES.

Crown-Point, July 24, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: Captain Wilson, it seems, has taken prisoners, one a Canadian, who left St. John's within a few days. You will be able to make some material discoveries from him. I have examined him, and was much at a loss to know if the flag should not be stopped till we could hear from you; but as Major Bigelow's orders were positive, he is just now gone down. It would be of consequence to take eight Indians and one Canadian, who have come up from St. John's to spy what we are about. They have landed somewhere between this and Cumberland-Head.

Hays and another on the western shore, Midkiff and some others in Massiskie-Bay, ought to be secured. There is too much reason, I fear, to suspect some other persons, of whom Lieutenant Clark can inform you. I shall wait your orders.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most humble servant,

THOS. HARTLEY.

COLONEL HARTLEY TO GENERAL GATES.

Crown-Point, July 24, 1776.

SIR: I have understood from several quarters that which inclines me to apprehend, that the supposition that Gilliland and some others had sent down one Edward Watson and another to St. John's, had some foundation. They doubtless carry any intelligence they have to the enemy. It has just been intimated to me that Gilliland and Jack Watson, with one Macauley, all relations, have had a hint that they are suspected. This may induce them to send a canoe or boat, to warn the two men of their danger in returning, or to make their own escape. I have ordered a party of about twenty-five men to set off in a boat towards Cumberland-Head, to intercept the eight Indians and the Canadian on their way back to St. John's, or the two rascals in the canoe, who are gone to St. John's, in their return to Willsborough, and also to favour Captain Wilson's retreat. Hays, and the men mentioned in my letter of this day, ought, in my opinion, to be secured. You will judge of the proper time. I hope my conduct will meet with your approbation.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

THOS. HARTLEY.

P. S. The party will set off to-night or to-morrow morning early, unless countermanded.

PETITION FROM CUMBERLAND COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

To the Hon. HORATIO GATES, Commander-in-Chief of the Forces in the Northern Department to defend the AMERICAN States, &c.:

The Petition of the Committee of Safety for the County of CUMBERLAND, in the Colony of NEW-YORK, humbly sheweth:

That whereas, by resolves of our Provincial Congress, this County is to raise one hundred and twenty-five effective men to join the troops under your command, and whereas this County of Cumberland is a frontier, eminently exposed to the ravages both of British and Savage cruelty:

We, therefore, your petitioners, humbly pray that your

Honour would be pleased to order that the said one hundred and twenty-five men may be employed, in actual service, as scouting parties, &c., to defend our frontier towns, which are this moment exposed to be destroyed, ravaged, and burnt, by a merciless and inveterate enemy, and to make and repair the roads from hence to Head-Quarters.

Your petitioners humbly conceive that your Honour will be forward to grant us this our request, when we acquaint you that we have never, as yet, understood that either the Continental or Provincial Congress have made any provision for these purposes.

Confiding in your Honour's humanity, and not doubting in the least but that you will readily grant us this our petition, we are, with respect, your most obedient, humble servants, &c.

Signed by order of the County Committee:

JAMES CLAY, Chairman.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE GRANTS.

Extract of the Votes and Proceedings of a General Convention of fifty-nine Delegates on the west side of the range of Green Mountains, on the New-Hampshire Grants, held at Dorset, the 24th day of July, A. D. 1776: said numbers represented the Inhabitants of thirty-five Townships on said Grants.

Captain Joseph Woodward Chairman, Doctor Jonas Fay Clerk, of said Convention.

This Convention being of opinion that the business which occasions their meeting at this time requires the most serious deliberation, are disposed to pass the following Votes, viz:

1st. That not more than one person be permitted to speak at a time in this Convention, and only by leave of the Chairman.

2dly. That the business of the meeting be closely adhered to, and that the several articles in the warrant for this meeting be considered in due order, except otherwise overruled.

After receiving the Report from the honourable the Continental Congress, by Captain Heman Allen, voted to pass over the 4th, 5th, and 6th articles of the warrant, till nine o'clock to-morrow, for consideration.

Adjourned to six o'clock to-morrow morning.

Meeting opened at time and place.

Proceeded to the consideration of the fourth article of the warrant, and the same is objected to. Proceeded to the consideration of the fifth article of the warrant, and voted, that suitable application be made to form the district of land commonly called and known by the name of the New-Hampshire Grants into a separate district. Dissentient, only one.

Proceeded to the consideration of the sixth article of the warrant, and voted to recommend it accordingly.

Voted, To choose a Committee to treat with the inhabitants on the east side of the range of Green Mountains relative to their associating with this body.

Voted, That Captain Heman Allen, Colonel William Marsh, and Doctor Jonas Fay, in conjunction with Captain Samuel Fletcher and Mr. Joshua Fish, together with such other gentlemen on the east side of the range of Green Mountains on said Grants as they may hereafter appoint to join them, be, and are hereby, appointed a Committee for the above purpose.

Adjourned one hour.

Meeting opened at time and place.

Proceeded to the consideration of the following Association, viz:

This Convention being fully sensible that it is the will and pleasure of the honourable Continental Congress that every honest friend to the liberties of America, in the several United States thereof, should subscribe an Association, binding themselves, as members of some body or community, to stand in the defence of those liberties; and whereas it has been the usual custom of individuals to associate with the Colony or State which they are reputed to be members of: Yet, nevertheless, the long and spirited conflict which has for many years subsisted between the Colony or State of New-York and the inhabitants of that district of land commonly called and known by the name of New-Hampshire Grants, relative to the title of the land on said district, renders it inconvenient in many respects to associate with that Colony, which has hitherto been the sole reason of our not subscribing an Association before this.

The better, therefore, to convince the publick of our readiness to join in the common defence of the aforesaid liberties, we do publish and subscribe the following Association, viz:

"We, the subscribers, inhabitants of that district of lands commonly called and known by the name of the New-Hampshire Grants, do voluntarily and solemnly engage, under all the ties held sacred among mankind, at the risk of our lives and fortunes, to defend by arms the United American Colonies against the hostile attempts of the British fleets and armies until the present unhappy controversy between the two countries shall be settled."

The foregoing Association being approved, is accordingly signed by fifty of the members of this Convention; and voted, that each inhabited Town on the New-Hampshire Grants be served with a copy thereof, and that it be, and is hereby, recommended to each of said inhabitants who are friends to their country, that they severally subscribe the same as soon as may be, and make return by the Delegate or Delegates which they are hereby directed to appoint to join this Convention at their next sitting at Dorset, the 25th day of September next, at eight o'clock forenoon, to which time and place this Convention stands adjourned.

Per order:

JONAS FAY, Clerk of said Convention.

Extract from Minutes of General Convention of NEW-HAMPSHIRE GRANTS, 24th JULY, 1776.

New-Hampshire Grants, in General Convention, }
Dorset, July 24, 1776. }

Resolved, That it be, and it is hereby, recommended to the several inhabitants on the New-Hampshire Grants who are friends to the liberties of the United States of America, that they subscribe the Association agreed on and signed by the several members of this Convention, and return the same to the Clerk thereof as soon as may be.

Resolved, unanimously, That any person or persons, inhabitants on the New-Hampshire Grants, who shall in future subscribe and return an Association to any of the Committee or Committees of Safety for either of the Counties in the Province of New-York or to the Provincial Congress thereof, otherwise than the Association contained in these records, and subscribed by the several Delegates of this Convention, shall be deemed enemies to the common cause of the New-Hampshire Grants.

Resolved, That nine persons be chosen as a Committee of Appeals, who are to hear and determine such matters as may be properly exhibited to them in writing by any of the inhabitants of the New-Hampshire Grants, relative to the cause of American liberty, by way of proper appeal from either of the Committees of Safety on said Grants; any five of which Committee to make a quorum.

Extract from the Minutes:

JONAS FAY, Clerk.

KILLINGWORTH COMMITTEE.

Killingworth, July 24, 1776.

Whereas Benjamin Griffith, of Killingworth, hath for some time been suspected of being unfriendly to the common cause, and an enemy to his country; said Griffith was cited to appear before the Civil Authority, Selectmen, and Committee of Inspection of said Killingworth, for examination, on the 11th day of July instant, and adjourned to the 15th, who, upon examination, pleaded not guilty. After taking a number of evidences in the case, this meeting, considering the evidences, and the late Act of this Colony in the premises, and question being put by the chairman of said meeting, whether the said Griffith was inimical to his country, or to these United Colonies? Voted in the affirmative by a very clear vote. And it was ordered by said meeting or court of inquiry, that said Griffith be disarmed of all fire-arms of what kind soever, and not allowed to keep arms any more in his house, until he make it appear to said meeting, or the major part of them, according to the late act of this Colony, that he is friendly to the United Colonies, and to the common cause.

The doings of this meeting desired to be made publick.

Signed by order:

ELNATHAN STEVENS, Chairman of said meeting.

TO THE INHABITANTS OF MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

MY COUNTRYMEN: When I consider the danger attending this important day—Burgoyne with his Regulars, Canadians, and Indians, on our Northern and Western frontiers, General Howe with his Regulars and Naval force on our sea-coasts, and our Northern Army in such a situation as that the enemy may evade their force and possibly spread devastation in our defenceless towns—how necessary and important is it, then, that every well-wisher to American liberty should be equipped in the best manner to oppose our enemies. In what a miserable situation would we be in should our frontiers be invaded with two or three thousand Canadians and Indians, and so many of our people without fire-arms and ammunition, to oppose their career. How far would they spread devastation before we should be able to stop them? Should Howe, with the help of his fleet, suddenly transport his Army to any of our Colonies where our Army is not stationed, and our home farmers be unprepared to meet them, in such case we must leave our houses to the devouring flames, and possibly our stock, our wives, our children, at their mercy. Pray let us realize these things, and if any are destitute of implements of war, let them, rather than remain in such a situation, “sell their coats and buy them.” Pray consider that our liberties are vastly more worth than all our property, and that he who at such a day as this will not rather venture his life in battle than be a slave, shows a dastardly spirit, and cannot be said to stand fast in that liberty in which the God of nature has made us free.

A WATCHMAN.

Worcester, Massachusetts, July 24, 1776.

COURT-MARTIAL ON LIEUTENANT MOSES BANKS.

At a General Court-Martial held at Boston, July 24, 1776, by order of the Hon. Artemas Ward, Major-General and Commander-in-Chief of the American Forces stationed at Boston, on Moses Banks, Second Lieutenant and Quarter-master-General in the Eighteenth Regiment of the United Independent States of North America, for defrauding the said Regiment of their pay, provisions, &c., he was found guilty, sentenced to be cashiered, forfeit all his pay, and refund £10 to the Regiment.

JOHN BACHELLOR TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Boston, July 24, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: The information which the Committee for fortifying the Harbour of Boston lately gave to your Honours, relative to Captain Obrian, they had from me. I then supposed the suggestion could be easily supported; but from various circumstances since turned up, I am inclined to think that the malice of his enemies hath induced them to take such steps to injure his character as cannot be justified.

I am, your most obedient and most humble servant,
JNO. BACHELLOR.

WILLIAM SEVER TO JAMES BOWDOIN.

Kingston, July 24, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The brigantine Independence being now nearly ready for sea, Captain Samson waits on your Honour for his commission, and such instruction for his conduct as may be thought proper.

As from the time which has elapsed since the evacuation of Boston, I apprehend we cannot expect to find British merchant-ships on the coast of this Colony, and British ships-of-war having withdrawn themselves, allow me, sir, to suggest the expediency, in my opinion, of giving him such latitude in his orders as will authorize his cruising in the path of the homeward-bound West-India trade, at least a part of the time he may be abroad.

Captain Samson does not think the half ton of powder which he has received is by any means sufficient. I am informed the person who received it was told that it was as much as had been ordered by the brigantine at Dartmouth; but it is said that about half a ton of powder, which was stored at Dartmouth, has been received on board said brigantine, in addition to what was received at Watertown. If you, sir, should be of opinion that the quantity is insufficient, I presume you will endeavour to have it augmented.

I am, respectfully, sir, your very humble servant,
W. SEVER.

To the Hon. James Bowdoin, Esq., President of the Council, at Watertown.

CUMBERLAND COUNTY COMMITTEE TO THE MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Falmouth, July 24, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: We desire you will give the bearer hereof, Mr. Jesse Partridge, an order upon the Treasurer for the sum of £820, to pay off the men, the bounty, advance pay, &c., as ordered by the honourable Court. We likewise desire blank commissions for one set of commission Officers for one company, and orders for the men's marching when inlisted.

JOSIAH NOYES,
JOSHUA FABYAN,
JNO. LEWIS,

Committee of the County of Cumberland.

To the Honourable Council of the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay.

In Council Chamber, July 27, 1776.

Read and Ordered, That a warrant be drawn on the Treasurer for £251 16s., for the use of Jos. Noyes and others, Committee for the County of Cumberland.

JNO. AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO BENJAMIN GILES.

In Committee of Safety, July 24, 1776.

SIR: We received yours by Mr. Trott. Have sent you by him £20, and expect you will settle with him for his time and expenses in the service. We hope Mr. Farnsworth or his deputy will supply the troops in such a way as will help them to proceed; and though we would by no means pretend to supply, or in anywise be concerned in the affair, unless to prevent their returning home dissatisfied, in which case we would desire you to do what you can in reason to furnish them to march forward. If the provision you have furnished is not wanted, you may stow it, and it will come to bear at some time or other, without doubt.

By order of the Committee.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,
M. THORNTON, Chairman pro tem.

To Benjamin Giles, Esq.

Williamsburgh, July 26, 1776.

Yesterday afternoon, agreeable to an order of the honourable Privy Council, the Declaration of Independence was solemnly proclaimed at the Capitol, the Court-House, and the Palace, amidst the acclamations of the people, accompanied by firing of cannon and musketry, the several regiments of Continental troops having been paraded on that solemnity.

Advices from Charlestown, which arrived here by express, say that the Cherokee Indians have committed several outrages, which seem to be only a part of the capital and favourite plan laid down by his most excellent and clement Majesty George the Third, to lay waste the Provinces, burn the habitations, and mix men, women, and children, in one common carnage, by the hands of those merciless savages. It is to be hoped, however, that our frontier riflemen, joined to those of the Carolinas, will be able before long to strike some blow that may intimidate numerous tribes of Indians from falling into the measures of the tyrant, and make a severe, lasting, and salutary example of the treacherous Cherokees. By the same express, we learn that the Army and squadron under Clinton and Parker have remained tolerably quiet since their late drubbing; but daily make some alteration in the disposition of the land forces from one Island to another, probably for the sake of water, of which, deserters say, they are in great want; as also, that considerable sickness prevails among them, and great discontents, from hard duty and bad diet. The deserters likewise say, that was not the Army on an island from which it is difficult to escape, two-thirds of them, they are confident, would soon be with General Lee. An officer of distinction writes: "That when he considers the difficulties which the enemy's Generals have to encounter, the temper and disposition of their troops, and the improving spirit of our people, he assures himself that the game in that quarter is in our hands, and hopes that God will give them more grace than to shuffle it away."

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, July 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Messrs. Gordon and Patten, saddlers in this town, have informed me that they had made proposals to you for making a quantity of knapsacks and haversacks for the service of the Flying-Camp; and that a recommendation from the Committee, or some persons here well known to you, was necessary before a contract was made. As there may not be a meeting of the Committee before Monday, we conceive it might further the publick service to give you our opinion, that they are both men of character, and equal to the undertaking, and that we doubt not they will punctually fulfil any engagement of the nature in question which they may make.

We are, gentlemen, your most humble servants,

SAML. PURVIANCE, JUN.,
JAS. CALHOUN,
JOHN BOYD.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland,
Annapolis.

JOHN HANSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Frederick County, Middle District, July 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am directed by the Committee of this District to acknowledge the receipt of yours of the 16th, enclosing several resolves and the Declaration of Independency, to the contents of which papers due attention will be paid. Persons were some time ago appointed in the different Hundreds within this District, to receive the arms from those who had not signed the Association and enrolled in the Militia; but no returns have been made by them. Three guns only have been brought in, which have been delivered to Mantz's company; and the Committee offer it as their opinion, that very few guns will be got by way of loan, and that there is not the least probability of arming the Flying-Camp from this quarter but by purchase.

The Committee have often been applied to by the prisoners in the Tory Jail for an enlargement, on giving sufficient security not to depart the bounds which may be allotted them, and for their good behaviour; but they are doubtful whether they would be justified in complying with their request, and would be glad to be favoured with the opinion of your honourable Board; and as some of these prisoners are officers, whether they are not entitled to their parole, agreeable to the resolution of Congress respecting prisoners.

Yesterday, were brought to this place, under a guard from Burlington, fifteen officers, taken at St. John's, who are ordered by the Board of War to be kept here. Those who refuse to sign the parole are ordered to be confined in Jail. Three of them have signed, and the other twelve who refused to sign were last night sent to the Tory Jail, which we hope will occasion them in a short time to take the advantage allowed them. It is a dreadful place (but the best we have) to be confined in, and so crowded at present (being twenty-seven) that it may be dangerous to their health. The officers last mentioned find themselves; but it will be necessary to augment the guard, which will increase the expense; and the money sent to defray the charges of the prisoners being nearly expended, the Committee request that a further sum be sent by the first opportunity.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JOHN HANSON, JUN., Chairman.

To the Hon. the Council of Safety of Maryland.

COLONEL STRICKER TO SAMUEL CHASE.

Fredericktown, July 25, 1776.

SIR: I arrived here on Monday last, and have since seen divers of my recruiting parties, which have not been so successful as I could wish. The Flying-Camp and Militia's turning out hurts our recruiting much, although the four Captains appointed in this Province have already completed thirty men each. I could wish we had it in our power to enlist the men who have engaged in the Flying-Camp, as there are many of them who would willingly go with us.

The fifteen hundred and twenty dollars I received for the two Captains' bounty money for this County, shall make use of for purchasing blankets and arms, if you see proper, as the Captains had already received the full bounty money for the recruiting of their companies. I have already advanced fifty pounds to one of the Captains for the subsistence and expense money for raising the company, and I expect the others to call upon me for the same purpose.

Should be glad there might one of the companies of our battalion be a Rifle company, as I think I could arm them in this Province; for muskets, I am afraid we can get but few that are good here.

I shall esteem the favour of a reply, and to receive any further instructions you may please to favour me with, being the needful.

I remain, with compliments to the gentlemen the Delegates from this Province, sir, your most obedient servant,
GEORGE STRICKER, Lt. Colonel.

To Samuel Chase, Esq.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GENERAL JOHNSON.

[No. 72.]

Annapolis, July 25, 1776.

SIR: We have received your favour of the 22d, and are very glad that the Militia of Frederick are so ready to turn out on the present occasion. We think their service will not be wanting, for although there are many of the enemy's ships in Potomack, yet there are but few men in them, and those sickly and die fast. The Fowey and Otter, with about fifty sail of vessels, are still at St. George's. The Roebuck, with three ships, and a few small vessels, are as high up Potomack as Mattawoman, where, it is said, they are watering. We have already contracted for a large number of camp-kettles of iron and copper, and expect to procure some of tin.

If your brother's iron is suitable for casting guns, we would contract with you for fifty three-pounders, fifty four-pounders, and seventy-five swivels to carry one-pound balls. Captain Nicholson informs us, that the length of the swivels is not material; the three and four-pounders ought to be somewhat shorter than the common standard.

Should we find it necessary, we will hereafter give orders for the march of a battalion from Frederick County.

We are, with respect and esteem, yours, &c.

To Brigadier-General Thomas Johnson.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO MAJOR PRICE.

[No. 73.]

Annapolis, July 25, 1776.

SIR: You will make use of all or part of the cannon, as you see cause, taking care not to waste powder in vain.

Enclosed you have an order, which you will do everything in your power to enforce.

You should be particularly cautious in taking care to secure deserters; some of them, you may depend upon it, are spies. The negro you mention, that escaped from the guard, may have been sent on purpose to seduce the slaves in the neighbourhood.

Be pleased to inform us, from time to time, of material occurrences, as they happen. We have paid the express; and are, &c.

To Major Thomas Price.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COMMITTEES OF DORCHESTER AND SOMERSET.

[No. 74.]

Annapolis, July 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have ordered Captain John Gunby's company to march to Cambridge, in your County, and to be stationed where you may direct. We hope that company will be sufficient to protect you against tenders who may attempt to plunder. We are, &c.

To the Committees of Observation of Dorchester and Somerset Counties.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO MATTHEW TILGHMAN.

[No. 75.]

Annapolis, July 25, 1776.

SIR: We are very apprehensive that we should incur the censure of the honourable Continental Congress and of the Islanders who have stock, should we make the order you request. The resolve of Congress is full and explicit, without any exception. Should we extend our powers to answer your request, others would expect indulgence, and we know not where the exceptions would stop. Our powers are extensive, but not large enough to control the orders of Congress. Your application may well lie over till the meeting of the Convention, which will be in a short time.

We shall take particular notice of your application for an armed hoat, and give directions to our armed vessels as soon as they can be got ready. The Defence is going down the bay, and will be a good security against tenders, for the present.

Perhaps it would be prudent to sell some of your cattle. If you want a market, our contractor will probably take off some of your superfluous numbers. We are, &c.

To the Honourable Matthew Tilghman, Esq.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL BARNES.

Annapolis, July 25, 1776.

SIR: Before your letter and papers therein enclosed came to hand, we had received a letter from Major Price, in which Mr. Wolstenholme's affair was mentioned. The Council of Safety thereupon passed a general order to all the Committees of Observation and military commanders, not to suffer any person whatever to go out of the Province for the present. A copy of this order was enclosed to Major Price and your Committee.

All intercourse with the Fowey has been heretofore expressly forbidden by the Convention. Besides, times are so much altered since Mr. Wolstenholme's passport, and the men-of-war have so openly invaded this Province, that we could not discharge our duty without passing such order; at least, we thought so. Mr. Wolstenholme's case may be attended with particular circumstances; he must, however, submit to the times.

We hope both General Dent and yourself, on reflection, will be of opinion that we have done right. The suffering gentlemen to go off on board the men-of-war or tenders, or any other vessel that may have communication with them, is attended with great danger to the Colony. Every means of intelligence must be cut off, if possible. We are, &c.

To Colonel Richard Barnes.

JOHN ADAMS TO MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY.

Philadelphia, July 25, 1776.

SIR: I find myself under a necessity of applying to the honourable the General Court for leave to return home. I have attended here so long and so constantly, that I feel myself necessitated to ask the favour on account of my health, as well as on many other accounts. I beg leave to propose to the honourable Court an alteration in their plan of delegation in Congress, which, it appears to me, would be more agreeable to the health and convenience of the members, and much more conducive to the publick good, than the present. No gentleman can possibly attend to an incessant round of thinking, speaking, and writing, upon the most intricate, as well as important concerns of human society, from one end of the year to another, without trying both his mental and bodily strength. I would therefore humbly propose, that the honourable Court would be pleased to appoint nine members to attend in Congress—three or five at a time. In this case, four or six might be at home at a time, and every member might be relieved once in three or four months. In this way you would always have members in Congress who would have in their minds a complete chain of the proceedings here, as well as in the General Court; both kinds of which knowledge are necessary for a proper conduct here. In this way, the lives and health, and, indeed, the sound minds, of the delegates here, would be in less danger than they are at present, and, in my humble opinion, the publick business would be much better done. This proposal, however, is only submitted to the honourable body, whose sole right it is to judge of it. For myself, I must entreat the General Court to give me leave to resign, and immediately to appoint some other gentleman in my room. The consideration of my own health, and circumstances of my family and private affairs, would have little weight with me, if the sacrifice of these was necessary for the publick; but it is not, because those parts of the business of Congress for which (if for any) I have my qualifications being now nearly completed, and the business that remains being chiefly military and commercial, of which I know but very little, there are multitudes of gentlemen in the Province much fitter for the publick service here than I am.

With great respect to the General Court, I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

JOHN ADAMS.

To the Deputy Secretary.

ROBERT MORRIS TO GENERAL GATES.

Philadelphia, July 25, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I ought to have written you a fortnight ago that Mrs. Gates, with your son Bob, had gone for Virginia, after about two weeks stay with us, during which you had the misfortune to lose a horse. I believe he had been too hard driven, at least Bob thought that was the cause of his death, although the servant would not allow it. Mrs. Gates bought another from Mr. Hancock, for which I am to pay him forty pounds, and shall charge it to your account. Mrs. Gates did not take the money she wanted at home, but is to draw on me for it.

I hope you will be able to put our affairs at the Lakes on a more respectable footing than they have ever been since the days of poor Montgomery. Certainly there has been great mismanagement in that department, and I find some people attributing this to a source I never should have suspected. Is it possible for a man who writes so well, and expresses such an anxiety for the cause of his country, as General Schuyler does—I say it is possible that he can be sacrificing the interest of that country to his ambition or avarice? I sincerely hope it is not so; but such insinuations are dropped.

I beg leave to recommend Major Wood to your patronage; you'll find him a bold, intrepid officer; and as Lieutenant-Colonel Allen has resigned, I shall push for the Major to have that vacancy.

You'll be pleased with Lee's success at Carolina; the enemy were mauled greatly, and I think the repulse disgraces them; consequently reflects great honour on our people.

You are no doubt well informed of what passes at New-York; and as I have full employment for my whole time, I shall only assure you of the esteem and regard with which I am, dear sir, your affectionate, humble servant,

ROBERT MORRIS.

LANCASTER COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Inspection and Observation, held at the house of Adam Reigart, on the 25th July, 1776:

Present: Edward Shippen, William Ailee, William Bowsman, Lodwick Lowman, Jacob Krug, Henry Dehuff, Christopher Crawford, Michael Musser, Eberhart Gruber, Adam Reigart.

William Ailee in the chair.

A Letter from Colonel Philip Greenwalt, dated the 24th of July instant, mentions that the Ninth Battalion of this County is to march for Trenton, in the Jerseys, next Monday; that the men stand in need of Muskets, Cartridge-Boxes, Field-Kettles, Canteens, and other necessary accoutrements, and requests this Committee to let him know when to send for them, and how many of each; which Letter being read, the Chairman is desired to inform Colonel Greenwalt that the Committee have already distributed the whole of the Muskets and Cartridge-Boxes which can possibly be spared from the guard here, and that there are neither Kettles nor Canteens to be had here, nor tin to make them of; and that, were it in our power, we should cheerfully comply with the request.

Edward Shippen took the chair, and William Ailee, in behalf of Colonel Ailee, motioned that Colonel Ailee, upon entering into the service, had employed and hired a certain John Hamilton to take care of his farm; that there is no other man about the house or farm than the said John Hamilton; that Mrs. Ailee hath a number of young chil-

HUGH MERCER, Brigadier-General.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM THE CAMP AT ELIZABETHTOWN,
DATED JULY 25, 1776.

Yesterday nine of our Riflemen crossed the river in order to harass some Regulars who were throwing up a kind of breastwork on a bridge for their enemies, who kept firing on our men for some time, without doing any execution, till one of the brave fellows went within a few yards of the enemy and desired them to surrender. At that instant he received a ball through his head, which killed him on the spot. The Colonel sent over a flag of truce to the commanding officer on the Island, desiring leave to bring off his man, which the officer very politely agreed to, and let him take man, rifle, and all his accoutrements. After talking a little, he inquired what news was stirring. On being told that General Clinton had been defeated at Carolina, he bore it very well; but on being acquainted that Lord Dummore had been driven from Gwin's Island, he looked very much confused.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read July 29, 1776.]

New-York, July 25, 1776.

SIR: Disagreeable as it is to me, and unpleasing as it may be to Congress, to multiply officers, I find myself under the unavoidable necessity of asking an increase of my Aids-de-Camp. The augmentation of my command, the increase of my correspondence, the orders to give, the instructions to draw, cut out more business than I am able to execute in time with propriety. The business of so many different departments centring with me, and by me to be handed on to Congress for their information, added to the intercourse I am obliged to keep up with the adjacent States, and incidental occurrences, (all of which require confidential and not hack writers to execute,) renders it impossible, in the present state of things, for my family to discharge the several duties expected of me with that precision and despatch that I could wish. What will it be, then, when we come into a more active scene, and I am called upon from twenty different places perhaps at the same instant?

Congress will do me the justice to believe, I hope, that it is not my inclination or wish to run the Continent to any unnecessary expense; and those who better know me will not suspect that show and parade can have any influence on my mind in this instance. A conviction of the necessity of it for the regular discharge of the trust reposed in me is the governing motive for the application, and, as such, is submitted to Congress by, sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY.

New-York, July 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Congress having empowered me to appoint suitable places of rendezvous for the battalions raising in your Government for the Northern Army, and to communicate the same to you, also to advance them one month's pay, &c., as you will perceive by the enclosed copy of their resolution which I have the honour to transmit, I must request the favour of you to direct them to march by companies, as they are raised, to Skenesborough, and there receive orders and instructions for their conduct from the officer commanding the Northern Army; and also to advance the month's pay, and take every necessary measure for forwarding their march, and complying with the purport of the said resolve; assuring you that whatever money may be advanced necessarily in carrying the same into execution shall be repaid to your order.

Before I conclude I cannot but confess that I do not clearly understand what battalions Congress allude to, and therefore beg leave to refer you to the requisition I presume they made upon the subject.

I am, with great respect, yours,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To the General Court of Massachusetts-Bay.

[Similar Letter sent to Governour Trumbull and the New-Hampshire Convention.]

COLONEL REED TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read July 29, and referred to the Committee appointed to revise Articles of War.]

New-York, July 25, 1776.

SIR: The discipline of the Army falling more immediately within the notice of my department will, I hope, sufficiently apologize for recommending Mr. Tudor, the Judge-Advocate, to the attention of Congress.

The military system of government, though much more complete than at first, is yet extremely defective. The mildness of the punishment, even of crimes the most destructive to the Army, such as desertion, burglary, drink, of sleeping on guard, which are capital in all other parts of the world, not to mention mutiny and sedition, which is a growing evil, have rather made such crimes known to others than serve as examples. This Army is composed of a greater mixture than any which has yet been collected, and I am sorry to say we have too many who would equal, if not exceed, the King's troops in all kinds of disorder and irregularity. To men of this stamp thirty-nine lashes is so contemptible a punishment that it is very frequent for them, in the hearing of their comrades, to offer to take much more for a pint of rum. Neither my nature nor education would lead me to unnecessary severity, but I cannot, consistently with the duty and regard I owe the service, avoid giving my clear opinion, that unless some very material alterations in some articles take place, the publick will be greatly defrauded, military duty neglected, and the most dangerous consequences ensue to the American cause.

Since bounties have been introduced, a new species of desertion has appeared, that of leaving one corps to enlist into another, and we have some instances of its being done a second and a third time. I would humbly propose that some additional punishment to that for simple desertion be made. We have a general court-martial sitting every day, by which a Field-Officer and twelve Captains are kept from all other duty, a circumstance, perhaps, which never happened in any army before; and yet crimes, especially desertions, increase every day. The punishing desertion capitally I am sensible would only prevent discovery and detection, and would not meet the genius of the people; but if the number of lashes was increased, so as not to be less than one hundred, and the offender liable to double fatigue, I hope it would be more effectual.

Mr. Tudor will propose several other regulations which appear very proper, and to which I humbly beg leave to solicit the attention of Congress, as a matter of no small importance. It would be extremely useful, and I may say necessary, that, should any alterations be made, a new edition of the articles should be published, as we have now many new regiments who cannot procure any, and offenders plead ignorance with great reason.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

Jos. REED.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, July 25, 1776.

SIR: The challenge I mentioned to your Excellency the other evening I find is given and accepted, and the parties have appointed to-morrow morning to fight. As I am made acquainted with the matter, I beg your Excellency's direction in what manner I am to conduct myself.

This moment Colonel Hand was with me, and acquaints me that I have mistaken his intentions respecting promotions. As he is coming to Head-Quarters, I wish he may explain the matter to your Excellency, and the alteration be made on the return there, or sent back to me, and I will make the necessary alterations here.

I apprehend it is necessary to have an order of Congress for the removal of the wheat along New-Utrecht, Gravesend, &c., shore, that if the enemy should land there, they may not have it in their power to do us any injury; for everything they destroy or carry off will be a matter of triumph. The wheat is almost fit to thrash, and can be speedily removed out of harm's way.

I should be exceedingly glad if your Excellency would visit this post, when at liberty, to see if there are any alterations or further regulations necessary.

I am, with due respect, your Excellency's obedient servant,

NATH. GREENE.

To His Excellency General Washington, New-York.

N. B. The challenge mentioned in the forepart of my letter was given by Lieutenant Dunworth (discharged the other day) to Captain Talbot. I did not wish to know anything about it; but it was made known to me, and many of the officers know that I do know it. This perplexes me a little, knowing duelling to be against all law, both civil and military.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, July 25, 1776.

SIR: I have just completed a brigade return for the vacancies in the different regiments. My brigade is so dispersed that it is difficult getting returns seasonably. I should have made this return yesterday, but could not get Colonel Hand's until last evening.

The outguards report nothing worthy your Excellency's notice this morning.

I am so confined writing passes, &c., that it is impossible for me to attend to the duties of the day, which, in many instances, prejudices the service. Such a confined situation leaves one no opportunity of viewing things for themselves. It is recommended by one of the greatest Generals of the age, not only to issue orders, but to see to the execution, for the Army being composed of men of indolence, if the commander is not attentive to every individual in the different departments the machine becomes dislocated, and the progress of business retarded.

The science or art of war requires a freedom of thought and leisure to reflect upon the various incidents that daily occur, which cannot be had where the whole of one's time is engrossed in clerical employments. The time devoted to this employment is not the only injury I feel, but it confines my thoughts as well as engrosses my time. It is like a merchandise of small wares.

I must beg leave to recommend to your Excellency's consideration the appointing an officer to write and sign the necessary passes. The person I should wish to be appointed is Lieutenant Blodget. If it was put in general orders that passes signed by him should be deemed authentick as if signed by me, it would leave me at liberty to pursue the more important employments of my station.

I hope your Excellency will not think this application results from a lazy habit, or a desire to free myself from business—far from it; I am never more happy than when I am honourably or usefully employed. If your Excellency thinks I can promote the service as much in this employment as any other, I shall cheerfully execute the business, without the least murmur.

I am, with all due respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

NATH. GREENE.

To His Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters, New-York.

New-York, July 25, 1776.

Our troops stationed on Bergen-Point, give the Ministerial fleet and army some uneasiness, by firing at the tenders, boats, &c. It so galls and provokes them, that they return the fire with great fury, but have not done the least damage to our people.

Last Lord's day a great many shot were heard in this city and at Bergen-Point. The occasion was this: A barge from the fleet, full of men, landed on the Point, but were opposed and driven off with precipitation by our troops; a smart fire ensued from a tender for a considerable time, without doing any injury. By two deserters, we are informed that a Captain and two privates were killed on board their barge.

We hear from New-Jersey and Connecticut that a great part of the men being absent on military service, and the time of harvest coming on, the women, assisted by the elderly men, whose age rendered them unfit for the Army, have so effectually exerted themselves, that they have generally got in the harvest completely, the laudable example being set by the ladies of the first character in each place. And we are credibly informed that many of them have declared that they will take the farming business upon themselves, so long as the rights and liberties of their country require the presence of their sons, husbands, and lovers, in the field.

GENERAL HEATH TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Greenwich, July 25, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: The bearer, Lieutenant-Colonel Jacobs, of Colonel Bailey's regiment, complains that one Ensign Seth Bryant, belonging to said regiment, and now employed in the works, was yesterday afternoon, by order of my Lord Stirling, put under guard in a common guard-house, where he still remains, on suspicion of embezzlement. A procedure so extraordinary, constrains me to represent the matter to your Excellency, as your Excellency is sensible that in all service, and in special, by the rules and regulations by which this Army is to be governed, "whenever any officer or soldier shall commit a crime deserving punishment, he shall, if an officer, be put in arrest; if a non-commissioned officer or soldier, be imprisoned." Whether he be guilty or not, I cannot tell; the judgment of a general court-martial is to determine. But as he wears a Continental commission, his being confined under guard must give umbrage to every gentleman who sustains a commission in the Army.

I am, with great respect, your Excellency's most humble servant,

W. HEATH.

To His Excellency General Washington, present.

REPORTS OF GENERAL AND FIELD-OFFICERS.

Greenwich, July 25, 1776.

In pursuance of the general order of yesterday, directing the Brigadier and the Colonel or Commanding Officer of each Regiment in his Brigade to meet and estimate the quantity of Paper absolutely necessary to serve a Regiment a month, &c., the officers of the First Brigade met this day for that purpose.

Present: Brigadier-General Heath, Colonel Prescott, Colonel Read, Lieutenant-Colonel Sheppard, Lieutenant-Colonel Jacobs, Lieutenant-Colonel Wesson.

The subject-matter being maturely considered, the officers are of opinion that twelve quires of Paper are absolutely necessary for each Regiment per month, if they are to provide their own books.

W. HEATH, Brigadier-General.

Quantity of Paper necessary for each Regiment of General Greene's Brigade.

For five Morning Reports, to be made by the Corporals, of the state of each Company, one to each officer in the Company, and one to the Adjutant, eight sheets per day. Also a Daily Report of the sick to the Surgeon of the Regiment by the Corporal, and of the absent men, one sheet per day.

The Adjutant must every day make a report of the state of the Regiment to the Commanding Officer.

The Sergeant of each Company to make a Provision Return every other day to the Quartermaster.

The Adjutant to make three Weekly Returns—one to Head-Quarters, one to Brigadier-General, and one to Colonel of Regiment.

The Surgeons to make three Weekly Returns—one for Head-Quarters, one to Brigade-General, and one to Colonel of Regiment. He must, moreover, have Paper to dispense medicines and send orders for the reception of the men into the General Hospital.

Daily Reports of Guards.

Regimental Court-Martials and Orders on the Quarter-master-General's Store for necessaries for the men.

Sheet of Paper per month to each Company to make abstracts, and the like quantity to register them.

Paper for Passes on necessary occasions.

Reports of Arms and Ammunition necessary to be made by each Company at least twice a week.

Paper for necessary correspondence.

A ream per month to each Regiment thought sufficient.

NATHANAEL GREENE, Brig. General.

J. VARNUM, Col. Ninth Regt.

DANL. HITCHCOCK, Colonel.

MOSES LITTLE, Colonel.

EDWD. HAND, Col. First Regiment.

July 25, 1776.

At a meeting of the Brigadier-General and the Officers commanding Regiments in the Second Brigade, according to General Orders of the 24th instant, to estimate the quantity of Paper absolutely necessary for the use of a Regiment's Returns and their publick use one month:

Having considered the several uses of Paper in a Regiment, and estimated the quantity necessary for the same, are of opinion that ten Quires to a Regiment will be necessary, exclusive of sufficient books for orders and printed forms for Weekly Returns.

JOS. SPENCER, Brigadier-General.

SAM'L H. PARSONS, Col. 10th Regt.

JED. HUNTINGTON, Col. 17th Regt.

JONA. WARD, Col. 21st Regt.

SAM'L WYLLYS, Col. 22d Regt.

Camp, New-York, July 26, 1776.

An Estimate of the quantity of Paper necessary to serve the Brigade commanded by General HEARD, for one month:

General	- - - - -	1 quire.
B. Major	- - - - -	1 "
Four Colonels, each one quire	- - - - -	4 "
Four Adjutants, each one quire	- - - - -	4 "
Thirty-two Captains	- - - - -	32 "
		42 quires.

PETER GORDON, B. M.

July 26, 1776.

On consulting the Field-Officers of my Brigade, they are unanimously of opinion, that if one quire of Paper be allowed per month to each Company, one quire to the Adjutant, one quire to the Commanding Officer of each Regiment per month, it will be a sufficient and proper allowance.

STIRLING, Brigadier-General.

To His Excellency General Washington.

July 25, 1776.

An estimate of Paper necessary for the regiment of Artillery per month: Twenty quires, or one ream.

HENRY KNOX, Colonel.

New-York, July 26, 1776.

The Colonels of the several Regiments in my brigade being convened according to orders of the 24th instant, have estimated the quantity of Paper necessary to serve a Regiment for Returns, and other publick uses, for a month, at ten quires.

JAMES WADSWORTH, Brigadier-General.

New-York, July 26, 1776.

GENERAL MIFFLIN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp at Mount Washington, July 25, 1776, }
eight o'clock, P. M. }

MY DEAR GENERAL: I have this minute received a letter from Mr. Gerry, at Norwalk, on his way to Boston, with the following paragraph:

"I was informed at the White-Plains, by some gentlemen of the Convention, that a person very unfriendly to the American States had authentick information of the intention of the General in providing the chevaux-de-frise; and that it was appropriated, with the ships, to stop the channel in the North River, and hem in the enemy's ships."

The movement of the ships this morning down the river confirms Mr. Gerry's information. Lieutenant Connolly says they came nine miles down this morning. We keep a good look-out for them, as the wind and tide are favourable to their wishes. When they first appear I will order six alarm guns to be fired at a minute's interval; and when they come within reach, will keep up as heavy a fire as possible.

I am, with attachment, your Excellency's obedient servant,

THO. MIFFLIN.

To His Excellency General Washington, New-York.

COLONEL HAY TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Haverstraw, July 25, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Excellency's letter of the 20th instant, with twenty pounds of powder. The approbation you are pleased to express of my conduct, and the regiment under my command, while it affords the most sensible satisfaction, cannot fail to produce a continuance of our exertions, until it is in your Excellency's power to relieve the inhabitants.

My regiment consists of but four hundred men, one-fourth of whom, with eighty men sent me by General Clinton, I find necessary to keep on constant duty. This Precinct has already raised two companies for the Continental service. In the vicinity of the mountains being poor, is thinly inhabited by people of small estates; this, together with the great extent of shore we have to guard, is extremely burdensome to the people, and I suppose is the true reason that has induced Captain Parker to fix his station in Haverstraw Bay.

Since the destruction of Halstead's house, and the robbing the poor man of his hogs by Captain Wallace, nothing of a hostile nature has been attempted. The enemy have collected their force nearly opposite my house, and employ their time in sounding the river. Their having taken down the sand bags from the sides of their ships, spread awnings in all their vessels, and neglecting to embrace the many fair winds and tides that have offered, induce me to think that Captain Parker has resolved to confine his operations to the south side of the Highlands, and to make no further progress up the river till the arrival of a reinforcement. As yet they have had no supplies from this shore, nor any addition to their strength except two poor wretches of infamous character; nor have I any reason to think that many have resorted to them from the eastern shore, although a bullock was brought from thence, and hoisted, with great shoutings, from a barge into the Rose at the dawn of day on Monday last. My guards have since seen cabbages delivered from a canoe. If there has been any other communication between the enemy and the County of Westchester, it must have been in the night, for I have observed no increase of the number of boats about the ships or tenders in the daytime.

Permit me, sir, to suggest that it would tend greatly to obstruct the designs of the enemy if the shores above and below them were furnished with light whaleboats, to pursue their barges. This would enable us not only to dismiss part of the guards now employed, but also to cut off any supplies, follow them wherever they may attempt to land, and prevent the disaffected from joining them, give greater safety and relief to the peasants, and, upon the whole, be a saving to the publick. I shall, in compliance with your Excellency's request, give you the earliest information of every material event in this quarter; and am, sir, your most obedient servant,

A. HAWKES HAY.

To His Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters.

P. S. Half after ten o'clock A. M. This moment the ships and tenders came under sail, fair wind and tide, and they are proceeding down the river.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

German-Flats, July 25, 1776.

SIR: I am this day honoured with your obliging favour of the 17th instant, and am happy to learn that we shall soon be supplied with felling-axes. If the helving will not cause much delay, I could wish to have it done, and the axes ground, otherwise to send them on as they are, we being in great need of them.

I am happy that your Honour has so early issued the proclamation concerning the deserters from the Army. I hope it will have a good effect. Before I went last to Crown-Point, I gave directions to Lieutenant-Colonel Buell to collect all the boards he possibly could for erecting hospitals for the sick at Fort George, and temporary barracks for the troops wherever they might be. He has carried into execution my wishes with that diligence which distinguishes him, and a very considerable quantity of boards are collected. As soon as I found our Army was to retreat from Canada, I caused a saw-mill to be erected at the head of Wood-Creek, that will cut nearly three hundred boards of fourteen feet long in every twenty-four hours. The mill began to work about twelve or fourteen days ago, so that I trust we shall have sufficient shelter for our troops. I believe there are not any old gun-barrels or locks left; if there should be, I will order them to be sent to you. The head carpenters will be charged with the money you have advanced, and I will order it to be replaced as soon as the Deputy Paymaster-General has it in his power to do it. I dare say Doctor Ely's design will not be mistaken. I wrote to General Gates on the subject, and pointed out his errand. I consider his being sent up on such an occasion, as an evidence of his foresight and attention to the good of the common cause. The conference with the Indians is not yet opened, and I fear it will not be until Monday next. My long absence from the Army distresses me much, as the variety of business carrying forward on the communication, I fear, will get somewhat deranged. But neither my colleagues nor the Indians will permit me to return until the business is completed.

I am, with perfect esteem, and every wish for your health and happiness, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esq.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

German-Flats, July 25, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your favour of the 13th instant, I received yesterday, and that of the 17th, this morning. I am perfectly in sentiment with you on the subject of private sutlers. They are in an Army what tippling-houses are in cities: the receptacle of the abandoned, where mutiny, disorder and every vice takes rise. I shall immediately give orders for purchasing Arnet's rum; but your order to the Deputy Commissary-General would have been sufficient.

Governour Trumbull, from whom I had a letter this morning, of the 17th instant, advises me that I may soon expect one thousand axes. I hope they are now on the way, with such others as may have been collected by the other people employed in that business before I left Albany.

This moment I received the enclosed. If the chain can be spared, I wish you would send it without delay, under the care of a careful officer to attend it to Poughkeepsie.

The Indians are not yet convened; and I fear we shall not open the conference until Monday next. I intended to leave the business to my colleagues, but they were both of opinion that if I quitted this place before the treaty was held, that it would essentially prejudice our cause; and the Indians, too, formally addressed me on the occasion. Their delays greatly distress me, as I know I could be of some service in expediting matters. Can you procure no intelligence from Canada?

Adieu, my dear sir; I am, with best wishes and esteem, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. General Gates.

P. S. If you do not send the chain, please to advise my Secretary, who is at Albany, of it, and direct him to despatch a messenger to Messrs. Van Zandt, Lawrence, and Tudor, at Poughkeepsie, to inform them of it.

Yours, &c.,

P. SCHUYLER.

GENERAL ARNOLD TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, July 25, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I wrote you early yesterday morning, and delivered the letter to Colonel Wynkoop, who was to have set off for Ticonderoga in the morning, but was obliged to wait for his people, who were gone to Cheshire's, and did not return till evening, when he received your order to remain here. I have sent carpenters to assist in fixing the gondolas and vessels. I should have returned this morning, but the boats which were sent to Cheshire's the day before yesterday for the carpenters are not yet returned. It will be necessary for me to stay until they arrive, to give them orders respecting the craft they are to build. I have sent off an express this morning to General Schuyler for sundry articles wanted for the gondolas, and have requested him to send either to Connecticut or to General Washington for two or three hundred seamen, who will be absolutely necessary to man what craft we shall soon have completed. Without a larger number of seamen than can be found in the Northern Army our navigation will be useless. We have received no advice from below lately. The first company of Militia arrived last evening—others are expected every minute.

I am, with esteem and affection, dear General, your obedient and humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

To the Hon. General Gates.

CAPTAIN WYNKOOP TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, July 25, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I have received yours of yesterday, and shall, with a great deal of pleasure, comply with all commands in said letter. I shall send you one gondola tomorrow, and the rest I shall forward as fast as possible, and send them down.

When I came here on this ground, I found things went very irregular and slow. The carpenters complained to me that if the soldiers went into the woods to help them, they would sit down by the trees instead of working, and when they complained to their officers thereof, found no redress.

I have been one day from here, to Cheshire's saw-mill, where I saw that neither the store nor barracks was set up at that place, and the commanding officer at that post was gone to Albany; and found also that the saw-mill did not go at night, only by day; and no boards sawed. I have now given them the strictest charge to saw continually, for I found they had water plenty. I have employed my officers and men to clear the creek and fetch the boards, and expect this day one hundred and forty boards here from that place, which I will send you down to-morrow.

The same day that General Arnold arrived here on this ground, he told me it was General Gates's positive orders that I should go down to Ticonderoga and join my regiment, which I thought a little strange of. As I had no men at home, (they being all employed in clearing the creek and fetching boards down,) I could not comply with his orders. The greater part of them arriving, I was determined to comply with his orders; but receiving your letter this morning, and finding nothing of that nature mentioned, induces me to stay till further orders from your Excellency.

What is the reason of General Arnold's giving such orders to me I know not, except that some of our commanders at this place see that I drive business on faster, as several have complained to General Arnold concerning me.

I am, dear General, your Excellency's humble servant,

CORNELIUS WYNKOOP.

To Major-General Gates, at Ticonderoga.

P. S. Concerning the stores, I found it went very irregular, and have demanded the keys, and have appointed one of my officers to act in that station, as long as the General pleases to continue him therein.

Providence, Saturday, July 27, 1776.

Thursday last, (25th July.) at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, his Honour the Governour, attended by such Members of the Upper and Lower Houses of Assembly as were in town, and a number of the inhabitants, went in procession to the State-House, escorted by the Cadet and Light-Infantry Companies, where, at twelve o'clock, was read the Act of Assembly concurring with the most honourable General Congress in their Declaration of Independence. The Declaration was also read; at the conclusion of which, thirteen volleys were fired by the Cadets and Light-Infantry; the Artillery Company next fired thirteen cannon, and a like number of new cannon (cast at the Hope Furnace) were discharged, at the Great-Bridge; the ships Alfred and Columbus likewise fired thirteen guns each, in honour of the day. At two o'clock his Honour the Governour, attended and escorted as above, proceeded to Hacker's-Hall, where an elegant entertainment was provided on the occasion. After dinner the following toasts were drunk, viz:

1. The Thirteen Free and Independent States of America.
2. The most Honourable the General Congress.
3. The Army and Navy of the United States.
4. The State of Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations.
5. The Commerce of the United States.
6. Liberty to those who have spirit to assert it.
7. The friends of the United States in every part of the earth.
8. General Washington.
9. The Officers of the American Army and Navy.
10. May the Crowns of Tyrants be crowns of thorns.
11. The memory of the brave Officers and Men who have fallen in defence of American Liberty.
12. May the Constitution of each separate State have for its object the preservation of the civil and religious rights of mankind.
13. May the Union of the States be established in justice and mutual confidence, and be as permanent as the pillars of nature.

The Artillery Company, and a number of other gentlemen, dined the same day at Lindsey's Tavern, when the following toasts were drunk:

1. The Free and Independent States of America.
2. The General Congress of the American States.
3. The Honourable John Hancock, Esq.
4. His Excellency General Washington.
5. His Excellency General Lee.
6. The brave Carolineans.
7. Success to General Gates and the Northern Army.
8. May the subtlety of the American Standard destroy the ferocity of the British Lion.
9. The State of Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations.
10. The Honourable Governour Cooke.
11. May the Independent States of America for ever be an asylum for Liberty.
12. The American Army and Navy.
13. The Providence Independent Companies.

The whole was conducted with great order and decency, and the Declaration received with every mark of applause. Towards evening the King of Great Britain's Coat of Arms was taken from a late publick office, as was also the sign from the Crown Coffee-House, and burnt.

MAJOR MEIGS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Middletown, July 25, 1776.

SIR: I arrived here the 22d instant, after a tedious passage of sixty-six days from Quebeck, on my parole of honour to return when called for, a copy of which, together with my pass from General Carleton, are enclosed, (the original is in the hands of General Howe.)

I am to represent to your Excellency the situation of the unfortunate detachment that were made prisoners on the 31st December last. The number now in Quebeck is about three hundred, including officers. The officers were confined in the Seminary. The soldiers were confined in the Jesuits' College, and were served with the same rations that were served to the garrison after the siege was raised. The officers had liberty to walk in a large garden that is adjoining the Seminary. The officers and privates are in great want of money, as they cannot procure clothing without it, of which they are in great want; the officers are now considerably in debt for necessaries, exclusive of the garrison allowance. Generals Carleton and Howe have given their word for the protection of any private gentleman that may be sent with money, but will not admit that an officer of the Army be sent. The prisoners bear their confinement with becoming fortitude, but are anxious for an exchange of prisoners, if it can be obtained consistently with the interest of their country.

I am informed that Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell, of the Highlanders, applied to General Howe for a cartel, and that Major French and others are anxious for an exchange. In February last, the officers prisoners at Quebeck petitioned General Carleton for an exchange of prisoners, provided our country should approve of it. The General received the petition, read it, and told the officer that presented it, that he would consider of it; but returned no other answer. I intended to have waited on your Excellency myself, but was advised by the gentlemen in Hartford and this town not to do it without your Excellency's advice, as it would be undoubtedly known to General Howe, and perhaps even represented that I had joined the Army, or was giving intelligence, for which he might immediately demand me. When I gave my parole to General Carleton, he told me Major Skene, son to Governour Skene, had arrived at Quebeck two days before, and that he should not employ him till he had the advice of the King of England.

I have sent by the bearer a number of unsealed letters, which I brought from the prisoners at Quebeck.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

RETURN JONA. MEIGS.

To His Excellency General Washington, Commander-in-Chief of the Forces of the American States.

JAMES BOWDOIN TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Boston, July 25, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: Last Monday the Militia of this town were called into the field to draught the town's proportion of the last ordered levies. After much uneasiness, between thirty and forty men, I understand, were inlisted, on a promise of extravagant bounties. Some demanded, and I am told were promised, one hundred dollars over and above the Government bounty.

When the resolve for raising these last levies was under consideration of the honourable Board, it was said by several gentlemen, and it appeared to be the sense of the Board, that the men which Boston would have to furnish would not be called for to go either to New-York or Canada, as the draught of every twenty-fifth man from the whole Militia of the Colony would produce a much greater number than fifteen hundred, the number wanted, and that the overplus would be ordered to Boston and its neighbourhood. And after the receipt of General Washington's order for all the Continental regiments stationed there to proceed to New-York, it was said at Council that it would be proper that the said overplus should be ordered to Nantasket, the Castle, and Dorchester, together with a further number, to replace those regiments. If this were the case, and your Honours continue of the same mind, I beg leave to submit to your consideration whether it would not be proper that the men inlisted in Boston should be ordered here, for the defence of the town, or that your Honours should signify that the said men will not be ordered to New-York or Canada; in which case the payment of the said most extravagant bounties may be stopped, and the town, already almost ruined, in some measure relieved.

If your Honours think proper to do anything in this matter, the relief will depend on its being done immediately; and in that case, I beg leave to suggest whether it would not be proper that one or two of your honourable members should be desired to come to Boston, without delay, to communicate your pleasure.

Enclosed is a letter from the Honourable Mr. Sever, just received. It will be brought by Captain Samson, the commander of the Colony's ship of war, who says the quantity of powder allowed him is too short; I believe it would be proper to enlarge it at least five hundred pounds.

There is an account to the eastward that some of the enemy's small vessels are cruising on that shore, and have taken a number of our coasters. I submit it to your consideration whether Captain Samson should not be ordered to cruise on that shore for some time, and then proceed where it is most likely he may pick up some of their West-Indiamen; and that he be directed to Boston by the middle of September, in order to proceed, with other of our vessels of war, to Newfoundland, to sweep the whole British fishery; and, in the meanwhile, our other armed vessels be ordered to be at Boston at that time.

All which is submitted with great respect, by your Honours' most obedient, humble servant, JAMES BOWDOIN.
To the Hon. Council of the State of Massachusetts-Bay.

JAMES BOWDOIN TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Boston, July 25, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: The enclosed petition, from Winslow, came to hand the last evening. The most effectual means of securing the eastern part of the Colony from an inland attack, and quieting the minds of the people settled there, I humbly apprehend, is, to engage the St. John's, Mickmack, Penobscot, and other eastern Indians, to engage heartily in the war, agreeably to General Washington's request. For this purpose I beg leave to suggest to your Honours, whether it would not be proper that three or four, or more, suitable persons be engaged to go immediately into the Indian country, along with the Indians that are now there, and enlist them into the service without delay. I cannot but apprehend such a measure would be attended with success, and that General Washington, in that case, would in a short time have a considerable body of them; which would answer the double purpose of assisting him and securing our eastern frontiers, which otherwise may be in great danger of being broken up by these same Indians.

I am, most respectfully, your Honours' most obedient, humble servant,

JAMES BOWDOIN.

To the Honourable Council of Massachusetts-Bay.

J. PALMER TO RICHARD DEVENS.

Germantown, July 25, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Mr. Bates has finished six pieces, and would have finished the other four, had he had iron. He mentions to me your sending one ton of the largest iron for the four mentioned, and for the six large ones which are to be done, and says he should be glad to have the wheels for the first ten pieces. He also says he shall want cash as soon as the other ten are finished, in order to keep up the spirit for doing the others. Perhaps when you send him the iron and the wheels, the same vessel may take the six pieces from thence for Hull.

Pray my compliments to the Committee. I hope this will find them well. I very much want to see them at Hull, to which place I was just setting out.

And remain ever, your very humble servant,

J. PALMER.

To Richard Devens, Esq., Commissary-General, Boston.

P. S. Please send me news, or the papers; for news is so refined when it reaches Hull that we don't understand it. The Committee want paper at Hull; J. P. has expended all his own, or nearly all.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO DEACON NEWELL.

July 25, 1776.

SIR: The Council have this minute received information that Colonel Reed's regiment, in the County of Middlesex, are now delayed from marching towards Canada solely for want of camp-kettles, which were to have been delivered at Concord some time since. You will be pleased to inform the bearer whether those kettles are gone forward to Concord or not; if not, whether it is in your power to send them forward immediately; if that should not be the case, you will direct the bearer to Dr. Carling, or any other person whose province it is to order those matters, that the kettles may be sent forward with all possible despatch. I need not urge the necessity of sending this article immediately, as the soldiers are now lying on the road.

By order of Council: JNO. AVERY, D. Secretary.
To Deacon Timothy Newell.

GENERAL WARD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Boston, July 25, 1776.

SIR: Herewith is enclosed Returns of the Stores in this division of the Continental Army. I shall immediately send to the Agents to furnish those articles mentioned in Mr. Webb's letter of the 18th instant, and shall comply as far as is in my power with all your directions therein.

As soon as the regiments are able to march, I shall give orders therefor, and immediately retire.

I am, your Excellency's obedient and very humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To General Washington.

JOSEPH NYE, JUN., TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Sandwich, July 25, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: Being appointed one of the Committee for this Colony for raising every twenty-fifth man for the Canada department, I have applied myself to the service with success, but cannot find by the resolve that they are to be marched from home without further orders from your Honours. I beg to have your direction by the bearer, Colonel Norton; and remain your most obedient humble servant,

JOS. NYE, JUN.

Boston, Thursday, July 25, 1776.

Last Sunday, a ship of two hundred tons, commanded by James Arnout, was sent into this harbour by Commodore Hopkins, in the George ship-of-war, taken in Nantasket-Road. She has on board sixteen hundred barrels of pork, four hundred firkins of butter, some oat-meal, &c., &c.

Last Tuesday evening, came to town from Halifax Lieutenant Scott, of Peterborough, in New-Hampshire Government, who was wounded and taken prisoner at the memorable battle of Bunker-Hill, the 17th of June, 1775, and has been a prisoner ever since. He informs, that he, with thirteen others, broke jail about five weeks ago, and betook themselves to the woods, where they separated; that Captain Martindale and his First and Second Lieutenants, John Brown, rifleman, Leonard Briggs, of Ware, and himself, arrived at Truro, at the head of Cobbe-cut-River, after a travel of three days, where they procured a boat, and got to the eastward; that Richard Carpenter, formerly a barber in this town, Philip Johnson Peack, David Kemp, of Groton, and Corporal Cruse, of Virginia, and two others, took the road to Windsor, where they were apprehended, and confined in irons; that Benjamin Wilson, of Billerica, one of the Bunker-Hill prisoners, died lately in jail; and that he left Master James Lovell, still confined, in health and high spirits.

CONVENTION OF COMMITTEES OF HAMPSHIRE COUNTY, MASSACHUSETTS.

Extracts of the doings of a Convention of the Committees of the Towns in the County of Hampshire, and State of the Massachusetts-Bay, held at the Court-House, in Northampton, on Thursday and Friday, July 25 and 26, 1776.

Present: Eighty-eight Delegates from forty Towns.

Colonel John Bliss President, and Mr. Robert Breck Clerk.

Resolved, That all persons that shall be convicted of being notoriously inimical to the cause of American Liberty, be disarmed as soon as may be, and that such as are more dangerous among them, be confined to the Town to which they belong, or to their farms, or kept in safe custody, or bound with sufficient sureties, as shall appear necessary; and as confederacies are judged to be formed and forming in many parts of the country, and may be strengthened, and other great inconveniences may ensue from such persons (who are inimical as aforesaid) collecting together in companies, that they be restrained from all such Meetings and Conventions, as also from holding any intercourse or correspondence with those sent into the County as prisoners.

It is recommended to the Committee of Safety of the several Towns in the County aforesaid, that such persons as are prisoners and privates in their respective Towns, who have hired themselves out for their support, be not permitted to go out of the limits of such Town, till the time of their contract be fulfilled, nor be out of their respective places of abode after daylight, unless by special order of their master, nor after nine o'clock with his consent; that they be not suffered to dwell with any person who shall be judged inimical to the American States; and that all such persons as shall hire such privates be strictly enjoined to return such privates to the Committee of such Town from whence they were taken at the time of their discharge; and that special care be taken that such prisoners as are on their parole strictly conform to, and abide within the limits of, such parole, otherwise they ought to be closely confined. Also, that such prisoners as are on parole be so situated as that their limits shall not extend to any Town where officers or privates are confined, and that no privates be suffered to dwell in any Town where officers or others on parole are stationed.

It is recommended to the Selectmen of the several Towns in the County aforesaid, that may be defective, that they do, as soon as may be, procure the several proportions of a Town stock of powder; also, a sufficient quantity of fire-arms for such poor persons as are not able to equip themselves, agreeable to the resolve of the great and General Court of this State.

It is further recommended to the Committees of the several Towns in the County aforesaid, to use their utmost care in apprehending and securing all deserters from our Army, and cause that they be returned to their respective corps; also, that they request their several Towns that they instruct their Representatives to procure an order from the General Court of this State, that all persons travelling through the same should have passes, denoting their friendliness to the American States, and make provision for suspected persons being taken up, examined, &c.

Resolved, also, That it be earnestly recommended to all the good people of this County in general, and the Committees of the several Towns in particular, that they use their utmost influence and endeavours to discountenance and suppress all mobs, riots, and tumultuous proceedings, and the seizing and detaining the person and property of any individual contrary to a late resolve of the Continental Congress; and that any person who has been, or may be, so seized, be immediately dismissed, and the property of any one so seized and detained, be immediately replaced.

Voted, That Major Hawley, Mr. Robert Breck, and Dr. Levi Shephard, be a Committee to make the foregoing extracts from the proceedings of the Convention aforesaid, and transmit the same to Mr. Ebenezer Watson, Printer, in Hartford, for publication, as soon as may be.

London, July 26, 1776.

Captain Williamson, of the Francis, arrived in London, from Antigua, and brings an account, viz: that a few days after he was on this side the Bermuda Islands, the following ships were taken by the Revenge and Montgomery, two small American privateers, viz: the brig Henry, Blyth, from Barbadoes to Halifax, taken the 28th of May, laden with rum; the Rover, Hunter, from Antigua to Dublin, taken the 13th of June, laden with rum; the Isabella, Kirk, from Antigua to Dublin, taken the 13th of June, loaded with rum; the Harlequin, Goodwin, from Nevis to Dublin, taken the 2d of July, loaded with sugar and rum; the Devonshire, Fisher, from Antigua to Dublin, taken the 1st of July, loaded with sugar and rum, in latitude $34^{\circ} 55'$, longitude $53^{\circ} 36'$. Fifty per cent. insurance was offered on some of the above ships; and insurance, with convoy, rose near thirty per cent.

Captain Stephenson, of the Lady Juliana, arrived in town this day, and gives the following account of the capture of his ship, the Lady Juliana, from Jamaica to London, in company with the Reynolds, Captain Rusden, from Jamaica for London, and the Juno, Captain Marsden, from Jamaica for Bristol: On the 9th and 12th of May last, they were attacked by two American privateers off the Matanzas, bearing S.S.E., and that the Reynolds, Rusden, was taken by the American privateer, Captain Henry, mounting six three-pounders, and ten swivels, on the 9th of May; and Lady Juliana, Stephenson, and Juno, Marsden, were taken by the Chance, Captain Adams, who mounted four six-pounders and ten swivels, the 12th; that the Provincials put the Captains and passengers on board a Spanish vessel that was leaky, who carried them into Providence, where the Captains purchased a vessel, called the Baltimore, which is since arrived at Plymouth.

The nine ships above mentioned were all taken with the greatest ease, after they had been convoyed one hundred and fifty leagues from the ports they respectively sailed from, and left by the men-of-war, under a supposition that they were totally out of danger. The privateers which took them were but thinly manned, and weakly armed. One carried ten, and the other twelve guns. Several of the ships carried a great number, but (which is very extraordinary) no powder on board, the Governors of the places they sailed from not allowing any to be shipped, for fear enough should not remain with them to defend their situations in case of an attack, which was something more than probable. The Lady Juliana, Captain Stephenson, had six hundred hogsheads of sugar and thirty thousand hard dollars on board, besides other negotiable and marketable articles. Her cargo, therefore, exclusive of the dollars, at a moderate computation, was worth twenty-five thousand pounds. She was boarded by Captain White, an old acquaintance of Captain Stephenson, who cordially shook hands with his captor when he set foot on deck, little thinking he was an enemy. White, out of civility and respect for old acquaintanceship, promised to send Stephenson safe to England, at the same time told him, that he was ordered by the Congress to carry every prize he took to Rhode-Island, and that the other privateer was to carry hers to Salem, in New-England. The ship Francis, on board which Stephenson came to England, was suffered to sail home, as the Captains of the Provincial privateers did not think her valuable enough to be seized. The amount of the cargoes of the above prizes, we are informed, upon the best authority, is upwards of £140,000 sterling.

SILAS DEANE TO C. W. F. DUMAS.

Paris, July 26, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed letter from Dr. Franklin will hint at my business in this city, where I arrived the 7th instant, and should have sent forward this earlier, had I not hopes of the honour of presenting it to you in person. This I now find I cannot expect without delaying it beyond all bounds. I therefore forward it by the common conveyance, and inform you that my address in this city is to Messrs. Germany, Guardot & Co., bankers; that I shall tarry here till the last of August, when I propose going to Dunkirk, thence to Amsterdam and Hamburgh, in which journey I hope for the pleasure of seeing you. In the mean time, I shall be happy in a correspondence with you on the subject of the dispute between the United Colonies and Great Britain, or any other that shall be agreeable to you; and I wish to be informed if I shall be in danger of any disagreeable treatment in my journey through Holland, in a private capacity, though it should be known that I was in the service of the United Colonies. It has been suggested to me that I might meet with some interruption or difficulties from the friends of the British Ministry, which occasions my making this inquiry.

I have the honour to be, &c., SILAS DEANE.

P. S. I read and understand the French language tolerably well, though I am unable to write it.

CAPTAIN MERONEY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Fredericktown, July 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have exerted myself endeavouring to furnish my company with guns and blankets, but find it impracticable without money. I applied to Mr. Harrison, and could receive but seventy pounds, insufficient to furnish one-tenth. Mr. Harding, the bearer, is a gentleman, and may be trusted with any sum. Three hundred and fifty pounds is the sum I want to receive by the bearer.

I am, gentlemen, with respect, your obedient servant,
PHILIP MERONEY.

To the Council of Safety of Maryland.

GENTLEMEN: I am of opinion that a less sum than is mentioned in the above letter will not furnish the above company with arms and blankets.

C. BEATTY.

To the Council of Safety.

MAJOR PRICE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Upper Camp, Prince George's, July 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: If you expect frequent intelligence from this place, you must send down for it, it being impossible to get horses here.

I have been under the necessity of sending home all the Militia except fifty, and it was with much difficulty I could keep them. Indeed, their distress seems to be very great, for most of them are poor people whose crops are suffering, and many have not any dependance but their labour. I received an express from General Lewis last night. The following is a copy of my answer to him, which will give you as true a state of matters here as possible.

I found it absolutely necessary to keep the wagon and horses brought from Annapolis, not knowing what hour it might be necessary to remove the cannon, and also to draw them back, for it will not be possible to get any here. However, if you think it best, and will send me directions, I shall act accordingly.

I am, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

THOS. PRICE.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

MAJOR PRICE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

St. George's Camp, July 26, 1776.

SIR: The enemy come on St. George's Island in the day time to get water and wood, and in the evening retire on board their ships. They have no manner of fortifications on the Island.

The fleet lies from the northeast side of St. George's River about a mile, the depth of water, as I imagine, about three fathom. The Island lies from the main land about a hundred yards. The water, at low tide, about knee-deep, where we threw up a small intrenchment. There are three pieces of cannon on Cherryfield Point, (about a mile from the Fowey), one a nine-pounder, one a four, the other three. I have another on the northwest side of the river, (the narrowest water between the land and main,) a four-pounder. I have about four hundred men (half of whom are well armed, the other half poorly) placed on each side of St. George's River. I have good reason to think, with the force I have, I can prevent the enemy's landing or plundering the inhabitants. I yesterday morning sent one hundred on the Island about half after two o'clock. They marched silently through the Island till day appeared, and then lay hid till they came from the ships to water. The advance party being rather eager, was too soon discovered, and the whole enemy ran to their boats, my people then pursuing them with all speed, and firing on them as they were getting into their boats, when our people say they killed three or four, that they saw fall, and several wounded, and one taken prisoner. The Fowey then fired on them, and compelled them to retire. After destroying their water-casks and filling up a well, (the best on the Island, for they have no springs,) they returned to the main without loss. By the best advice I can get from the prisoners and many deserters, the whole fleet does not intend to stay here longer than those up the Potomack come down, which they expect every day. Captain Beall, who was wounded in the first engagement, is recovering fast. I am, &c.,

THOS. PRICE.

N. B. I yesterday sent under a small guard a prisoner to Annapolis, taken yesterday, and three deserters, one of them an officer of Dunmore's, who made his escape with an old man who is very sick and not able to travel. I believe they are well pleased they have made their escape. One of them went from Annapolis, who says Caton was privy to his and others going on board the Fowey while she lay there. Please to pay this express.

B. HOOE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Chingoteague, July 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I did myself the honour of writing you on the 19th instant by Mr. Crockett. Some days after that time, I purchased about one hundred hogsheads of tobacco, sixty of which I have actually received, and since making the purchase the whole of the flour has arrived. I have examined a good deal of it, and find it is in such a state as will not admit of its being stored any length of time in expectation of a sale. I shall, therefore, endeavour to sell or ship it without delay. If I cannot do better, I must have the schooner John examined and valued and send her off with it, for it will soon perish here, and there is a good chance of selling it very high if it can be expeditiously pushed to market. The brig will sail in twelve days, by which time Captain Martin has engaged to return. If he does not, I must send her without him, as it is not in my power to attend here longer.

The two chests of arms and nine bales of sailcloth the Captain has delivered since the Committee of Worcester wrote you of the deficiency. The powder yet remains, twelve whole barrels of shot, four and a half barrels of which he says was put on board for the vessel's use.

Captain Martin appears very anxious to be commissioned. Of this I can say nothing, as he is a stranger to me, except that the men enter and act more cheerfully where they have a chance of sharing a prize; but how proper it may be to grant commissions to vessels carrying cargoes must be submitted to you.

I have the honour to be, your Honours' most obedient servant,

B. HOOE.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

CAPTAIN DARNES TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Queen Anne's County, July 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Jackson waits on you with two copies of my muster-roll, agreeable to the resolve of the Convention. I can't say but I am a good deal distressed at the uneasiness of our people. They throw themselves out of business by entering into the service, and many of them have not holes to put their heads in, and are perpetually teasing me about it. They are prodigiously anxious to be provided for with arms. They really labour under great disadvantages at present. If possible, I make no doubt but you will soon supply us. It certainly would be vastly agreeable to, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

JOHN DARNES.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

COLONEL BARNES TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Camp at Cherry Fields, July 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am informed that Colonel Kent, who was appointed by the Convention to command the Defence, declines the acceptance of the command. I shall therefore take the liberty to recommend Captain George Cooke as a proper person to command the Defence, knowing that Captain Richardson's opinion was, that neither of the gentlemen on board the Defence was sufficiently qualified to take the command. Captain George Cooke has served on board the English Navy for seven years, and has been in several engagements, and I think well qualified for the business. I have had an opportunity of finding him to be a man of undaunted courage since I have been in these parts. As Colonel Plater is well acquainted with Captain George Cooke, and I suppose some others of the Council, I shall say no more about him further than that I thought it my duty to prevent his passing unnoticed, if in my power.

I remain, gentlemen, your humble servant,

RICHD. BARNES.

To the Honourable Council of Safety.

B. BRACCO TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Port-Tobacco, July 26, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have sent the bearer, Sergeant Smith, express to inform you that the small-pox has broken out among the men under my command here, and hope you will be kind enough, by his return, to let me have instructions in what manner I am to act—whether immediately to inoculate the remainder of the men, or remove them out of the way. I think the latter would be of no effect, as the man who communicated the infection was a day and a night in company with all the soldiers here. Some combed his hair, and others slept with him. He was a man that called himself a deserter from Lord Dunmore, and produced a pass from the Committee of Essex County, in Virginia. I have spoken to Dr. Browne, who had the care of the fellow, and he says he thinks he was inoculated.

I am, sir, with the greatest gratitude, your most obedient humble servant,

B. BRACCO.

To James Tilghman, Esq., at Annapolis.

COLONEL HAWKINS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Charles County, July 26, 1776.

DEAR SIR: On the 18th instant, I received orders from Brigadier-General Dent to select from the interior parts of my battalion three companies of Militia, to be composed of men out of different companies, and despatch them to St. George's River, to relieve the Militia collected there at that time. Agreeable to order, I set out immediately, and had two of the companies raised the next day, commanded by Captain Parnham and Captain John Harrison; the other was not raised till the 20th, and was commanded by Captain McPherson. Parnham's company, which was foremost, got down to St. George's, or within a small distance of it, before great part of the fleet sailed up Potomack, and have been detained there ever since. The other two companies were ordered to return and watch the motions of the enemy, and to prevent their landing or plundering the inhabitants. And I have the satisfaction of informing you that our Militia have prevented the enemy from landing or plundering, if they intended it, and that we have sustained no damage, except the loss of a couple of boats, and the fleet have gone down the river again this day. I received a line yesterday evening from Captain Parnham, informing that several of his men are sickly, and desires that others may be sent to their relief; but that he is willing to stay as long as it may be necessary. And he pressed me much to send him a small supply of cash, as it is a shocking place to be at, especially without money, and many of his company are very poor. I must therefore request that you will appoint some person to adjust the accounts of my battalion, and be pleased to send the cash for the payment of the companies, and the necessary expenses, by Mr. Henry Massey Hanson, that I may be able to comply with the request of Captain Parnham; and, for further particulars, must beg leave to refer you to Mr. Hanson.

I am, very respectfully, dear sir, your obedient humble servant,

J. HAWKINS.

To the Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, President of the Council of Safety, Annapolis.

FREDERICK COUNTY COMMITTEE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee of Lower District of Frederick County, }
July 26, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: Understanding that there is a vacancy for a Major in the battalion for this County, we take the liberty to recommend Major Richard Crabb to you for that office. We are convinced as well of Major Crabb's attachment to the cause of America, as of his economy, fortitude, and manly resolution, and doubt not but his own merit will fully justify the appointment.

We are, gentlemen, your humble servants.

By order: SAM'L. W. MAGRUDER, Chairman.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO WORCESTER COUNTY COMMITTEE.

[No. 77.] Annapolis, July 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We are informed that there are a number of pieces of cannon in your County that have lain there some years, ever since the Spanish wreck on the seaboard side of your County. We request you would immediately cause those cannon to be examined, and let us hear from you by express what state and condition they are in, and how many there are, and what weight of metal they would carry, as also who claims any property in them; and if anybody claims, under what contract or agreement they were purchased, and of whom. We expect your answer as soon as you conveniently can. We are, &c.

To the Committees of Observation of Worcester County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

[No. 78.] Annapolis, July 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The letters from Colonels Barnes and Jordan were not enclosed in our last, from inattention. We now send them, with copies of some other letters from below, from whence you will see how affairs are going on there.

Dunmore's fleet have separated. The Fowey and the Otter, with a number of vessels having the Tory families on board, remain in the mouth of St. Mary's River. The Roebuck and six or seven other vessels have moved up the river Potomack, as high as Quantico in Virginia, where they stopped to take in water. There are some flying reports of their having landed at Mr. William Brent's, and burnt his house, which are confirmed this day by Charles Lansdale. He says it is feared they are landing on Colonel Smallwood's estate. The last he heard of them was yesterday, and the report was, they were landing on the Maryland side, near Colonel Smallwood's.

We observe what you say about the Flying-Camp, and shall do the best we can. We shall give the necessary orders for finding the troops rations, in expectation that the subsistence-money will be reimbursed. As soon as the Regulars are replaced that have and are about to march to the northward, we shall use our endeavours to complete the remaining battalions with all diligence, and send them forward, either in battalions or companies, as they get ready. Most of those we have seen of the new-inlisted men, appear to be quite raw, and in great want of necessities. Some pay must be advanced to put them in tolerable condition to appear in.

On Tuesday last, we gave orders to Captain Thomas to march with his men to Philadelphia, as soon as the commanding officer below thinks he can be spared. And this day, on receipt of your letter, we have ordered Captain Hindman to move forward, although we apprehend the Eastern-Shore will be weakened thereby, and we are doubtful that will be the next place invaded.

We feel for the State of New-York, but cannot help feeling also for Maryland, and shall endeavour to conduct ourselves in such manner as to give every assistance in our power to them and to the common cause, without exposing ourselves to destruction. Since the march of our Regulars, we are truly in a defenceless state, and if powerfully invaded, know not what may be the consequence. However, we hope for the best, and are exerting ourselves to the utmost.

We wish our powder that arrived at Egg-Harbour, to be sent to Baltimore. The arms we desire may be left at Philadelphia, for the use of one of the companies of the Flying-Camp, who will have our order to call for them.

We approve of what you have done as to the five thousand dollars, and would have you keep the balance to answer contingent expenses, and render account from time to time as you may see fit.

Doctor Tootle, our Surgeon-Major, has put into our hands a list of chirurgical instruments, which we send you herewith, and request the favour of you to procure and send them down by the first opportunity.

We send you also the proceedings of the last Convention.

Thomas Jennings, Esq., is just arrived, in good health, after a very long passage. He left London the 29th of March, and brings no very particular news that we hear.

We are, &c.

To the Deputies for Maryland in Congress.

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. I.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO JOSIAS BEALL.

[No. 79.] Annapolis, July 26, 1776.

SIR: Yours of the 24th instant was laid before us, and we observe the contents. In answer thereto we can only say that five quarter-barrels of powder have been sent to Piscataway, and that six or seven barrels are now lodged with the Committee of Prince George's County. If more be necessary, we will order some down. It gives us sincere pleasure to find the people in different parts of the Colony so spirited, and can assure you nothing shall be wanted on our parts. We are, &c.

To Josias Beall, Esq., Prince George's County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO JOHN HANSON.

[No. 80.] Annapolis, July 26, 1776.

SIR: The instructions from the Council of Safety (as you will observe) only respected muskets; but we desire you will purchase rifles upon the best terms you can. Be pleased likewise to pay for those purchased by Captain Mantz; and by the first opportunity we shall order and send you any money you may find necessary.

We are, &c.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO JAMES TILGHMAN.

[No. 81.] Annapolis, July 26, 1776.

SIR: The business before this Board daily becomes more important, and consequently requires as full a Council as may be. We hope, therefore, before this reaches you, that your line with your cousin is settled, and that it will not be inconvenient for you to attend your brethren immediately. We are the more earnest in making this requisition, as Colonel Plater intends to St. Mary's in a few days, and then we shall be left with only four members. Mr. Smith pleads the necessity of staying at his ship-yard about the building of the gondola, in excuse for his non-attendance; and Mr. Hands has resigned his seat. We are, &c.

To James Tilghman, Esq.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO BALTIMORE COMMITTEE.

[No. 82.] Annapolis, July 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The alacrity shown by your Committee in exerting itself in the common cause in which we are all engaged, it is hoped, will be attended with the success it merits, and which is so exceedingly necessary at this alarming and important juncture of time, as without arms and blankets little prospect of a favourable campaign can arise, if the troops were ever so numerous.

Agreeable to your request, therefore, and to expedite the business, we have transmitted to you, by Captain Yates, the £1000, the disposal of which you will be pleased to render us an account.

No account has yet been sent to this Board of the expenditure of the £1000 advanced at the time of the alarm occasioned by the Otter; omitted, we suppose, through the hurry of business, and therefore desire you will furnish it by the first opportunity. We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation of Baltimore County.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Friday, July 26, four o'clock, P. M.

SIR: Congress being adjourned, I have to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 25th instant, this moment come to hand. The subject of it is so just, that I will venture to say that it will be complied with in its fullest latitude.

The preamble to the resolutions for confiscating the property of the subjects of the King of Great Britain having been this day expunged, and the resolution altered, agreeable to the one now enclosed you, I am to request you will please to erase that from the resolves I enclosed you a few days past, and substitute the one I now transmit in its place.

With every wish in your favour, and every sentiment of esteem, I am, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

P. S. Brigadier-General Sullivan this day sent me a letter of resignation, which is ordered to lie on the table until Monday. I have not yet seen him.

INSTRUCTIONS TO PENNSYLVANIA DELEGATES.

In Convention, Friday, July 26, 1776, P. M.

The draught of Instructions for the Delegates in Congress was read and unanimously approved, and is as follows, viz:

"GENTLEMEN: This Convention, confiding in your wisdom and virtue, has, by the authority of the people, chosen and appointed you to represent the free State of Pennsylvania in the Congress of the United States of America, and authorized you, or a majority of such of you as shall at any time be present, to vote for and in the name of this State, in all and every question there to be decided. And this Convention apprehend it to be a duty which they owe the publick to give you the following general directions for your conduct, confident that you will at all times pay the utmost attention to the instructions of your constituents.

"The immense and irreparable injury which a free country may sustain by, and the very great inconveniences which always arise from a delay of its Councils, induce us, in the first place, strictly to enjoin and require you to give not only a constant, but a punctual attendance in Congress.

"The present necessity of a vigorous exertion of the united force of the free States of America against our British enemies, is the most important object of your immediate regard, and points out the necessity of cultivating and strengthening, by every means in your power, the present happy union of these States, until such a just, equal, and perpetual consideration can be agreed upon, and finally effected, as will be the most likely to secure to each the perfect direction of its own internal police; in the forming of which Confederation, you are to give your utmost assistance.

"We recommend to you to use your utmost power and influence in Congress to have a due attention paid to the establishing and maintaining a respectable naval force, as such a force is absolutely necessary to every trading nation, and is the least expensive or dangerous to the liberties of mankind.

"With respect to the forming of treaties with foreign powers, it is necessary only to say, that we strictly charge and enjoin you not to agree to, or enter into any treaty of commerce or alliance with Great Britain, or any other foreign power, but (on the part of America) as free and independent States; and that whenever Great Britain shall acknowledge these States free and independent, you are hereby authorized, in conjunction with the Delegates of the United States, to treat with her concerning peace, amity, and commerce, on just and equal terms."

LANCASTER COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Inspection, Observation, and Correspondence, at the house of Adam Reigart, the 26th of July, 1776:

Present: Edward Shippen, Wm. Atlee, Lodwick Lowman, Henry Dehuff, Christopher Crawford, Jacob Krug, John Miller.

William Atlee in the Chair.

There being a number of young lads in town, to wit: Henry Wilson, William Furguson, William Porter, Robert Jockley, Michael McGachakin, George McGighagin, James Ellet, Robert Jones, and Christian Newcomer, who have been, at the request of Colonel Hand, under the tuition of the Drum-Major of Colonel Slough's Battalion, and the Fife-Major of Colonel Ross's Battalion, and those teachers being now employed in the service in such manner that they cannot instruct the said lads, and Captain Ross now being about to march to the Camp, and agreeing that the said lads shall march under the care of his Sergeant:

It is Resolved, That the said lads be sent, under the care of Captain Ross's Sergeant, with his direction, to the Camp at New-York; and that the Chairman write to Colonel Hand by the Sergeant, informing him of this proceeding, and that the Committee have advanced £4 10s. to the Sergeant for their subsistence by the way.

Colonel Greene representing that near fifty of his Flying-Camp Company are now in this town, armed, accoutred, and ready to march, and that a number of the draughts of some of the Companies of his Battalion have not yet joined them, requests the sentiments of this Committee whether those who are shall march for the Camp under his command, and what method shall be taken to oblige the other draughts to follow:

Upon consideration, it is the sentiments of this Committee, that those who are in this place, armed and accoutred, be immediately marched for the Camp, where there may be immediate occasion for them; and that this Committee immediately write to Captain Ambrose Crean, Thomas Roppeheffer, and John Rough, requiring them immediately to send down to this place the draughts from their respective Companies appointed or allotted to form the said Flying-Camp Company, that they may follow their commanders to the Camp as expeditiously as possible; and if they refuse to proceed upon being required, to march them under Guard.

Ordered, That 7s. 6d. be paid to Edward Smith, one of Colonel Greene's Company, for riding express the other day with Circular Letters to the Colonels.

William Sergeant, of the Seventh Regiment, is permitted to work with Jacob Heffer, at the Blacksmith's business, he here in Committee engaging to be answerable for him agreeable to the Resolves of this Committee.

The Examination of WILLIAM POOR, in respect to the BRITISH Officers (prisoners of war) who broke their Parole, and escaped from LEBANON, PENNSYLVANIA, in JUNE, 1776.

In Committee, Lancaster, July 26, 1776.

Says, some time last spring or summer, (he thinks about three weeks before the officers went away,) he was at his own house by Swatara Creek, at the place belonging to Mr. Maddox, of Philadelphia, about sixteen or seventeen miles from Lebanon; was getting ready to set off to buy a cow; one White called at his house, and told him he was looking for a brother of his who had come into the country, and he heard worked with one Poor. He told White he knew of no such person. He left the house to go after the cow, and White accompanied him till they came to Jones's Town, and there they parted after drinking some cider together at Parker's, in Jones's Town, for which White paid. That he did not see White afterwards till White came to him in company with the officers. Says, that on the way between his house and Jones's Town, he and White were met by one Thomas Edmonds, who lives over Swatara near John Smiley's; that Edmonds's shirt was bloody, and he asked him if he had been fighting; that Edmonds answered no, he had been in Sliter's Town, where the soldiers wanted to enlist him, and struck him. That Edmonds then said to Poor that he wanted to speak with him. Poor told him to speak out; that he hesitated. Poor asked him if it was a secret. Edmonds said it was. That upon this, he went a little aside with him, and then told him he had been at McHugh's with the officers, and that the officers wanted him (Poor) to go away with them. That he told Edmonds it was a dangerous thing, and he would have nothing to do with it. That White could not bear the conversation between him and Edmonds. That Edmonds then told him to say nothing about it, or else the officers would be confined. That Edmonds left them then, and White and he (Poor) proceeded to Jones's Town, where they drank together as above. That White and he left Jones's Town together, kept together about half a mile, when White said he would go to Lebanon, and parted with Poor, who went to look for his cow. That White and Edmonds had no conversation together. That White and he (Poor) had no conversation about the officers or taking them off. That he never had any conversation with the officers, or any of them, before they came to him at his house after they left Lebanon, except that once when at McHugh's one of them named Cuppaidge asked him if he was from a particular part of Ireland, to which he answered in the negative. That about a week after this conversation between him and Edmonds, as he was riding out of town, one Bullman, a blue-dyer in Lebanon, called to him and stopped him, told him that the officer at McHugh's wanted to speak with him; that he then told Bullman he had nothing to say to the officers. That some time after this, (he thinks some weeks,) as he was fishing in Swatara, about half a mile from his house, in the afternoon a little before sunset, on a Saturday, several men came up to him, four of whom were officers, one named Richardson, one named Cubbage, one named Hume, the other name he don't know, with three servants, and the said White, and a man who sometimes called himself Billy Caldwell, and sometimes Paddy McGown's man. That some of them, he don't know which, told him they had escaped from Lebanon, and wanted to get to Wyoming, and wanted him to show the way. That he told them he did not know the way, and had never been there. That Hume presented a pistol to his breast, and told him if he did not go with them he was a dead man. He then consented to go, and asked leave to go home and get some clothes; but they would not suffer it, and obliged him to go with them. That they immediately proceeded over the hill, and travelled about six miles, where they stopped to rest and refresh themselves. That they rose before day, and the next morning crossed Weiser's road, about a mile or two from Kuntzelman's, and proceeded to a hollow place not far from Kuntzelman's, where they stopped, and sent Caldwell to Kuntzelman's to inquire the road to Wyoming. That Caldwell soon returned, and they proceeded travelling the whole day over the mountains till after sunset. That they then encamped in a place full of old logs, &c. Here they made a fire, a tent was raised for the officers, and the servants and others made coverings of bark, &c. Here they eat bread and cheese, of which he (Poor) partook, and laid down to sleep, saying they thought themselves safe. That towards morning he observed them all asleep, and made his escape, taking with him a sword which happened to lay near him. He left the said officers, their servants, Caldwell, and White, there asleep. That the officers had guns and ammunition, and the servants pistols and swords. Caldwell and White had no guns, but Caldwell used to have one of the officer's guns, and marched before. That they had a horse with them, which carried their provisions and linen for their tent—the horse a dark-coloured horse, don't know any marks. That about noon of the day he left the officers he came to Kuntzelman's, where he had a gill of rum. That Kuntzelman asked him where he had been; to which he answered that he had been hunting for beaver and their signs. He then proceeded homewards; but, as he could not reach home that night, he lay in the woods, and arrived at home the next morning.

Being asked why he did not then give notice of the route of the officers, &c., he says he was afraid, as they had sworn him to secrecy on some book which Hume took out of his pocket, on the other side of Kuntzelman's. Says Caldwell was a tall young man, fair complexion, wore a blue coat. Says that Caldwell was at his house about nine or ten days before the officers went away, and told him he came from the West-Branch, and was going towards Tulpehocken; that he heard him say he had been a soldier with Lord Dunmore, and was a Lieutenant in the expedition against Wyoming.

William Poor being again examined on the 8th November, 1776, acknowledges that the officers had his mare, and that he left it with them. That they bargained with him for it for £7. That the conversation about the price of the mare was the same morning that he left them before day. That they counted him down the money, and laid it down, but he left the money and went off presently afterwards, one of them (who he thinks was one of the officers) being sitting at the fire at the time. That it was one of the servants' swords which he brought off with him, who was asleep when he took it. That his daughter told him when he came to his house, before they went off, that she had bought some whiskey for the officers; but says he did not send her. Says that Hume presented a pistol to his breast twice: the first time was the first night they set off, after travelling a small distance; and the second time was after Caldwell returned from Kuntzelman's. That his mare was loaded with the officers' baggage and necessaries from the time they set off, and travelled with them so loaded.

THE EXAMINATION OF JOHN WHITE.

Says that some time in May last went up the country to look for a brother of his, who, he had been told by one William Johnston, was come into the country, and lived up near Lebanon, at one Poor's. He proceeded from Lancaster to Manheim, where he dined; from there he went to Lebanon; got there that evening, and stopped at McHugh's, the sign of the Bear; lodged there that night; next morning left Lebanon alone, and went to Jones's Town; stopped there and took a draught of cider, and from thence went to William Poor's, at Swatara Gap; got there late in the evening; supped there and lodged there in the same bed with Poor; could hear nothing of his brother, therefore, next morning, determined to return. Poor told him he wanted to go to buy a cow, and set off with him; they travelled together to Jones's Town, (Poor riding on his horse or mare;) at Jones's Town they dined together, and drank some cider and beer; after dinner they left Jones's Town together, and kept company about a mile, when they separated; Poor said he was going to look for the cow, and he proceeded to Lebanon; got there that afternoon, and stopped again at McHugh's; stayed in the bar-room till supper time, and went to bed there and stayed all night, and next morning left Lebanon about daylight, and proceeded to Manheim, where he took a drink of cider, and then walked on to Lancaster, which he reached in the evening, and put up at George Widelay's, where he worked at the shoemaker's trade. Says he did not see or speak with any of the officers either of the times he was at McHugh's, nor at any other place, at or before this time, nor with any of their servants. Says that on the way between Poor's and Jones's Town they met a man who appeared as if he had been fighting; that Poor asked the man if he had been killing anybody, and was answered by him, no, that he had been at Lebanon, that they wanted to list him there, and had struck him; that the man told Poor he had something to say to him; Poor answered, Say it then. Upon which the man told him it must not be heard; that Poor then went aside with the man, and they spoke together two or three minutes, while he (this examinant) held Poor's horse; that the man and Poor then separated, and Poor, when he returned, said the man had told him some of the English officers wanted to speak to him, and said that he told the man he did not know them; says that Poor and he had no further conversation about the officers. That about two weeks after his said return, the said William Johnston having told him it was a good place for the shoemaker's trade at Wialusing, he agreed to accompany him there, and accordingly, on a Friday morning, they set off together, stopped together at Manheim, eat something there, and from there proceeded to Lebanon; got there that evening, and put up at the sign of the Swan; stayed there that night; Johnston stayed there with him. Next day Johnston and he stayed in the house all the morning. They agreed to go to Poor's, but Johnston set off first, as he said he had some business by the way; says he set off about an hour after Johnston, and travelled on to Poor's without stopping, and there found Johnston; got there in the evening late; Poor was not at home; Johnston told him he wanted to go to some of the neighbouring places; upon which examinant, being fatigued, went to bed in Poor's bed, and Johnston went off. In the morning when examinant wakened, he found Poor was come home, and got up and breakfasted with Poor. Sometime after they had breakfasted, Poor went out (as he said) to look after a steer he had sick, and continued out; that at about eleven o'clock that morning Johnston returned and came into the house, and told the examinant that he had met with four Virginia gentlemen, with their three servants, who were going to Wialusing to look for lands, and that it was as good for him (the examinant) to go along, as it was a good place for his business; upon this he went out with Johnston, who led him to the gentlemen, who were about a quarter of a mile from the house, in a thicket of woods by a spring. The gentlemen sat by the spring about two hours, and then left the spring, and went about half a mile or three quarters farther into the woods, and then stopped again and sat down till towards evening, having continued all together from the time that he came to them at the spring; as evening approached he asked Johnston if they did not intend to stay at Poor's that night, and was answered no, the cool of the evening was the best time to travel. While sitting here in the evening William Poor came to them, leading a little mare, (he thinks of a lightish brown colour.) Directly after Poor came up he got into conversation with Johnston, and some other of the party, and was very busy with Johnston in loading the horse which the officers had with them, and his own mare, with the provisions and things which they had brought to the place. As soon as the loads were fixed on the horse and mare, the whole party set off, Poor leading his own mare, and one of the servants leading the horse; that Poor sometimes led the way, and sometimes Johnston; that after they had travelled about a mile and a quarter, they passed by a house within about twenty yards, where a dog barked at them very much; it was now night and dark, and the family supposed to be in bed. After travelling about five miles, either Poor or Johnston (he don't recollect which) mentioned that there was a swamp before them, and it would be better to lay by for the night, and pass it in the morning. The party lay by that night without making any fire, and proceeded early next morning. Johnston led the way in the morning across the swamp, the horses next, and then the gentlemen and servants with this examinant. They travelled all that day, stopping but once at a spring while they eat some cold ham and bread. Saw no house that day nor for twelve days after. Either Johnston or Poor were foremost always, and constantly walked next each other. Lay by at dark, and next morning set off again, proceeding through the woods as before, and lay by at night again, Poor being still with them. The next morning when the examinant and the party got up, he (the examinant) found that Poor was missing, but had left his mare, having travelled and been with them three nights and two days. He says the officers showed no uneasiness at Poor's having left them, and knows not whether it was with their knowledge or not. That he (this examinant) travelled with those gentlemen and Johnston, as the leader, after this, about ten or eleven days, through the woods, the horse and mare carrying the provision and some cloth, which was used as a tent, till they arrived at Hickman's, about twenty-five miles (as he was told) above Wyoming. Says that he wanted frequently in the way to leave the party, but Johnston told him he would lose himself; that now he determined to do it, and, getting a conveyance in a canoe, came down to Wyoming. Upon the way down, the man in the canoe with him, one Trip, told him that it was noised abroad that the English officers had escaped from Lebanon, and he supposed it was them he (this examinant) had been in company with at Hickman's; that examinant then told him he was informed they were Virginians, and did not know whether they were officers or not. Trip then told him they were strict people at Wyoming, and if they should ask him about the officers, he should or had better say he had not seen them; that he concluded so to do; that when he came to Wyoming he was about engaging to work at the shoemaking business, and some noise being abroad of his arrival there, he was asked by one Carrigan if he had seen or been with the officers who had escaped from Lebanon; to which he answered, no. The next morning the same Carrigan and another man asked him again about it, he told them that he had been with some gentlemen, where he met with them, how he had travelled with them, and where he left them, but did not know if they were officers or not. Upon this they told him he must be examined before the Shamokin Committee, and ordered him down there. He arrived there in a few days, and was again examined by the Committee of Sunbury; from there he was sent to John Harris's; and from thence to Lancaster. Says he did not know these gentlemen were officers at the time he first saw them in the woods at Poor's, nor at any time after, either by conversation with their servants or otherwise.

GENERAL MERCER TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Perth-Amboy, July 26, 1776.

SIR: There are now on duty, of the Pennsylvania Provincial Battalions, and the Associators of the same Province, three thousand rank and file in all, cantoned from Bergen-Neck, near to Middletown, in South-Amboy; these are the only troops who have joined. A battalion from Maryland go on to New-York. Some shallops passing from Fishkill into Rariton Bay yesterday afternoon brought on a cannonade. Our field-pieces did little or no execution, and the small-arms were not used, the distance being too great. The enemy fired four, six, and twelve-pound shot very briskly for the space of an hour; we lost one man of the Militia, and had two wounded, not dangerously. Some iron four or six-pounders might be mounted on flats or scows we have here to answer very well against such vessels as passed us yesterday. Some have gone down to-day. I did not think it proper to waste ammunition with so little probability of effect. Some such pieces as are mentioned above are to be had at Philadelphia. We have shipwrights and smiths here could mount them. Captain Dawson is appointed assistant to the Engineer, who is planning some works of defence for securing the passage along the Sound, and at the mouth of Rariton River.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,
HUGH MERCER.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

P. S. We were of opinion that the shallops were sent with flour round to the fleet; but I am this moment informed by the officer of the guard on South-Amboy shore that soldiers appeared thick on their decks after getting round Billup's Point into Prince's Bay. This morning they fell down to Sandy-Hook. A flag was seen hoisted this morning on the Light-House, which is an unusual thing.

GENERAL MERCER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Perth-Amboy, July 26, 1776.

SIR: I find by intelligence from our guards at South-Amboy, that some shallops (five in number) that passed us yesterday from Fishkill, were full of soldiers, who appeared on deck after getting round Billup's Point into Prince's Bay. As the shallops passed, our field-pieces played on them, but with little effect. The enemy returned the cannonade briskly during the space of an hour, with four, six, and twelve-pounders. One of our Militia was killed, and two wounded, but not dangerously. Two more shallops passed this morning, and one remains up the Sound in view. The Fly sloop-of-war, Captain Edgar, lies at Brunswick. I ordered her down yesterday upon the appearance of the shallops, but she is not yet fallen down the river.

I am collecting all the craft, of which a return will be transmitted. General Heard is out examining the creeks. I would send Morgan to Head-Quarters, were his principles steady enough to resist the arts of Tryon and Skinner, &c., which I much doubt. This morning a flag was seen hoisted on the Light-House.

The Maryland battalion passed Woodbridge yesterday. Orders from hence would reach Colonel Smallwood this morning, to detain him at Elizabeth-Town.

I have the honour to be, sir, your obedient servant,
H. MERCER.

GENERAL MERCER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Perth-Amboy, July 26, 1776.

SIR: When I mentioned this morning the unusual appearance of a flag being hoisted on the Light-House, I had not then understood that any ships were seen in the offing; but find by a person just now from South-Amboy that some have been seen, and now six have come into the Hook.

I am, sir, your Excellency's most obedient servant,
H. MERCER.

Perth-Amboy, July 26, 1776, two P. M.

A deserter from the Asia, examined at Elizabeth-Town, says that ten ships arrived some days ago with two thousand Highlanders.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM THE CAMP AT PERTH-AMBOY, DATED JULY 26, 1776.

Yesterday afternoon we had a smart cannonading with the enemy, occasioned by four or five shallops coming down the Sound. The General directed a smart battery, mounting two iron four-pounders, to fire on them; this brought on a heavy firing from the enemy's battery, from an eminence that overlooked ours.

Captain Moulder, with his two field-pieces, was ordered to the shore, but being encamped at some distance, before he could come up the shallops had all nearly passed. However, he began a well-directed fire, and though they had got to a considerable distance, hulled one of them.

When the vessels were passed, the firing ceased on both sides. We had the misfortune of losing one of the Second Battalion, and having another wounded. The young man's name who was killed is Owens, belonging to Captain Weed's company; he was shot right through the heart; the ball, a four-pounder, entering his left side, and coming out of his breast. This morning he was buried with the honours of war. The other, who is wounded, is one Freeman, a Sergeant in Captain Boyd's company; his wound is not dangerous, the ball having first taken the street, and rebounding struck the upper part of his right thigh, but has not broken the bone. There was a horse killed which was standing in a wagon near the General's door. The enemy appear to have some heavy field-pieces: they sent some twelve-pound shot among us. It is surprising they did not do more execution, as there were so many of our people on the bank opposite to them without the least covering.

The enemy appear to be very strong, and are constantly reinforcing, as our troops come in. They are throwing up breastworks along the shore to prevent our landing.

LORD STIRLING TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, July 26, 1776.

SIR: Captain Butler, of Colonel Nixon's regiment, has again called on me to know your determination with regard to his asking leave to resign. From his appearance at present, I do not think he will ever be fit for active duty again.

Colonel Parke has frequently mentioned to me the necessity of his having leave of absence for about a fortnight. He has again applied to me this morning by the enclosed letter. I should be glad to know your Excellency's pleasure.

I have been obliged to take a little medicine, which obliges me to stay at home, or I should have been at Head-Quarters this morning.

I am, most respectfully, your Excellency's most humble servant,

STIRLING.

To His Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL GEORGE CLINTON.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 26, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 23d instant is duly received, and I am pleased with the timely notice of your situation, strength, movements, &c., &c., &c., and think time is not to be lost, or expense regarded, in getting yourselves in the best posture of defence, not knowing how soon the enemy may attempt to pass you.

The fire-rafts you mention are not of the best construction, but probably are the best that can be procured with the necessary despatch. Cables and anchors, I should suppose, might easily be procured from the vessels which used to be plying up and down the river, and are now lying idle; saltpetre from the manufactures in the country, as neither are to be had in this place. The necessity of the case will fully justify your taking the former wherever found, and the safety of the people, I should imagine, would induce them to assist you to the latter all in their power.

I have sent up Lieutenant Machin to lay out and oversee such works as shall be thought necessary by the officers there, and from your representation of the hill which overlooks the fort, I think it ought to be taken possession of immediately. You, who are on the spot, must be a better judge than I possibly can be. I must leave it with you to erect such works as you, with Colonel Clinton and the Engineer, may think necessary.

A proper abstract or pay-roll should be made out, of the wages due the artificers, examined and certified by you or your brother, when it may be sent here, and the money drawn.

Your method of fixing fires, with advanced guards, if they are vigilant, must answer the purposes you intend.

Your dismissing all the New-England men to three hundred, is a step I approve of. I hope you may continue to prevent the enemy from obtaining any supplies or intelligence, and committing any ravages on the distressed peasantry on and about the shores. While you are able to keep them in this situation below the forts, they can do little damage. By every conveyance I shall like to hear of your situation and the enemy's manoeuvres.

I am, sir, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Brig. Gen. George Clinton, at Fort Montgomery.

P. S. Since the above, the Quartermaster-General informs me you may be supplied with turpentine here, and thinks he can get saltpetre enough for the present emergency.

G. W.

COLONEL MCDUGALL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, July 26, 1776.

SIR: All the non-commissioned officers, rank and file, of my regiment, are enlisted without time, except one company, recruited before the instructions for raising the four regiments issued from Congress; and I doubt not to be able to engage this on the same establishment.

By the instructions to Colonel Dubois, I observe he is authorized to give ten dollars bounty to such soldiers as shall enlist for three years, or during the present troubles. I shall be glad to be informed from your Excellency whether I can be authorized to offer the same bounty; for as the harvest is now near in, I think it probable some recruits may be raised on this bounty.

Regiments engaged without time, are more to be depended on for the defence of the country than those imbodyed for a short period. I therefore submit it to the General's consideration, whether it would not advance the service to enable the regiments raised for three years, or a longer time, to recruit out of the new levies, and those corps raised for a shorter duration.

When your attention to subjects of more importance will permit, I shall be glad to be favoured with your orders on these points.

I have the honour to be, your Excellency's humble servant,

ALEX. MCDUGALL.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp, Long-Island, Friday, five o'clock, P. M., }
July 26, 1776. }

DEAR SIR: Lieutenant-Colonel Chambers, at Gravesend, reports eight sail of shipping standing in for the Hook; but they are at too great a distance to discover what they are to a degree of certainty, but they have the appearance of transports.

I have the honour to be, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

N. GREENE.

To His Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters, New-York.

NATHANIEL WOODHULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

July 26, 1776. }

SIR: I am directed by the Convention to transmit your Excellency a copy of the examination of Balthazar De Hart, relative to the conduct of the Tories in Monmouth County, in New-Jersey, and to acquaint you that we have likewise sent duplicates to the President of the Convention of the State of New-Jersey, and to the Chairman of the Committee of Monmouth, in order that measures may be taken for preventing the pernicious practices of such parricides to their country.

I have the honour to be, your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servant,

By order:

NATHL. WOODHULL, President.

To His Excellency General Washington, at Head-Quarters, New-York.

The Examination of BALTHAZAR DE HART, of the County of ORANGE, Attorney-at-Law, who has been for some time past in SHREWSBURY, in MONMOUTH County, in NEW-JERSEY.

He saith that when he left Shrewsbury, as he conceives, far the greater part of that place was inhabited, or rather infested, with Tories or persons disaffected to the common cause of America, and that he has understood, from information, that their disaffection has been greatly increased by a number of persons who have gone from the city of New-York there, and, as he has understood, secretly laboured to deceive the lower set of people, the higher being almost all disaffected; that he knows that Joseph Wardell, John Corlies, and George Allen, went the week before last, or last week, to General Howe's camp, on Staten-Island, after, as they pretended, two negroes, who had run away from William Kipping and the said John Corlies; that they stayed some time there; that this examinant has been informed and indeed believes that those three persons are disaffected, and heard that for that very reason the negroes were delivered to them by Howe's order; that he has heard that they had a long conversation with some of Howe's officers. And further, he saith that he was informed by Captain Jacob Dennis, a Militia officer, who had been ordered to guard Deal shore, in that Township, that he could scarce persuade a man to go there with him; and that the examinant knows that his brother, who is another Militia officer there, could by no means prevail on his men to go to defend that shore—the Whigs telling him they expected that if they went there, they would be delivered by the Tories to the enemy on their landing; and that he was informed by the said Captain Dennis, that the inhabitants along Deal shore told him they did by no means thank him for guarding them, and that they would much rather have the Regulars than the Yankees there; and he (this examinant) was further informed by the said Captain Dennis, that there were some vessels of force lying off Shark River, which he supposed were landing some men there to get provision, as he observed flat-bottomed boats with them. And further, this examinant saith that he saw some armed vessels off Deal shore last Saturday, and observed some boats which seemed to be going on board said vessels, and that he verily believes that the inhabitants along that shore have communication with the enemy. And this examinant further saith, that Isaac Low, William Walton, Anthony Van Dam, John Roome, William Kipping, Hulet, a dancing-master, with a number of other persons from New-York, are there, whose names this examinant does not recollect. And further this examinant saith not.

The foregoing is a true copy of Mr. De Hart's examination, as delivered into the Convention at New-York by a Committee appointed for that purpose.

Examined and compared by

ROBT. BENSON, Secretary.

RICHARD VARICK TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, July 26, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your letter to General Schuyler I received yesterday evening, and have forwarded it by express this morning.

As soon as the troops arrive from the eastward, I shall advise you thereof by express, agreeable to General Schuyler's orders to me, that batteaus may be furnished for them at Skenesborough.

I do myself the honour to enclose you an invoice of axes forwarded since the 14th, including four hundred or four hundred and fifty which go this morning. I also send you a small quantity of twenty-four-penny nails and a cask of spikes for the carpenters at Skenesborough, and beg the favour of you to order them to be forwarded with all possible expedition.

Colonel Wynkoop has sent for a bellows and set of blacksmith's tools. As soon as they can be procured, I shall forward them to Tyonderoga to be sent to him.

I have desired the commanding officer at Fort George to forward every article to you immediately on its arrival at his post.

We have a report in town that General Clinton is killed, and that all his army are killed, wounded, or prisoners, and that his fleet is destroyed by General Lee, assisted by a gale of wind, which occasioned his landing. How much this account is to be depended on I know not, though it is believed here that General Clinton has met with some disaster fatal to his expedition.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

RICHARD VARICK.

To the Hon. Major-General Horatio Gates.

COLONEL M. OGDEN TO MAJOR A. BURR.

Ticonderoga, July 26, 1776.

DEAR BURR: I have been waiting with the greatest impatience to know what is doing in York and Jersey. There are twenty different reports that contradict each other relative to Howe and his fleet. It has once been generally believed that a French fleet had arrived at New-York, and blocked up the British Army. Independence is well relished in this part of the world. Generalship is now dealt out to the Army by our worthy and well-esteemed General Gates, who is putting the most disordered Army that ever bore the name into a state of regularity and defence. If our friends in Canada, commanded by Burgoyne, will wait a few days, we shall give them a very proper reception.

The Army are beginning to recruit fast, from the effects of a little fresh meat and some rum when on fatigue. Ten days ago, there were not in our regiment eighty men fit for duty. We have now upwards of two hundred and thirty; and, in a few days, they will be as rugged as New-Jersey is firm.

Colonel Winds is sent home on a fool's errand by the General, that he may be out of the way of doing any more harm to the regiment. The General assures me that I shall not be troubled with him again. I suppose, by that, he has written to have him detained below. A short history of this man will convince you that he ought to be nowhere but on his farm. He is, in the first place, a professed enemy to subordination, and has an utter aversion to discipline. He is positive, and prefers his own opinion to even the General's, because he was in the service last war. He is not possessed of one qualification that distinguishes a gentleman, nor has he genius or education. His whole study is to gain the applause of the private soldiers, at the expense of every officer in the regiment. He is hated by all his own officers, except two, and despised by every gentleman in the Army.

We are in great want of Brigadier-Generals—three at least; I mean for the men who are now here. General Arnold will command the water-craft on the Lake in person. There are three brigades commanded by the Colonels Reed, Stark, and St. Clair. The last of these I sincerely wish was appointed a Brigadier by Congress. There is no better man. The other two have full enough already.

Please to forward the enclosed, with the letter to Mr. Spencer. My best respects to Generals Putnam, Greene, and Mifflin, and to Colonel Trumbull. Compliments to Webb. I wait, with the greatest impatience, some important news from New-York. Pray write particulars relative to the conduct of the Jerseymen. Should any fall, mention their names.

I am yours sincerely,

MATT. OGDEN.

COURT-MARTIAL ON CAPTAIN WENTWORTH.

At a General Court-Martial held at Ticonderoga, the 26th day of July, 1776, by order of the Honourable Major-General Gates.

Colonel Poor, President.

Members: The four eldest Colonels, the four eldest Lieutenant-Colonels, and four eldest Majors, of the Northern Army.

Captain Wentworth was brought before the Court, and accused of "refusing to go on duty when regularly warned by the Adjutant of the regiment to which he belonged."

The Court having considered the evidences, were of opinion that Captain Wentworth was guilty; and sentenced him to be cashiered, and advertised in the publick papers as having wilfully neglected his duty, with a view of being discharged the service.

Agreeable to this sentence, Jonathan Wentworth, of Somersworth, in Strafford County, New-Hampshire, late Captain in Colonel Poor's regiment, is published to the world as a scoundrel, guilty of neglecting his duty evidently with a design of obtaining a discharge from the service of his country—a crime, till this day, unheard of.

His countrymen, it is hoped, will treat him with the contempt merited by so infamous a conduct.

By the General's order:

JOHN TRUMBULL,

Deputy Adjutant-General of the Northern Army.

Head-Quarters, Ticonderoga, August 26, 1776.

All printers in the United States of America are desired to publish the foregoing in their respective papers. J. T.

COLONEL HARTLEY TO GENERAL GATES.

Crown-Point, July 26, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I send by a boat thirty oars and some boards, with the arms of our regiment, which want repair, and hope that you will be pleased to give directions that they may be immediately repaired, as many men are now at this post without guns. The arms of the sick we shall make go as far as possible. The oarmakers are going on with their business. I still keep a strong covering party with them. There are some batteaus here which want repairing. I would have them put in order, if I had some pitch and oakum sent here. I have also a small boat which would be very useful, if finished. We want the above materials to complete it.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most humble servant,
THOS. HARTLEY.

To General Gates.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE CONVENTION.

Providence, July 26, 1776.

SIR: On Sunday last Lieutenant Calcott, of the Merlin, came into the harbour of Newport with a flag, and brought a letter from Lord Howe to the Commander-in-Chief of this State, which I suppose to have been a circular letter exactly of the same tenour with that I have the honour to enclose you. The Lieutenant delivered me two others directed for Connecticut and Massachusetts, with a request that I would forward them.

I enclose you a copy of my letter to his Lordship, and beg leave to assure you that I am, with great truth and esteem, sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

NICHS. COOKE.

To the Honourable the President of the Convention of New-Hampshire.

Eagle, off the Coast of the Province of Massachusetts-Bay, }
June 20, 1776. }

SIR: Being appointed Commander-in-Chief of the ships and vessels of his Majesty's fleet employed in North-America, and having the honour to be by his Majesty constituted one of his Commissioners for restoring peace to his Colonies, and for granting pardons to such of his subjects therein as shall be duly solicitous to benefit by that effect of his gracious indulgence, I embrace this opportunity to inform you of my arrival on the American coast, where my first object will be an early meeting with General Howe, whom his Majesty hath been pleased to join with me in the said commission.

In the mean time, I have judged it expedient to issue the enclosed Declaration, in order that all persons may have immediate information of his Majesty's most gracious intentions; and I desire you will be pleased forthwith to cause the said Declaration to be promulgated, in such manner, and at such places within the Colony of Rhode-Island, as will render the same of the most publick notoriety.

Assured of being favoured with your assistance in every measure for the speedy and effectual restoration of the publick tranquillity, I am to request you will communicate, from time to time, such information as you may think will facilitate the attainment of that important object in the Colony over which you preside.

I have the honour to be, with great respect and consideration, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

HOWE.

To the Hon. Governour Wanton, &c., &c., Rhode-Island, or other Chief Magistrate of the Colony.

By RICHARD Viscount HOWE, of the Kingdom of IRELAND, one of the King's Commissioners for restoring peace to His Majesty's Colonies and Plantations in NORTH-AMERICA, &c., &c., &c.

DECLARATION.

Whereas by an act passed in the last session of Parliament to prohibit all trade and intercourse with the Colonies of New-Hampshire, Massachusetts-Bay, Rhode-Island, Connecticut, New-York, New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, the three lower Counties on Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North-Carolina, South-Carolina, and Georgia, and for other purposes therein mentioned, it is enacted that "it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons appointed and authorized by his Majesty to grant a pardon or pardons to any number or description of persons, by Proclamation, in his Majesty's name, to declare any Colony or Province, Colonies or Provinces, or any County, Town, Port, District, or place, in any Colony or Province, to be at the peace of his Majesty; and" that "from and after the issuing of any such Proclamation in any of the aforesaid Colonies or Provinces, or if his Majesty shall be graciously pleased to signify the same by his royal Proclamation, then, from and after the issuing of such Proclamation," the said "act, with respect to such Colony or Province, Colonies or Provinces, County, Town, Port, District, or place, shall cease, determine, and be utterly void."

And whereas the King, desirous to deliver all his subjects from the calamities of war, and other oppressions which they now undergo, and to restore the said Colonies to his protection and peace as soon as the constitutional authority of Government therein may be replaced, hath been graciously pleased, by letters patent under the great seal, dated the sixth day of May, in the sixteenth year of his Majesty's reign, to nominate and appoint me, Richard Viscount Howe, of the Kingdom of Ireland, and William Howe, Esq., General of his Forces in North-America, and each of us, jointly and severally, to be his Majesty's Commissioner and Commissioners for granting his free and general pardons to all those who, in the tumult and disorder of the times, may have deviated from their just allegiance, and who are willing, by a speedy return to their duty to reap the benefits of the royal favour; and, also, for declaring in his Majesty's name, any Colony, Province, County, Town, Port, District, or place, to be at the peace of his Majesty: I do therefore hereby declare, that due consideration shall be had to the meritorious services of all persons who shall aid and assist in restoring the publick tranquillity in the said Colonies, or in any part or parts thereof; that pardons shall be granted, dutiful representations received, and every suitable encouragement given, for promoting such measures as shall be conducive to the establishment of legal government and peace, in pursuance of his Majesty's most gracious purposes aforesaid.

Given on board his Majesty's ship the Eagle, off the Coasts of the Province of Massachusetts-Bay, the twentieth day of June, 1776.

HOWE.

Providence, July 27, 1776.

Lieutenant Calcott, who came last Sunday to Newport with a flag from on board the Merlin ship-of-war, and delivered a Letter and Declaration from Lord Viscount Howe, returned next morning with the following Answer from his Honour the Governour:

"Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations, }
Newport, July 21, 1776. }

"MY LORD: I am favoured with your Lordship's letter of the 20th of June last, enclosing your Declaration. I have communicated them to the General Assembly of this State, now sitting here, and at their request inform your Lordship, that they will transmit copies of them to the most honourable the General Congress of the United States of America, to whom every application respecting the disputes between the said States and Great Britain ought to be addressed, and must be referred.

"I have the honour to be, with great respect and esteem, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient humble servant,

"NICHOLAS COOKE."

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO WILLIAM WILLIAMS.

Lebanon, July 26, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I intend to give you the state of our Army from Canada. Enclosed is a copy of Major Ely's report on the subject of the small-pox, with which he was charged. From others, with some things I learn from him, I think it apparent that our troops went most imprudently into inoculation near Quebeck; and when the enemy came out upon them, our Army fled when there was little force to pursue; that discontent, disorder, and confusion, had taken place—clamour for want of supplies of clothing, provisions, and wages—and by degrees discipline and subordination failed; everything was neglected that tended to a reform. When General Burgoyne, with the troops under him, arrived, a general dispiritedness appeared; the force at the Cedars was very inconsiderable—not more than thirty-seven Regulars, with two or three hundred Indians; that the latter were loath to go, and mostly tarried at Oswegatchie. Had our men behaved well, that defeat would not have happened; this was occasioned by the same causes that are just before mentioned. Why they were in such manner neglected, and left without supplies and without their wages, is matter of wonder and astonishment; and last spring there were ten battalions, amounting to about six thousand four hundred men, sent from New-York to join this Army. There were at the same time, in Canada, two battalions of Pennsylvanians, three from New-England, and one or two from New-Jersey; all of them strong, amounting at least to four thousand men more, which, joined with the others, made the Army upwards of ten thousand strong. There are now three thousand sick, and about three thousand well; this leaves near five thousand to be accounted for; of them, the enemy have cast perhaps one thousand—sickness another thousand; which leaves near three thousand; in what manner they are disposed of, is unknown. Among those who remain, there is neither order, subordination, or harmony; the officers as well as men, of one Colony, insulting and quarrelling with those of another.

This wretched situation of our troops induced the General Officers, in a council of war, to determine on a retreat to Ticonderoga, and conclude on occupying a post on the east side of the Lakes, very advantageous; it is a height opposite the old works, which commands the entrance of the Lakes Champlain and George; it is almost inaccessible, except in two places, where they propose to make roads; the rest is surrounded by rocks and precipices. Supplies may be easily had from Skenesborough, at the head of Lake Champlain; from hence they expect easily to retire into the country. This, without a naval superiority on the Lakes, they will be obliged to do, notwithstanding the strength of their camp, unless very soon joined by six thousand or eight thousand men. How they will maintain their naval superiority, I must confess myself much at a loss. They build a gondola, perhaps, one in a week; but where are they to find rigging for them—where the guns? To be sure they have a great train of artillery, but very few of them mounted on carriages; at present their materials and conveniences for making them are very slender. They have neither places for them to work in, nor materials in that plenty they ought to have. To oppose the enemy on the Lake, they have a schooner of twelve carriage guns, a sloop of eight guns, two small schooners to carry four or six guns each, and three gondolas; and the large schooner is now in good sailing order, and about to take a trip down the Lake to make discovery. The sloop is a most unmanageable thing; it is impossible to beat up against a head wind in her. The two small schooners are not armed—the gondolas are not armed—and even the carriages of their guns are yet to be made. The enemy are at St. John's repairing the works at that place, and building three schooners and two sloops; they have no doubt everything ready to their hands—the rigging made, the guns mounted, and only the wooden work to perform, in which, I fear, they will have the advantage.

General Sullivan set off to New-York and Philadelphia in disgust at being superseded by General Gates; the latter was ordered to command in Canada; the Army from thence being retreated within the limits of New-York, the command devolves on General Schuyler. It is justly to be expected that General Gates is discontented with his situation; finding himself limited, and removed from the command, to be a wretched spectator of the ruin of the Army, without power of attempting to save them. A truly melancholy scene. General Schuyler has gone to the German Flats; he writes me July 17th, "I arrived here yesterday, and found very few Indians. This day one hundred and fifty Indians have come in, and we expect a numerous body of them in a few days. Mr. Ryckman, a trader from Albany, who has been detained at Niagara, by the British officer commanding there, since last year, because he was a friend to our cause and had influence among the savages, has found means, by the help of the Indians, to make his escape. He arrived here last night, accompanied by twenty-one warriors of the Seneca nation. The account he brings of the temper of the Senecas (the nation who could distress us most) is very favourable; and he assures me, that he has reason to believe the Indians will not attack our frontiers."

You are sensible the extreme busy season retards the filling our regiment going to New-York; and to this is added the dread of the small-pox to those inlisting to go into service in the Northern Army. Now, as business will soon admit men to leave it without so much loss, and the fear of that infection prevailing in the Northern Army is relieved in so great a measure, I hope the battalions from this State will all be filled, and march to their several destinations. Nothing in our power will be omitted to promote it. My fears for the Northern Army and frontiers are great, besides what is mentioned above, and Major Ely's report. A reform is absolutely necessary; the soldiers are ragged, dirty, and many lousy; clothing greatly wanted—some destitute of sufficiency to make themselves comfortable and decent to appear; to remedy this, shall send from hence, shirts, trowsers, breeches, shoes, stockings, and some woollen clothes, as soon as possible. Subordination and harmony is next to be restored; to do this, the officer that effects it, will meet with great trouble; and when done, will expect to reap the honours of it. To prevent uneasiness and jealousies between the Generals who were to have had the command in Canada and New-York, why, is it not best, and even just, each command the same body of men as expected, without respect to the place where. General Schuyler will have full employment at Albany, and below on the river, and at Tryon County, &c.; while General Gates commands the same Army at Ticonderoga, &c., which it was expected he would have had in Canada. The good of the general service is the great object. Doth not a regard to what will keep up harmony, and prevent jealousies, come within it?

Captain Winslow and his party of ship-carpenters, are arrived, and gone to work. Captain Lester, going by water, did not get to New-York until the river was invested with the ships, and they were obliged to take to the land. The one thousand felling-axes requested by General Schuyler, are provided, and will be sent forward on Monday. Your kinsman is come to preach to us. Your family is well. Mr. Gerry keeps Sabbath here. Mr. Jay came here on Friday for the loan of cannon to use on the North River. The twenty nine-pound cannon for the ships are ready for use, bored and drilled; and we have lent him ten twelve and ten six-pounders. Messrs. Hobart and John Brown were here yesterday, a Committee from the New-York Convention, to ask our assistance. They found we had made provision, that six Western regiments, next towards New-York, might be called on by General Washington, if needed; this was one chief thing they had to ask.

It is time to break off. This letter may be communicated, as you think fit, with my compliments, to the other Delegates, &c.

With esteem and regard, dear sir, your affectionate,
JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

To William Williams, Esq.

P. S. By Friday's post, received Lord Howe's letter of the 20th of June ultimo, and his declaration of pardons to all those who, in the tumult and disorder of the times, may have deviated from their just allegiance, and who are willing, by speedy return to their duty, to reap the benefits of the royal favour; that pardons shall be granted, dutiful representation received, and every suitable encouragement given for promoting such measures as shall be conducive to the establishing legal government and peace, in pursuance of his Majesty's most gracious purposes. In his letter he says, "I have judged it expedient to issue the enclosed declaration, in order that all persons may have immediate information of his Majesty's gracious intentions." He desires me to promulgate it, assured of being favoured with my assistance in every measure to restore the publick tranquillity; and requests such information as will facilitate the attainment of that important object. I shall by next post forward copies of both to Congress; to them I shall refer him. Who began the war? Who withdrew his protection? Who refused to hearken to most dutiful and humble petitions? Who invaded our rights? Is not the appeal made to the Supreme Director of all events? Will not the Judge of all the earth do right? Doth not pardon presuppose guilt? Are we guilty of want of duty and allegiance? Could anything but tyranny, oppression, injustice, cruel war and desolation, have driven us to cast off our mother country?

TIMOTHY NEWELL TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Boston, July 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am directed by a letter just now received from the Deputy Secretary, to lay before your Honours the state of the order of the General Court relative to the camp-kettles and canteens. It has given me extreme uneasiness that there has happened any delay; but not in the least occasioned through any neglect in me, as I assure your Honours the kettles (which was all I engaged) have been ready these ten days past; and the delay is wholly owing to the canteens not coming from Hingham. The last parcel of one hundred and two dozen came yesterday, upon which I immediately went in pursuit of a team, and after riding six miles out, I returned without being able to procure one, except accidentally one for Pittsfield, which I despatched yesterday. This morning early I prevailed for one of the Continental teams, which set off for Concord betwixt ten and twelve o'clock this forenoon, with one hundred and seventy-eight kettles, and one thousand and seventy canteens, which completes the order of the five thousand troops raised for Canada and New-York.

The last order for the two hundred and fifty kettles, for the fifteen hundred troops, will be ready by Monday night next; but unless more workmen are put upon the canteens supplied by Theophilus Cushing, Esq., at Hingham, I apprehend the same delay will be as heretofore.

I am, with great respect, your Honour's most obedient servant,

TIMO. NEWELL.

To the Honourable Council of Massachusetts.

ORDER TO LIEUTENANT GILMAN TO RETURN COAT-MONEY TO SOLDIERS.

Colony of New-Hampshire, in Committee of Safety, }
July 26, 1776. }

To Lieutenant JOHN GILMAN:

Complaints being made to this Committee that you received of the Colony Paymaster last year, coat-money belonging to several persons, soldiers in the same company with you, which you have not paid to them, and refuse to pay, therefore, that justice may be done, you are required to appear before this Committee, on Wednesday the seventh day of August next, to answer to said complaint.

By order of the Committee:

M. THORNTON, Chairman p. t.

In Committee of Safety, August 6, 1776.

The Committee having heard Lieutenant Gilman on the within complaint, are of opinion, that he ought, without delay, to pay the coat-money he has received in behalf of any soldier to them respectively.

M. WEARE, Chairman.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM ST. EUSTATIA, DATED JULY 27, 1776.

Since my last we have the agreeable news that Captain Wickes, in the ship Reprisal, from your place, is safe arrived at Martinico, after having an engagement with the Shark sloop of war, a ship of about equal force with himself. The story is related as follows: This day week, the Shark, lying at anchor in St. Pierre's harbour, saw a ship beating in, which she took for an American, on which she slipped her cables, bore down on Captain Wickes, and fired two shots in order to bring him to; but Captain Wickes took no notice of them, and stood on his course till within hail of the Shark. On being asked by the Captain, where from, and to what State belonging? he answered, from Philadelphia, and belonging to the honourable the Continental Congress; and at the same time saluted him with a broadside, which was returned in course by the Shark, without much damage to either that I can find. The engagement continued very hot for fifteen or twenty minutes, when the Shark sheered off. Captain Wickes stood in, and came to in St. Pierre's; the Shark followed soon after, when the Captain went on shore and demanded the American Rebel pirate, as he was pleased to term Captain Wickes's vessel; but the Governour did not think proper to grant his moderate request, and desired he might not attempt to commit hostilities within the bounds of his Government. Captain Wickes requested protection, and leave to clean his ship, which was granted, and he has gone to some little distance from St. Pierre's to heave down. It appears from every account I can learn, and by the letters of the French merchants at St. Pierre's to their friends here, who were eyewitnesses of the engagement, that Captain Wickes and his ship's crew have acquired much applause by this affair. Captain Wickes had taken three prizes on his passage, bound from the West-Indies, English property, so that he was eighty men short of his complement. He was across another vessel, and discharged her, finding she was Irish property. The colours which the American showed were a field white and yellow, with thirteen stripes.

A French frigate arrived last Sunday at Martinico, from old France, with despatches as late as 22d of June, to the Governours and Commanders of all the different French Islands, to put themselves in the best posture of defence, and to aid, assist, and protect all American vessels that might put into their ports, as far as possible.

It is confidently reported from Martinico, that Spain was about or had actually declared war against Portugal.

These are good omens of a war between England and France. God grant it may be soon! It will be the making of America, by calling off the attention of the British fleet from the coast, and leaving the ports open for trade with all the world.

JAMES CRESWELL TO W. H. DRAYTON.

Ninety-Six, South-Carolina, July 27, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I make no doubt that you are anxious to hear how our affairs stand in this perplexed and unhappy district since the heathen have broke in on our frontier. Fame on such occasions speaks variously, nor is it easy to report only real facts. You may rely on the following.

It is quite evident that the savages were made acquainted with the designs of the British fleet against Charlestown, and that there was a connected scheme between them against our country. Nor is it less certain that the disaffected party among us knew the intentions of the Indians, and were really elated with the prospect. They made no secret of their expectations of safety; and when the time drew near that was appointed for the savages to murder, they refused to muster or obey any officer appointed by their country over them. This insolent behaviour, at such a threatening time, very much alarmed us. At this time, it evidently appears that they were by compact to assist the savages to ruin the country; and had they been in possession of their arms, many of them would have actually engaged in the bloody scheme. But, providentially for us, their arms were scarce, and the savages killed the disaffected in common, without distinction of party. This greatly alarmed them, changed their countenance and tone, and made them look out for safety for their families. Others of them justly supposed that any of their party that were killed must have suffered through mistake. This now appears plain to us, by the Indians giving up those of them which they had taken as prisoners.

The savages have spread great desolation all along the frontiers, and killed a great number. On the 14th, they attacked a part of Colonel Williams's regiment, at Lindley's Fort, but were repulsed by the loss of one lover of his country, who, unfortunately, suffered a cruel death by them. This attack was made by about ninety Indians and one hundred and twenty white men. Ten of the white Indians were made prisoners, nine of whom were painted. They are now safe at Ninety-Six, where they will remain, unless released by their brethren.

Major Williamson and the officers under him have exerted themselves in getting our forces together, and arming them as well as could be done among us. Our Army is about one thousand or eleven hundred strong, and has advanced about fifteen miles over the line.

Ninety-Six is now a frontier. Plantations lie desolate, and hopeful crops are going to ruin. In short, dear sir, unless we get some relief, famine will overspread our beautiful country. As our Army is now over the line, the dread of savages and the disaffected will deter the lovers of their country from looking after their affairs at home. Fences are thrown down, and many have already suffered great loss. Such of us as are in forts have neither suitable guns nor ammunition for the defence of our wives and little ones, as we were obliged to furnish our Army with our best arms.

By every intelligence we have from Georgia, we learn that the New-Purchase is in great distress. Should the savages break through the New-Purchase, we will then be a frontier in that quarter.

The release of the prisoners at Charlestown, at this critical juncture, very much alarmed us. We really dread that party. I cannot express our distress.

Your friendship on our behalf with our Governour to procure us the Rangers, or part of them, to assist us, will be acknowledged by all with real gratitude, and by none more than by, honoured sir, your very humble servant,

JAMES CRESWELL.*

To the Hon. William Henry Drayton, Charlestown.

JOHN PAGE TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Williamsburgh, July 27, 1776.

SIR: We had the honour to receive your letter of the 16th instant, by express, enclosing two resolutions of Congress, one respecting the taking the forts and garrisons on our frontiers on the Continental establishment, and the other desiring that a quantity of lead should be sent from hence to Philadelphia. The Convention is not sitting, but we cannot doubt that it would highly approve of the former resolution; as to the latter, we have sent off an express to the lead-mines, ordering a large number of hands to be immediately hired, to assist those already employed there. By this means, it will not be long before we shall be able to furnish the twenty tons you require; but at present we have had such demands for lead from North-Carolina and our frontiers, on account of an Indian war in which we are at present engaged, that it is impossible to procure any for you till more can be extracted from the ore. We have not in our publick magazines two tons of lead and ball, and our cruisers are not yet furnished with that article; so that it will not be in our power to send any from hence. However, sir, we hope to procure you a ton or two; but even this we almost doubt of, since we have reason to believe that the lead which our Delegates have sent to Fredericksburgh for, will be all given out to the cruisers on Rappahannock, or the Militia now out on the alarm spread by the enemy's fleet in their neighbourhood.

We have enclosed you, sir, a copy of a letter from the President of South-Carolina, and another from General Lee, with one from the President of the Committee of Safety of North-Carolina, enclosing a letter from Brigadier Rutherford, from which letters you will see how unavoidably we are engaged in an Indian war, and may judge how extensive it may prove, if the Creeks, and other nations bordering on the Cherokees, should join them. We did not hesitate a moment to adopt the plan recommended by the President of Carolina and General Lee, and have ordered twelve hundred men to be immediately raised, and marched into the Overhill Towns; but this force is, we hear, by no means sufficient, if the other Indian tribes should join against us. We are by the Indian war daily incurring many and heavy expenses, which we humbly conceive must be a Continental charge.

Written by order of the Council.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN PAGE, President.

To the Honourable John Hancock, President of the Congress, in Philadelphia.

Copy of Mr. President RUTLEDGE's Letter to the President of the VIRGINIA Convention.

Charlestown, July 7, 1776.

SIR: I am sorry to acquaint you, that notwithstanding the most friendly appearance is given to the Continental Commissioners at the late Congress by the Cherokee Indians, those people have actually begun a war against the Colonies. The Lower towns some time ago suffered Cameron (Stuart's deputy in the Overhills) to leave. Two men (Hamptons) who resided there, and were in our interest, were seized and carried to Cameron; but they refused to suffer any of our people in their towns, who were in the King's interest, to be taken. They have also made several prisoners, plundered houses, and on the 30th ultimo proceeded to kill several people. These outrages must not go unpunished, but be instantly checked, conceiving that the most effectual way of putting a stop to them, will be to march a considerable force from this Colony and North-Carolina, into the heart of the Lower and Middle Towns, and of the Valley Settlements; and at the same time, or as soon as may be, the Overhills should be attacked from Virginia, from whence alone it can be done to advantage, and may with the greatest ease; and General Lee (who writes to you on this subject) and our Council being of the same opinion, I have given orders to Major Williamson to proceed with what men he has imbodyed and can raise, which I suppose may amount to about eleven hundred men, and march, as I presume he will within a very few days, against the lower Cherokees, and then to carry on a war against them, unless they will submit to reasonable terms. I have written to the President of the Council of North-Carolina, to order assistance from that Colony to Major Williamson; and I hope that, as the object is of the utmost importance, and there is not a moment to be lost in taking such steps as may prevent future apprehensions of danger from those Indians, and others who may be intimidated by their fate, you will immediately cause a considerable force to march from Virginia, with the utmost expedition, and wage war with the Overhill Cherokees, until they shall be brought to such terms as may be safe and honourable for the Colonies.

* Mr. Creswell was a respectable Preacher, residing between Saluda and Broad Rivers, in Ninety-Six District.

Enclosed you will receive an extract of a letter to Major Williamson. I shall be glad of your answer by the bearer, as soon as possible, and hope to meet with no difficulty, delay, or disappointment, in this matter, on the part of your Colony.

I am, with great regard and respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

J. RUTLEDGE.

P. S. You will be pleased to forward the letter herewith delivered to my brother as soon as possible, and to acquaint him what will be done by your Colony in consequence of my application, as I think it material that the Congress should be apprized of the disposition of these Indians, &c., as soon as may be.

Copy of a Letter from General LEE to the Convention of VIRGINIA.

Charlestown, July 7, 1776.

SIR: Mr. Rutledge will inform you by this express of the outrages committed by the Cherokees, which must be construed as the commencement of a war. As it is now certain that a capital and favourite part of the plan laid down by his most excellent and clement Majesty George the Third is to lay waste the Provinces, burn the habitations, and mix men, women, and children, in one common carnage by the hands of the Indians, and as this part of his plan, though of apiece in point of humanity, is certainly more big with mischievous consequences than the rest, it appears to me absolutely necessary to crush the evil before it arises to any dangerous height; indeed, if we avail ourselves of the event, it may prove a fortunate one; perhaps in policy we ought to have wished for it. We can now, with the greatest justice, strike a blow which is necessary to intimidate the numerous tribes of Indians from falling into the measures of the present Administration; and as these Cherokees are not esteemed the most formidable warriors, we can probably do it without much risk or loss. I think, then, sir, without a moment's delay a body of your frontier riflemen should be furnished forthwith, and march into the country of the Overhill Cherokees, and make a severe, lasting, and salutary example of them. The Carolineans propose at the same time attacking their lower towns, and, with the coöperation of Virginia, entertain no doubt of success.

Clinton's Army and Parker's squadron are pretty much in the same situation as when I wrote last. They daily, indeed, make some alteration in the position of their land troops, from one Island to another, perhaps for new air or water, of which the deserters say they are in great want. They tell us likewise, that considerable sickness prevails in the Army, and greater discontents from hard duty and bad diet. The spirit of desertion begins to show itself. Five soldiers came over these two last nights, who assure us that were they not on an Island, from which it is difficult to escape, two-thirds of their Army would soon be with us. I am myself inclined to believe them. Upon the whole, when I consider the difficulties which the enemy's Generals have to encounter, the temper and disposition of their troops, and the improving spirit of ours, I assure myself that the game is in our hands. God give us more grace than to shuffle it away. I am your most obedient, &c.,

CHARLES LEE.

To the Hon. Edmund Pendleton, President of the Convention of Virginia.

P. S. I must request, sir, that any letters that I address to the Convention may be forwarded to the Congress when you think them of sufficient importance.

Copy of a Letter from the Convention of NORTH-CAROLINA to Governour P. HENRY, enclosed in a Letter from the Council of VIRGINIA, 27th JULY, 1776.

Halifax, North-Carolina, July 21, 1776.

SIR: We have the honour to transmit your Excellency copies of two letters from Brigadier Rutherford, who lives in Rowan County, near Salisbury, the commanding officer on the frontiers of this Colony, directed to the Board, respecting Indian affairs, to which we beg leave to refer you. The contents of these letters you may depend upon the truth of. Brigadier Rutherford has been directed by me to have a sufficient force immediately on the frontiers, and to act in conjunction with Major Williamson, who commands eleven hundred men, raised by the Colony of South-Carolina. It is intended that General Rutherford and Major Williamson should march into the Cherokees Lower Towns; they have their orders for that purpose. We are in full and certain expectation that your Colony will, upon this very alarming and dangerous situation of the frontiers of the southern Colonies, immediately order the commanding officer on the western settlements of it to imbody a sufficient number of men to march against the Overhill Cherokee towns, so that the lower and upper towns of those faithless savages may be attacked at one and the same time, as nearly as may be. It will be very necessary for your officer to give Brigadier Rutherford notice from time to time of his intentions, in order that their future operations may go hand in hand together.

This Colony is in the greatest want of lead; we have to request that you will order from Chiswell's Mines a present supply of five tons, as the inhabitants on our frontiers have scarcely any, and are in the most distressed situation; and we have no other means of procuring that article but from your Colony; therefore must once more request your friendly and speedy assistance.

We cannot help mentioning the suspicions many of our western people have with respect to a design the Indians have in view of cutting off the persons at Chiswell's Mines; and as the savages have many white men now out with them (who are well acquainted with the importance of a lead mine) in scouting parties, there may be some reason for the belief of such an intention.

We congratulate your Excellency on your being appointed to the government of the Commonwealth of Virginia; and have the honour to be, &c., your most obedient, &c.

Signed by order of the Council of Safety:

CORNELIUS HARNETT, President.

To His Excellency P. Henry.

Copy of Brigadier RUTHERFORD's Letter to the Council of Safety of NORTH-CAROLINA, enclosing the Letter of the Council of VIRGINIA.

July 14, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: I am under the necessity of sending you by express the alarming condition this country is in. The Indians are making great progress in destroying and murdering in the frontiers of this County. Thirty-seven, I am informed, were killed last Wednesday and Thursday, on the Catawba River. I am also informed, that Colonel McDowell, ten men, and one hundred and twenty women and children, are besieged in some kind of a fort, and the Indians round them; no help to them before yesterday, and they were surrounded on Wednesday. I expect, the next account, to hear that they are all destroyed. Colonel Backman's is the frontier of this County. Pray, gentlemen, consider our distress, and send us plenty of powder, and I hope, under God, we of Salisbury district are able to stand them; but if you allow us to go to the nation, I expect you will order Hillsborough district to join Salisbury. Three of our Captains are killed, and one wounded. This day I set out with what men I can raise for the relief of the distressed.

I am, gentlemen, in haste, your humble servant,

GRIFFITH RUTHERFORD.

To the Hon. the Council of Safety, North-Carolina.

ELISHA WINTERS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Chestertown, July 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I gladly embrace this opportunity to inform you I shall have twenty-eight muskets ready to your order by Monday, 3d August, making up forty muskets per month, agreeable to my contract.

I remain, with much respect, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

ELISHA WINTERS.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety, Annapolis.

CHARLES CARROLL, BARRISTER, TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Mount-Clare, July 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I do not know whether you have received any answer to your letter to Philadelphia to your Deputies, desiring them to look out for an Engineer, or whether they may be able to get one to come down. I therefore introduce to you Mr. Allcock, of Baltimore-Town, who, from the character I have of him, will be able to do you service. He has been, as I am informed, of great help to the gentlemen of Baltimore-Town in designing and erecting their fortifications at Whetstone. He now, at my desire, waits on you, and will look at all your situations. He keeps a school in this town, and cannot very well spare the time for his journey. I have, however, prevailed on him to ride down, on a promise of a compensation for his time and trouble. You will, on conversing with him, judge whether he can be of any assistance to you as a designer or otherwise. I fancy it will be difficult to get Engineers from the northward, and we must, in my opinion, avail ourselves of the skill of such as we can meet with among ourselves, though their knowledge be not so perfect or complete.

I was yesterday at Whetstone, and find Captain Smith has five eighteen-pounders to spare, four of them on high carriages, and the other on a low carriage. I think the sooner you get them down to Annapolis the better. I intended to come down about the middle of next week, but have had a touch of the fever and ague, which I believe will keep me up here a little longer.

I am, very respectfully, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

CHAS. CARROLL.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety, at Annapolis.

COLONEL SOMERVILLE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Calvert County, July 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received orders from Colonel Mackall (who is now at St. George's) yesterday to send a company of our Militia to St. Mary's, to relieve the company now stationed there, which I shall do without loss of time. As Captain John Brooke, and his First Lieutenant and Ensign, have enrolled the number of men directed by Convention to entitle them to their commissions, I would humbly beg leave to ask if it would not contribute greatly to the ease of our Militia if they were ordered to be stationed either at Drum Point or down in St. Mary's, in lieu of the companies of Militia now at those places, until such time as your Honours may think proper to order them otherwise?

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

ALEX. SOMERVILLE.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

CHARLES RUMSEY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Cecil County, July 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The bearer, Captain John Oglevie, finding Captain Alexander had not made up his company by the 20th instant, and being zealous in the cause, proposed to march with his company, or with such a part of them as could, with convenience, leave their homes; upon which, in a few days time, he had the number enrolled, agreeable to his Return. Hope they will be accepted, as they are a parcel of active, stout, willing men.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servants,

CHARLES RUMSEY,

H. HOLLINGSWORTH.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

We, the subscribers, do hereby enrol ourselves to serve as Militia of Maryland, in the Middle Department, that is to say, from this Province to New-York, inclusive, until the 1st day of December next, unless sooner discharged by the honourable Congress, according to the resolution of the Convention of Maryland, held at Annapolis, the 21st day of June, 1776.

MAJOR PRICE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Upper Camp, St. George's, July 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The day before yesterday, in the evening, the Roebuck and other ships returned down the river, and came to about five miles from this place. At two o'clock yesterday morning, I received a line from Captain Nicholson, acquainting me that he intended to attack the fleet at day-break. I immediately despatched an officer, with orders, if possible, to speak to Captain Nicholson, and let him know the ships had returned down the river, and were then within nine or ten miles of the fleet, and that I did not think it prudent to attack them. Colonel Barnes had sometime before despatched an officer. The one I sent got to his camp, but neither of them could come up with Captain Nicholson. I immediately, on the receipt of the letter, ordered the troops under arms, and despatched Captain Thomas with about forty on the Island, to alarm the enemy in that quarter, Major Eden with about the same number on the Point, with a four-pounder, and I took the remainder, twenty-five in number, on board of two boats and canoes, and went down St. George's River as near the enemy as we could with safety, when I left them under the command of Lieutenant Adams, with orders, if there should be any confusion in the fleet, to push up with their boats to Cherryfield Point, where I would be. I then went across to the Point, where our people from the lower camp had been at work all night, and by the time the sun was rising, had mounted the two largest cannon. About an hour after, we espied the Defence making up for the fleet. The Fowey, which lay about a mile from the battery, did not see her, or seemed to take no notice of her, for more than an hour, when we noticed boats going ahead of her, as we supposed, to carry out her anchor, in order to warp her out; and in a short time, we observed her hauling out, when I immediately ordered the cannons to be fired at her. We fired four times from the nine-pounder, and twice from the four, one of which (the nine, we think) hulled her; the other struck a boat laying at the stern, with, I believe, men in her. I saw them a very little time before, the Fowey all the time hauling out. By this time, observed the Defence put about, and stand down the river. I believe she must have seen the Roebuck, which was seen some time after standing down after her, the Fowey giving chase a very little while before. Upon the whole, the enemy appears to be a good deal alarmed, and I am in hopes will leave this in a short time.

Captain Boucher came to camp last night; he left two row-galleys about two miles above this place. I furnished him with a boat and some hands to go back by water; he expects to be down with the galleys this evening. I am collecting all the boats and cannons, to give him all the assistance in my power. The remainder of the Militia here must be discharged to-morrow night. I expected to have had a fresh recruit of them by this time. Shall be very weak—not less than twenty regulars down with fevers at this time. There will be great difficulty in getting the cannon back by land; should think it best to have them carried by water, if vessels can be had, as soon as the enemy goes off.

Enclosed you have Governour Eden's answer to Mr. Wolstenholme's letter, which was brought to Captain Forrest, who I ordered to that station, in place of Captain Mackall, whom I could not so well depend upon. You have also enclosed Captain Forrest's letter to me, and Mr. Wolstenholme's answer to Governour Eden.

This is a shocking country: everything scarce; water we are obliged to haul nearly three miles; no liquor but bad whiskey to drink; everybody fatigued and tired of the place. If the enemy continue here, must certainly have fresh troops. I had almost forgotten to tell you that the nine-pounder turns out extraordinarily good, perhaps none better; all here are much pleased with her.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

THOS. PRICE.

To the Honourable Council of Safety.

Roebuck, July 20, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I received this morning your letter of the 19th, and the annexed declaration and assurance that any flag sent for you and your effects shall be received with the respect due to it. Commodore Hammond's inclination to render any service in his power to any of his Majesty's officers in your situation, has induced him to order a flag to be sent on shore for you on Monday or Tuesday next; and you shall have as good accommodations for your passage to England in the victualler he has been pleased to grant to me, as it will afford. And I am desired to assure you that any flag, or vessel with a flag, that you may employ to bring off your effects and stock, with their provision and water, shall be allowed to return immediately unmolested.

Doctor Scott and four other gentlemen, besides myself, take this opportunity of going to England; he desires his compliments to you and such of our friends as may be with you, in which I join, and in wishing you health and a good passage.

I am, dear sir, your obedient, humble servant,

ROBERT EDEN.

To D. Wolstenholme, Esq.

SIR: I am much obliged to you for your very kind favour per Lieutenant Sandys, and beg that you'll be pleased to pay my most respectful compliments to Commodore Hammond, and acquaint him of the high sense I entertain of his goodness in sending for me a flag of truce, and to acquaint him that I have been twice stopped by the commanding officers at St. George's; but the first order revoked, and afterwards repeated, with fresh instructions to the officers of the troops stationed at my house, not to permit my embarkation, till the pleasure of the Council of Safety should be known.

The express has returned, which, at present, puts a stop to my embarkation; what may happen from a second express that was sent, and to which no answer is yet returned, I cannot say; though I much doubt their first resolution will not be rescinded.

I think myself much obliged to your Excellency for the kind part you have acted on this occasion, and that you may rest assured that no sinister event whatever shall ever shake those principles of honour becoming an officer in his Majesty's service. I have only now to repeat my most respectful compliments to Commodore Hammond, Dr. Scott, and all the gentlemen of my acquaintance, and to wish you a pleasant passage, and a happy sight of your friends in England; being, very respectfully, sir, yours, &c.,

DANIEL WOLSTENHOLME.

To His Excellency Governour Eden.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO RICHARD DALLAM.

[No. 83.]

Annapolis, July 27, 1776.

SIR: We received yours of the 22d of July, and are glad to hear that you have made as many guns as will reimburse the money already advanced; they may be delivered to Colonel Carville Hall, or his order. The price you ask is high for guns, but we want them at present, and therefore will take any number you may make in six weeks from this time, and give you £4 10s. currency for them completely finished.

We are, &c.

To Richard Dallam, Esq., Harford County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GORDON AND PATTEN.

[No. 84.]

Annapolis, July 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed you will have a plan of a knapsack and haversack in one, adopted by three Provinces, and which they offer to make, of the materials, dimensions, and in manner described, in Philadelphia, at 8s. 6d. If you incline to make two thousand six hundred at that rate, we will agree to pay that price, provided they be made in the space of six weeks at farthest.

We expect your answer immediately, that we may apply elsewhere in case you do not incline to furnish us.

We are, &c.

To Messrs. Gordon and Patten.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GERARD HOPKINS.

[No. 85.]

Annapolis, July 27, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed you will receive an order on the Treasurer for £50, to pay off the debts you have incurred on the account of the knapsacks and haversacks, for girth and diaper web, and what you may want for future purchases of that sort.

I have it in command from the Council to inform you that it is impossible for them to fix the price of making the haversacks, as they cannot be judges of the value of work they have never seen, and haversacks are made in various forms, and of course more work must be bestowed on one kind than another. Knapsacks and haversacks in one, are offered to be made in Philadelphia, and all materials found, for 8s. 6d. apiece; you speak only of haversacks; it is not known if you mean haversacks alone, or knapsacks and haversacks together. As soon as the price can be fixed, the cash will be sent you. The Council will pay what the Committee of Baltimore shall fix their value at.

It is by no means agreeable to the Council that the officers of the Flying-Camp should have any command over the stores of this Province; and they cannot look upon you as acting in the line of your duty, in disposing of them to any of them, without orders from their Board: they are to be in Continental pay, and no regular account can be kept against the Continent without such commands issuing from the proper place. They will, however, take the eight hundred and fifty haversacks made in consequence of Colonel Erving's request to you, which you are to deliver only to the order of the Council of Safety. They again desire to know whether you mean haversacks alone, or knapsacks with them.

Enclosed is a letter open, which you are desired to seal and deliver to Messrs. Gordon and Patten. It contains proposals for making a quantity of knapsacks and haversacks, the pattern and price, and they are requested to give an answer speedily.

I am yours, &c.,

GABRIEL DUVAL.

To Mr. Gerard Hopkins, son of Richard.

DELAWARE ASSEMBLY.

In the House of Representatives for the Counties of New-Castle, Kent, and Sussex, upon Delaware, at New-Castle, Saturday, July 27, 1776, P. M.:

The House, taking into consideration the Resolution of Congress of the 15th of May last, for suppressing all authority derived from the Crown of Great Britain, and for establishing a Government upon the authority of the People, and the Resolution of this House of the 15th of June last, in consequence of the said Resolution of Congress, directing all persons holding offices, civil or military, to execute the same in the name of this Government until a new one should be formed, and also the Declaration of the United States of America absolving from all allegiance to the British Crown, and dissolving all political connexion between them and Great Britain, lately published and adopted by this Government as one of those States, are of opinion that some speedy measures should be taken to form a regular mode of civil polity; and this House, not thinking themselves authorized by their constituents to execute this important work,

Do Resolve, That it be recommended to the good people of the several Counties in this Government to choose a suitable number of Deputies to meet in Convention, there to order and declare the future form of Government for this State.

Resolved, also, That it is the opinion of this House, that the said Convention consist of the number of thirty persons; that is to say, ten for the County of New-Castle, ten for the County of Kent, and ten for the County of Sussex; and that the freemen of the said Counties respectively do meet on Monday, the 19th day of August next, at the usual places of election for the County, and then and there proceed to elect the number of Deputies aforesaid, according to the directions of the several laws of this Government for regulating elections of the Members of Assembly, except as to the choice of Inspectors, which shall be made on the morning of the day of election by the electors, inhabitants of the respective Hundreds in each County.

Resolved, That every elector shall (if required by one or more of the Judges of the Election) take the following oath or affirmation, to wit: "I, A. B., will, to the utmost of my power, support and maintain the independence of this Government, as declared by the honourable Continental Congress."

Resolved, also, That it is the opinion of this House that the Deputies, when chosen as aforesaid, shall meet in Convention in the Town of New-Castle, on Tuesday, the 27th day of the same month of August, and immediately proceed to form a Government on the authority of the people of this State, in such sort as may be best adapted to their preservation and happiness.

Extract from the Minutes.

Published by order:

JAMES BOOTH, Clerk of Assembly.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

Philadelphia, July 27, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed you have a resolution of Congress for the supply of provisions to the frigates in the Eastern Department, out of the stock of provisions in that quarter; and am to request you will, by the next post, issue your orders to your Deputy there to furnish such quantities as shall be applied for by Mr. Cushing and others who have the care of the ships.

I have paid all your bills which have been presented. Money will soon be sent to the Paymaster.

I wish you happy; and am, sir, your very humble servant,
JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Jos. Trumbull, Esq., Commissary-General, New-York.

MARYLAND DELEGATES IN CONGRESS TO COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, July 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Colonel Smallwood, apprehending his battalion would be in want of many necessities at the camp, applied to us for a sum of money, and we advanced him $1,335, for which he is to be accountable to the Convention of Maryland. We hope this advance will meet with your and their approbation, as not much can be expected from soldiers badly provided; and such is the discretion and economy of Colonel Smallwood, that we are persuaded he will make a very judicious application of this money.

The Congress has allowed a regimental Paymaster to each battalion in the Flying-Camp, the appointment of which officer is left to the several States from which those battalions come. In the recess of our Convention, the appointment is in you, and we beg you may appoint one as soon as may be. Colonel Smallwood recommended to us for this place Mr. Christopher Richmond. We mention this circumstance because we know the appointment of Mr. Richmond will be very agreeable to the Colonel.

There are now lodged in Mr. Shries's house fifty odd muskets, lately imported for the use of our State; they want repairing and cleaning. We submit it to you whether we shall not keep these muskets here, to arm in part one of our Militia companies passing through this city, on its way to the Flying-Camp; this will save the expense and trouble of sending them to Maryland.

We are informed that there are large quantities of flint-stones at the landings on Wye and Choptank rivers; these were brought by the ships as ballast, and thrown out on the banks. The Congress has desired us to write to you on the subject, and to procure some person who understands flints, to look after them, and to report to Congress whether they are good or not.

We have nothing new from New-York: the post is not yet come in: we heard from General Washington yesterday: all was quiet. The ten vessels mentioned in the papers appearing in the offing at New-York brought over Highlanders—how many we know not. As the harvest is now over, we imagine the Militia will come in fast to compose the Flying-Camp; and we hope the Maryland Militia will march with all possible expedition.

We are, with regard, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servants,

SAMUEL CHASE,
CH. CARROLL of Carrollton.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland, at Annapolis.

GEORGE STEVENSON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read July 31, 1776.]

In Committee of Inspection and Observation of Cumberland }
County, at Carlisle, July 27, 1776. }

SIR: Agreeable to the request of Congress, recommended by our Convention, by their Circular Letter of the 19th instant, by this Committee forwarded to the Colonels or commanding officers of the several battalions of Militia Associates in this County, to hasten the march to New-Jersey of as many of their companies as can be armed, the inhabitants have voluntarily and very generally offered their service; and, by the answers which we have received from the officers, it appears to us that eleven companies will be sufficiently armed and accoutred, and the last of them marched from this place, in about a week from this time. Three companies more are preparing, if they can get arms; and many more declare themselves willing to march; but we are well assured arms are not to be got in this County. A considerable quantity of arms were purchased in this County last winter, and sent to Virginia, by permission of the Committee of Safety; several chests of arms were sent to the Committee of Safety, and with them fifty-six of the new arms, made here by order of the Assembly; all the companies who have hitherto been raised in this County have been supplied with our arms; therefore there can be but very few arms now in this County.

The money we sent for by our order of the 14th instant, we disposed of to the companies first raised, and we are now obliged to draw for £1000 more in favour of Mr. John Pollock, of this place, our express, whom we hope you will not detain, as it is a doubt with us whether we can borrow money sufficient to answer the necessary demands of the companies before they can march; and if that should be the case, some of them will be obliged to wait his return. After the men shall have marched, we shall render an account of the disposal of the money.

If arms and accoutrements are to be had at Philadelphia we can send more men. An answer to this and to our former letter, will oblige us much.

We are, sir, your most obedient and humble servants,
GEORGE STEVENSON, Chairman.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

GENERAL MERCER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Perth-Amboy, July 27, 1776.

SIR: General Heard and General Roberdeau have considered with me the plan proposed for attacking the posts on Staten-Island. Two things we entirely agree in, namely, that the number of troops proposed are by no means equal to the undertaking. We cannot rationally suppose the enemy's force on the Island to be less than ten thousand. Where these are chiefly posted we have no intelligence to be depended on. Several outguards posted along the shores of the Island are in our view, but these we can only regard as necessary to the security of their main body, who may speedily come to the assistance of any one post. The craft necessary to convey a sufficient body for a successful attack on the enemy is not, so far as I can find, to be collected along the shores here. It is true there are many small vessels, but the greater number ill-constructed for making a descent. It is, therefore, our opinion, that before any grand effort is made, a number of flat-bottomed boats should be constructed for the purpose, as well as those we have, put in the best repair. We have carpenters enough in the troops here; tools, nails, and other materials may be had; and we wait your orders to set about this part of the service. In Rariton River are craft of different sizes calculated to transport one thousand men; Rahway River three hundred. General Heard will be able to inform your Excellency what craft may be ready in Thompson's Creek, Elizabeth-Town, and Newark.

I have the honour to be, sir, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

HUGH MERCER.

P. S. No troops have joined since last return.

GENERAL MERCER TO COLONEL DICKINSON.

SIR: In consequence of your favour to-day, I have ordered ammunition for the troops at Elizabeth-Town, also two pieces of cannon, with their arrangement of necessary articles. They will be with you to-morrow, and I will do myself the pleasure of then paying you my respects. I am very sorry you do not find people actuated with such a spirit as you wish. General Washington, under the dread of leaving this part of the country naked, through the desertion of such numbers, has directed me to send no more men, after Colonel Atlee's, to New-York.

H. MERCER.

To Col. John Dickinson, commanding at Elizabeth-Town.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read July 29, 1776.]

New-York, July 27, 1776.

SIR: I was yesterday morning honoured with your favour of the 24th instant, with its several enclosures, to which I shall pay the strictest attention. The confidence Congress are pleased to repose in my judgment demands my warmest acknowledgments; and they may rest assured it shall be invariably employed, so far as it shall be in my power, to promote their views and the publick weal.

I have enclosed a letter received from Major French two days ago; also, one from him to his lady. Congress will perceive thereby what he says and thinks about his parole, and will be pleased to transmit to me, by the earliest opportunity, the results of their opinion, and such orders as they may think necessary to be taken upon it. The letter for Mrs. French they will please to return me. It was only forwarded to show his views more explicitly than what that to me does.

Since my last, nothing material has occurred. Yesterday evening, report was made that eight ships were seen in the offing, standing towards the Hook. The men-of-war and tenders are still up the river. They have never attempted to pass the Highland fortifications; and a day or two ago quitted their station, and fell down the river eight or ten miles. The vigilance and activity of the Militia opposite where they were, have prevented their landing, and doing much injury. One poor peasant's cot they plundered, and then burnt.

I would wish to know whether the allowance given to officers the 17th of January, of one-and-a-third dollars for every man they enlist, Congress mean to extend to the officers who enlist for the new Army for three years. At first, it may appear wrong, or rather exorbitant, supposing that many will be recruited out of the regiments now in service, and under them; but the allowance will be of great use, as it will interest the officers, and call forth their exertions, which otherwise would be faint and languid. Indeed, I am fearful, from the inquiries I have made, that their utmost exertions will be attended with but little success. It is objected, that the bounty of ten dollars is too low, and argued, that if the States furnishing men for five or six months allow considerably more, why should that be accepted, and when the term of enlistment is to be for three years? I heartily wish a bounty in land had been, or could be, given, as was proposed some time ago. I think it would be attended with salutary consequences.

In consequence of my application to Governour Trumbull, he has sent me two row-galleys, and I expect another from him. None from Governour Cooke are yet come, nor have I heard from him on the subject. One is complete here. The fire-ships are going on under Mr. Anderson's direction, but rather slowly; and I am preparing some obstructions to the channel nearly opposite the works at the upper end of this Island. When all things are ready, I intend to try, if it shall seem practicable, to destroy the ships and tenders above, and to employ the galleys, if they can be of advantage.

The Militia for the Flying-Camp come in but slowly. By a return from General Mercer yesterday, they are but a little more than three thousand. If they were in, or can be there shortly, and the situation of the enemy remains the same, I would make some efforts to annoy them, keeping our posts here well guarded, and not putting too much to the hazard, or in any manner to the risk.

I have the honour to be, with the utmost respect, sir, your most obedient servant,
Go. WASHINGTON.

Hartford, July 22, 1776.

SIR: A letter which I saw to Captain Delaplace, directing his Majesty's officers, prisoners here, to send their letters under cover to you, occasions my troubling you with the enclosed, which I request you will direct to be sent to his Excellency General Howe, by the first flag of truce; and as I am certain there must be many letters for me and the other gentlemen here, we shall esteem it a favour if you will direct inquiry to be made of the flags of truce which may be sent to you. I make no doubt you will grant us this small consolation in our captivity, that we may have the satisfaction of hearing from our friends.

When the parole which I signed to the Committee of Safety at Philadelphia was tendered to me, and I had read as far as "that I would not bear arms against the United Colonies for twelve months," I refused to sign it for so long a time; but one of the members, (Mr. Morris,) observing there was an alternative, viz: "unless exchanged," I agreed, and signed it; from which it is evident, that I, with Ensign Rotton and Mr. McDermott, who were taken with me, as also Mr. Goldthorpe, a private soldier in his Majesty's Twenty-Second Regiment, and Alexander Allen, a private soldier in his Majesty's Forty-Fifth Regiment, who came under the same articles, are entitled to our enlargement on the 12th of August next, at which period our parole expires, for which I beg you will give orders. I should not have presumed to remind you of this circumstance, which I know would naturally occur, but through an apprehension that the multiplicity of business now on your hands might occasion it to escape your memory.

I am, sir, with all due respect, your most obedient, humble servant,
CHRISTR. FRENCH.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, Saturday morning, July 27, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Colonel Hand reports five ships, one brig, and five schooners, at the Hook. One very large vessel came up last evening to the fleet. One other ship sailed about one this morning, but the Colonel don't write whether she went down or up.

I have four prisoners, inhabitants of Queen's County, that were taken yesterday, attempting to make their escape to the enemy. I am just going to examine them. If I discover anything worthy your Excellency's notice, it shall be transmitted you immediately.

I received information last evening of there being thirty or forty Tories on a little Island near the entrance of Jamaica-Bay. Three boats full of men were seen off there day before yesterday, but they did not land, nor speak with any boats, that the guards could discover. I sent a party of sixty men to scour the Island this morning, and to take all they found there prisoners.

I am, with all due respect, your Excellency's very humble servant,
NATHAL. GREENE.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Saturday, twelve o'clock, July 27, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have examined the prisoners, and find them to be a parcel of poor ignorant, cowardly fellows. Two are tailors, named John and James Dunbar; and the other two are common labourers, named Isaac Petit and Will Smith. They candidly confess they set off with an intention of going to Staten-Island, but not with any intention of joining the enemy, but to get out of the way of fighting here. I believe the true reasons of their attempting to make their escape were, there has been a draught amongst the Militia to fill the new levies, and it was rumored these were a part that were drawn. It was also reported they were to go into the Northern Army, and that almost all that went there died, or were killed. The prospect was so shocking to them and to their grandmothers and aunts, I believe they persuaded them to run away. Never did I see fellows more frightened; they wept like a parcel of children, and appear exceeding sorrowful. One of them is in an exceeding ill state of health, very unfit for any fatigue. I beg your Excellency's direction how to dispose of them; they don't appear to be acquainted with one publick matter; they have been Toryish, but I fancy not from principle, but from its being the prevailing sentiment in the County.

Mrs. Grant desires to go on board the fleet to-morrow, and to carry the necessary provision for her passage, agreeable to the order or permit of Congress. Your Excellency will please to signify your pleasure in the matter.

I have the honour to be, your obedient servant,

NATH. GREENE.

COLONEL SHEE TO GENERAL NIFFLIN.

Mount Washington, July 27, 1776.

SIR: I know of no vacancy in the Third Pennsylvania Battalion but one, occasioned by the promotion of Lieutenant Woelpper, who requested me not to recommend any person in his room, as he was not determined to leave the regiment; of which he promised to advise me on his arrival at Philadelphia.

Lieutenant Knox has been a long while imprisoned at Philadelphia. As it is not likely that he will join the regiment, Congress may probably think proper to deprive him of his commission. Should there be a vacancy in consequence, as well as one on the advancement of Mr. Woelpper, I should, as I have already done, beg leave to recommend John Davis and Samuel Dewees, to fill the post of Ensigns.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

JOHN SHEE.

To Brigadier-General Mifflin.

N. WOODHULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

White-Plains, July 27, 1776.

SIR: I am directed to transmit to your Excellency the enclosed Deposition, relative to William Sutton's declaration after returning from on board Governour Tryon's ship last fall. I have the honour to be, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

NATH. WOODHULL, Pres't.

To His Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters, New-York.

Committee Chamber, White-Plains, July 12, 1776.

Mr. . . . being duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, deposes and says: That some time after William Sutton returned home from Governour Tryon's ship, he (this deponent) was informed by said Sutton, as follows: That our people were to be cut off from New-York, and that the King's troops were to land about ten miles from Mamaroneck; that Hudson's River was to be occupied by them; that the fleet was to be drawn up in a line before New-York, with intent to keep the forces there in action, in order to give the transports a better opportunity of running up the North River with intent to cut off the communication between the country and city; that the King's standard was to be hoisted, and that the Tories would then have a chance. That said Sutton further informed this deponent that Robert Sutton, of Long-Island, would join the Regulars, with seven hundred men, well equipped; that a proclamation would be issued out by the King's party; that the people would then know what they had to expect, and that there would be forty-five thousand troops sent over to America this summer. And this deponent says that he heard John Sutton, son of the aforesaid William, declare that the Regulars would land between Mamaroneck and Horseneck, and that he would join them. And this depo-nent further says that he heard James Horton say that he was sure the Ministerial Army would conquer, and that matters would soon be settled; and further says not.

By order of the Committee:

JOHN THOMAS, Jun., Chairman.

In Committee of Safety, White-Plains, }
July 13, 1776. }

The within deponent came before this Committee and made oath that he saw Joshua Gedney, of Dutchess County, have a long list of men's names who would join the Ministerial Army; that the said list of names was delivered to Governour Tryon by said Gedney, in the presence of this deponent. And this deponent further says that he heard Caleb Fowler, Jun., of North-Castle, degrade the service he had been in, and say that if he went again, he would go like a man, and join the Ministerial Army.

By order of the Committee:

JOHN THOMAS, Jun., Chairman.

RICHARD BRUERÉ (PRISONER) TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

At Mr. Jonathan Tyler's, Bedford Township, }
New-Purchase, July 27, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: I am very sorry to trouble you so often on the same subject; but as I received my bills for money on England by the hands of one of your officers about a week past, and as I have no method of supplying myself with money, think it somewhat strange that the gentlemen of the Committee, if they have received directions from you, have not supplied us with money according to the general resolution of the Congress; but should rather, as to my own part, have been glad to have got money for bills on England. However, I will take it as a favour that you will give the necessary directions for the usual allowance as soon as may be.

I am, gentlemen, your humble servant,

RD. BRUERÉ, prisoner of war.

To the Gentlemen of the Provincial Congress of New-York.

N. B. The Committee have been applied to more than once.

RICHARD VARICK TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, July 27, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I send you this morning about twelve hundred weight of spikes, of different sizes, and four hundred weight of twenty-four penny nails, for the carpenters at Skenesborough; as also some axes, in addition to the twelve hundred heretofore sent, and some spades and pickaxes, which will be immediately forwarded from Fort George.

As soon as the iron and other articles can be procured for the works at Skenesborough, I shall forward them.

It is now confidently reported that General Lee has repulsed Clinton seven times in his attempts to land, with much loss of men and shipping. The remainder of the fleet were supposed to have gone to Barbadoes to refit. If this be true, his business is done for this campaign.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

RICH. VARICK.

To the Hon. General Gates.

MARINE COMMITTEE OF RHODE-ISLAND TO THE COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Providence, July 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The bearer, Captain Grannis, is appointed Captain of Marines on board the Continental ship Warren, provided he obtains a dismission from the service of the State of Massachusetts-Bay, in which he is now engaged. We think the furnishing of these ships with able officers and good men, is of the greatest consequence to these United States; we therefore request that you would be pleased to dismiss the said Captain Grannis from your service, and give him permission to enlist a company of men within your territories—permitting such of your people as are willing, and are now in the land service, to go on board the ship with him. We are in hopes to get the ships to sea in about three weeks.

We are, (for the Marine Committee here,) your Honours' humble servants,

NICH. COOKE, Chairman.

JABEZ BOWEN, Secretary.

The Hon. Council of State of Massachusetts-Bay.

CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety, July 27, 1776:

Present: His Honour the Governour, Elipht. Dyer, Jr. Huntington, Jed. Elderkin, Nathl. Wales, Jun., and Benj. Huntington, Esquires.

Voted, That the selling Axes purchased in this Colony be sent forthwith, without delay, by trusty wagoners, to Skenesborough, to the care of such persons as have a right to receive them, for the use of the Continental Army, as has been requested by General Schuyler.

On application of Mr. Jay, from the Committee of Convention of the State of New-York,

Voted to grant the loan of twenty Cannon, viz: ten twelve-pounders and ten six-pounders, now at the Furnace at Salisbury, to the State of New-York; also, a suitable proportion of Shot for said Cannon—said Cannon to be replaced, and said Shot to be replaced, or accounted for by said State, when requested; and the overseers of said Furnace are directed to cast a sufficient number, or as many as can be, of iron Trucks or Carriage-Wheels for said Cannon, to be loaned to said State, and returned or accounted for with the Cannon aforesaid. All to be delivered to Mr. Jay, or order, by said overseers, taking proper receipts for the same.

Copy delivered to Mr. Jay, July 27, 1776.

JOHN JAY TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Whereas the Convention of the State of New-York did, on the 16th day of July, 1776, "resolve unanimously that a secret Committee be appointed to devise and carry into execution such measures as to them should appear most effectual for obstructing the Channel of Hudson's River, or annoying the enemy's ships in their navigation up the said river, and that the said Convention pledge themselves for defraying the charges incident thereon;" and whereas the said Convention did then resolve and order "that Mr. Jay, Mr. Robert Yates, Major Tappen, Mr. Robert R. Livingston, Mr. Gilbert Livingston, and Mr. Paulding, be the said Committee;" of which said Committee, the above-mentioned Mr. Robert Yates hath by them been appointed their Chairman.

Poughkeepsie, July 22, 1776.

The said Committee met, according to agreement, at the house of Mr. Van Kleeck. Present: Mr. Robert Yates, Chairman, Mr. Jay, Major Tappen, Mr. Robert R. Livingston, and Mr. Gilbert Livingston.

It appearing to the said Committee that a number of Cannon were wanting and absolutely necessary for the defence of Hudson's River, as well at the forts erected on its shores, as for the armed vessels ordered to be prepared for its defence,

Resolved unanimously, That Mr. Jay forthwith repair to Salisbury Iron Works, and endeavour to procure there twenty of the heaviest Cannon that can be had there, eight Cannon six-pounders, and eight Cannon four-pounders; also, a proper quantity of Shot and Trucks for the said Cannon; (the whole to be sent to Colonel Hoffman's Landing;) and that he take with him Davis Hunt, a carpenter, to take the dimensions of the said Trucks, in order that Carriages may be immediately made for the said Cannon.

Resolved unanimously also, That Mr. Jay be authorized to apply to Governour Trumbull, and, in behalf of the Convention of the State of New-York, to request his aid and influence in the premises; and further, that Mr. Jay be, and he hereby is, authorized and empowered to impress Carriages, Teams, Sloops, and Horses, and to call out detachments of the Militia, and generally to do, or cause to be done, at his discretion, all such matters and things as he may deem necessary or expedient to forward and complete the aforesaid business committed to his care.

ROBERT YATES, Chairman.

JOHN JAY,

ROBT. R. LIVINGSTON,

GILBERT LIVINGSTON,

CHRISTR. TAPPEN.

Lebanon, July 27, 1776.

The above is a true copy of my instructions from the Committee therein mentioned; and, in pursuance thereof, I request the favour of his Excellency Governour Trumbull to furnish the Convention of the State of New-York with as many Cannon for the defence of Hudson's River as the State of Connecticut can conveniently supply, not exceeding the number in the said instructions specified.

JOHN JAY.

JOSEPH WARD TO JOHN BRADFORD.

Boston, July 27, 1776.

Pursuant to directions from the Continental Congress, and from his Excellency General Washington, General Ward requests and directs John Bradford, Esq., agent to the Continental Navy, to forward to his Excellency General Washington all the within-mentioned articles with the utmost expedition and despatch, as they are greatly wanted for the Continental Army at New-York.

JOSEPH WARD, A. D. C.

List of Articles taken in the Transports which his Excellency Gen. WASHINGTON requests Gen. WARD to forward from BOSTON to NEW-YORK as soon as possible.

From Ship George: All the fuses, small-arms, and bayonets, shoulder straps, gun straps, leather bullet pouches, hair and canvass knapsacks, belts, flints, markees and soldier's tents, common tent poles, tin canteens, camp kettles, blankets, watch coats, soldiers' clothing, stockings, and black plumes.

From Ship Lord Howe: All the small-arms, bayonets, and cartouch boxes, cask of canteens and kettles, soldiers' blankets, cutlasses, canvass knapsacks, markees.

From Brigantine Annabella: All the small-arms, shoes, soldiers' tents, sheet lead, packsaddles, cartouch boxes, leather bullet pouches, shoulder straps, gun straps with lashes, bayonets and belts.

By order of his Excellency General Washington:

S. B. WEBB, A. D. C.

COLONEL HURD TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Haverhill, (Cohos,) July 27, 1776.

SIR: I am favoured with yours of the 20th instant by Mr. Atkinson, and observe your several appointments to raise the men for the protection of this part of the country, which by present appearances may be sufficient; but how long they may continue so is very uncertain.

I am just now informed, by a person from the College, that Captain Woodward has raised his men and gone out into the woods to a place called Royalston, I suppose about midway between Connecticut River and the Lake, to erect some stockade or fortification there, from whence they may keep their scouts going; but they have not thought proper to inform the Committee what their plan may be, or anything of their intention. We hear that Captain Jeremiah Eames is upon the road on his way here, and wish he may be able to make up his quota of men, so as to be on duty soon, that the people at Upper Cohos may keep about their husbandry, and not lose the advantage of such promising crops as are now on the ground. Colonel Bayley will, I believe, enlist his fifty without difficulty, chiefly from those men that have been working on the new road, when he shall immediately employ them on necessary duty.

One of our scouting parties came in from Onion River two days ago, by whom I received a letter from Colonel Wait, a copy of which I shall enclose, and by which you will observe the change of command at that station, with the complaints he makes. If it be so as there represented, we must have had some cruel enemies, snake-like, in the grass, that have been secretly working out our ruin all in their power, which, it is to be hoped, will by and by come to light. No wonder we have not succeeded better in that department.

As to those persons in this quarter who proposed sending to General Burgoyne or into Canada for assistance, we have our eyes upon them, and watch all their motions; but at present, think it not prudent to make much stir.

This afternoon, came into Newbury four Frenchmen from Metcalfs, on the Lake, in six days' travel. Bad weather retarded them, or they would have been here, they say, in three days, with a letter to Colonel Bayley from Mr. Metcalf, (an extract of which I have also enclosed,) by which it appears our affairs in Canada are not so desperate as we might have imagined. These men give much the same account as the other a few days ago, and having the appearance of open, honest folks, we shall treat them with civility, and forward them along to the Army at Crown-Point, where they are desirous of going, as quick as possible, with a pilot and proper guard.

There are also two or three of Bedel's soldiers come into town direct from thence, who give very indifferent accounts of our Army there; such as, their being very sickly; that many officers of Stark's regiment, disgusted at General Sullivan's being superseded, were determined to quit the service; that great part of the Army were drawing off to Ticonderoga; Colonel Bedel and most of his officers returning home. But we don't give much credit to these stories, as they come from fellows we suppose to be deserters.

I am glad to hear that your powder-mill is in such forwardness, and that we are likely to have a good supply of arms and ammunition, which will give our people fresh spirits.

Your goodness, I hope, will excuse my lengthy epistles. Beg my grateful respects to the gentlemen of the Committee; and am, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

JOHN HURD.

To the Honourable Meshech Weare, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Safety.

London, September 2, 1776.

This day arrived Colonel Maclean, from Quebeck. This officer raised a body of men, chiefly Scotch emigrants, in Canada, who were of infinite service in the defence of Quebeck last winter. He had been promised establishment and rank for this corps, but the promise was not kept. He left Quebeck July 27th.

General Carleton did not go forward with the Army; he was at Quebeck. General Burgoyne was at Chambly, with six thousand British and two thousand Brunswick troops. Some of the Brunswickers had deserted, and eight of them, retaken, had been hanged. His advanced guard, consisting of Light-Infantry and Grenadiers, were at Isle-aux-Noix. The design of sending a party to Oswego, and down the Mohawk River, was laid aside. Colonel Patrick Gordon was killed in a scouting party that had been attacked.

The Provincials were said to have four armed vessels on Lake Champlain, each carrying sixteen guns, nine-pounders. General Sullivan commanded the American Army, consisting of seventeen regiments, (about six thousand men,) at Crown-Point, which he was repairing; and it was imagined he would there make his stand. Many of his men are ill with the small-pox. He has with him Brigadier-General Arnold and Brigadier-General Woedtke. The Indians, it was supposed, would be neuter.

The shipwrights at Montreal and other places were hard at work building eight schooners and a proper number of batteaus, for crossing the Lakes; but it was not expected that they could be ready to go upon Lake Champlain till the 15th of September.

Some untoward circumstances are said to have happened, viz: not a good understanding among the officers; an apprehension of a want of provisions, the French inhabitants not having sown any corn on account of the war; therefore, unless great quantities of provisions are sent from England, with allowance for casualties, it is impossible to subsist so large an Army there. The last year's crop was very indifferently got in, and was nearly all consumed by the Provincial forces while in Canada.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER RECEIVED IN PHILADELPHIA, FROM ST. EUSTATIA, DATED JULY 28, 1776.

I have acquainted you, by my former, from Martinique, of the good disposition of the French towards the Continent of America, and how willing they are to admit and welcome all vessels from thence; for which purpose they have now by them, and daily import, all sorts of goods in demand with you, particularly powder and other warlike stores, which you may purchase and ship without any difficulty. And it is more than probable that if the Congress declares its independency to the European States, and offers to open their ports to foreigners, your ports will be crowded with them from all parts; and it seems France only waits for that event to assist you in your defence.

We have at present no other news than what is brought by a Dutch ship, arrived here within two days from Amsterdam, viz: that the French, Spanish, and Portuguese, are making great preparations for war, by land and by sea, as well as the States General; that the Spaniards had marched an army to the frontiers of Portugal, and had sent to sea a fleet of sixteen sail of the line, the destination of which was not known, and that they had sent considerable numbers of troops to their Colonies.

The States of Holland had absolutely refused to renew the prohibitions for the exportation of powder, &c., to the Colonies, or to cede to the English the four Scotch regiments the States have in their service, and furnish them with a number of men-of-war which the British Court had required of them. The vexation occasioned by this in the British Ministry induced them to take several Dutch ships, amongst which are two that sailed from this Island, which were carried to London, and another to St. Christopher's. In consequence of this, the Dutch have armed forty ships of war, and ordered sixty more to be built with the greatest diligence in their different ports, and to raise twenty thousand men to augment their land forces, &c. &c.

DR. DAVID MORROW TO COLONEL RUMSEY.

Charlestown, Maryland, July 28, 1776.

DEAR SIR: You will oblige me much if you will inform me, by the return of the post, whether I am appointed one of the Surgeons for the Flying-Camp, or not; and, if I am, how am I to be provided with medicines, &c. I have had an offer from the northward, but must confess I rather choose to go from Maryland; I therefore refused the offer until I could have an answer from Annapolis.

I some time ago enclosed to the Council of Safety a recommendation from Drs. Cadwalader, Bond, and Shippen, of Philadelphia; should be glad if you would enclose it to me, as it will cost me some trouble to obtain a second.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

DAVID MORROW.

To Colonel Benjamin Rumsey.

GENERAL CHAMBERLAINE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Talbot County, July 28, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: When it was proposed to me that a magazine should be fixed in our County, I was told that a detachment from the Fourth Independent Company would be stationed there as a guard.

I received from three wagoners, the other day, what is supposed to be six thousand pounds of powder, the greatest part of which, I think it probable, is cannon powder, and such as will be useless with musketry. I send you a sample of it, and hope it will be found better than it looks to be. I made a trial of it in a small cannon that we have, and found it to have equal force and quickness with some English powder that I had.

I have directed a guard from our Militia, and shall continue them till I have your directions, which shall be glad to have by the bearer. It is very inconvenient to those now on that service, and if they must continue, you will please to direct the number that shall compose the guard.

Your obedient humble servant,

JAS. LLOYD CHAMBERLAINE.

To the Honourable President of Council of Safety.

CAPTAIN DEAN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Kent-Island, July 28, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeably to your orders, I have marched the company under my command to this place, and am sorry to find no provision made for us. You will please direct whoever you may think proper to find us all that is fit and necessary for a company of men. We expected to have found some pork, which we supposed was left by Captain Harrison, but were disappointed. You will please direct attention immediately in this matter, as we live only on what we can borrow.

I am, gentlemen, very respectfully, your very humble servant,

JOHN DEAN.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety of Maryland.

BENJAMIN MACKALL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Drum-Point, July 28, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I left the camp at St. George's yesterday, and Major Price requested me to send to the Council, attended by a subaltern officer, Mr. Braithwait, who deserted from the fleet Thursday night, and brought with him two trunks, which shall be sent up to you as soon as Mr. Middleton's boat returns from the mouth of Potomack, where she is waiting upon the Defence.

I am, with much respect, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

BENJ. MACKALL, 4th.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

P. S. Lieutenant Gray, who comes with Mr. Braithwait, desires nothing more for his trouble than his expenses paid by the Province.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GENERAL DENT.

[No. 86.]

Annapolis, July 28, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed you will receive your commission, omitted to be made out by the last Convention. The greater part of the companies of the Flying-Camp are enrolled, and a number of them arrived here. As we apprehend your presence would greatly contribute to expedite their being properly armed and disciplined, as also accelerate their march, we should be glad to see you as soon as possible.

We are, &c.

To Brigadier-General Dent.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, July 28, 1776.

SIR: Colonel Hand reports that the enemy continues as they were. They fired several guns last night different from any custom that has prevailed amongst them since the arrival of the fleet. A considerable noise and movement of the boats was heard after the signal guns, and the hurry and confusion they seemed to be in after the firing, discovered they were alarmed. Perhaps they have heard of the fire-ships. Captain Talbot, of Colonel Hitchcock's regiment, begs the command of one of these vessels. He is a daring spirit, and I doubt not will execute the command agreeable to your Excellency's wishes. As I am totally ignorant of the matter, I could give him no encouragement until your Excellency's pleasure was known.

I have the honour to be, your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

N. GREENE.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, Sunday, 12 o'clock, July 28, 1776.

Colonel Hand's morning report contained nothing material. Lieutenant-Colonel Chambers reports this moment that he saw, at ten this morning, ten sail of vessels standing in for the Hook, but at too great a distance to discover what they were.

Mrs. Grant applies again for permission to go on board the fleet. Should be glad to know your Excellency's pleasure in the matter. She pleads great distress, but it can amount only to a family matter, make the best of it.

The new levies that come in hanker after milk and vegetables. I should think it would benefit the service to allow all the regiments to draw one-third the value of the animal food in money to purchase milk, &c.; and direct, in the most positive terms, the Quartermasters to provide it for the men.

I am, with all due respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

N. GREENE.

COLONEL RITZEMA TO COLONEL SEVEY.

Sunday, nine o'clock, July 28, 1776.

DEAR SIR: His Excellency the General's answer to my letter this morning has so much weight with it as to make me in some measure ashamed of my hasty request, to which I was induced by the advice of my Lieutenant-Colonel. You'll therefore be pleased just to request of the General, in my behalf, that the matter be determined to-morrow.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

RUD. RITZEMA.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

German-Flats, Sunday, July 28, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of the 19th instant was delivered me last evening. When I left Ticonderoga I made all possible despatch to Albany, and, immediately on my arrival, I not only ordered every felling axe which had been collected agreeable to my orders before I left Albany to be sent to you, which was accordingly done, but I also took every measure in my power to procure a speedy supply; and, if I am not misinformed, twelve hundred have already been sent up since the 12th instant, as many more are collecting as possible, and one thousand are daily expected from Governour Trumbull, to whom I had wrote intreating his assistance in procuring this necessary tool. Of this I advised you in my letter of the 25th instant.

I am astonished beyond imagination to be informed that not one gondola was arrived at Ticonderoga in the course of fifteen days—that is, from the time we were at Skenesborough to the date of your letter; especially as you cannot but recollect that you, and I believe General Arnold, and all the gentlemen with us when we were there, saw one on the stocks and considerably advanced in the timbering, and a stage prepared to erect another upon, a considerable quantity of plank already sawed, and the mill at work in sawing more. I hope, therefore, that when you saw such an important work so shamefully neglected, that you sent a proper person to inquire into the cause, and to push on the business with more despatch. Two gondolas more at least ought to have been finished by the 19th, unless the weather has been remarkably wet.

I very well recollect, sir, that I observed that five gondolas a week could be built when the carpenters I expected should arrive; but neither you nor any person else have ever heard me say that they could be built with what carpenters were there. If I had written so to Congress, I should most certainly not only have deceived them, but wilfully deceived them; and I believe that respectable body will not, upon the most minute examination, find that I ever did or ever intended them so gross an insult. Congress well knows what carpenters I expected; and I well know that few, and I believe none, of these were arrived at Skenesborough when your letter was written; and therefore I do repeat, that when they all arrive and get to work, if they are middling good workmen, and do not build five gondolas a week, they will not do their duty.

I am sorry the blacksmith made a mistake in the iron work for the saw-mill. He is a man much accustomed to that work, and perhaps does more of it than any five others now in the County of Albany.

I did not point out any particular route for the officer who might take charge of the Indian goods, as I know of none for carriages but by the way of Schenectady.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,
PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable General Gates.

GENERAL WATERBURY TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, July 28, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: There is an immediate want of some rum at this place, and should be glad your Honour would convey some by first opportunity.

Wood Creek is grown so very low that it is almost impossible to pass up or down with the boats; but I am determined to keep it passable, if possible, by constantly keeping a party thereon to clear out the logs and obstructions that are in the creek.

We are very much in want for teams; but we intend to get as much timber by the side of the lake and creek, and bring them to the place they are wanted by fatigue parties, as we can.

A number of grindstones is very much wanted, and I fear the business will suffer by their being so few, as the carpenters are obliged to wait for each other to grind.

I am, with respect, dear sir, your Honour's humble servant,
DAVID WATERBURY, Jun.

To the Honourable Major-General Gates, commanding at Ticonderoga.

P. S. The bullets which were sent down here are all too large for the guns. I should take it as a favour if there could be a pair sent down of small-sized bullet-moulds.

COLONEL HARTLEY TO GENERAL GATES.

Crown-Point, July 28, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: The oar-makers have this day, being Sunday, come here. They allege they want some necessary tools, to prosecute the business with more expedition. They were very desirous to go to Ticonderoga, to procure some matters they stand in need of, and propose to return to-morrow. My party is ready to cover and guard them whilst at work. There have been spying parties of the enemy near them. There have been several marks; but the place where the oars are to be cut, though eight miles off, is in view of Crown-Point. From a proper signal, I could, upon any occasion, support my party in a very short time.

I have sent out a party some miles to the right of this place, to examine the country; they will return to-morrow. Captain Wilson is not yet come up. I hope that some of the loose parties of the enemy who have been attempting to come up this way, or the canoe with the two Tories who lately went down to St. John's, may fall into his hands or the party which I sent to cover his retreat.

The Lake, I presume, will be pretty well secured by our shipping in a short time, and I think I have taken such steps as to make us pretty safe on the land side. If any enemy appear against this place, we may expect Indians or Canadians amongst them. The rough ground on this point is so favourable for our Riflemen, I should not be the least afraid of double our numbers. The boats I have always ready, if it be necessary to retreat.

I mount a guard of a subaltern, two sergeants, three corporals, forty-two privates; and a picket of a subaltern, one sergeant, three corporals, and thirty men, daily. One of the Captains acts as officer of the day. I have at least twenty-five sentries every night. I believe I shall not be surprised. I send out parties daily. The men here are recovering in their health fast, notwithstanding their duty.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most humble servant,
THOS. HARTLEY.

To Major-General Gates, at Ticonderoga.

P. S. I send you all the oars now made. You will be pleased to direct Colonel Belding to deliver the oar-makers such tools as they want.

Ticonderoga, July 28, 1776.

Immediately after divine worship this day, the Declaration of Independence was read by Colonel St. Clair; and, having said "God save the free independent States of America!" the Army manifested their joy with three cheers. It was remarkably pleasing to see the spirits of the soldiers so raised, after all their calamities; the language of every man's countenance was, Now we are a people; we have a name among the States of this world.

GENERAL LEE TO PATRICK HENRY.

Charlestown, July 29, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I used to regret not being thrown into the world in the glorious third or fourth century of the Romans, but I am now thoroughly reconciled to my lot. The reveries which have frequently, for a while, served to tickle my imagination, (but which, when awakened from my trance, as constantly I considered as mere golden castles built in the air,) at length bid fair for being realized. We shall now, most probably, see a mighty empire established of freemen, whose honour, property, and military glories, are not to be at the disposal of a sceptred tyrant, nor their consciences to be fettered by a proud, domineering hierarchy. Every faculty of the soul will be now put in motion; no merit can lie latent; the highest offices of the State, both civil and military, will now be obtained, without Court favour or the rascally talents of servility and obsequence, by which Court favour could alone be acquired. Sense, valour, and industry, will conduct us to the goal; every spark of ability which every individual possesses will now be brought forth, and form the common aggregate, for the advantage and honour of the community. The operations of war will be directed by men qualified for war, and carried on with that energy natural to a young people. True unartized knowledge, unsophisticated learning, simple genuine eloquence and poetry, will be carried to the highest degree of perfection. This, to many, I am sensible, would appear rant, but to you, who, I think, have congenial feelings with my own, it needs no apology. However, I shall now endeavour to deliver myself more like a man of this world.

I most sincerely congratulate you on the noble conduct of your countrymen; and I congratulate your country on having citizens deserving of the high honour to which you are exalted; for the being elected to the first Magistracy of a free people is certainly the pinnacle of human glory; and I am persuaded that they could not have made a happier choice.

Will you excuse me? But I am myself so extremely democratical, that I think it a fault in your Constitution that the Governour should be eligible for three years successively. It appears to me that a government of three years may furnish an opportunity of acquiring a very dangerous influence. But this is not the worst: Tacitus says, Pluru peccantur, dum demeremur, quam dum offendimus. A man who is fond of office, and has his eye upon reelection, will be courting favour and popularity, at the expense of his duty. He will give way to the popular humours of the day, let them be ever so pernicious. In short, his administration will be relaxed in general, or partial to those whom he conceives to have the greatest interest; whereas, were all hopes of reelection precluded till after the intervention of a certain number of years, he would endeavour to illustrate the year of his government by a strict, rigorous, and manly performance of his duty. These notions may, perhaps, be weak and foolish; but such as they are, I am sure you will excuse my uttering them.

There is a barbarism crept in among us that extremely shocks me: I mean those tinsel epithets with which (I come in for my share) we are so beplastered—his Excellency and his Honour, the Honourable President of the Honourable Congress, or the Honourable Convention. This fulsome, nauseating cant, may be well enough adapted to barbarous Monarchies, or to gratify the adulterated pride of the magnifici in pompous Aristocracies; but in a great, free, manly, equal Commonwealth, it is quite abominable; for my own part, I would as lief they would put ratsbane in my mouth as the Excellency with which I am daily crammed. How much more true dignity was there in the simplicity of address amongst the Romans: Marcus Tullius Cicero, Decimo Bruto Imperatori, or Caio Marcello Consuli, than to his Excellency Major-General Noodle, or to the Honourable John Doodle. My objections are, perhaps, trivial and whimsical, but for my soul I cannot help starting them. If, therefore, I should sometimes address a letter to you without the Excellency tacked, you must not esteem it a mark of personal or official disrespect, but the reverse.

The discontent of the troops, which you mention as arising from the want of regular payment, might have been remedied by General Lewis; his warrant is undoubtedly sufficient for the Paymaster; however, I have written to that gentleman on this subject, and am in hopes that affairs for the future will be more satisfactorily conducted.

An old rice-boat, which we converted the other day into a row-battery, has made a considerable prize—no less than a brig with a whole company of the Royal Highland Emigrants on board, consisting of two officers and fifty men. Although they saw that they were inevitably our prize, they had the impudence to throw their arms overboard, for which they ought to have had their ears cut off, as it was contrary to all the rules of war.

I send you enclosed the state of the enemy's Navy. I think there is no doubt of their Army having steered their course northward. On this presumption I shall direct my course towards Virginia, but first must assist to regulate the military affairs of this Province in the best manner I can, though, in fact, that will be doing little; the inconveniences of this complex play we are acting, of Duke and no Duke, are numberless and great. The President is thought by some to be the real commander; I am thought so by others; in short, there must be no troops but Continental. The Council is at present employed in settling a more regular post. We have received none these eighteen days; for my own part, I conclude the mail has been intercepted and carried on board the man-of-war. Seven tons and a half of powder were safely landed four days ago at Georgetown.

Adieu, dear sir, and believe me to be, most entirely and sincerely, yours,

CHARLES LEE.

His Excellency P. Henry, Jun., Governour of Virginia.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER, DATED CHARLESTOWN, JULY 29, 1776.

Now at anchor off Charlestown bar the Bristol, of fifty guns, Experiment, of fifty guns, with a small sloop, supposed to be armed, acting as a tender, the Paliser transport ship, still having part of the Experiment's cannon or stores on board, another transport ship, and a brigantine, which have discharged the Bristol's cannon and stores they had on board. Within the bar at anchor, the Active, of thirty-two guns, Sphinx, of twenty guns, and the Pigot hospital ship. Sailed from the bar on Wednesday last a frigate of twenty or more guns, which arrived the day before, and steered to the southward. The Syren, of twenty-eight guns, yesterday morning steered the same course.

THOMAS BULLITT, Deputy Adjutant-General.

N. B. These battalions were early hurried into a campaign, before several of them had time to form, therefore the Colonels cannot be so correct in their Returns as is necessary. They have assured me they will attend to forming and regulating their battalions, and have promised me to make their Returns as soon as they can get in.

PROCEEDINGS OF BRUNSWICK (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

Brunswick Committee, July 29, 1776.

The fatal consequences which must inevitably attend the counterfeiting the Paper currency of any of the Thirteen United Colonies, render it necessary that the strictest search and most diligent inquiry should be made after those persons who are justly suspected of being guilty of that atrocious crime; and as those who harbour, advise, or countenance such offenders, are, we conceive, as great enemies to their country as the offenders themselves, we shall ever think it our duty to expose to the displeasure and contempt of the publick the conduct of all such persons, whenever the same shall be made known to us. An offence of this nature appearing before this Committee, is the cause of publishing the following facts:

On the 23d day of June last, at one of the Churches of St. Andrew's Parish, in this County, two strangers appeared, with letters for the Chairman of this Committee, from the Committees of Hartford and Chowan Counties, in the Province of North-Carolina, informing him that indubitable testimony had been laid before those Committees that a certain Henry Lightfoot had been concerned in counterfeiting and passing the paper currency of that Province, particularly the four-dollar bills, issued in pursuance of the resolution of the North-Carolina Congress, held at Hillsborough, the 21st day of August, 1775, and that they were informed the said Lightfoot was then in this County. The Chairman of this Committee, being then at Church, immediately engaged Captain John Maclin to proceed with the messengers after the said Lightfoot. The Captain, on his return, represented, that in a very short time after he engaged in this service, he went to the house where he was informed the said Lightfoot was, and made diligent search, but to no purpose, and from thence proceeded to a meeting, where he expected to find him; but when he arrived, he was told he had precipitately made off, and that there was reason to suspect a certain William Wall, of this County, had given him notice of the business the messengers from North-Carolina were upon. On the 22d of July, these circumstances were proved before this Committee, and the said Wall was, in consequence thereof, ordered to appear before them on the Monday following, being the 29th, to answer the same. Accordingly, on that day, he made his appearance, was charged with the fact, and confessed that he was the means of giving intelligence to the said Lightfoot, which induced him to make his escape; which confession, together with the testimony of other persons relative to the conduct of the said William Wall in this matter, make it appear, to the full conviction of this Committee, that he ought to be exposed as an enemy to his country. And it is ordered, that a representation of the above proceedings be transmitted to the Printer, to be laid before the publick.

By order of the Committee: D. FISHER, Clerk.

Baltimore, July 30, 1776.

Yesterday, by order of the Committee of this Town, the Declaration of Independency of the United States of America was read at the Court-House to a numerous and respectable body of Militia, and the company of Artillery, and other principal inhabitants of this Town and County, which was received with general applause and heartfelt satisfaction. At night, the Town was illuminated; and at the same time, the effigy of our late King was carted through the Town, and committed to the flames, amidst the acclamations of many hundreds—the just reward of a tyrant.

GEORGE WOOLSEY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, July 29, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to your directions, I have examined all the wharves about this place, and find on the most of them a few flint-stones, but I think not of the best quality. I am told by many people here, that there are quantities sunk in the wharves; therefore, if you think proper, I will employ people to search for them. At the same time, I have been informed that there is a flint quarry about two miles from the head of Elk. If so, no doubt the flints there would be more easily got. Mr. Henry Hollingsworth can give you information respecting it. I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

GEO. WOOLSEY.

To the Council of Safety.

CAPTAIN THOMAS TO GEORGE PLATER.

Head-Quarters, St. George's, July 29, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Yesterday, the Roebuck, with the fleet under her convoy, arrived here from their cruise up the river. They were watched all the way down by two row-galleys from Alexandria. They will be here this evening, and I expect to-night we shall engage the fleet. The Roebuck stood down the Bay, and is now out of sight. The Defence made her appearance yesterday morning, but on the Fowey's wearing out, thought it prudent to stand down again. We are preparing all the boats we can get to assist in boarding all such vessels as are not armed, and I am in hopes we shall be able to give a good account of them. I most sincerely wish the business over. The place is exceedingly disagreeable. Not a drop of water but what is brought three miles, together with the uncomfortable tents that we have, I am afraid will make us all sick. Near half of mine and Captain Beall's company are down. The Militia do every duty exceeding ill, and the service is so very unknown to them, that the whole burden lies upon the few regulars that are here. Nearly half of the fleet are gone, and the rest, I suppose, will go in a few days. Whenever they do, I shall proceed to Annapolis, on my way to the northward, and shall be extremely obliged to you if you will have the tents, knapsacks, haversacks, camp-kettles, and canteens, completed for my company, ready at Annapolis. What I want will certainly be finished in that time. If the tents are large, they will hold eight men, so that, at that computation, I shall want fifteen tents for the whole company, with other things in proportion. I trust you will endeavour to procure them for me by the middle of next week, by which time I shall, I hope, be at Annapolis; but I shall necessarily be delayed here a few days, to get on board the cannon, and in providing vessels to transport us; but not one moment shall be lost. Be pleased to present my compliments to Mrs. Plater, and believe me to be, dear sir, yours affectionately,

J. A. THOMAS.

To the Hon. George Plater, Annapolis.

P. S. I forgot to mention that we yesterday morning opened our battery, which played, as it is thought, with success, on the Fowey. Numbers of dead bodies come on shore every day, so that we are poisoned with the stench.

ARCHIBALD BUCHANAN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

SIR: Upon application of Mr. Scwell, by the desire of Mr. Cowen to him, we agreed, if it was agreeable to the Council of Safety, to undertake the building of two or three gondolas; to begin upon them immediately with a number of hands, and finish as soon as possible. We have an opportunity of engaging what hands we want immediately, and will undertake it on the same terms as other carpenters, and will give any bond and security that may be required. Colonel Hall and Mr. Risteau both promised to wait upon you for a line, but I have not heard from them; if it is approved of, please to write me, and I will begin the work, and come down if necessary; but if my coming a few days hence to enter into the bond would do, it would suit me better. I am at present unwell. It will be necessary for me to hear of your determination, and shall be much obliged to you for a line.

I am, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

ARCH. BUCHANAN.

To Benjamin Rumsey, Esq., Annapolis.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

[No. 87.]

Annapolis, July 29, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have directed Captain Nicholson, who goes to Philadelphia on business of his own, to endeavour to procure some salted provisions for the use of the Navy. Should any difficulties attend the execution of his orders, we must request you will endeavour to remove them, and at the same time to advance him money to pay for what he may engage. We are, &c.

To the Deputies of Maryland in Congress.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL SOMERVILLE.

[No. 88.]

Annapolis, July 29, 1776.

SIR: We are willing and desirous to ease the Militia of your County all we can with safety to the Province, and therefore have ordered Captain John Brooke to Drum-Point, there to remain until Captain Beall returns, or until the further order of the Council of Safety. The contractor is to furnish rations for his men. We are, &c.

To Colonel Alexander Somerville.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL KENT.

[No. 89.]

Annapolis, July 29, 1776.

SIR: The Council of Safety request you will, immediately upon the receipt of this, attend them at Annapolis; they want to consult you upon matters relative to the arming, marching, and equipping the battalion under your command.

We are, &c.

To Colonel James Kent.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL DASHIEL.

[No. 90.]

Annapolis, July 29, 1776.

SIR: We have given to your Quartermaster, Mr. Severe Hitch, an order on the Treasurer of the Eastern-Shore for the sum of £750 currency, which no doubt he will deliver you. This sum is intended to pay the Militia for their services heretofore, also something to your Quartermaster, the remainder to answer growing expenses of Militia, for which you are to render an account hereafter.

The expense of the witnesses against Atkinson is referred to the Board of Accounts; they are not here at present; we shall lay all the accounts before them when they meet again, which we expect will be in a few days. We doubt your account is too general, and that the Board will expect particulars for the lumping charges: that must be left to them. We think the march of one-half of Captain Watkins's company somewhat extraordinary; expect to hear more of it.

We have already ordered you more powder. If it does not come down soon, apply to Brigadier Chamberlain, who has the care of the Eastern-Shore magazine, and will deliver you five barrels for the use of Somerset County.

We are, &c.

To Colonel George Dashiell.

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Committee, July 29, 1776:

Present: Samuel Purviance, (Chairman,) W. Lux, (Vice Chairman,) A. Buchanan, J. Cradock, T. Gist, T. Sollers, W. Wilkinson, W. Tolly, Jun., D. Lux, T. Rutter, J. Merryman, J. Calhoun, D. Shaw, E. Talbot, C. Ridgely of William, J. Gittings, J. Smith.

This day, agreeable to the resolve of this Committee of the 22d instant, the Declaration of Independency was proclaimed at the Court-House by Mr. William Aisquith, (Mr. Christie being out of Town:) Captain Nathaniel Smith's Company of Matrosses, Captain John Sterrett's Company of Independents, Captain John Smith's, Captain James Cox's, Captain George Wells's, and Captain William Richardson's Companies being drawn up under arms on the occasion.

A Letter was received from the Council of Safety, directing security to be taken of Alexander McGee for his good behaviour, and directing him to be confined until he gave said security, and paid the expense of taking him to and from Annapolis; which the said McGee could not comply with, therefore he was ordered to Prison, with the following Commitment to the Sheriff:

"Baltimore County, ss:

"Receive from Benjamin Wood the body of Alexander McGee, and him in your Jail and custody safely keep, until he gives bond in the sum of £300 currency, with good security to be approved of by the Committee of Observation of this County, with condition that he do not in any manner correspond with or give intelligence to the enemies of America; and further, that he obey all orders of the honourable Congress and Convention, agreeable to an order of the Council of Safety of this Province; and for your so doing this shall be your sufficient authority.

"Given under our hands and seals, this 24th day of July, 1776.

"JAMES CALHOUN. [L. s.]

"To Robert Christie, Esq., Sheriff of Baltimore County."

Mr. Hercules Courtenay applied to the Committee for their Instructions in what manner he should act as a Magistrate when any person should be brought before him to give security for a Levy. The Committee, on deliberating the matter and recurring to the Association, wherein we unite, associate, and solemnly engage ourselves to support good order and the publick peace, and to support the civil power in the due execution of the laws, so far as may be consistent with the present plan of opposition, are of opinion, that it be recommended to the Magistrates in such cases to act with lenity, and as they may think most conducive to the good of the community.

The Fines of William Lavelly and George Lavelly, who prove to be upwards of fifty years old, are remitted.

On the representation of Thomas Randall, the Collector is desired to suspend distressing his effects for payment of his fine till the further orders of this Committee.

N. B. Several blank papers for taking a List of the Inhabitants of this County, were given to the persons employed.

Attest:

GEORGE LUX, Secretary.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, July 29, 1776.

SIR: I have been honoured with your favours of 22d, 25th, and 27th instant. I hope by to-morrow's post to transmit you answers to the whole of your letters which are yet unanswered. The exceeding warm season and the constant attention of Congress to business the last week, induced Congress to adjourn from Friday evening to this morning. I shall directly lay your letters before them, and request their immediate attention to them.

Congress having indulged me to make a demand of money from Mr. Brimer, who I judge to be with Mr. Howe on Staten-Island, I have sent the bill to Mr. Palfrey, and desired him to apply to you, and I request you will please to suffer him to conduct this matter for me.

I have the honour to be, with much esteem, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, July 29, 1776.

SIR: Since I sent off my letter of this morning the Congress have met, before whom I laid your letters, and I have the pleasure to inform you the Congress readily agreed to your having another Aid-de-Camp.

I have the honour to be, sir, your humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Washington.

PETITION OF GEORGE NICHOLSON.

[Referred to the Board of War.]

To the Honourable Congress of the free and independent States of AMERICA:

The humble Petition of GEORGE NICHOLSON sheweth:

That your petitioner has had the honour of serving the honourable Congress as an officer since the 4th of September, 1775, in Canada; was appointed Aid-de-Camp to General Wooster, the 7th of March, 1776, which office he continued in till the General quitted the service; and as the corps to which he formerly belonged is in a manner broke, (the men's time being expired, and many of the officers provided for in other regiments,) he hopes this honourable House will continue him in the service, and order him to be paid the trifle that is due to him. As it is the sole ambition of your petitioner to spend his life in the service of his country, he is the more anxious of being speedily placed, on account of the critical situation of affairs, preferring a military life to any other. Should your honourable House grant this request, your petitioner would have no objection to join any of the regiments either at York or Ticonderoga. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

GEORGE NICHOLSON.

JOSIAH BARTLETT TO JOHN LANGDON.

Philadelphia, July 29, 1776.

MY FRIEND: Yours of the 15th instant is now before me, and with you I lament the selfish disposition that is but too prevalent among almost all orders and degrees of men; even the Senate and Army are not entirely free. However, we must not expect perfection in human nature, but must endeavour to correct it in ourselves, and to point it out and oppose it in others.

The retreat of our Army to Ticonderoga has no doubt alarmed the western parts of our State, though I think there will be no great danger at present, as there is a very powerful Army there, who are now getting well of the small-pox, and will be soon ready for action, besides the numerous Militia who are marching to join that Army.

Our friend General Sullivan is disgusted at the appointment of General Gates to be a Major-General, and being sent to the Northern Army. By permission of the Generals Schuyler and Washington, he (General Sullivan) has left the Army, and is now here, and has petitioned Congress for leave to resign his commission. What will be done in the case I cannot say, but hope it will be settled without his dismission.

Brother Whipple is here yet, and will not set out for home till the Confederation is settled, which may possibly take a week or ten days' time, as there is a great deal of other business to be done in the mean time, and the sentiments of the members of Congress very different on many of the articles. I should be glad he might hear the whole of the debates here, and be present in our Colony when it is laid before our Legislature for their concurrence, to answer any questions and remarks that may be made upon it. It is a matter of the greatest importance, but the interests and opinions of the several members are so various that I see it will not be settled agreeable to my mind.

It is a very still time as to news here. The fleet and Armies at New-York and Staten-Island remain in statu quo. The Army in the Jerseys is increasing very fast, so that there will soon be a powerful body of men there.

July 31st.—I can now inform you that the affair with General Sullivan is settled, and he is to return to New-York, to be employed by General Washington in that department; so hope you will not make many words about it.

I am, sir, your friend and most obedient, humble servant,
JOSIAH BARTLETT.

P. S. By the enclosed you will see the resolves passed by Congress, and sent to Generals Howe and Burgoyne, in consequence of the affair at the Cedars.

By letters yesterday from Virginia we are informed that Dunmore with his fleet has gone up Potomack River, has burnt some houses near the shores, and has endeavoured to burn more, but was hindered; that the Virginians had taken a tender with one of the most infamous Tories in the Province on board; the number of men and guns I have forgot. They have also taken a vessel from Dunmore, with linens, &c., said to be worth twenty thousand pounds sterling.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM JOHN ADAMS, DATED PHILADELPHIA, JULY 29, 1776.

We have no news. It is very hard that half a dozen or half a score of armies can't supply us with news. We have a famine, a perfect dearth of this necessary article. I am, at this present writing, perplexed and plagued with two knotty problems in politics. You love to pick a political bone; so I will even throw it to you.

If a Confederation should take place, one great question is, how we shall vote,—whether each Colony shall count one; or whether each shall have a weight in proportion to its number, or wealth, or exports and imports, or a compound ratio of all? Another is, Whether Congress shall have authority to limit the dimensions of each Colony, to prevent those which claim, by charter, or proclamation, or commission, to the South Sea, from growing too great and powerful, so as to be dangerous to the rest?

Shall I write you a sheet upon each of these questions? When you are well enough to read, and I can find leisure enough to write, perhaps I may.

GENERAL MERCER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Perth-Amboy, July 29, 1776.

SIR: A very great dissatisfaction prevails among the troops here, and all the several posts from hence to New-York, on account of the quality of the provisions and the great inattention paid by the Commissaries in serving the rations. We have here three Commissaries of equal powers in this service, namely: Mr. Lowrie, Mr. Dunham, and Mr. Ogden. The services performed by Mr. Dunham have fallen more immediately under my notice. By what I have seen, that gentleman is very unfit for any extensive business in this way, insomuch that if we are to depend on his abilities and assiduity, the Army must starve. It is, in my opinion, absolutely necessary that one person be employed here as Commissary-General for the camp, who is to employ and be answerable for the necessary subordinate persons to issue provisions. Mr. Lowrie, by all accounts, would suit very well, and would undertake it. It is of equal consideration with me who the person is, so one has the sole direction. I beg your Excellency will please to consider how essential it is that no cause of complaint be given the troops in our present circumstances, and that you will interpose your authority with Mr. Trumbull to have this put on a proper footing, and as speedily as possible.

I have the honour to be, sir, your Excellency's most obedient servant,
HUGH MERCER.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL MERCER TO COLONEL DICKINSON.

Perth-Amboy, July 29, 1776.

SIR: We have to-day had a Court of Inquiry of the commanding officers of battalions, to rectify, if possible, the disorders in the management of the Commissary's branch of business. I have written to General Washington. It will give me pleasure to remove the discontents. In the mean time take what method appears to you most likely to answer that purpose.

H. MERCER.

To Col. John Dickinson, commanding at Elizabeth-Town.

[Procured the troops stationed here to be satisfied with their provisions.
J. D.]

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read July 30, 1776. Referred to the Board of War.]

New-York, July 29, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 24th, I received on Saturday evening, and agreeable to your request shall expunge the preamble to the resolution subjecting the property of subjects to the British Crown to forfeiture and confiscation.

Our stock of musket powder is entirely made up in cartridges. I therefore request that Congress will order four or five tons more of that sort to be immediately forwarded, it being not only necessary that we should have more for that purpose, but also some stock to remain in barrels.

Yesterday evening Hutchinson's and Sergeant's regiments from Boston arrived; also two row-galleys from Rhode-Island. I am fearful the troops have not got entirely clear of the small-pox. I shall use every possible precaution to prevent the infection spreading, and for that purpose have ordered them to an encampment separate and detached from the rest.

By Saturday's report from Long-Island camp, five ships, a brig, and five schooners, had got into the Hook. By yesterday's, two ships more and a sloop were standing in: what they are, I have not been able to learn.

I have transmitted a General Return herewith, by which Congress will perceive the whole of our force at the time it was made.

I have enclosed you an account of sundry prizes, which was transmitted to several gentlemen here by Saturday's post. The two last prizes I did not see mentioned in the letters shown me, and I fear the report of the second provision vessel is premature. I was also this minute informed that Captain Biddle had taken a ship with sugars for Britain, and in bringing her in, unfortunately lost her on Fisher's Island.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest esteem, sir, your most obedient servant,
Go. WASHINGTON.

New-York, July 27, 1776.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

New-York, July 29, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: At length I have been able to comply with the first part of a resolution of Congress, relative to a return of the vacancies in the several regiments composing that part of the Army under my immediate command. I thought to have made this return much sooner, but the dispersed situation of our troops, the constant duty they are upon, the difficulty of getting returns when this is the case, especially when those returns are (more than probable) to undergo several corrections, and the variety of important occurrences which have intervened of late to withdraw attention from this matter, will, I hope, be admitted as an excuse, and the delay not ascribed to any disinclination in me to comply with the order; as I shall, while I have the honour to remain in the service of the United States, obey, to the utmost of my power, and to the best of my abilities, all orders of Congress with a scrupulous exactness.

With respect to the latter part of the aforementioned resolution of the 27th of June, I have to observe, that I have handed in the names of such persons as the Field-Officers of the several regiments and their Brigadiers have pointed out, as proper persons to fill these vacancies. I have neither added to nor diminished aught from their choice, unless the following special information, which I considered my indispensable duty to give, should occasion any alterations.

For the Twentieth Regiment, then, (late Arnold's), there were two competitors, to wit: Colonel Durkee, the present Lieutenant-Colonel, who has had charge of the regiment ever since the first establishment of it, and Lieutenant-Colonel Tyler, of Parsons's regiment. The pretensions of both, and a state of the case, I have subjoined to the list of vacancies given in by General Spencer, as I have also done in the case of Colonel Learned to another list exhibited by General Heath. If Learned returns to the regiment, the vacancies stand right; if he should not, I presume the regiment will be given to the Lieutenant-Colonel, William Shepherd, who stands next to Tyler in rank, and not second to him in reputation; this change would, in its consequences, occasion several moves.

There is a third matter, in which I must be more particular, as it is unnoticed elsewhere, and that is, the Lieutenant-Colonel of Wyllly's regiment, Rufus Putnam, acts here as a Chief Engineer, by which means the regiment is totally deprived of his services; and to remove him from that department the publick would sustain a capital injury; for although he is not a man of scientifick knowledge, he is indefatigable in business, and possesses more practical knowledge in the art of Engineering than any other we have in this camp or Army. I would humbly submit it, therefore, to Congress, whether it might not be best to give him (Putnam) the appointment of Engineer with the pay of sixty dollars per month; less than which I do not suppose he would accept, as I have been obliged, in order to encourage him to push the business forward in this our extreme hurry, to give him reasons to believe that his Lieutenant-Colonel's pay would be made equal to this sum.

If this appointment should take place, then it makes a vacancy in Wyllly's regiment, which I understand he is desirous of having filled up by Major Henley, an active and spirited officer, now a Brigade-Major to General Heath.

I am sorry to take up so much of your time as the recital of particular cases and some others require; but there is no avoiding it, unless Congress will be pleased to appoint one or more persons, in whom they can confide, to visit this part of the Army once a month, inspect into it, and fill up the vacancies, as shall appear proper to them upon the spot. This cannot be attended with any great trouble nor much expense, as it is only in the part of the Army under my immediate direction that such a regulation would be necessary; the officers commanding in other departments having, I believe, this power already given them.

I have the honour to enclose a list of the officers of the regiments at this place, and long ago directed the like return to be made from the Northern and Eastern troops, which I hope is complied with. I also make return of the Artillery according to Colonel Knox's report, and of the ordnance and stores, &c., agreeable to the Commissary's return.

I come now to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 20th instant, with several enclosures, relative to a proposal of Mr. Goddard, and beg leave to give it as my opinion, that the introduction of that gentleman into the Army as Lieutenant-Colonel would be attended with endless confusion. I have spoken to Colonel Parsons (who is a very worthy man) upon this subject. I have done more, I have shown him the memorial; in answer to which he says, that in the conversation had between him and Mr. Goddard the latter was told, that unless Lieutenant-Colonel Tyler was provided for, the Major Prentiss advanced to a Lieutenant-Colonelcy in some other regiment, and his eldest Captain (Chapman) not deprived of his expectation of the Majority, his coming in there would give uneasiness; but, nevertheless, if it was the pleasure of Congress to make the appointment, he would do everything in his power to make it palatable.

If all these contingencies were to take place before Mr. Goddard could get into a regiment he had been paving the way to, what prospect can there be of his getting into any other without spreading jealousies as he goes?

With respect to the regiment of Artificers, I have only to observe, that the forming of them into one corps at the time I did, when immediate action was expected, was only intended as a temporary expedient to draw that useful body of near six hundred men into the field under one head, and without confusion. The appointment of officers, therefore, in this instance, was merely nominal, and unattended with expense.

The mode of promotion, whether in a Continental, Colonial, or Regimental line, being a matter of some consideration and delicacy to determine, I thought it expedient to know the sentiments of the General Officers upon the consequences of each, before I offered my own to your Board; and I have the honour to inform you, that it is their unanimous opinion, as it is also mine, from observations on the temper and local attachments of each corps to the members thereof, that regimental promotions would be much the most pleasing. But this, it is thought, had better appear in practice, than come announced as a resolution, and that there ought to be exceptions in favour of extraordinary merit on the one hand, and demerit on the other—the first to be rewarded out of the common course of promotion, whilst the other might stand, and sustain no injury. It is a very difficult matter to step out of the regimental line now without giving much disquietude to the corps in which it happens. Were it, then, to be declared, as the resolution of Congress, that all promotions should go in this way, without some strong qualifying clauses, it would be almost impossible to do it without creating a mutiny. This is the sense of my officers; as also, that the promotions by succession are not meant to extend to non-commissioned officers further than circumstances of good behaviour, &c., may direct.

As the list of vacancies are returned, in consequence of an order of Congress, and would, I doubt not, be referred to your Board, I have sent no duplicate; nor have I written to Congress on the subject. But, that I may not appear inattentive to their commands, I must request the favour of having this letter, or the substance of it, laid before them.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. Board of War, &c., John Adams, Roger Sherman, B. Harrison, James Wilson, and Ed. Rutledge.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL WARD.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 29, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 22d instant I received by post, and note the contents. The company of Artificers you mention are much wanted, and I would have you order them with all convenient despatch. It was necessary the troops, on their march for Ticonderoga, should be furnished with powder and ball. I have written several times about the remaining part of the arms, which you have not noticed in your letters. There is yet a deficiency in the carbines, which are not all arrived; these, with the other arms taken in different vessels, I wish you to send on. I am exceedingly anxious to know if you have forwarded the powder I mentioned, what quantity, and where stored. I must beg your answer to these particulars in your next. The pork taken from Ireland the Commissary-General requests may all be secured for the use of the Army, and desires you will order the Deputy-Commissary, Mr. Miller, to secure it in store till he receives his orders respecting it. Colonels Hutchinson's and Sergeant's regiments have arrived, with one man who has the small-pox, but hope to be able to prevent the spreading of that fatal disorder.

The enemy's fleet are daily arriving; it appears they must have been scattered on their passage, as they come in sometimes single, at others three, four, and so on. I hope our cruisers may pick up some of them.

I am, sir, &c.,
To Major-Gen. Ward, or officer commanding in Boston.

P. S. We are in distressing want of Artillerymen. If you can make any tolerable shift, I must urge your sending on Captain Burbeck with his company as soon as possible.

I am, &c.,

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO DANIEL TILLINGHAST.
New-York, July 29, 1776.

SIR: I have it in command from his Excellency to inform you that your favours of the 15th and 17th came duly to hand, and that the arms, &c., contained in the invoices therewith transmitted, have been safely received into the Ordnance stores.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,
To Daniel Tillinghast, Esq., Continental Agent, Providence.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.
New-York, July 29, 1776.

SIR: I am to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 27th instant, directing me to supply provisions to Mr Cushing and others, who have the care of the Continental ships in New-England. It came just in time for me to send the necessary orders to Mr. Charles Miller, in Boston, per this post, which I have done, and directed him to notice the several gentlemen thereof.

The following is an extract of a letter received per post from Mr. Charles Miller, in Boston, my deputy there, dated 22d July, 1776:

"Yesterday, a large transport came into our eelpot. The fort fired on her. The Captain sent his boat on shore, to know the reason why he was fired at. Our people detained the boat and men, and sent a boat and men of their own on board, and brought her safe to town. She has on board fifteen hundred barrels of beef and pork, a quantity of butter and oatmeal, and several other articles. We have just received advice from Salem, that a small letter-of-marque sloop, fixed out there, and bound to the West-Indies with lumber, fell in with and took a large ship from Jamaica for London. She has on board near eight hundred hogshheads of sugar and rum, and twenty-seven pieces of cannon. On their return for Salem, they fell in with a sloop bound for New-York, loaded with bale goods, which she likewise took. After which, she fell in with and took another small sloop, and all are safe arrived at Salem, Massachusetts."

Our people seem in a good way to make up their losses. I have a letter likewise from Jabez Bowen, Esq., at Providence, informing that their Captain, (Martindale), and part of our Bunker-Hill prisoners, have made their escape from Halifax jail, and got safe home. I hope the Paymaster here and at Albany will both be supplied with money soon, as we are all bankrupt at present.

I am, sir, with esteem and respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Congress of the United States of America, at Philadelphia.

P. S. I have ordered Mr. Miller to secure the eatables on board the transport, for the Continental service; and General Washington has written on the subject to General Ward.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.
Camp on Long-Island, July 29, 1776.

SIR: Colonel Hand reports nine ships, four brigs, and two sloops, at the Hook, that came in last evening. Two brigs came up to the Narrows, and one went down.

I am, with all due respect, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

ALEXANDER McDUGALL, Colonel.

This Regiment is raised during the present contest, the Congress of the Colony having had regard in the nomination of officers to such persons as would probably be able to raise men to recruit the Regiment. The Colonel declines naming persons for Ensigns to fill up the two vacancies.

A Return of the Names and Rank of the Officers of the Nineteenth Regiment, JULY 29, 1776.

The Regiment under my command was raised in the Colony of Connecticut, in July, 1775, to continue in service five months; said service ended December 6, 1775. Said Regiment was ranked in said Colony the Seventh Regiment at the end of said campaign. The Officers set down in the following Roll engaged anew, and raised the Regiment now under my command, to continue until the 1st day of January next, in the Continental service, and is the Nineteenth Regiment in the said service.

PERSONS RECOMMENDED TO FILL THE VACANCIES IN LORD STIRLING'S BRIGADE, JULY, 1776.

Remarks on the Officers and vacant Commissions in the Fourth Regiment, commanded by Col. JOHN NIXON.

There is only one vacancy in this Regiment, which is a Second Lieutenantcy in Captain McFarland's Company; to fill up which, Ensign Dudley Tyler, of the same Company, is recommended; and Sergeant Samuel Frost, of Captain Gleason's Company, to be Ensign to Captain McFarland's Company.

Remarks on the Officers and vacant Commissions in the First Regiment of NEW-YORKERS, in the service of the free UNITED STATES OF NORTH AMERICA.

Lieutenant-Colonel Herman Zedtwitz, a brave good officer; but so disabled by a rupture, occasioned by a fall from a precipice in the attack of Quebec under General Montgomery, that he is unfit for active duty. If some stationary duty, such as the command of some fort, could be allotted him, and another Field-Officer put into this Regiment, it would benefit the service.

Captain Richard Varick. He is Secretary or Aid-de-Camp to General Schuyler, and ought to resign his commission in this Regiment; in which case, William A. Forbes ought to succeed to his Company; Henry Tiebout, Second Lieutenant, should succeed him as First Lieutenant; and Ensign Theodosius Fowler in the room of him as Second Lieutenant.

There will then be three Ensigncies vacant in this Regiment, for which the following are recommended:

Gilbert R. Livingston, who had a warrant in this Regiment, dated February 24, 1776, went volunteer to Canada with Colonel Winds's Regiment, and is now returned to this Regiment.

William Munday, Sergeant in this Regiment.
Hugh McConn, Sergeant in this Regiment.

Remarks on the Officers and vacant Commissions in the Nineteenth Regiment, commanded by Colonel CHARLES WEBB.

In this Regiment are two vacancies of a First Lieutenantcy in Captain Hale's Company; to fill up which, Charles Webb, Second Lieutenant of Captain Leavenworth's Company, is recommended; and John Elderkin, Second Lieutenant of Captain Hale's Company, to be Second Lieutenant of Captain Shipman's Company.

Ensign Selah Benton, of Captain Shipman's Company, to be Second Lieutenant of Captain Leavenworth's Company; and Ensign Charles Whittlesey, of Captain Hull's Company, to be Second Lieutenant of Captain Hale's Company. Two of these changes are made to avoid having the Adjutant and Quartermaster in the same Company.

Benoni Shipman, Sergeant-Major, to be Ensign to Captain Shipman's Company. Thomas Updike Fosdick, Sergeant, to be Ensign to Captain Hull's Company.

Remarks on the Officers and vacant Commissions in the Third Regiment of NEW-YORKERS, in the service of the free UNITED STATES OF NORTH AMERICA.

Major , vacant.
Captain Andrew Billings, eldest Captain in this Regiment, has done the duty of Major for several months past, served as a Captain last campaign with the reputation of a good officer, is recommended to fill this vacancy; and Adjutant Benjamin Pelton, who served as a Lieutenant in the First Regiment last year, was at the taking of St. John's, and in the attack of Quebec under General Montgomery, returned from thence in May, too late for any other commission, and therefore accepted the Adjutancy on the promise of the first vacant Company,—he is recommended to succeed Captain Billings.

Lieutenant Jonathan Hallet is recommended to be Adjutant in the room of Benjamin Pelton.

RECAPITULATION OF THE COMMISSIONS RECOMMENDED TO BE ISSUED.

For Colonel NIXON's Regiment.
Ensign Dudley Tyler to be Second Lieutenant in Captain McFarland's Company.
Sergeant Samuel Frost to be Ensign in the same Company.
Colonel WEBB's Regiment.

Second Lieutenant Charles Webb to be First Lieutenant in Captain Hale's Company.
Second Lieutenant John Elderkin to be Second Lieutenant in Captain Shipman's.

Ensign Selah Benton, of Captain Shipman's Company, to be Second Lieutenant of Captain Leavenworth's Company.

Ensign Charles Whittlesey to be Second Lieutenant in Captain Hale's Company.

Sergeant-Major Benoni Shipman to be Ensign in Captain Shipman's Company.

Sergeant Thomas Updike Fosdick to be Ensign in Captain Hull's Company.

Colonel McDougall's Regiment.
First Lieutenant William A. Forbes to be Captain, in the room of Captain Varick.
Second Lieutenant Henry Tiebout to be First Lieutenant in Captain Forbes's Company. Ensign Theodosius Fowler to be Second Lieutenant in ditto.
Gilbert R. Livingston to be Ensign in Captain Johnson's Company. William Munday to be Ensign in Captain Ledyard's Company. Hugh McConnell to be Ensign in Captain Horton's Company.

Colonel RITZEMA's Regiment.

Captain Andrew Billings to be Major.

Adjutant Benjamin Pelton to be Captain, in the room of Captain Billings, promoted.

Lieutenant Jonathan Hallet to be Adjutant.

The foregoing recommendations fixed with the Field-Officers of the respective Regiments.

STIRLING, Brigadier-General.

July 22, 1776.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER DATED NEW-YORK, JULY 29, 1776.

Yesterday one of our galleys, mounting one thirty-two pounder in her bow, and the other a New-London galley, mounting two twelve-pounders in her stern, and two eighteen in her bow, went up the North River to Spiten Devil, or King's-Bridge Creek, with an intent to lay there till the ships come down the river. Should that be the case, I make no doubt we shall be able to give a good account of them.

This moment arrived a sloop, Captain Hawkins, from Rhode-Island, which gives the disagreeable news of Captain Biddle's losing his prize, the ship Nathaniel and Elizabeth, Captain Hoar, from Jamaica, with three hundred hogsheads of sugar and one hundred hogsheads of rum, &c., at Fisher's Island reef, just entering the Sound. Captain Hawkins says he saw the ship on the rocks last Friday, and saw one vessel take up an iron-bound cask, which he took to be a hogshead of rum. There was a great number of people on board, and several vessels alongside; and her masts were cut away. He does not know if any of the cargo is saved or not.

New-York, July 29, 1776.

The fourth man in the Counties of King's, Queen's, and Suffolk, on Long-Island, and Westchester, Dutchess, Orange, and Ulster, were last week ordered to hold themselves in readiness to march at a moment's warning; indeed, many of them are gone to their proper stations already.

An old gentleman, between sixty and seventy, now does duty in the Militia near Newark, in New-Jersey, is the father of about fifteen children now alive, nine of whom are in the Continental Army, from captains to privates.

Several cannon were fired last Thursday afternoon, from our Battery at Amboy, at a number of boats from Staten-Island, bound to Sandy-Hook, supposed to join part of the Ministerial Fleet lying there. This brought on a cannonade from the encampment of the Regulars near Billop's Point, on the Island, which continued very hot on both sides for near an hour. The boats got clear, but many of the regulars were seen to fall, and several were carried off, supposed to be wounded. On our side, a soldier belonging to one of the Philadelphia battalions was killed, and one wounded; a horse in a carriage had his head shot off in the street, and some damage was done the houses.

General Hospital, at New-York, July 29, 1776.

Wanted immediately in the General Hospital, a number of women, who can be recommended for their honesty, to act in the capacity of Nurses; and a number of faithful men for the same purpose. Any who incline entering the service in this way, will meet with good encouragement, by making application to the Quartermaster of the Hospital at King's College, New-York. Wanted also for the use of said Hospital a large quantity of dry herbs, for baths, fomentations, &c., &c., &c., particularly balm, hyssop, wormwood, and mallows, for which a good price will be given; and also old linen for the use of the sick and wounded soldiery. The good people of the neighbouring towns, and even those who live more remote from this city, by carefully collecting and curing quantities of useful herbs, will greatly promote the good of the Army, and considerably benefit themselves. From principles of benevolence and humanity, it is presumed that many will attend to this matter, (which is really of consequence,) and cheerfully contribute to the relief of their sick and wounded brethren, though from any pecuniary consideration they might neglect, as having the appearance of small importance. Those who have already collected any considerable parcel of herbs or rags, may find a ready sale, by applying at the above-mentioned place to

THOMAS CARNES,

Steward and Quartermaster to the General Hospital.

ORANGE COUNTY (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE.

Clark's Town, July 29, 1776.

In County Committee on the South side of the Mountains, in the County of Orange:

Whereas Dennis Snyder, Jesse Snyder, William Snyder, and Samuel Snyder, all living at or near a place commonly called Snyder's or Dobbs's Ferry, on the west side of Hudson's River, in the County of Orange, and State of New-York, have refused to sign any or either of the Associations that have been put forth, or recommended by our honourable Convention; and as the abovesaid persons are greatly suspected of carrying on a treasonable correspondence with our unnatural enemies, or ships-of-war, belonging to the King of Great Britain, lying in the abovesaid river, by the great opportunity afforded them in the privilege they have by keeping ferry, knowing the abovesaid persons to be inveterate enemies to the common States of America:

Therefore, Resolved, That the above Dennis Snyder, Jesse Snyder, William Snyder, and Samuel Snyder, are hereby forewarned not to keep ferry, or employ any other person to ferry in their room, or employ a craft on the abovesaid river, upon any pretence whatsoever; and all other persons are hereby forewarned against having any correspondence with the abovesaid Snydens, or any other person or persons whatsoever, that are in any degree enemies to the liberties of America.

And whereas John Snyder is advertised in the publick Gazette as pilot of the ships-of-war up the abovesaid river, greatly to the damage of the said John Snyder: It is hereby requested, that the said Printer will insert Robert Snyder, instead of John Snyder, who has always appeared to be a warm friend to the common cause of America.

Per order of the Committee:

JOHN COE, Deputy Chairman.

Attested:

JOHN COLEMAN, Secretary.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

German-Flats, July 29, 1776.

SIR: Lieutenant Welch has delivered me your and General Arnold's letters of the 22d instant, with the Indian articles mentioned in a list enclosed in the latter.

General Arnold writes me that the greater part was already delivered to the Army before my letter came to hand. I know they were greatly wanted there. We shall be greatly distressed for a supply for the Indians; something more than eleven hundred are already arrived, and we this day expect between four and five hundred more.

When there is no fresh or any other beef, there is no alternative left, and the pork must be used, as the Army will not live on bread alone; but I should hope that you received a supply of beef soon after the date of your letter, from what Mr. Livingston observes in his to you.

On the subject of the gondolas I wrote you yesterday. If the carpenters had not arrived at Skenesborough until the 1st day of November, or indeed never, it would not have been my fault. Months are elapsed since my first application, and my last was made immediately after, if not before, the retreat of the Army from Canada. What could I do more? I could not create them.

Although I remained only part of Friday and Saturday at Albany, when I returned from Crown-Point, I nevertheless thought of the Army letters, and requested the Postmaster to send them all up to you, with a blank commission for a Postmaster at Ticonderoga, to be filled up by you. This he promised me would be immediately done. If he has not fulfilled his promise, I am sorry for it. I shall remind him of it. If you or the Army conceive that any letters are stopped at Albany by my order, you are mistaken. I am not allowed to interfere in the post office. Colonel Gansevoort is not ordered to intercept any letters; at least neither he nor any other person has such an order from me. I should imagine if he took your letter from the messenger that brought it to Fort George, it was in order to expedite it; and if he did do that, I cannot possibly discover any criminal intention in it. It is his duty to forward all letters on publick business with all possible despatch: he has my orders so to do. If he should, therefore, stop any letters going to or from the Army, he would be culpable, and merit punishment.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable Major-General Gates.

GENERAL GATES TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read August 8, 1776.]

Tyonderoga, July 29, 1776.

SIR: I am but just now honoured with the receipt of your letter of the 8th instant, with the resolves of Congress enclosed. As their resolves will ever be held sacred by me, they may be assured of my implicit obedience to them. I have this day written to General Schuyler, to assure him of my entire satisfaction and acquiescence in the resolves of Congress, and of my unalterable resolution to obey his commands. I am confident we shall, as the Congress wish, go hand in hand to promote the publick service. Affairs here begin to wear a less gloomy aspect. The carpenters are all got to Skenesborough from the different Colonies, and our fleet is increasing rapidly, as it ought. General Arnold, ever active, and anxious to serve his country, is just returned from Skenesborough, where he has been to give life and spirit to our dock-yard.

Two schooners and a sloop will be at Crown-Point this evening, well manned and armed; four gondolas will follow in a day or two. When what we have finished get to Crown-Point, we shall have as many armed vessels there as will carry fifty-two pieces of cannon, with all the swivels we have to mount. More swivels are written for to New-York, and we shall collect all the heavy cannon we can from Albany and the posts upon the communication thither. I wish they may be sufficient. More should be sent could they be procured. The Militia begin to come to Skenesborough, from whence I do not propose to remove them, until all danger of the small-pox is far removed from us. General Waterbury remains at Skenesborough, and has my orders to exert his utmost vigilance and authority to prevent that pestilence from spreading again amongst us.

The Director of the Hospital complains heavily of a want of medicines. I have, at his urgent request, ordered him to New-York to get a supply.

General Arnold (who is perfectly skilled in maritime affairs) has most nobly undertaken to command our fleet upon the Lake. With infinite satisfaction, I have committed the whole of that department to his care, convinced he will thereby add to that brilliant reputation he has so deservedly acquired.

I suppose General Sullivan, who left us the 12th instant, has made a report to the Congress of the state of this Army upon his leaving it.

Brigadier Baron de Woedtke went, by my permission, to the General Hospital, at Lake George, about a fortnight ago. His health was indeed so much impaired, that I doubt his recovery. In the mean time, I have appointed the three eldest Colonels to command brigades—Colonel Stark, Colonel Reed, and Colonel St. Clair. Should the conduct of these gentlemen be such as to merit approbation, (of which I have not the least doubt,) I am confident the Congress will show them some honourable mark of esteem.

Independence has been received by this Army with that applause that the great benefit America will receive thereby, so justly claims.

A French gentleman is just got here from Canada, by the way of Cohos. He left Canada three weeks ago. He says General Carleton has summoned all the Canadians to be at St. John's the last of August, to go with his Army of ten thousand men to drive the Rebels before them like sheep, and to meet the Grand Army at Albany. Perhaps this may prove a vain boast.

Enclosed is a letter from General Washington to me, of the 19th instant, with my answer. I beg you, sir, and the gentlemen of the Congress, will believe, that if the Generals in this department do not act with the same ability and have not the same good fortune, that they will not be excelled in zeal or military virtue by any of your officers, however dignified or distinguished.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esquire.

New-York, July 19, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I expected ere this to have heard from you. As I have not, I will open the correspondence, by expressing my exceeding great concern on account of the determination of your Board of General Officers, to retreat from Crown-Point to Ticonderoga, assigning (contrary to the opinion of all your Field-Officers) for reason, that the former place is not tenable with your present force, or the force expected. My concern arises from information, and a firm belief, that your relinquishing Crown-Point is, in its consequences, a relinquishment of the Lakes, and all the advantages to be derived therefrom; for it does not admit of a doubt but that the enemy will possess themselves, if possible, of that pass (which is a key to all these Colonies) the moment you leave it, and thereby confine your vessels to the narrow part of the Lake in front of that post; or, by having them in the rear of it, cut off all kind of supplies from, and intercourse between, your camp and them; securing by this means a free and uninterrupted passage into the three New-England Governments, for invasion thereof. Nothing but a belief that you have actually removed the Army from the Point to Ticonderoga and demolished the works at the former, and the fear of creating dissensions and encouraging a spirit of remonstrating against the conduct of superior officers by inferiors, have prevented me, by advice of the General Officers here, from directing the post at Crown-Point to be held till Congress should decide upon the propriety of its evacuation. As the case stands, I can give no order in the matter, lest between two opinions, neither of the places are put into such a posture of defence as to resist an advancing enemy. I must, however, express my sorrow at the resolution of your Council, and wish that it had never happened, as everybody who speaks of it also does, and that the measure could yet be changed with propriety.

We have the enemy full in view of us, but their operations are to be suspended till the reinforcement hourly expected arrives, when I suppose there will be pretty warm work. Lord Howe is arrived. He and the General, his brother, are appointed Commissioners to dispense pardons to repenting sinners. My compliments to the gentlemen with you of my acquaintance.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Gates.

Ticonderoga, July 29, 1776.

SIR: General Schuyler, who left us the 10th instant, promised me to give your Excellency a very particular account of the state of the Northern Army; I conclude he has done it, but it might not have reached your hands when the post left New-York the 19th instant. Your Excellency's letter of that date is now before me. The Board of General Officers mentioned by your Excellency were assembled by order of General Schuyler, who presided at it. They were unanimous in adopting his sentiments; which were, in my opinion, founded in reason and good sense. As to the Field-Officers being all of a contrary opinion, whoever gave your Excellency that intelligence was the author of an assertion contrary to fact. Two Field-Officers did object to it, but those whose judgment and experience entitle them to be the best attended to, acquiesced in the opinion of the General Officers. Colonel St. Clair and Colonel De Haas, in particular, men whose long service and distinguished characters deservedly give their opinion a preference, your Excellency's Council could not see, nor did not know the circumstances of this Army, when they took upon them to decide that the General Officers here had acted reprehensibly.

My letter to your Excellency of the 16th instant too plainly describes the deplorable state to which death, defeats, desertion, and disease, had most unhappily reduced the Northern Army. Your Excellency speaks of works to be destroyed at Crown-Point. Time and the bad construction of those works had completely effected that business long before General Schuyler came with me to Crown-Point. The ramparts are tumbled down, the casemates are fallen in, the barracks burnt, and the whole so perfect a ruin, that it would take five times the number of our Army, for several summers, to put it in defensible repair.

Your Excellency also mentions the troops expected to reinforce this Army. It would be to the last degree improper to order those troops to Crown-Point, or even hither, until obliged by the most pressing emergency; as that would only be heaping one hospital upon another. Those troops, when they arrive, are all ordered to halt at Skenesborough. Everything about this Army is infected with the pestilence: the clothes, the blankets, the air, and the ground they walk upon. To put this evil from us, a General Hospital is established at Fort George, where there are now between two and three thousand sick, and where every infected person is immediately sent; but this care and caution has not yet effectually destroyed the disease here; it is, notwithstanding, continually breaking out.

General Schuyler assures me he has written to the Eastern Governments, and acquainted them with the precautions taken to purify the Army, and directed the reinforcements still expected to halt at Skenesborough. General Arnold is just returned from thence, where he has been exerting his utmost diligence in forwarding the vessels constructing there. Our little fleet already built is equipping under his direction, with all the industry his activity and good example can inspire. As fast as they are fitted, they are sent to Crown-Point, where the Sixth Battalion of the Pennsylvanians, commanded by Lieut. Colonel Hartley, is posted. Three hundred men and officers have been draughted from the corps here to man the vessels: one-half seamen, the other to act as marines. As soon as all the vessels and gondolas are equipped, General Arnold has offered to go to Crown-Point and take the command of them. This is exceedingly pleasing to me, as he has a perfect knowledge in maritime affairs, and is, besides, a most deserving and gallant officer. The command of the water is of the last importance; for, should the enemy ever get a naval force superior to ours upon the Lake, the command thereof is theirs, let who will possess Crown-Point. As to their penetrating the Eastern Governments, they may attempt that by Onion River, which empties itself into Missisquoi Bay, sixty miles below Crown-Point.

I must now take the liberty to animadvert a little upon the unprecedented behaviour of the members of your Council to their compeers in this department. They, sir, having every ample supply at hand, make no allowance for the misfortunes and wants of this Army, nor for the delay and difficulty that attend the procuring everything necessary here. Had we a healthy Army, four times the number of the enemy, our magazines full, our artillery complete, stores of every kind in profuse abundance, with vast and populous Towns and Counties close at hand to supply our wants, your Excellency would hear no complaints from this Army; and the members of your Council, our brethren and compeers, would have as little reason then, as they have now, to censure the conduct of those who are in nothing inferior to themselves.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. Enclosed is a letter I received this morning from the Director of the Hospital at Fort George. I must beg your Excellency will give Doctor Morgan your directions to relieve the pressing wants which Doctor Stringer complains of.

Fort George, July 24, 1776.

SIR: My daughter's illness occasioned my being absent from this post a few days; and on my return yesterday evening I found Major Stewart's letter of the 18th, also one from Colonel Trumbull of the same date, requesting a return of the sick, &c., who I find are greatly increased, insomuch that we are in the utmost distress for both assistants and medicines; which events I foresaw might happen, and took the timely precaution of representing it to General Schuyler so early as the 25th of October last, and to General Washington the 10th of May, together with my want of power, which (by the resolve of Congress, a copy whereof is here enclosed) is limited in so positive terms, as to render me incapable either to relieve or guard against them by any other method. Both my letters, the Generals have informed me, were sent to Congress; notwithstanding which, the matter rests as it did.

At the same time that I wrote to General Washington, I requested an augmentation of the Hospital Surgeons and Mates, and sent a list for such a supply of medicines as I thought necessary for the campaign; and, from a letter I received from Mr. Giles, Apothecary-General, before I departed, I expected the medicines to be forwarded immediately; but, to my great mortification, except a few that Dr. Potts brought with him, none are arrived, not even a quantity that the Doctor informed me were to come from Philadelphia, under the care of Mr. McHenry. What we are to do, under these shocking circumstances, I know not; I say shocking, because nothing can appear more so than our present situation—men dying for want of assistance that we are not empowered to give. Besides a want of Surgeons, I am not furnished with Clerks or Stewards; one Clerk, that I took upon myself to appoint, with General Schuyler's concurrence, is not now capable of going through the business he is obliged to take charge of. As our men's lives are thus wasted, would it be improper (as writing answers no end) that I should leave the care of the sick to Dr. Potts, and go to York myself, and see the medicines forthwith forwarded by land, until they can be safely conveyed by water, and from thence wait on Congress in person, lay our situation before them, and endeavour to have my powers enlarged, or at least get their consent to provide the number of assistants that are requisite? If, sir, you should approve of such a step, I should be much obliged to you for a letter enforcing the necessity of the application. I should not, at this time of distress, hesitate to engage Surgeons, had not General Schuyler received an answer in the winter to the purport of my letter above mentioned, which was contained in a fresh resolve, "that the resolve (now enclosed) was sufficient."

I must beg, sir, that you will not impute it to neglect that you have not received returns of the sick before this time, but let the above relation account for it. Regularity and a strict adherence to duty are what I much admire, and was uneasy when I found we were still so much backward as not to be able to send you a return, a thing that I know, from long service, ought to be done weekly.

Mr. Potts wrote this morning respecting Mr. Mouse, or the gentleman sent to be examined for the Surgeoncy of the Navy. As he will not answer, you will readily conceive that it will be adding to our distresses to part with any of our gentlemen for that purpose; neither do I suppose that any place on this side of York can furnish a person properly qualified; and as it is probable the Navy will be much augmented, I think a couple of Mates, at least, would be necessary.

Doctor Potts informed me that there were twenty half-chests of medicines, already put up at York, to be sent off by the first sloop, for ten battalions in this department. I made at Albany the strictest inquiry about them, and find they are not come. Whence such a dilatoriness arises, I cannot account; but there certainly is a remissness somewhere that ought to be removed, if possible.

Just now Lieutenant Diffendorff arrived, and acquaints us that a large number of sick are coming, in addition to what we already have, (about fifteen hundred.) In the name of God, what shall we do with them all, my dear General?

Mr. Gansevoort, brother to Colonel Gansevoort, and member of the New-York Convention, a gentleman of noted character, arrived at Albany from York, on Saturday last, and tells me that it is beyond a doubt that a French fleet of fifty ships of force, and fifteen thousand troops, are actually on their way for Quebeck; that it was reported, that it was in consequence of the receipt of our Ambassador's letter from France, that Independence was so suddenly declared; for which event's taking place, he was obliged to pledge the faith and honour of the Colonies, so soon as his letter should arrive, or he could not have obtained the armament. How will George like this, and what will Burgoyne now say? No elbow room. They are effectually to prevent succours from getting up, and to spare ships to secure those of our enemy and the country.

The privateers Schuyler and Montgomery took a store-ship last week; two Jamaica-men are also taken. One hundred thousand horned cattle, besides a vast number of hogs and sheep, are driven off Long-Island.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

SAM. STRINGER.

To the Hon. Major-General Gates, Ticonderoga.

P. S. We have upwards of fifty thousand men in and about York, so far as Anthony's Nose, on both sides the river. I must write you something more. Lord Howe is certainly arrived, with three ships; the rest behind. He sent a letter "To George Washington, Esq.," which was not received. General Washington sent him the Declaration of Independence. The next day he received a letter directed to "His Excellency, &c., &c., Commander-in-Chief of the United Colonies;" and it is said expressed a concern that Independence was so suddenly declared; that it was probable there might have been an accommodation, his powers being very extensive. Only two frigates and three tenders are above the town as yet, and lie nearly opposite Peekskill. The man that piloted them was a Tory, and on board the Asia all winter. He landed at night, in order to go to his family, who lived a little distance from the river, and the inhabitants got knowledge of it, seized him, and tore him into atoms.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Ticonderoga, July 10, 1776.

(Parole, Washington.)(Countersign, New-York.)

The boats that came with Colonel St. Clair's Regiment to be returned to Crown-Point as soon as possible. Colonel St. Clair will order a proper detachment from his corps to execute this order.

Colonel St. Clair's, Colonel De Haas's, Colonel Wayne's, and Colonel Irvine's Regiments, are to hold themselves in readiness to encamp upon the Heights opposite to the old redoubt. As soon as the Chief Engineer can get the road up the hill finished, those Regiments will be ordered to remove.

Two Captains, six Subalterns, eight Sergeants, eight Corporals, two Drums, and one hundred and ninety-two Privates, to parade to-morrow morning, at eight o'clock, to go on fatigue, under the direction of Lieutenant-Colonel Baldwin, Chief Engineer. This party to get their breakfast before they come to the parade, and to take with them a day's provision, ready dressed.

Head-Quarters, July 11, 1776.

(Parole, Boston.)(Countersign, Warren.)

Captain Williams, with all the blacksmiths that came with him from Crown-Point, to proceed as soon as possible to Skenesborough. Lieutenant Bowman and the armourers to remain at Ticonderoga. Lieutenant Beal, with the house-carpenters, and Mr. Noah Nichols, with the wheelwrights, are to remain at Ticonderoga, under the direction of Colonel Baldwin, Chief Engineer. Mr. Richard Tillock, with the thirteen ship-carpenters under his direction, are to proceed immediately to Skenesborough. Lieutenant Curtis, with his gang of ship-carpenters, are to remain at Ticonderoga, under the direction of Commodore Wynkoop.

The same fatigue party as was directed by yesterday's orders, to parade to-morrow morning at the same hour, and under the same directions and regulation as therein expressed. This party to be furnished every morning by the Pennsylvania Regiments, until further orders.

A Return of each Corps to be delivered to Colonel Trumbull to-morrow morning at ten o'clock, that the duty may be regulated.

The Commanding Officer of the Pennsylvania Regiments to send a scouting party of one Subaltern, one Sergeant, and twenty men every morning, half an hour before day, who are carefully to examine the ground in the front of the old French lines and the Isthmus between the Bridge and the side of the Lake to the northeast of the Fort. The officer to report to the General upon his return.

Head-Quarters, July 12, 1776.

(Parole, Philadelphia.)(Countersign, Franklin.)

Head-Quarters, July 13, 1776.

(Parole, Williamsburgh.)(Countersign, Virginia.)

One woman from each Company of each of the Pennsylvania Battalions now at this post, to be draughted as soon as possible, and sent to the General Hospital at Fort George to nurse the sick. They will have the customary allowance of provision, &c., from Doctor Stringer, Director of the Hospital there.

Captain Stevens, of the Artillery, will encamp with his Company near the Landing on the east side of the Lake, where all the artillery, stores, &c., are to be landed.

When the batteaus are unloaded, Captain Stevens will order them all to be carefully returned, and made fast in the Bay, to the south of the old Fort.

Lieutenant-Colonel Baldwin will draw provision twice a week for all the Artificers, and take the whole under his direction.

Head-Quarters, July 14, 1776.

(Parole, Hartford.)(Countersign, Deane.)

Captain Mayhew to send fifty of the seamen he brought yesterday from Crown-Point, under proper officers, to bale out the batteaus, and prepare them fit to be returned to-morrow morning to Crown-Point.

The Commanding Officer of the Artillery to be indefatigable in landing the cannon and artillery stores at the point directed in yesterday's orders, that the batteaus may be returned.

The Chief Engineer to order the Artificers to get proper necessities made over the rock opposite their huts, that the new encampment may be preserved clean against the troops' arrival.

Captain Stevens will do the same in regard to his people.

Lieutenant John Williamson, of the Fourth Pennsylvania Battalion, is appointed Batteau Master, and is to be obeyed as such.

Head-Quarters, July 15, 1776.

(Parole, Maryland.)(Countersign, Annapolis.)

The Batteau Master, Lieutenant Williamson, is to see forty batteaus put in proper order to be returned to Crown-Point as soon as possible.

Colonel Maxwell and Colonel Ogden will each of them order one Captain, two Sergeants, and sixty men, to parade at one o'clock, to take forty batteaus to Crown-Point.

The Pennsylvania Regiments to encamp upon the new ground to-morrow. Colonel St. Clair, with the assistance of Colonel Wayne, will this morning mark out the ground for their encampment.

The General, anxious to preserve the new Camp perfectly clean and free from infection, recommends it in the strongest manner to the Commanding Officers of Regiments to have their necessities fixed upon the brink of the precipices, or in such places as are least obnoxious. If there is a necessity of having any dug in the front of the Regiments, care must be taken to have them frequently covered, and no person to be suffered to ease himself in any other part of the encampment.

The sick of Colonel Winds's and Colonel Maxwell's Regiments to be immediately sent to Fort George.

Head-Quarters, July 16, 1776.

(Parole, Carolina.)(Countersign, Lee.)

The Court of Inquiry that have set upon Colonel Bedel, to sit again as soon as possible.

One Field-Officer, two Captains, eight Sergeants, eight Corporals, four Drums and Fifes, and one hundred and twenty Privates, to mount guard to-morrow at troop-beating. The Field-Officer will receive his orders from the General where to post his guard.

The ammunition wanted to complete the Riflemen, will be ordered to be delivered as soon as the Commanding Officers of the Regiments make a return of the deficiency.

Head-Quarters, July 17, 1776.

(Parole, Yark.)(Countersign, Saville.)

The Commanding Officer of Artillery is immediately to be provided with a proper place for a Laboratory, and another for casting musket-ball and buck-shot.

The Commanding Officers of Regiments, and their Surgeons, are to be answerable that the General is immediately acquainted with any persons who are seized with the infection of the small-pox, that they may be immediately removed to Lake George.

The state of the men's ammunition to be immediately examined, and the deficiencies reported. The troops will, as soon as possible, be completed to as many rounds as the pouches and cartridge-boxes they are possessed of will hold. A quantity of spare cartridges will always be ready in store, to furnish an immediate supply when more is wanted.

Head-Quarters, July 18, 1776.

(Parole, Hampton.)(Countersign, Harrison.)

Ensign Thomas Ryerson, of Colonel Maxwell's Regiment, is appointed a Second Lieutenant in the said Regiment, in the room of Lieutenant John Higgins, deceased.

The forty batteaus ordered for Crown-Point to set out immediately. The Commissary will send what flour is wanted for that Post.

As Colonel Reed and some of the Members of the General Court-Martial ordered at Crown-Point are absent, or gone with the sick to Lake George, that Court-Martial is dissolved.

A General Court-Martial to sit to-morrow morning, at ten o'clock, for the trial of Colonel Hazen, and such prisoners as shall be brought before them. The Court to be composed of the thirteen eldest Field-Officers in this Camp: that is, the five eldest Colonels, the four eldest Lieutenant-Colonels, and the four eldest Majors. All evidences and persons concerned to attend the Court.

Captain Crafts's Company, of Colonel Greaton's Regiment, to be detached to make a quantity of musket-cartridges in the Laboratory assigned for that purpose. The Regiment to be allowed in the roll of duty for this Company.

Colonel John Trumbull is appointed Deputy Adjutant-General to the Army. He is to be obeyed as such.

For the Court-Martial: Colonel Poor, President; Members: Colonels: Bond, Maxwell, Paterson, De Haas; Lieutenant-Colonels: Gilman, Poor, Johnston, Shreve; Majors: Cilley, Loring, Morris, Haussegger. Captain Scott to act as Judge Advocate.

Head-Quarters, July 19, 1776.

(Parole, Wilmington.)(Countersign, Richmond.)

The weather having been so very wet and stormy all last night, the Commissary is to issue one gill of rum to every non-commissioned officer and soldier now in camp.

The Chief Engineer is to get all the wood-axes helved and ground immediately, that they may be ready for use, when the weather clears up.

As soon as the General Court-Martial now sitting have finished the trial of Colonel Hazen, they are to proceed to try Colonel Bedel and Major Butterfield.

A Return of each Regiment to be given to the Deputy Adjutant-General to-morrow morning, at eleven o'clock. Colonel Trumbull will give two blank Returns to each Adjutant, which are to be filled up, one for the General, and the other for the Colonel of the Regiment. The Commanding Officer of each Regiment, the Commanding Officer of the Artillery, and the Chief Engineer for the Artificers, will regularly every Saturday, at orderly time, send their Returns to the Deputy Adjutant-General.

Head-Quarters, July 20, 1776.

(Parole, Falmouth.)(Countersign, Norfolk.)

The men who were draughted from the several Corps at Crown-Point, to serve with Captain Mayhew, on board the Continental armed vessels, are to parade at one o'clock, by the General's Quarters.

Whereas a scandalous and most irregular custom prevails among the soldiery, of firing arms in and near the Camps; any non-commissioned officer or soldier who shall hereafter be detected firing, without order, must be sent to the Commanding Officer of the Regiment to which such delinquent belongs, who is hereby ordered to have the prisoner immediately stripped, and punished with twenty lashes.

A Return of the Names, Regiments, and Companies, of the Ship-Carpenters in this Army, to be delivered to the Deputy Adjutant-General, as soon as possible.

The Army is to be immediately Brigaded in the following manner: the First Brigade, commanded by Brigadier-General Arnold, to consist of Bond's, Greaton's, Burrell's, and Porter's Regiments; the Second Brigade, commanded by Colonel Reed, to consist of Reed's, Poor's, Paterson's, and Bedel's Regiments; the Third Brigade, commanded by Colonel Stark, to consist of Stark's, Maxwell's, Winds's, and Wynkoop's Regiments; the Fourth Brigade, commanded by Colonel St. Clair, to consist of St. Clair's, De Haas's, Wayne's, and Irvine's Regiments.

Brigade-Major to the First Brigade, Stoddard; to the Second, Rice; to the Third, Wilkinson; to the Fourth, Scull.

Head-Quarters, July 21, 1776.

(Countersign, Providence.)(Parole, Charlestown.)

As the Chief Engineer will have a sufficient number of felling axes ready to employ a large body of men to-morrow, the General desires the Commanding Officers of the three eldest Brigades will send as many men as can be sent from those off duty, to clear the ground for the encampment of those Brigades.

Captain Romans's Company will encamp with the Fourth Brigade, commanded by Colonel St. Clair. Major Badlam will order two twelve and two four-pounders from the guns already mounted in the fort, to be placed in the old French lines, under the care and command of Captain Romans. Colonel St. Clair will order the ground to be marked for Captain Romans's Company.

The General recommends it to Colonel St. Clair to get platforms laid, as soon as possible, for the guns ordered to his Brigade.

The Commanding Officer of each Brigade will be punctual in reporting, and in obliging the Colonels and Commanding Officers of Regiments to report to him, the persons who are infected with the small-pox.

After Orders, July 21, 1776.—The Regiment of Canadians, with all the Canadian families, now at Ticonderoga, to march to-morrow morning, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Antil, for Albany.

Ticonderoga, July 22, 1776.

(Countersign, Alexandria.)(Parole, St. Eustatia.)

The Commissary will deliver all the soap he has in store in the following proportions to each Regiment:

To Col. Reed's47 ounces.	To Col. Wynkoop's ...226 ounces.
Col. Stark's187 "	Col. Paterson's ...303 "
Col. Maxwell's ...294 "	Col. Burrell's ...213 "
Col. Winds's ...306 "	Col. Porter's233 "
Col. Bond's294 "	Col. Bedel's254 "
Col. Poor's371 "	The Companies of
Col. Greaton's ...297 "	Artillery.....144 "
Col. St. Clair's ...415 "	The Carpenters...144 "
Col. De Haas's ...555 "	The Smiths.....144 "
Col. Wayne's ...709 "	The Armourers...144 "
Col. Irvine's577 "

The Chief Engineer, Colonel Baldwin, will order that the soap delivered to the Artificers be delivered properly between them.

The three Brigades, commanded by General Arnold, Colonel Reed, and Colonel Stark, will encamp as soon as possible upon the ground allotted them upon the Heights.

Colonel St. Clair's Brigade to furnish a guard of a Corporal and six men daily, to guard the batteaus. The Corporal will receive his orders from Lieutenant Williamson, Batteau Master.

Head-Quarters, July 23, 1776.

(Countersign, Monckton.)(Parole, Martinico.)

Whereas it is of the utmost consequence that a well-regulated body of Seamen and Marines should be immediately draughted from the several Brigades of this Army, to the end that the Army of the United States may continue to support their naval superiority and command of the waters of Lake Champlain; and for the encouragement of such seamen and marines as shall be so draughted for the important purpose aforesaid, the honourable the Congress of the United States have ordered each non-commissioned officer, seaman, and marine, while employed in the service aforesaid, an additional pay of 8s., lawful money, per month, over and above the pay they are entitled to receive in the corps to which they respectively belong.

The following is the detail for the Non-Commissioned Officers, Seamen, and Marines, to be draughted from each Brigade. They are to parade to-morrow morning at eight o'clock, and immediately to be delivered to the Officers appointed to command them. Each Officer will keep a roll of their names, Regiments, and Companies, that their pay-abstracts may be regularly made up and adjusted once a month.

Detail for the Seamen and Marines.

First Brigade.....6 Sergeants, 4 Corporals, 4 Drummers, 64 Privates.
Second Brigade....6.....4.....4.....62 "
Third Brigade....6.....2.....2.....60 "
Fourth Brigade...10.....6.....6.....102 "

Total.....28 Serg'ts, 16 Corp'als, 16 Drum'ers, 288 Privates.

Colonel Poor's Regiment is immediately to be removed into the Third Brigade, commanded by Colonel Stark; and Colonel Wynkoop's Regiment into the Second Brigade, commanded by Colonel Reed.

The Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Reed was President, is dissolved.

Samuel Tenners, of Captain Trow's Company, Colonel Bond's Regiment, and William Prudox, Fifer in Captain Egery's Company, the same Regiment, ropemakers, are to be immediately sent to the Captain of the Sloop, to be employed by him. They will receive the same additional pay as the other artificers.

A Court of Inquiry to sit to-morrow morning, ten o'clock, to inquire into the conduct of Captain Romans, of the Train of Artillery, in a dispute between him and his Lieutenant.

Colonel Wayne, President. Members: Lieutenant-Colonel Irvine and Major Fuller.

Head-Quarters, July 24, 1776.

(Parole, Havana.)

(Countersign, Putnam.)

The Commissary to issue one day's fresh provisions to the Troops now here, to-morrow morning, at eleven o'clock.

The Captains of the armed vessels and gondolas to send this evening a signed return to the Deputy Adjutant-General, of the ammunition and military stores wanted for each vessel and gondola.

Head-Quarters, July 25, 1776.

(Parole, The Congress.)

(Countersign, Independence.)

Mr. John Shreve is appointed an Ensign in Captain Brearley's Company, of Colonel Maxwell's Regiment. He is to be obeyed as such.

Head-Quarters, July 26, 1776.

(Parole, Lancaster.)

(Countersign, Armstrong.)

The Commissary for next week to issue four days' fresh, and three days' salt, provisions. As live cattle increase, the Commissary will issue five days' fresh, and two days' salt, a week.

Head-Quarters, July 27, 1776.

(Parole, York.)

(Countersign, Bristol.)

The Commanding Officers of Regiments, the Commanding Officer of the Artillery, and the Chief Engineer, will be very exact in obliging their Surgeons to make an immediate report of every person infected with small-pox.

Sutling has become so frequent and pernicious in this Camp, that it is absolutely necessary every Commanding Officer of a corps should exert himself to suppress it. The General therefore recommends it in the strongest manner to them, to seize all the rum and spirituous liquors from Sutlers who are detected making private sale thereof, and deliver the same to Mr. Commissary Avery, who will give his receipt for it.

The twenty-five men who have been draughted from General Arnold's Brigade, as shingle-makers, under Ensign Calkin, are to be employed in that business till further orders.

Head-Quarters, July 28, 1776.

(Parole, Durham.)

(Countersign, Roxbury.)

The Commissary will issue eight pounds of soap to every hundred men, per week, now in this Camp, upon a proper signed return being delivered to him by the Commanding Officer of each corps. The Commanding Officer of Artillery and Chief Engineer for the Artificers to draw in proportion to their numbers.

Captain Wentworth, of Colonel Poor's Regiment, tried at a late General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Poor was President, for refusing to do his duty when properly called on, was found guilty by the Court, sentenced to be cashiered, and published in the publick papers as having wilfully neglected his duty with a view of being discharged from the service. The General approves the sentence of the foregoing Court-Martial, and orders it to be put in execution accordingly.

Lieutenant B. Miller, of Colonel St. Clair's Regiment, tried at the same General Court-Martial, for possessing himself of part of the hangings of Lieutenant Christie's sword, and on suspicion of having secreted some effects of the late Captain Watson; the Court unanimously acquit him with honour. The General approves the sentence, and orders Lieutenant Miller to be immediately discharged from his arrest.

(Parole, Rhode-Island.)

Head-Quarters, July 29, 1776.

(Countersign, Newport.)

Captain Young, of Colonel Bedel's Regiment, tried at a late General Court-Martial, "for deserting his post, at St. Ann's, on the Island of Montreal." The Court, after considering the evidence in the case, adjudge that Captain Young is not guilty of the charge, and do acquit him from his arrest.

Captain Newland, tried at a late General Court-Martial, of which Colonel Poor was President, for damning and otherwise abusing Colonel Stark: The Court are of opinion, upon examination of the evidences, that the charge is fully supported, but judge, at the same time, that the satisfaction offered Colonel Stark at the time of the abuse was sufficient, and therefore acquit Captain Newland from his arrest.

The General approves both the above sentences, and orders that Captain Young and Captain Newland be immediately discharged from their confinement.

Ensign Steel, of Captain Austin's Company, and Colonel Burrell's Regiment, tried at a late General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Greaton was President, for leaving the Army and going on to Crown-Point with a batteau and men, contrary to orders; the prisoner pleads guilty: The Court therefore adjudge Ensign Steel to be cashiered and dismissed the service. The General approves the sentence, and orders it to take place immediately.

GENERAL GATES TO RICHARD VARICK.

Tyonderoga, July 29, 1776.

SIR: I send you, under the care of the bearer, the chain requested by General Schuyler's letter to me of the 25th instant, and have enclosed Colonel Baldwin's (the Chief-Engineer's) invoice of the pieces and links that the whole consists of. It will be all in the boats, on the other side of the camping-place, this evening, and will not, I hope, be delayed in its passage to you. I must desire you to assist the bearer in getting it forward to Poughkeepsie, as the Committee seems so anxious to have it there.

I am, sir, &c.

HORATIO GATES.

To Captain Richard Varick.

JOHN DEWITT TO GENERAL GATES.

Ticonderoga, July 29, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I make bold to return your Honour my most grateful thanks for your goodness in granting me a Court of Inquiry.

Captain Romans, in his return of the company to the Brigade-Major, the 26th instant, has entirely left me out. I inquired of the Conductor, who draws the return, the reason of the omission; who told me he had positive orders from Captain Romans so to do. This I thought my duty to inform your Honour of.

Although a stranger to your Honour, I flatter myself were you to know the man I had to deal with, you would not disapprove my conduct. He has neither honour, honesty, nor true valour in him.

If I am to receive no further satisfaction for the injury done me, I would most ardently request your Honour's leave to resign and quit the service; and that your Honour will order me to be paid off and give me a pass for that purpose.

I assure your Honour I sacrificed everything that was pleasing to me for the sake of serving my country, and now would cheerfully undergo the greatest hardships for sake of the same, were I to be used with common decency.

All which is most humbly submitted to your Honour by him, who, with the greatest respect, begs leave to subscribe himself, honoured sir, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN DEWITT.

To Major-General Gates.

COMMITTEE OF POULTENEY TO GENERAL GATES.

Poultenev, July 29, 1776.

To His Excellency General Gates:

We understand that several of the frontier towns have applied to the Continental store for powder and lead; we, being one of the frontier towns, do now apply to his Honour, by Lieutenant Josiah Grant, for fifty weight of powder and one hundred and fifty weight of lead, for a town stock. We are upwards of fifty, able to bear arms when called for. We are for liberty in general, and don't know that there is one dam'd Tory in this town. Your compliance will much oblige us, the Committee of Safety.

This from us, true Sons of Liberty,

NEHEMIAH HOW,
WILLIAM WARD,
HEBER ALLEN,
Committee of Safety.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM TICONDEROGA, DATED JULY 29, 1776.

We are hard at work every day repairing the old French lines, that have once already been very fatal to the British Army; and if they will but let us alone for two weeks, I think they will meet with as warm a reception here as ever they did. We have a General that is at once the soldier and the gentleman, and a parcel of men that are determined to defend this place; so that let the enemy come when they will, they will get what they little expect.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, July 29, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour to acquaint your Excellency that last evening Captain Bucklin, in a privateer from this place, returned from a successful cruise, in which he took five valuable prizes, bound from the British Islands in the West-Indies to Great Britain. He informs me that on the 25th instant, in latitude 40° 20', S.S.E. from Nantucket Shoals, upon the clearing up of a fog, he found himself in the midst of twenty-six sail of ships, two of which appeared very large, and were all standing about west. He also tells me that on the 27th of June, in latitude 35°, longitude 52°, he spoke with the ship Morris in the Continental service, Captain Thomas Bell, from Havre-de-Grace for Philadelphia, with a lading of duck, powder, lead, &c. Captain Bell informed him that the Portuguese had seized all the American vessels in their ports.

A prize which arrived here this day, on Thursday last spoke with two schooners from the eastward, bound on a cruise, who, the day before, had taken a large ship laden with provisions for the enemy's Army at New-York.

I am, with great esteem and respect, sir, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

NICHs. COOKE.

To His Excellency General Washington.

Newport, July 29, 1776.

The Jamaica ship lately taken by the brig Andrew Doria, Captain Biddle, was last Friday chased ashore near Watch-Hill, by the Cerberus, Captain Symons, who had almost got within gunshot of her, but being afraid to risk his ship any nearer, was obliged to stand off again and leave her. The prize, we hear, is a little bilged, but by the assistance of the Cabot and Connecticut brig, and a number of small craft, the cargo is likely to be nearly all saved, and it is thought the vessel may be got off.

Yesterday the privateer Montgomery, Captain Bucklin, of Providence, went in at the east side of this Island, and carried with him a fine large snow, Captain Gooding, from Antigua, loaded with three hundred hogsheads of sugar, and one hundred hogsheads of rum. And we hear Captain Bucklin, in company with another privateer, has taken five other considerable prizes, viz: three ships, one snow, and one brig, which were but about one day's sail behind him, two of which, with the other privateer, were to make some port to the eastward.

Last Saturday night, as the Cerberus was lying about three miles from Block-Island, Frank Gould, a mustee lad, of this place, swam from the ship to the Island, where he got a cedar boat with two sails, in which he came off, alone and naked, and landed at the fort on Brenton's Point yesterday in the afternoon. He is one of the hands Captain Biddle put on board one of the Scotch transports some time past, and which was retaken by the Cerberus, and again taken by a New-York privateer. He says Mr. James Josiah, Captain Biddle's former Lieutenant, who was prize-master on board the transport, is treated very ill on board the Cerberus, as are some others, for refusing to act against their country; that there are about forty Americans on board said ship, her whole number of men being now about one hundred and sixty; she has taken on this station eighteen vessels, mostly small sloops and schooners, sixteen of which have been burnt; and that about a week ago they spoke with seven sail of transports, with Scotch troops on board, bound to New-York, who had been in Boston Bay.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL GATES.

Lebanon, July 29, 1776.

SIR: I have not received any of your letters. On the return of Major Ely, I am informed of the care taken to prevent the spread of the infection of the small-pox, which I hope will succeed.

From other intelligence I am become acquainted with the wretched condition of the Army retreated from Canada, where you were to have commanded them. I wrote fully to Congress by last post, which goes from Hartford this day, what I had heard concerning that Army, "their sick, ragged, and dirty condition; that they were in want of clothing, shirts, trowsers, stockings, and shoes; that there would be some quantities sent from hence soon; and next, subordination and harmony are to be restored. To do this, the officer that effects it, will meet with great trouble, and when done, will expect to reap the honours of it. I have mentioned to them, that to prevent uneasiness and jealousies between the Generals who were to have had the command in Canada and in New-York, why is it not best, and even just, that each command the same body of men as expected, without respect to the place where? General Schuyler will have full employment at Albany, and below on the river, and at Tryon County, &c.; while General Gates commands the same Army at Ticonderoga, &c., which it is expected he would have had in Canada. The good of the general service is the great object. Doth not a regard to what will keep up harmony and prevent jealousies, come within it?" I wish to cast in my mite for that end.

General Schuyler wrote to me to send a number, not exceeding one thousand, felling axes to Albany, for the use of the Army. On advice, I have sent them the same route the soldiers march, by Bennington, and so on to Skenesborough, that the same may be in use sooner than they would be if sent by Albany. I have written to Brigadier-General Waterbury, or in his absence, to Colonel Swift, to see them properly delivered, and receipts given for them. The accounts of numbers, &c., come with each parcel.

I wish for direction, when clothing is forwarded, which way it is best to send it, and to whose care, as I know not your Quartermaster, or the proper channel in which it is to pass.

Since Major Ely's report, I have reason to hope our two battalions—Colonel Swift's and Colonel Mott's—will soon fill and come on. The former, I conclude, is got to Skenesborough; the latter, one company marched last Thursday; the rest will march to-morrow. I learn about seventy men in a company; leaving subalterns to recruit, which I trust will fill soon.

I am, with great regard and esteem, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

JONTH. TRUMBULL.

To the Hon. Major General Gates.

P. S. August 1, 1776.—SIR: This serves to confirm the foregoing, sent by Mr. Hyde, the wagoner, and to inform that there is fresh intelligence of four thousand Hessians near on our coast.

I am, ut supra,

JONTH. TRUMBULL.

STEPHEN BUCKLAND TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Hartford, July 29, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: On the 14th of the current month, I left Crown-Point, where Captain John Bigelow's company, of the Train of Artillery, then was, consisting of about thirty-six privates, which was much less than any other company of the Train in the Northern Department; and it has been proposed by General Arnold to augment that company to the number of sixty, by new recruits, if possible; and as I was Captain-Lieutenant of the company, and about to come home for the purpose of regaining my health, which had been much impaired, I was directed by General Arnold to call, in my way, upon General Schuyler, who was then supposed to be at Albany, and request his orders and directions how, and in what manner, to effect the inlisting a number of recruits, sufficient to fill the company; but when I arrived at Albany, I found General Schuyler was absent, on a journey to the German-Flats; so have obtained neither orders nor directions in the matter. Would therefore beg the favour of your Honour's advice and direction with respect to the same.

I am, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,
STEPHEN BUCKLAND.

To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esq.

Hartford, July 29, 1776.

The following is a true state of the situation of the Northern Army, with respect to the small-pox, given by a gentleman sent by the Governour and Council of this Colony to make inquiry into the state of said Army, viz:

"All infected with said disorder are removed to Fort George. The main body of the Army are at Ticonderoga, at which place a stand is to be made. The greatest care is taken to prevent the further spreading of that fatal disorder, as the Generals have taken every precaution necessary, and have left no infected person with the main body, which, together with the stations assigned for the two battalions now raised in this Colony for the Northern Army, viz: at Skenesborough and the east side of Ticonderoga, will effectually render the campaign safe as to the above disorder."

N. B. The health of the Army is much recruiting. Provisions are now plenty, both fresh and salt.

JAMES BOWDOIN TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

Boston, July 29, 1776.

SIR: I had the honour of your letter per the post, enclosing Lord Howe's Circular Letter and Declaration to this Government, together with a copy of your answer to a like letter from his Lordship. I shall immediately transmit them to the Council at Watertown. Your answer to Lord Howe expresses the mind, I believe, of every one of the United States. I am sure it does of this. If he has no further powers than appears by these papers, he is probably, before this time, convinced that his commission is very inadequate to the effecting the business he proposes to have come upon—the reëstablishment of peace between these States and Great Britain.

I have the honour to be, with most perfect regard, your Honour's most obedient and humble servant,

JAMES BOWDOIN.

To the Hon. Nicholas Cooke, Esq., Governour of Rhode-Island, at Providence.

JAMES BOWDOIN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Boston, July 29, 1776, 1 o'clock, P. M.

SIR: The enclosed declaration is this moment sent to me by the Sheriff, which I thought necessary to be communicated to your Excellency.

The ship Peggy, mentioned in it, was taken by two of the Continental cruisers, and sent into Marblehead. The passengers on board, who fled from Boston last March, came to town this morning, and are now in jail here, who, I understand, have been, or will be, examined by General Ward. It is probable you will have, by this post, the result of that examination; but if you should not, the enclosed may give you some necessary information.

I cannot be more particular, as the post is just setting out. I have the honour to be, with the most perfect regard, sir, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

JAMES BOWDOIN.

To His Excellency General Washington.

Examination of Captain JAMES KENNEDY, Master of the Ship PEGGY, taken by two Privateers.

Boston Jail, July 29, 1776.

I, James Kennedy, Master of the ship Peggy, in the merchant service, declare that I left Halifax about the first instant, under convoy of the Renown, of fifty guns, with a fleet of sixteen transports, containing the Forty-Second and Seventy-First Scotch Regiments, and Frazer's new-raised regiment, about three thousand in all, and three large ships with Hessian troops on board, about six hundred in all, and one ship with five companies of English Foot-Guards, and four victualling ships—the whole fleet bound for New-York. Off Nantucket-Shoals, we fell in with the Flora frigate, of thirty guns, and four transports, with Highland troops. These had been in Boston-Bay, where they got information from a fisherman that the town was evacuated, on which they stood for Halifax, until they met with us. They then joined our fleet for New-York. The Scotch troops were all to be of Colonel Campbell's division of the grand Army in America, the whole of which Army, I was informed, would, by the last of July, amount to fifty thousand. The Hessian troops left England about the 12th of May. Some of the officers informed me that they came out with three hundred and four sail, under the command of Commodore Hotham, on board of which were ten thousand foreign troops, and some English troops, number unknown. Last Friday night, in a gale of wind and thick weather, I lost the fleet, and on Monday, I fell in with two armed schooners, Captains Skinner and Tucker, to whom I surrendered, after a short engagement, in which I had only one man wounded. The day after the fleet left Halifax I saw from my deck forty sail of ships standing in for that harbour, and which I suppose to be part of the fleet under Commodore Hotham.

GENERAL WARD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Boston, July 29, 1776.

SIR: Yesterday the armed schooners Franklin and Hancock, commanded by Captains Skinner and Tucker, sent into Marblehead a ship from Halifax, bound to New-York, with refugee Tories and Tory goods on board. The invoices which Mr. Glover, the agent, sent me, I have enclosed. The same day Captain Burk, in the armed schooner Lee, came into Marblehead to refit, having a few days since engaged a ship and a schooner, (supposed to be transports,) and was likely to have taken them both, but, by some unhappy accident, a quantity of powder took fire and blew up part of his quarter-deck, killed two men and wounded several more, by which accident he was obliged to leave the vessels he had engaged, and come into port to refit.

All the articles your Excellency wrote for which I could procure of the Agents, I have forwarded to Norwich. Invoices of them, which I received from Mr. Bradford and Mr. Glover, are enclosed. Mr. Glover informs me he let Colonel Glover have the arms taken in the ship Anne, for the use of his regiment; and he being at New-York can give an account of them.

Mr. Bradford informs me he has a prospect of collecting the most of the arms he parted with, which, if he accomplishes, I will have them forwarded immediately.

The agent for the Connecticut brig Defence, which assisted in taking three of the Scotch ships, protested against sending the articles written for until the decision of the Court of Admiralty was obtained and a division made; but I thought, in the present circumstances, I should be justified in ordering them to be immediately forwarded.

I am your Excellency's obedient, humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To General Washington.

P. S. I have enclosed a Halifax newspaper, which was found on board the prize.

Boston, July 29, 1776.

Yesterday was carried into Marblehead, taken by the privateers Hancock, Captain Tucker, and the Franklin, Captain Skinner, the ship Peggy, commanded by James Kennedy, mounts six three and two two-pounders, bound from Halifax for New-York. She is one of the fleet of twenty-four sail which came out with transports, under convoy of two men-of-war, the Renown of fifty and the Flora of twenty guns, having on board a number of troops. The cargo consists of seventy-five dozen hose, one hundred and eighty yards of Irish sheeting, two boxes cord, seventy-four dozen porter, eighty-three dozen strong beer, three hundred and eleven tierces salted beef, six barrels herring, twenty-four camp-kettles, five dozen canteens, two dozen kettles with covers, candlesticks and spoons, two thousand six hundred and forty-eight mutton hams, forty dozen rappee snuff, one hundred gallons of rum, three thousand eight hundred and eighty-four yards osnaburghs, twelve dozen claret, four barrels flour, two kegs barley, two hundred and thirty dozen red port wine, fifty dozen sherry, fifty-three dozen white port wine, sixteen dozen strong white beer, amounting to £1,509 1s. 9d. sterling, and some cash. Also the following Tory gentlemen and ladies, viz: Patrick Reed, Thomas Frazier, Robert Semple and wife, Elizabeth Burns, John Burns, Abigail Pecit, Thomas Semple, and the pious Benjamin Davis, and son Benjamin Davis, Thomas Pamp, and John Witehead.

The privateer Warren, Captain Burk, engaged with another of the fleet, and was near taking her, when, by some accident, she had three of her men blown up and seven wounded, which obliged them to put into port.

Tuesday, 2d of July, put into Halifax a transport-ship, having on board a number of the Hessian troops.

The above Tories were brought to town in a Marblehead schooner early this morning, and escorted up to jail. They say they left Halifax near a month ago; that three transports, with Hessian troops, sailed in company with them, bound to New-York, and that the day they left Halifax they saw a fleet of forty sail, which they supposed to be transports with Hessian troops.

GENERAL WARNER TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

State of Massachusetts-Bay, July 29, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: I have been directed by Major-General Warren to muster the Militia in my brigade, and draught from them every twenty-fifth man, agreeable to orders issued by your Honours; whereupon I immediately ordered the several Colonels under my command to make such draught in their respective regiments, and meet me, together with all the other Field-Officers, at Worcester, with the number and names of the men thus draughted, for the purpose of forming them into companies, and choosing Captains and subaltern officers, agreeable to your Honours' direction; who met me accordingly. And the amount of all the returns from the several regiments is two hundred and sixty-four men, which is sufficient to form three companies; and accordingly the Field-Officers proceeded, and chose for Captain Ezekiel Knowlton, First Lieutenant Barrister William Tafts, Second Lieutenant Ensign David McClalland, for one Company; and Benjamin Richardson Captain, Samuel Baldwin First Lieutenant, Robert Kelly Second Lieutenant, and Jonathan Mason Ensign for another; Manasseh Sawyer Captain, Moses Harrington First Lieutenant, Samuel Sawin Second Lieutenant, and Josiah Carter Ensign. But the said Field-Officers, on finding that your Honours had so far superseded their command in the Militia as to appoint others not now in actual commission to take the field command of their men thus draughted when they arrive at Dorchester Heights, unanimously agreed to hold the names of the men thus draughted in their own hands, until a proportionable part of the men from among themselves should be called upon to take such field command. They say it seldom or never was known that there was a detachment from any army, brigade, or regiment, without a proper proportion of officers out of them to command the same. They conceive that the Militia Act knows no new creation of officers for any such detachment of Militia.

I am, your Honours' humble servant,

JONA. WARNER.

To the Honourable Council.

IN COMMITTEE OF COUNCIL, July 31, 1776: Read, and ordered that the within Officers be commissioned agreeable to their respective ranks.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

RICHARD DERBY TO JAMES BOWDOIN.

Salem, July 29, 1776—eight o'clock, Evening.

SIR: I sent the Captain of the Colony brig Massachusetts to Boston, to endeavour to purchase twelve pieces of their duck for making small sails for said vessel, and he informs me that he very luckily met with that quantity on board the French vessel lately arrived there, and which the Commissary-General has purchased, and only waits to see orders from the Board to deliver it. The bearer of this waits on you for that purpose; and as the duck is much wanted, I hope he will not be detained.

A master of a vessel of mine, who had been taken and carried to Halifax, is just arrived from thence, which place he left about fifteen days ago. He informs that thirty sail of transports, with the Hessians, had arrived there and sailed again for New-York; and as he came out he saw another considerable number of ships, which he supposes were the remainder of the fleet, which, they told him, consisted in the whole of seventy sail. He was on board the man-of-war at the time when the Yankee-Hero was taken: one man only was wounded. He was also on board, and in Nantasket, when the boats attacked Captain Mugford: they went in five boats; the Admiral's Lieutenant was killed, and seven men, and nine wounded. The people in Nova-Scotia in general wish well to our cause, &c., &c.

I find great difficulty with Obrian's crew, and am apprehensive I shall not be able to prevail on them to go to sea; they want their wages, which I shall not give them, and without them I think they will not go. His other matters I could have delivered him this day; but until matters are made easy with the crew, it is not worth while to expend anything on the vessel.

The Court of Captures sits here on the morrow, when the justice of the capture of some vessels are to be tried in which the Colony is concerned. I think it best I should attend, and therefore shall not be at Council till Friday morning, when I hope to attend. In the mean time I am your Honours' most obedient servant,

RICHARD DERBY, Jun.

To the Hon. the President of the Council in Watertown.

MARITIME COURT FOR CAPTURED VESSELS.

MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, Middle District, ss:

To all whom it may concern: Notice is hereby given, that the Maritime Court for the Middle District of the Massachusetts-Bay will be held at the Court-House in Salem, on Monday, the 19th day of August, 1776, at the hour of ten in the forenoon, to try the justice of the capture of the ship named the Queen of England, of about two hundred tons burden, (lately commanded by James Arnot,) and of her cargo and appurtenances; against which a libel is filed before me (the said ship having been taken and brought into the Middle District aforesaid) by Caleb Hopkins, commander of the armed ship called the George, in behalf of the Officers, Mariners, and Marines on board the same ship, the owner or hirers thereof, and of himself. And the owners of the said ship Queen of England, or any persons concerned, may appear and show cause, if any they have, why the same ship and her cargo and appurtenances should not be condemned.

TIMOTHY PICKERING, Judge of said Court.

Colony of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, LINCOLN, ss:

Libels are filed before me against the sloop Nancy, burden about eighty tons, commanded by Peleg Crooker; against the sloop Betsey, burden about eighty tons, commanded by Jonathan Blodget; against the sloop Endeavour, burden about thirty tons, commanded by James Tattersall; against the sloop Beaver, burden about seventy tons, commanded by Nathan Phillips; and against the schooner Dolphin, burden about fifty tons, commanded by Jonathan Carleton; which vessels are said to be improved in carrying supplies to the Fleet and Army employed against the United Colonies, and taken and brought into the Counties of Cumberland and Lincoln; and the Court erected to try and condemn all vessels that shall be found infesting the sea-coast of America, and brought into either of the Counties of York, Cumberland, or Lincoln, will be held at the Meeting-House in the East Precinct of Pownalborough, on Tuesday, the third day of September, 1776, at the hour of ten in the forenoon, to try the justice of said captures; of which this notice is given pursuant to the laws of this Colony, that all persons claiming in said vessels or cargoes, or are any way concerned therein, may appear and show cause (if any they have) why the said vessels, or either of them, with their appurtenances and cargoes should not be condemned.

TIMOTHY LANGDON, Judge of said Court.

TURBUTT WRIGHT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee of Observation, July 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We take the liberty to inform you that Captain Dean's company are armed, and have marched to Kent Island agreeable to their orders; and that Captain Darnes's company is full, but we are clearly of opinion that arms cannot be got for them in this County. We believe between twenty and thirty firelocks may be had on Kent Island, on loan, for the defence of any part of this County, but the people will not part with them to go out of the County; and, indeed, these are the terms upon which the chief of the arms lent to Captain Dean's company have been procured. We thought it necessary to give you this information relative to Captain Darnes's company, that you may take such steps as may be in your power to furnish them with arms.

Captain Darnes is in a very disagreeable situation with his men, who are continually complaining to him of the want of employment, and of the necessity they have been under of boarding themselves out until they receive orders to march.

By order of the Committee. I am your obedient servant,
TURBUTT WRIGHT, Chairman.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

GENERAL HOOPER TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Head-Quarters at Cambridge, July 30, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: Since my last I have received from Major Follen, who is stationed at Hooper's Straits, an account of the guard there under his command having taken a small schooner belonging to the enemy, in a creek making out of Holland's Straits. Major Follen having received intelligence of the schooner being in the creek, sent a detachment of thirty men, who took her and the cargo, consisting of a hogshead and a half of rum, thirty barrels of salt, the sails and rigging of a sloop, a large quantity of old iron, a few guns, swords, and cartridge boxes. The schooner had four men, three of whom were just out of the small-pox, and are now sent you by the Committee of this County, to be dealt with in such manner as your Board may judge proper.

I informed you a few days since of the draughts I had ordered to be made out of the several battalions in my brigade, which I have since ordered to be stationed at the following places: Colonel Richardson, with one hundred and twenty-five privates of his battalion, at this place; ninety privates of Colonel Fiddiman's battalion, together with thirty privates of Colonel Ennall's battalion, at Cooke's Point, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Stainton; Captains Robson and Stephen Woolford, with fifteen privates each, at Taylor's and James's Islands; Captain Keene, with a party of fifteen privates, at Meekin's Neck; Captain Travers, with a party of fifteen privates, at Hooper's Island; Captain Wheatley, with a party of fifteen privates, on Ascom's Island; Lieutenant-Colonel John Ennalls, with a party of forty-five privates, at Hungar River; Colonel Murray with a party of one hundred and thirty privates of his battalion, and Major Fallen with thirty privates of Travers's corps, at Hooper's Straits. The draughts from Colonel Dashiell's and Colonel Hayward's battalions, consisting of two hundred and seventy privates, are stationed at Nanticoke-Point, Dammed Quarter, and Animessex.

The Colonels of the several battalions in Somerset and Worcester Counties having consulted together, were of opinion that the Militia of Somerset County would at present be sufficient for the defence of that County, and requested permission for the Worcester Militia, who had marched to Princess Anne, to return home; which I have granted them, upon the assurance of the officers that they will hold their men in readiness to march on the shortest notice, if occasion should require it. I cannot, in justice to the brigade, omit to inform your Board of the alacrity with which the officers and privates have stepped forth on this occasion. We have scarcely in a single instance been obliged to draught to make up our numbers, and in several companies there has been no small contention for the privilege of being permitted to march; and indeed the spirit and alacrity shown by the whole brigade has been such as does them great honour, and has given me great pleasure. To induce the privates to enter cheerfully into the service, I ordered the Colonels to direct a Captain, Ensign, Sergeant, and two Corporals, to march with the draughts of each company; and though the number of officers was greater than I deemed necessary, yet I incline to think the men would not have marched with the same alacrity had they not been accompanied by their Captains. After the troops had arrived at their several places of rendezvous, I discharged the supernumerary officers in every instance when I could do it without breeding great discontent among the troops, both officers and privates being in general averse to the measure.

I have further to inform your Board, that I have taken such steps as will put it in the power of every officer and private now on duty to attend and give their votes at the ensuing elections without leaving our coast exposed to the attacks of the enemy, which it is not at all improbable they will make, under an idea that our people are taken off to attend the elections.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

HENRY HOOPER.

To the Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, President of the Council of Safety.

JOSEPH W. HARRISON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Port-Tobacco, July 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have the happiness to inform you that the Molly, Captain Thomas Conway, is once more safely arrived in Great Wicomico, Virginia, with a fine cargo of arms and ammunition. The enclosed papers will furnish you with particulars. Captain Conway will remain at Port-Tobacco till the express returns, waiting for your orders. My brother adventured in this vessel to the amount of £211 7s. 6s., Maryland currency. He writes the customary freight is ten per cent. If so, the amount shall be remitted by the first safe conveyance. The goods consist of twenty bolts of osnaburgh, nine barrels of powder, and seven small swords.

I am, very respectfully, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOS. W. HARRISON.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

N. B. Captain Conway had a passage of fourteen days.

GERRARD HOPKINS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, July 30, 1776.

SIR: I received yours of the 27th instant, wherein you enclosed me an order on the Treasurer for £50, which I am much obliged to you for.

You desire me to inform you whether I have the knapsacks and haversacks made in one. When Colonel Ware requested me to have the five hundred made, he desired I would have haversacks made, and did not mention knapsacks. I also showed him a pattern before they were made. Colonel Ewing's are made without knapsacks also. I think they cannot cost altogether, finished off, more than 3s. apiece. They are made out of cruder out of the magazine. I have advanced myself, as the women were in want of cash, as far as 9d. apiece; which, I make no doubt, is within bounds. They think, as they found thread, they ought to be allowed 1s. apiece. I shall pay all attention to what you say in regard to the delivery of the stores. You desire to know

I can inform you I have not yet received any, but make no doubt but that I shall receive it soon.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

GERRARD HOPKINS, son of Rd.

To Gabriel Duwall, Esq., Annapolis.

P. S. I have received the linen sent by Alexander Brown, and delivered it to Mr. Johnson, who will make the tents as soon as possible.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COL. HOLLINGSWORTH.

[No. 91.]

Annapolis, July 30, 1776.

SIR: We should be obliged to you, if you would inform us by letter how soon you can comply with the enclosed resolve.

We are, &c.

To Colonel Henry Hollingsworth.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO ARCHIBALD BUCHANAN.
[No. 92.] Annapolis, July 30, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed you have a copy of the agreement made between the Council of Safety and Messrs. Galloway and Stewart.

Two galleys are not yet contracted for; and as a favourable representation has been made of the skill and diligence of the workmen in your yard, and we place great confidence in you, if you can contract to build them by the 15th day of November next at farthest, and will enter into a similar engagement with the enclosed, we are inclined to give you a preference.

You are desired to attend the Council, to enter into a contract and receive a draught of the row-galleys, as soon as possible. We are, &c.

To Mr. Archibald Buchanan.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO JACOB SCHLEY.
[No. 93.] Annapolis, July 30, 1776.

SIR: The publick service requires that you should send to this place, with all the expedition you can, the rifles by you made for the use of the Province; also, the ten large rifles contracted by you to be made and delivered on the first day of August next. We therefore earnestly request you will comply with your engagements; and are yours, &c.
To Mr. Jacob Schley.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GUN-LOCK COMMISSIONERS.
[No. 94.] Annapolis, July 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: As a considerable time has elapsed since your erecting your gun-lock manufactory, we are in great hopes you have made a number for the use of this Province. The Province is in great distress for arms. Few of the troops raised for the Flying-Camp are supplied with them, and the Militia will not lend theirs. There is an absolute necessity, therefore, that you immediately send down what locks you have. We expect fire-locks from John Yast. They may come from thence, if you continue them there. We desire also to know how many locks you make per week. We have barrels enough here and in Kent for the locks you can make. We are, &c.

To the Commissioners of Gun-Lock Manufactory.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO MAJOR PRICE.
[No. 95.] Annapolis, July 30, 1776.

SIR: We have given orders to Captain Mantz to march down to St. Mary's, to take the place of Captain Jahn Allen Thomas's company, until further orders. You will be pleased to station him in such manner as may be most for the publick service. And we request that Captain Thomas's company may immediately march to the northward, according to the order of Convention.

The cannon that were sent down, will be wanted here. Should the men-of-war be gone off, which we expect either is or soon will be the case, we request you would order the cannon to the mouth of the Patuxent, and let them be brought up here by water, if the passage appear safe, otherwise you are to order them up by land.

Nothing new from New-York, only that the Highlanders not taken by our cruisers, are arrived.

When all is quiet below, we expect to have the pleasure of seeing you here. And are yours, &c.

To Major Thomas Price.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GENERAL CHAMBERLAIN.
[No. 96.] Annapolis, July 30, 1776.

SIR: We shall esteem it a particular favour if you will have an examination made of the powder in your magazine, and give us an account as well of the number of barrels of cannon as musket; and when we receive the account, we shall take care to make such regulation as will leave a sufficient quantity of each kind to answer every purpose.

You must continue your Militia guards over the powder until the place of Captain Hindman's company is supplied by a Flying-Camp company. When they will be raised, armed and equipped for that or any other purpose, you can ascertain full as well, if not better, than we can. As to the number of men requisite for a guard, you must certainly be a more competent judge than we are. We are, &c.

To Brigadier-General Chamberlain.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAINS BARNES AND ELLIOTT.
[No. 97.] Annapolis, July 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: You are requested to furnish Captain Dean with as much ammunition and flints as will be necessary for his company, while it continues upon that Island, out of the powder, lead and flints, delivered to you by the Council of Safety. We are, &c.

To Captains Barnes and Elliott.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO ISAAC GRIEST.
[No. 98.] Annapolis, July 30, 1776.

SIR: We received the several patterns of wooden bottles, alias kegs. We should be much obliged to you to bespeak two thousand of them, of the sort marked at 2s. 7d. We approve of it, and imagine you can engage a quantity much cheaper than a single one. We desire you will bespeak them immediately. We are, &c.

To Mr. Isaac Griest.

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Committee, July 30, 1776:

Present: William Lux, (Chairman,) J. Merryman, B. Griffith, J. T. Chase, W. Aisquith, J. Calhoun, J. Cockey, J. Boyd.

A Plan of a Magazine was offered by Mr. Benjamin Griffith, of forty feet long, twenty-six feet wide, divided in the middle, so as to make two rooms of thirty-two feet by six and a half wide, and sufficient to hold five hundred barrels of powder; which the Committee agrees to adopt, instead of the one exhibited the 18th instant, that being, on calculation, too small. They accordingly agreed with Mr. John Cockey to furnish the scantling, at 13s. 6d. per hundred, delivered on the spot; the inch-plank at 8s., and the one-and-a-quarter-inch at 9s., also delivered on the spot.

Ordered, That advertisements be put up, desiring any person willing to contract for the Carpenter's work of the said building, to apply, on Wednesday next, the 7th August, to Mr. Benjamin Griffith, and leave their Proposals, in writing, with him.

The Chairman is directed to answer the Letters from the honourable Council of Safety relative to building the said Magazine.

The Chairman being informed by Mr. Robert Christie, Sheriff of this County, that he had reason to be apprehensive of violence being offered to him, the said Sheriff, on account of his not attending to read the Declaration of Independence on Manday last, agreeable to the desire of the Committee; and that from these apprehensions, he would be under the disagreeable necessity of retiring to the country, and withdrawing himself from the publick service; whereupon,

Resolved, That the Committee do declare their utter disapprobation of all threats and violence being offered to any persons whatever, as contrary to the Resolves of Congress, and the sense of the Convention of this Province; that they conceive themselves bound to protect (as far as is in their power) the Civil Officers in the discharge of their duty; that they do expect of, and call upon every good citizen and friend to his country to assist them in their endeavours to preserve the peace and good order of society, and to prevent all riots and tumults, and personal abuse or violence to individuals; that the good people of Baltimore, having hitherto been so respectfully attentive to the Resolves of this Committee on all occasions, they flatter themselves that due regard will be paid to this recommendation.

Attest:

GEO. LUX, Secretary.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, July 30, 1776.

SIR: I do myself the pleasure to enclose, at this time, sundry resolves of Congress, relating principally to new appointments and promotions in the Army.

The return of Colonel Elmore's Regiment (which you will please to give orders to join you) I now transmit, together with blank commissions, to be filled up with the names of such officers as appear with their respective companies in the regiment. I shall deliver commissions agreeably to the enclosed resolves, as soon as possible, and order the gentlemen to repair to their respective departments.

The regiment raised in Connecticut, under Colonel Ward, you will order wherever the service, in your judgment, shall require it.

I have the honour to be, with sentiments of the highest esteem, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. I return you the letter from Mrs. French. Your favour of the 29th this moment came to hand. I shall send the blank commissions this evening, by Fessenden. Several resolutions are passed in consequence of your letters. I will send by Fessenden, and not longer detain the post. $500,000 will be on the way to you to-morrow; $60,000 also to the Flying-Camp.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, July 30, 1776.

SIR: Monsieur St. Martins having been recommended to Congress as a gentleman conversant with the Engineering branch, they have been pleased to appoint him in that department with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. I have delivered him his commission, and directed him to repair to you, at New-York, to receive orders, and you will employ him where you judge the service will be best promoted.

I have the honour to be, with much esteem, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO CAPTAIN MORRIS.

Philadelphia, July 30, 1776.

SIR: In consequence of an application from General Mercer for six Lighthorse to be sent to him at the Flying-Camp in New-Jersey, as soon as possible, I am to request, by order of Congress, you will give the necessary orders to Mr. Randolph, and the party who are engaged with him in that service, to repair to the Flying-Camp immediately. You will please to lose no time in complying with this requisition.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Captain Samuel Morris, commanding the Lighthorse, Philadelphia.

SAMUEL CHASE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, July 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I this moment received the enclosed letter from Colonel Stricker, and send it to you for your orders to him.

If you think proper to grant him the liberty of inlisting into the German battalion from the companies raised for the Flying-Camp, it might promote the service, as the former are inlisted for three years, and the latter only till December. I am sensible difficulties will occur.

Arms and blankets are as necessary as men; but an account should be transmitted to your Board. Unless you give orders as to the quantity and mode of subsistence, I am afraid great extravagance will happen. No news from New-York, except that a sail, supposed part of Lord Howe's fleet, arrived at the Hook the 27th.

I am, gentlemen, with respect, your obedient servant,

SAML. CHASE.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

THOMAS STONE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, July 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We shall endeavour to procure the instruments desired by yours of the 25th; but they are not easily procured, the demand for the Continental Army being very great, and many of the cutlers of this city having gone to Jersey with the Militia.

The powder and arms were sent some days ago to Annapolis, which we hope will be attended with no inconvenience. We have not the least doubt but everything in your power will be done in the best manner for the publick service, and the preservation of every part of the United States. Maryland, to be sure, must be a principal object of your attention; and we hope, considering the spirit and alacrity which all ranks of men have shown, whenever occasion required their services, that our coast will be secure against the ravages of Dunmore and his rascally gang of Pirates.

We have nothing lately from Ticonderoga. The enemy do not stir from Staten-Island. Eight ships arrived there a few days ago; but whether they brought men or not, we have not heard. General Washington has now a considerable strength at New-York; but there are only three thousand men in Jersey, where there ought to be at least ten thousand. Colonel Smallwood is at New-York. We have no doubt but the subsistence money will be readily paid, and we wish every necessary which can be had may be furnished the Militia before they march. Money will be advanced to them now if they need it. Hunting-shirts will be a convenient and good uniform, if they can be had. We shall at all times give you the earliest information of all important occurrences, and shall with pleasure execute your commands.

And have the honour to be, your most obedient servant,

T. STONE.

To the Hon. Council of Safety of Maryland.

P. S. My brothers are engaged in other business, and the post is going, so that their signatures must be dispensed with.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO JOHN BRADFORD.

Philadelphia, July 30, 1776.

SIR: We take the liberty to enclose herein some despatches for Messrs. Samuel and J. H. Delap, merchants in Bordeaux, which you will please to deliver into Captain Cleveland's own hands, with a strict charge to take the utmost care of them, and follow the orders also enclosed herein directed to him, which you will be pleased to deliver, and enjoin his punctual obedience, on which will depend his future employment and advancement in the publick service. Mr. Morris informs us of the alacrity with which you have executed his commission in the purchase of the brigantine Despatch; and anything further of this kind offers, this Committee will claim the liberty of troubling you again; being very respectfully, sir, your obedient servants.

To John Bradford, Esq.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO CAPTAIN CLEVELAND.

Philadelphia, July 30, 1776.

SIR: We have been regularly informed by John Bradford, Esq., of his purchasing, loading, and fitting the brigantine Despatch, in consequence of our orders; and we approve of his having appointed you to the command of that brigantine, in the Continental service, as he gives you an extremely good character, of which we hope and expect to find you very deserving. The honourable Continental Congress, of which we are members, authorized us, as a Committee, to purchase the brigantine, and to order her on such voyage as would best answer certain purposes to the States of America. You will receive this by the hands of John Philip Merkle, Esq., and are to be governed by the following instructions during the present voyage, or until you receive others from Congress, or from this or some other Committee of Congress:

Mr. Bradford will require bills of lading from you for the entire cargo on board the Despatch, consigned to the above-mentioned John Philip Merkle, Esq., (who is to go passenger in the brigantine,) at her discharging port in Europe. Such bills of lading you are to sign; receive Mr. Merkle on board; assist him in providing sea-stores; and then proceed with the utmost diligence to the coast of France, avoiding most carefully all vessels at sea, and put into the first convenient port you can make in that Kingdom, (Nantz or Bordeaux, perhaps, may be the safest,) and you must there deliver to Mr. Merkle any part of the cargo he may find it convenient to sell, or the whole if he chooses it. We enclose to Mr.

Bradford, by this conveyance, a packet directed for Messrs. Samuel and J. H. Delap, merchants in Bordeaux. Mr. Bradford will deliver that packet to you, and we require your utmost care of it. Should you have the misfortune to be taken, you must throw it overboard slung with a weight that will sink it, for on no account must this fall into the hands of our enemies. On the contrary, if you get safe into Bordeaux, deliver it yourself to Messrs. Samuel and J. H. Delap, merchants, there. If you go into any other port, forward it to them by post or special messenger, as you may be advised is safest and best. You must also advise these gentlemen what other ports or places Mr. Merkle intends to order you for, and for this purpose inquire of him, and desire them to write you a few lines telling you how to direct letters to Silas Deane, Esq., so that they will certainly fall into his hands. We expect Mr. Merkle will direct you to proceed from France to Amsterdam, and you must obey his orders, delivering to him the rest of the cargo at any port or ports he may desire. He is not to pay any freight; but will supply you with all things necessary for the brigantine, and money to pay charges. For all you receive in money, stores, outfit, &c., you will grant him proper receipts; and when you have discharged entirely the present cargo, you are to receive from him all such goods, merchandise, arms, and ammunition, as he may think proper to ship, granting him bills of lading for what he puts on board. We also give you liberty to arm the brigantine in the most complete manner, with as many four-pounder cannon, swivels, blunderbusses, muskets, cutlasses, &c., as may be proper for such a vessel. You may also ship as many good seamen as you can conveniently accommodate, obtaining them on the best terms in your power; lay in a suitable stock of provisions, a sufficient quantity of ammunition, &c.; the cost and charges of all which, Mr. Merkle will defray, taking your receipts.

Whilst this business is transacting, you will write, immediately after your arrival at the port where it is to be done, to Messrs. Samuel and J. H. Delap, of Bordeaux, and also to Silas Deane, Esq., if you obtain from them in time his address. Tell them how to direct letters to you, and when you expect to sail, and we expect you will receive back from them letters and packets for us. If you do, the utmost care must be taken of them. Don't let them be seen by any person whatever. Sling them with a weight ready for sinking; and if taken, be sure to let them go overboard in time. But we hope you will have better fortune, and bring them safe. When your vessel is completely fitted, the cargo on board, and you have received your despatches from Mr. Merkle, you are then to put out to sea, and make the best of your way back to America. We think it best not to fix on any particular port for you to aim at; but leave you at liberty to push into the first safe harbour you can make in any of the United States of America; and on your arrival, apply to the Continental Agent, if there be one at or near that place; if not, to the persons in authority there, desiring their advice and assistance to forward, with the utmost expedition, to us all the letters, packets, &c., you bring. You will also write us the state and condition of your vessel, and we shall return orders for your proceedings. We send you herewith a commission, a book of regulations respecting captures, &c., and a list of the Continental Agents, for your government, if you should take any prizes. But you are to remember prizes are not your object; we wish you to make an expeditious and safe voyage, and for this reason desire you will make all possible despatch, both at sea and in port. We expect you will be careful of the brigantine, her stores and materials. Allow your people plenty of good provisions; but suffer no waste, and be as frugal as is consistent with true economy in your expenses and charges. These things duly observed will recommend you to the governing powers in America, and in time your utmost ambition may be gratified, provided merit leads the way to promotion. If any American masters or mates of ships, or seamen, want passages, you may accommodate them free of any charge or expenses. Probably Mr. Merkle may find it proper to make your vessel a French or Dutch bottom, and clear you out for the West-Indies. In such case, you will do what is needful on your part to answer his views; and we hope you will be attentive to accommodate and please him during this voyage.

We are, sir, your humble servants.

To Captain Stephen Cleveland.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO MESSRS. DELAP.

Philadelphia, July 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We must frequently give you the trouble to receive and forward our despatches to Silas Deane, Esq. As you will be possessed of his address, and from the nature of his business, which requires him to move from place to place, we cannot, you will therefore hold us excusable, and he will pay any charge that arises by postage or otherwise. We send this by Captain Cleveland, of the brigantine Despatch, which will put into some port in France. If it should happen to be yours, he will deliver these despatches himself; if any other, he will forward them by post or special messenger, as may be thought best by those he consults. A John Philip Merkle, Esq., goes passenger, and to him this vessel and cargo is addressed. If they call at Bordeaux, we beg to recommend Mr. Merkle to your attention.

We have desired Captain Cleveland to inform you, either in person or by letter, where he is to land his cargo, when he expects to sail from thence, and how you can direct to him with a certainty of your letters reaching his hands. We also desired him to ask of you Mr. Deane's address; for as we have a good opinion of this proving a safe conveyance, we wish to hear from you and Mr. Deane by Captain Cleveland, who will take particular care of the letters, and you will gratify us very much by transmitting us all the publick news, newspapers, commercial intelligence, &c., that you think can be any ways useful.

We are, sirs, yours, &c.

To Messrs. Samuel & J. H. Delap.

SAMUEL CHASE TO RICHARD HENRY LEE.

Philadelphia, July 30, 1776.

MY DEAR SIR: Your letter of the 14th instant followed me to this city, and your other favour, of the 21st, was delivered by yesterday's post. I hurried to Congress, to give my little assistance to the framing a Confederacy, and a plan for a foreign alliance—both of them subjects of the utmost importance, and which, in my judgment, demand immediate despatch. The Confederacy has engaged our close attention for a week. Three great difficulties occur: Representation, the mode of voting, and the claims to the South-Sea. The whole might, in my opinion, be settled, if candour, justice, and the real interests of America were attended to. We do not all see the importance, nay, the necessity, of a Confederacy. We shall remain weak, distracted, and divided in our councils; our strength will decrease; we shall be open to all the arts of the insidious Court of Britain, and no foreign Court will attend to our applications for assistance before we are confederated. What contract will a foreign State make with us, when we cannot agree among ourselves?

Our Army at Ticonderoga consists of six thousand men, of which three thousand are in the Hospital, from the small-pox and other camp disorders. Our Army at New-York contains fourteen thousand, of which only ten thousand are effective. Our Flying-Camp in the Jerseys has but between three and four thousand troops. No news from General Washington. He writes, 27th, that eight sail, supposed to be part of Lord Howe's fleet, arrived at the Hook that day. I shall always be glad to hear from you; and am, with great esteem, your affectionate friend and obedient servant,

SAMUEL CHASE.

To the Hon. Richard Henry Lee, Esq.

LANCASTER COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Observation, Inspection, and Correspondence, at the house of Adam Reigart, 30th July, 1776:

Present: Edward Shippen, William Atlee, William Bowman, Lodwick Lowman, Henry Dehuft, Jacob Krug, Christopher Crawford, John Miller, Adam Reigart:

William Atlee in the Chair.

It is the sentiment of the Committee, that Christian Werger, of Leacock Township, Gunsmith, and his Apprentice, Martin Micksell, ought to continue at home at that business, and ought not to be marched with Captain Bare's or Captain Roland's Company into the Camp in the Jerseys, it being contrary to the Resolves of the Congress and Committee of Safety to march tradesmen of that kind with the troops; and those officers, and the Field-Officers of the Battalion to which those Companies belong, are requested to leave those persons at home, at the said trade, agreeable to the said Resolves.

The Chairman is directed, by a line to Captain Scott, of Colonel Crawford's Battalion, to request he will not march Robert Knox with his Company to the Camp in the Jerseys, his foot being in a condition which renders him unfit for duty as a soldier, his brother having lately, by accident, hurt himself so as to render him incapable of labour, and two of his sisters now lying in the small-pox, and no person remaining about the house or farm but himself who can in any manner assist them.

Jacob, a Mulatto, belonging to Mr. Thomas Douglass, Peter, a Negro, belonging to John Hopkins, Irey, a Negro, belonging to Lionel Ellmaker, suspected and charged with intending to injure the inhabitants in the absence of the Associators, are brought to Town by Mr. Isaac McCammont, a member of the Committee for Salisbury Township, and ordered to be confined in Jail for examination, &c.

Hugh Knox, of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment, is permitted to work with Hann, Tailor, he here, in Committee, engaging to be answerable for him, agreeable to the Resolves of the Committee.

William Sutherland, of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment, is permitted to work with Michael Shindel, Tailor, Mr. Lodwick Lowman, here in Committee, engaging to be answerable for him, agreeable to the Resolves of this Committee.

The Committee requests Colonel Slough will order William Waggoner, a journeyman Hatter, in the employ of Captain Klatz, and an Associator in Captain Klatz's Company, to attend constantly to his business, and excuse him from guard duty, that he may the better attend Captain Klatz's business in his absence.

Nathan Wood, of the Seventh Regiment, is permitted to work with Nicholas Messersmith, Tailor, he here, in Committee, engaging to be answerable for him, agreeable to the Resolves of this Committee.

CAPTAINS MARTIN AND ADAMS TO LANCASTER COMMITTEE.

Hinckel-Town, July 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Since there have been two companies marched to this place yesterday, and they are not willing to march from here until they receive the month's pay according as the Committee hath promised, we would be glad if you would send down money sufficient to pay off the men; after which they will be ready to march whenever the Colonel sees proper to march the battalion, which he thinks to do as soon as the battalion is all together.

We are, gentlemen, your most humble, obedient,

ALEXANDER MARTIN, } Captains.
ISAAC ADAMS, }

GENERAL MERCER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Perth-Amboy, July 30, 1776.

SIR: Within these two days, we have observed sixteen ships pass from Sandy-Hook to the Narrows, but no new movement of the enemy on Staten-Island. Some more shallops have come down the Sound, from Fishkill, into Prince's Bay. To give us the entire command of the Sound, as well as to prevent the approach of tenders or armed sloops to this place, permit me to recommend to the honourable Congress, that some row-galleys be built in Rariton River, to mount eighteen-pounders, or any heavier metal. The cannon, I am told, may be sent from Philadelphia, and our artificers in the Army would construct the vessels at no great expense. I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,

HUGH MERCER.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress.

P. S. I have this moment heard from the Blazing-Star, that our field-pieces have obliged one of the shallops to return into the Kill.

GENERAL MERCER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Perth-Amboy, July 30, 1776.

SIR: I am this moment favoured with yours of yesterday, and shall set about preparing boats with all possible expedition. Your favours by Major Ross were extremely acceptable. Since his arrival Colonel Griffin has joined me, very much to my satisfaction. Only four companies, intended for the Flying-Camp, have arrived since my last, and a battalion of Associators, consisting of three hundred and fifty. These last I have sent on to Newark and Elizabeth-Town, for the purpose of relieving such of the troops as are to form the Flying-Camp, that we may have our men who are to remain in service brought into proper order as soon as possible. It will contribute greatly to this end, if, now the harvest is secured, General Livingston were desired to call out into service such a number of the New-Jersey Militia as would guard the different posts from Bergen, along the Jersey shore. Not less than two thousand would be required for this purpose. His Excellency the General will please to consider how far such a measure is necessary.

I am, sir, most respectfully, your obedient servant,

HUGH MERCER.

GENERAL MERCER TO COLONEL DICKINSON.

Perth-Amboy, July 30, 1776.

SIR: I enclose you a copy of what the officers determined on yesterday, relative to the rations. I have this morning received instructions from Head-Quarters, to have proper boats built for the purpose of transporting troops with safety and expedition. I am told that Captain Manuel Eyres, of your regiment, would be a proper person to direct this business. We should have at least twenty of them prepared. The service requires that we should as speedily as possible set about this matter. After consulting with Captain Eyres, you will be able to furnish me with such hints as may greatly expedite the service.

I am, sir, your most respectful, and your obedient servant,

HUGH MERCER.

To Col. John Dickinson, commanding at Elizabeth-Town.

[Thus endorsed by me:—July 30, 1776, I took all the necessary steps on this letter—collected a dozen of the most proper persons—conferred with General Livingston and them—procured all the information I could, and sent Captain Eyres and Mr. Joshua Mercereau, July 31st, to General Mercer for his final orders; wrote so to him at large, with some material intelligence I had received concerning the weak guard on Newark-Bay; sent him the best map of Staten-Island that has yet been made, which I procured Mr. Mercereau to make.

[The design was an attack on Staten-Island.]

J. D.]

GENERAL ROBERDEAU TO PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Amboy, July 30, 1776.

HONoured SIRs: Within these few days past the enemy have been collecting shallops and small craft, which makes me apprehensive they are planning a descent somewhere, probably in this place, as the present condition of it seems to afford such an opportunity.

Amboy is parted from Staten-Island by a Sound about four hundred yards wide. The river Rariton is on the south side of the town, from which, to a marsh on the north side, the bank is high, and I conceive easily defended. The marsh is in some places impassable; where it is not so, guards are planted; but as the enemy have the command of the water, they have it in their power to go up the Rariton, and, by landing their men some miles above us, to attempt at least to intercept the communication between this place, which is on a point of land, and the country; in which case we should soon be distressed, as we have no magazine of provisions, and the small circle we should be enclosed in, not sufficiently stored to supply any considerable number of men any length of time. This appears to me the most probable scheme they can attempt here, while, from the best observations I can make, I am of opinion that a few row-galleys in the river Rariton would be the best means either to prevent their landing, or to destroy their craft after they had landed, and by that means retaliate their scheme, by cutting off their retreat.

I observed while at Philadelphia, several pieces of cannon, in several parts of the city, which, though not sufficiently sightly for a man-of-war, would be serviceable in this case, and night, with a few carriages, be easily conveyed here, as the land carriage would be but thirty miles from Trenton to Brunswick. Here are some scows, and a large kind of flat-bottomed boats, called Wild-Cats, which might be expeditiously fitted up for temporary galleys, until others can be supplied, as we have several carpenters and ship-carpenters, but are in want of tools.

I can see many advantages we shall receive from the service of a few armed boats, the want of which distresses us greatly, our cannon on the bank being too light to give the enemy any material obstruction on the water; who, notwithstanding our fire, have passed from day to day through the Sound without receiving much injury.

I am, honourable sirs, your most obedient and very humble servant,

DANIEL ROBERDEAU.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read August 1, 1776.]

New-York, July 30, 1776.

SIR: I was this morning honoured with your two favours of yesterday's date; and agreeable to your request have given Mr. Palfrey liberty to negotiate your claim with Mr. Brimer, and wish it may be satisfied agreeably to you.

I last night received a letter from General Schuyler, [dated Germon-Flats, July 24,] a copy of which I do myself the honour to transmit to you. You will thereby perceive his reasons for leaving Crown-Point and preferring the post the Council of Officers determined to take opposite to Ticonderoga. I am totally unacquainted with these several posts and the country about there, and therefore cannot determine on the validity of his observations, or think myself at liberty to give any direction in the matter. Congress will please to observe what he says of their distress for money. From hence he can have no relief, there being only about three or four thousand dollars in the Paymaster's hands, according to his return this morning, and all but two months' pay due the Army, besides many other demands. I could wish that proper supplies of money could be always kept: the want may occasion consequences of an alarming nature. By a letter from him of a prior date to the copy enclosed, he tells me that a Mr. Ryckman, who had just returned through the country of the Six Nations, reports that the Indians who were at Philadelphia, had gone home with very favourable ideas of our strength and resources. This he heard in many of their villages. A lucky circumstance, if it will gain either their friendship or secure their neutrality.

In my letter of the 27th, I informed Congress of my views and wishes to attempt something against the troops on Staten-Island. I am now to acquaint them, that by the advice of General Mercer and other officers at Amboy, it will be impracticable to do anything upon a large scale for want of craft; and as the enemy have the entire command of the water all round the Island, I have desired General Mercer to have nine or ten flat-bottomed boats at Newark-Bay and Elizabeth-Town, with a design principally to keep up the communication across Hackinsack and Passaic Rivers, which I deem a matter of great importance and extremely necessary to be attended to.

Since I wrote you yesterday, eleven ships more, four brigs, and two sloops, have come into the Hook. I have not yet received intelligence what any of the late arrivals are, but I suppose we shall not long remain in a state of uncertainty.

Having reason to believe that Lord Howe will readily come into an exchange of such prisoners as may be more immediately under his command, and that something will be offered on this subject within a day or two, or rather come in answer to the propositions I have made General Howe, I shall be glad to have Congress's interpretation of the resolve of the 22d instant, empowering the Commanders to exchange, &c., whether by the word "sailor," they mean sailors generally, as well those taken in the vessels of private adventurers by the enemy, as those belonging to the Continental cruisers or vessels in the Continental employ, or whether they only design to extend the exchange to the latter, those in their particular employ. I would also observe, that heretofore sailors belonging to merchant ships that have fallen into our hands, and those employed merely as transports, have not generally been considered as prisoners. I submit it to Congress, whether it may not be now necessary to pass a resolve declaring their sentiments on this subject, and in general who are to be treated as prisoners of war that are taken on board vessels belonging to the subjects of the British Crown, &c. The result of their opinion upon the first question proposed you will be pleased to transmit me by the earliest opportunity.

I have enclosed for the consideration of Congress a memorial and petition by Captain Aldridge, praying to be relieved against the loss of money stolen from him, not conceiving myself authorized to grant his request. The certificate which attends it proves him to be a man of character, and his loss is hard on his state of it. Whether making the loss good may not open a door to others, and give rise to applications not so just as his may be, I cannot determine. That seems to be the only objection to relieving him.

I am informed by General Putnam that there are some of the Stockbridge Indians here, (I have not seen them myself,) who express great uneasiness at their not being employed by us, and have come to inquire into the cause. I am sensible Congress had them not in contemplation when they resolved that Indians might be engaged in our service. However, as they seem so anxious, as they were led to expect it from General Schuyler and the other Commissioners, as we are under difficulties in getting men, and there may be danger of their, or some of them, taking an unfavourable part, I beg leave to submit it as my opinion, under all these circumstances, that they had better be employed.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,
Go. WASHINGTON.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 22, 1776.

(Parole, Richmond.)

(Countersign, Savoy.)

The Orderly Sergeants who attend at Head-Quarters, are hereafter to bring their dinners, and wait till they are regularly relieved.

As it is much to be feared the state of the necessary houses in the city may endanger the health of the Troops quartered there, it is recommended to the officers and men to guard against it as much as possible; and if any method can be fallen on to remove or lessen the inconvenience, to apply to the Barrackmaster for that purpose. The General has noticed with pleasure the care of the Troops in the encampments, on this subject. He hopes they will continue it for the sake of their own health, and the credit of the Army.

It being represented to the General that many Regiments would at this season choose to lessen their rations of Meat, and supply it with Vegetables, if they could be permitted; his concern for the health of the Troops, and desire to gratify them in every reasonable request, induces him to direct that the Colonels of such Regiments as choose to adopt this plan, signify it to the Commissary-General, and in two days afterwards the Quartermaster of such Regiment be allowed to draw one-quarter part of the usual Rations in money, to be laid out in Vegetables for his Regiment.

Passes from Colonel Knox for the Officers and Soldiers of the Artillery only, to be sufficient to pass the Ferries.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 23, 1776.

(Parole, Trenton.)

(Countersign, Upton.)

Lieutenant Fuller, of Captain Keyes's Company, Twentieth Regiment, tried by a General Court-Martial, of which Lieutenant-Colonel Hobby was President, for "inoculating, and disobedience of orders," is honourably acquitted and discharged from his arrest.

It is with great astonishment and surprise the General hears that soldiers enlist from one corps to another, and frequently receive a bounty, and that some officers have knowingly received such men. So glaring a fraud upon the publick, and injury to the service, will be punished in the most exemplary manner; and the General most earnestly requests and expects of every good officer who loves his country not only to oppose such practices, but to make the offenders known, that they may be brought to justice.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 24, 1776.

(Parole, Virginia.)

(Countersign, Wales.)

Each Brigadier, with the Colonel and Commanding Officer of the several Regiments in his Brigade, are to meet and estimate the quantity of Paper absolutely necessary to serve a Regiment for Returns, and other publick uses, for a month, and make report thereof to the General at Orderly time on Friday next, that the Quartermaster-General may be directed to provide and deliver the same monthly to the Colonels for the use of their respective Regiments.

The General being sensible of the difficulty and expense of providing Clothes, of almost any kind, for the Troops, feels an unwillingness to recommend, much more to order, any kind of uniform; but as it is absolutely necessary that men should have Clothes, and appear decent and tight, he earnestly encourages the use of Hunting-Shirts, with long breeches made of the same cloth, gaiter-fashion about the legs, to all those yet unprovided. No dress can be had cheaper or more convenient, as the wearer may be cool in warm weather, and warm in cool weather, by putting on under-clothes, which will not change the outward dress, winter or summer; besides, it is a dress justly supposed to carry no small terror to the enemy, who think every such person a complete marksman.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 25, 1776.

(Parole, Abingdon.)

(Countersign, Bedford.)

Care to be taken in future, that the Provost Marshal's Guard be properly officered, there having been a complaint made on that head.

Henry Davis, tried for "Desertion," is sentenced to receive twenty lashes. Patrick Lyons, for "Drunkenness, and sleeping on his post," thirty lashes.

It is with inexpressible concern the General sees soldiers, fighting in the cause of liberty and their country, committing crimes most destructive to the Army, and which in all other Armies are punished with death. What a shame and reproach will it be, if soldiers, fighting to enslave us for two pence or three pence a day, should be more regular, watchful and sober than men who are contending for everything that is dear and valuable in life.

The honourable Continental Congress, in consideration of the Sergeant-Majors, Quartermaster Sergeants, Drum and Fife Majors not having pay adequate to their service, and hoping it will excite them to vigilance and industry, have been pleased to increase the pay of them—officers having no other appointment, one dollar per month, to commence the 16th instant.

Those soldiers who have entered on board the row-galley commanded by Cook, are to repair immediately on board; and the officer of the regiment to which they respectively belong, are to forward them as much as possible, as the service is of the most important kind.

Peter Gusten, Esquire, is appointed Major of Brigade to Brigadier-General Heard, and is to be obeyed and respected as such.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 26, 1776.

(Parole, Cambridge.)

(Countersign, Darby.)

The General Court-Martial to sit to-morrow for the trial of Ensign Bryant, now under arrest for "sending some soldiers to take away old iron, and other materials, from the ships now fitting for publick use."

A guard at Harrison's Brewery, to be mounted, consisting of one Subaltern, one Sergeant, one Corporal, and twenty-four Privates, every evening, and sentries to be posted at proper distances from the Air Furnace, along the shore, till they come opposite to Colonel Baldwin's Quarters.

General Greene being particularly engaged at present, passes signed by Lieutenant Blodgett are to be allowed sufficient to enable persons to cross the Ferries.

Complaints having been made that some of the soldiers ill treat the country-people who come to market, the General most positively forbids such behaviour, and hopes the officers will exert themselves to prevent it. Good policy, as well as justice, demands that they should have all possible encouragement, as the health of the soldiers much depends upon supplies of vegetables. Those who have been guilty of such practices will do well to consider what will be our situation, at this season, if we drive off the country-people, and break up the market: the healthy will soon be sick, and the sick must perish for want of necessaries. No favour will be shown to any offenders hereafter.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 27, 1776.

(Parole, Eppingham.)

(Countersign,)

Complaints are made, that officers who are to attend the men upon fatigue and other duty grow remiss. The General hopes they will consider what the effects of so bad an example might be to the men; and as he believes it proceeds rather from inattention than design, flatters himself there will be no occasion to remind them of their duty hereafter.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 28, 1776.

(Parole, Gravesend.)

(Countersign, Hungary.)

William Peck, Esq., who has for some time past done the duty of Brigade-Major to General Spencer, is appointed to that office, and to be obeyed and respected accordingly.

Some of the Adjutants have, of late, been very remiss in making up their returns by eleven o'clock, on Saturday, not sending their detachments properly officered, or relieving their Orderly-Sergeants at Head-Quarters. These gentlemen will, in future, be pointed out in the General Orders, and after that put under arrest, if they are not more attentive.

The General, finding the number of sick to increase, and being desirous to have them as well accommodated as possible, directs that the Barrack-Master, under the direction of the Colonel or Commanding Officer of each regiment, fix on some house convenient to the regiment, to be improved as an Hospital for the reception of patients just taken down, or whose disorder does not require any special assistance beyond that of their own Regimental Surgeon. One of the Surgeons of the Hospital will occasionally visit these Hospitals, and determine when the nature of the case requires the patient to be removed to the General Hospital, which will hereafter be kept in different houses contiguous to each brigade. The Regimental Surgeons are to receive directions from, and be responsible to, the Director-General, so far as respects the furnishing their Regimental Hospitals with conveniences for their sick. The Regimental Surgeons are also to keep a register of their sick, and make a weekly return to the Director and Commissary-General, severally, of the sick in their respective Regiments.

As the rations issued for men in health are very improper for those who are sick, the following regulations are to take place: Whenever a person is taken sick, he is not to be borne on the provision return; but the value of his rations be obtained in suitable supplies from the General Hospital, to be drawn by the Surgeon of the Regiment, who is to conform to the rules of diet established in the General Hospitals, and to account with the Director-General.

The Quartermaster of each Regiment to apply for necessaries at the Quartermaster-General's, for the sick. Guards to be on the parade every morning before eight o'clock.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 29, 1776.

(Parole, Jersey.)

(Countersign, Kingwood.)

The Quartermaster-General is directed to furnish twelve quires of Paper to each Regiment, per month, viz: one quire to the Commanding Officer of the Regiment, one to each Company, and one to the Adjutant; the remaining two quires to be kept by the Colonel, as a reserve for special occasions, exclusive of Orderly books and blank Returns.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 30, 1776.

(Parole, Lancaster.)

(Countersign, Medford.)

The Quartermaster-General is to provide canteens as soon as possible, and to have the water in the several works, in casks, examined, that there may be a fresh supply, if necessary.

It is represented to the General, that the pump-water in the city is very unhealthy. The Troops are therefore cautioned against the use of it; and the Quartermaster and Commissary Generals are to consult together, and fix upon some mode of supply of fresh water for the Troops in the city.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 31, 1776.

(Parole, Norwalk.)

(Countersign, Oxford.)

Ensign Bryant, charged with "embezzling publick property," having been tried by a General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Webb is President, is acquitted of any fraudulent intention, but censured by the Court for indiscretion, in permitting some of the soldiers taking away old iron from the shipping. The General approves of the sentence, and orders him to be discharged from arrest.

It is with astonishment and concern the General finds that the precautions used to prevent the countersign being made known to any not entitled to it, are defeated by the ignorance or misconduct of those to whom it is intrusted. In order that none may plead ignorance hereafter, the officers and soldiers are to know that the following rule is established:

The Adjutant General, at six o'clock, P. M., will deliver the parole and countersign to the Majors of Brigade and Adjutant of Artillery; they, at Retreat-beating, and not before, are to deliver them to the Adjutants of their respective Brigades. The Adjutants are to deliver them to the Field-Officers of their respective Brigades, if required; then to the officers of the advanced guards; then to the officer of every other guard in and about the city or camp. And the General flatters himself, that when the importance and necessity of secrecy upon this head is considered, every officer and soldier will pride himself in his fidelity, prudence, and discipline.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL HOWE.

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 30, 1776.

SIR: Lieutenant-Colonel Patterson, Adjutant-General of the Army under your command, at the interview between us, having proposed an exchange of Mr. Lovell for Governour Skene, I am authorized to inform you, that the Congress have not only approved of this proposition, but, judging that a general exchange of prisoners will be attended with mutual convenience and pleasure to both parties, have empowered their commanders in each department to negotiate one, in the following manner: "Continental officers for those of equal rank either in the land or sea service, soldier for soldier, sailor for sailor, and citizen for citizen." They have also particularly mentioned the exchange of Colonel Ethan Allen for any officer of the same or inferior rank.

You will be pleased to signify the time and place for that of Mr. Lovell and Governour Skene, that I may give direction for the latter to be ready, who is now at Hartford, about one hundred and twenty miles from hence; also, to favour me with your sentiments, as well on the proposition respecting Colonel Allen, as on the subject of a general exchange.

I have the honour to be, with due respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Lieutenant-General Howe.

BARON DE CALBIAC TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, July 30, 1776.

MY GENERAL: I cannot express to you how humiliating it is to a man who thinks that his sentiments are of the purest kind, to be the sport of evil-minded men, who, I am informed, have said many things to my prejudice to your Excellency. To convince you of the purity of my intentions, and to give you a just idea of my views in coming to this country, I have enclosed you the copies of letters which I have written to the Minister in France, having sent a duplicate to Colonel McKean, having also communicated it to General Mifflin.

I also enclose you my second commission, which I have found among my papers. I desire to be favoured with one minute of your Excellency's precious time.

Assuring your Excellency of my most respectful attachment to you and the glorious cause in which you fight,

I am your Excellency's most obedient,

LE BARON DE CALBIAC.

GENERAL WATERBURY TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, July 30, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Since my last, there are several companies arrived, and I intend immediately to post one company at Cheshire's, to clear the roads as fast as possible. I here send you a few peas, which is all I could get at present. I sent three or four miles round to get some butter to send to your Honour, but could not get one pound on any account whatever. Every man here is employed to the best advantage for the publick good; the chief of our men are obliged constantly to be on fatigue in assisting the carpenters.

I hope your Honour will excuse the gondola not coming sooner. The reason was they had much more to do than they expected to complete the platform for the mortar.

Axes and spades are very much wanted here, but shall endeavour to do with what we have until a supply comes.

I am, sir, with respect, your Honour's humble servant,

DAVID WATERBURY, Jun.

To the Hon. Major-General Gates, Ticonderoga.

CAPTAIN WYNKOOP TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, July 30, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I have sent you one gondola more down, which the carpenters have named after me. I hope you will send a good officer on board of her. I have had her made as strong as she could be made, which you will see by the work done in her. I also send you one sailor out of my regiment down. I would be glad you would order him on board immediately, or I am afraid he will run off and leave you. I will get one gondola and the row-galley finished this week, and send them down to you. As for boards, the General allows the soldiers and carpenters to use them as fast as I can possibly get them down as yet.

I am, dear General, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

CORNELIUS WYNKOOP.

To Major-General Gates, at Ticonderoga.

GENERAL ARNOLD TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Ticonderoga, July 30, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Your favour of the 20th instant, I received last night. I am sorry to hear your treaty with the Indians is so long retarded. You must have an infinite deal of trouble with them, which I am fearful will prejudice your health; and your presence is much wanted both at Skenesborough and this place. I wrote to you from the former place, the 25th instant, at which time only two companies of carpenters were arrived—one from Philadelphia and the other from Connecticut; since which, the whole have arrived, to the number of two hundred. I left them such directions as I thought necessary, and orders to begin four row-galleys, nearly of the construction of those built in Philadelphia, to carry four pieces heavy and two pieces light cannon each.

The two largest schooners are at Crown-Point. The sloop goes this morning, and four gondolas will follow in two or three days. I intend to visit Skenesborough on Monday next. I shall be happy to accelerate the business all in my power, and to take as much trouble from off your hands as possible, as I am sensible you have more than your share of it.

A Frenchman, who arrived here in fifteen days from St. François, confirms the intelligence respecting the Indians, and adds, that all the tribes in Canada were determined on a neutrality; that the troops were busy in building batteaus and several large vessels at St. John's; that General Carleton has given the French inhabitants notice of his intention of crossing Lake Champlain the last of August or beginning of September, and that he should depend on their joining him. If we were supplied with the articles I have written for, we shall soon be in a condition to give him a proper reception.

Enclosed is a return of the ordnance stores, shot, &c., &c., by which you will observe there are many articles wanting to complete the same; as also a great deficiency of shot, in particular grape, double-headed, chain, and round, which will be very serviceable among vessels and batteaus. More heavy cannon will be wanted for the row-galleys; the four now building will carry eight twenty-fours and eight eighteens; four others will be set up soon, and will require an equal number of guns. To supply the row-galleys and lines, we have only eleven pieces and ten twelve-pounders, which may answer, though not so well as heavier guns. If they are substituted, eleven pieces will still be wanting, with shot, &c., which I wish may be sent up, if they can possibly be procured. With the approbation of General Gates, I sent to Connecticut for three hundred seamen. The express had orders to call on you (if returned) and take your instructions in the matter. As it was uncertain if you were returned, I wrote Captain Varick, desiring him to give the express a warrant on the Paymaster-General for £1,000 to pay the bounty of the seamen. As the treasury was empty, he has proceeded on to General Washington. We are informed, that of the four regiments coming from Boston, there is a very considerable number of seamen, who are daily expected.

I am, &c.,

B. ARNOLD.

A Return of the Ordnance and Ordnance Stores at TICONDEROGA, together with the number of each article wanting to complete them for service, allowing forty rounds and ten case-shot to each gun; July 31, 1776.

Calibers of thought of Mr. Hops as a fit person for First Lieutenant among them. He was commissioned. I had not an opportunity of consulting him first. He has, upon consideration, thought proper to make his resignation. He apprehends the land service will suit him best, especially as he cannot have the men he could wish with him. He holds an Ensigny in the Sixth Battalion, which he prefers for the present. His wound is not cured yet: salt provision might be injurious to it. He hopes his conduct will not give offence.

Mr. Calderwood, an officer in this battalion, who is a scholar, and has been three years and a half in the sea service, part of which as a Midshipman on board a man-of-war, is desirous of serving as an officer of Marines on this Lake. He is a person of courage, and will show himself worthy of an appointment. I beg leave to recommend him to your Honour to be appointed a First Lieutenant of Marines on board the schooner Royal Savage, in the room of Mr. Hops. I would be very glad that his commission should bear the same date with that to Mr. Hops.

Mr. Calderwood is a good draughtsman, and may be useful in this particular also on the Lake.

I am afraid my writing so often may give you offence, but I shall not be so troublesome for the future.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your humble servant,
THOS. HARTLEY.

To Major-General Gates.

CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety, July 30, 1776:

Present: His Honour the Governour; Elipht. Dyer, Jz. Huntington, Richd. Law, Titus Hosmer, Jed. Elderkin, Wm. Hillhouse, Nathl. Wales, and Benj. Huntington, Esqs.

Voted and allowed to Prosper Wetmore, Esq., Sheriff of the County of New-London, the sum of £12 2s. 10d., for his expense and trouble in supporting and guarding twenty-two Continental prisoners, taken by Commodore Hopkins, and transporting them, with their baggage, to Windham Jail, as per bill.

Also voted and allowed to said Wetmore the sum of £11 4s., for transporting Dr. Church, by order of Congress, from Norwich to Boston, and from thence to Watertown, as per bill.

Also voted and allowed to said Wetmore the sum of £9 5s., for his trouble and expense with Dr. Church whilst a prisoner in his care, from November 1775, until the 27th of May, 1776, and for his trouble in waiting on Dr. Church abroad for his health, at sundry times, during his imprisonment, as was ordered by Congress; amounting, in the whole, to £32 11s. 10d., lawful money.

(Order drawn and delivered Mr. Wetmore.)

Voted and allowed to Ebenezer Backus, Jun., of Norwich, the sum of £12 2s. 8d., for victualling nineteen prisoners and their guards five days, as per bill 30th July, 1776.

(Order drawn on the back of the bill, and delivered Mr. Wetmore.)

Voted to draw an order on the Pay-Table for a £1000, in favour of Mr. Nathaniel Shaw, Jun., for the Colony use, and to render account.

(Order drawn 30th July, and delivered to Colonel Huntington.)

Voted the following Instructions to his Honour Colonel Huntington, from his Honour the Governour and Council of Safety:

You are directed to proceed to New-London, with all possible despatch, and there, in behalf and for the use of the Colony, in conjunction with your son Mr. Andrew Huntington, to purchase necessary clothing for the Troops of this Colony, as you can procure upon the most reasonable terms. You are also to treat with the owner of the Bermudian sloop, brought into said port by the Continental fleet, for the purchase thereof, and to find out his terms, conditions, &c., and report make; and in the mean time to lay an injunction against the said sloop's leaving said port till further orders from this Board be had thereon. And you, with your son, are to purchase all the swivel-guns and the shot belonging to them, one-third of the cannon and shot, and also one hundred stand of arms, and all the lead-shot lately brought into said port by a French sloop.

Memorandum.—There is a quantity of timber, plank, &c., at Hayden's Yard in Saybrook, which belongs to the Colony, and must, at some seasonable time, be taken care of.

WORCESTER (MASSACHUSETTS) COMMITTEE.

Worcester, July 30, 1776.

Agreeably to a Resolve of the Continental Congress, the Committee of the Town of Worcester having liberated Alexander Gardner and John Thornhill, two prisoners of war, that they might support themselves by their labour; and on the 28th day of July instant they went from this town together, and have not since returned. Gardner had on, when he went away, a red coat lappelled with buff, buttons marked 10; he has been a drummer in the Twenty-Third Regiment of Fusiliers. Thornhill has been a sailor, had on a sailor's blue jacket, speaks something slow, pretty tall. Whoever will take up and return the said prisoners to the Committee of Safety, &c., for the Town of Worcester, shall receive four dollars reward, and all reasonable charges, or two dollars for either of them.

NATHAN BALDWIN, Chairman.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO THEOPHILUS CUSHING.

In Council, July 30, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by the Committee of Council to inform you that there are many complaints from different parts of this State for want of camp-kettles, canteens, &c., which you, as one of the Committee, were to provide. I need not press the necessity of forwarding them immediately, when I inform you that the men are now waiting on the road for those articles, and are very uneasy, to the great detriment of this State; therefore the Committee of Council earnestly request that you forward them without further delay.

By order of Council: JOHN AVERY, Dep. Secretary.
To Theophilus Cushing, Esq.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO JOSEPH NYE, JUN.

In Council Chamber, July 30, 1776.

SIR: In answer to your request of the 26th instant, we would have you proceed to muster and form your men into companies, agreeable to the resolve of Court for raising the men, and make return thereof to Council as soon as possible; upon which you will receive further orders.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM DOVER, IN ENGLAND, DATED JULY 31, 1776.

The Zachary Bayley, from Jamaica for London, and the Creighton, from Antigua, with rum for the Army, were taken by the Yankee privateer, Captain Johnson, carrying nine four-pounders, sixteen swivels, and forty-three men. The prizes were sent to New-England, and the masters, together with a Midshipman of the Experiment, man-of-war, who was a passenger, and eleven seamen, were taken on board the privateer. On the 3d of July they seized the privateer without bloodshed, and have brought her to Dover. They were chased by two sloops, whom they imagined to be American privateers, but durst not engage them because of the number of prisoners they had on board.

Captain Johnson (the American commander of the privateer) complained of the illiberal treatment he received, by being insulted frequently while at sea, calling him by the most opprobrious names, and threatening him with the cruellest and most savage punishments; and also for suffering many people to come on board after the privateer arrived in the river to insult him in the grossest terms, though he was then a prisoner. And when his brother came to see him, after a three years' absence, they were not permitted to talk together one minute in private.

The prisoners on board the Yankee privateer having petitioned not to be closely confined, but that they might be put to some employment, upon which it was agreed that they should be placed on board the guardships. The vessel was afterwards ordered to be sold, and the money to be given to the captors.

To His Excellency General LEE, Commander-in-Chief, &c.:
The Petition of the Inhabitants of the Parish of St.
GEORGE, and St. PAUL, including the ceded lands in the Province of GEORGIA, most humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners, living on the frontiers of the western parts of the Province of Georgia aforesaid, are much exposed to the barbarous attacks of the Creek Indians, and more especially from the intercourse which necessarily must subsist between them and the Indian traders, whilst an Indian trade is carried on, as it tends to bring those savages down into the settlements, and they seldom return without either committing murder or robbery, and generally both, upon the white people. That this trade is of the utmost prejudice to your petitioners, and the rest of the Province, excepting only a few men immediately concerned in it. And we would further represent to your Excellency, that at the treaty held between Sir James Wright, Bart., and John Stuart, Esq., on behalf of George the Third, and the Headmen and Warriors of the same nation, in the year 1774, the Indian traders, from self-interested views, then recommended it to the said Sir James Wright and John Stuart to reject a certain offer made to them by the said Headmen and Warriors of a most valuable cession of a tract of land lying or being on Oconee River, being a fork of the Alatamaha, and by nature formed for the benefit and advantage of the inhabitants, in giving them an opportunity of sending and exporting their produce to market. And your petitioners can with truth assure your Excellency, that if the Indian trade was banished, it would be not only the means of restoring peace and tranquillity to this back country, but likewise would encourage people to come and settle therein. That your petitioners submit to your Excellency's wise consideration how far prudent it might be to make an attempt to exterminate and rout those savages out of their nation, as it appears to your petitioners that a sufficient force might (with your Excellency's assistance) now be raised against them; and in such case your petitioners will be ready, at the hazard of their lives and fortunes, to unite together for so desirable a purpose. May it, therefore, please your Excellency to take the premises into mature deliberation, and to grant such relief to your petitioners as your Excellency may think most proper. And your petitioners will ever pray.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM CHARLESTOWN, SOUTH-CAROLINA, DATED JULY 31, 1776.

We are just setting out for the burning sands of Georgia. An expedition is planned against part of East-Florida. Two brothers of Governour Wright, with many others, are intrenched on St. Mary's River, which divides Florida from Georgia. Besides the great number of negroes they have of their own, others flock to them. Colonel Somers's regiment from North-Carolina, and Major White, of North-Carolina, with two companies of volunteers, have marched; and Colonel Muhlenberg's regiment only waits for wagons to transport their baggage.

GENERAL HOOPER TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Dorchester County, July 31, 1776.

SIR: The conduct of Lieutenant Levi Willen and Ensign Job Todd, both of Captain Lake's company of Militia, has of late been such as to give great reason to suspect their principles are unfriendly to American liberty, and which I think renders them unfit to hold their commissions. I therefore make this representation of them to your honourable Board, that you may take such order therein as you think necessary.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your most obedient servant,
HENRY HOOPER.

To Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, President of the Council of Safety.

CAPTAIN SMITH TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Fort at Whetstone, July 31, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: There is a soldier belonging to Captain Bowie's company (formerly Colonel Ewing's) who deserted, and was taken up two days ago, and put into the prison in Baltimore. Colonel Ewing desired I would send his men to join their company as soon as I had an opportunity. I should be glad you would let me know, as soon as convenient, whether the Sheriff must be allowed what is common for taking up servants, and the prison fees. You will observe he is committed by the name of Samuel Johnson; his name is John Montgomery.

I should be glad to know who I am to apply to as doctor in Mr. Weisenthal's absence. If it would be agreeable to you, would apply to Doctor Coulter, who I think the most skilful in this place, and will do it as cheap as any one.

I am, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

NATH. SMITH.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

DORCHESTER COUNTY COMMITTEE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee of Observation, Dorchester County, }
July 31, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: We herewith send, under a guard to your Board, Joseph Wheeland, Junior, John Evans, and Robert Howith, who were lately taken in Hooper's Straits, in the service of Lord Dunmore, by a party of Major Fallen's men, and sent by the Major to us, as by his letter, which we have enclosed for your perusal, will appear. The depositions of Joseph Mareman, and Moses Yell, which are mentioned in the enclosed letter, we have since received from Captain Eccleston, the Magistrate who took them, which we have also enclosed. We have not seen Captain Eccleston since he took the depositions, but are informed Mareman and Yell have returned home, on a promise that they will attend your Board on notice. We apprehend the prisoners will not deny their being in the service of Dunmore; but if they should, and any further evidence should be necessary to prove that fact, on your informing us of it we believe such may be easily had.

Wheeland is the man who, the last Convention (as we are told) were informed, served as pilot to Dunmore's vessels up to Nanticoke Point, and he confesses to us he was with the party who took cattle from Hopkins's Island.

We are, gentlemen, your obedient servants.

Signed per order of Committee:

EDWARD NOEL, Chairman.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety, Annapolis.

Joseph Mareman, being sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, deposes and saith: That about the 15th day of this instant, he, with Moses Yell, left the mouth of Hungar-River, in a vessel bound to Potomack, loaded with plank and tar; but being a hard gale and a large swell, they were obliged to put back; but on their attempting to put back, the tide headed them. They afterwards hove about, and stood for the mouth of Potomack again; and about daybreak they espied Lord Dunmore's fleet, at the distance of about a mile. They then hove about, and stood for Smyth's Island, and there came to anchor. They staid there about two or three hours. The wind moderated. This deponent went ashore to Smyth's Island, in order to buy some fish, and to seek for a canoe he had lost the night before, and to inquire if there was no inlet there to make a better harbour, and to get some fire to cook with. Before he got ashore, he saw two men in a canoe, making towards him, which he understood afterwards were Joseph Wheeland, Jun., and one Lazarus, a Mulatto; and by the time he got ashore, they came up with him. This deponent says, they then asked him from whence he came, and what he had in. His answer was, they had plank and tar; that they were from Potomack, loaded in Hungar-River, and bound to Potomack again. Wheeland then asked this deponent if he did not belong to the fleet? This deponent asked, what fleet? They answered, the English fleet. This deponent answered, he did not. He then asked, who he was for, either the country or the King? This deponent told him, he did not choose to intermeddle with either side. He then asked him, how many men he had on board? This deponent told him, there was but one person besides himself. He then asked him, (this deponent,) if he was a Tory or not? He then told him he could not tell. The said Joseph Wheeland then told him he belonged to the English fleet, and he must go along with him. He then asked him if he was willing to stay with the fleet. He then told him, (the said Wheeland,) no; for he had a wife and children, and wanted to get home as soon as possible. The said Wheeland said he would not detain any person that had a family against their will; but if they had no family, they should go. He then asked him for some victuals, for he was very hungry. He then ordered him to get into the canoe with the Mulatto fellow, Lazarus, and go up to the three schooners that lay in the creek, and tell some person to give him some victuals; and while he was giving orders, there came two other persons in a canoe, with a case of gin and rum, and gave him a dram. He then got out of his canoe, and sent one of the other persons with him, and he, the said Wheeland, and one of the persons in the other canoe, proceeded on board Captain Yell. We went some part of the way in the canoe, till they came to an anchor. They then took it in, and ordered him to keep along shore. As this deponent was going along, he met with one of the Islanders, and had some conversation with him, till the said Joseph Wheeland came up with the said Captain Yell, and then took him aboard said canoe, and carried him, the said deponent, with the said Yell, on board the schooners that lay in the creek's mouth aforesaid, in Smyth's Island, where there was likewise a sloop dismasted, as they understood, which belonged to one White, up Nanticoke; and when they came aboard, they saw about twenty persons sharing of plunder, and as they understood were all county born, except one. This deponent, with Captain Yell, requested the said Joseph Wheeland to go on shore. He then told them they might, but that Yell must leave his clothes on board. They then went on shore, and got some victuals at Richard Evans's. After some time, Marmaduke Mister, and sundry persons, came to the said house, and took supper. Some time after supper, Marmaduke Mister told this deponent and Captain Yell that they must go aboard, for they could not keep guard aboard and on shore too. They then ordered them on board. As they were going along, he said, God damn you! do you go before the guard? John Evans said it would make no difference. He, the said Mister, said, they should not go before the guard. When they got on board, they ordered them down into the cabin, where they remained all night. There were several on the guard, viz: Joseph Wheeland, John Evans, John Price, Robert Howith, and one Dial, and several others that he did not know, which said persons, as mentioned above, are under guard at Hooper's Straits, except the said Dial. The next morning, Joseph Wheeland ordered three hands to bring up the vessel. They informed, when they returned, that she was between two bars, and they could not get her off. John Evans then persuaded the said Joseph Wheeland to let the men have the vessel again, as she would not be of any use to them. Wheeland then told this deponent, that Captain Yell might have the vessel if they would get her off. This deponent and Yell then went down to the vessel; and when the said deponent and Yell returned, the said Yell told the said Wheeland that he could get her off, and wanted his said clothes and money. He then refused him his clothes and vessel, and said he must have the tar; but if he would wait till he was gone to the fleet, he might have the residue of his cargo and vessel. The said deponent and Yell went to unloading the said vessel, and took out six barrels of tar, and put them on board Richard Evans's boat, and told the said Wheeland that he should have the residue as soon as he could come at it. Wheeland told the said deponent that he had just received orders to come immediately to the fleet, and to burn that vessel that was understood to be White's. The said Yell then asked him for his clothes and money. He then gave him part of his clothes, and told him some person had stolen his money, and that he might have his vessel and all his load. This deponent says that he heard the said Joseph Wheeland tell the said Marmaduke Mister, that if he would see the aforesaid sloop that belonged to White burnt, he might have the iron of said vessel; upon which, said vessel was burnt; that the said Joseph Wheeland went off immediately.

The said Yell and this deponent hired hands, and got off their vessel, and carried her to the creek aforesaid, in order to take in the remainder of her load; and before he had got her loaded, two tenders came in with the Island, and the said deponent and Captain Yell went on shore; and as soon as they got on shore, two persons came down the creek, and went on board the said vessel, and carried her over to the fleet. One of the persons, as this deponent was informed, was Isaac Summers, from Little Annamesick, the other a lad unknown. The aforesaid Joseph Wheeland was, as this deponent understood, esteemed the commanding officer of the said vessel; and further saith not.

Joseph Mareman lives in St. Mary's County, near Leonard-Town, on Breton's Bay.

Moses Yell, being sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, depose and saith: That some time about the 15th instant, this deponent was going in a vessel to Potomack River with tar and plank; but on seeing Dunmore's fleet, this deponent returned, and anchored under Smith's Island. About two or three hours after he had anchored, Joseph Wheeland, with one other man unknown to this deponent, came on board the vessel this deponent was in. Joseph Wheeland asked this deponent if he saw the fleet. This deponent answered that he had seen the fleet, and returned in consequence of it. Joseph Wheeland then asked this deponent whence he came, and where he was bound, and who he was for. This deponent answered, he had not a design to kill any person, but was a friend to his country. Joseph Wheeland then asked this deponent who he thought was right—the King, or the Shirtmen. This deponent answered that he thought the Americans were right. Joseph Wheeland then told this deponent he was for the fleet, and had orders from Lord Dunmore to take any vessel belonging to the Rebels, and destroy such as he thought proper, and carry the rest to the fleet. The said Wheeland then demanded a sight of this deponent's papers, which this deponent gave him. The said Wheeland then took the papers, a pocket-book, about forty shillings cash, and all the clothes belonging to this deponent that were in the vessel, except what he had on, and carried this deponent, together with the clothes and money, on board a tender which he informed this deponent he had the command of; and likewise the said Wheeland informed him he had the command of the other two vessels that were with the one this deponent was put on board of.

This deponent saith, the said Wheeland told him he had taken a vessel belonging to White, in Nanticoke, and that he (Wheeland) intended to fit her out with four four-pounders and twelve swivels to guard the Islands, and keep the Shirtmen from going on to abuse the inhabitants. The aforesaid Wheeland told him he must take out the mast from his vessel, (Yell's), and put it in the vessel he had taken from White, which was then driven aground, and had lost her mast; but before he had got her over the bar, he (Yell) understood from an old man on board the tender, that Wheeland had received an express from the fleet ordering him to come up to Potomack, to assist the fleet in getting water, as quickly as possible, as orders were come to the fleet to go out as soon as they could—part to Martinico, to fight the French, (as they expected a war there,) and a part to New-York or Halifax. Wheeland soon after ordered fire set to White's vessel, and one other which he had not got over the bar; and put this deponent on shore, gave him part of his clothes, and told him he might take his boat again. This deponent saith that Marmaduke Mister was one of the persons that kept guard over him one night while he was on board the tender. The aforesaid Mister asked this deponent who he was for, whether King or country. This deponent answered, he was friend to every person that behaved well. The aforesaid Mister then commanded, in the King's name, to tell him the truth. This deponent then told him he was born in this country, and had a right to defend his liberty. Mister then said, what them damned Rebels call liberty, I call slavery, and so the people will find it. This deponent further saith, that Marmaduke Mister set fire to one of the vessels that was burnt, and was to have the iron for doing it. This deponent saith that John Evans, Robert Howith, and one Price, were likewise on board the same tender, under the command of the aforesaid Joseph Wheeland, (he supposes,) as he often heard them call him Captain. This deponent saith he heard John Evans say he was determined to have several of the principal people on the Islands, either dead or alive, or get some of their negroes. This deponent saith he has seen Joseph Wheeland, John Evans, Robert Howith, and Price, the four persons above mentioned, since they have been under guard at the Straits, and that they are the same persons that he saw on board of the tender above mentioned. This deponent further saith, on his asking Joseph Wheeland for his clothes, Wheeland threatened to put him in irons in the vessel's hole. This deponent likewise saith, that John Evans told him not to be uneasy about his clothes and money, for that Wheeland would give them to him after he was ready to go from the Island, for the paper money would be of no more use to him than blank paper.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO MAJOR PRICE.

[No. 99.]

Annapolis, July 31, 1776.

SIR: Captain Mantz, who commands a company of the Frederick battalion, well armed and accoutred, this day marches to relieve Captain Thomas and his company, whom you may thereupon order up to this place in his way to the camp to the northward. He may leave his pots to Captain Mantz's company to cook with, and may be supplied here with camp-kettles or pots more portable than those he has now in possession. Captain Mantz will occupy the posts and places where Captain Thomas's company were stationed, until further orders.

The officers despatched by you to give Captain Nicholson notice, not being able to overtake him, had very nearly occasioned a loss of the Defence. She was becalmed, and obliged to come to an anchor, tide against her. The English fleet had a wind, which brought them down Potomack within three miles of her, where she lay becalmed, when fortunately a breeze sprung up, which enabled her to escape. They heard no firing at your camp.

We are glad to hear the cannon proves good, as it will be advantageous to the Province, and a greater encouragement to those who use them in time of engagement, as they will put the more confidence in the rest. We are also well pleased on the account of Mr. Hughes's succeeding in the way to satisfaction.

We received copies of Mr. Eden's, Mr. Wolstenholme's, and Mr. Forrest's letters, and still retain the opinion communicated to you in our last, and of which we informed Colonel Barnes, in answer to his packet, that it is unsafe, at this period of time, to permit Mr. Wolstenholme to depart this Province, and the more especially as he would not engage secrecy with respect to our movements and present situation; and his letter to Mr. Eden, of the 20th July, so far from removing, has impressed it more forcibly on our minds.

We are sorry for the fatigue and hard fare you have met with, and would alleviate it as much as lies in our power; it is only the fortune de la guerre. Another time, we hope you will have quarters more agreeable. We doubt not your humanity will interest you so far in favour of the sick as to have all the care taken of them you can. We have heretofore written you about the cannon coming up by water, after the departure of the enemy.

We are, &c.

To Major Thomas Price.

P. S. We have some powder and small-arms arrived at Wicomico, in Virginia, as you will see by the enclosed receipt, and should be glad of your opinion how we could contrive it across in the safest manner to the Maryland side of Potomack.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THOMAS JONES.

[No. 100.]

Annapolis, July 31, 1776.

SIR: We thank your Committee for the care they have and intend to take of the Molly's cargo belonging to our Province. We are not yet certain whether we shall order wagons from Alexandria, or send a vessel to the mouth of Potomack for it. This will depend upon the information we may receive from Major Price, who has the command of our troops stationed on St. Mary's River. Should he think that it may be transported across the river without risk, either above or below St. Mary's, it is probable we shall adopt what he may recommend.

We are, &c.

To Thomas Jones, Esq., Chairman of Committee of Observation for Northumberland County.

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. I.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN CONWAY.

[No. 101.]

Annapolis, July 31, 1776.

SIR: Our Council would be very glad to see you immediately at Annapolis, to consult you about another voyage for the Molly, and also to be informed of the particulars that have happened relative to her last. We are, &c.

To Captain Thomas Conway.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO JOSEPH GILPIN.

[No. 102.]

Annapolis, July 31, 1776.

SIR: Mr. Woolsey, of Baltimore-Town, informs us that he has heard there is a good flint quarry about two miles from the head of Elk, and of course, we are told, must be near your house, on your land.

The Congress, foreseeing the necessity of having gun-flints manufactured among us, have requested the strictest search to be made after, and earliest intelligence given them of the discovery of any such quarry in any of the Independent States. We request you will make inquiry, and acquaint us of the success of the inquiry with all the speed in your power. We are, &c.

To Joseph Gilpin, Esq.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO ALEXANDER MCFADON.

[No. 103.]

Annapolis, July 31, 1776.

SIR: There is an immediate demand for tenting and shirt-making linen for the troops raised by this Colony in the Continental service. It would be extremely serviceable to the publick, and agreeable to us, that you would exert yourself all in your power to furnish this Province with what quantities you can, and send it directly to this place.

We are, &c.

To Mr. Alexander McFadon, Georgetown.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, July 31, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The service at the Flying-Camp requiring some pieces of artillery, I have it in charge from Congress to request you will immediately send to General Mercer ten six-pounders, and an equal number of four-pounders. If you cannot furnish them out of the stores of the State of Pennsylvania, I am to request you will procure them with all possible despatch, and forward them to Amboy in New-Jersey. Whatever number you can spare, you will please to forward immediately, and procure the remainder as soon as possible. Your ardour and zeal in the cause of your country will, I am persuaded, supersede the necessity of arguments to induce you to an immediate compliance with this requisition.

I have the honour to be, with respect, gentlemen, your most obedient, and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Pennsylvania.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, July 31, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed resolves, which I do myself the honour of transmitting, are so explicit that I need only refer your attention to them.

You will please to give such orders with regard to building boats for the service of the Flying-Camp as you shall judge necessary. A copy of General Mercer's letter to Congress on this subject you have enclosed.

I have written to the Council of Safety of this State to forward to General Mercer ten six-pounders and an equal number of four-pounders, with the greatest expedition. Your favour of the 29th came safe to hand, and was immediately laid before Congress. I have forwarded to Generals Schuyler and Mercer a copy of the enclosed resolves, as far as they relate to their respective departments.

I have the honour to be, with sentiments of the greatest respect and esteem, sir, your most obedient, and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. Upon conversing with General Sullivan, and stating to him the reasons of Congress's promoting General Gates over him, he desired me to move for leave to withdraw his application to resign, in which the Congress have acquiesced. He has now orders to repair to New-York, where you will please to assign him such post of duty as you shall think proper.

A Continental ship arrived at Chester with three hundred and sixty-six pigs of lead, fifty-four boxes musket balls, one thousand stand of arms with bayonets, one barrel flints, one hundred and ninety-three whole barrels powder.

[Endorsed on cover of Letter by J. H., Esq.:
Also, a privateer has brought in a West-Indiaman bound to London, having on board, besides produce, eleven hundred johannes, seven hundred guineas, &c.]

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO BENJAMIN FLOWER.

Philadelphia, July 31, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed commission of Commissary of Military Stores for the Flying-Camp has been ready for you ever since the date of it. I should have forwarded it sooner if I had known where to send it. It was not till yesterday I heard you were with Colonel Dickinson at the Flying-Camp.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Benjamin Flower, New-Jersey.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL MERCER.

Philadelphia, July 31, 1776.

SIR: I do myself the honour of transmitting the enclosed resolves, by which you will perceive that your application to Congress relative to building boats for the use of the Flying-Camp, is referred to General Washington, to whom I have written on the subject, by this conveyance, to give such directions as he shall judge necessary. I have also written to the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania, to forward to you immediately ten six-pounders, and an equal number of four-pounders. The Congress have allowed you a Secretary as long as you shall continue to act in a separate command. The sixty thousand dollars for the use of the Flying-Camp will be sent as soon as possible.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Brigadier-General Mercer, New-Jersey.

P. S. The appointment of a Brigade-Major resting entirely with yourself, you are authorized to nominate one as soon as ever you shall think proper.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, July 31, 1776.

SIR: I am so extremely hurried that I have only time to forward the enclosed resolves of Congress, which are indeed so explicit, that there is not the least occasion to enlarge. I must therefore request your attention to them, and beg leave to conclude, by assuring you that I am, with sentiments of real respect and esteem, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Schuyler, Albany, or elsewhere.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

Philadelphia, July 31, 1776.

SIR: The Continental troops being ordered from Boston to New-York, and the Massachusetts-Bay left to depend entirely on their Militia, I am to inform you, that should the Assembly of that State think proper to call any of them into the field, you will in that case take care that they are supplied with rations, making the enclosed resolve of Congress the rule of your conduct.

I am, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Joseph Trumbull, Esq., Com'y General, at New-York.

GENERAL MERCER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Perth-Amboy, July 31, 1776.

SIR: This morning two Negroes were brought to me who made their escape last night from Staten-Island, and were taken up by our guards at South-Amboy. Their examination contains nothing new, but is sent enclosed for your perusal.

By the report of the commanding officer at the above mentioned post, it appears that thirty-nine sail of square-rigged vessels, three of them men-of-war, have come in from sea within these three days.

I have the honour to be, sir, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

HUGH MERCER.

Examination of two Negroes, Deserters from STATEN-ISLAND, JULY 31, 1776.

The Examination of Joshua, a Negro slave, belonging to Peter Peleyon, of Richmond County, on Staten-Island, taken at Perth-Amboy, July 31st, 1776, before Hugh Mercer, Esq., Brigadier-General.

Saith he hath lived on the south side of Staten-Island, in Richmond County aforesaid, for the space of nine years; that having gone to see the fleet on Sunday last, his master threatened him with a beating; that at the Watering Place there is a large encampment with many soldiers. He has heard of no other large encampment on the Island, except at the post at Billop's Point. He has overheard discourses among the enemy, of attacking New-York, when Lord Howe's fleet shall arrive, before which time they should not have a sufficient number of men to pursue their design with; that the troops on the Island are almost all Irish and Scotch; that the English regiments are to come over with Lord Howe's fleet; that said fleet was to consist of two hundred sail; that the enemy have yet a plenty of provisions. This ex-aminant overheard an officer threaten to come over to the Jerseys, for stock, by-and-by. The Tories are well treated by the British troops; Governour Tryon has set a price on provisions; the soldiers are divided among the plantations within his knowledge on the east side of the Island.

Lawrence, another Negro slave, belonging to the above mentioned Peter Peleyon, being examined, in like manner as the above named Joshua, saith: He has lived with Peleyon eight years; that an officer and fourteen soldiers live at his master's house. He believes the greatest number of soldiers to be on the shore near the place where the fleet lies.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read August 5, 1776.]

New-York, July 31, 1776.

SIR: This will be handed you by Captain Marquesie, with whom I have no other acquaintance than what is derived from the enclosed letter from General Schuyler. He says he has lost his baggage and all he had in our service. I have advanced him twenty dollars, and he is now going to wait on Congress, to whom I suppose he means to make his pretensions known.

I have the Honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,
GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress.

EPHRAIM ANDERSON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

New-York, July 31, 1776.

SIR: I beg leave just to inform you that I have been for some time past very assiduous in the preparation of fire ships. Two are already complete and hauled off in the stream; two more will be off to-morrow, and the residue in a very short time. In my next I hope to give you a particular account of a general conflagration, as everything in my power shall be exerted in the demolition of the enemy's fleet. I expect to take an active part, and be an instrument for that purpose. I am determined (God willing) to make a conspicuous figure among them, by being a "burning and shining light," and thereby serve my country, and have the honour of meeting the approbation of Congress.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient, and very humble servant,

EPHRAIM ANDERSON.

To the Hon. John Hancock, President of the Honourable Continental Congress, Philadelphia.

P. S. The bearer, Captain Marquesie, Engineer, I have been acquainted with, in our service in Canada, and recommend him as a deserving officer.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

New-York, July 31, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your favours of the 14th, 17th, 20th, and 24th, have been duly received, and I am extremely happy to find that you have discovered and apprehended some of the ringleaders of a dangerous plot you say was forming in the neighbourhood of Albany; nor do I hear with little pleasure of the harmony and good agreement between you and General Gates, knowing how essential they are to the service.

Agreeable to your request, I communicated to Mr. Trumbull that part of your letter respecting Mr. Livingston, and your apprehensions of his resigning in case any person should be appointed to act independently of him in the business he usually managed. Upon this occasion I must observe, that as Mr. Trumbull has the supreme direction given him by Congress of supplying the Northern Army, and is the person that is to be accountable if it is not done in a proper manner, his appointment should and must be regarded, or things in this instance will never proceed in a regular channel, and fatal consequences will otherwise ensue. Mr. Trumbull, I believe, has written to Mr. Livingston on the subject, and I imagine has mentioned in what manner he would have him to act; and also given necessary instructions to his deputies.

It gives me great satisfaction to hear that taking post at Fort Stanwix has not given umbrage to the Indians; and also that those who were at Philadelphia and this place, have returned to their several nations with such favourable ideas of our strength and resources. From this circumstance I am hopeful you will be able to engage them in our interest, and, with the assistance of the reward allowed by Congress, to excite their efforts to make prisoners of our enemies. I would have you press the matter strongly in both instances; and though you should not succeed, I flatter myself you will secure their neutrality. That will be an important point to gain.

I conceive it will not only be proper, but absolutely necessary, to request General Howe to deliver up the officers, who, regardless of their paroles, have escaped from Pennsylvania, and all other that have acted in the same manner, pointing out the impropriety of such conduct, and the difficulty it lays us under as to the line of treatment to be observed to others. In a conversation with the Adjutant-General of the King's Army, I touched upon this subject, and he assured me all complaints of this nature would be strictly attended to by General Howe, and those who gave rise to them be handled with severity. Lord Howe, too, I am confidently informed, has expressed his great disapprobation of such behaviour, and said that those who were guilty of it should be severely noticed if they came into his hands. Every thinking and sensible person must see the impropriety of it, and the consequences that must attend it. I should suppose the requisition will claim General Burgoyne's attention, and be readily complied with.

The swivels you mention cannot be had; but if the experiments of a person who has undertaken to cast some three-pounders should succeed, perhaps after some time you may be furnished in part with a quantity of these. Colonel Knox seems to think they will be far superior to swivels. The man supposes that after he begins he will be able to complete twenty every week. Neither are there any hand-grenades. We have a large number of 4½-inch shells, which might be a good substitute. But I do not know how things of this sort can be forwarded to you, as the water communication with Albany is entirely cut off. The difficulty will be great if not almost insuperable.

I observe your reasons for quitting Crown-Point, and preferring Ticonderoga. My knowledge of the importance of the former was not properly my own; it arose from the information I had from gentlemen and persons who were, or said they were, well acquainted with it, and the situation of the country about it. Being founded on that, I cannot say anything myself upon the subject. Your representation of it most certainly lessens its consequence in a capital degree. However, I am fearful the observation of the Field-Officers, "that the New-England Governments, &c., will be thereby exposed to the incursions of our cruel and savage enemies," will be but too well verified. If that post could not have been maintained, this evil, with others greater, must have happened.

In respect to the privilege you have given the officers who hold double commissions to retain which they choose, I cannot object, if the authority giving them was the same, and such as was exercised usually and approved. I see no cause for it, and suppose the officers have that right. As to Lieutenant-Colonel Buell's case, I cannot give any direction about it, not having authority to appoint officers generally.

It is not in my power to spare you any money from hence. Our chest is all but empty. Congress would be informed by your letters of your situation, doubtless; I mentioned it in mine; and have suggested, as I often have, the expediency, nay the necessity, of keeping regular supplies.

Nothing of moment has occurred here lately. The enemy are growing stronger. For some time past ships, &c., have been coming in to them more or less. All the eastward accounts say that three or four captures have been made lately, among them a provision vessel from Ireland, which of herself came into Boston harbour. In the Southern Department we have been still more lucky: Sir Peter Parker and his fleet got a severe drubbing in an attack against our works on Sullivan's Island, just by Charlestown, South-Carolina. A part of their troops at the same time attempting to land were repulsed. The papers, I presume, have reached you announcing this fortunate event, where you will see the particulars transmitted by General Lee to Congress.

I am, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To General Schuyler.

MEMORIAL OF THE REGIMENTAL SURGEONS TO CONGRESS, JULY, 1776.

To the Honourable the Representatives of the United Free and Independent States of AMERICA:

The Memorial of the Regimental Surgeons in the Army commanded by his Excellency General WASHINGTON, most respectfully sheweth:

That, immediately after the battles of Lexington and of Bunker's Hill, the 19th April and 17th June, 1775, the inhabitants of the country rising in defence of their lives, liberty, and property, an Army was suddenly collected in the Province of Massachusetts-Bay, from that and the neighbouring Colonies: that Surgeons and Mates were appointed to take charge of the several regiments, and furnished at that time with such supplies of Medicines, Bandages, and Chirurgical Instruments, as could be procured on that emergency from the respective Colonies in which the regiments were raised, for the use of the sick and wounded in the several regiments to which they belonged: that the honourable Continental Congress, having afterwards appointed a Director-General and Physician-in-Chief, with power and instructions to establish a General Hospital for the reception of the sick and wounded, under certain regulations, agreed and fixed upon by the Congress, with Surgeons, Mates, and other officers to take care of them, no mention was then made of, or any orders given for, the regulation of the Regimental Surgeons and Mates, or allowance of Regimental Hospitals, which are thought necessary in regular Armies. That the said Regimental Surgeons and Mates were thus left destitute of necessities and conveniences for taking care of their sick, not knowing where to apply for them in any regularly established method, to the great injury of their patients; some of whose cases not requiring them to be sent to the General Hospital, if they could be supplied with a few refreshments under their proper Regimental Surgeons, and the cases of others rendering them unfit patients for a General Hospital, as patients labouring under dysenteries, the itch, hectic patients, and those having fevers likely to be rendered infectious by crowding many of them together, with other sick patients, into one large Hospital. That the Regimental Surgeons have no means of providing the sick with wine, cordial, or any variety of refreshments in the dietetic way, as in the General Hospital: that they never have been provided with medicines (except from the General Hospital) since the first supplies from the Colonies were expended: that they are wholly destitute of Surgeons' Instruments, except a very few, which are private property, and have never had any allowance made them whereby to enable them to provide themselves with the necessary bandages and implements of Surgery, by which they are left to depend on the General Hospital for those articles, contrary to all military rules; nor does it appear that the General Hospital can furnish instruments to the Regimental Surgeons, even if they had an allowed right to demand them. That on application to the Colonels of these regiments for a supply of what they want for these purposes, they are constantly told they have no orders to furnish them; and no assurance, if they were to advance money for these regimental purposes, that they should be repaid. That, in consequence of this unsettled state of affairs, they have applied to the Director-General of the Hospital, and, at a conference on the subject, have agreed with him upon certain pro tempore regulations, if approved of by the Commander-in-Chief, (a copy of which are annexed,) for the occasional establishment of Regimental Hospitals, the direction of Regimental Surgeons and Mates, and settling the proper subordination of them to the Director-General, and ascertaining the dependance they are to have on the General Hospital for supplies of necessary refreshments; and, by his advice, have thus represented their situation to Congress, praying that the honourable Representatives will take their case into consideration, and appoint in what method they would in future have them apply for Medicines, Instruments, and other implements of Surgery; and in case further necessities and refreshments may hereafter be wanted, over and above what is already settled by the foregoing rules, for the recovery or preservation of the men, whether the expenses will be allowed by Congress, and who is to defray the same; or whether the Congress may think fit, on any future regulation of the Army, to subject the soldiery to such small stoppages in their pay as may answer that purpose, according to the usage and custom observed in the British and other Armies, for the support of the General and Regimental Hospitals, (it being only an appropriation of part of their pay, by their own consent, at enlistment, and for their own good, where no other fund is provided.) And lastly, that as the Regimental Surgeons are wholly destitute of Chirurgical Instruments for the immediate assistance of the wounded of their corps, in case of action, and they cannot leave camp to procure them, they are constrained to entreat that the honourable Congress will be pleased to give some immediate directions for furnishing them with the necessary articles and implements of Surgery; and that, in all cases in which there are no orders given them for the government of themselves and the sick under their care, the usages and customs observed in the British and other European Armies may be allowed to direct them, till more perfect rules of conduct are established by the authority of Congress. And your memorialists, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

MEMORIAL OF THE REGIMENTAL SURGEONS.

To His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esq., Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the United Free and Independent States of AMERICA:

The Regimental Surgeons of the Army, stationed at New-York, commanded by your Excellency, considering themselves aggrieved by the Regulations issued by your Excellency on the 28th of July, and having the strongest assurances that your ear is ever open to the just complaints, and that you are ever ready to redress the injuries, of those under your command, beg leave, with the utmost respect, to remonstrate: That by those orders the sole right of judging and determining of the fitness of removing a patient from the Regimental to the General Hospital, is vested in the Surgeon of the Hospital, to the exclusion of the Regimental Surgeon, who must be supposed to be under equal, if not superior advantages to determine with regard to his own patient, of the propriety of doing it. That we conceive the orders are expressed in such terms, and are in fact so understood by the officers of the respective regiments to which we belong, as represent your remonstrants in a very contemptible light, and their services of less importance in the Army than we humbly conceive they deserve. While your remonstrants reflect on their assiduity and constant attendance on the sick, the great numbers they have had under their care, in proportion to those admitted into the General Hospital, and the almost inconceivable disadvantages which they have laboured under till the present period, being almost wholly destitute of suitable supplies, they cannot, on the present occasion, see themselves considered by the publick, and especially by your Excellency, in so disagreeable a point of light, without feeling it in the most sensible manner. While we complain to your Excellency on a very tender point, (a point in which we think our usefulness and honour are deeply concerned,) we beg leave to inform you, that we shall, with the greatest cheerfulness, submit ourselves, our Hospitals, and the whole of our conduct, as it respects the good of the Army, to the inspection and regulation of the Director-General.

Confiding in your justice and equity for a redress of our grievances, we willingly leave it to your Excellency to remedy our complaints; and your remonstrants, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

WILLIAM PALFREY TO FRANCIS LEWIS.

New-York, July 31, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Agreeable to your directions I presented to Messrs. Murry & Sanson the two drafts for £100 sterling each, for which I received one thousand dollars in payment; which sum I shall apply to the publick service, and credit the United States of America accordingly.

Any other commands that you may have, either publick or private, shall be executed with the greatest pleasure by, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

WM. PALFREY.

To Francis Lewis, Esq., Member of Congress.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, July 31, 1776.

SIR: Colonel Hand reports two ships that came in late last evening at the Hook. Nothing material has occurred in this camp since yesterday.

I have the honour to be, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

NATHANAEL GREENE.

To His Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters, New-York.

COLONEL LIVINGSTON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Long-Island, July, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed is a true state of the three detached companies of Colonel Clinton's regiment, stationed at the east end of Long-Island. We have two field-pieces mounted on field-carriages, but no ammunition for them. If we had a supply of that article, also ladles, rammers, and worms, for them, I fancy they would be of service to us, if the enemy should ever take it in their heads to visit us. The Committee have fitted up these two pieces, and requested me to write to your Excellency for a supply of ammunition for them. I have with much difficulty prevailed on them to remove the cattle from some of the Islands, and to prepare boats to remove them from Shelter-Island as soon as a fleet shall appear in sight. They have furnished us with five whale-boats since my arrival, and promise to procure a sufficiency for us, which will be a great advantage to us, as the companies can much more expeditiously assist each other by water than by land. There are a prodigious number of cattle here, more than three companies can possibly protect. Montauk-Point or Neck, about eighteen miles in length and two in breadth, contains sixteen hundred head of horned cattle, five hundred horses, and ten thousand sheep. Should the communication be cut off between this neck and the country, it would be a fine supply for our enemies.

I remain your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

HENRY B. LIVINGSTON.

To His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. One of the companies is stationed on Montauk-Point, another on Shelter-Island, about twenty miles from Montauk, another at Oyster-Pond Point, about seven miles from Shelter-Island, and twenty-four miles from Montauk.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

German-Flats, July 31, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Indeed I give you much trouble, but I cannot avoid it. I am this moment informed that only seventy sailors can be procured out of our Northern Army, and that we shall want two or three hundred more, and that they may possibly be procured in Connecticut; and it is conjectured that Captains Samuel Chew and Francis Brown, of New Haven, Captain Amos Green, of Stamford, Captain Whittlesey, of Saybrook, and Captain Seth Warner, of Haddam, would, if not employed, be willing to engage as Captains to command vessels on Lake Champlain. I am a stranger to all these gentlemen; permit me, therefore, to beg the favour of you to send them, or such others as you may think proper, to engage forty men apiece, and to make the best contracts you can with them for the men's monthly wages and allowances, which will be strictly complied with.

I am greatly chagrined at the tedious delay of the Indians, as well on account of the very heavy expense in sending them, as that I am kept from the Army. Our misfortunes in Canada have made them somewhat assuming; but I have great hopes that they will not engage against us, although very little, if any, except the Oneida nation, will take an active part with us.

I am, sir, most sincerely and respectfully, your obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable Governour Trumbull.

COLONEL GANSEVOORT TO JOHN MCKESSON.

Fort George, July 31, 1776.

SIR: I have only time to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 13th instant, which came to hand this morning; and in answer thereto, inform you that the companies of Colonel Wynkoop's regiment which were here, are gone, some to Ticonderoga and some to Skenesborough.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

PETER GANSEVOORT,

Lieutenant-Colonel, commanding Fort George.

To John McKesson, Esq.

COLONEL GREATON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Ticonderoga, July 31, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I received your kind letter of the 13th June, which gave me great pleasure to think you had not forgotten your friend, though at a distance. You inform me you had not received a line from me since I left New-York. I have written to you but once, which I am very sorry you did not receive. I had not time, hardly, to write to my family when I was in Canada.

Our fatigues and hardships have been very great; they are too tedious to enumerate at this time; but I hope I shall have an opportunity some winter's evening to inform you of what we have undergone. We have got out of Canada very well, considering the situation we were in, but happy would it have been for us if we had retreated three weeks sooner than we did; we should have saved three hundred men by it, and got to Crown-Point soon enough to have fortified there, and not have come to this sickly place. We are fortifying here as fast as we can. The men are in very low spirits. You would hardly know my regiment now, they are so altered in every shape.

We have various accounts from St. John's. The best intelligence we can get here is, that they are building vessels, batteaus, &c., as fast as they can. They have seven thousand Regulars, and about five thousand Canadians, dressed in Regular clothing and armed by the Regulars. They expect to be ready to cross the Lake the last of next month. The above news we have from a French Captain of Militia, who left his family for fear of being hanged, and came across the woods to this place.

I hope we shall have the start of them. We have three schooners and one sloop ready to sail, and in a week or ten days we shall have fourteen row-galleys and gondolas ready, which will mount three cannon apiece, from twelve to twenty-four-pounders.

General, I should take it as a great favour if you would let me hear from you, every opportunity you can, how affairs are in York. You wrote me about Major Sherburne's getting great honour to himself amongst you; it is not so here; you will hear more about it. I would have written you more particularly, but the post is waiting, and I am in great haste.

I subscribe myself your Honour's sincere friend and obedient servant,

JNO. GREATON.

To the Hon. Brigadier-General Heath, at New-York.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL WATERBURY.

Tyonderoga, July 31, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I am glad to hear that the Militia begin to arrive at Skenesborough. You must be careful to prevent their straggling to camp, as there will be the utmost danger of their carrying the small-pox back with them.

Let me hear by every opportunity the state of your post, and what number of the Militia arrives there, and every Saturday send me an exact return. That of the 28th is now before me—I am much obliged to you for it.

I thank you for the peas. Vegetables and butter would be extremely welcome, as there are scarce any to be had in this part of the country.

General Arnold has my directions to write to you; his letter goes by this conveyance. I am, &c.

HORATIO GATES.

To Brigadier-General Waterbury.

P. S. Let me know the state of your provisions and rum. Do the Militia bring ammunition? What shall you want? I am told a number of cattle are ordered to Skenesborough? Do any arrive?

JOHN TRUMBULL TO LIEUTENANT-COLONEL GANSEVOORT.

Ticonderoga, July 31, 1776.

SIR: The bearer, Major Hubly, late Major of Brigade to General Woodtke, comes to take an inventory and appraisement of the late Baron Woodtke's goods. This you will permit him to do, and to bring such goods, &c., as he shall think proper, with the will, to this place, where Colonel D'Haas proposes to administer on the estate.

It has been told the General that some officers at your post (not yourself) have presumed to give furloughs to the sick, when discharged from the Hospital. You will inquire into this, and let any gentleman who may have done it heretofore know, that if he is found guilty of a conduct so unprecedented and so prejudicial to the service, he will be immediately put in arrest, and tried for his presumption and breach of orders by a general court-martial.

You will assist Ensign Hallenbach in forwarding the chain he has in charge to Albany.

I am, sir, your very obedient servant,

J. TRUMBULL, Dep. Adj. Gen.

To Lieutenant-Colonel Gansevoort.

PETITION OF CAPTAIN YOUNG.

The Petition of SAMUEL YOUNG, Captain in Colonel BEDEL's Regiment, humbly sheweth:

That your Honour's petitioner, from a true zeal for the American cause, and an utter abhorrence to slavery and oppression, engaged in the honourable Continental cause, on the earliest notice of the unhappy disturbance, for the defence of an injured country, in which I have endeavoured to do all in my power to serve the publick cause, and have left my interests at home under great disadvantages for the same. My last command in said service being at Fort St. Ann's, my conduct in the same being called in question, General Arnold put me under arrest. As for my behaviour at said Fort, I declare on honour, if I did anything worthy of confinement or punishment, it was done ignorantly, and not for want of zeal in the cause, as at that time I looked upon myself to be in a defenceless posture. Of my proceedings I presume your Honour is acquainted, as I had a legal trial by a Court-Martial at Crown-Point, on the 13th instant.

I would humbly observe to your Honour the situation of my company. My First Lieutenant did not join me till lately, and has been on command great part of his time since, and at this time is on scout, from which he is not expected to return soon. My Second Lieutenant has likewise been on command, and sick the whole of his time, and now remains sick; so that I have no officer except the Ensign to take care of the company, and he frequently on command. That the company suffers much for the want of an officer; which company is the largest in said regiment, and has chiefly been under these disadvantages during my confinement, which is now fifty-nine days.

I humbly beg your Honour may take the same into consideration, and order that the determination of the Court-Martial may be known, and that I may know my destiny:

if to command the company, I shall do it with the greatest pleasure, and exert every faculty in order for the publick good; if otherwise, I shall submit to the honourable Court's decision, and, as in duty bound, ever pray, &c.

SAMUEL YOUNG.

To Major-General Gates.

New-Haven, July 31, 1776.

A few days since Captain Packwood arrived at New-London, in nine days from Cape François, and has brought fourteen tons of powder, some blankets, arms, &c., on account of the States.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Lebanon, July 31, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 17th instant was duly received, and I am now to thank you for your attention to Winslow and Lester, and our carpenters, and also for the intelligence you give me concerning the state and temper of the Indians, more especially the Senecas, who could most distress us. It gives me great concern to hear that dissensions prevail in the Northern Army, and that they are inflamed and kept up by Colonial distinctions. I have, agreeable to your request, recommended to the troops from this Government to cultivate harmony and a good understanding with the troops from other States as well as among themselves, and have pressed it upon them with all the earnestness the nature and importance of the subject requires. I shall be very happy to find anything I have done, or can do, may contribute towards eradicating this evil.

The felling axes are mostly provided. About three quarters of the number requested are on their way to the Army. The residue will be sent forward very soon. Being persuaded they might be sent to Skenesborough at a cheaper rate than they could by the way of Albany, and thinking they might come sooner to the use of the Army by that route, I have ordered them by Bennington to Skenesborough, and have written to Brigadier-General Waterbury to receive and forward them where they may be wanted, agreeable to such orders as you may give, or he may receive from the Commander-in-Chief of the Army in your absence.

Not long since, I received a resolve of Congress directing that clothing for the Continental Army should be procured in this Government, and proper persons are employed for that purpose, who are using their best endeavours to procure a sufficient quantity; and as I am informed that our troops from Canada are now in great want of that article, I shall send what can be immediately procured to the Quartermaster-General for that department, without waiting for further orders, as soon as may be, and wish to be advised by what route it will be best to forward it, and who is the Quartermaster-General to whom the same must be consigned. Persons are likewise employed to procure materials for tents, which will be made up and forwarded as soon as may be.

I am, with great truth and regard, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

JONA. TRUMBULL.

To the Hon. Major-General Schuyler.

CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety, July 31, 1776: Present: His Honour the Governour; Eliphalet Dyer, Richard Law, Titus Hosmer, Jed. Elderkin, Wm. Hillhouse, Nathaniel Wales, Benjamin Huntington, Esquires.

William Nichols, of Hartford, is appointed Paymaster of Colonel Heman Swift's Regiment.

Order drawn and delivered Colonel Elderkin.

MAJOR HAWLEY TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Northampton, July 31, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: In these parts we have not been able to learn in what state the act called the Test Act at present is. But the general voice here is, that a resolve, or order, very similar to what is passed lately by the Governour and Committee of Safety of Connecticut, respecting travellers, is absolutely necessary for this Government. There are, most certainly, extraordinary and unaccountable communications carried on and upheld between the disaffected in this County and the County of Worcester, and the people of the same character on Hudson's River, and so up this river, with the people in the new County in the Colony of New-York. As there is now a recess of our General Assembly, we are generally looking and wishing that some such order or resolve might without delay issue from your Honours, as the great Committee of Safety of this State in the recess of its Assembly. Such a measure will be more favourable to government, and in that view I consider it of importance. It will be more likely to be temperate; but if some effectual order, in great part like that of Connecticut, is not issued by the Council, the people hereabouts will not run the risk of waiting till our Assembly meets, but every town will take their own plan; and in some places they are so incensed, that I believe they will proceed with a very high hand. They insist on it, that we cannot be safe till some of the big Tories are hung. Your Honours' resolve might steer them a milder course.

The day before yesterday (by some strange mistake) all the kettles and canteens used for the Berkshire men were brought and delivered at my house, which ought this moment to be at New-York. The Berkshire men all marched about the middle of last week, very uneasy, and complaining that they were not supplied with those articles. The Quartermaster of the battalion was here last Sunday in quest of the articles, but as I could not give any account of them, he went on to seek them; and as they came here by the way of Brimfield, I find that he has missed them, and suppose that he will go on to Boston. Alas! the ruinous fashion of leaving business to execute itself.

I have the honour to be your Honours' most obedient servant,

JOSEPH HAWLEY.

To the Honourable Council.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO THE GOVERNOUR OF RHODE-ISLAND.

In Committee of Council, July 31, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by the Committee of Council to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, dated 27th July, and to acquaint you that the Committee would have willingly complied with your request relative to Captain John Grannis, but think themselves not sufficiently authorized as acting in the capacity of a Committee of Council; therefore must defer this matter till the General Court meets, which will be soon.

In the name and per order of the Committee,
JNO. AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

To Nicholas Cooke, Esq., Providence.

GENERAL PALMER TO BENJAMIN LINCOLN.

Hull, July 31, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I am just returned from the Armourer's; he has but little iron, no steel, and no files, and but little coal. Very little work can be done without tools and materials. There is another forge, but no bellows to it; and as a blacksmith is much wanted for sharpening pick-axes, making spikes, mending wheelbarrows, &c., which is not in the Armourer's way, I would advise that a pair of bellows be sent, and, if agreeable, I will endeavour to obtain a blacksmith from Weymouth.

Mr. Knor is just arrived; by him received the well rope, paper, and a letter with news; thank you; I shall attend to contents. Here are two hogsheds of lime, the hogsheds are bursting; pray send a mason to make it up into mortar. Candles are wanted. Colonel Johnson says there are none in the store.

The Colonel wants one set of rules, &c., for the Army. At Dorchester, I observed some chevaux-de-frise used as common fence. May we not have them, if suitable, for our embrasures? I regret the loss of poor Robinson. I hope that all our other friends are past danger.

Adieu, and believe me to be yours and the Committee's friend and humble servant,

J. PALMER.

To the Hon. Benjamin Lincoln, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Fortifications, Boston.

[Endorsed: Mr. Devens, or Mr. Chase, will supply the bellows and the coal.
B. LINCOLN.]

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO RICHARD DERBY.

Watertown, July 31, 1776.

SIR: The Committee of Council have directed me to write to your Honour, that you would, as soon as possible, procure a carriage at Salem, that will carry the four Indians, and the person whom the Board sends to accompany them, to General Washington, at New-York; and that you will be pleased to agree for the said carriage and drivers at the lowest rate, and order them here immediately. You will please to observe the owner of the carriage who brought the Indians here from Salem, mentioned, when here, his inclination to carry them to New-York.

I am, &c.

To the Hon. Richard Derby, Esq., or, in his absence, to the Hon. Daniel Hopkins, Esq., Salem.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO ABSENT MEMBERS.

Council Chamber, July 31, 1776.

SIR: The Committee of Council that now sit, being fully convinced from every intelligence from Boston that the small-pox is very infectious, and as most of them have not had the distemper, they are apprehensive that they are in very great danger, and are fearful of tarrying any longer; and as they are necessitated to leave some business that may very essentially affect the interest and safety of this State unfinished, have sent the bearer to request your immediate attendance, and they earnestly desire you would not fail.

In the name and per order of the Committee:

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

To the several absent Members of Council.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

In Committee of Council, July 31, 1776.

Whereas repeated applications have been made to the Council of this State, by Committees of Safety, &c., in several towns, for direction and assistance, respecting such persons as are called Tories:

Therefore, Ordered, That all Magistrates, Sheriffs, Committees of Safety, and all other officers within this State, do exert themselves with vigour in carrying the laws and orders of said State into execution, so that the good people of the United States of America may not be exposed to such inimical persons. A true copy:

Attest: JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

In Committee of Council, State of Massachusetts-Bay, }
Watertown, July 31, 1776. }

SIR: The bearer, Mr. William Shaw, waits on your Excellency, with four Indians of the Mickmack and St. John's tribes, who have agreed to join you in the war. The Honourable Mr. Bowdoin (President of the Council) has, or will soon write to your Excellency particularly on Indian affairs, enclosing the conference with the Indians, and the treaty made with them, to which we refer you.

In the name, and behalf of said Committee, I have the honour to be, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN WINTHROP, Chairman.

To His Excellency General Washington, &c., New-York.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Watertown, July 31, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: The bearer hereof, Newell Wallis, one of the St. John's tribe of Indians, has applied to the Council for a commission, as he says he has had one under the French commander; but have referred him to your Excellency, to grant him such commission as you may think proper.

Per order of the Council:

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO JAMES BOWDOIN.

Watertown, July 25, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by the honourable Board to transmit to you copies of the Talks with the Chiefs of the Penobscot Tribe, and the concluding Answer of the Board to their requests; and the Board desire that you would send to General Washington copies of such parts of these papers as you judge proper.

JOHN AVERY.

To Honourable James Bowdoin.

Memorandum of sundries received by order of the Honourable Council.

From the Honourable THOMAS CUSHING, Esq.

Fifteen m. wampum, ten wampum belts, and ten shell gorgets, for the Truck House at Machias.

From the Committee's stores at BOSTON, viz:

Nine hats, and yards lace, for St. John's Indians, Mickmack.
Two hats, and 3½ yards lace, for Penobscot Indians.
One piece pink tammy, No. 2, and six yards white bunting, to make their flags.

Received by order:

FRA. SHAW, Jun.

Watertown, July 25, 1776.

STEPHEN SMITH TO THE COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

Machias, June 22, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: When your Honours were pleased to appoint me Truckmaster for the Indians, I was not apprized of the task I had to perform; the numbers of them far exceed my expectations; and the offers they have from the factors of Nova-Scotia cause them to be very troublesome.

The sum of £400, lawful money, granted by your Honours, to supply at least one thousand men, exclusive of their families, is but small. Your Honours can't expect I can satisfy them and keep friends with that sum, as I was obliged to credit near £200 for their spring hunt, which they have not yet paid. The news of the defeat at Quebeck has reached them. That, with the advice of General Washington, obliges me to put up with many insults.

I have given the bearer, Major Francis Shaw, Jun., a power of attorney to receive any further sum your Honours may be pleased to grant, with directions to purchase such articles as are most wanted. As soon as they come in from their spring hunts, I shall send the fur up. In the mean time, I am in much want for articles for them.

With Major Shaw come up ten chiefs of the different tribes. Knowing the trouble and expense they would be at, we endeavoured, with all our art, to detain them, without effect. As they had letters from your Honours and his Excellency General Washington, they were determined either to proceed, or rely on the assistance of Nova-Scotia. Of the two evils, I have endeavoured to choose the least, and have accordingly prevailed on Major Shaw to take the charge of them, which I hope will meet your Honours' approbation.

The Indians that were at Court last winter have received a supply, and one has since refused to pay, as he says his Excellency General Washington told them they should be paid for coming up, as well as carrying letters to the Mickmack tribe.

I am likewise much troubled with the inhabitants supplying them with rum, &c., as it makes them very troublesome and quarrelsome. I should be glad your Honours would give some orders that they may not have liberty to sell or give, as they take their furs for much less than their value, and detain them longer than needful.

I have hitherto given eight shillings for beaver, to hinder them from trading with Nova-Scotia, and shall do it until I hear from your Honours. This I do, as I am sensible, from the best accounts from Nova-Scotia, that they take every measure to defeat your Honours' plans, and to bring them against the New-England settlements in this country.

As Major Shaw has been here, and witness to their proceedings, I refer your Honours to him for any further intelligence; and remain, with much respect, your Honours' much obliged, humble servant,

STEPHEN SMITH.

To the Honourable Council and House of Representatives for the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress or General Assembly of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of JACOB BARKER, ISRAEL PERLEY, PHINEAS NEVENS, DANIEL PALMER, MOSES PICKARD, EDWARD COYE, THOMAS HARTT, ISRAEL KENNEY, ASA KIMBALL, ASA PERLEY, HUGH QUINTON, and OLIVER PERLEY, a Committee chosen in behalf of the Inhabitants of the River St. JOHN'S, in NOVA-SCOTIA, humbly sheweth:

That we, your petitioners, have for some time past beheld with grief, the calamity brought on this nation and land by a ruinous and destructive civil war. Our situation being somewhat remote from the seat of these troubles, and our land producing most of the necessities of life, we have not been so immediately affected as many parts on the Continent, and therefore have taken no part in the present unnatural quarrel, but have quietly suffered a suspension of trade, hoping that God, in his Providence, would point out a way for the amicable settlement of these unhappy disputes; but our hopes have hitherto proved abortive, and troubles are rather increased. Our Governour hath thought proper effectually to prevent our being supplied with arms and ammunition, by ordering a large penalty. Many of those articles being shipped (or water-borne) in the Province, at the same time requires us to assemble in military array, and by force of arms to repel all invaders. Martial law is published throughout the Province, and civil authority made subordinate. Exorbitant taxes are required of us to support the war against you. Under these circumstances we find it is impracticable for us to continue as neutrals, and to subsist without commerce.

We now, in behalf of the inhabitants, openly declare, that we could never see any shadow of justice in that extensive claim of the British Parliament, viz: the right of enacting laws binding on the Colonies in all cases whatsoever. This system, if once established, (we conceive,) hath a direct tendency to sap the foundation not only of liberty, that dearest of names, but of property, that best of subjects. And as tyranny ought to be resisted in its first attempts, we are convinced that the United Provinces are just in their proceedings in this regard. The inhabitants of this place, after mature consideration, have thought fit to submit themselves to your government, and desire your protection, and that you would esteem the river St. John's as a part of your Province, which would add thereto a valuable extent of territory, though at present but few inhabitants. And we promise, in behalf of the inhabitants, to adopt such measures as you shall propose for our future conduct; and we are ready, with our lives and fortunes, to share with you the event of the present struggle for liberty, however God, in his Providence, may order it.

We, therefore, humbly ask your protection as a defenceless people, and that you would grant us such relief and assistance as you in your wisdom shall think proper, hoping that you will not tamely see us butchered or plundered for showing ourselves friendly to your cause.

That God would speedily restore peace to America, and that you will be led to such measures as will be most to His glory and the good of His people, is the earnest desire of your humble petitioners.

Letter of Agency.

Whereas the inhabitants on the River St. John's, in the County of Sunbury, and Province of Nova-Scotia, being regularly assembled at Maugerville, in said County, on the 14th day of May, 1776, did then and there make choice of us, Jacob Barker, Phineas Nevens, Israel Perley, Daniel Palmer, Moses Pickard, Edward Coye, Thomas Hart, Israel Kenney, Asa Kimball, Asa Perley, and Hugh Quinton, a Committee in behalf of the inhabitants of said County, to make immediate application to the Congress or General Assembly of the Massachusetts-Bay, for relief under their present distressed circumstances:

Now know ye, That we, the Committee above named, have, by these presents, constituted and appointed two of said Committee, viz: Messrs. Asa Perley and Asa Kimball, to act as Agents for the body of said Committee, to go personally to the said Congress or General Assembly, and there present our petition; also to act and transact, determine, accomplish, and finish all matters touching the premises, as fully, finally, and effectually as the body of said Committee might or could do; and we do, in behalf of the inhabitants of said County, allow, ratify, and confirm whatsoever our said Agents shall do or cause to be done in and about this matter.

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and seals, at Maugerville, in said County, this 20th day of May, 1776.

DANIEL PALMER,	[L. S.]
MOSES PICKARD,	[L. S.]
EDWARD COYE,	[L. S.]

All officers, civil or military, in the United Provinces, and all others, are desired not to molest or hinder the within Asa Perley and Asa Kimball, in their progress; on the contrary, to encourage and assist them, as they would merit the esteem of all lovers of their country's liberty, and the thanks of this Committee.

Copy of Resolves.

The inhabitants of the County of Sunbury, in the Province of Nova-Scotia, being regularly assembled at the Meeting-House in Maugerville, in said County, on Tuesday, the 14th day of May, 1776, to consult on some measures necessary to be taken for the safety of the inhabitants:

1stly. Chose Jacob Barker, Esq., Chairman.

2dly. Chose Jacob Barker, Israel Perley, Phineas Nev-ers, Esquires, and Messrs. Daniel Palmer, Moses Pickard, Edward Coxe, Thomas Hart, Israel Kenney, Asa Kimball, Asa Perley, Oliver Perley, and Hugh Quinton, a Committee to prepare a draught proper for the proceedings of the Assembly.

The meeting then adjourned till three of the clock in the afternoon.

Being again met, the Committee reported the following Resolves, which were read; and after a second reading, the Resolves were severally put, and passed in the affirmative, unanimously:

1st. Resolved, That we can see no shadow of justice in that extensive claim of the British Parliament, viz: the right of making laws binding on the Colonies in all cases whatsoever. This system, if once established, we conceive, hath a direct tendency to sap the foundation not only of liberty, that dearest of names, but of property, that best of subjects.

2dly. Resolved, That as tyranny ought to be resisted in its first appearances, we are convinced that the United Provinces are just in their proceedings in this regard.

3dly. Resolved, That it is our minds and desire to submit ourselves to the Government of the Massachusetts-Bay, and that we are ready, with our lives and fortunes, to share with them the event of our present struggle for liberty, however God in his Providence may order it.

4thly. Resolved, That a Committee be chosen, to consist of twelve men, who shall immediately make application to the Massachusetts Congress or General Assembly for relief; and that said Committee, or the major part of them, shall conduct all matters, civil or military, in this County, till further regulation be made.

5thly. Resolved, That we, and each of us, will most strictly adhere to all such measures as our said Committee, or the major part of them, from time to time prescribe for our conduct; and that we will support and defend them in this matter at the expense of our lives and fortunes, if called thereto.

6thly. Resolved, That we will immediately put ourselves in the best posture of defence in our power. That to this end, we will prevent all unnecessary use of Gunpowder, or other Ammunition in our custody.

7thly. Resolved, That if any of us shall hereafter know of any person or persons that shall, by any ways or means, endeavour to prevent or counteract this our design, we will immediately give notice thereof to the Committee, that proper measures may be taken for our safety.

8thly. Resolved, That we, and each of us, will pay our proportion of all such sums of money as may be necessary for carrying these matters into execution; and finally, that we will share in, and submit to, the event of this undertaking, however it may terminate, to the true performance of all which we bind and obligate ourselves firmly each to the other, on penalty of being esteemed enemies and traitors to our country, and submitting ourselves to popular resentment.

The whole Assembly subscribed to the foregoing Resolves.

The Body then voted:

1stly, That the above-named Committee shall be a Standing Committee; to make application to the Massachusetts Congress; also, to conduct all matters, Civil or Military, in the County, till further regulations be made.

Voted, That we will have no dealings or connexions with any person or persons for the future that shall refuse to enter into the foregoing, or similar regulations.

A true copy from the Minutes:

ISRAEL PERLEY, Clerk.

Dated at Maugerville, on the River St. John's, May 21, 1776.

MEMORANDUM.—By desire of the Committee, represent the conduct of the Indians; that General Washington's letter had set them on fire, and they are plundering all people they think are Tories; and when that is done, perhaps the others may share the same fate. We think it necessary that some persons of consequence be sent among them.

If it be asked what lands are granted on the River, it may be answered, that there are four towns and a half granted to sixty-eight gentlemen, mostly officers in the Army. The towns are a hundred thousand acres each. There are several other large tracts of land granted to particular gentlemen. Those townships and other lands have but few settlers on them.

If it be asked, what proportion of the people signed the Resolutions, it may be answered, there are one hundred and twenty-five signed, and about twelve or thirteen that have not, nine of whom are at the River's mouth.

PORTSMOUTH (NEW-HAMPSHIRE) INSTRUCTIONS.

Portsmouth, July 31, 1776.

At a Meeting of the Freeholders and others, inhabitants of said Portsmouth, per adjournment, among other things,

Voted, That the Representatives of this Town at the General Assembly be instructed for the following purposes, viz:

1st. That they do their utmost endeavours to procure the enactment of a law, that, from and after the dissolution of this present Assembly, no Member of any future Assembly hold any place in Government than his seat in said Assembly; and that when any such shall be chosen, and accept of a place, his seat shall become vacant, and a new writ issued to his Constituents for a new choice.

2d. That they do not consent that any person should hold more than one place in Government at the same time.

3d. That they do, in the most effectual manner, secure to the people of this State their inherent right of being judged and governed in the least prejudicial manner.

4th. That they, nor any future Representative, in future shall consent to any alteration, innovation, or abridgment of the constitutional form that may be adopted, without first consulting their Constituents, in a matter of so much importance to their safety.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM ST. PIERRE, DATED AUGUST 1, 1776.

Captain Wickes has added much glory to the American flag, when entering this harbour. He fell in with the British ship Shark, Captain Chapman, a fine new vessel of equal force, that was despatched, we hear, for the express purpose of intercepting him. An engagement immediately commenced with spirit on both sides for about thirty minutes, when it terminated in the disgraceful and precipitate flight of the latter. Wickes then triumphantly entered this port, and landed amidst the acclamations and caresses of a multitude of people, who had been anxious spectators of the combat. There was not a man killed, in this action, on our side. On the other, we know not what damage was sustained. The very friendly and polite treatment Captain Wickes experienced from the Governour, will, I doubt not, be highly pleasing to the Congress.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM PENSACOLA, IN WEST-FLORIDA, DATED AUGUST 1, 1776.

Our Governour (as well as Governour Tonyn, of East Florida) has published a proclamation, offering an asylum to such who, from the present distracted situation of affairs in America, may choose to come and settle in this Province, with an offer of one hundred acres of land for the master, and the same for the mistress of every family, and fifty acres for every child and servant, and free of quitrent for a certain number of years, and even more land than the above, provided it shall appear that they are able to cultivate it. He has offered to any person, gratis, to cut down timber from his Majesty's woods, for the making of lumber for the service of the West-India Islands, provided that security be given that it really and bona fide is intended only for their service. Every other encouragement is offered by the Governour to such settlers, and those who may think proper to furnish our Islands with lumber; and indeed here is enough in conscience, if we had but ships to transport it. Some vessels from Jamaica have been here; but our want of hands to prepare it is a great hinderance to that business. Being but an infant colony, we are in want of people. However, even this might be remedied if a trade was carried on, as we should soon get slaves if we had customers to take off the lumber when made. This country is much more healthy than I had been informed, and, instead of being a desert, has some good pasturage, and grows European corn of several sorts.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN WOOLSEY.

[No. 104.]

Annapolis, August 1, 1776.

SIR: The vessel you and company have on the stocks, the Council of Safety are now desirous of purchasing, provided they can have her on reasonable terms. Let us know, therefore, whether your company will sell, and what price they ask. We expect your answer as soon as possible, when Mr. Stewart, our agent, will attend to complete the contract, and give directions. We are, &c.

To Mr. George Woolsey.

GENERAL DENT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Charles County, August 1, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed you have my commission as Brigadier for the Flying-Camp, which I return for the same reason as that I don't doubt you have received ere this, viz: that you have a controlling power therein, under which I am resolved never more to act.

I am, gentlemen, with due respect, your humble servant,
&c., JNO. DENT.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety.

THOMAS SMYTH TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Chester-Town, August 1, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: My son waits on the Council for his and his officers' commissions, and for such orders as they may think necessary to give him. I am afraid the Companies raised in this County will be delayed a good deal for want of arms. Those that are tolerably good are very difficult to get. Most people that have guns will rather sell than lend, and are very pressing for their money. It will be necessary to send some money to the Committee, to pay for guns and blankets. The latter, I believe, will be furnished without much difficulty.

The Committee, in pursuance of your Honours' request, have employed a cooper in making wooden bottles, a sample whereof you will receive by the bearer. The price is 2s. 6d. each. You will please to say how many you will have made, and the time when they must be finished.

I am, with much respect, your most humble servant,

THO. SMYTH.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety.

JOHN YOST TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Georgetown, August 1, 1776.

GENTLEMEN OF THE COUNCIL: I have received your letter dated the 23d of July, and finding you desirous to know what complement of arms I had ready for the publick, I have them all ready of the first contract, including the bayonets, which I expect this day with an express which I have sent for them. I have also been much detained in the last contract, by repairing old arms for the Militia, the Colonel finding it very necessary. If I am not deceived in receiving the bayonets, I hope I can despatch all by the latter end of this week.

I am, gentlemen, in duty bound,

JOHN YOST.

To the Hon. Council of Safety of the Western-Shore.

PETITION OF MARY GIDDINS.

To the Honourable the Marine Committee: The Petition of MARY GIDDINS humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner is the widow of John Giddins, late Boatswain's Yeoman on board the Alfred, who was killed on board said ship in her action with the Glasgow, as appears by a regular certificate which she now produces to your Honours. That your petitioner is in very distressed circumstances, and having confidence in the publick faith, has applied to the honourable the Navy Board for the bounty of two hundred doliars promised by Congress to the widows or children of seamen who fall in the defence of America; that the honourable the Navy Board do not think themselves authorized to pay this bounty without an order from your Honours, declaring that the fund out of which the bounty is directed to be paid is not in their hands. That your petitioner doubts not but that your Honours will consider the irreparable loss she has met with, and order her that temporary relief for which the Congress have pledged the sacred faith of the Continent, and not suffer their good intentions to be frustrated on account of any little irregularities of office, which it is not in the power of your petitioner to remedy. The whole is submitted to the justice and humanity of your honourable Board; and in hopes of the interposition of your power in her behalf,

She will, as in duty bound, ever pray.

MARY GIDDINS.

GENTLEMEN: Were it in my power to support myself and family I should not have troubled this honourable House so often as I have done; necessity is the motive that compels me to this my first Petition, and all the rest of my returns before so honourable a body. I know it is the multiplicity of business that causes me to be thus neglected, but I hope that these lines will again bring the widow and family of him who died in the cause of liberty once more afresh in your memory, and order her a part of the dowry that your bountiful clemency has set apart for the poor widows and fatherless; and in so doing, your poor petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

MARY GIDDINS.

To the Honourable Continental Congress.

This is to certify whom it may concern, that John Giddins, Boatswain's Yeoman on board the ship Alfred, was killed on board said ship in the engagement with the Glasgow the 7th day of April, 1776.

By order of Esek Hopkins, Esq., Commander-in-Chief.

SAML. LYON, Secretary.

Philadelphia, August 1, 1776.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM PHILADELPHIA, DATED AUGUST 1, 1776.

Last night arrived an account of the capture of the brig Richmond by the sloop Congress, (fitted out of this place;) she was bound from London and Nevis for Halifax, and had on board the following articles, viz: one thousand and seventy-eight joes, six hundred and seventy-two guineas, fifteen moidores, forty-one hogsheads rum, six hogsheads five tierces and five barrels sugar, one hoghead loaf-sugar, twenty-four hogsheads prize molasses, three cases drugs, and a trunk of Irish linen. The brig is safe arrived at Egg-Harbour; the gold they had in the water-cask. The cash and several London passengers are on board the privateer, which was left in chase of a three-decker. They took several London letters directed for people in New-York; also some newspapers—one of the 23d of April, which is the only one we have not seen before; it contains very little, except advices from Jamaica, by which they seem alarmed at the arrival of the French troops at Hispaniola, and that some of the merchants had forbid their orders for goods, expecting a visit from them. That seven ships, one of them the Hancock and Adams, with wheat, had arrived at Lisbon from Philadelphia, and that two tobacco and one wheat loaded ships were arrived in France.

Mr. Gibbs's ship, Captain Robinson, is below, from Marseilles, with eleven hundred arms, thirty-seven tons of lead, fifteen tons of powder, flints, &c. I have just seen the supercargo, who tells me they are seven weeks out; that they could not procure a newspaper, although he offered a guinea for one; but saw one as late as the 25th of May.

He says the first embarkation of troops sailed with Lord Howe about the 12th of May; that the second detachment of foreigners had not left Holland, and that it was reported that they had refused sailing till a cartel was established; that France had two formidable fleets at sea, which were to join off Cape St. Vincent; that the Duke De Chartres was to command the whole, and was cruising off that Cape, where he had retaken an American vessel from an English man-of-war; that the carpenters in the French ship-yards were kept close at work, Sundays and holydays not excepted; that all the naval and military stores were engaged for the King's use; that all the seamen were ordered immediately to be registered, and everything bore the appearance of war; that the Spaniards had marched a large body of troops to the environs of Portugal; that the English Parliament and the Irish were dissolved, and that a ship and brig from New-York were arrived at Marseilles.

PENNSYLVANIA CONVENTION.

In Convention for the State of Pennsylvania, }
Tuesday, August 1, 1776, A. M. }

The Committee appointed to consider the Petition and Memorial from Northumberland County, reported that the facts therein set forth are well supported by evidence; and therefore recommend the immediate consideration thereof to this Convention.

And the House having deliberated thereon, it was

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Convention that the inhabitants of the said County and of the County of Northampton are greatly exposed to Indian incursions, without being able to make a proper defence, on account of the scattered situation of the inhabitants, they being settled in such a manner as to be unable to afford each other necessary assistance.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Convention that it will be proper to raise and keep up a body of troops for the defence of the frontiers, not only of the County of Northumberland, but also of the County of Northampton, the latter County being equally exposed to Indian incursions.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Convention that the defenceless situation of those parts of our frontiers be made known to the Congress by the Delegates of this State, and that they further inform them that the Battalion ordered to be raised for defence of the western frontier can afford no assistance to those two Counties, and that the quota of Militia of Northampton first required for the Flying-Camp, is already marched, and the residue of the Militia is about to march, agreeable to the late request of Congress; by which means they will be without the least defence, and request Congress to take these matters into their consideration.

JOHN MORRIS, JUN., Chairman.

An Ordinance for securing the Arms of the Non-Associators of the State of PENNSYLVANIA.

Whereas the Non-Associators in this State have either refused or neglected to deliver up their Arms according to the Resolves of the honourable Continental Congress and the Assembly of Pennsylvania; and effective measures have not been yet taken to carry the said Resolves into execution:

Be it therefore ordained by the authority of this Convention, That the Colonel or next officer in command of every Battalion of Militia in this State is hereby authorized, empowered, and required, to collect, receive, and take, all the Arms in his District or Township nearest to such officer which are in the hands of Non-Associators, in the most expeditious and effectual manner in his power, and shall give to the owners receipts for such Arms, and the amount of the appraisement; and such as can be repaired shall with all possible despatch be rendered fit for service, and the value, according to appraisement, of all such Arms, together with the repairs and transportation, shall be paid to the officer by the Treasurer, on the order of the Council of Safety, for the use of the owners.

And be it further ordained, That the same Arms shall be appraised by any three reputable freeholders appointed by the Commanding Officer. But if the owner of any Arms shall neglect or refuse to apply for such money within six months, the same shall be applied towards the repairs of the Arms. And the Colonels are hereby authorized to draw for the necessary sums of money, for the purposes aforesaid, on the Council of Safety.

And it is further ordained, That the Colonels aforesaid shall arm the Associators with the said Arms, and keep an account to whom they are delivered, and return the same to the Council of Safety. And every Associator shall be answerable for such Arms or the value, unless lost or destroyed by some unavoidable accident, or in actual service.

And be it further ordained, That in case any Arms so collected shall not be worth repairing, the same shall be laid by until such time as may be thought proper by the Committee of the County to return them to the owner.

JOHN MORRIS, JUN., Secretary.

An Ordinance to prevent the Counterfeiting the Paper Money issued by the honourable the Continental Congress, or by this, or any other of the UNITED AMERICAN STATES.

Whereas great mischiefs may arise to the United States of America, and the property of the good people, inhabitants thereof, rendered precarious and insecure, by wicked and designing persons counterfeiting the paper Bills of Credit issued by the honourable the Continental Congress, or by any of the United States of America:

For remedy whereof—

Be it Ordained and Declared, and it is hereby Ordained and Declared, by the Representatives of the Freemen of the State of PENNSYLVANIA, in General Convention met, That if any person or persons shall presume to counterfeit any of the Bills of Credit issued, or hereafter to be issued, by the honourable the Continental Congress, or by and under any laws or resolves of the Assembly of Pennsylvania, or by the Legislatures, or Conventions, or Assemblies, of this or any other of the United States, by printing, or procuring the same to be printed, in the likeness of the said genuine Bills of Credit, and also, if any person or persons shall forge the name or names of the signers of the true Bills of Credit to such Counterfeit Bills, whether the counterfeiting of the bills or names be done within this State or elsewhere, or shall utter such bills, knowing the same to be so counterfeited as aforesaid, and being thereof legally convicted, by confession, standing mute, or by verdict of twelve men, in any Court of Oyer and Terminer hereafter to be erected within this State, he, she, or they, shall suffer death. And the discoverer or informer shall have, as an encouragement for his or her discovery, the sum of fifty pounds, to be levied out of the goods and chattels, lands and tenements of the person convicted; and if no such goods or chattels, lands or tenements, can be found, a reward of twenty pounds shall be paid out of the publick treasury. And if any person or persons shall counterfeit any of the said Bills of Credit, by altering the denomination of the said bills, with design to increase the value of such bills, or shall utter such bills, knowing them to be so counterfeited or altered as aforesaid, and shall be thereof legally convicted in any Court of Record hereafter to be established in this State, such person or persons shall be sentenced to the pillory, and have both his or her ears cut off and nailed to the pillory, and be publicly whipped, on his or her bare back, with thirty-one lashes, well laid on; and, moreover, every such offender shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds, to be levied on his lands and tenements, goods and chattels, the one-half to the use of the State, and the other half to the use of the discoverer; and the offender shall pay the party double the value of the damages thereby sustained, together with the costs and charges of prosecution: and in case the offender hath not sufficient to satisfy the discoverer for his or her damages and charges, and pay the forfeiture aforesaid, in such case the offender shall, by order of the Court where he or she shall be convicted, be sold for any term not exceeding seven years, for satisfaction; and in such case the Treasurer of this State shall reward the discoverer of such insolvent offender to the value of five pounds, out of the publick moneys in his hands. And every such counterfeit bill shall be delivered to the said Treasurer, to be burnt and destroyed.

And be it further Ordained and Declared, That the proper

Bills of Credit issued by the honourable the Continental Congress, or under the late laws, or by the resolves of the late Assembly of Pennsylvania, shall be legal tender in all cases whatsoever within this State.

By order of the Convention:

GEORGE ROSS, Vice President.

Passed August 1, 1776.

GABRIEL DAVIS TO LANCASTER (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.

August 1, 1776.

SIR: We, Committee-men of Earltown, having received orders from Colonel Peter Grub to collect wagon cloths and to have them at Hinkletown against Monday night, it was done. As there was no regular order from the Committee for these proceedings, George Rine sent me word this morning that he went yesterday to Colonel Grub and Captain Martin, and demanded a receipt for the wagon cloths which were delivered to them, which they refused.

Sir, I would take it as a particular favour if you would lay this matter before the Committee, and let me know, by a few lines from you, whether or no they will assist in getting money for the payment of these wagon cloths. You have, likewise, enclosed, a copy of a certain resolve which I happened to stumble over.

Sir, your humble servant, GABRIEL DAVIS.
To Mr. William Atlee, Chairman, Lancaster.

GENERAL HOWE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Head-Quarters, Staten-Island, August 1, 1776.

SIR: I have received the favour of your letter of the 30th of July, and shall accordingly direct that Mr. Lovell, who is now at Halifax, be brought to this post, of which I shall have the honour of advising you, that the proposed exchange between him and Governour Skene may take place.

The extent of my command having no relation to Canada, it is not in my power to give you the satisfaction I could wish respecting the enlargement of Colonel Allen; it must therefore depend upon General Carleton's determination. But wishing sincerely to give relief to the distresses of all prisoners, I shall readily consent to the mode of exchange you are pleased to propose, viz: officers for those of equal rank, soldier for soldier, citizen for citizen; the choice to be made by the respective commanders for their own officers and men. You must be sensible deserters cannot be included in this arrangement; and for the mode of exchange in the naval line, I beg leave to refer you to the Admiral.

I cannot close this letter without expressing the deepest concern that the unhappy state of the Colonies, so different from what I had the honour of experiencing in the course of the last war, deprives me of the pleasure I should otherwise have had in a more personal communication.

I am, with due respect, sir, your most obedient servant,
W. Howe.

To General Washington, &c., &c.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-York, August 1, 1776.

SIR: Congress having been pleased to empower me to order Colonel Ward's regiment wherever I might think it necessary, I take the liberty of requesting you to direct him to march it immediately to this place, where I am of opinion the service requires it, and their aid may be extremely material, especially as the levies come in very slowly.

Since my last, nothing of importance has occurred, or that is worthy of notice, except an augmentation of about twenty-nine ships and brigs, with seven or eight smaller vessels, to the enemy's fleet. I have not learned certainly what they bring; however, some troops were seen landing yesterday, which the gentlemen who observed them took to be Artillerymen. It is not improbable that they were some of the guards, whose dress is pretty much like that of the Artillery.

I have the honour, &c., Go. WASHINGTON.
To Governour Trumbull.

P. S. The three galleys which you were kind enough to order, are safely arrived; as are two from Rhode-Island. With these, and one that we have finished here, we propose attempting something against the ships above, and are preparing for it.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-York, August 1, 1776.

SIR: Having just received from Congress a return of Colonel Elmore's regiment, now in your State, with directions that it shall join this Army, I request the favour of you to order him to march immediately to this place. They have appointed John Brown, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel of it, and Robert Cochran, Esq., Major. Commissions for such officers as appear with their respective companies, I am to fill up.

I am, &c., Go. WASHINGTON.
To Governour Trumbull, Connecticut.

P. S. Half-past twelve o'clock.—I this moment received intelligence that thirty ships more were coming into the Hook.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL ELMORE.

New-York, August 1, 1776.

SIR: Having just received from Congress a return of your regiment, now in the State of Connecticut, with directions that it shall join this Army, I request the favour of you to march immediately to this place. They have appointed John Brown, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel of it, and Robert Cochran, Esq., Major. Commissions for such officers as appear with their respective companies, I am to fill up.

I am, &c., Go. WASHINGTON.
To Colonel Samuel Elmore, in Connecticut.

GENERAL WADSWORTH TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-York, August 1, 1776.

HONoured SIR: In consequence of your orders received the 23d June last, I immediately issued orders to the Colonels commanding the several regiments in my brigade, for raising and for sending those men, when mustered and equipped, agreeable to my instructions. On the 29th of June last, I received a letter from General Washington, requesting, in the most pressing manner, not to lose a moment's time in sending forward the regiments designed for New-York; with which I immediately acquainted the Colonels, and directed them to give all possible attention in carrying the same into execution; and on the 3d of July last, in New-York, I received it in command from the General to send an express immediately to Connecticut, to forward the regiments designed for this department, the British fleet being then in sight of this city. In this situation of affairs, many of the men marched (as I am informed since my last) without being first mustered; a circumstance which I mentioned to the General on my first knowledge of it, who then informed me that they must be mustered here by the Mustermaster; but no order has been issued for that purpose. Must, therefore, beg your Honour's directions, whether to have the men mustered by a Mustermaster appointed here, or by one from Connecticut.

ticut, or any other mode of procedure which you shall think proper. By the last returns, it appears that about three thousand of the troops from Connecticut have arrived, including officers, more than three hundred of whom are returned sick. Colonel Bradley's regiment is at Bergen-Point, in the Jerseys, and Colonel Gray's going to Long-Island. Many of the Connecticut officers have not yet joined: three Captains of Colonel Selden's regiment only are present. I sincerely wish all, except those who have leave from their Colonels to recruit, were present, as we have reason to believe some of the foreign troops are arrived. The post is just now setting out.

I am, with great truth and regard, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,
JAMES WADSWORTH, Jun.

To Hon. Governour Trumbull.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, August 1, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Colonel Hand reports thirty sail of ships standing in for the Hook. Perhaps this may be part of the foreign troops.

I detached for the galleys between forty and fifty men yesterday. Two companies that have been with Colonel Foreman's regiment are gone from this post to join their regiment under General Heard. The troops in general are exceeding sickly, great numbers taken down every day. If the state of the Army will admit of a reinforcement at this post, perhaps it may be prudent. If it does not, I will do the best I can with what I have got.

I am, all with due respect, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

N. GREENE.

To General Washington.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, August 1, 1776, }
4 o'clock, P. M. }

DEAR SIR: The fleet reported coming in this morning consists of about forty sail, tenders and all. They are now off New-Utrecht shore. Pilots have gone down to bring them up.

The dispute subsisting between an officer in Colonel Little's regiment and Colonel Varnum's, I hope is in a fair way to be accommodated.

In to day's orders a regiment of General Wadsworth's brigade is ordered on this Island. If they can have tents, it will be much the best.

I am, with all due respect, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

N. GREENE.

To His Excellency General Washington, New-York, Head-Quarters.

SYLVESTER SALISBURY TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Kingston, August 1, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: According to a resolve of Congress, the Militia in this County are to raise a regiment of men to be stationed on the west side of the North River, in order to prevent the enemy from penetrating into the country. Pursuant to that resolve the Militia was called together, as was also my company of Horse. The quotas of the different companies of Foot were soon raised according to your directions. My company of Horse was also called upon to raise their quota of men, but unanimously objected to their turning out as footmen. They think it is not the intent and meaning of Congress that horsemen shall be turned into footmen: that after having properly equipped themselves as horsemen they should now again be obliged to equip themselves as footmen.

I did all in my power to persuade them to comply with the request of the Colonel, though at the same time did not think it your intent and meaning. The bearer of this letter can more fully inform you about my company, if required. I should be glad to know your sentiments concerning this matter; that is, whether we are obliged to turn out as horsemen or footmen. They say they are willing to turn out as horsemen at any time when called upon. You will much oblige me if you will give me your opinion by the bearer of this letter, as soon as possible, because Colonel Pawling is to march with his regiment from here the beginning of next week.

If we are obliged to turn out as footmen, my company of Horse will be dissolved immediately, because they think it very unjust that they should serve both as horsemen and footmen, and then, of course, I shall resign my commission.

I am, gentlemen, with the greatest respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

SYLVESTER SALISBURY.

To the President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

COLONEL SNYDER TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Kingston, August 1, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Whereas by virtue of a resolve of Congress it is ordered to raise the one-fourth of the Militia of the several Counties therein mentioned, to guard Hudson's River on both sides; and whereas I have the honour to command the First Regiment in Ulster County,—I have, in compliance with said resolve, ordered the Militia under my command to turn out the fourth man of each company, as well the troop of Horse as the rest of the Militia, to go into immediate service under the command of Colonel Levi Pawling. And whereas I find the Militia all ready and willing to go in said service except the troop of Horse, and as I have just understood that the Captain of the troop of Horse will appeal to your honourable Board for advice whether he is to deliver his quota of men or not, and if so, he will resign his commission and dissolve the company; and whereas I conceive that it is a matter of no doubt but it was the sense of Congress, in plain terms, by the resolve of Congress passed the 22d day of August, 1775, to regulate the Militia, that the troop of Horse should be subject to commands and duties the same as the rest of the Militia: Now if they should be exempted from doing duty equal with the rest of the Militia, it will effect a mutiny among us; reason, because it has been the general rule, as long as the troop has been known in our County, they have always delivered their quota of men as the rest of the Militia; and if they now should be excused, particularly in these critical times when all and all is at stake, we might rather have no troop at all, for the troop are chiefly the principal people, and ought of course to step forth to defend their liberties as well as any of the Militia. So, gentlemen, I shall rest the matter to your consideration; and remain your most obedient humble servant,

JOHS. SNYDER.

To the President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

P. S. Gentlemen, favour me with an answer by the bearer, that a mutiny may be prevented.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read August 8, 1776.]

German-Flats, August 1, 1776.

SIR: Yesterday afternoon I had the honour to receive your favour of the 24th July, with the resolutions of Congress it enclosed, which shall claim the most immediate attention I can possibly give them; but as I may not be so soon with the Army as I could wish, I shall transmit a copy to General Gates, and recommend the execution of them.

The pain I experienced in finding that so much unbecoming and dangerous jealousy prevailed in the Army is not easily described. What little I could do in my short stay at Crown-Point, towards eradicating an evil which strikes at the very existence of an Army, I did; and I doubt not but General Gates has directed much of his attention to so capital an object, and that in a little time we shall in a great measure be purged of the evil.

I do not recollect that any complaints have been made that the persons intrusted with the disposal of the publick stores have made overcharges against the soldiers, as the resolution of the 19th ultimo intimates. The idea I meant to convey in one of my letters to Congress, or to his Excellency General Washington, (I forget which, as I have not the copies here,) was, that the soldiers complained of the very high price of all kinds of necessaries, and that they were not on a footing with those in the more interior parts of the country, who could purchase at much easier rates, and therefore wished an abatement on the first cost.

Yesterday some of the Cayugas arrived, and the remainder are expected to-day. The Senecas, it is said, will be here to-morrow; if so, the conference will begin on the next day. I sincerely wish it was ended. The consumption of provision and rum is incredible; it equals that of an Army of three thousand men, although the Indians here are not above twelve hundred, including men, women, and children.

Two trusty Oneidas, whom we sent last week to Cayuga and the Senecas to inquire the reasons of their delay, informed us on their return that Colonel Butler had called another meeting at Niagara, and that the consideration of the answer to his message had occasioned the delay. They also advise us that they heard from Indians returned from Canada, that the British troops are making a strong fortification at St. John's, but could say nothing of their numbers. Our emissaries amongst the Indians advise us that an account of our misfortunes in Canada has been industriously propagated amongst them; that our conduct in demanding a neutrality only, in all the former treaties, has been greatly applauded at all their councils; that they believe a deviation from that line of conduct will terminate greatly to our disadvantage. We are still at a loss what to do, and wait for further information. At any rate we are resolved in our first speech to point out, in the strongest terms, the faithless conduct of some of them, and to threaten them with revenging the insults we have received.

General Arnold, in a letter of the 24th ultimo, from Ticonderoga, advises me that only seventy sailors could be draughted out of the Army, and that three hundred would be wanting, and entreated that measures should be taken to procure them. I have accordingly written to Governour Trumbull on the subject; and as General Arnold suggested that they could not be got for the wages allowed seamen by Congress, (as these would have no prospect of making prizes,) I have therefore ventured to entreat the Governour to engage them on the best terms he can, as Congress will perceive by the following extract of my letter of yesterday's date:

"I am this moment informed that only seventy sailors can be procured out of our Northern Army, and that we shall want two or three hundred more, and that they may possibly be procured in Connecticut; and it is conjectured that Captains Samuel Chew and Francis Brown of New-Haven, Captain Amos Green of Stamford, Captain Whittlesey of Saybrook, and Captain Seth Warner of Haddam, would, if not employed, be willing to engage as Captains to command vessels on Lake Champlain. I am a stranger to all these gentlemen. Permit me to beg the favour of you to send them, or such others as you may think proper, to engage forty men apiece, and to make the best contract you can with them for theirs and their men's monthly wages and allowances, which will be strictly complied with."

I hope this measure will meet the approbation of Congress, as the necessity of having sailors is evident, and as there can be no doubt but that Governour Trumbull will make the most favourable contract for the publick that he can.

Since writing and despatching my letter, I am informed by my Secretary, who is at Albany, that Captain Bacon was sent on this service by General Gates, with orders to call on my Secretary for £1000 lawful; but the Paymaster having no money, he was disappointed, and has proceeded to New-York. Every department suffers greatly for want of a supply of cash. I hope, however, that a little time will remove the difficulties we labour under on this account.

I am, sir, with sincere esteem and respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

German-Flats, August 1, 1776.

SIR: Yesterday I received despatches from Congress enclosing, amongst other papers, certain resolutions; copy of which I enclose you. I dare say that whatever you can do in the premises, will be effected.

In consequence of General Arnold's letter of the 24th ultimo, I despatched an express to Governour Trumbull, to procure five companies of sailors, of forty men each. Uncertain on what terms they might be procured, I entreated him to engage them on the best he could, and that his contract with them would be punctually fulfilled. Since which, Captain Varick advises me that you have sent Captain Bacon on the same errand. I am happy that you have done it, as by the joint exertions of the Governour and him, it is probable the business will be much expedited. It was unfortunate that the Paymaster had no money to furnish Captain Bacon. Why we are so long left without a supply of that necessary article, I cannot conjecture. My applications have been frequently repeated.

By an express whom I despatched yesterday with Governour Trumbull's letter, I also directed that a proper person should be instantly sent to Connecticut for the said cloth and cordage mentioned in General Arnold's letter.

As I fear that the pitch some time since written for from New-York may not be sent, I have directed tar-makers to be sent to St. George, and there employed in procuring a quantity of it, which is easily reduced to pitch.

Congress has, I believe, mistaken the idea I meant to convey about the price of goods for the soldiers. I have explained the matter in a letter of this date.

All the fatigues I have endured at the opening of the campaign cannot equal what I suffer from the uninterrupted importunity of the Indians. They now exceed twelve hundred, and all the Cayugas are not yet arrived, and very few of the Senecas.

It is reported that some Indians from Canada say that the British troops are making a large fortification at St. John's. I cannot learn anything of vessels, although they are doubtless building.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable General Gates.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

German-Flats, August 1, 1776.

DEAR SIR: General Arnold, in a letter of the 24th ultimo, from Tyonderoga, advises me of the necessity of sending ten or twelve gunners, and as many gunners' mates, for our armed vessels, as none can be spared from the Artillery. They are not to be had at Albany or its vicinity, and I know not of any place nearer than New-York where they can be procured. Will your Excellency be so good as to order them up with all possible despatch?

I have written to Governour Trumbull for seamen, as only seventy are to be got out of the Army, and three hundred are wanted. As it will not be possible to procure them on the Continental allowance for seamen, there being no prospect of making prizes, I have ventured to desire the Governour to engage them on the best terms he can. I hope this will meet with your Excellency's approbation.

Part of the Cayuga Indians arrived yesterday; the remainder are expected to-day, and the Senecas to-morrow, and we are in hopes of opening the treaty on the next day. We have advice by Indians returned from Canada, that the enemy are employed in erecting a large and strong fortification at St. John's. I can learn nothing from them about any vessels building there.

Fort Stanwix is repairing, and is already so far advanced as to be defensible against light artillery. It would already have been furnished with six months' provisions, if the necessary supply of the Indians had not prevented. These people consume an amazing quantity of provisions—at least better than twice as much as so many troops. They now consist of about twelve hundred, including women and children.

I am, dear sir, with the greatest respect and esteem, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To His Excellency General Washington, &c., &c.

GENERAL WATERBURY TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, August 1, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Since my last, there are four companies of the Connecticut troops arrived; and instead of sending one company, as I wrote in my last, I yesterday sent off two to be posted at Cheshire's; and gave orders to the commanding officer to use his utmost endeavours to forward the repairing the roads, and in lending his assistance in getting logs for the saw-mill, and hope I shall not be disappointed in his fulfilling his orders.

We are constantly sending boats for boards, but cannot get them half so fast as they are wanted. The troops suffer much by not being covered from the weather; but I shall use my utmost endeavours to cover them as fast as I can.

I must once more trouble your Honour about a set of bullet-moulds, which is much wanted. The bullets are all too large, and for that reason have not made up any cartridges, but have dealt out a little, in case they should want it, to every company.

There are so many oars sent off with the gondolas, and none sent back, that we can scarcely furnish out any boats. In case we should, we would be glad there might be some returned.

We have great success in getting our timber by the creek side, and in getting it in by rafts, that it saves team-work greatly. And I hope the carpenters will make considerable show soon in their building, as they seem to be spirited in their undertaking.

And am, in haste, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

DAVID WATERBURY, Jun.

HARMANUS SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, August 1, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: We are entirely out of oakum, and I have sent two expresses to Albany, and have none as yet. I would be very glad, if there is any oakum or iron at Ticonderoga, that your Excellency would please to send it by the boat that brings you this letter.

We are also in want of several other articles, such as spades, axes, and ropes, which, if the General pleases to send, will be of great use.

We have our third express to Albany now for all those articles, and are as yet destitute.

I am, dear General, your most obedient, humble servant,

HARMANUS SCHUYLER,

A. D. Q. M. General.

To Major-General Gates.

GENERAL GATES TO CUMBERLAND COUNTY (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE.

Tyonderoga, August 1, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your petition of the 24th ultimo I was favoured with yesterday by Colonel Barret.

The Congress have ordered a regiment to be immediately raised under the command of Colonel Warner, for the defence of the frontier most exposed to the enemy, in which your County is comprehended. I therefore think the one hundred and twenty-five men you mention, can be more usefully employed for the publick service in building a bridge over Otter Creek, and cutting and repairing the road from Number-Four to the foot of Mount Independence. Colonel Barret has the necessary information upon this head, and would, in my opinion, be a proper person to superintend the work.

I beg your Committee will give all possible discouragement to the scandalous desertion that has prevailed in this Army, by seizing and sending under a proper guard all stragglers, and persons who are not supplied with a written pass under my hand or the hand of some publick officer authorized by me. I must likewise entreat you, gentlemen, to acquaint all officers commanding regiments and companies, who have directions to march to this post, that it is my positive orders not to loiter upon the way, but to march without delay to the place of their destination.

NATHANIEL SHAW, JUN., TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-London, August 1, 1776.

SIR: The bearer, Dr. Wolcott, will deliver you a turtle, which was taken in a ship bound from Jamaica to London, by Captain Biddle, in the brig Andrew Doria, and was sent into this port, but unfortunately was lost on the rocks off Fisher's Island, being chased by a man-of-war. We saved about ninety puncheons of rum; the sugar, two hundred and fifty hogsheads, all lost, and the ship; and as the turtle was intended for the support of our enemies, we thought best to send him to Head-Quarters, to be dealt with.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

NATHL. SHAW, Jun.

To His Excellency General Washington, Commander of all the Forces of the United States, in New-York.

Per Dr. Wolcott, with a turtle.

THOMAS MUMFORD TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Groton, August 1, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I have, per last post, received a letter from Congress, requesting me to deliver to your order the quantity of powder lent General Washington, as you will see by a quotation from their letter below: ("We request you will apply to Governour Trumbull for an account of the powder lent by your Colony to General Washington when before Boston. We don't know exactly the quantity, but believe it was about four tons. The Governour, or some officer of your Government, have a receipt or certificate, either from the General or Commissary, which you will please to take up, paying the powder, and transmitting the same to us, with a receipt for the powder you so repay;") in which they desire me to take your receipt for the said powder, and also to take up General Washington's or the Commissary's receipt, which they gave when said powder was delivered belonging to this Colony. I have three tons and upwards of their powder now here, which I conclude is as much as was delivered here. The remainder is at Providence, where some part that you lent General Washington was received. I am ready to deliver to your order the quantity of powder at Norwich, which was received in this Colony, and the remainder I will give orders to be delivered at Providence when you please, but shall expect the receipts as directed by Congress in their letter to me as above. I shall be glad to have duplicates of your receipts, as I want one to send to Congress and the other to keep, to warrant my charging them with said powder.

I am, with much esteem and respect, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

THOS. MUMFORD.

P. S. I have twenty tons of powder lately arrived in several bottoms.

ENOS STONE TO MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY.

Whereas a complaint is carried in against us the subscribers by the Committee of the town of Lexington in said State, respecting our conduct with one John McAlpine; and whereas the said complaint is set forth in a colour most odious, we, in justice to ourselves, and in our own defence, beg leave to set forth the whole proceedings to your Honours in a fair point of light, which is as follows:

Some time in January last past, the above said McAlpine was found at one Smith's, in Stockbridge, in this State, a house for some time suspected to harbour unfriendly persons; whereupon several of us immediately went to said Smith's, and apprehended said McAlpine; and some of the captors being the Committee of Lenox, thought proper to consult with the Committee of Stockbridge, and, on a close examination, judged the said McAlpine inimical to the United States, and in their wisdom thought prudent to send him to the Committee of Salisbury, in the State of Connecticut; upon which the prisoner was delivered into our care, with directions to the Salisbury Committee, and accordingly we delivered the prisoner with our directions to Salisbury Committee, and from them we received orders to proceed with said McAlpine to the Committee in the Little Nine Partners, with which orders we complied, and, on our arrival there, but two of the Committee were to be found. We presented the prisoner, with the writing we had received from the two former Committees; but they declined receiving the said McAlpine till the whole of the Committee was present; and by this time the evening was far spent; we resolved to keep a good watch over the prisoner; and about eleven o'clock at night, the Committee not being met, there entered the house by surprise about thirty Tories, and with a retinue without, and to appearance seemed determined to retaliate and revenge for said McAlpine's suffering, and all in confusion, cried Kill, kill the Rebels, and then demanded the surrendering of our arms, and, crowding upon us in a savage manner, extorted from us a very valuable cutlass and two pistols, and sundry writings of value, which never were returned, and immediately after bound us both; and after they had insulted and abused us, to the satisfying of their savage dispositions, demanded McAlpine's money; but I was determined to divest myself of and secrete the money, let the consequence be what it might: accordingly, I did, at the time they were seeking of me; but they, finding the money was not about me, concluded we had left it back about ten miles. They then threatened our lives, and solemnly declared, if we would not promise to return the money of said McAlpine to his brother and sister, after we had satisfaction for our damage and expense, (if there was any left,) they would sacrifice us there; accordingly we promised the money should be returned, and upon that they relieved us from our confinement, also exchanged horses with me, but my horse made his escape from them, and returned the next morning to my quarters, so I have both horses in custody. At my return the captor demanded an equal right in the plunder, but we refused, and submitted it to the judgment of men, and they were only to have their expenses paid for assisting in apprehending the said McAlpine; but said captors demanded said moneys, that they might make an equal distribution, not that the publick should be benefited thereby. I myself being one of the Committee of the town, supposed that I had a right to keep it until I should have directions from the honourable House of Assembly or elsewhere, that I might be secure. Must beg that I may not be condemned without a proper hearing; and I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

ENOS STONE.

To the Honourable General Court of Massachusetts State.

Amherst, August 1, 1776.

State of NEW-HAMPSHIRE, County of HILLSBOROUGH:

Pursuant to orders from the Committee of Safety for said State, to the Sheriff of said County, requiring him to proclaim Independency in Amherst, the shire-town of said County, the Sheriff, attended by the Militia, a great part of the Magistrates of the County, and several hundreds of other spectators, met at the Meeting-House in said Town, and, after attending prayers, were formed into a circle on the parade, the Sheriff in the centre, on horseback, with a drawn sword in his hand. The Declaration was read from an eminence on the parade; after that was done three cheers were given, colours flying and drums beating. The Militia fired in thirteen divisions, attended with universal acclamations. The whole was performed with the greatest decorum.

Charlestown, South-Carolina, August 2, 1776.

We hear that about three weeks ago two armed vessels from St. Augustine cut a sloop and schooner, loaded with rice, out of Ogeechee River, in Georgia. A party from the same place have been employed in building a fort at St. Mary's. A boat belonging to them, with Captain Peter Bachop and seven others on board, was taken about a fortnight since, after some shot being exchanged. Three of them were killed, and Captain Bachop, with the other four, brought prisoners to Savannah.

GENERAL LEE TO RICHARD PETERS.

Charlestown, August 2, 1776.

SIR: I wish I had been informed how I am to address myself in writing to the Board of War—whether to the Board in general, to the first members on the list, or to the Secretary. I have ventured on the last mode: if it is wrong, I hope I shall be excused and corrected.

The irregularity and tardiness of the post are now become a matter of my serious concern. We never receive a letter from Philadelphia in less than six or seven weeks. That from the members of the Board of War and Ordnance is only just now arrived, though dated the 12th of June. I have been pressed, sir, by several members of the Convention of Virginia, to establish a post for this district; but I am apprehensive that it might interfere with the Continental post. However, the consequences arising from the irregularity of the post are so very serious, that all other considerations must be waived. In the mean time, I am constrained to the necessity of putting the Continent to the expense of an express on almost every occasion.

I am extremely rejoiced at the establishment of a Board of War; for the business of Congress was so complex and heterogeneous, that it was impossible they should give the necessary attention to the affairs of any one distinct department. Their regulations, with respect to returns, &c., shall be punctually observed. I have ordered General Armstrong to collect the returns from different corps, to digest them into one, and transmit them immediately to the Congress.

I am myself busied in arranging matters for an expedition into East-Florida. It is much to be lamented, that these Southern Colonies suffered the whole of last winter to pass over their heads without preparing the means either of offence or defence. Not a single row-galley or armed boat was furnished by Virginia, North or South-Carolina. Were we provided with a moderate fleet of these sort of vessels, I think I could ensure the reduction of East-Florida; an object, though not equal with Canada, is certainly of very great importance. Here the measures of the Southern Indians are concerted and planned, their treaties negotiated and concluded; here they receive their bribes, for their murderous operations, and from hence they are supplied with all the means and instruments of war. From hence they have lately made some alarming incursions into Georgia, carried off a considerable number of negroes, and not less than two thousand head of cattle. They have likewise thrown up a post on the river St. Mary's, which, if suffered to remain, may prove extremely troublesome to Georgia, by affording a ready asylum to negro deserters.

From these considerations, although I cannot think of laying siege to Augustine, having neither boats, horses, wagons, nor any other means of conveying cannon, ammunition, or provision for the purpose, I think it both a prudent and necessary measure to attempt breaking up the whole Province of East-Florida. It will be a security to Georgia, occasion infinite distress to the garrison of St. Augustine, but, above all, make a salutary impression upon the minds of the Creeks, who are now thought to stand wavering. They profess a good disposition towards the American cause; but if, by a strong predatory expedition into the province of the enemy, we give an idea of our prowess and superior strength, they will be riveted in our interest. If I were sure Mr. Clinton and his Army had steered their course to New-York, as the deserters all agree, and a letter which was left in Long-Island confirms, (a copy of which is here enclosed,) I should, as I have nothing immediately else to do in my district, march in person with this party; but the bare possibility of his being gone to Virginia will detain me. Every ship of the enemy has now repassed the bar. It appears by this same enclosed letter, that they were more roughly handled than even the deserters represented.

The Congress, I make no doubt, have been informed of the incursions made, and the ravages committed, by the Upper and Lower Cherokees. An expedition, I understand, is furnished forth by Virginia against the Upper Nations; another, by this Province, against the Lower. The success or miscarriage is of the last consequence. I am therefore desirous of forming a second line, or corps de reserve, and detaching, for this purpose, a regiment of Regulars, but have not, as yet, been able to procure wagons sufficient for two companies. It will be necessary that Congress should make some regular establishment for wagons. I should think one wagon, at least, if not two, should be purchased and appointed to each company of the whole Army, and regiments made responsible for theirs respectively. We should then be able to march when occasion requires expedition. At present, it is sometimes as much impossible to march an hundred miles, although the fate of a Province depended upon it, as if the soldiers wanted legs.

I hope the Congress and Board of War will excuse my giving an opinion on a subject on which it has not been asked; but I conceive it to be my duty not to remain silent on any affairs of such a moment.

I find, sir, that representations have been made that many inconveniences would arise from putting the troops of this Province on the Continental establishment. I can assure the Congress, that it is almost impossible to carry on the service if they remain on the Colonial establishment. The difference of the laws, the distinction of rank, occasion so much confusion, and the ridiculous farce of Duke and no Duke we are playing, the officers not always comprehending who is their proper commander, whether the President or the Continental General, occasions very dangerous distractions. But there are other matters, of more serious consideration, of which I shall not trouble you with a detail. Nor do I find that the officers of this Province object to a Continental establishment; on the contrary, all those I have conversed with seem desirous of it. Upon the whole, I think it absolutely essential to the publick service that these regiments should immediately be put on the same footing, and be governed by the same laws, with the rest. Nor am I singular in opinion. The two brigades, all the officers of every rank, and the greater part of the gentlemen of the country, concur with me.

Colonel Muhlenberg, of the Eighth Battalion of Virginians, has been made very uneasy by some letters he has lately received, with respect to the rank of his regiment. These letters intimate that it was never the intention of the Congress to consider the Seventh, Eighth, and Ninth Battalions of the Virginians on the Continental establishment, until they were entirely complete; that his regiment never was entirely complete; and that, consequently, after having so long thought himself on the Continental establishment, and, on this presumption, having marched five hundred miles from his own Province, under the command of a Continental General, he now, at last, finds himself only a Provincial officer.

I have ventured to assure him, and his officers, who are equally uneasy, that there must be some mistake in this affair. In fact, the hardship would be so great, that I cannot believe their apprehensions are well founded. It was, if I remember right, notified in April, by the Committee of Safety in Virginia, that they were then taken upon the Continental establishment, and, though in this I may be mistaken, without the proviso of their being complete.

It happened at this time, though not complete to a man, (for no regiment is ever complete to a man,) that Muhlenberg's regiment was not only the most complete of the Province, but I believe of the whole Continent. It was not only the most complete in numbers, but the best armed, clothed, and equipped, in all respects, for immediate service. I must repeat, that I cannot conceive that it was ever the intention of Congress that the establishment should be filled to a man; but that they should be competent to service, in or out of their Province. In most services, when new levies are raised, one-half of the proposed complement entitles them to establishment. Muhlenberg's regiment wanted only forty at most. It was the strength and good condition of the regiment that induced me to order it out of its own Province in preference to any other. I certainly considered them at that time as Continental troops; otherwise, I could have had no authority to order them out of the Province.

I must now submit it to the consideration of the Congress, if it would not really be the greatest cruelty that their strength and good condition should be turned against them. It was their strength and good condition which carried them out of their Province, where, had they remained and known that it was a necessary condition of their establishment to be complete to a man, they certainly could have accomplished it in three days. I do, therefore, most sincerely hope, and confidently persuade myself, that Muhlenberg's regiment will at least date their rank from the day I ordered them to march out of their Province. Not only justice, but policy requires it, for you will otherwise lose a most excellent regiment.

I often represented to Congress how difficult or impossible it would be to engage, or retain after they were engaged, any engineers of tolerable qualification on the wretched pay established. The two appointed to my district have, as I expected, quitted the service. It was, indeed, impossible for them to exist. Stadler, I hear, has entered into the service of Virginia. Massenbaugh is retained by this Province at fifty-four dollars per month, a servant, rations, and his travelling expenses. He formerly begged his dismissal from me, assuring me, and I believe sincerely, he was zealous in the cause of America; that he would willingly, if I chose it, enlist as a common soldier; but that to ride about the Continent from North to South, find horses, and appear like a gentleman, was impossible. I could, not, in conscience, force him to starve; so consented to his engaging in this service. I am now without a single Engineer, and really know not how to carry on the business. I hope the Board will consider the necessity of supplying me.

I shall now, sir, conclude, with assuring them that I am, with great respect, their obedient, most humble servant,

CHARLES LEE.

To Richard Peters, Esq., Secretary to the Board of War and Ordnance.

TURBUTT WRIGHT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee of Observation, Queen Anne's County, }
August 2, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: Complaint has been made to us by Lieutenant Hawkins, that Captain Dean's company, stationed on Kent-Island, are greatly in want of water at their station, and informed that a sufficient quantity may be had at Blunt's Warehouse, on the said Island, or at Captain Thomas Marsh's plantation, adjoining their station; and further complained, that Mr. Cummins, the Commissary, has neglected to make the necessary provision for the company, and that the company are in want of a physician.

We have applied to Captain Marsh for his permission to Captain Dean to station his company, or a part thereof, on his plantation, and have received his absolute refusal; in consequence of which we have ventured to advise Captain Dean to remove his company, or such part thereof as he may judge necessary, from the present station to Blunt's Warehouse, and to fix such and so many guards, and at such places, as he may think proper, to promote in the best manner the service in which he is engaged, until he shall receive the further orders of your Board.

By order of the Committee.

I am your obedient servant,

TURBUTT WRIGHT, Chairman.

To the Hon. the Council of Safety of Maryland.

CAPTAIN GRAYBILL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, August 2, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Please to pay unto Captain George Keepot £400, to be applied for purchasing arms and blankets for my company of German troops, and you will very much oblige your most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP GRAYBILL.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GENERAL HOOPER.

[No. 105.]

Annapolis, August 2, 1776.

SIR: Since our last, we have had advice from Major Price, our commanding officer in St. Mary's, that the British fleet lay near the mouth of Smith's Creek, in Potomack; that they were very weak in land forces, not exceeding three hundred men; that they were so sickly that fifty dead bodies had appeared on the shore, chiefly negroes; and that having gone up the river Potomack to take in water, and returned, he imagined they would soon sail from that quarter.

Their forces appear so inconsiderable and contemptible to him, that he has dismissed all the Militia, and keeps only two Independent companies to oppose them, one of which, Captain Thomas, we have this day ordered to march to the northward, and Captain Mantz, of the Frederick battalion, marches to supply his place.

Captain Dean's company is stationed at Kent-Island, and Captain Goldsborough's is to supply the place of Captain Hindman's, if the latter can get arms, which we cannot doubt the Militia will lend them for their defence, until the Province can supply them. These, with the two Independent companies, will make a company of near five hundred men. We therefore think that three-fourths of the Militia under your command may return to their habitations, and keep themselves in readiness to march in case of an attack, as the above force will be more than sufficient to repel an invasion from the fleet. We do not expect, from their weak state, that any attempt will be made, except to plunder; and we think the five hundred regular troops, together with the two hundred Militia, a sufficient force to protect your shore until the fleet sails, which we daily expect to hear of; and if some of them go to sea, and only a few remain at our Capes, and in Virginia, to destroy our trade, as it is suggested to us will be the case, the remainder of the Militia also may be discharged.

If the schooner you have taken would answer to make an armed boat or vessel for the defence of this Colony, we should be glad you would send her over, that she may be put in repair, and fitted for the service, if she is unfit. An account of her size, value, and stores, will be agreeable to us. We are of opinion that a Court-Martial ought to be held on the conduct and opinions of the two military gentlemen you mention, and a representation made from it to our Board, as a foundation for their being deprived of their commissions.

The spirit and order with which your brigade has acted on this occasion has been exceedingly agreeable to us, and we are possessed of the pleasing prospect that they will continue to distinguish themselves on every future occasion by an animated affection to their country, leading them to brave every fatigue and peril to preserve her liberties inviolate.

We are, &c.

To Brigadier-General Hooper.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COMMITTEE OF DORCHESTER COUNTY.

[No. 106.]

Annapolis, August 2, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The prisoners sent up by you we have not, by reason of the great deal of business now before us, been able to examine; but shall, when we do, apply to you to send up the witnesses, if they deny the facts with which they are charged.

We send you a couple of barrels of musket gunpowder, and weight of lead. The cannon powder may remain with you. We rely upon you for taking especial care that they shall not be wasted, as you know our safety depends upon our economy in this point. We are, &c.

To the Committee of Dorchester County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

[No. 107.]

Annapolis, August 2, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have received yours of the 27th July, many parts of which are already answered, as you will perceive by recurring to our last. The advance of $1,335 to Colonel Smallwood we approve of, upon presumption he had occasion for that sum, and that he will lay it out in providing necessaries for himself and battalion with economy and discretion. We enclose you Mr. Christopher Richmond's appointment to be Paymaster of the battalion, according to Colonel Smallwood's desire and your recommendation. We have set on foot inquiries in several places with regard to flints, and shall hereafter let you know whether any stone can be found for manufacturing them here. Since our last, we have received two letters from Major Price, copies of which are enclosed. From them you will hear the situation of the enemy below. Our pilot-boat came up last night, and informs they are not yet gone off. Several vessels are dismasted, and on shore at the point of St. George's Island, with intention to burn them. Middleton thinks they are going off down the Bay, and we hope soon to be able to write you to that effect, although we apprehend a visit to the Eastern-Shore, and are preparing accordingly. We have the satisfaction to inform you that the report of a landing at Colonel Smallwood's was not true. Mr. Brent's houses were burnt, and a good deal of damage done. We hear of no particulars of any other mischief up above.

We send you also, enclosed, a copy of a letter from Captain Deakins, as a sample of the many applications we have from almost all the Captains in the Flying-Camp. They are in want, not only of guns, but of almost everything else. We expect to be able soon to arm a number equal to that of the Regulars who have marched to the camp, and that we shall be able to send forward some companies (perhaps a battalion or more) by the middle of this month. To enable us to do this, we shall be obliged to advance more than the £5,000 given by the Convention to purchase arms. Few or none can be borrowed. The companies, many of them, not yet complete.

We expect the Convention will approve our advancing a further sum to furnish arms for the Flying-Camp. Without so doing, they would not have been in condition to march at all. We think it advisable to purchase for all the companies, rather than suffer them to remain here on expense, or be disbanded, which must have been the case.

We have ordered Captain Mantz down to St. Mary's, and given Captain Thomas positive orders to march, so that we hope he will soon be with you on his way to New-York. We congratulate you on the safe arrival of the Molly, Captain Conway, in Great Wicomico, Virginia, with twenty-one thousand weight of gunpowder, and two hundred and seventy stand of small-arms, for the use of this Province. We shall get the cargo up here as soon as we can with safety. We send you a letter for the commander for the North American troops, which came by Conway, which please to forward to General Washington.

One of the wagons that came with powder from Philadelphia met with an accident that is likely to prove fatal to a Sergeant of Captain Cox's guard. Coming down the road, not far from J. Hammond's, a bridge over a deep gutter that runs through his old field gave way, and wounded two of the people, shattered the wagon, and stove some of the powder. The loss of one barrel of powder is trifling to the life of the Sergeant. He is not dead as yet, but it is apprehended cannot live. Another man slipped his shoulder, but is got better. The powder and arms are safe at the magazine, except part of two barrels, making, in all, about one barrel lost. We cannot but admire at what you say, that there are only three thousand Militia in Jersey. Permit us to ask, what are become of all the Militia that we read in the papers are marched from Pennsylvania, Jersey, &c.? Be pleased to explain how it has happened that no more have as yet marched to their station in that Province.

By the southern post, we have intelligence that the Cherokees have committed some outrages on the borders of Carolina; that the squadron of Parker and Clinton are moving frequently from Island to Island, and are growing sickly.

Yesterday, our election for this County began, and is not yet ended. We are sorry to inform you that Messrs. Johnson and Paca and Carroll of Carrollton, from present appearances, will not be elected. Worthington, Carroll, (barrister,) Chase, and R. Hammond, are greatly beyond any others on the poll. Very few people from Elk-Ridge, or the lower part of the County, have as yet attended.

We are, &c.

To the Deputies for Maryland in Congress.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GENERAL DENT.

[No. 108.]

Annapolis, August 2, 1776.

SIR: At the time we wrote you first to take the command, Major Price was on the Eastern-Shore. We knew your attention must be engaged with the Flying-Camp. Had he been here, we should not have troubled you at all, but sent the Major immediately down to take the command. Upon his return, and understanding that the enemy were landing at St. George's Island, and that cannon would be necessary to repel them; hearing also that some of the fleet were preparing to move up the river, we came to the resolution of sending Major Price down to St. George's, expecting you might be usefully employed higher up the river, and occasionally with the Flying-Camp. These were the motives for sending Major Price, and not any intention of giving you offence. We tell you candidly that we have no reason to believe that you were not equal to the task, or that you were deficient either in military knowledge, assiduity, or personal courage, and that we are surprised you should entertain any such idea.

We had never any insinuation to your prejudice; therefore, there could be no foundation for appointing any hearing. We thought it would be of advantage to the publick cause to send down Major Price. The service was likely to be extensive, and a commander wanted in more places than one. We know you must be called off soon to the Flying-Camp, and accordingly wrote you the 28th, enclosing your commission, and requesting to see you. We now repeat that request, and are convinced that we are able, by personal conference, to satisfy you that we intended no affront or indignity to you, unless you think the Convention have acted improperly in adjusting the rank between the Regulars and the Militia.

We wish to stand fair with yourself and all other worthy men; and whatever you may determine upon, be assured that we had nothing to allege against your conduct, and that we were actuated by no other views than those of service to the publick, and taking effectual measures to repel the common enemy. We are, &c.

To Brigadier-General Dent.

CHRISTOPHER PELISSIER TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Philadelphia, August 2, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: I have received the commission [of Engineer, with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel] which the honourable Continental Congress has been pleased to point out for me; and shall take it as a very particular favour if the honourable House will order me two months' pay advanced, to equip myself for the service.

I am, with great respect, sir, your very obedient, humble servant,

PELISSIER.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, August 2, 1776.

SIR: I am particularly instructed by Congress to answer that part of your letter of 29th ultimo, directed to the Board of War, which relates to the filling up vacancies in the Army. The Congress are concerned to find that an opinion is entertained that greater confidence has been placed in, and larger powers given to, other commanders in that respect, than to yourself. They have in no instance, except in the late appointment of General Gates to the command in Canada, parted with the power of filling up vacancies. The great confusion and many disorders prevalent in that Army, and its distance, induced Congress to lodge such a power in that General, for the limited space of three months, and only during his continuance in Canada. Should Congress ever empower its Generals to fill up the vacancies in the Army, they know of no one in whom they would so soon repose a trust of such importance as in yourself; but future Generals may make a bad use of it. The danger of the precedent, not any suspicion of their present Commander-in-Chief, prompts them to retain a power, that, by you, sir, might be exercised with the greatest publick advantage.

I do myself the honour to enclose sundry resolves, and to request your attention to them. They relate principally, as you will perceive, to some new regulations with regard to Paymasters, Commissaries, and Quartermasters, in the American Army, and are intended to prevent confusion and disorder in those several departments.

The Congress approve of your employing in the service of the States the Stockbridge Indians, if you think proper.

The enclosed resolve, for taking into the pay of the States such of the seamen as may fall into our hands on board of prizes, will, I trust, be attended with the good effects Congress had in view when they passed it.

I have the honour to be, with perfect respect and esteem, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.To His Excellency General Washington.

N. B. Your favour of 5th instant, just come to hand, will be replied to by to-morrow's post.

GEORGE MEASAM'S PETITION.

[Read August 7, 1776. Referred to the Board of War.]

To the Honourable Members of the Continental Congress, &c., &c., &c.

The Memorial of GEORGE MEASAM, late of MONTREAL, in CANADA, humbly sheweth:

That your memorialist was well known by the late Brigadier-General Montgomery to be a true friend to the American cause by sundry circumstances, both before and after the capitulation of Montreal, and in consequence thereof the General thought proper to recommend your memorialist as a person in whom confidence could be put to repose the trust and care of the Post-Office for that Province; and he was honoured with a commission from the Postmaster-General for that purpose, and did direct the same, and support it with his own proper moneys, until the American Army was obliged to retreat from thence.

And further, the General was pleased to desire your memorialist, with Major Lockwood, to superintend the landing of the stores taken by Colonel Easton, commencing the 20th of November, 1775; and on the 10th of December following, your memorialist was put in publick orders to superintend all the stores, except Artillery stores; and he has a small account of disbursements unsettled, contracted by order of the commanding officer at Montreal. That no rate, rank, or salary, hath been stipulated to the said office; and that your memorialist humbly conceives it highly necessary an officer should be appointed to superintend the issues of the publick stores of the Northern camp at and about Ticonderoga.

That your memorialist had entered into the Indian trade pretty largely at four different posts above Montreal, and was possessed of other property, land, trade, and dealings, in that country; all which your memorialist has been obliged to abandon upon the retreat of the American Army from thence.

Therefore, your memorialist prays your Honours will be pleased to confirm his appointment, and extend it to the Northern Army, or elsewhere, with such rate, rank, or salary, as your Honours shall judge proper; and your memorialist shall pray, &c.

GEO. MEASAM.

Philadelphia, August 2, 1776.

SIR: The bearer, Mr. Measam, was a merchant of good reputation at Montreal; but having engaged warmly in the American cause, has been obliged to abandon that country to the great detriment of his affairs.

He was appointed by General Wooster a Commissary of Stores there, and apprehending such an officer to be at this time necessary in our Northern Army, he has applied to Congress for a continuance in that office. I understand that his memorial is referred to the Board of War. As I have had occasion to know Mr. Measam as a good accountant, a man of method, and very correct in business, I cannot but think that if such an officer is wanting, he is extremely well qualified for the employ, and as such beg leave to recommend him to the favour of the Board.

With great respect, I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

B. FRANKLIN.

To the Hon. John Adams, Esq.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Perth-Amboy, August 2, 1776.

HONoured SIR: This serves to notice you, that I have this day drawn on you for $20,000, at four days' sight, in favour of Mr. Azariah Dunham, to be improved in supplying the Continental troops in New-Jersey with provisions.

I am, most respectfully, dear sir, your most humble servant,

Jos. TRUMBULL.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Congress of the United States of America, at Philadelphia.

ESTATES OF NEW-JERSEY REFUGEES.

In Convention of the State of New-Jersey, {
Brunswick, August 2, 1776. }

Resolved, That the several County Committees within this State do cause Inventories and Appraisements to be made of the Estates, real as well as personal, of all such persons within their respective bounds as have, or shall have absconded from their homes, and joined themselves to the enemies of this State; causing all perishable articles to be sold, and the moneys arising therefrom, and all other the goods and estates of such persons, that they keep in safe and secure custody, until the further order of this Convention, or the determination of other proper judicature: Provided, That the said Committees be empowered to leave any part of the said Estate in the hands of the relations or friends of such absconding persons, taking such security as they may think proper for the return thereof, or of the value.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read August 5, 1776.]

New-York, August 2, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 30th ultimo, with its several enclosures, I was honoured with by Wednesday's post.

Congress having been pleased to leave with me the direction of Colonel Ward's regiment, I have written to Governour Trumbull, and requested him to order their march to this place, being fully satisfied that the enemy mean to make their grand push in this quarter, and that the good of the service requires every aid here that can be obtained. I have also written to Colonel Elmore, and directed him to repair hither with his regiment. When it comes, I shall fill up commissions for such officers as appear with their respective companies.

Colonel Holman, with a regiment from the Massachusetts State, is arrived. Colonel Cary from thence is also here, waiting the arrival of his regiment, which he hourly expects. He adds, when he left New-London he heard that the Third Regiment from the Massachusetts was almost ready, and would soon be in motion.

The enemy's force is daily augmenting, and becoming stronger by new arrivals. Yesterday, General Greene reports, about forty sail, including tenders, came into the Hook. What they are, or what those have brought that have lately got in, I remain uninformed. However, I think it probable they are part of Lord Howe's fleet with the Hessian troops. It is time to look for them.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

P. S. I am extremely sorry to inform Congress our troops are very sickly.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

Head-Quarters, August 2, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of the 16th ultimo, in behalf of the Council of Massachusetts-Bay, is duly received. The contents have been attended to; and I have the pleasure to inform you there is a prospect of an early exchange of the prisoners taken in the Yankee Hero privateer. As Mr. Tracy negotiated this matter, and had an interview with Lord Howe on board the Eagle man-of-war, I must refer you to him for particulars. Congress authorized me to comply with General Howe's request of giving Governour Skene for Mr. Lovell. I have written informing General Howe thereof, and expect soon to have Mr. Lovell sent to some part of the Continent.

Assure the members of your honourable body, it gives me particular pleasure that I have it in my power to relieve one of their citizens from a long and tedious imprisonment, and shall esteem myself happy in complying with any request they may make consistent with the important duties of my office.

I have the honour to be, with great esteem, their and your most obedient, humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. Benjamin Greenleaf, Esq., Boston.

August 5th.—P. S. On the 11th ultimo, I wrote your honourable body, respecting the St. John's, Nova-Scotia, and Penobscot Indians. Since which, I have heard nothing from them. It is a matter of the greatest consequence. Must therefore beg an answer, acquainting me what steps they have taken, by the first post.

Since the above, I have a letter from General Howe, acquainting me he has sent for Mr. Lovell for the proposed exchange. I am, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, August 2, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Colonel Hand reports nothing worthy your Excellency's notice this morning.

I was at the Narrows last evening, and find the fleet that came in yesterday consisted of thirty-six ships, four brigs, and five sloops: one ship and a sloop still at the Hook. I could not learn with any degree of certainty who they are; but I believe, from their uniforms, they must be the Guards and Artillery. If your Excellency has leisure, perhaps it may be worth while to pay a visit to the Narrows, to reconnoitre and view the fleet.

With respect to the tents I wrote about yesterday, I can easily dispense with them, if there are barracks to be got for the regiment. I wrote to the Quartermaster-General to send over his Barrackmaster, to look up quarters for the regiment this morning. Shall notify your Excellency the result of the Barrackmaster's inquiry.

I have the honour to be, your Excellency's obedient servant,

NATHANAEL GREENE.

To His Excellency General Washington, New-York.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

Committee-Chamber, New-York, August 2, 1776.

Resolved, That no Lambs be killed and exposed to sale in any Market of this City and County, (of which all Butchers and other inhabitants are desired to take particular notice,) until further orders from the Convention of this State or this Committee.

Extract from the Minutes:

JOSEPH WINTER, Secretary.

GENERAL GEORGE CLINTON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort Montgomery, August 2, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I take this opportunity by my brother (now on his way to New-York to settle some affairs of his regiment) to acknowledge the receipt of your Excellency's favour of the 26th ultimo, and of informing you of our present situation, and that of the enemy. On Thursday last the shipping and tenders fell down to the mouth of Croton's River, where they have since continued at anchor near the east shore; since which, they have made one attempt to land on this side the river, with their barge, but were repulsed by our Militia. On Saturday last, the three hundred New-England Militia left Peek's Kill, &c., and returned home without giving me the least notice of it, though I believe they had the consent of the Committee of Congress, who expected in the new levies from West-Chester and Dutchess Counties to supply their place. They did not arrive. The shore, of course, was unguarded, and the very same evening the enemy came up the river in their barges, above six miles from where their shipping lay, went upwards of a mile in the country and took off a yoke of oxen, a steer, a cow, and ten sheep, from the farm of one Baily, a noted Tory, who, it is said, is on board the Phoenix, and I suppose was their guide.

On receiving this account, I thought it was my duty to send a part of our men to protect that shore, until the new levies in those Counties can be raised to relieve them, and have done so accordingly, though contrary to the resolves of the Provincial Congress, which fixes their station on this side the river; but trust the necessity of the case will justify my conduct in this; for to leave that side without protection would in a great degree render our care on this useless and idle. I have taken possession of the hill mentioned in my last, and the proper works are laid out there by Mr. Machin, and which shall be executed with the greatest despatch and economy.

The fire-rafts are not yet completed. The difficulty of procuring the necessary materials has occasioned much delay. They are, however, in such forwardness as to be used to some advantage, should the shipping attempt passing us.

The gentleman from Philadelphia to assist our Secret Committee, was here yesterday, and is gone forward to Poughkeepsie. Think it not best to proceed on the rafts until he returns here, as he don't altogether approve the method we have taken of fixing the combustible matter in them. The mode directed by your Excellency for drawing the Artificers' pay, &c., (with which I was entirely unacquainted,) will prevent any future uneasiness on their account, and answer better than money here.

I am, with the highest esteem, your most obedient servant,

GEO. CLINTON.

To His Excellency General Washington, New-York.

COLONEL HAY TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Haverstraw, August 2, 1776.

SIR: I find my own apprehensions that the banks of Hudson's River would become the chief theatre of the war, confirmed by the opinion of the Congress; and I feel therefore vast satisfaction in the provision they are making for a proper defence on this great line of communication, as well as in the report that your Excellency is at the same time concerting measures totally to obstruct the navigation below the capital.

The vessels under Captain Parker's command, on their departure from our Bay, brought to in an hour after my last letter was despatched, between Tellers's Point and the Werdlinge Hook, where they still continue, and have, since they changed their ground, received some supplies from the West-Chester shore. On this side our watch is so strictly kept up that they have had nothing from us since the day on which they destroyed Halsted's house.

By the late act of our Congress for establishing river guards, I observe that the appointment of the Deputy Commissaries is left to your Excellency; and if the burden of the service will not fall too heavily upon the undertaker, I stand ready to perform it on this side of the river; and being conveniently situated, and having an extensive acquaintance in the surrounding country for the facilitating the necessary supplies, I now offer myself for that trust, with hopes of your favour and approbation. The bearer will wait for your Excellency's answer; for I propose, upon his return, and your acceptance of my services, instantly to wait upon you for your further commands. The obstruction of all intercourse by water between the Highland forts and Head-Quarters, renders it so difficult to give and procure intelligence which may be of the utmost moment to the inhabitants on the borders of the river, that I beg leave, in compliance with their wishes, to entreat your Excellency's attention to the proposal of setting up a post to ride once or twice in a week between these stages. I think I could procure a rider at thirty or forty shillings a trip, and that the letters and carriage of small articles wanted from the capital, all along the road, and now not to be obtained by water, would pay, if not overbalance the expense.

I have the honour to be, sir, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

A. HAWKES HAY.

P. VAN CORTLANDT AND Z. PLATT TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Head-Quarters, mouth of Croton, August 2, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The enemy's ships lie off here, and their barges row up and down the river o' nights; and notwithstanding our utmost exertions, some infamous rascal must have given them information that the New-England troops went off on Saturday last; and not a sufficient number coming in to guard the shore, they landed at one Bailey's, on Sunday night, and went back half a mile and drove off one pair of oxen, two cows, one calf, one heifer, and eleven sheep. No doubt had the assistance of some Tories on shore. We have since got some assistance from General Clinton's brigade, and several companies have come in, and more are hourly expected, that we are in hopes soon to have such an arrangement as will effectually cut off all kind of communication. Hope there may be soon some discreet smart officer appointed to take the command, and a proper Commissary, that the business may be conducted with spirit and regularity. We must confess, gentlemen, that as yet things have not been so well regulated as we should have been glad to have seen; but the many difficulties and disadvantages we had to encounter only must apologize. We considered our appointment as only pro tempore, and, cautious of assuming too much authority to ourselves lest it might give disquiet to some of the military corps, and having such an extensive shore and frequent movements, were obliged to deal out provisions in different places; and not being able to give any man assurance that he should continue any considerable time in office, has made it difficult to get proper persons to act in different departments. Added to this, having to deal with new raw troops every few days, by reason of their frequent changes, (and sorry to see many of them very refractory,) that on the whole our station has not been the most desirable; however, are willing to serve in any department that may be for the good of our country.

Remain, gentlemen, your very humble servants,

PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT,
ZEPHA. PLATT.

To the Representatives of the Convention of the State of New-York.

ISAAC NICOLL TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Haverstraw, August 2, 1776.

SIR: I am appointed by General Clinton to take the command at this place; we have now three companies, and expect daily a reinforcement of one or two more companies. We are without a Commissary to provide for the troops, and have no store of provisions, powder, and ball. I must, therefore, request that the Congress will give orders that we may be speedily supplied. It will also be very agreeable to the regiment I have the honour to command if a Surgeon was also appointed.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

ISAAC NICOLL.

To Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

WILLIAM BEDLOW TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Fort Constitution, August 2, 1776.

SIR: I wrote you last week by Captain Cook, in which I enclosed the accounts of this post, from my last settlement to the time of my dismission as a Commissioner under the Provincial Congress, requesting you would be so kind as to lay them before the Committee of Accounts for their inspection. I have now to desire the favour of the honourable the Congress of the State of New-York to order the amount of those accounts to be paid to Colonel James Clinton, who will bring it up to this post with him, by which means I shall be enabled to settle with the artificers and others, who are continually pestering me for their money.

I am, sir, with respect, your humble servant,

WILLIAM BEDLOW.

To Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

German-Flats, August 2, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your favour of the 29th ultimo was delivered me within this half hour. As I wish that Congress should reach them the soonest possible, I will not detain an express that is already at the door to carry it to Albany any longer than to assure you that I experience the finest feelings from your friendly declaration. You will never, my dear sir, outdo me in acts of friendship. There I will always vie with you. To-morrow I will write you more at large, and enclose you copy of a letter from General Washington, (though I believe you have it before this, for I ordered Captain Varick to send you copies of all letters that concerned our affairs to the northward,) on the same subject with that of his to you, and with copy of my answer, which I wish may meet your approbation.

Adieu until then; and believe me, dear sir, your most faithful and obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To Hon. Major-General Gates.

GENERAL WATERBURY TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, August 2, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I received your favour of the 31st ultimo, and your Honour may depend upon my compliance with every order, as far as lies in my power. I have done but very little at the fort as yet, the call has been so great from the carpenters for the men. I have ordered, some part of the time, one gill of rum per man for fatigue-men, but our growing short, I give half a gill. The carpenters will insist upon having their full complement of rum; there are but two and a half barrels, and should be glad your Honour would send me a supply soon.

I herewith send some peas, and have sent out after butter, and have encouragement of having some the beginning of the week, which I shall send as soon as I can get; and am, with the greatest esteem, your Honour's humble servant,

DAVID WATERBURY, Jun.

To Major-General Gates.

SAMUEL SQUIER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Fairfield, August 2, 1776.

SIR: According to the request per your letter of the 17th of last month, I have made inquiry, and find I can procure the greater part of the clothing, &c. I have agreed for all the hats and shoes, and I expect I shall be able to procure the shirting; but as our people are but now spinning the wool, I don't expect it will be ready before the first of October; and as to the tow-cloth, I have purchased some and am making it into tents, although at a vastly higher price than last year. I imagine the tents are now wanted, so that I shall get them ready as soon as possible. I hope to get cloth enough for about fifty tents, and could have procured enough for two hundred if I had had orders but a little sooner. As to the cloth for the coats and waistcoats, I find some difficulty. I shall get a part of homespun cloth, but I suppose not enough, and hope to make up the complement in coarse cloth, which I find to be sold amongst us at a reasonable rate. The blankets I find still more difficult, but have procured some, and shall endeavour to procure the rest, if possible. If the shirts and other clothing are to be made up here, I desire you will let me know it, and I will have it done as fast as I collect the cloth.

I find it will be very necessary to have money to pay for those articles whenever they are brought in. You will therefore please to inform me where I may draw the money for that purpose.

I am your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,
SAMUEL SQUIER.

To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., at Lebanon.

CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety of Connecticut, August 1st, 1776:

Present: His Honour the Governour, Eliphalet Dyer, Jr. Huntington, Richard Law, Titus Hosmer, Jed. Elderkin, Nathaniel Wales, Jun., Benj. Huntington, Esquires.

Voted, (upon application of the Selectmen of Windham.) That Lieutenant Wales have twelve Guns, and Bayonets and Belts, to be delivered him by Mr. David Trumbull, for the use of Captain Stedman's company.

Sent Circular Letters to all the respective Towns in the Colony, urging the necessity of forwarding the Inlistments, &c.

Sundry Letters from the Convention of New-York, by Mr. Depuyster, relative to the Prisoners sent from thence to Litchfield Jail, read, taken up, and considered, and thereupon, Voted, That the Mayor of New-York be brought down to Hartford, and there confined; two of said Prisoners, viz: Gilbert Forbes and William Forbes, to be confined at Litchfield Jail, and the other ten to be brought down to Norwich Jail; and warrants thereon granted, directed to the respective Jailers.

Voted, That an order be drawn on the Pay-Table for £600, in favour of Mr. Andrew Huntington, for the purchase of Clothing, Tents, &c., for the Continental Army, to be paid out of the money lodged in the Colony Treasury by Mr. Sherman, if lodged for said purpose, otherwise to be out of the proper Treasury of the Colony, and to render his account therefor.

Order given 1st August; delivered Colonel Huntington.

Adjourned till to-morrow morning.

Friday, August 2, 1776.

Met according to adjournment.

Present: His Honour the Governour, Eliphalet Dyer, Jr. Huntington, Richard Law, Titus Hosmer, Jed. Elderkin, Nathl. Wales, Benj. Huntington, Esquires.

Colonel Pettibone applied to this Board for direction and instruction relative to bringing down the Cannon, &c., from Salisbury Furnace.

Voted, That an order be given to Colonel Pettibone, on Colonel J. Porter, to deliver to him, for the use of this Colony, forty tons of pig Iron, also one or two tons of nine-pound Shot, to be by him transported to Connecticut River.

Order given, &c.

Whereas the Continental Congress did order Clothing to be provided in this State for the use of the Continental Army, and proper persons are employed for that purpose; and whereas this Board have been advised of the great and pressing necessity of the Army at Crown-Point and Ticonderoga, for an immediate supply of the Clothing, which will admit no delay:

Resolved, That the necessity of the Northern Army for an immediate supply of Clothing is so great, that such part of what articles is procured in this State, in pursuance of such order of Congress, ought to be forwarded to said Army, without waiting for particular orders to that purpose. And his Honour the Governour is desired to give orders to have the same forwarded to said Army accordingly.

Resolved and Ordered, That Captain John Deshon and Mr. Nathaniel Shaw, Jun., be, and they are, instructed to purchase the New-Providence Sloop belonging to Mr. Charles Walker, now lying at New-London, for the use of this Government, to be fitted as an armed vessel, at the easiest and cheapest rate in their power, and to execute proper contracts on the part of this Colony for that purpose, and receive suitable writings of conveyance to pass the property of the same to this State; and that thereupon Captain Seth Harding do immediately proceed to alter and fit up said Sloop as an armed Brigantine, with the greatest despatch; and that he make use of the masts, sails, rigging, guns, and other implements of furniture of the Brigantine Defence, now under his command, for that purpose, and that he employ the officers, sailors, and marines, of said Brigantine Defence, in fitting said Sloop as aforesaid. And said Mr. Shaw is directed to furnish Captain Harding with what shall be necessary for that purpose.

Resolved and Ordered, That the Hon. Eliphalet Dyer and Richard Law, Esqs., immediately repair to New-York, and there confer with his Excellency General Washington upon further measures proper and necessary to be pursued by this State, for the defence and security of this and the rest of the United States, and to frustrate the designs of our enemies against them.

Voted, To draw an order on the Pay-Table for £200, in favour of Dr. Joshua Elderkin, to enable him to purchase Tents and Clothing for the Continental Army, to be paid out of the money lodged by Mr. Sherman in the Treasury, if lodged there for that purpose, otherwise to be paid out of the proper Treasury of this Colony, and to render his account.

Order drawn this day; delivered W. Wales, Jun., Esq.

August 5, 1776.

The Governour drew an Order on the Pay-Table for £1000, in favour of Mr. Chauncey Whittlesey, to enable him to go on in purchasing Tents and Clothing for the Continental Army, to be paid out of the money lodged in the Treasury by Mr. Sherman, if sent for that purpose, otherwise out of the proper Treasury of this State; and said Whittlesey to render his accounts.

The above order was approved by a vote of the Governour and Council of Safety, at their meeting, August 15, 1776.

Attest: BENJAMIN HUNTINGTON, Clerk, P.T.

MIDDLETOWN (CONNECTICUT) COMMITTEE.

In Committee of Inspection, Middletown, }
August 2, 1776. }

It was resolved by this Committee that no Sheep be killed in this town; that is to say, Ewes under five, nor other Sheep under four years old.

Mr. John Birdsey was cited before this Committee on a charge of depreciating the Continental Paper Currency, and also Mr. Gershom Birdsey was cited to appear for the same offence; but the said Gershom showed contempt in refusing to appear, and the charge appearing very probable, it was resolved by this Committee that the said John and Gershom Birdsey are guilty of a breach of a late law of the honourable Continental Congress. Therefore,

Resolved, That they be advertised in the Hartford Courant, as enemies to their country, and excluded from all trade and intercourse with the inhabitants of the United States of America.

Mr. Elijah Burr was brought before this Committee upon a charge of selling Bohea Tea for more than three-fourths of a dollar per pound; which he confessed, and offered the following confession, viz:

"Whereas I, the subscriber, was brought before the Committee of Inspection for Middletown, upon a charge of selling Bohea Tea at a higher rate than three-fourths of a dollar per pound, and found guilty: I am sorry for my offence, and will restore to all persons from whom I have taken more the overplus, if they will appear to demand the same within one month from this date, and for the future will demean myself in all things, agreeable to the resolutions of the honourable the Continental Congress. Witness my hand in Middle-town, the 2d day of August, 1776.

"ELIJAH BURR."

Which was voted satisfactory, and the said Burr recommended to the favour of the publick.

Extract from the Minutes of the Committee.

Test: BENJAMIN HENSHAW, Clerk.

PITTSFIELD (MASSACHUSETTS) COMMITTEE.

As it appears in the present struggle between Great Britain and America that every man is by this time fixed and acts from principle, so it becomes every true friend to his country to discover himself on the side of liberty, not only in opposing the British Administration, but also in opposing internal enemies among ourselves.

From these principles the Committee of the Town of Pittsfield, in the County of Berkshire, have acted, in setting forth to publick view the conduct of Captain Charles Goodrich, of said Pittsfield. Said Goodrich, in the beginning of our contest with Great Britain, appeared friendly, and spoke highly in favour of Committees; but as soon as an opportunity presented, he procured to himself a commission in the King's name to exercise authority over the people as a Justice of the Peace; and because the people were not willing to submit to British authority, said Goodrich rose up in a rage, plead the legality of his commission, threatened the Town and County to bring the Militia upon them. He opposed the Committee, saying "he would as soon be judged by a pack of Pirates," refusing to comply with any of their orders. He violated his former contracts by force and arms, and horsewhipped a man for not tamely submitting to the wanton exercise of his power. He has fully joined himself with the most ancient Tories and implacable enemies among us, taking their counsel and advice, and with all his power set himself against the Town and County, and the cause of his country; and in the prosecution of his infernal designs, remonstrated to the General Court against the Town, County, and Committee, but missed his aim, the Court paying no regard to his remonstrance. Moreover, when the General Court, in July last, ordered the raising two regiments for the Canada service by a bounty and draught on the Train Band and Alarm List, said Goodrich, being draughted, refused to comply with the order of Court in any way or manner, showing his most implacable hatred and envy to the union of the people and defence of the country.

The Committee of Safety, therefore, after much labour and great patience, Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that said Charles Goodrich is an enemy to his country, and that he, with his conduct, be published as such in the publick newspapers, and that all connexions and commercial intercourse be withdrawn from said Goodrich till he give satisfaction for his unfriendly conduct.

Signed by order of the Committee:

VALENTINE RATHBUN, Chairman.

Pittsfield, August 2, 1776.

RICHARD DERBY, JUN., TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Council Chamber, Watertown, August 2, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed letter I have this day laid before the Council of this State, who have directed me to enclose it to your Excellency, desiring, (if you think proper,) when a convenient opportunity offers, it may be forwarded agreeable to its directions.

I have the honour to be your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

RICHARD DERBY, JUN.

COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

In Committee of Council, Watertown, }
August 2, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: The bearer hereof, Captain Jonathan Edy, has brought us a Petition from the town of Onslow, in Nova-Scotia, representing their distressed situation, and praying relief, either by sending them forces, or vessels to bring them away. We are truly concerned for their unhappy condition, and should be glad to afford them assistance were it in our power; but as the General Court is not sitting, we conceive that we are not authorized to do anything in the matter; we must therefore refer Captain Edy to you. He will give you a particular account of the circumstances of that Province, and what he thinks may be done for their relief and the service of the common cause. We leave it with you, gentlemen, to take such steps in the affair as you may judge best.

By order of the Committee:

JOHN WINTHROP, Chairman.

To the Hon. Delegates of the State of Massachusetts-Bay, in Congress.

S. MCCLINTOCK TO WILLIAM WHIPPLE.

Greenland, New-Hampshire, August 2, 1776.

SIR: The only consideration which has restrained me from writing you before now, is the weighty and important business in which you are engaged. Perhaps no body of men, in any period of time, ever had objects of greater magnitude, or more various and complicated, to engage their attention than the grand American Congress have at the present day; and I believe I speak the sentiments of people in general, when I add, never did men act with more wisdom, prudence, and fidelity, than they have hitherto done in the discharge of the great trust committed to them by their country. I rejoice that we have such able politicians and true patriots at the helm in this convulsed, critical, alarming state of our publick affairs. The wisdom, the justice, and publick spirit discovered in all their resolves and proceedings, have acquired them the entire confidence of the people, excepting a few restless, disappointed, malignant Tories, or venal wretches, bought with British gold, or the hope of making themselves great on the ruin of their country, who are not inactive in propagating falsehoods and slanders to discourage people and prejudice the common cause. But I believe they are so few that their influence is like the drop of the bucket to the ocean. I will not say what a gentleman in conversation with me the other day said, with some warmth, that people have a greater veneration for the resolves of the Congress than for the laws of the Almighty; but I will say, from my observation, that their resolves are observed by people in general with as much reverence as ever were the laws of Solon and Lycurgus by the Athenians and Spartans, and much better than laws enforced by Royal authority. People in general will be quiet and obedient so long as they see that their Rulers are pursuing the true end of Government, the good of the governed.

While some few among us are showing their enmity to the country in every way they dare, it is merry to observe the conduct of some others who seem to be in a state of suspense, waiting to see which side is like to prevail—are half Whigs one day and half Tories the next, according as the events that turn up are for or against us. They are not governed by a regard to the justice of the cause, but by a regard to consequences—in other words, by selfishness. Their conduct puts me in mind of the old Scotchwoman in the time of a competition between a Popish and Protestant Prince for the Throne, who used to say her prayers both in Latin and Scotch; being asked the reason, she answered, "I dinna ken which side I shall gang to at last, and let the Lord tak which he wull." Sorry I am that there are any among us, who drew their vital breath in America, and have all their connexions here, so totally void of that noble and divine virtue, the love of their country, as to be unfriendly to the common cause. But I promise myself that the wisdom, justice, moderation, and firmness of the honourable Congress in their proceedings, will finally silence all opposition. The eyes of all America are looking up to them, under God, as the guardians of the Commonwealth, and reposing the greatest confidence in them that they will frame such regulations as effectually to secure her liberties against the future encroachment of tyrants, and place them on a permanent basis.

It is said virtue is the basis of a Republick, and some express their fears that there is not publick virtue enough in the country for such a form of Government; or if there is at present, it will not long be the case—that we shall soon become so corrupt that anarchy and confusion will take place, and we shall be in a worse state than if we had remained as we were, or submitted to absolute power. I hope not; as the abilities, virtue, and publick spirit of the gentlemen who compose our Congress are unquestionable, so they have the advantage in framing a Constitution for America of the experience of past ages. They know the rocks on which other States have been shipwrecked, and I trust, like good pilots, will steer clear of them. Can no regulation be made to guard more effectually against that corruption which has proved the ruin of all States that ever have existed, and to counteract the tendency of vice, and in some measure to supply the want of publick virtue? To oblige people to preserve and retain their liberties?

What do you think of the Agrarian law to prevent subjects from engrossing too much property, and of consequence acquiring too much power and influence, dangerous to the liberties of the people? What of a Rotation act, to oblige those who make laws, in their turn to experience the operation of them? Would it be a wise measure to oblige the elected to clear themselves by a solemn oath when chosen, from having, directly or indirectly, used any influence to obtain their election, and to make outlawry and an incapacity ever to serve their country afterwards in any publick post, the punishment of perjury in such cases? Would it prevent the abuse of that power by which the British Parliament made themselves Septennial to make it an express rule of the Constitutions, that Representatives shall be considered as reduced to private station at the expiration of the term for which they shall be chosen; and that if they should presume to make any laws after the constitutional term of their existence, such laws shall have no binding force on the people in any case whatsoever, and that such an attempt shall disqualify them for being reelected? Can no method be found out to restrain and counteract that spirit of domination, which in all ages has spread desolation and misery in the East, and drenched it in human blood? Above all, I trust that Spiritual tyranny, the worst sort of tyranny, will be guarded against. Civil power in the hands of domineering Priests, of every denomination, ever hath been, and while human nature remains what it is, ever will be a source of infinite mischief. In my apprehension, it is clearly inconsistent with the nature of Christ's Kingdom for his Ministers to have any share in the civil power, and with the idea of religious liberty, the natural rights of mankind, and the design of Government, for the civil power to be employed to propagate or establish any particular persuasion in opposition to others. As all men have an equal right to think and judge for themselves in matters of religion, and to worship God in that way that is agreeable to their own consciences, and cannot be amenable for their religious opinions to any earthly tribunal, I could heartily wish, that in framing a Constitution for America, care might be taken to secure these rights inviolate to all, without exception, and to lay an effectual bar against persecution for conscience sake; that there might be no civil establishment of any particular persuasion, but that all denominations might enjoy equal liberty and protection so long as they behave in a manner becoming good and loyal subjects, and that the line between civil and religious power drawn by that wise, judicious, and upright Magistrate, Galio, might be carefully observed. But perhaps I have need to ask pardon for offering these hints on a subject which I confess does not belong to my province. However, I persuade myself your candour and friendship will not impute it to a conceit of my ability to afford you any assistance, but rather to a warm and honest zeal for the common cause.

That you and the respectable gentlemen, whom I regard with veneration and gratitude, as, under God, the guardians of our inestimable privileges and the saviours of their country, may have a double portion of the Spirit of Wisdom to guide you in your deliberations, and may enjoy the reward of your fidelity and patriotism in the applause of your grateful country, the approbation of your own conscience, and of your Supreme Judge, is the ardent wish of, sir, your most obedient servant,

S. McCLINTOCK,

NORTH-CAROLINA COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

North-Carolina, in the Council of Safety, }
August 3, 1776. }

Whereas this Board, anxious to detect all persons concerned in counterfeiting the Currency of this State, and influenced by reports injurious to Mr. William Edwards's character, and, by misinformation, ordered Mr. Edwards to be brought before us for examination, and he was brought and examined accordingly: We, in justice to injured innocence, and to prevent that imputation of guilt which might arise from the circumstance of apprehending Mr. Edwards, do, with infinite pleasure, declare, that, after the strictest scrutiny into his conduct, the charge was found totally groundless, and he was most honourably acquitted.

By order:

CORNELIUS HARNETT, President.

JAMES GREEN, Secretary.

JOHN PAGE TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read August 12, 1776.]

Williamsburgh, in Council, August 3, 1776.

SIR: We have your letter of the 22d ultimo before us, written to his Excellency the Governour, informing him of a resolution of Congress directing General Lewis to order two battalions from Virginia to join the Flying-Camp under Brigadier Mercer, in New-Jersey, and that the Congress had resolved to take an equal number of Minute-men, or Militia, on Continental pay, should an invasion be apprehended. We must observe, sir, that from the dispersed situation of our troops, the number of navigable rivers, exposing our country to the ravages of the enemy's fleet, the great demand of men and arms on our frontiers, on account of the Indian war, and from the present state of General Clinton's Army near Charlestown, which we conceive might be employed to greater advantage here, we have reason to apprehend an invasion, and have therefore ordered a number of Minute-men and Militia into duty, to supply the want of our two regiments ordered to the Jerseys. We look upon them, however, as very inadequate to that purpose, and beg leave to refer you to a letter written on this subject to our Delegates.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN PAGE, President.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

GENERAL LEWIS TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read August 12, 1776.]

Williamsburgh, August 3, 1776.

SIR: By yesterday's post I was honoured with the order of Congress, by which I am to send to the Flying-Camp in New-Jersey two battalions of the Continental troops in this State. This shall be done as expeditiously as in my power, though, from the dispersed condition of the troops in affording a general protection, it cannot be so soon as I could wish. Should this State be attacked by a large body of the enemy in the absence of those two battalions, I shall not be able to give them the reception I could wish. With our whole force, (as it now stands,) it would be difficult, considering the many rivers that give them entrance to any or as many parts of this country as they could wish. Another circumstance, too, will (I doubt) weaken us: the First and Second Battalions were inlisted for no more than twelve months, which is nearly expired, and they have as yet refused to inlist for a longer time. I shall use my best endeavours to have them inlisted on Continental establishment. I shall do myself the honour to write you more fully the next post.

I am, honourable sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

ANDW. LEWIS, Brigadier-General.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., &c.

COURT-MARTIAL ON LIEUTENANT JONES.

At a General Court-Martial held at Camp at Springfield, the 3d day of August, 1776, by order of the Honourable Brigadier-General Lewis, for the trial of Lieutenant Peter Jones, of the Sixth Regiment, arrested by Colonel Buckner for neglect of duty and insolent behaviour:

Major HENDRICKS, President.

Members: Captain Davis, Captain Towles, Captain For, Captain Johnson, Captain Crochan, Lieutenant Pettus, Lieutenant Curd, Lieutenant Crump, Lieutenant Clayton, Lieutenant Murray, Ensign Burnet, Ensign Smith.

The Court being duly sworn, Lieutenant Jones appeared, and was made acquainted with the charge. Colonel Buckner also appeared, and said, that between nine and ten o'clock in the evening of Saturday last, he was going home to his tent; that he was stopped by a sentinel who had the wrong countersign; that he sent for Lieutenant Jones, who was officer of the Guard, and inquired of him the reason of it, who said, that he had given the sentinel the countersign himself, which was of his own make; that he asked the said Lieutenant why he did not wait on the commanding officer for the countersign, and was answered that he did not know it was his duty to do so, as the officer he had relieved had given a countersign, and he thought he might do it as well as other officers. Colonel Buckner told the Lieutenant that it was owing either to neglect or contempt, and was answered it was intended as neither.

Lieutenant Rose was sworn a witness; said, that when he was officer of the Guard, he had no countersign given him, but made one himself; that he was applied to by Lieutenant Jones to know how he (Jones) could get the countersign, and that he informed him that when he was on guard, he made the countersign himself.

Lieutenant Jones, in his defence, says that he received no countersign from the officer of the day, and did not know it to be his duty to wait on the commanding officer for it, as he had been informed by the officer whom he relieved, that the officer had made the countersign; that he did not intend the least insult or insolence to Colonel Buckner in what he said to him on Saturday evening.

The Court having considered the case, are of opinion, that Lieutenant Jones is not guilty either of neglect of duty or insolent behaviour, and that he be therefore released from his arrest.

Major HENDRICKS, President.

Brigadier-General Lewis agrees with the Court so far as to release Lieutenant Peter Jones, but begs Lieutenant Jones to make himself more acquainted with his duty as an officer, that in future he may not be guilty of such mistakes.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THOMAS SMYTH AND THOMAS RINGGOLD.

[No. 109.]

Annapolis, August 3, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have received your separate favours of the 1st instant, by Captain Smyth, and transmit by him, for the Committee, the sum of £500, for the purchase of blankets and arms. The Continental money which Mr. Ringgold has, we would have sent to us by the first safe conveyance. We should be fond of permitting Captain Smyth to go beyond £4 10s. for extraordinary guns, was it not that we are apprehensive of dangerous consequences from such license. As soon as a price is offered for anything above what is customarily given, there is no purchasing at the price which was before usually allowed, though the particular article bought in reality was worth considerably more; and therefore we cannot accord to his request, but hope, as the number of arms which are wanting are very few, that they may be collected at not more than £4 10s., by the time other necessities can be procured for their marching. Rifles we will allow £5 for.

We shall give orders to the Colonel of the Eastern-Shore Battalion of Flying-Camp Militia to march his men in companies to the northward, when they are ready. As soon, therefore, as Captains Smyth and Perkins are prepared, they will apply to him for orders; but we shall be obliged to you if you will procure proper carriages for their baggage, and afford them other assistance which may be wanting.

We have sent by Captain Smyth twenty pieces of crud, and request you will engage proper persons to make them into tents immediately. A sample shall be furnished from Baltimore.

Your Committee will be pleased to have five hundred wooden bottles made as soon as possible for the use of the Province, agreeable to the sample delivered Captain Smyth. We also send to your Committee thirty camp-kettles for the use of the Flying-Camp. Knapsacks with haversacks are already contracted for, and we expect will be completed in a very little time. Captain Smyth has our orders to take with him from Baltimore four hundred cartouch-boxes and slings, six hundred and eighty-eight bayonet-belts, and six hundred and eighty-eight gun-slings, which are to be lodged with your Committee. We request they may be delivered by them, with the wooden bottles, to the Flying-Camp Militia on the Eastern-Shore, when armed.

The Council are very glad to hear Mr. Smyth's business is so circumstanced as to admit his coming over; the earlier in the week the better, as we are much thronged with business, and some of our Board are anxious to see their families before the meeting of Convention.

We are, &c.

To Thomas Smyth and Thomas Ringgold, Esqs.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GEORGE SCOTT.

[No. 110.]

Annapolis, August 3, 1776.

SIR: Linen fit for shirting or tents is wanted—seven or eight hundred—and tow linen. You have not informed us of either the quality or price of yours. Our manufacturers bring us in linen of the first kind at 3s. 6d., and of the latter at 2s. 3d. If you can let yours go at that rate, and it is good in quality, you may send it down to this place.

We are, &c.

To Mr. George Scott.

RICHARD THOMPSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Georgetown, August 3, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: Not having known of my appointment by the honourable Convention as Quartermaster to the regiment now raising in Frederick County for the Flying-Camp before the 1st of this instant, renders it impossible for me to enter on that service on so short a notice, although my inclination leads me to it. I know not who can, or whether any one ought to be blamed, for neglecting to afford me timely intelligence, but I can assure your Honours it will always give me the highest pleasure to act in any situation wherein my poor, though willing, services can be of use in the common cause of the United States of America. I have only to lament its being out of my power, for the reasons afore-mentioned, to accept the appointment allotted me, and to request you will tender my acknowledgments to the Convention, in any manner the most acceptable, for the honour intended me.

I am, may it please your Honours, with great respect and esteem, your most obedient and humble servant,

RICHARD THOMPSON.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

JOS. EARLE TO J. NICHOLSON.

August 3, 1776.

SIR: I yesterday received a commission from the honourable the Council of Safety contrary to my expectation. I had repeatedly said I had resigned my commission, and was determined not to accept it, as I was solicited by many respectable people in this County to resign, and offer myself as a candidate, for the reasons set forth in the application. I am truly sensible of the honour intended by the Convention; and am, with the greatest respect to your honourable Board, sir, your most obedient servant,

JOS. EARLE.

To the Hon. J. Nicholson, Esq.

MEMORIAL OF WILLIAM STONE.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of the State of MARYLAND:

The Memorial of WILLIAM STONE, of BALTIMORE-TOWN, humbly sheweth:

That your memorialist, some time in the month of January last past, requested Mr. Hercules Courtenay to endeavour to obtain license of the honourable Council of Safety to load your memorialist's brigantine with Indian corn, to be exported for the purpose of importing salt; but the said Mr. Hercules Courtenay not being able to procure such license, did charter the said vessel to the Council on account of the said State; that the said vessel was valued at £1,000, when in truth she cost your memorialist £1,500; that your memorialist left instructions with Mr. Courtenay to have the further sum of £500 insured on the said vessel at Philadelphia, to indemnify your memorialist in case of loss.

Your memorialist further sheweth, that after the delivery of your cargo, Captain Martin proceeded in the said brig to St. Eustatia, in order to receive the net proceeds of two cargoes shipped by your memorialist last October, when she was attached by Mr. Richard Jennings for a debt of £300, or thereabouts, due from your memorialist to him; that the said Richard Jennings rendered your memorialist no account of the sale of the brig, and retained the sum of £450 in his own hands; that Mr. Harrison loaded the said vessel, and called on Mr. Jennings for a bill of sale, who refused to give one; that Captain Martin (who was not authorized by me to make any sale or transfer of said vessel) was induced and prevailed on to give a bill of sale for said vessel to Mr. Harrison, in consideration of the sum of £900, and to accept an order drawn by Mr. Harrison on the honourable Council of Safety for the sum of £450; that the vessel was sold for much less than her real value, she being worth £1,500. Your memorialist further sheweth, that at the time his vessel was attached, he was possessed of property in St. Eustatia and St. Kitts sufficient to discharge the debt due to the said Mr. Jennings; that the said Mr. Jennings, being displeased with your memorialist for not consigning the vessel to him last October, acted in the manner above shown, to injure and oppress your memorialist.

Your memorialist, esteeming the actings and doings of the said Mr. Richard Jennings and Captain Martin unjust, illegal, and oppressive, beg your Honours will take his case into consideration, and not suffer any advantage to be taken of him by the sale of the said vessel to Mr. Harrison, your agent, but allow your memorialist to have the vessel, on paying the money advanced by your agent to Richard Jennings.

And your memorialist will ever pray, &c.

WILLIAM STONE.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO OFFICER COMMANDING COL.
HASLETT'S BATTALION.

Philadelphia, August 3, 1776.

SIR: You are hereby directed to order the company of your battalion posted at Lewis-Town as soon as possible to march to Philadelphia and join their battalion now stationed at the barracks in this city.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Officer commanding the Battalion of Continental Troops now in this city, Colonel Haslett's Battalion.

JOHN ADAMS TO GENERAL HEATH.

Philadelphia, August 3, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 20th ultimo is before me. I am much obliged to you for it, and most heartily wish for a more free and intimate communication of sentiments upon the state both of our Councils and arms. I should be happy in a few hours' conversation; but as this cannot be, I must be content with a letter.

We have now a nation to protect and defend; and I can easily see the propriety of the observations you quote from the Prussian Hero, that the prosperity of a State depends upon the discipline of its Army. This discipline reared the Roman empire and the British; and the American will stand or fall, in my opinion, as it adheres to or deviates from the same discipline. If there is not wisdom and vigour enough in the civil Government to support the military officers in introducing and establishing such a discipline, it must be owing to the advantages of soil and climate and our extreme distance from our enemies, not to our own strength, virtue, or wisdom, if we do not fail.

The Army must be well officered, armed, disciplined, fed, clothed, covered, and paid; in these respects, we do as well as we can. Time, I hope, will assist us; and every officer of the Army would do well to suggest to his friends and correspondents in Congress and in the Legislatures of the several States every defect and every improvement in those particulars which occurs to him. I am in more anxiety for clothes and tents than anything, because the health as well as the discipline of the Army depends much upon them.

We shall never do well until we get a regular Army; and this will never be until men are enlisted for a longer duration; and that will never be effected until we are more generous in our encouragement to men. But I am convinced that time alone will persuade us to this measure; and in the mean time, we shall very indiscreetly waste a much greater expense than would be necessary for this great purpose, in temporary calls upon Militia, besides risking the loss of many lives and much reputation.

Congress has not determined to have no regard to the line of succession in promotions, but only that this line shall not be an invariable rule; ceteris paribus, the line will be pursued; but they mean to reserve a right of distinguishing extraordinary merit or demerit. This rule may be abused; but is it not necessary? All good things are liable to abuse. I am afraid, nay, I know it will be abused in particular instances; but if we make the succession an invariable rule, will not the abuse be greater? Is it not common in the British Army to promote junior officers over the heads of their superiors—nay, even officers in the same regiment, and on the same command? I have been told of several instances; this, however, is wrong.

Your opinions of men and things I wish I knew in more detail, because I have a good opinion of your judgment of both; and I fear, situated as I am, many things relating to both may not have come to my knowledge that I ought to know. As the first officer in the Massachusetts service, you have in some sort the patronage of all the officers. I hope you will recommend the best men for promotion. I confess myself very ignorant of the military characters from that State.

By some expressions in the clause of your letter, I conclude you were not perfectly satisfied with a late promotion. Be assured, sir, if that was raising an inferior officer over the head of any superior, it was not considered in that light by the gentlemen who did it; the person promoted was thought to be the ablest Brigadier, and intitled to advancement by the line of succession; and it is my opinion he would have been made a Major-General much sooner, if his experience had not been thought indispensable in the Adjutant-General's department.

I am, sir, with great respect, your affectionate servant,

JOHN ADAMS.

To General Heath.

CÆSAR RODNEY TO THOMAS RODNEY.

Philadelphia, August 3, 1776.

SIR: I received yours of the 30th July, and shall endeavour to answer it. Captain Gordon might have had the place you mentioned, but, on talking with me, he very prudently declined it. The history of your manœuvres, procession, &c., pleased me, and the more so, as I heard of the choice, without knowing the principle on which it was made.

With respect to the return made me by the Field-Officers, they have neglected to send me the dates of their commissions or appointments in the Militia; I have therefore written to them to return me dates, before commissions can be made out. As to the subalterns, their being placed with an older or younger Captain does not affect their rank, as that will be preserved by the commission made out for them; and as that will be the case, it is better that they should be fixed in such companies as best please them. I showed Captain Gordon the return made me by the Field-Officers, showing the order in which they choose to be placed with respect to the companies, which Mr. Gordon said was agreeable to their desire, so far as he had knowledge in it; that he was sure it was right as to Caldwell's company.

With respect to the choice of a Convention, I would leave it to you and your friends, whether, when you have fixed on such ticket as meets your approbation, it would not be better to pursue, and endeavour to impress the utility of such choice being made by the people, (especially at a time when the establishing their rights and privileges as freemen depends on such choice,) upon your former plan, I mean of true Whigism—true patriotism. This plan, if pursued with diligence, and such cool argument and reasoning as the case will point out and justify, I think must carry with it persuasion and conviction. It certainly will with all such as are not governed by a party spirit. If any person or persons be proposed in opposition to your ticket, who have heretofore been unfriendly to the cause, point out to the people their former conduct, and submit to them the propriety of trusting to such men at such an important crisis. Your scheme ought to hold out more of the patriot than party-man. I will again submit, as before, whether the inquiry and examination proposed to be had before the Committee will not tend so to irritate, as to occasion many people, by taking sides in that matter, to lose sight of the cause—their true interest; for if they are led to believe that you and your friends are governed more by a party spirit than by the true interests of America, they will hold you in the light of all other party men, and deal with you accordingly. You say the Committee are about to make this inquiry: Are there a sufficient number of patriots in that Committee to answer your expectation? Are there a considerable majority of them that wish the inquiry should be had? Will they, if matters turn out as you expect, publish their opinions to the County, so that the friends of liberty may benefit by it? It is an inquiry that ought to have been made; but it is an inquiry that ought to be made by men of understanding only. Do such make a majority of the Committee—the good men? By what authority do they take it up? Are not many of the members principals in the matter of inquiry? All these things I submit to the prudence and good sense of you and your friends, though you seem to have determined on the measure, by your letter, before my opinion was asked. In short, it is difficult to give an opinion in this case, as I am a stranger to the present complexion of the Committee. However, as this Convention is undoubtedly the most important Assembly that ever was chosen in that Government, would advise the avoiding every kind of violence; and, on the other hand, the utmost diligence and persuasion, to procure as many friends to liberty on the return as possible. By this means, men who have heretofore been unfriendly to liberty, if properly pointed out, cannot prevail. The people, when uninitiated, generally hearken to reason, and make prudent choices. But you may be able to let me know about these things by the next post.

Yesterday came to town a ship belonging to the Congress, from France, with ten drums of powder, about forty drums of lead, one thousand stand of arms, &c., &c., and the same day an armed vessel taken by Captain Barry at sea. I have put your thread in the hands of a weaver.

I am, with love to all, yours, &c.,

CÆSAR RODNEY.

To Captain Thomas Rodney, Dover.

CÆSAR RODNEY TO THOMAS RODNEY.

Philadelphia, August 3, 1776.

SIR: Since I finished my other letter, have been up at Congress, where we received intelligence, by letter from Captain Wickes, in the Congress ship the Reprisal, that he has, at sea, on the 13th of July, taken two prizes, a ship and a schooner, bound for Liverpool, loaded with cotton, sugar, rum, &c. The letters came by the prize schooner, which arrived in an inlet near Egg-Harbour; and the ship prize has been seen off the Cape of Delaware, and supposed by this time got in.

This day's post is not yet come in from New-York. It is past its usual time of coming, and therefore imagine there will be something important, which delayed him. I wish it may be good. The Delaware battalion came to town this morning, and there passed an order of Congress yesterday morning for Captain Darby and his company, now at Lewis, to come up and join the battalion, or at least to follow them; for as the Congress has now got arms, I imagine they will not stay long here. Let not the contents of my other letter be seen by any, unless a friend in whom you can confide.

I believe I shall never be able to get that scoundrel to make Betsey's and Sally's shoes. I have not time to say anything about my plantation affairs; but hope you will have an eye to them, that they may not suffer. Without the least expectation of being gratified, I have a strong desire to be at home once more.

I am yours, &c.,

CÆSAR RODNEY.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM PHILADELPHIA, DATED AUGUST 3, 1776.

Since my last we have arrived a sloop from North-Carolina, with naval stores, and a sloop of eight four-pounders. She belongs to the Goodriches, of Virginia, and was commanded by one of them; was out three days from Bermuda, when he discovered and gave chase to the brig Lexington, Captain Barry; but finding his mistake, put back too late; for in about an hour and a half, Barry run alongside, when she struck. She had eight negroes on board. All, or most of the men, to the amount of twenty-five, entered on board of Barry. Goodrich is a prisoner on board of the brig.

This morning we have an express from a schooner taken by Captain Wickes, in the Continental ship Reprisal. She was bound from St. Vincent's to Liverpool, with upwards of one hundred hogsheads of rum, and is safe in Absecomb-Inlet. They bring an account of his having taken a ship of four or five hundred tons burden, from Grenada for London. She was quite full, and by the captors said to be worth £35,000. A ship was seen last Wednesday, to the southward of our Cape, by the North-Carolina man, which we hope is the prize.

Captain Fowler, in a sloop belonging to your city, is arrived at Egg-Harbour, with £4,000 worth of indigo, in twelve or thirteen days from Charlestown. She passed the fleet in a thunder-storm. By him we learn, that two deserters from the fleet confirm the account which General Lee received from the five deserters already published here, and further add, that the brig that had the Captain of the Commodore on board for London, had returned off Spencer's Inlet. The said Captain soon died after he got on board, and was buried on Long-Island, the 3d of July; that the men began to grow sickly, and they are dissatisfied with General Clinton's conduct; they suspect he keeps a private correspondence with General Lee; that there was some talk of his being under an arrest; that the last rumour among them was, of their embarkation for Long-Island, in New-York Government. The Commodore's ship is much shattered; it will take them some time to refit. The 4th of July, he hoisted his pendant on board the Experiment. One shot from the fort took off three Midshipmen's heads, who happened to stand in a range, one of whom is a nobleman's son.

A few days before Captain Fowler sailed, the whole fleet was in mourning, supposed for the death of Sir Peter Parker, who was wounded, and lost part of his breeches in the late engagement. Captain Fowler thinks the two large ships will not be able to go over the bar so as to get out.

NEW-JERSEY CONVENTION TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

In Convention of the State of New-Jersey, }
New-Brunswick, August 3, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: As it is of great importance that the communication between New-York, this, and the Southern Colonies, be preserved, and no adequate provision, that we know of, having been made to keep open the ferries over Passaick and Hackensack Rivers, between Newark and Powles Hook, which, in their present situation, may not only be easily obstructed by a single armed vessel of the enemy lying near them, but the ferry boats may be seized, and the passing and repassing of our troops on emergent occasions thereby for a considerable time impeded; and as, from the exposed and unguarded situation of the settlements up said rivers, the creeks, and country adjacent to Newark Bay, the enemy may receive supplies of provisions either by plunder or from disaffected persons; and the making provision for the above purposes (as they intimately concern all the United States) belonging to your honourable House, we must desire you to propose at first opportunity in Congress, that the most speedy and effectual measures may be adopted to obtain these salutary ends. We conceive there are but two practicable methods, viz: by batteries at the several ferries, or by armed vessels. The ground on each side of the ferries, being low salt marsh, will not, without very great expenses, admit of being fortified; but if this had not been the case, a larger number of heavy cannon would be necessary to answer our purposes than perhaps can be procured, or if procurable, than would be necessary, if employed on board one or more vessels of the row-galley or gondola construction. Protection by armed vessels have a further advantage over fortifications at the ferries: the fortifications must have great strength, a considerable number of cannon, and a large body of men stationed there, or a descent of the enemy might take cannon and men together, as the cannon could not be retreated with, and the distance of the ferries from succour too great to expect supplies in time. On the contrary, an armed vessel stationed at or near each ferry of the row-galley or gondola kind, carrying only an eighteen-pounder each, with swivels, cohorns or blunderbusses, may be sufficient, and their forces may be occasionally united; for, being so contiguous, they may readily act in concert, and, by being made to draw but little water and to row swiftly, may, if they find the forces attacking them too powerful, secure a safe retreat where the enemy's tenders cannot pursue them. But perhaps heavy cannon may be spared for one gondola, and not more; in such case a vessel of the cat-schooner kind might be usefully employed for the other vessel. We are informed there are two in Passaick River, well built and almost new, and that either of them may be hired for a small consideration, provided the owners are assured of their being returned in as good order as when delivered, or of being paid the value in case they should be irreparably damaged. Their dimensions are about forty-five feet in length, fourteen feet breadth, four-and-a-half feet depth, draw but little water, and one of them sails remarkably swift.

Although gondolas may not so advantageously attack ships of war, yet their tenders, or vessels of such size as can approach the ferries, will not choose to come in the way of an eighteen or twenty-four-pounder.

If not a single cannon of this weight can be spared, perhaps both of the above-mentioned cat-schooners may be usefully employed in this service. They will probably carry either two six-pounders on each side, and a six or nine-pounder in the bow, or three four-pounders on each side, and a six-pounder in the bow, besides swivels, colboms, and blunderbusses, (as they may be procurable,) spears, and small-arms.

We were so perfectly convinced of the importance and utility of making provision for the above purposes, that had the state of our funds permitted it, as much depends on despatch, we might probably have gone into the measures necessary to that end, not doubting but Congress, when convinced of their general utility to the United States, would have ordered a reimbursement of the expenses, &c.

Two other armed vessels might be advantageously stationed at proper places between the ferries above-mentioned and the mouth of Rariton River. They might coöperate occasionally either for the purposes aforesaid or for annoying the enemy, or be employed to protect the ferry from South to Perth-Amboy and the navigation of Rariton River, which protection would be a great saving either in troops crossing the ferry to Amboy, or in transporting provisions, baggage, &c., from Brunswick, by water, to the camp at Amboy.

As it is important that no time be lost in making the aforesaid provision, and as, from the multiplicity of interesting business before Congress, this may be delayed,—if Congress will provide for the expense, and request it, we shall be willing to give a helping hand towards carrying their resolutions on this subject into effect.

We are, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

By order of the Convention:

JOHN COVENHOVEN, Vice-President.

To the Delegates representing the State of New-Jersey in Continental Congress.

RESOLVES OF NEW-JERSEY CONVENTION.

In Convention of the State of New-Jersey, }
Brunswick, August 3, 1776. }

Whereas, by the arrival of the enemy in the neighbourhood of this State, the burden is become much greater to the Militia thereof, numbers being obliged to leave their families, and to march to the defence of their country, so that former Ordinances for regulating the Militia are become inadequate, it being highly just and equitable, proportionally to increase the sums formerly directed to be paid by those who refuse to bear arms for the protection of the State; and also to inflict greater punishments on those who, although they have associated, or been directed to be enrolled for the defence of their country, yet neglect to attend on days appointed for mustering, and are unwilling, at this time of great danger, to step forth with their countrymen to oppose the enemies of freedom: It is, therefore,

Resolved and Ordained, That all able-bodied persons, between the ages of sixteen and fifty years, who, on any account, refuse to bear arms, do pay, as an equivalent for their actual service, the sum of 20s. Proclamation money, monthly, and every month, during the present alarming time, and until proper measures shall be taken by the future Legislature to render the burden and expense equal to the inhabitants of this State; and that all persons directed to be enrolled by former Ordinances, both Officers and Privates, who neglect to attend on days of muster, do pay double the sums directed by an Ordinance of the late Congress, bearing date the 28th day of October, 1775; all which sums shall be recovered and applied by the Officers of the Militia, in such manner as the aforesaid Ordinance directs with respect to the fines inflicted on Officers and Privates of the Militia, without regard to religious denominations, anything in said Ordinance to the contrary notwithstanding.

Resolved further, That all persons between the ages of sixteen and fifty years, directed to be enrolled as aforesaid, who shall neglect to attend when called upon at the time of an alarm, or, when ordered to meet, in consequence of a requisition of the Deputies, Commander-in-Chief, or any of the Brigadier-Generals of this State, for the purpose of raising levies for the Army, or detaching part of the Militia for the defence of the States, or who shall refuse to march when detached in their proper turn, or to provide persons to march in their stead, do pay, if a Colonel, £20, a Lieutenant-Colonel £15, a Major £12, a Captain £8, a Lieutenant and Ensign £6, Non-Commissioned Officers and Privates £3, for every such neglect, to be recovered in manner aforesaid, and to be applied as follows: The fines of Field-Officers to be equally divided among the Non-Commissioned Officers and Privates of the detachment which marches from the Battalion, and the fines of Captains, Subalterns, Non-Commissioned Officers and Privates, to be equally divided among the Non-Commissioned Officers and Privates of the detachment which marches from the Company to which the delinquents respectively belong.

Extract from the Minutes:

WM. PATERSON, Secretary.

GENERAL MERCER TO COLONEL DICKINSON.

Woodbridge, August 3, 1776.

SIR: The account you gave me of the disposition of Battalion hath appeared, the more I think of it, the more alarming. That no inconsiderate step may be taken, I have had the opinion of the Field-Officers, and others here, on the occasion; they join unanimously in opinion with me that the orders issued last week relative to such of the Associates as should presume to desert the service of their country at this critical time, ought to be enforced.

H. MERCER.

To Col. John Dickinson, commanding at Elizabeth-Town.

RICHARD VARICK TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Albany, August 3, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: Agreeable to General Schuyler's orders, I do myself the honour to enclose you three lists of articles wanted for the publick service on Lake-Champlain, contained in the paper marked A; and do also enclose your Excellency another paper, marked B, containing a true account of such articles of these lists as cannot possibly be procured at this place.

An express is sent from this place to Connecticut, with instructions to purchase the sailcloth and cordage, which General Arnold says is to be had in that Colony; and an express is also sent to the forges and furnaces at Livingston's Manor and Salisbury, to procure the swivels and grape, double-headed and chain shot, if to be had there. None of the other articles are to be had nearer than New-York. And I am directed by the General to request your Excellency, in his name, to order the several articles which are wanting to be sent up with all possible despatch to this place. With the assistance of the publick Store-Keeper, I have procured from the proprietors of vessels, and the merchants of this place and Schenectady, all the anchors, cables, and cordage, that was to be had from them, for which I have made a full allowance.

I am, with respect and esteem, your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servant,

RICHD. VARICK,

Secretary to Major-General Schuyler.

To His Excellency General Washington, &c. &c.

P. S. The articles in B, marked with the letter C, are sent for to Connecticut, but not certain of being procured there.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

German-Flats, August 3, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Agreeable to my promise of yesterday, I now enclose you an extract of General Washington's letter to me on the subject of removing the Army from Crown-Point, with an extract of so much of my letter as contained an answer to that part of his.

If gentlemen knew with how much reluctance I quitted the serene pleasures of a rural life, if they knew how conscious I am of the mediocrity of my talents, and how far I believe myself from being equal to the task which my country has imposed upon me, they would not envy me. They would know that I am not dazzled with the honour of office; that I never wished to be—what every man in publick life must be—the object of envy, and exposed to the insults occasioned by both the weakness and wickedness of men. Sick, heartily sick of command at the conclusion of last campaign, I begged leave of Congress to retire; and in confidence communicated to General Washington my more immediate reasons for it. Time and experience have convinced me (and I believe General Washington too) that my reasons were too well founded; but both Congress and he urged my continuance in the command, in such a manner that I suffered myself to be prevailed on to remain in it. The implication contained in General Washington's letter of the 19th ultimo to you, is so very disadvantageous to us, that I very sincerely repent having deviated from my resolution to retire. But the opinion of his Council that we had acted reprehensibly, without being informed what were the reasons on which we had founded our opinion of the propriety of the measure in question, is so insulting that I cannot sit patiently under it; and I therefore not only reflect with pleasure on the spirited and proper manner in which you have resented it to Congress and General Washington, but shall give to both my sentiments on the impropriety and injustice of convening one council of officers to determine on the measures of another, at the distance of near three hundred miles, without calling for such information as we could have given them. It is incumbent on us, my dear sir, to do justice to our injured reputations; and as it is our duty to go hand in hand in opposing the enemies of the publick, so we ought heartily to join in defeating the insidious foes who so basely aim at the destruction of our character. We shall discover who he or they are, and I trust will be able to cover them with confusion.

I am extremely happy that General Arnold has undertaken to command the fleet. It has relieved me from very great anxiety under which I laboured on that account.

I have written to Captain Varick to lose not a moment's time in forwarding whatever he can procure to you, and I am in hopes we shall be able to give a tolerable good account of Carleton whenever he shall venture an attempt to cross the Lakes.

Yesterday I received information that the enemy intended to possess themselves of Oswego, and to march a body of troops to destroy the settlements on this river. I can hardly imagine that they will venture to leave Fort Stanwix in the rear, which is already in such a condition as to be tenable against small-arms, and even light artillery.

Adieu, and be assured that I shall omit nothing in my power to cultivate mutual harmony, good understanding, and friendship.

I am, my dear sir, your most sincere and obedient humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To Hon. Major-General Gates.

COLONEL BEDEL TO GENERAL GATES.

August 3, 1776.

SIR: This being my twelfth campaign, in which I always had the esteem of my superiors, I was the first who turned out with my regiment last year from New-Hampshire for Canada, where I arrived, in eight days after my departure, on the north of St. John's, having a small skirmish with the enemy. The command of that post was delivered to me by General Montgomery, which I kept until the surrender of that fort, and had always his esteem in regard to my proceedings, so that he gave me the command of a party to go down the river St. Lawrence to seize and take the vessels there, which order I complied with, and took eleven sail.

His orders for that purpose I have now with me, but being now led into difficulty by not understanding the meaning of General Arnold's instructions, or they being otherwise understood by other gentlemen, I am broke and ordered home. Shall take it as a favour if your Honour would let me have the liberty of three or four men to assist me on the road, as it is bad. This affair being laid to my charge, I hope your Honour will not look upon it as wilful, the fault being in my head, and not my heart; and while I live under the protection of the United States, I hope I shall ever have the esteem of my countrymen, as this was the first crime I was ever charged with.

I wish the whole Army good success, and beg leave to subscribe myself, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

TIMO. BEDEL.

To General Gates.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER DATED TICONDEROGA, AUGUST 3, 1776.

Colonel Bedel and Major Butterfield, for their bad conduct, are cashiered, and rendered incapable of bearing a commission in the Army of the United States. Captain Wentworth is cashiered for disobedience of orders.

We came from Crown-Point the 17th of July; left one regiment there. Three brigades are encamped on a hill southeast from Ticonderoga Fort, called Mount Independence, where we are raising some batteries to great advantage. One brigade is encamped on the hill near the old French lines, where they have fortified very strong.

We have now on the Lake two schooners which mount twelve guns each, two sloops and five gondolas; the gondolas mount four guns each; and five gondolas more are almost finished. I hope we shall be able to give our enemies a warm reception if they should dare to come.

LETTER FROM AARON HOBART.

Abington, August 3, 1776.

SIR: I have no time to come myself to see your Honour. I want you to get me all the broken cannon and pig iron you can, and I will send for them. I am disappointed by the brown six-pounders for pig iron, and the pig the Province got for me will not do for cannon, but is very good for the forge, and I want it for that use. I have cast eight cannon for the brig of Dartmouth, for Thomas Durfee, and have two six-pounders for the ships at Swansey, and hope to get them ready in a month. As to the Province guns, I hope they will be ready before there is a call for them. I want fifty weight of steel, of the best quality, to use in drilling and boring out cannon. I have one bar left at the Long Wharf; please to send it and them to Weymouth, by the first opportunity, or by land. As to cash, I have wanted it very much for the shot and pots, but cannot come if the small-pox prevents. Sir, I have got some shot made, but you must not expect them all very soon.

I remain your humble servant, &c.,

AARON HOBART.

COLONEL HURD TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Haverhill, August 3, 1776.

SIR: Since I wrote last, Captain Eames has been with us, and proceeded to Upper Cohos, with about thirty men, not doubting he should be able soon to make up his whole number.

The Committee have written to Captain Woodard, desiring he would come to Haverhill, to consult with us respecting the scouts.

Captain Payne, of Lebanon, who went on a scout, a volunteer, is just now returned. He tells he has been to Ticonderoga, where he waited on General Gates. Found the principal part of the Army there, having quitted Crown-Point, as too infectious a place for the reinforcements, till it can be thoroughly cleansed. That a large number of carpenters were employed in building batteaus, with a design, as supposed, to go over the Lake again. From Ticonderoga he went to Crown-Point, where was only one regiment; made a short tarry there, and then down the Lake to Onion River; he saw Colonel Wait there, took his advice, and proceeded to the river La Moelle, and so back to Cohos, striking the new road. Met no enemy on the way. Brought the same report as mentioned by the Frenchman, that a fleet was in the river St. Lawrence, supposed to be French, and the Regulars retreating from St. John's to Sorel.

I have a letter from the Committee, of the 25th July, forwarded by Mr. Joseph Whipple, desiring me to send two several guns to Upper Cohos, for the use of Captain Eames's party, which shall be done as soon as we receive the others from Canterbury, but we have only two yet come to hand.

Colonel Bayley has not yet been able to embody his working party of men into a regular company, under the orders of us, as a Committee, agreeable to your directions; and unless they will consent to form themselves as such, the Committee will proceed to enlist others for the purpose. We defer this a few days till we see how they agree among themselves, when I shall advise you further. In the mean time remain, with my best respects to you and the gentlemen of the Committee, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN HURD.

To the Hon. Meshech Weare, Esq.

COLONEL A. WILLIAMSON TO GOVERNOR RUTLEDGE.

Camp two miles below Keowee, August 4, 1776.

SIR: I received your Excellency's favours of the 26th and 27th ultimo, by express. In my last letter to your Excellency, of the 31st ultimo, I informed you of my spies being returned with two white prisoners, who gave an account of Cameron's being arrived from over the hills with twelve white men, and that he, with the Seneca and other Indians, was encamped at Ocnore Creek, about thirty miles distant from Twenty-three Mile Creek, where I then lay encamped. This intelligence induced me to march immediately to attack their camp before they could receive any information of my being so far advanced.

I accordingly marched, about six o'clock in the evening, with three hundred and thirty men on horseback, (taking the two prisoners with me to show where the enemy were encamped, and told them, before I set out, if I found they deceived me I would order them instantly to be put to death,) intending to surround their camp by daybreak, and to leave our horses about two miles behind, with a party of men to guard them. The river Keowee lying in our route, and only passable at a ford at Seneca, obliged me (though much against my inclination) to take that road. The enemy, either having discovered my march or laid themselves in ambush with a design to cut off any spies or party I had sent out, had taken possession of the first house in Seneca, and posted themselves behind a long fence, on an eminence close to the road where we were to march, and to prevent being discovered, had filled up the openings betwixt the rails with twigs of trees and corn-blades. They suffered the guides and advanced guard to pass, when a gun from the house was discharged, meant, as I suppose, for a signal for those placed behind the fence, who a few seconds after poured in a heavy fire upon my men, which, being unexpected, staggered my advanced party. Here Mr. Salvador received three wounds, and fell by my side. My horse was shot down under me, but I received no hurt. Lieutenant Farar, of Captain Prince's company, immediately supplied me with his horse. I desired him to take care of Mr. Salvador, but before he could find him in the dark the enemy unfortunately got his scalp, which was the only one taken. Captain Smith, son of the late Captain Aaron Smith, saw the Indian, but thought it was his servant taking care of his master, or could have prevented it. He died about half after two o'clock in the morning, forty-five minutes after he received the wound, sensible to the last. When I came up to him, after dislodging the enemy, and speaking to him, he asked whether I had beat the enemy. I told him yes. He said he was glad of it, and shook me by the hand, and bade me farewell, and said he would die in a few minutes. Two men died in the morning, and six more who were badly wounded I have since sent down to the settlements, and given directions to Doctors Delahowe and Russell to attend them.

I remained on the ground till daybreak, and burnt the houses on this side the river, and afterwards crossed the river, the same day, and reduced Seneca entirely to ashes. Knowing that the Indians would carry immediate intelligence of my strength to the place where Cameron lay encamped, who would directly move from thence; and having ordered the detachment from Colonels Neel and Thomas's regiments to attack and destroy Estatoe, Qualhatchie, and Toxaway, and join me this day at Sugar-Town, obliged me to march that way; which, this day, a strong detachment, consisting of four hundred men, has totally reduced to ashes. An old Indian was found there, who said the enemy had deserted the town four days ago, on hearing, by a white man, that an army was advancing against them.

I am, respectfully, your Excellency's most obedient servant,
A. WILLIAMSON.

To His Excellency John Rutledge, President of South-Carolina, Charlestown.

GENERAL MERCER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read August 6, 1776.]

Perth-Amboy, August 4, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of July 31st, enclosing resolves of Congress, I had the honour to receive yesterday, and shall pay all possible attention to.

Some of the Militia from Pennsylvania, not duly informed of the length of time their services here might be required, have become much dissatisfied. It is with difficulty the officers in some of the battalions prevent a desertion, not of men singly, but by companies. Some speedy and effectual measures will be necessary, that the quotas for the Flying-Camp be made up, to relieve the Associators as soon as possible.

I enclose such a return as is in my power to make out. By this it appears that only two hundred and seventy-four, rank and file, properly belonging to the Flying-Camp, have yet joined. Colonel Smallwood's battalion, from Maryland, remains at Elizabeth-Town, but expect daily to have orders to proceed to New-York.

Last night thirteen sail of ships arrived at Sandy-Hook; these, together with what have come in since Thursday last, make upwards of sixty sail. On Staten-Island we discover no late movements of the enemy.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,
HUGH MERCER.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

New-York, August 4, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour of 31st ultimo, last night, on my return from Perth-Amboy, from whence I wrote you. I observe your directions therein for supplying any number of Militia the State of Massachusetts-Bay may direct to be called into service, with provisions. I will give the necessary orders therein to Mr. Charles Miller, my issuing store-keeper in Boston, by the post to-morrow morning, and you may rely on it that your directions shall be fully complied with.

I am, sir, with respect and esteem, your most humble servant,
JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Congress of Delegates from the United States of America, at Philadelphia.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, August 4, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Colonel Hand reports twenty-one sail seen off last evening, eight arrived at the Hook this morning, and thirteen coming in.

The enemy's guard-boats patrolled much higher up the bay than usual last night.

I apprehend a couple of guard-boats are necessary to patrol from Red to Yellow Hook, across the Bay, leading to Rapalye's Mills, provided there are boats to spare.

Enclosed is a return of the officers of Colonel Hand's Rifle regiment. As the return made me by Colonel Hand is not as intelligible as I could wish, I shall send and get another as soon as may be. I must beg your Excellency's pardon for suffering the return to escape my memory, and neglecting making it agreeable to your orders some days past.

I shall send in a list of the names, in a few hours, of the persons proper to be taken up on this Island.

I am, with respect, your Excellency's most obedient servant,
NATHL. GREENE.

New-York, Thursday, August 8, 1776.

The Phenix, of forty-four guns, Captain Parker, and the Rose, of twenty guns, Capt. Wallace, two notorious Pirates belonging to Great Britain, having, for some time past, infested the North River, to the great interruption of our trade and navigation thereon, last Friday six of our row-galleys, hastily collected, though of force greatly inferior to these ships, went up the river to find them out, and annoy them in their station. Next day the galleys proceeded to Tarrytown, where the two Pirate ships lay, attacked and engaged them for two hours. The following letter, written the morning after by a gentleman who was a volunteer on board one of the galleys, gives the most particular account of the engagement that has as yet come to hand, viz:

"Tarrytown, (Sunday Morning,) August 4.

"SIR: I have just opportunity to inform you that yesterday at one o'clock, P. M., the galleys attacked the Phenix and the Rose off Tarrytown. The Lady Washington fired the first gun on our side, in answer to one received from the Phenix; this first shot from us entered the Phenix. The Washington galley, on board of which the Commodore's flag was hoisted, then came up within grape-shot of the ships, and singly sustained their whole fire for above a quarter of an hour before any other of our vessels took a shot from her, (the tide wasting them more than the pilots expected to the eastern shore, and the Lady Washington falling back to take her station in the line, according to orders.) The Spitfire advanced in a line with the Washington, and with her behaved well. We had as hot a fire as perhaps was ever known for an hour and a half. The Washington, which I was on board during the whole engagement, had the ledgings of her bow guns knocked away, which prevented our working them, and was otherwise considerably damaged, being thirteen times hulled, had three shot in the waist, many of her oars carried away, &c. The Lady Washington, after hulling the Phenix six times, had her bow, and only gun, a thirty-two pounder, on which we placed much dependance, split seven inches, and her gun tackles and breechings carried away. The Spitfire was hulled several times, and received one shot between wind and water, which, not being quickly discovered, occasioned her making much water. The rest of the galleys received considerable damage in their rigging, sails, and oars. Under these circumstances, our Commodore, Colonel Tupper, thought it prudent to give the signal for our little fleet to withdraw, after manfully fighting a much superior force for two hours. Never did men behave with more firm, determined spirits, than our little crews; one of our tars, being mortally wounded, cried to his messmate, 'I am a dying man; revenge my blood, my boys, and carry me alongside my gun, that I may die there.' We were so preserved by a gracious Providence, that in all our galleys (which consisted of six) we had but two men killed and fourteen wounded, two of which are thought dangerous. We hope to have another touch at these Pirates before they leave our river, which God prosper.

"P. S. The following are the particulars of the galleys, with their killed and wounded, viz: the Washington, Capt. Hill, four wounded; Whiting, McClave, one killed, four wounded; Spitfire, Grimes, one killed, three wounded; Crane, Tincker, one wounded; on board a whaleboat, two wounded."

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM NEW-YORK, DATED AUGUST 4, 1776.

Friday, the 2d instant, the ships that passed up North River were, from eleven o'clock to one, engaged by six of our row-galleys, who sustained the fire of the Phenix, of forty-four guns, and the Rose, of twenty-eight guns. For two hours, their broadsides poured in as fast as they could discharge them. Finally, for want of a proper tide or from prudence, Colonel Tupper, who commanded the galleys, threw out a signal for the galleys to retire. The Lady Washington is returned to the city; she alone commenced the attack against both the ships, who were previously prepared, and had got springs on their cables, and sustained for more than a quarter of an hour the fire of both those ships; she received thirteen shot in her hull, and one of her two-and-thirty pounders cracked for a considerable length. They have, however, handled the ships very roughly. Colonel

Tupper writes the General that a great many splinters and pieces of the ship, soon after the action, passed by the galleys, who are preparing for a second attack.

Last night four ships, chained and boomed, with a number of amazing large chevaux-de-frise, were sunk close by the fort, under the command of General Mifflin, which fort mounts thirty pieces of heavy cannon. We are thoroughly sanguine that they never will be able to join the British fleet, nor assistance from the fleet be afforded to them; so that we set them down as our own. The British Army still remain at Staten-Island and the fleet at the Narrows. Last Thursday forty sail of ships arrived to the British fleet, and yesterday twenty more, and forty more were in sight, supposed to be foreign troops. This day we have a report circulating that the foreign troops refuse fighting, unless a cartel for the exchange of prisoners is previously settled. Mr. Tracy, who went with the flag to Lord Howe, was treated with great politeness; by all accounts, his Lordship is as good a man for the errand on which he is sent as the British nation could possibly fix upon; he is a gentleman of very great abilities, master of chicanery and deception, and believes it is in his power, either by persuasion or threats, to bring about a reconciliation. The event of things will prove how greatly he is mistaken.

I congratulate you on the capture made by one of the armed vessels in the service of the United American States, on board of which, I understand, is that infamous villain, Ben. Davis; I hope you will hang him. In the late engagement between the galleys and the enemy's ships, there were on board the galleys three killed, two mortally wounded, and fourteen others slightly wounded; what loss the enemy sustained, we are not yet able to ascertain. We expect, as the enemy have received a considerable reinforcement, that they will soon make an attack. From the amazing spirit of the Army, which, from the best information I can get, amounts to at least forty thousand men, we shall give them such a reception as will oblige them, in spite of their prejudice to the contrary, to acknowledge the Americans to be the bravest people they ever contended with.

RICHARD VARICK TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, August 4, 1776, six o'clock, A. M.

DEAR GENERAL: I do myself the honour of informing you that, exclusive of the quantity of rope mentioned in the invoice already sent you, I have procured about twenty-five hundred weight, from two-and-a-half-inch downwards, &c., which was, in a great measure, sent up two days since from Schenectady. I have also procured four new cables of four inch by sixty fathoms, at that place; and we have still here seven or eight good anchors and cables, to be forwarded as soon as wagons can be procured; the owners of which, for want of ready cash, cannot be enticed to leave their harvest. I hope to have no reason to complain of this in future.

The sail cloth and cordage is sent for to Connecticut; and an invoice of such other articles as are not to be had here, is sent to his Excellency General Washington, with a request to send them with all possible despatch.

The blocks will be finished in about ten days. By the General's orders I have sent an officer with two batteaus to Poughkeepsie for such of them as are finished, and for sixty coils of slow match, and one hundred pounds of twine, which are to be had there.

An express is sent to Governour Trumbull and the Salisbury Iron-Works for the swivels, and to Colonel Robert Livingston for the different kinds of cannon and grape-shot, as also for the anchors and cables which are wanting.

A skipper is sent down the river to purchase all the anchors, cables, sails, and rigging, that are to be procured from the proprietors of vessels between this place and Poughkeepsie. The six anchors and cables lately sent from New-York, I hope, will arrive by the first southerly wind. As soon as any of these articles arrive, I shall forward them to Tyonderoga without delay, as far as lies in my power.

I am directed by General Schuyler to procure three tar-burners, and send them to Fort George. As soon as I can procure persons that understand it, I shall send them to Fort George, with the proper orders to the commanding officer.

All the articles mentioned in Colonel Trumbull's requisition of the 29th, with an additional quantity of blacking, are purchased, and shall be sent as soon as possible.

I think that in my letter of the 31st, I informed you that I could not furnish Captain Bacon with money, for want of that article in the Paymaster's hands. If I have not, I am directed by the General to do it now.

I am, dear sir, with every sentiment of respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

RICHD. VARICK.

To the Hon. Major-General Gates.

GENERAL WATERBURY TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, August 4, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I received your Honour's favour of the 1st instant, and, according to order, I immediately sent off two messengers from this place to go on the most publick roads to New-England, to hasten the troops according to your Honour's orders, and sent such men as I think will be faithful in the execution of the same.

I must acquaint your Honour that I fear, do the best I can, that the carpenters will wait for plank, as the water fails at this place much. The carpenters want plank tomorrow. I am going to set the saw-mill at Cheshire's to sawing oak plank, as the carpenters must want, so I can fetch them down by water.

I am very anxious to get the galleys forward, as we can well, with the rest of our shipping, command the Lake, being well manned and conducted. If it is disagreeable to your Honour's mind for the mill at Cheshire's to saw plank, I should be glad to be informed, as I would not act anything disagreeable to your Honour's mind.

I have this day sent an express to Albany, to General Schuyler, desiring him to forward iron and other necessaries for building the shipping.

The troops come entirely destitute of ammunition, and should be glad your Honour would send us a supply of bullets; and am, with the greatest esteem, your Honour's humble servant,

DAVID WATERBURY, Jun.

P. S. This moment arrived a company of Boston troops, which I shall forward immediately.

GENERAL WARD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Boston, August 4, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour of your letter of the 29th July. I am much surprised to hear that the carbines are not all yet arrived at New-York. I forwarded them all agreeable to your directions, and the last two hundred went from this place the 4th of July, for Norwich, to the care of Mr. Huntington, to whom I wrote, every time I sent arms or other articles which were ordered to New-York, to forward them with the greatest expedition.

With regard to the arms taken in the Scotch ships, I wrote your Excellency the 11th and 29th of July, and it has not yet been in my power to send any more than those I have forwarded.

Agreeable to your directions of the 7th of July, to forward from three to four hundred barrels of powder to Norwich, I sent off four hundred barrels the 13th of July, to the care of Mr. Huntington, to be stored there in some safe place until he should receive your orders respecting the same. It would have been sent sooner, had not the interruption of business by the small-pox prevented. I shall forward as soon as possible one hundred barrels of powder more to Norwich, to complete the five hundred, agreeable to your directions of the 19th of July. This letter I did not receive until the 31st of July.

The Deputy-Commissary, Mr. Miller, informs me he has particular directions from the Commissary-General to secure all the salt provisions he can for the use of the Army; and I have given him directions respecting the pork brought in here from Ireland, agreeable to your orders.

Your Excellency mentions your want of more Artillerymen, and that Captain Burbeck, with his company, must be sent to New-York, if we could, by any means, spare him. I do not, at present, conceive how he can be spared, as the Continental armed vessels depend on his company to prepare and fix ammunition for them—new supplies of which they frequently want. They are also wanted to prepare ammunition for the forts, and for many other important purposes. But if your Excellency should judge the want of Artillerymen at New-York is so great as to outweigh these considerations, I will send the company forward as soon as your pleasure shall be known.

The two regiments here are generally recovered of the small-pox. I shall take the utmost care to have them thoroughly cleansed, and agreeable to your orders of the 19th of July, shall order them to march this week for Ticonderoga.

I am informed by the Council of this State, that they are bringing in between two and three thousand men to defend these lines, in the room of the Continental regiments ordered from hence. The Council expect, agreeable to the resolve of Congress, that these troops will be supplied with provisions and ammunition, and paid by the Continent; but there being no Continental officer when I retire (which I intend to do very soon) to take the direction and oversight of these and many other matters interesting to the United States, such as commanding the men in Continental pay, giving orders to the Assistant Quartermaster-General, Deputy-Commissary of Artillery, and Commissary of Provisions, making returns of the stores and men in the Continental pay, and giving warrants for the payment of the men in the service of the United States, supplying the armed vessels, &c., I conceive the publick must greatly suffer, unless these matters are committed to the care and direction of some person who is well acquainted with them.

I am your Excellency's obedient and very humble servant,
ARTEMAS WARD.

To General Washington.

P. S. I have sent for Captain Eayrs, who has the care of the company of Artificers, and acquainted him with your Excellency's orders respecting his company. He informs me that his men cannot go to New-York, unless their pay is increased to six pounds per month, and that he informed your Excellency of this before the Army left Cambridge last spring, and that he expected their pay would have been thus established before he was sent for; that he is willing to march immediately, but as his men are not engaged for any particular time, he cannot induce them to march until the establishment is made. If your Excellency should think proper to make such an establishment, and order them to New-York, Captain Eayrs desires that he may receive directions whether he is to carry his tools with him. The company in the mean time will be fully employed in making carriages and other necessary work; and if they were not wanted at New-York, they might be still employed here to great advantage.

I am your Excellency's obedient, humble servant,
ARTEMAS WARD.

London, August 5, 1776.

TO THE LORD MAYOR.

MY LORD: I was last week on board the American privateer called the Yankee, commanded by Captain Johnson, and lately brought into this port by Captain Ross, who commanded one of the West-India sugar ships, taken by the privateer in July last; and, as an Englishman, I wish your Lordship, who is so happily placed at the head of this great city, (justly famed for its great humanity even to its enemies,) would be pleased to go likewise, or send proper persons, to see the truly shocking, and, I may say, barbarous and miserable condition of the unfortunate American prisoners, who, however criminal they may be thought to have been, are deserving of pity, and entitled to common humanity.

They are twenty-five in number, and all inhumanly shut close down, like wild beasts, in a small stinking apartment in the hold of a sloop, about seventy tons burden, without a breath of air, in this sultry season, but what they receive through a small grating over head, the openings in which are not more than two inches square in any part, and through which the sun beats intensely hot all day; only two or three being permitted to come on deck at a time; and then they are exposed in the open sun, which is reflected from the decks and water like a burning glass.

I do not at all exaggerate, my Lord: I speak the truth; and the resemblance that this barbarity bears to the memorable black-hole, at Calcutta, as a gentleman present on Saturday observed, strikes every one at the sight. All England ought to know that the same game is now acting upon the Thames on board this privateer, that all the world cried out against and shuddered at the mention of in India, some years ago, as practised on Captain Hallowell and other of the King's good subjects.

The putrid streams issuing from the hole are so hot and offensive, that one cannot, without the utmost danger, breathe over it; and I should not be at all surprised if it should cause a plague to spread. The miserable wretches below look like persons in a hot bath, panting, sweating, and fainting for want of air; and the Surgeon declares that they must all soon perish in that situation, especially as they are almost all in a sickly state with bilious disorders.

The Captain and Surgeon, it is true, have the liberty of the cabin, (if it deserves the name of a cabin,) and make no complaints on their own account; they are both sensible, well-behaved young men, and can give a very good account of themselves, having no signs of fear, and being supported by a consciousness of the justice of their cause. They are men of character, of good families in New-England, and highly respected in their different occupations; but being stripped of their all by the burning of towns and other destructive measures of the present unnatural war, were forced to take the disagreeable method of making reprisals, to maintain themselves and their children, rather than starve.

Numbers of gentlemen, and friends of Government, who were on board at the same time, will confirm the truth of this my representation, being very sensibly touched themselves at the horrid sight.

English prisoners taken by the Americans have been treated with the most remarkable tenderness and generosity, as numbers who are safely returned to England most freely confess, to the honour of our brethren in the Colonies. And it is a fact, which can be well attested in London, that this very Surgeon on board the privateer, after the battle of Lexington, April 10, 1775, for many days voluntarily and generously, without fee or reward, employed himself in dressing the King's wounded soldiers, (who but an hour before would have shot him, if they could have come at him,) and in making a collection for their refreshment, of wine, linen, money, &c., in the town where he lived. This is a real fact, of which the most ample testimony may be had.

The capture of the privateer was solely owing to the ill-judged lenity and brotherly kindness of Captain Johnson, who, not considering his English prisoners in the same light that he would Frenchmen or Spaniards, put them under no sort of confinement, but permitted them to walk the decks as freely as his own people, at all times.* Taking advantage of this indulgence, the prisoners one day, watching their opportunity when most of the privateer's people were below and asleep, shut down the hatches, and making all fast, had immediate possession of the vessel without using any force.

I shall conclude with saying, that though this letter is addressed to your Lordship, I hope that all who may read it, and have any influence, will do all in their power to gain the necessary relief; and it is humbly apprehended that the

* LONDON, August 6, 1776.—Captain Johnson, of the Yankee privateer, and Ross and Hodges, (Captains of the two West-Indiamen taken by the above privateer,) were sitting together in Johnson's cabin, a few days after they were taken, when Johnson having inadvertently laid down his cutlass, Ross and Hodges took advantage of it, by throwing him on his back, and seized the cutlass.

The guard stationed on the quarter-deck having also laid down his cutlass, in order to go forward, one of Ross or Hodge's people, who had been let into the secret, immediately seized it, and gave the alarm; on which the men belonging to the Yankee, and those of the merchantmen (who ought to have been confined) ran up, and one of the Americans having caught up a scrubbing brush, and advancing in a threatening posture, was told by the man who held the cutlass, that if he advanced a step further he would take his head off, and ordered him and the rest of the men belonging to the privateer, to go forward; Ross and Hodges in the mean time having broken open the arm chest.

Captain Johnson and his crew were removed from the Yankee about two o'clock on Sunday morning, and it is said are now on board the Conquestadore man-of-war.

Captain Johnson complains of Captain Ross's illiberal behaviour, in suffering several people to come on board since he arrived, and insult him in the most cruel and gross terms, though a prisoner; and when his brother came to see him, after three years absence, Captain Ross would not permit them to talk a moment in private.

If Captain Ross has secreted his prisoners, is it not worthy the interposition of the civil power to compel him to produce them, that no foul play may be offered them, till they have taken their trials?

Captain Johnson, of the Yankee privateer, lately taken and brought into the river, is a native of New-England. Previous to the present unhappy differences between this country and America, he lived as a merchant in great repute, at Portsmouth, in New-Hampshire. Last winter he had the misfortune to have his house burnt down at the time when the greatest part of Portsmouth was destroyed by the Swan, and other ships of war, at which time he lost the whole of his property. The Restraining Act taking place, and depriving him from carrying on his trade, he well disposed, who are blessed with affluence, could not better bestow their bounty than upon those poor objects. Vegetables and ripe fruits of all kinds, with porter, &c., must be very useful, as well as the means to procure other necessities. The privateer lies opposite to Ratcliffe-Cross, a mile and a half below the Tower, and by asking for Captain Johnson admittance may be obtained.

HUMANITAS.

We have been informed, since the receipt of the above letter, that the crew of the American privateer the Yankee, were yesterday morning, at half-past three o'clock, conveyed on board a vessel, and carried down the river, to be secured in Dover Castle.

We hear that a petition will be presented to the Secretary of State for the American Department, by the merchants, to cause the Captain of the Yankee privateer to be kept in custody to answer to them for the property he has illegally taken, he being the sole owner of the privateer, and the prizes of course will be sold in America for his account and emolument.

By His Excellency JOHN RUTLEDGE, Esq., President and Commander-in-Chief of SOUTH-CAROLINA:

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas it appears to me necessary for the publick service to call the General Assembly and Legislative Council before the time to which they stand adjourned: I have therefore thought fit to issue this Proclamation, requiring them, and they are hereby required, to meet at Charlestown, on Tuesday, the 17th day of September next, then and there to sit for the despatch of divers weighty and important affairs.

Given under my hand and the seal of South-Carolina, at Charlestown, this 5th day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six.

JOHN RUTLEDGE.

By His Excellency's command:

JOHN HUGER, Secretary.

Williamsburgh, Virginia, August 10, 1776.

On Monday last, the 5th instant, being Court day, the Declaration of Independence was publicly proclaimed in the Town of Richmond, before a large concourse of respectable freeholders of Henrico County, and upwards of two hundred of the Militia who assembled on that grand occasion. It was received with universal shouts of joy, and reëchoed by three volleys of small-arms. The same evening the town was illuminated, and the members of the Committee held a club, when many patriotick toasts were drunk. Although there were near one thousand people present, the whole was conducted with the utmost decorum; and the satisfaction visible in every countenance sufficiently evinces their determination to support it with their lives and fortunes.

resolved to go to sea in a privateer, and accordingly hired the Yankee for that purpose.

LONDON, August 10, 1776.—The method by which the Yankee privateer was taken was as follows: Captain Johnson, (of the Yankee;) Hodges and Ross, were sitting together in the cabin, when Johnson having inadvertently laid down his cutlass, Ross and Hodges took the advantage of it, and one coming behind Captain Johnson, seized and threw him down, while the other got possession of the cutlass. The guard stationed on the quarter-deck having at the same time laid down his cutlass to go forward, one of Ross's or Hodges's people, who had been let into the conspiracy, immediately seized it, and gave the alarm; on which either Ross or Hodges ran upon the quarter-deck, and got possession of the arm-chest before the privateer's men and those of the merchantmen, who were at large and unconfined, though then down in the hold, could get upon the main deck. One of the Americans took up a scrubbing-brush, and advanced to the quarter-deck; he was told by the man possessed of the cutlass, that if he came a step farther, his head should be cut off. The privateer's men thus finding the quarter-deck and their arms all in possession of their adversaries, and their Captain a prisoner in the cabin, submitted without further resistance, being promised good treatment, and to be landed as soon as possible in some part of America, and then be at liberty to go where they pleased. So far from this promise being complied with, the men were put in irons, and closely confined in the hold of the privateer, and all of them brought into the river Thames. Since which they were, in the night of Saturday last, hurried into a man of war's tender, and smuggled to some place of confinement, but where, is not yet certainly known.

Captain Johnson complained heavily of the illiberal behaviour and cruel usage he suffered, by being insulted frequently at sea, calling him by the most opprobrious names, and threatening him with the cruellest and most savage punishments, and also for suffering many people to come on board after they arrived in the river, to insult him in the basest and grossest terms, though he was then a prisoner; and when his brother came to see him after a three years' absence, they would not permit them to talk together one minute in private.

GENERAL DENT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Charles County, August 5, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the 2d instant I have received, wherein you not only account for ordering me to St. George's Island, (whither I should most undoubtedly have gone without orders, so soon as I was apprized of the arrival of the enemy,) but also for sending Major Price to take the command. I never entertained the most distant thought that you had any intention of giving me offence, and am happy to find you have had no insinuations to my prejudice. What I complain of is, your very concise order, whereby I was superseded, without a line from your Honours signifying what part I was to act, or whether I was to remain there a cipher, where I stayed with impatience twenty-four hours, expecting further orders. I never attended to the rank between officers of the Militia and Regulars, as adjusted by the Convention; or should not have accepted of the commission I held; for that, and the reason already given, did enclose you my commission for the Flying-Camp. Having tendered my service to the publick in a different line of duty, (viz: the civil department,) which, requiring my presence till my offer is accepted or rejected, prevents my complying with your repeated request of giving you a personal conference until Monday next, when I have reason to believe I shall have the pleasure of conferring with your Honours on the subject.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
JNO. DENT.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN TOOTELL.

[No. 113.] Annapolis, August 5, 1776.

SIR: The Guard at the Magazine complain of not having a sufficient quantity of provision delivered them for three meals per day. We think it is necessary they should have it, and that it may be furnished for 10½ per week, and therefore desire it may be allowed. We are, &c.

To Captain James Tootell.

CAPTAIN BROOKE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Calvert County, August 5, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to your orders I marched such of my men as were raised to Drum Point, and there continued until yesterday, when Captain Beall's men returned. As there was no conveniency for myself and company to stay there any longer, I thought it proper to move up the country as far as Hunting-Town, (about twenty miles,) at which place we are now stationed and waiting for further orders.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,
JOHN BROOKE, Jun.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

JOHN HANSON, JUN., TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Frederick-Town, August 5, 1776.

SIR: The money sent to purchase arms, &c., is nearly expended. Many receipts for guns and blankets are yet to come in. The two German companies and the Rifle company are, I believe, altogether unprovided. It will be, therefore, necessary to send us more cash, and the present will be a good opportunity.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your most obedient servant,
JOHN HANSON, Jun.

To the Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, President of the Council of Safety.

COLONEL EWING TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, August 5, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I have this day delivered your order to the Committee of Observation for this County, for eighty-four guns; they have returned me for answer, that they have not as many, but expect soon to let me have that quantity. I have sent off a gentleman to Frederick-Town, who is likewise to go to Shepherd's Town, in Virginia, where I am in hopes he will be able to procure a quantity of guns and rifles. If agreeable to you, I propose making one of my companies a Rifle company, as a Light-Infantry company to the battalion. I shall be much obliged to you for an order on the Committee here for a quantity of blankets for my soldiers, which are to be embarked on Thursday or Friday next. As there is a quantity of arms arrived at Philadelphia since I had the pleasure of seeing you, and as they are indebted to you some arms, I shall be much obliged by your giving me an order on them for some guns, and allowing me to march some of my soldiers to Philadelphia without guns. You know I am very desirous of getting to station; therefore, shall esteem it a particular favour and indulgence. Upon inquiry, Mr. Hopkins has about four hundred hunting-shirts, which I would be glad you would allow me to take for the use of the troops, and for which they shall pay. As I purpose sending off more than two companies, I shall be obliged to you for an order for more guns when received, for camp-kettles, canteens or wooden bottles, cartouch-boxes and belts, bayonet scabbards and belts, with gun slings. If your Honours thought proper to give me an unlimited order for completing my battalion with such, I shall take nothing but what the Captains shall give a receipt for, and shall observe to them that they are accountable for everything.

I shall be much obliged for your answer; and am, with due respect, honoured sirs, your most obedient servant,

THOS. EWING.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland, now at Annapolis.

DOCTOR WEISENTHALL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore-Town, August 5, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I take the liberty to inform you of my return from the camp, where I went, according to my promise to you, in order to see the regiment properly taken care of. Doctor Shippen is appointed Surgeon-General to the Flying-Camp, with whom I had a conference, and received a letter from him to General Mercer, as Commander-in-Chief of the Flying-Camp, in order to concert measures for the forming proper hospitals, which was done. I left our Maryland troops in a good condition at Elizabeth-Town, and shall take an opportunity of giving a fuller account when I arrive at Annapolis.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

C. WEISENTHALL.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

BALTIMORE COUNTY COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee August 5, 1776:

Present: Samuel Purviance, Chairman; William Lux, Vice Chairman; W. Buchanan, B. Griffith, A. Britain, T. Sollers, J. Smith, J. Griest, T. Gist, J. Boyd.

The following persons, viz: Thomas Harriman, Josias Harriman, Chas. Harriman, John Cotterell, Thos. Graves, and John Graves, having enrolled in Captain Mercer's Company, their fines, as Non-Enrollers, are remitted.

Captain Richard Owings is summoned to attend this Committee, on Monday next, to answer a charge exhibited against him by Mr. John Messier.

Captain Gist Vaughan returned his Enrolment.

Richard Taylor (of Baltimore West) produced a Certificate of his having enrolled in Captain William Richardson's Company; on which his fine was remitted.

Ordered, That the Chairman advertise for those who have Arms to dispose of to bring them to the Committee, who will pay for the same.

Attest:

GEO. LUX, Secretary.

JOSIAH BARTLETT TO JOHN LANGDON.

Philadelphia, August 5, 1776.

SIR: Since my last, a vessel, fitted out by the Secret Committee, has arrived here from Marseilles, in France, which place she left the 8th of June. She has brought, for the use of the American States, one thousand good muskets, about ten tons of powder, and about forty tons of lead, &c. A small privateer from this city, called the Congress, has taken a vessel bound from the West-Indies to Halifax, and sent her safe into port; besides a cargo of West-India goods, there was found on board her one thousand and seventy-eight joes, six hundred and seventy-two guineas, and some other gold coin. Captain Barry, in the Lexington, one of the Continental vessels, has taken and sent in here a privateer of six carriage-guns, commanded by another of those infamous Goodriches, of Virginia. Captain Wickes, in the Reprisal, another Continental vessel, has taken and sent in a sloop bound from the West-Indies to Liverpool; he has also taken a ship from Grenada to London, which is not yet arrived—both loaded with West-India goods.

Since the Declaration of Independence, your friend John Alsop has written to the Convention of New-York to resign his seat in Congress, and made some reflections on the Convention for their agreeing so unanimously to that Declaration. The Convention, in return, voted cheerfully and unanimously to accept of his resignation, with some severe and cutting reflections on him for his conduct; which were all sent to Congress. I believe his boarding with our friend Wharton has been no advantage to him; possibly, he was obliged to resign his seat as a previous condition to his taking full possession of the lady.

As I had no letter from you last post, (for I look on the cover to Colonel Whipple's letters to be nothing,) I hope you will consider this as bringing you one letter in debt, or at least that it be put to my credit, to make up former deficiencies; which will be but justice to your most obedient,

JOSIAH BARTLETT.

P. S. August 6.—Yesterday arrived here two prizes, taken by Captain Wickes—one, the ship before mentioned, having on board, it is said, five hundred hogsheads of sugar, the other a brig, bound from the West-Indies to Ireland, taken since the ship and sloop; the particulars of her cargo I have not heard. This is the best way of supplying ourselves with necessaries, since Britain will not suffer us to procure them by trade; and I expect another year we shall be well supplied this way.

Yours, &c.,

J. B.

LANCASTER (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Observation, Inspection, and Correspondence, at the house of Adam Reigart, the 5th August, 1776:

Present: Edward Shippen, Mathias Slough, William Atlee, Adam Reigart, Jacob Krug, Christopher Crawford, William Bowsman, Michael Musser, Henry Dehuff, John Miller, Casper Shaffner.

William Atlee in the chair.

On Saturday, the 3d instant, a report being circulated through this town, that a company intended for the Camp in the Jerseys, from Cumberland County, had, in their passage through Carlisle, wantonly fired upon and wounded some of the prisoners of war there, and had particularly attacked the house wherein Lieutenant Andre resided, fired several shot through his windows, and had wounded him, and had otherwise behaved to the officers, prisoners there, in a cruel and ungenerous manner, and that the said company might be expected in Lancaster that evening,—the Committee recollecting that many of those persons who were lately so barbarously butchered and ill-treated after their surrender to Captain Forster, of the British troops, in Canada, had been inhabitants of Cumberland County, and much respected there, and not knowing the officer who commanded this company, nor the character of himself and men, were induced to give some credit to the report, and therefore gave directions that the prisoners of war here should confine themselves to their rooms, or at least to the walls of their barracks, from the hour of five in the afternoon until the next morning, and that they should before five o'clock aforesaid, bring into the barracks water and other necessities to last them that time, being determined to draw out the town companies and defend them from any attack which might be made on them to the utmost of their power. Orders of this kind alarmed the prisoners at the barracks; they had, by some means or other, found out the reason of them, and were arming themselves with clubs from the cordwood. Intelligence of this being brought to the Committee, a member was sent up to inform them that every method should be used for their safety, and to desire they would keep themselves quiet. About eight o'clock in the evening, the Committee had notice that the company was in the woods near the town, and immediately sent out two officers to meet them, with directions to inform the commander of the party of the report, and to request that no injury might be offered to the prisoners here. In about half an hour the officers returned, with an account that the officers and men of the company were very uneasy at the charge against them, and assured them it was false. This answer was directly circulated to quiet the minds of the inhabitants; and about nine o'clock the company marched in under command of Captain Thomas Clark, of the Fourth Battalion of Associators in Cumberland County, in great good order, without offering injury to any one, and quietly retired with their billets to the places assigned them. Upon Captain Clark's request, the person who had propagated a report so injurious to himself and company, was sought for and placed in the guard-house for examination, where he was continued until this morning, that, by the delay, we might have an opportunity of hearing from Carlisle. Agreeable to expectation, Captain George Hubley (a gentleman who is a native of this place, and well known to the Committee) arrived here yesterday evening, and now being introduced to the Committee, declares, upon oath, that he left Carlisle yesterday morning; that he arrived there from the westward on Saturday morning last about ten o'clock, and staid there the remainder of the day. That he saw the officers prisoners of war there, very cheerful at dinner, at Mr. Polk's, with their servants attending them; that some of them spoke to him; that he was in conversation with different companies in the town that day; that he heard Captain Clark, with his Company, had passed through the town the day before, and heard not a word of any disturbance or ill-treatment to any of the prisoners. And the said informant (George Huber) being also brought into Committee, saith, that at Carlisle, on Wednesday evening last, he did see two men discharge their pieces down the street, but whether they belonged to Captain Clark's Company or not, or whether they intended injury to any one, he don't know; and that as to the remainder of the report, he had it from a woman who washed in the house occupied by the officers' servants, and others.

The Committee, therefore, do now, in justice to Captain Clark, and at the request of himself, his officers, and Company, (who have been basely charged with an action which, if true, must have reflected great dishonour upon them,) with great cheerfulness certify the foregoing narrative to be true; that the said charge against the said Captain Clark and his Company, upon the evidence adduced to them, is false and groundless, and that the behaviour of his Company, during their stay in Lancaster, and on leaving it, hath been remarkably decent and orderly.

Doctor John Sensinney having certified to this Committee that John Freeser, of Captain Andrew Bare's Company of Associators in Lancaster County, is unfit for service as a soldier, and Captain Bare being satisfied that the Committee shall direct him to continue at home with his family, the Committee do therefore agree that the said John Freeser continue at home with his family, he here in Committee engaging to afford to the families of such Associators as are gone into service from his neighbourhood every assistance in his power.

Ordered, That the Chairman write to Captain Harris informing him that it is the sentiments of the Committee that Jonas Keeler, an apprentice of Isaac Hains, be kept at the Gunsmith's business with his master, and be not obliged to do duty as a soldier.

Ordered, That Peter Dillen, an apprentice to Isaac Hains, Gunsmith, now an Associator, and doing duty in Captain Hoofnagle's Company, go home with his said master, and continue at that work with him.

John Okely, of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment, is permitted to work with Christian Bough, Tailor, he here in Committee engaging to be answerable for him, agreeable to the resolves of the Committee.

Richard Savory, of the Seventh Regiment, is permitted to work with Casper Singer, Farmer, he here in Committee engaging to be answerable for him agreeable to the resolves of the Committee.

Examination of PETER SHOECKER, on oath.

In Committee, August 2, 1776.

Says that he and Joseph Jones, John Musser, and some others, hearing that a prisoner was at Mr. Holmes's, who before had been sent to Lancaster, went to Mr. Holmes's, and told Mr. Holmes that they would be much obliged to him if he would send the prisoner back again. That he understood Mr. Holmes, that he said he had bailed him for £500; after that, he told him then he was there; he would not send him off; and that they might do what they pleased. And further saith not.

Sunday morning, August 4, 1776.

SIR: My negro boy is confined in jail through the ambition of one of our neighbours; and as all the men are marched to the camp, belonging to my family, and my sons and companies of men must be entertained in publick houses, we are in a great need of the negro if he could be released and sent home. I would be willing to go under any obligations that could in justice be required for his good behaviour. But the bearer, Mr. Douglass, one of our Committee, will inform you of the matter more fully.

I am, with respect, sir, your humble servant,
SARAH HOPKINS.

To William Atlee, Esq., Chairman of the Committee.

SIR: Will your Honour be so kind as to permit me to go to the Upper Barracks to day?

ANTHONY SHADFORD.

COMMITTEE GENTLEMEN: I earnestly beg and do desire, gentlemen, that your Honours would be so kind as to permit me to go up to the Barracks, and there remain. My reason for going up is because I have a comrade there, and I have a desire to be with him. I hope, gentlemen, you will not think it too much to do that for me. Pardon me, gentlemen, for making so bold.

I remain, gentlemen, yours, &c., JONATHAN PILLING.
Lancaster, August 5, 1776.

LIEUTENANT BARRINGTON (PRISONER) TO THE LANCASTER COMMITTEE.

Lancaster Jail, August 5, 1776.

SIR: I applied to the President of the Committee some time ago that my baggage might be allowed me, to which I received no answer, but received some wearing apparel. I understand that by my baggage being hurried away from Lebanon, and not being allowed either to bring it with me or pack it properly up. As I suppose the Committee can have no claim or reason for keeping my own private goods, whatever right they may allege for keeping those of the officers who are escaped, I, therefore, would be obliged to the Committee if they would order it to be restored me.

As I am in want of a bed, bedstead, and curtains, should be glad if the Committee would allow me the use of one of those which are in jail, belonging to the other officers. There are also amongst those goods a small trunk full of books and a case of liquors, and a few other things which belong to me, among the things below in this place—the Committee will oblige me by allowing me to have them.

I beg also to mention my parole to the Committee. Should be glad to have an answer, whether or not I am to be obliged so far as to be allowed to go out on that condition, (as the Committee have had full time to have an answer from Congress,) or be obliged to remain locked up in a jail for the remainder of the war.

I am, sir, with due respect, yours and the Committee's humble servant,

W. BARRINGTON, Lieut. in Royal Fusiliers.

To Wm. Atlee, President of the Committee of Lancaster.

P. S. If the Committee have received an answer from Congress, refusing to allow me my parole, I think it might be allowed me to have the liberty to walk at large about the jail.

GENERAL MERCER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Elizabeth-Town, August 5, 1776.

SIR: In consequence of your letter of the 1st instant, which I did not receive till the evening of the 3d, I came here yesterday to have an interview with General Livingstone and Colonel Dickinson.

By the return of the troops on duty here, your Excellency will see that the whole force of the Flying-Camp is as yet only two hundred and seventy-four rank and file.

I understood that the Pennsylvania Militia were to remain on duty here until troops had assembled to form the Flying-Camp, but of late they have become (many of them) clamorous to return home.

Colonel Matlack is gone to Philadelphia, to represent the temper of the Associates to the Convention, that some speedy method, by bounty or otherwise, may be adopted, to facilitate the recruiting business.

I have the honour to be, sir, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

HUGH MERCER.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read August 6, 1776.]

New-York, August 5, 1776.

SIR: I was honoured with your favour of the 31st ultimo on Friday, with its several enclosures, and return you my thanks for the agreeable intelligence you were pleased to communicate, of the arrival of one of our ships with such valuable articles as arms and ammunition; also of the capture made by a privateer.

The mode for the exchange of prisoners resolved on by Congress, is acceded to by General Howe, so far as it comes within his command. A copy of my letter, and his answer upon the subject, I have the honour to enclose you, and to which I beg leave to refer Congress.

The enclosed copy of a letter from Colonel Tupper, who had the general command of the galleys here, will inform Congress of the engagement between them and the ships of war up the North River, on Saturday evening, and of the damage we sustained. What injury was done to the ships, I cannot ascertain; it is said they were hulled several times by our shot. All accounts agree that our officers and men, during the whole of the affair, behaved with great spirit and bravery. The damage done to the galleys shows beyond question that they had a warm time of it. The ships still remain up the river; and before anything further can be attempted against them, should it be thought advisable, the galleys must be repaired.

I have also transmitted to Congress a copy of a letter I received by Saturday's post from Governour Cooke, to which I refer them for the intelligence it contains. The seizure of our vessels by the Portuguese is, I fear, an event too true. Their dependance upon the British Crown for aid against the Spaniards, must force them to comply with everything required of them. I wish the Morris may be got in safe with her cargo. As to the ships Captain Bucklin saw on the 25th ultimo, they are probably arrived, for yesterday twenty-five sail came into the Hook.

By a letter from General Ward, of the 29th ultimo, he informs me that two of our armed vessels the day before had brought into Marblehead a ship bound from Halifax to Staten-Island. She had in about £1509 cost of British goods, besides a good many belonging to Tories. A Halifax paper found on board of her, I have enclosed, as also an account sent me by Mr. Hazard, transmitted him by some of his friends, as given by the Tories taken in her. Their intelligence I dare say is true respecting the arrival of part of the Hessian troops. General Ward, in his letter, mentions, that the day this prize was taken, Captain Burk, in another of our armed vessels, had an engagement with a ship and a schooner, which he thought were transports, and would have taken them, had it not been for an unlucky accident in having his quarter-deck blown up; two of his men were killed, and several more were wounded.

The hulks and chevaux-de-frise that have been preparing to obstruct the channel, have got up to the place they are intended for, and will be sunk as soon as possible.

I have transmitted Congress a General Return of the Army in and about this place, on the 3d instant, by which they will perceive the amount of our force.

Before I conclude I would beg leave to remind Congress of the necessity there is of having some Major-Generals appointed for this Army, the duties of which are great, extensive, and impossible to be discharged as they ought to be and the good of the service requires, without a competent number of officers of this rank. I mean to write more fully upon the subject; and, as things are drawing fast to an issue, and it is necessary to make every proper disposition and arrangement that we possibly can, I pray that this matter may be taken into consideration, and claim their early attention. I well know what has prevented appointments of this sort for some time past; but the situation of our affairs will not justify longer delays in this instance. By the first opportunity I shall take the liberty of giving you my sentiments more at large upon the propriety and necessity of the measure.

I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

Return of the Army in the service of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, in and near the City of NEW-YORK, commanded by His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, General and Commander-in-Chief.

The officers thus posted are to understand, that the rank here assigned to them is merely Regimental, and is not to affect the rank or pay that any of them hold or enjoy in the Army.

Such of the officers and privates as belong to any other corps in the Army, are to continue to receive their pay in their respective Regiments as usual, and all the others are to receive their pay as heretofore.

[A copy of this was given in to the Officers. GO. WASHINGTON.]

Head-Quarters, New-York, July 30, 1776.

SIR: Lieutenant-Colonel Patterson, Adjutant-General of the Army under your command, at the interview between us, having proposed an exchange of Mr. Lovell for Governour Skene, I am authorized to inform you that the Congress have not only approved of this proposition, but, judging that a general exchange of prisoners will be attended with mutual convenience and pleasure to both parties, have empowered their Commanders in each department to negotiate one, in the following manner: "Continental officers for those of equal rank either in the land or sea service, soldier for soldier, sailor for sailor, and citizen for citizen." They have also particularly mentioned the exchange of Colonel Ethan Allen for any officer of the same or inferior rank.

You will be pleased to signify the time and place for that of Mr. Lovell and Governour Skene, that I may give direction for the latter to be ready, who is now at Hartford, about one hundred and twenty miles from hence; also, to favour me with your sentiments as well on the proposition respecting Colonel Allen, as on the subject of a general exchange.

I have the honour to be, with due respect, sir, your most obedient servant,
GO. WASHINGTON.

To His Excellency General Howe.

Head-Quarters, Staten-Island, August 1, 1776.

SIR: I have received the favour of your letter of the 30th July, and shall accordingly direct that Mr. Lovell, who is now at Halifax, be brought to this post, of which I shall have the honour of advising you, that the proposed exchange between him and Governour Skene may take place.

The extent of my command having no relation to Canada, it is not in my power to give you the satisfaction I could wish respecting the enlargement of Colonel Allen; it must, therefore, depend upon General Carleton's determination. But wishing sincerely to give relief to the distresses of all prisoners, I shall readily consent to the mode of exchange you are pleased to propose, viz: officers for those of equal rank, soldier for soldier, citizen for citizen; the choice to be made by the respective commanders for their own officers and men. You must be sensible deserters cannot be included in this arrangement. And for the mode of exchange in the naval line, I beg leave to refer you to the Admiral.

I cannot close this letter without expressing the deepest concern that the unhappy state of the Colonies, so different from what I had the honour of experiencing in the course of the last war, deprives me of the pleasure I should otherwise have had in a more personal communication.

I am, with due respect, sir, your most obedient servant,
W. HOWE.

To General Washington, &c., &c.

Dobbs's Ferry, August 3, 1776, five afternoon.

I am now to inform your Excellency that, my flag being hoisted on board of the Washington, I came up with the ships, and attacked them at a quarter past one this afternoon. The Phenix fired the first gun, which was returned by the Lady Washington, whose shot went through the Phenix. Upon my orders, the Lady Washington put about to form a line; the tide was such that the Washington and Spitfire were exposed to the broadsides of the ships for half an hour, without suffering much damage. We engaged them an hour and a half, and then we thought to retreat to Dobbs's Ferry, about four miles below the ships. The damages we sustained are as follows, viz: Washington, four slightly wounded, sail and rigging much damaged, thirteen shot in her hull. Lady Washington cracked her thirty-two-pounder; no other damage. Spitfire, one killed, two badly wounded, hull and rigging much damaged. Shark, none killed or wounded, hulled four times. The Whiting, one man lost both legs, and four more wounded, rigging much damaged, two men wounded, one of them mortally. It is thought of, but not yet determined, whether we shall retreat to Spiten Devil, or not. We wish to give them another drubbing. We saw many splinters drifting down.

I am your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

BENJ. TUPPER,

Lieutenant-Colonel and Commander.

To His Excellency General Washington.

Providence, July 29, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour to acquaint your Excellency that last evening Captain Bucklin, in a privateer from this place, returned from a successful cruise, in which he took five valuable prizes, bound from the British Islands in the West-Indies to Great Britain. He informs me that on the 25th instant, in latitude 40° 20', S.S.E. from Nantucket Shoals, upon the clearing up of a fog, he found himself in the midst of twenty-six sail of ships, two of which appeared very large, and were all standing about west. He also tells me, that on the 27th of June, in latitude 35° longitude 52°, he spoke with the ship Morris, in the Continental service, Captain Thomas Bell, from Havre-de-Grace for Philadelphia, with a lading of duck, powder, lead, &c. Captain Bell informed him that the Portuguese had seized all the American vessels in their ports.

A prize which arrived here this day, on Thursday last spoke with two schooners from the eastward, bound on a cruise, who the day before had taken a large ship laden with provisions for the enemy's Army at New-York.

I am, with great esteem and respect, sir, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

NICH. COOKE.

To His Excellency General Washington.

Thirteen Tory gentlemen and ladies were taken in the ship Peggy, James Kennedy Master, and carried into Marblehead. Report: That the 2d of July, a transport, with a number of Hessians, put into Halifax; that three transports, with Hessians, sailed in company with them for New-York; and that the day they left Halifax, they saw about forty sail, supposed to be transports with Hessians.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 1, 1776.

(Parole, Paris.)

(Countersign, Reading.)

It is with great concern the General understands that jealousies, &c., are arisen among the troops from the different Provinces, out of reflections frequently thrown out, which can only tend to irritate each other, and injure the noble cause in which we are engaged, and which we ought to support with one hand and one heart. The General most earnestly entreats the officers and soldiers to consider the consequences—that they can no way assist our cruel enemies more effectually than making division among ourselves; that the honour and success of the Army and the safety of our bleeding country, depend upon harmony and good agreement with each other; that the Provinces are all united to oppose the common enemy, and all distinctions sunk in the name of an American. To make this honourable, and preserve the liberty of our country, ought to be our only emulation; and he will be the best soldier and the best patriot who contributes most to this glorious work, whatever his station, or from whatever part of the Continent he may come. Let all distinctions of nations, countries, and Provinces, therefore, be lost in the generous contest—who shall behave with the most courage against the enemy, and the most kindness and good humour to each other. If there are any officers or soldiers so lost to virtue and a love of their country as to continue in such practices after this order, the General assures them, and is directed by Congress to declare to the whole Army, that such persons shall be severely punished and dismissed the service with disgrace.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 2, 1776.

(Parole, Salem.)

(Countersign, Taunton.)

The Colonels of the several Regiments are to be particularly careful that the damaged Cartridges are preserved, and sent in to Commissary Cheever, at the Laboratory, as it will be a great publick saving.

The Court-Martials are often detained by non-attendance of witnesses. All officers and soldiers notified to attend as witnesses on any Court-Martial, are to be punctual; and in future any neglect of this kind will be punished as disobedience of orders.

Notwithstanding the great abuses of Regimental Hospitals last year, the General has, out of indulgence and kindness to the troops who seem to like them, permitted them to be again opened, with a full persuasion that the Regimental Surgeons will fully conform to the rules and orders which have been made, and particularly that they act with the strictest honour and candour in their drafts upon the several stores, and accounting with the Director-General of the Hospital when required, making him regular reports of the sick, and applying what they receive to the patients only. The Colonels and Field-Officers of the several Regiments would do well to visit their Regimental Hospitals frequently, and see these regulations observed; and in all cases, except slight or putrid disorders, have the sick removed to the General Hospital, near the Brigade; or the General must, in justice to the publick, break them up again.

Richard Lawrence, of Captain Gilbert's Company and Colonel Prescott's Regiment, having been tried by a General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Webb was President, and convicted of "desertion," was sentenced to receive thirty-nine lashes. The General approves the sentence, and orders it to be executed at the usual time and place.

The new Troops coming in are upon their arrival to apply to Captain Tilton, at the Quartermaster-General's store in the Broadway, who will give them all necessary directions.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 3, 1776.

(Parole, Uxbridge.)

(Countersign, Virginia.)

That the troops may have an opportunity of attending publick worship as well as take some rest after the great fatigue they have gone through, the General in future excuses them from fatigue duty on Sundays (except at the ship yards, or special occasions) until further orders.

The General is sorry to be informed that the foolish and wicked practice of profane cursing and swearing (a vice heretofore little known in an American Army) is growing into fashion; he hopes the officers will, by example as well as influence, endeavour to check it, and that both they and the men will reflect that we can have little hopes of the blessing of Heaven on our arms, if we insult it by our impiety and folly; added to this, it is a vice so mean and low, without any temptation, that every man of sense and character detests and despises it.

Clarkson and Chace, under confinement for desertion and reenlistment into the Artillery from another corps, to return to Captain Bauman's Company, until Colonel Elmore's Regiment, which claims them, comes into camp.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 4, 1776.

(Parole, Weston.)

(Countersign, Yarmouth.)

Passes signed by the Quartermaster-General, or his Assistant, Mr. Hughes, for persons in that department, to cross the Ferries, to be admitted as sufficient.

Thomas Herbert, of Captain Wyllis's Company, Colonel Sargent's Regiment, tried by a Regimental Court-Martial, and convicted of theft, was sentenced to receive thirty-nine lashes; but having appealed to a General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Webb was President, the sentence of the Regimental Court was revised, and the prisoner acquitted. The General approves the acquittal, and orders him to be discharged.

Daniel McGuire, of Captain Scott's Company, Colonel Sargent's Regiment; Samuel Weaver, of Captain Farrington's Company, same Regiment, both tried by the same Court-Martial, and convicted—McGuire of desertion and inlisting into another Company, taking a second bounty, sentenced to receive thirty-nine lashes; Weaver of desertion only, sentenced to receive thirty lashes.

William McIlvaine, of Captain Wyllis's Company, and the above Regiment, tried by the same Court-Martial, and convicted of desertion, and sentenced to receive thirty lashes.

William Diggs, of Captain Wood's Company, Colonel Baldwin's Regiment, tried by the same Court-Martial, and convicted of desertion, sentenced to receive twenty lashes.

The General approves each of the above sentences, and orders them to be put in execution at the usual time and place.

The Court-Martial to sit to-morrow for the trial of Lieutenant Hobby, of Colonel McDougall's Regiment, now under arrest for "Misconduct in leaving the vessels under his care on the East River on Friday evening." Witnesses to attend.

All persons are strictly forbid meddling with the flat-bottomed boats without leave from General Putnam, or unless sent upon some special service; and those parties who have any of them, are to be careful in returning them safely. The Guards at the wharves to attend to this order.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 5, 1776.

(Parole, Amboy.)

(Countersign, Bradford.)

The General has nothing more at heart than the health of the Troops, and as the change of encampment has been found very salutary by such Regiments as have shifted their ground, it is recommended to the several Brigadier-Generals to have it more generally adopted. And the General once more calls upon the officers and men who are quartered in houses, to have them kept clean and wholesome.

Brigadier-General Scott having informed the General that some dissatisfaction has arisen in his Brigade on account of the First Battalion, who had received some assurances from the Committee of the Convention of this State, that they should not be removed out of town unless the Army moved generally, the General at the same time being of opinion that, from their knowledge of the city, they can be more serviceable than any other equal number of men who are strangers, orders that on Wednesday General Scott's Brigade move into the city, and General Fellows, with his Brigade, take their places. He also directs that no officers or soldiers of General Fellows's Brigade take up their quarters in the dwelling-houses in or near their encampment, except they are placed there by the Quartermaster-General.

The General cannot dismiss this matter without assuring the First Battalion of General Scott's Brigade, that he will have the grounds of their claim particularly inquired into of the Provincial Congress of the State of New-York, as well because they may rest assured that at the same time publick faith is preserved with them, he expects, and will require, that they observe their engagement to the publick.

The arrival of new Troops requiring some change in the arrangement, and particularly with respect to the Alarm Posts, Major-General Putnam, with the several Brigadiers, are desired to meet to-morrow, at ten o'clock, at the City Hall, to consider thereof, and make report to the General. The Adjutant-General will attend at the same time.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

New-York, August 5, 1776.

SIR: I have been duly honoured with your two favours of the 20th and 29th ultimo, and wish your acceptance of my thanks for your kind and ready compliance with my requisition for the galleys, and the matters of intelligence transmitted in the last.

The account given Captain Bucklin (on whose success I congratulate you) by Captain Bell, of the Portuguese seizing our vessels, I fear is too true; their dependance on the British Crown for protection and aid against their Spanish neighbours, obliges them to comply with everything required of them. Captain Bucklin's information of the fleet he saw, I dare say is not to be doubted. It is probable they arrived yesterday, for twenty-five ships then came into the Hook; these make from ninety to one hundred that have come in since Thursday se'night.

Our galleys on Saturday evening had a smart engagement with the ships up the river. The enclosed copy of a letter from Colonel Tupper, under whose general command they were, will give you the particulars. Though they did not take the ships, nor is it certain what damage they sustained, I have the pleasure to inform you our officers and men behaved with the greatest spirit and resolution. The injury their little fleet sustained testifies their courage. It is said the ships were several times hulled by our shot. They still remain up the river. The galleys must be a little repaired before anything further can be attempted, provided it should be thought advisable.

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. I.

By a letter from Colonel Hancock, of the 31st ultimo, I am authorized to say that a Continental ship had arrived at Chester, not far below Philadelphia, with three hundred and sixty-six pigs of lead, fifty-four boxes of musket-ball, one thousand stand of arms with bayonets, one barrel flints, and one hundred and ninety-three whole barrels of gun-powder. He also adds, that a privateer had sent in a West-Indiaman, having on board, besides produce, eleven hundred johannes and seven hundred guineas. I wish the ship Captain Bucklin saw may get in safe.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable Governour Cooke.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO NATHANIEL SHAW, JUN.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 5, 1776.

SIR: This will be accompanied by four French gentlemen from the Island of Guadaloupe, who arrived from thence at Newburyport, with a view of engaging in the Continental service. They came to this place about six weeks since, and delivered me a letter from General Ward at Boston, which I enclosed to the President of the Congress, intending to forward it by them, that it might serve as some sort of introduction; but it seems that, for want of proper credentials, added to the unsuccessfulness of some of their countrymen on that same account, they declined applying to Congress; and as it appears they are quite destitute of money, I am obliged to pay their expenses here, and to send them to New-London, to enable them to procure a passage home. I have therefore addressed them to your care, requesting you will assist in providing them a passage as soon as possible. I suppose it will not be long before an opportunity offers, as I understand there are vessels with you bound to the West-Indies. You will please to furnish them with convenient and cheap lodgings when they get to New-London, and I will reimburse you what you may be in advance therefor. You are to observe, though, that I do not mean to be at the expense of supporting them in your place more than eight or ten days at farthest; neither do I mean to be at the expense of their passages home. They must make the best terms for themselves they can with the master of the vessel, as I don't determine to burden the Continent any more on their account, or any of their countrymen.

I am, with due regard, sir, your very humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Nathaniel Shaw, Jun., Esq., New-London.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JOHN BRADFORD.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 5, 1776.

SIR: Yours of the 29th ultimo is duly received. For the future, I must desire all warlike stores and necessaries for an army, taken by the armed vessels in publick service, may be safely stored under care of the different agents till they receive orders from proper authority. You will please to enjoin it upon the different Commanders of the Continental cruisers, to be particularly careful no embezzlement is made by their crews or others.

I am, sir, yours, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Mr. John Bradford, one of the Continental Agents at Boston.

GENERAL SULLIVAN TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

New-York, August 5, 1776.

MUCH ESTEEMED SIR: My sincere regard to my country will, I hope, apologize for my troubling Congress with an account of our situation at New-York. We have at this place, Long-Island, Governour's Island, and King's Bridge, (including the lane, the halt, and blind,) between sixteen and seventeen thousand men; on the New-Jersey shore they have between three and four thousand. Within two or three days have arrived about one hundred of the enemy's ships with troops, which we have seen march up and encamp on Staten-Island. Doubtless the remainder will be here in a few days, when, I suppose, they will have at least twenty thousand, perhaps twenty-five. Two thousand of Horse, with some of their shipping, will be sufficient to guard their baggage, and with eighteen thousand they may make an attack: if on Long-Island, we have only six broken regiments to oppose them; if at King's Bridge, a much less number; if they attempt the city, we can meet them with little more than one-third of their number, as our Army is very sickly, which must reduce our numbers some thousands, at least two or three. Those of Governour's Island and Long-Island can't leave their post to come to our assistance; and should Long-Island be attacked, (which, indeed, I think most probable,) there will be much difficulty and delay in affording them seasonable relief, on account of our great want of proper boats and the time which will be taken up in embarking and disembarking such a number of troops as may be found necessary. The troops at King's Bridge will be at fourteen miles distance from the place of action, and cannot possibly be at either of those posts till the action is over; and from New-Jersey no relief can be expected, as boats are wanting to transport their men across the water; and even if they had boats, the ships will doubtless be posted in such a manner as to intercept their passage; and even if that was not the case, most of those troops are nearly a day's march from us, and cannot possibly be here in season to give us any assistance. From this state of the matter, it must appear that we can at no point meet them with much more than a third of their numbers—too great a disparity of numbers to risk the fate of America upon. I am far from being anxious for my own safety; I well know that numbers will be no protection to my person; but numbers may save the country. I know Congress has ordered men, but they are not arrived, or likely to arrive; I therefore most heartily recommend to Congress to fall upon some method of sending a number of men immediately to this place, sufficient to meet the enemy upon more equal terms, and give at once the decisive blow. This, I apprehend, will be a means of shortening the war in every success, and will doubtless prove cheapest in the end. I have not yet any post assigned me or brigade to command; the General says he will do it as soon as possible.

I hope Congress will excuse this freedom, as I think it necessary to give them every information that appears of importance; and did not this appear to me in that light, I should not have given them the trouble.

Dear sir, believe me to be, with the most unfeigned respect, your most obedient servant,

JOHN SULLIVAN.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

P. S. I know Congress are not pleased with complaining letters, and I am far from being pleased with writing them; but when our all is at stake, I think it will admit of some excuse, if nothing more is done than barely to give a true state of facts, in order that they may provide in season a remedy for each defect. It must be allowed that nothing is more true than that he who would make a good defence must provide himself in season with every necessary for that purpose.

Mr. Livingston has just informed us of the death of the Prussian General Woedike. Our six galleys have made an attack upon the Phenix and Rose. The engagement lasted near two hours. The batteries having fired away their ammunition, returned to King's Bridge. We have about four killed and some few wounded. We can't learn what damage the ships sustained; several shots went through them. One of our batteries was hulled thirteen times; another five or six. The damage is inconsiderable.

Yours, as above,

J. S.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

New-York, August 5, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Carpenter Wharton, of Philadelphia, who was appointed by Congress to supply the Pennsylvania Militia with provisions, &c., has joined with the gentlemen of New-Jersey, Messrs. Ogden, Lowrey, and Dunham, in supplying the Continental troops in Pennsylvania and New-Jersey with provisions, agreeable to the resolves of Congress, and under my care and direction.

There have been some great complaints, by Colonel Smallwood's battalion and some others, against a person appointed to issue provisions in Philadelphia, that he has not done them justice; and it has even been laid to Mr. Wharton's charge, supposing that person acting under him; which Mr. W. tells me was not the case. But as complaints have arisen, and as it is best that all these matters should be under some one direction and governance, I hope you will support Mr. Wharton, who I have desired to look after the matter and set the complaints right, and continue the person under due regulation for the future, or appoint another, as may best serve the general cause.

I am, gentlemen, with esteem and respect, your most humble servant,

Jos. TRUMBULL.

To the Hon. John Adams, Esq., Member of Congress, Philadelphia, Committee of the War Office.

New-York, August 5, 1776.

The publick are desired to take notice that no person whatever, either male or female, above the age of fourteen years, will be permitted to pass any of the Ferries in the State of New-Jersey, without a proper Pass from the place they leave.

COLONEL DUBOIS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Poughkeepsie, August 5, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: We are as industrious as possible recruiting men for my regiment, but we find it very difficult inlisting men now, as the one-fourth part of the Militia is to turn out, and such large bounty given for about four or five months, though we come as good speed as I could expect. I would have sent a return of the men already inlisted by my brother, only I have been very unwell for some time, but am now getting better, and as soon as I am able to ride I intend going down to New-York, when I shall bring a return of them with me.

We are purchasing arms for those we inlist, and would be glad to know where to send them as fast as we raise them.

As my regiment is to be inlisted during the war, perhaps your Excellency may allow me to raise men out of the Militia; if so, I think I could soon fill my regiment, and go into immediate service, which would be very agreeable to me. I would be glad if your Excellency would send by my brother, the bearer, some money for recruiting, as without that we can do but little.

Your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

LEWIS DUBOIS, Colonel.

RICHARD VARICK TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Albany, August 5, 1776.

SIR: I have directions from General Schuyler, in order to prevent delays in forwarding the stores and other necessities for the Army, in his absence to open any letters that shall be directed to him from the General Officers and commanders of posts in this department, and to comply with their requisitions, in procuring and forwarding such articles as may be wanted and can be procured by me, and to send for such articles as cannot be had at this place, to New-York, or such other place as they may be had in, without waiting his orders at the great distance he is from this place. I therefore do myself the honour to enclose your Excellency copy of a letter from General Arnold to General Schuyler, received this day, with the copy of a return of ordnance and ordnance stores wanted for the publick service.

Of the many articles wanted, handspikes, round shot, rammers, sponges, worms, priming-horns, priming-wires, and tube-boxes, are the only ones that can possibly be procured or made at or near this place; and no copper, lead, or tin, is to be had between this place and New-York. I must therefore request your Excellency, in General Schuyler's name, to order the several articles which are wanted and not to be procured here to be sent to this place without the least delay.

In mine of the 3d, by the express, I forgot to inform your Excellency that I had sent for the anchors to Colonel Robert Livingston.

I am your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

RICH. VARICK,

Secretary to Major-General Schuyler.

To His Excellency General Washington, &c., &c.

RICHARD VARICK TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, August 5, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I was just this moment honoured with your favour of the 29th ultimo.

You may be assured, my dear sir, that I shall give all assistance in my power to forward the chain to Poughkeepsie, as soon as it arrives here. I do myself the honour to enclose you, per favour of Major Sherburne, a letter from General Schuyler, which I received at eleven last night, and some others from New-York, for yourself and the gentlemen of your family, which I received per express this morning. I do also enclose a return of such articles as have been this day forwarded to Fort George, with an invoice of the paints, &c., I have purchased, and also a return of articles forwarded to Cheshire's for the works at Skenesborough, with a return of such things as are to be sent there to-morrow or next day in consequence of requisitions from that quarter.

A large quantity of spikes were sent to Fort George, to be forwarded to Tyonderoga, about fourteen days since, for our works at Skenesborough, which I fear are not arrived there, as General Waterbury, in a letter of the 3d to General Schuyler, which arrived this morning, requests that spikes may be made here. I wish that if they are not forwarded, it may be done, and that I may be informed about the matter; for as I did not dare to rely on the supposition that they were delayed, I have desired Mr. Rensselaer to have them made here immediately.

In consequence of General Schuyler's orders to me, to prevent delay, I shall this day, by post, transmit a copy of the Return of Artillery and Stores, sent down for General Schuyler by General Arnold, to his Excellency General Washington, with an account of such articles as may be had and made here, that those that are wanting may be immediately sent up from New-York.

Some of the shot, powder, and thread, mentioned in Colonel Trumbull's letter, shall be sent forward to-morrow, if wagons are to be had. The wagoners (many of whom are poor and want fodder for their horses) are weary of riding for the publick without cash. The Sutlers have hitherto got them, when the publick officers could not, merely on this account. I have this morning obtained an order from Colonel Van Schaick, prohibiting any Sutlers to go up without his pass, and have entreated the Storekeeper to borrow money to pay the wagoners for every load they ride. This is a disagreeable expedient, but we are not likely to have any from Congress soon enough to make this unnecessary.

I am, dear sir, yours most respectfully,

RICHARD VARICK.

To the Honourable Major-General Gates.

P. S. More axes, spades, pickaxes, &c., will soon be sent up to Fort George. The anchors and cables sent this day are almost new.

COLONEL GANSEVOORT TO GENERAL GATES.

Fort George, August 5, 1776.

SIR: I received yours of the 3d instant, yesterday, in which you write me that you are informed that there are three thousand barrels of flour at this post.

I am apprehensive that your Honour is frequently troubled with false representations of the state of this garrison and our proceedings. By the enclosed return you will see what provision we have in store at this post.

My brother writes me from Ticonderoga, that you had received but one week's return from this post, at which I am much surprised. I can prove I have sent a return each week since I received your orders.

I am, your humble servant,

PETER GANSEVOORT, Lieutenant-Colonel.

To the Honourable Major-General Gates.

GENERAL GATES TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Tyonderoga, August 5, 1776.

SIR: I am honoured with the receipt of your letter by Messieurs Gansevoort and Cuyler, and I beg you will assure the gentlemen of the Convention of the State of New-York of my readiness, at all times, to obey their commands.

Enclosed I have sent you a general return of the Army in this department, together with a copy of my letter of this date to the President of the Continental Congress. I have also put into the hands of Messieurs Gansevoort and Cuyler a list of the principal articles wanted for this Army; these, together, will answer almost every question demanded by your Convention.

Your Delegates, that they might have every necessary information, took their route hither by Lake George, and return from hence by Skenesborough, and up Wood Creek to Fort Edward. By this sensible tour, they will see everything that is done and doing, at every post upon both communications, our dock-yard at Skenesborough included.

I also enclose you a list of our fleet already built. The bearers will fully inform you of the diligence with which we are endeavouring to increase it. Messieurs Gansevoort and Cuyler have also been at Crown-Point, where they have seen the naval force now on float, and can give you the best intelligence how that most important part of our defence is likely to be conducted. The strength, situation, and works carrying on at this post, will likewise be described to you by those gentlemen; and if I can get a plan thereof finished in time, you shall have it in this packet.

As to provisions, the Army is now well supplied. Six days' fresh meat, and one day's salt, is the weekly allowance issued by the Commissary.

Very extraordinary intelligence was last night received of the enemy's motions. Your Ambassadors wait until to-morrow, to have it better confirmed, as we expect this night, or to-morrow morning, to receive further confirmation on that head.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To the Honourable Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

GENERAL GATES TO COLONELS BAYLEY AND HURD.

Tyonderoga, August 5, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received your favour by Mr. Atkinson, with two of the Canadian officers mentioned therein. The other two Canadian officers are not yet arrived. Their information may be true; but to put entire confidence in it, before it is better confirmed, would be imprudent. Should the facts be as they relate, it will not be long before we shall have them authenticated in a manner not to be doubted. I am much obliged to you, gentlemen, for your information, and for the pains you take to serve the publick cause.

I am, sirs, your most obedient, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To Colonels Bayley and Hurd, of Committee of Newbury and Haverhill.

COLONEL PHILIP CORTLANDT TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Ticonderoga, August 5, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: This acknowledges the receipt of a letter from Mr. John McKesson, dated New-York, July 14th last, relative to Colonel Wynkoop's regiment.

When I was at Albany, I had not time to procure the dates of all the officers' warrants; the Committee promised to have the matter settled.

I have paid the billet of six companies; the two raised in Tryon County I have not settled with, but borrowed money on account of the Paymaster for them. Shortly after which I was ordered to this place by General Schuyler; since which I have not had it in my power to make a return, the regiment being in such a divided state, but shall make out one as soon as possible. I have enclosed your letter to Colonel Wynkoop, who is at Skenesburgh.

Permit me, gentlemen, by this opportunity, to transmit to you a few observations on my present situation, being confident that nothing is wanting on your part to promote the welfare of the United States, or to do justice to those who have risked their all for its defence. Many of you, gentlemen, I have the honour to be personally acquainted with, which emboldens me to appeal to you for my character in private life, for my behaviour as an officer. The Generals under whom I served the preceding and present campaign, can testify it was not for ease, or to have an exalted commission, that brought me to the field. On the contrary, numbers of you, gentlemen, I flatter myself, know that I lived in affluence at home, and consequently I was not induced into the service with a view to the pay, as you must all be satisfied that it is not an object for a gentleman. When that respectable body with which I had the honour of serving in representing this State, offered me a commission from the Continental Congress last summer, I with reluctance accepted, not from a want of zeal to do my injured country all the service I was capable of, but a diffidence in my own mind of my abilities to fill such an important office as that of Lieutenant-Colonel of a regiment. I am at present the First Lieutenant-Colonel in this Army, as I am informed, and I believe may safely add, in the service of the United States. Notwithstanding, must do my country justice and not myself, and bear the mortification to see several officers promoted to the command of regiments in the Continental Army, which I commanded last campaign. Justice to those gentlemen of our State who entered into the service and have undergone the fatigue of last winter's campaign in Canada, superior in rank, and who have been distinguished throughout the Army for their bravery and honour, are also superseded by the late appointments of officers for Colonel Dubois's regiment, &c. This must be evident when the rank-roll of last year is examined as to the characters of the officers. I cannot conclude without suggesting to you, that I was, by an ill state of health, prevented from going into Canada, and there joining the Army then in that quarter. My honour as a gentleman I conceive hurt and injured by being thus neglected and superseded; and lest you might think that I was ignorant thereof, I have taken this method of informing you of it. But the same principle of honour which tells me I am disregarded, assures me also that it would be most shameful for me to resign at present, when the enemy of the States have attacked the State of which I am a citizen, at both extremities. I must, however, observe to you, that I shall be obliged, in justice to myself, to resign my commission after the cloud which now hangs over us in this part is dispelled; and I shall do it with the more cheerfulness, as I conceive it will be agreeable to those from whom I have received it, or they would not have given me the private intimation by superseding.

Be assured, gentlemen, however, that if ever it lies in my power to render any service to my country, or to the cause of liberty and mankind, no man will be more ready in doing it.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, with respect, your most obedient and very humble servant,

PHILIP CORTLANDT.

To the President and Gentlemen convened, representing the State of New-York.

COLONEL STARK TO GENERAL GATES.

August 5, 1776.

HONoured SIR: The Field-Officers in the Continental Army at this place have met with Mr. Commissary Jauncey, to consult with him upon the value of the rations due to the officers whilst in the Northern Army; and upon an exact and careful calculation made by the Commissary, it was found that the ration could not be purchased at this place under one shilling, lawful money of New-England, per day; which sum, they hope your Honour will order them to be paid by the Commissary for each ration due to them.

In behalf of the whole of the Field-Officers:

JOHN STARK, Colonel.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM TICONDEROGA, DATED AUGUST 5, 1776.

I came over here from Royalton to conduct a Canadian from St. Francois to Head-Quarters. He assures me that the Indians in general have resolved not to join in the war. Things here begin to wear a different face. The greatest harmony reigns among the General Officers. Order is taking place in the Army, and the men are in high spirits. Great numbers are coming in from New-England to Skenesborough. It is reported that General Carleton has used the Canadians who favoured us very barbarously, which has provoked them very much. Some deserters are come over, and some of the foreign troops are said to be desirous of deserting.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM TICONDEROGA, DATED AUGUST 5, 1776.

I have the pleasure to inform you that the greatest harmony subsists between the General Officers in this department, as well as the Field-Officers in general. We have three thousand five hundred effective men here, and the Militia coming in fast, all under pretty good discipline. The sick, about one thousand five hundred, are at Fort George, and recruiting fast; near two months' salt provisions, and fresh arrives in great plenty.

Our naval force consists of two vessels, carrying twelve carriage and as many swivel guns each, two schooners, eight carriage and eight swivels each, a row-galley, six carriage and ten swivels, five gondolas, carrying three nine and twelve-pounders and eight swivels each; five other gondolas will be completed in ten days, and four row-galleys in two or three weeks, each of the latter to carry four eighteen and twenty four-pounders. The fleet when completed will be superior to anything the enemy can bring against us. Two days since, two French Captains of Colonel Livingston's regiment arrived here, by the way of Cohos, in sixteen days from St. John's, who say that a French fleet is arrived before Quebeck; and that General Carleton, with all the troops, except two hundred left at St. John's, are gone to Quebeck. We expect soon to know the certainty of the matter by our reconnoitring parties, who are daily expected in.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Lebanon, August 5, 1776.

SIR: I have received your two favours of the 24th and 25th of July last. Have put Colonel Ward's regiment under marching orders to proceed without loss of time whatever way Congress shall direct. The troops from this State destined to the northward, are marched to Bennington, and from thence to Skenesborough. At the request of General Schuyler for one thousand felling axes, have sent eight hundred, ground and with helvcs, to go the same route. They went from hence the 29th last. The residue will go, with clothing preparing for that Army, next Monday. Thought it not best to wait for orders, as we were very well assured of their necessity.

Notwithstanding our enemies are so numerous and powerful, and have hired mercenaries into their service, yet knowing our cause righteous, and trusting Heaven will support and defend us, I do not greatly dread what they can do against us. Our internal malignants may be permitted to do many injurious and insidious things. They are therefore to be watched with care and diligence, to prevent such hypocritical and designing men carrying on and perpetrating their wicked purposes. No doubt there are many such, the persons and characters unknown to me, and not convenient to mention in a letter the notices given me of any.

Last week I sent circular letters addressed to the Civil Authority, Selectmen, Committees of Inspection, and military officers, in all the towns in this State, to promote and facilitate the filling the several battalions ordered to be raised here, and to send them forward to the places of their destination. Recruiting officers for the companies not filled are necessary, and conclude are left for the purpose. The people have in some measure got through the hurry of harvest, &c. Hope that they will cheerfully enlist and go on.

Colonel Eliphalet Dyer and Richard Law, Esquires, are directed to repair to New-York, to confer with your Excellency on every subject needful for our direction and for your information; you know our readiness to afford every assistance for our common defence.

I am, with great esteem and regard, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JONA. TRUMBULL.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the United States of America, at New-York.

Six o'clock, A. M.—P. S. Just received your two favours of the 1st instant. Orders are gone to Colonel Elmore, and express to carry those to Colonel Ward expected in soon. The orders are ready.

WILLIAM PITKIN TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Hartford, August 5, 1776.

HONoured SIR: In consequence of your Honour's circular of the 1st instant, the Civil Authority, &c., convened this day. They view it of the utmost importance to encourage the inlistments within our respective spheres and influence of connexion, and to forward the same with all possible expedition. It appears, upon the strictest scrutiny, that the proportion of men due from this town to the several officers appointed to the service here, are very nearly, if not quite furnished and completed. The gentlemen of the town have exerted themselves much upon this occasion, and also very generously contributed towards increasing the encouragements; which had its effect.

We have no doubt what has been done here will meet your Honour's approbation, and in some degree be thought anticipating your Honour's requisition. We shall, however, continue our exertions, and lend every aid in our power to ease your Honour's burden, and furnish the numbers so much called for from this State.

With great regard, we are your Honour's most obedient, humble servants. Per order:

WM. PITKIN.

To the Hon. Governour Trumbull.

SELECTMEN OF FAIRFIELD TO CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Fairfield, August 5, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We the subscribers, Selectmen of the town of Fairfield, pray that you would please to give orders for the delivery of the cannon and ball allotted to the town of Fairfield, for the Battery at Black Rock, commanded by Lieutenant Mills, and you will greatly oblige your very humble servants,

JOHN ALLEN,
EBENEZER BANKS,
JOSEPH WAKEMAN,
DANIEL ANDREWS, } Selectmen.

To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Governour of the Colony of Connecticut, and the Council of Safety.

N. B. Lieutenant Mills could not be spared to be sent to New-York, although he was very forward with his party to proceed. As danger of the enemy is attending, he is much wanted for the defence of this town. We desire Lieutenant Mills would speak to his Honour about the cost of transporting the cannon and ball. Lieutenant Mills has paid some sick bills, and is in want of money for his party; and furthermore, if his Honour will please to grant, twelve men more.

MAJOR FRENCH TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Hartford, August 5, 1776.

SIR: Notwithstanding I claimed my release, in a letter I did myself the honour to write you a fortnight past, as consonant with the tenour of my parole, yet I shall waive the pretensions arising from that circumstance in favour of Major Meigs, who, I am informed, is desirous to be exchanged for me. As it will mutually serve us, I hope you will have no objection, should General Howe, on his part, agree, since in restoring him to his family, it would also procure me the satisfaction to see my son. Colonel Allen is also mentioned in the papers to be designed for exchange for any Colonel or officer of inferior rank; should, therefore, the proposed one with Major Meigs prove abortive, I flatter myself you will not object to my being exchanged for him, as I have been longer a prisoner than any of his Majesty's officers of my rank; so that I think I stand in priority of claim. But should not either of these take place, from any unforeseen circumstances, I assure myself you will grant me the same indulgence given by General Carleton to Major Meigs, when I shall readily sign a parole similar to his.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

CHRIS. FRENCH.

JOHN AVERY TO COLONEL WILLARD.

Council Chamber, August 5, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by the honourable Committee of Council to request that you give them information what Counties and Towns are included to make up eight companies in your regiment, and how far eastward they will extend, and to make a return thereof as soon as possible.

In the name and by order of the Committee of Council,

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

To Colonel Aaron Willard.

JOHN AVERY TO SHERIFF GREENLEAF.

Council Chamber, August 5, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by the honourable Committee of Council to acquaint you that the printed Declarations of Independency are on their table, and they expect that you will take proper care that they be distributed through this State as soon as may be, that every town may have them publicly read in each religious assembly.

In the name and by order of the Committee of Council.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

To Sheriff Greenleaf.

CAPTAIN CLARK TO JAMES WARREN.

Chelsea, August 5, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I received your commands of July 25, to have the Militia in this town at a minute's notice, &c., and should have obeyed them with the greatest cheerfulness had it been in my power; but for the want of your commissions, we are quite unable to do anything in the military way; and since unwearied pains have hitherto been unsuccessful, I must beg your Honour's influence to procure a settlement of our Militia. The town instructed their Representative to make it the first object of his endeavour in the late session of our Assembly. I much solicited one of the Field Officers of the Boston regiment, to which we formerly belonged, to preside at the meeting when officers were chosen, but could not prevail with one to do it; the town therefore chose a Justice of the Peace for their Moderator, and were unanimous in their choice, since which repeated applications have been made to the honourable Council, but we are refused commissions, because a Field Officer did not preside at the meeting, and it was quite out of our power to obtain one. It seems as if some strange fatality attended the thing. Your Honour, I trust, will procure our settlement, when you will ever find me most obedient to your commands. Upon this representation of facts, I doubt not you will excuse my utter incapacity to obey. Permit me to add, the company is far from being inconsiderable, and desirous of being on a footing with their neighbours. A regard to the publick safety, I doubt not, will induce your Honour to procure for us a speedy settlement and our commissions, when your Honour's commands shall be obeyed with the greatest precision and alacrity, by, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

SAMUEL CLARK.

To the Hon. James Warren, Esq.

P. S. The town unanimously chose, at a very full meeting, Samuel Clark Captain, Jonathan Williams Lieutenant, James Storer Ensign.

TIMOTHY PICKERING, JUN., TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Salem, August 5, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: I have acquainted the Captains of the Salem Militia with the Brigadier's orders to raise every twenty-fifth man to march to Dorchester-Heights, and considered of the means of raising them; but it is their opinion, that the execution of those orders here will be impracticable. There are so few men left in town (and there is a demand of such numbers to man the four or five privateers, besides the brig belonging to this State now fitting) that we are sure no volunteers will present. Even our own sea-coast company remains incomplete, the vacancies made by inlistments into the sea service of this and the United States not being supplied; and many others of that company are daily pressing to be discharged, that they may obtain more lucrative employments which court their acceptance. And should the orders be strictly pursued, and every twenty-fifth man draughted, the Captains, who know the sentiments of their towns, say they are certain the men so draughted would not go, and that the effect will be a publick open contempt of authority, (there being no penalty in case of disobedience); and this they apprehend would do more hurt to Government than the proposed levy, were it to be made, would do good. They therefore request me to lay the matter before your Honours, and pray that they may be excused furnishing their quota to this levy; at the same time desiring me to assure your Honours that they stand ready to march, in case of need, to the assistance of the capital with much greater numbers than the present levy would amount to. If, notwithstanding, the attempt must be made, I shall begin it as soon as I am made acquainted with your Honours' determination.

I am, with due respect, your Honours' most obedient servant,

TIM. PICKERING, Jun.

To the Hon. the Council of the Massachusetts-Bay.

MAJOR HAWLEY TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Northampton, August 5, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: As the major part of the Committee for the raising seven hundred and fifty-four men in the County of Hampshire, as its part of the three thousand destined to the northward, are now together, they conceive it to be their duty to acquaint your Honours with the success they have had in the execution of their commission. And to be brief, two companies, consisting of ninety-seven men each, inclusive of their officers, marched on the 24th of July last, the one by the way of No. 4, and the other by Bennington; a third company, of eighty-five, marched on the 29th of the same July, by the way of Bennington; a fourth company, of ninety-two, began their march on the 30th; and all the companies marched from Northfield on the 1st of August by the way of No. 4. Another company of eighty-three, begin their march this day, by the way of Bennington. Some disappointment has taken place with regard to Murraysfield quota, too long to relate, which has occasioned a defect in the last-mentioned company. We are informed that the Lieutenant-Colonel has ordered the three other companies to march next Friday, by the way of Bennington. Two of the three companies will be very full, the other very deficient by reason that the Granville men and the Blanford men who have inlisted, are, without any orders, gone into inoculation. Lieutenant-Colonel Leonard and Major Stacy have been out of inoculation about a week, who have applied themselves faithfully to their duty since their return. Colonel Woodbridge, who has had a severe drench of it, is expected home this day.

Your Committee are not furnished with any blankets for the Staff Officers, and pray your Honours to furnish them by Major Pyncheon. As to the Hampshire quota of the fifteen hundred to go to the northward, we have attempted nothing, by reason of a misapprehension concerning the inclination of your Honours; but as the matter is this day explained to us by Colonel Brewer, we shall enter upon the business as soon as Major Pyncheon shall return with the money and blankets. The service has not suffered by the Committee not having entered on the business sooner, for the attempt to have raised these men would have retarded the completing and marching of others; and now we have but little prospect of success till after the harvest.

As to the penalties in the resolve, they are well calculated for this meridian, but we have hopes to inlist them all as volunteers.

We have the honour to be, with great respect, your Honours' most obedient servants,

Per order of Committee.

JOSEPH HAWLEY.

To the Honourable the Council of Massachusetts-Bay.

FRANCIS ABBOTT TO RICHARD DEVENS.

Charlestown, No. 4, August 5, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I came to town after more trouble than is possible to express. This day the teams arrived, and delivered their loads in good order, for which I have given a receipt, and hope justice will be done them, for they have had a troublesome voyage from Winchendon to this place. I could not get the teams I have with the utmost trouble obtained round this woody place, at 28s. per day. They stood strong for 30s. Was obliged to press them. I am told it is impossible to get to Ticonderoga, the roads are so bad; but have obtained four hundred men to mend the way, after finding them rum and axes and shovels, which the Committee must pay, or ought to pay, or the men would perish. The expense is more than you or all the Court did think, or the teams would not have come this way. I have got twelve teams, which will come to more than £15 a team, and have promised them pay at Ticonderoga, if they stop there: but am afraid the troops, before I can get to them, will be gone to Crown-Point. We have an express from General Gates, for the troops to march with all speed. We have three thousand men in town. You must send by the post five hundred dollars, or I shall not be able to complete the business. The credit of the Colony will not do. I had all the assistance of the gentlemen in town, and tried to obtain the teams cheaper, but could not. We can't get hardly anything to eat: have no pork, and many of the troops sick on the march; rum 12s. per gallon, New-England. When I shall be at home, God only can tell; but I wish I had never come out. If I had had orders to buy teams, the Colony would have saved half the expense; but I will do the best, and through the tents shall go if I have my life spared. Your compliance and further orders will much oblige your distressed friend, and much worn-out humble servant,

FRANCIS ABBOTT.

Richard Devens Esq., Commissary-General.

P. S. I have had hardly any pens or paper, and am in haste. Give my love to Nat and all friends. Send to me at Captain Walker's. I must tarry in town till the money comes.

Boston, August 5, 1776.

By an express from Falmouth, we are informed that Captain White the day before, in a privateer, had arrived there, having forty men on board, with the particulars of the following prizes he had taken, viz: the brig Fanny, 130 hogsheads rum from Antigua; sloop Betsey, 150 hogsheads rum, and a brig from Antigua, for Liverpool, with 230 hogsheads rum; brig Harlequin, from Nevis for London, 273 hogsheads sugar and 63 hogsheads rum; ship Polly, from Antigua, 450 hogsheads rum, 12 hogsheads sugar; ship Anna Maria, 495 hogsheads sugar, and 52 pipes wine, and some bales of cotton, carried into Falmouth. The Captain also took a seventh vessel, which he gave the prisoners.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM THE CAMP TWO MILES BELOW KEOWEE, IN THE CHEROKEE COUNTRY, DATED AUGUST 6, 1776.

On the 31st of July, some of Colonel Williamson's scouts took two white men prisoners, who had been sent to get cattle for the enemy. They informed the Colonel that Cameron had come over the Hills a few days before with twelve white men; and that he, with the Seneca and some other Indians, in all about one hundred and fifty, were then encamped at Cowanaross, about twenty miles from Twenty-three Mile Creek, where our Army then lay encamped; and that their women and children had all retired from the towns to the neighbourhood of the same place. This intelligence determined the Colonel to march that evening at the head of three hundred and thirty horsemen, taking the two prisoners with him. His intention was to leave the horses two miles behind, with a party to guard them, and surround the enemy's camp by daybreak. The river Keowee lying in his route, and being only passable at a ford at Seneca, obliged him to take that road. About one o'clock in the morning, he arrived at the outskirts of that town, which he had received accounts of being entirely abandoned, and therefore little expected to meet with any opposition there. The enemy, however, having received some intimation of his march, had taken possession of the first houses, and posted themselves behind a long fence, stuffed with twigs and corn blades, on an eminence close to the road where the party was to pass. They allowed the guides and advanced guard to come almost up to the houses, when they fired five or six guns, but without doing any other damage than killing one of the guide's horses. They immediately afterwards began a very heavy fire on our advanced guard and main body, by which Mr. Francis Salvador was shot in three different places, Colonel Williamson had his horse shot under him, and eight men were badly wounded, and two slightly. Mr. Salvador falling among the bushes, it being dark, and both parties mixed, they unluckily got his scalp. The Indian was seen by Captain Smith, who would have prevented his accomplishing his cruel purpose, had he not thought it was Mr. Salvador's servant taking care of his master. He died about three-quarters of an hour after. The whole Army regretted his loss, as he was universally beloved and esteemed by them. Two of the wounded died next morning.

Our party soon recovering from their surprise, kept up a brisk fire on the places where the flashes of the enemy's guns were seen, and soon drove them from their fences and houses. Their loss is not known; but from the number of blankets, shirts, tomahawks, &c., left besmeared with blood, and the bloody tracks which marked their retreat, it is supposed to be considerable. Colonel Williamson remained on the ground till daybreak, and burnt all the houses on both sides of the river, and destroyed their corn, &c. Judging that the party he had defeated would immediately proceed to their camp and apprize them of his approach, and having made an appointment to meet Colonels Neel and Thomas at Sugar-Town, the Colonel, after leaving a party to bury the dead and take care of the wounded, returned to his camp. Next day, in consequence of this appointment, the whole Army proceeded to the neighbourhood of Keowee, where they encamped; and on the 4th, a party of four hundred men was sent to burn that town and Sugar-Town, which they effected. They found only an old lame Indian, who informed them that the others had left the towns four days before, on a white man's telling them a large Army was at Paris's, which probably may be the Colonels Neel and Thomas's party. He would not tell where the Indians were gone to.

On the 6th, the Colonel marched at the head of six hundred and fifty men after the enemy, being fully determined to carry fire and sword throughout their country.

FRANCIS SANDERSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

August 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The time I made application to furnish you with camp-kettles, I only agreed with the Council for three hundred—one hundred and fifty against the 1st of August, and one hundred and fifty against the 1st of September. I have these contracts ready. Should be glad to furnish the Council with more if they want. I have employed more hands for that purpose, as I furnished them with only half the number they wanted to contract with me for.

I am, gentlemen, the Council's most obedient humble servant,

FRANCIS SANDERSON.

To the Right Hon. the Council of Safety, sitting at the City of Annapolis.

JOHN VEAZEY, JUN., TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee, Cecil County, August 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We received, by the hands of Captain Alexander, £500 from your Board, for the purchasing arms, &c., for the use of the troops raised in our County. We find it will be in our power very speedily to collect a sufficient number of blankets for the use of those men raised here, and perhaps more than what they want. We will also do everything we can for procuring muskets; but are very doubtful whether we shall be able to procure enough of them. There is a gunsmith here that will undertake to repair any number of guns that we may get. Steel ramrods can be had here. We cannot as yet find that there are more than three or four publick arms in this County, and we have not received any guns worth anything from the Non-Associates or Non-Enrollers.

We beg leave, gentlemen, to inform you, that the companies here are completed, and that the men, from being thrown out of all kind of employment, express great uneasiness at their situation, especially as many of them are daily at expense for their support, and are to receive no pay until they march. To mitigate their uneasiness, and prevent their deserting the service, we have ordered the Captains to call all their men together, and then to quarter them at the expense of the Continent, until we can have your advice how to proceed; and for their support, we have been obliged to advance part of the money sent us by your Board to the officers. We have been very sorry to take this step without your orders; but in our opinion the publick service must have greatly suffered unless something of the kind had been done; indeed, the men think they ought to be under immediate pay. We request, gentlemen, that you will, as soon as possible, inform us whether it is agreeable to you to keep these troops in quarters, and whether we may assure them that they shall be under pay from the time they enlisted into the service. Should this be refused, we fear the service will be discouraged, and that it will be very difficult to recruit men in future. We have procured thirty camp kettles. The money we have will not be sufficient to answer all the purposes. If you think proper to send us any more, we shall take care to dispose of it to the best advantage for the publick service.

As cartouch boxes, belts and slings, knapsacks with haversacks, priming-wires and brushes, are not to be had here, the sending them by the first opportunity will expedite the company's marching.

I am, in behalf of the Committee, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

JOHN VEAZEY, JUN., Chairman.

To the Hon. the Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO JESSE HOLLINGSWORTH.

[No. 111.]

Annapolis, August 6, 1776.

SIR: You are requested by the Council of Safety to purchase, for the use of the publick, one good scow, proper for transporting heavy cannon; also, let us know whether you can purchase any flat-bottomed boats, with eight or ten oars, that would carry fifty men each, or any barges or whale-boats. Please to let us hear from you, and the price at which they may be got; if there be none to be had, whether you would undertake to have some built this fall.

We are, &c.

To Mr. Jesse Hollingsworth.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO MESSRS. VANBIBBER AND HARRISON.

[No. 112.]

Annapolis, August 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have received by Captain Martin all the goods you sent us, according to invoice and bill of lading, except ten barrels of gunpowder, which he says is a mistake, and that they were never put on board. If there be any mistake, you must rectify it; if no mistake, charge the Captain with the powder.

Captain Stone has presented us a memorial, claiming the brig Friendship as his property, copy of which we send you enclosed, and to which we shall be glad hereafter of having your answer. We shall endeavour to make you remittances by every opportunity. We do not know the cargo of the brig Friendship. Colonel Hoe is down at Chingoteague, and will write you fully of the cargo put on board—some tobacco, bread, and flour, are the chief articles. You will do the best you can for us, and send by first good opportunity the following articles, viz: guns with bayonets, coarse woollens, coarse linens, gun-flints, lead, powder, and salt-petre. We have heretofore written you by Captain Handy, a duplicate whereof is now enclosed. When the fall and winter comes on, we shall do better, we hope. Dunmore's fleet is gone off from the mouth of Potomack, very sickly and in great distress. Perhaps our Bay will be clearer of ships of war than it has been; if so, we shall remit you fully; in the mean time, draw on us, if you are in want of cash, payable either in Maryland or Pennsylvania, and we shall pay due honour to your drafts. Captain Conway is safe arrived in Great Wicomico, in Virginia. We shall get his cargo up soon, and despatch him as quick as possible.

We are, with due regard, yours, &c.

To Messrs. Vanbibber and Harrison.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO EDWARD PARKER.

[No. 114.]

Annapolis, August 6, 1776.

SIR: Please to send us by the first opportunity ten pounds of coarse sewing-thread. We wrote you some time ago that we had a demand for linen for the Flying-Camp; we are very desirous you would let us have what you can get with all expedition. We are, &c.

To Mr. Edward Parker.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO MESSRS. HARRIS AND ARCHER.

[No. 115.]

Annapolis, August 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We hear you have got a quantity of linen ready for us, which we wait with impatience to receive, for the use of this Province. We should be obliged to you if you would send it down immediately, and five pounds of coarse osnaburgh thread therewith. We are, &c.

To Messrs. Harris & Archer.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL EWING.

[No. 116.]

Annapolis, August 6, 1776.

SIR: We have ordered Captain Young's company up to Baltimore County, to be subject to your command, and we have advanced him the sum of one hundred and twenty-five pounds currency, to purchase necessaries. You'll be pleased to apply to the Committee for blankets, with the enclosed order. Were you to march one of your companies unarmed to Philadelphia, we doubt no arms can be got; we have not more due to us than will arm one company; we have applied several times by our Deputies, and cannot get them. If you can satisfy us that we stand any chance of succeeding in our application, we will cheerfully give an order. To do it would only expose you and ourselves. The hunting-shirts you cannot have; we want them for that part of the Flying-Camp that is to supply the place of Colonel Smallwood's battalion. As your companies march forward, they shall be supplied with everything we can spare; but an unlimited order cannot be given. We are, &c.

To Colonel Thomas Ewing.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO ISAAC GRIEST.

[No. 117.]

Annapolis, August 6, 1776.

SIR: Two tent-makers are engaged to make tents at Baltimore, to wit, Jacobs and Johnson; one is employed in Kent, and one in this County; if any others are at Baltimore willing to engage in that way, you'll inform us of it, and we will give you directions to employ them. Tent-poles are necessary to be made. We suppose the tent-makers procure them; if not, you must get them made. As soon as you inform us another tent-maker can be found, we will order him the cloth necessary. We are, &c.

To Mr. Isaac Griest.

R. POTTS TO LANCASTER (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.

Frederick-Town, August 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am directed by the Committee of this town to inform you that the several officers sent to this place have subscribed the parole pointed out by the Congress, and that they have given security for the good behaviour and appearances of their servants. This Committee, under an expectation that their servants will be ordered here by your body after this notice of their having complied with the terms directed by the Congress, have encouraged the officers to send to your town for them. A list of the servants for whom security is given is herewith enclosed.

I am, on behalf of the Committee, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

R. POTTS, Clerk.

To the Committee of Lancaster.

OFFICERS WHO HAVE SUBSCRIBED THEIR PAROLE, AND THEIR SERVANTS.

Major STOPFORD's: John Smith, Ed. Nankirrit; Royal Fusileers.—Pass granted 17 August, 1776.

Major DUNBAR: John Pilling; Royal Fusileers.—Pass granted 17 August, 1776.

Captain STEWART: Thos. Battersby; Twenty-Sixth Regiment.—Pass granted 17 August, 1776.

Captain CAMPBELL: William Ennis; Royal Emigrants.—Pass granted 16 August, 1776.

Lieutenant HARRISON: either Wm. Evidert or John Rowland; Royal Fusileers.—Pass granted to Rowland 16 August, 1776.

Lieutenant SHUTTLEWORTH: John Smith; Royal Fusileers. Pass granted 17 August, 1776.

Lieutenant LESLIE: Sylvester Conlaer; Twenty-Sixth Regiment.—Pass granted 17 August, 1776.

Captain ALGEE: Edward Forrestall; Navy.—Pass granted 17 August, 1776.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE OFFICER COMMANDING COL. HASLETT'S BATTALION.

Philadelphia, August 6, 1776.

SIR: The Congress having instructed their Committee immediately to deliver as many arms as are necessary for your battalion, Robert Morris, Esq., will give the orders for the delivery. And I have it in charge from the Congress to direct, that as soon as the arms are received, you do, without loss of time, march your battalion to Amboy, New-Jersey, and acquaint General Washington of your arrival there, and follow such orders as you shall receive from him.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Officer commanding the Battalion of Continental Troops at the Barracks, Philadelphia, Colonel Haslett's Battalion.

RICHARD PETERS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

[Circular Letter.]

War Office, Philadelphia, August 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: By a resolve of Congress on the subject of Prisoners, it is determined "that a list of the prisoners in each Colony be made out by the Committees of the Counties, Towns, or Districts, where they reside, and transmitted to the Assembly, Convention, or Council or Committee of Safety of such Colony respectively." The Board of War, who have, by direction of Congress, the care of all prisoners, are much obstructed in that business by the resolution before quoted not having been complied with. I am therefore to press you by all means to prevail on the several Committees in your State to enable you immediately to transmit an accurate list of all prisoners of war now in your State to the Board, that this matter, which has heretofore been in confusion, may be reduced to proper order.

I have the honour to be your most obedient humble servant,

RICHARD PETERS, Secretary.

To the Honourable Convention or Committee of Safety of Maryland.

P. S. Please to send also a list of all officers, their ranks, and dates of commissions of any Continental troops raised in your State, and the time for which they were enlisted.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO CAPTAIN JONES.

In Marine Committee, Philadelphia, }
August 6, 1776. }

SIR: We have ordered the provisions and stores you requested, to be sent on board the sloop Providence, which you command under authority of the United States of America; so that the said sloop being now ready for sea, you are to proceed immediately on a cruise against our enemies; and we think in or about the latitude of Bermuda may prove the most favourable ground for your purpose.

Herewith we deliver you an extract from the Journals of Congress respecting the Navy prizes, &c., by which you will know with precision what vessels can be made prizes and which not. You have also herewith a list of the Continental Agents in each State, and to some of them your prizes must be addressed according to the port they arrive in. Your cruise may be for six weeks, two or three months, just as provisions, water, and other circumstances point out to be best. If you gain any material intelligence, you must put into the nearest port of the Continent, and despatch an express to us with the same.

You must, by all opportunities, transmit us an account of your proceedings and of such occurrences as you meet with. You are to be particularly attentive to protect, aid, and assist all vessels and property belonging to these States or the subjects thereof. It is equally your duty to seize, take, sink, burn, or destroy that of our enemies. Be careful of the sloop, her stores and materials; use your people well, thereby recommending the American naval service to all who engage in it. And we also recommend humane, kind treatment of your prisoners. These things, duly observed, will recommend you to the attention and regard of this Committee.

We are, sir, your humble servants,

JOHN HANCOCK, GEORGE READ,
FRANCIS HOPKINSON, GEO. WALTON,
WILLIAM WHIPPLE, ARTHUR MIDDLETON,
ROBT. MORRIS, FRANCIS LEWIS.
JOSEPH HEWES,

To John Paul Jones, Esq., Commander of the Sloop Providence.

ABRAM CLARK TO COLONEL DAYTON.

Philadelphia, August 6, 1776.

MY DEAR FRIEND: Your favour of the 25th of July, and Mr. Caldwell's of the 26th, from the German-Flats, I received a few days ago, which I answered in a letter to Mr. Caldwell, having the day before written to you by a Doctor going through Albany to the Army at Ticonderoga. Yours of the 20th July, from Fort Stanwix, I received yesterday. I have frequently informed you of the situation of our Army in the Jerseys, watching that under General Howe on Statens Island. Could I believe any letters would come safe to you, my pleasure in writing would be equal to that you express in receiving them.

The King's Army remain on the Island, fortifying every pass; their numbers unknown, but we with reason believe they are daily receiving reinforcements. Forty vessels, great and small, arrived a few days ago. The number of our forces in Jersey, I am not able to inform you of; they are to consist of at least sixteen thousand when completed. The greater part of the Militia of Pennsylvania Colony are either there or going, who are to stay till the Army is completed. They form a chain from Amboy to Elizabeth-Town Point, where strong works are erected at an amazing expense of labour, chiefly effected by our Militia, before the Pennsylvanians arrived to their assistance. The Jersey Militia, upon the arrival of other forces, returned home to get in their harvest; since which, they are again taking the field.

What works are thrown up at Amboy, Blazing-Star, &c., I am not able to say. I know nothing of any design to attack the King's forces on the Island; it rather seems an attack from them is waited for; and it is said such an attack is soon expected to be made above New-York, near King's Bridge, to which place the ships that went up the river, I hear, are returned. Elizabeth-Town was in great consternation upon General Howe's taking possession of the Island; but at present I believe they are very easy. I formerly informed you that Mrs. Dayton had sent the chief of her goods into Springfield. Many that moved away from Elizabeth-Town have since returned.

You have no doubt been informed by the papers of the flags sent by Lord Howe to General Washington, with letters. He refused to receive them, as they were only directed "To George Washington, &c." You have also, I suppose, seen the printed Narrative of what passed in conversation between General Washington and Colonel Patterson, who came with a flag from Lord Howe. We lately sent a flag to his Lordship to settle an exchange of prisoners. He received the officer with great politeness; manifested a deep concern that he had not arrived before Independency was declared; professed a great regard for America, especially the Massachusetts-Bay, that had so signally honoured his family. He gave General Washington the title of General, and called us The United States. He consented to the exchange of prisoners; proposed immediately to set all his prisoners at liberty, relying upon the honour of the American States to return him an equal number when in their power. By a flag to General Howe an exchange of prisoners was also agreed upon, so far as fell within his department, Canada being, he said, out of it.

An Indian war hath broken out to the southward. The Overhill Cherokees have commenced hostilities in the back part of Carolina, killed thirty or forty in one settlement, and had about one hundred and twenty besieged in a fortress, which it is thought must surrender before succours could arrive. Forces were marching against the Indians. General Clinton's fleet remain inactive below Charlestown since his defeat: his forces sickly. No news from Lord Dunmore since he left Gwin's Island and went up Potomack River.

Last Saturday our gondolas attacked the King's ships near Dobbs's Ferry; they fought about an hour and a half, hulled the men-of-war several times, and were served in the same manner themselves. They lost but four men, several wounded, and, I believe, came off the second best, though the Commander writes that he hopes soon to give the King's ships another drubbing.

This day's post, since I begun this letter, brings accounts of more of the enemy arriving in the Narrows—an addition to what I have mentioned of at least twenty transports. And by the last accounts brought this day, I find our forces in the Jerseys are by no means equal to what I supposed from former information as above mentioned.

I spoke to our President for the commissions you desire may be sent. He tells me you must apply to General Schuyler, who hath got spare commissions, and can supply your regiment. I dare say you have a good regiment, and hear their commendation with pleasure; but had you seen a regiment, that went near two weeks ago to New-York, raised in Maryland, and another paraded this day in the State-House yard, from the Delaware Government, you would have altered your opinion; they were all shirtmen, mostly of an age and size. The two battalions above mentioned were the finest I ever saw.

I lately mentioned to you that a ship belonging to Congress arrived at this town from France, with one thousand stand of arms, ten tons of powder, and blankets; since which, I find she brought thirty or forty tons of lead or more, saltpetre, &c., &c. Several valuable prizes, this day's post advises, were lately brought in to the eastward. We are also informed that the Portuguese have declared war against us by seizing our vessels in their ports.

Our election for Council and Assembly, Sheriffs, &c., comes on next Tuesday in all the Counties of New-Jersey. I now feel the want of you in Elizabeth-Town. I sat down to consider to whom I might venture to write on politicks, and have none that I dare speak plainly to. Had you, or my much esteemed friend Mr. Caldwell, been there, I should have been at no loss. I have none like-minded. I have friends, it is true, but none there now that I dare speak with freedom to. I have written to several, and desire they will not keep my letters secret, so that I hope I shall not be charged with secret practices.

As to my title, I know not yet whether it will be honourable or dishonourable: the issue of the war must settle it. Perhaps our Congress will be exalted on a high gallows. We were truly brought to the case of the three lepers: If we continued in the state we were in, it was evident we must perish; if we declared Independence, we might be saved,—we could but perish. I assure you, sir, I see—I feel, the danger we are in. I am far from exulting in our imaginary happiness; nothing short of the almighty power of God can save us. It is not in our numbers, our union, our valour, I dare trust. I think an interposing Providence hath been evident in all the events that necessarily led us to what we are—I mean independent States; but for what purpose, whether to make us a great empire, or to make our ruin more complete, the issue only can determine.

You and Mr. Caldwell, it seems, diverted yourselves with the power given in his commission. I find it was useful, however; for in his last he informs me of his commanding a garrison.

General Schuyler makes the same complaint as you do for want of cash. His letter came to Congress the same day with yours and Mr. Caldwell's from the German-Flats. Two hundred thousand dollars were immediately sent to the Paymaster-General, being part of five hundred thousand dollars ordered to be sent. The Congress, or rather some of the Members, tell me, that if your regiment is near three months in arrear of pay, it is not a neglect of Congress, but a neglect somewhere else, as they have sent seasonable supplies.

I am glad to hear a person so high in my esteem as Mr. Barber, so honourably spoken of by you. I never doubted but he would do honour to his appointment. He is young, and in the bloom of life, and a large field for promotion is open before him; and I can't help but look upon him as designed in Providence for some important station.

I most gratefully accept your congratulation on account of my appointment. Believe me, my dear friend, I am not in a place of my own choosing. I had much rather take an active part in our own State; I think I could have been more useful to my country there, where I had a sufficient share of influence, and where I could have served my friends much better than here. Besides, I have found my health much interrupted, pent up in a close town, deprived of air and exercise, and excessive heat from the reflection of the sun on the buildings and pavements. Excepting my health, I am as agreeably situated as I could expect. Dr. Witherspoon, Mr. Hart, and myself, quarter together, and endeavour to make our lives as agreeable as possible.

What you say respecting your regiment returning in the fall, will be attended to in a proper time.

Remember, sir, (what I frequently mention,) that when I write to you or Mr. Caldwell, I mean always to address you both; but, with regard to your families, I can say no more than that I have not heard of their being unwell.

I am, my dear friend, your sincere and humble servant,
ABRAM CLARK.

P. S. You'll please to accept this on plain paper; our dignity don't afford gilt, and our pay scarcely any. Richard Lawrence, on Staten-Island, is Colonel of a regiment under the Crown, and commands the forces there, joined with some Regulars.

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, August 6, 1776.

In consequence of a request of this Board to the Committees of Inspection and Observation of the different Counties, to appoint suitable persons to hear the complaints of the families of those Associators that have gone to camp, and to supply them with such necessaries as they may stand in need of, the Committee of Inspection and Observation of this City and Liberties have recommended the following gentlemen for that purpose, viz:

- For the First Battalion: Isaac Coates, William Moulder, Jacob Schreiner.
- For the Second Battalion: Moses Bartram, Gasper Guyer, Ephraim Bonham.
- For the Third Battalion: George Meade, Richard Dennis, Robert Bailly.
- For the Fourth Battalion: George Græme, Frederick Dushon, Peter Knight.
- For the Fifth Battalion: John Hart, John Tittamary, William Drury.

Resolved, therefore, That they be and are hereby appointed accordingly.

Extract from the Minutes:

JACOB S. HOWELL, Secretary.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE.

In Committee Chamber, Philadelphia, August 6, 1776.

Resolved unanimously, That the following Resolve of the Provincial Conference be published in all the Newspapers in English and German.

“In Provincial Conference, June 25.

“Resolved, That it be recommended to every County and District Committee in this Province, to pay the strictest attention to the examination of all strangers or persons travelling through the City or Counties, and permit no persons travelling through the City or Counties to remain therein, unless they produce a pass or certificate from the City, County, or District Committee from whence they last came; and it is further recommended to all Committees, to furnish proper passes to all friends to American liberty upon their application therefor.”

SAMUEL MIFFLIN, Colonel of Artillery.

Amboy, August 6, 1776.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM GEN. HOWE TO LORD GEORGE GERMAINE, DATED HEAD-QUARTERS, STATEN-ISLAND, AUGUST 6, 1776.

Judging your Lordship will be anxious for information, and having two packets on this side, I despatch the Sandwich, without waiting for further tidings of Commodore Hotham and the part of his fleet not yet arrived, but which, from late reports, may with reason be hourly expected.

The troops that have arrived to this day are expressed in my returns to the Secretary at War and Adjutant-General, whereby your Lordship will observe that we are in force sufficient to enter upon offensive operations; but I am detained by the want of camp-equipage, particularly kettles and canteens, so essential in the field, and without which too much is to be apprehended on the score of health, at a time when sickness among the British troops was never more to be dreaded, from a due consideration of their importance in the prosecution of this distant war, and esteeming the Army present as the stock upon which the national force in America must in future be grafted. However, if the camp-equipage should not arrive with Commodore Hotham, we must use every means to provide against those wants, and the Army will immediately begin to act.

Your Lordship's despatches of the 3d, 12th, and 13th of May, with the duplicates of others since the 22d October, 1775, were received by the Sandwich packet, on the 27th, and by Lord Hyde on the 29th July. His Majesty's most gracious approbation of my withdrawing the troops from Boston, under the circumstances, as described in my despatch of 21st of March, and the flattering terms wherein it was conveyed by your Lordship, does me the highest honour.

Having communicated my reasons, in a former letter, for ordering the Guards and Hessians to this post, previous to any attempts upon Rhode-Island, I am since confirmed in the propriety of such measure, by finding, as I expected, the principal force of the Rebels assembled at New-York, from whence to dislodge them, it will require our collected strength, before any other operation can take place. In this I shall now be most essentially assisted by Lieutenant-General Clinton and Lord Cornwallis, who arrived here from South-Carolina on the 1st instant. The Southern transactions have been sent to your Lordship by General Clinton; and duplicates of his letters going by this opportunity, I need not touch upon that subject.

The Phenix, of forty guns, and the Rose, of twenty, passed the enemy's batteries up the North River, on the 12th of July, in mid-day. We have not received any direct intelligence from them since they went upon this service, but by private means I learn they did not suffer the least damage from the enemy's batteries, and that they were in safety, at the upper end of the Tappan Sea, a few days past.

The Commander-in-Chief of the Rebel Armies sent me the enclosed letter and narrative of some past transactions in Canada, which I thought proper to answer in general terms, directed "To George Washington, Esq., &c., &c.," as the most unexceptionable mode of address. The officer sent to meet the flag would not receive my letter, as it did not express his general titles; in consequence of which, I sent Lieutenant-Colonel Patterson, Adjutant-General, a few days afterwards, to remonstrate upon this, and other circumstances, relative to the usage of General Prescott and several officers in the enemy's possession, and to mention an exchange of prisoners. This interview was more polite than interesting; however, it induced me to change my superscription for the attainment of an end so desirable; and in this view, I flatter myself it will not be disapproved. The letters, though unimportant, are all enclosed for your Lordship's satisfaction.

The report concerning the Seventy-First Regiment, as mentioned in my last, proves to be true by later accounts, directly from Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell, who is a prisoner at Boston, and it is confirmed that Major Menzies was killed in the action. This unfortunate accident makes a considerable addition to their number of prisoners, and increases my anxiety for their relief; for which end I shall use every means in my power to improve and avail myself of this agreement for the exchange of prisoners.

Major Rogers, having escaped to us from Philadelphia, is empowered to raise a battalion of Rangers, which, I hope, may be useful in the course of the campaign.

It is with much satisfaction I am to inform your Lordship that the troops which came with me, and those since arrived, are in perfect good health.

COLONEL DRAKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp at Greenwich, New-York, August 6, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: It is with reluctance we presume to approach your Excellency with complaints, at this critical period; nevertheless, our duty to the men under our care and command compels us to that measure. We observe with much concern the order of yesterday for the march of our Brigade into the city; but we have much reason to believe that misinformation, as well as misrepresentations made to your Excellency, have occasioned that order; which order (if consistent with the good of the service) we would wish to have suspended—at the same time we assure your Excellency that we always mean to obey your orders with cheerfulness—from a tender regard to the health of the troops under our command, and the inconvenience it will subject them to, by being again crowded into houses in town, which we are sensible has been very prejudicial to their health. Your Excellency must be sensible that when we marched to this encampment we found it in exceeding bad order, but, by the industry of the men, they have now provided comfortable quarters for the season; are satisfied with their situation, and the sick are daily turning out from the Hospital, for duty. However, as they have entirely devoted themselves to the cause of their country, they are resolved to submit, unless your Excellency shall think proper to suspend the order with regard to the two regiments, (which are entirely composed of people from the country,) if it be consistent, that we may be continued on the ground, and our places supplied by some other regiments, now in quarters in town; which we shall ever esteem a favour conferred on your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servants, (in behalf of the officers,)

SAML. DRAKE, Colonel.

JOHN. HARDENBURGH, Lt. Col.

COLONEL DRAKE TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

New-Rochelle, August 6, 1776.

SIR: When I some time ago delivered in to General Morris a resignation of my military appointment, I had not time to commit to writing my reasons for so doing, and therefore beg leave now to offer them.

On the 19th ultimo I received General Morris's orders to call together the regiment under my command, in order to draught one-fourth of the men for immediate service. The General at the same time requested me to meet him at the White-Plains, previous to the calling together the regiment. I accordingly waited on him at the Plains, and was much surprised to find that I was not to have the command of the new levies, (which, as first Colonel I considered my right,) but that the command was given to the second Colonel in the County. I expressed to the General my disinclination to continue in the service, as I considered myself aggrieved by such a preference given to my inferior officer. But he, notwithstanding, prevailed on me to call out and meet the regiment for the aforesaid purpose, which I accordingly did, and solicited the officers to turn out voluntarily in order to encourage the private men; but they excused themselves unless they were commanded by me. I told them the command was already given to the second Colonel. To him they particularly objected, and positively refused going.

After this, I informed the General of the steps I had taken, and the result, and told him, that should I a second time be ordered to call out the regiment for the purpose of draughting, I had so little prospect of success that I begged leave to resign my commission. Upon this declaration, the General signified to me that he would procure an order of the Convention to leave my regiment as it was at present, but that they should be held in readiness to march at the shortest notice on an emergency. With this I was well satisfied. But on the 31st of last month I again received orders to call them out, for the purpose of raising every fourth man to go under the command of Colonel Thomas, whereupon I took the liberty to deliver up my commission.

I hope the above reasons will prove satisfactory to you, and dare say you will do me the justice to believe that I had no other motive for resigning.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most humble servant,

JOSEPH DRAKE.

To the Hon. Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq.

GENERAL MIFFLIN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Mount Washington, August 6, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: Agreeable to your order by Colonel Reed's letter, I have directed Colonel Holden to march with his three companies, this evening, to King's Bridge.

I shall, in consequence of that order, be under the necessity of totally neglecting the Point battery until men are sent up to work on it; our two battalions being employed in raising part of our parapet, covering the large magazine, cutting and forming the abatis, digging wells, &c. That magazine will be prepared to receive the powder this evening. The magazine within the fort will be completed in two days. We have so many sick and on guard, that I have been obliged to give up the outworks for the present.

As I had no orders respecting the chevaux-de-frise, and as the artists appeared willing to take their own way, I did not presume to interfere. In future I will watch and direct their movements. But as Colonel Putnam is absent with the soundings, and as the vessels are sent up without persons who are acquainted with the depth of water for which they were calculated, I shall be at a loss to sink them. The sloops which came up this morning being small, must, in my opinion, be sunk to the westward of the brigs. If Colonel Putnam had another destination for them, I beg to be favoured with directions where to place them.

In future it will be best to send up single vessels, it being the most abstruse problem in hydraulics to determine of what size the several ports or holes should be in vessels of different tonnage and construction, in order to their sinking at the same time. If one sinks before the other, we risk as yesterday. I believe that vessels above ninety tons, without frise-work, will answer very well. No ship will attempt to pass over them, even if they were eighteen feet below the surface. If five or six vessels of one hundred tons each could be sent up, I shall apprehend no danger of the ships of war passing them. It will be the most expeditious and most frugal scheme.

The Colossus is now at anchor a little to the westward of her post. The buoy fixed by Colonel Putnam appears to be too distant from the shore; possibly it may have been carried there by the wind and current. She shall be removed this night if possible, the brigs this afternoon.

The enemy may probably attempt to weigh some of the vessels; it will therefore be necessary to fix some guns on the battery. If I can obtain no heavy, I will send down our four twelve-pounders and the howitzer, and fight them en barbette.

I am, with zeal and attachment, your Excellency's obedient servant,

THO. MIFFLIN.

To His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. Detachments do us no service—I cannot manage them. Those sent up formerly I was obliged to chase from tree to tree to prevent their lounging.

COLONEL THOMAS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Tarrytown, August 6, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: From the situation of the men-of-war and tenders, now opposite this place in Hudson's River, think it my duty, as commanding officer here, to inform your Excellency of the advantageous situation of the ground here for placing some cannon to play upon the shipping whilst attacked by our galleys. The cannon may be placed upon an eminence within near half a mile of the shipping; and if your Excellency should think the above plan expedient, an Engineer might be necessary to form a breastwork for three or four pieces of cannon, which I beg your Excellency in that case will order up, with the necessary apparatus and intrenching tools. I conceive shall be able to collect a sufficient number of men, with those already under my command here, to throw up a breastwork in a very short time in an evening after planned by an Engineer.

Should your Excellency think this advisable, it may be necessary to order the Commodore of the galleys to postpone an attack upon the shipping until a proper breastwork is thrown up, in case his orders should oblige an attack sooner. I don't pretend to dictate to your Excellency, but only take the liberty of stating the above for your Excellency's consideration, with which I would wish your Excellency's indulgence.

Captain Townsend, who brings this, will be able to inform you of the true state of the ground, from a view thereof.

I shall wait orders; and am your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

THOMAS THOMAS.

ULSTER COUNTY COMMITTEE TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

In Committee for the County of Ulster, }
New-Paltz, August 6, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: This day Mr. Colden made application to the Committee for his enlargement. The Committee, out of compassion to his son, Cadwalader, (who appears to be a decent young man,) consented to liberate him to the bounds of his own farm, on his giving sureties and obligation for £2,000 that he would not depart the same until he received full liberty from the honourable Convention of this State. This being done, he desired a copy of the Minutes of this Committee the time he was committed. The Committee, thinking they were under no obligations to gratify Mr. Colden in this particular, informed him they would transmit a copy of them to the honourable Convention, which would answer the necessary purpose for him, which, gentlemen, this Committee gives you preceding this, and beg leave to inform the honourable Convention of the motives that influenced their conduct toward Mr. Colden, which he so loudly complains of as arbitrary and cruel.

Some of the members of the Newburgh and New-Windsor Committees being present at the time Mr. Colden was tried and committed, did then inform this Committee that the reasons why they took notice of Mr. Colden (he being some distance without the bounds of their districts, although more contiguous to them than he is to the greater part of the Precinct where he lives) were that the times grew very alarming; Tories were extremely impudent; a most infernal plot just discovered in New-York, which was supposed to extend to most parts of the Province; several persons in this country strongly suspected as being concerned therein, and some of them sent for to New-York. They further knew that orders had been issued by this Committee to every Precinct Committee in this County for disarming all suspected persons, of whom they freely thought Mr. Colden one. After waiting some time, they perceived that the Committee of the Precinct of Hanover, in which Mr. Colden lives, took no notice of him, agreeable to the aforesaid order; from which they were induced to believe the common report to be too true, i. e. that the Committee of the Precinct of Hanover were afraid to treat Mr. Colden as he deserved, for there was a general report in the country, which they believed could be fully proved, that, after Mr. Colden had signed the General Association, he broke the same, by either giving or selling a book or books to a certain person in this County, which contained poisonous doctrines, directly opposite to the efforts which the United Colonies are making for the preservation of their invaded rights. This the aforesaid Committee passed over without doing anything material in it. They, considering these things, concluded themselves under obligations to act for the publick safety, being equally concerned in the consequences with their neighbours, whom they could not avoid thinking rather remiss in their duty in this particular, because nothing could be inferred or learned from Mr. Colden's whole conduct that would serve for a sufficient reason why he might not be engaged in plots and conspiracies against the liberties of his country; for although Mr. Colden did sign the General Association, it is evident he only meant it as a sanctuary for his person and property, never having acted in the smallest degree agreeable to the spirit of it, or in his heart bid it God speed. A few considerations will clearly demonstrate the truth of this. At the very juncture of time the Association made its appearance Mr. Colden was intently engaged in procuring subscribers to his favourite Protest, (a copy of which we here enclose the honourable Convention for their perusal,) which he alludes to in his letter directed to the Joint Committees of Ulster County, where he says: "I said that I had made no secret of my principles and opinions on these matters, while I thought they might in the least contribute to ward off those calamities I foresaw must attend the publick measures then adopted, and which is now too unhappily come to pass. That when I found I could do no good in that way, I had entirely avoided interfering in any shape in publick affairs." And nothing appears as yet, either from Mr. Colden's actions, words, or writing, by which it can be fairly construed that his political principles are one jot altered from what is expressed in the Protest, so that it will not require a spirit of divination to disclose the principle on which Mr. Colden signed the Association. These gentlemen further informed this Committee that they considered this Protest as the evil seed sown in this County, from which the whole of the fruits of Toryism sprung; for, to their knowledge, upwards of sixty persons in the Precinct of Newburgh had subscribed it, numbers of whom indeed were rather to be ranked among the lower class of mankind, but appeared to be possessed of more common honesty than Mr. Colden, for, after they had signed the Protest, they stoutly defended their conduct, by refusing to sign the Association; which caused great expense and trouble to the good people of this County, every shilling of which is justly chargeable to Mr. Colden's account, who retracted and left them in the lurch. Further, they conceived that the end and design of the Association was not to be a state of neutrality, (Mr. Colden freely confesses he had observed,) but a firm bond of union for mutual defence, which required activity; also an obligation to obey the rules and resolutions of the Congresses. How far Mr. Colden hath obeyed relative to the disposition of the Militia is easily known, by the enclosed depositions of Messrs. Pal- mer and Logan, one broken gun in his house, which, (to use his own words,) "in these times, he did not think worth while to have it mended."

It would be trespassing on the time and patience of this honourable Convention to enumerate every minute circumstance relative to this man's conduct. Therefore, will only add, that, after considering the reasons given by the gentlemen of the Newburgh and New-Windsor Committees for dealing with Mr. Colden, this Committee was of opinion they did no more than what was right at this critical period. Also, that Mr. Colden appeared (all things considered) to be a person dangerous to the welfare of the United States of America, at this alarming crisis; therefore committed him to jail, and have since given him the privilege of his own farm, as before recited, until fully discharged by the honourable Convention of this State.

We have the honour, gentlemen, to be, with the highest esteem, your most obedient, humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

ROBERT BOYD, Jun., Chairman.

To the Honourable the Representatives in Convention of the State of New-York.

P. S. The honourable Convention will please to note the great difference between Mr. Colden's representation of matters and the Minutes of the Committee. Also this Committee would inform the honourable Convention of the motive that induced them to propose the addition Mr. Colden so much complains of, although no more in fact than what is contained in the Association. Mr. Colden being upwards of fifty years old, of course an exempt by the Militia laws, and found destitute of arms, the Committee was of opinion Mr. Colden should be somewhat explicit on that particular.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

German-Flats, August 6, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your Excellency's favour of the 31st of July I had the pleasure to receive this morning.

I am well aware that every person in the Commissary-General's department should strictly abide by and obey his orders; and that more than one head to any department must be introductory to confusion. This sentiment I have strongly held up to Congress in some of my letters in the course of last campaign; and as soon as Mr. Trumbull arrived in the Northern Department, I conceived that he became the principal of the Commissary Department, and have accordingly always directed Mr. Livingston to obey his orders, in terms which, I trust, will do me honour as a soldier and a citizen, whose first wish is the weal of the cause he is engaged in. Nor do I know of an instance in which Mr. Trumbull's appointments have not been regarded. The case of Mr. Avery is surely not one; he was particularly appointed for Canada, soon after that country was put into a separate military department, and his appointment, therefore, did no more extend to this department than it did to South-Carolina. But as the Army was returned from Canada, and as more Commissaries were wanted than what were then employed, I made a temporary appointment of Mr. Avery to superintend the issues, for which business he was designed in Canada, as your Excellency will perceive by calling for the orders Mr. Trumbull gave him.

Our emissaries amongst the Indians all agree that it would be extremely imprudent to request the Indians to take an active part with us, as they think it would effectually militate the contrary way. The conferences begin to-morrow. From their answer to our first speech, we shall, I hope, be able to discover their temper and intentions; and should we have a prospect of engaging them in our favour, we will improve it in the best manner we can. Their number now here, including their women and children, is seventeen hundred and eighteen.

As your Excellency conceives it will be proper, and even necessary, to request General Burgoyne to deliver the officers who have slighted their paroles, and are now with him, I will write to General Gates, and desire him to send a flag for the purpose.

I have sent to Salisbury Furnace to get swivels cast for the Navy. The difficulty of procuring the articles necessary for the Navy are almost insuperable; persons are gone express to every quarter of the country, and some as far as

New-London, to purchase whatever can be got, but I still fear we shall fall short in many articles.

In mine of the 24th, I pointed out the situation of Crown-Point, with respect to the distance from the southern and northern extremes of the Lake. It is evident that it cannot command an inch of country north of the fort further than cannon-shot will reach; and that if a General has a mind to land an army on any part of the banks of Lake Champlain north of Crown-Point, nothing but a superior naval force can prevent him—perhaps not even that. If, then, an attempt was made to penetrate into the New-England Colonies from any place between two miles beyond Crown-Point and the north end of the Lake, what will be the difference in bringing our Army to oppose them? Why, fifteen miles, and no more, by land or by water, as we may choose to go; but I really have no idea of the possibility of an Army penetrating into the well-inhabited part of any of the New-England Colonies. If I commanded an army at Crown-Point, and was certain that, by removing it from thence, the enemy would undertake to march across the Green Mountains (for that is the only route when they are not suffered to go by the way of Ticonderoga) into the New-England Colonies, I would immediately remove the obstacle; nor would I attempt to follow them until they had got at least twenty-five miles from the Lake—conscious that if, indeed, they were not followed at all, and a body of light troops only sent to harass them on their arrival in the Green Mountains, very few would ever return, and none penetrate. General Arnold, with all his activity, with picked men, with a small body, suffered greatly before he got a hundred miles from his batteaus. What would an army, so numerous as to be capable of effecting anything of consequence if they did penetrate, suffer in such a march, and through mountains hardly passable for a carriage with the best of drivers and a good team? How an army at Crown-Point could prevent savages from penetrating into the country east of Lake Champlain, I cannot possibly conceive. Can an army at New-York prevent a man going into a batteau at New-London, crossing the Sound to the east end of Long-Island, or to any other part of it between New-York and the east end, landing there, crossing the Island, and committing a depredation on the south side? Surely not; and yet the case is nearly similar, and would be quite so, if the north side of Long-Island was as thinly inhabited as the east shore of Lake Champlain.

Enclose you an extract of a letter dated the 4th instant, from Captain Varick, my Secretary at Albany. You will perceive what difficulties we have to encounter for want of money. I can easily foresee, that unless a supply is soon sent, it will be impossible to keep the Army where it is; for without carriages, it cannot be supplied, and your Excellency is informed how many are daily wanted for provisions only, when a full number of batteaus are employed, and carriages can no longer be procured without money.

Since your Excellency's arrival in New-York, I have not written to Congress on military affairs, otherwise than in answer to letters received from them, (in some of these, I have urged the necessity of a supply of cash,) supposing that whatever information I might give, and which might be necessary for Congress to know, would be, as I doubt not it has been, communicated to them.

I am informed that a Council of Officers, convened at New-York, (whether of their own accord or by your Excellency's order I am not advised,) had decided that the Council of General Officers lately held at Crown-Point had acted reprehensibly. In justice to myself and the other General Officers who composed that Council, I cannot pass by this extraordinary mode of proceeding without animadverting on it; for although I should grant that every officer that composed the Council at New-York had the most perfect knowledge of the country, that they were separately endowed with abilities vastly superior to those of the Generals in this quarter taken in the aggregate, yet to assume a power of censuring us, even if we were their inferiors in rank, if convened as a court-martial, for the purpose of trying us, without hearing what we could say in support of our decision, is so injurious, so unjust, so extra-judicial, that I have not the least doubt but that every man of candour will join us in deprecating the outrage. For although every individual in the community has a right to give his opinion on the conduct of the servants of the publick, and although a superior officer has a right, nay, ought to direct a change of measures when he believes those adopted will be attended with dangerous consequences, and although a council may give their opinion on the propriety or impropriety of a measure referred to them for consideration, yet the superior officer, in directing a change of measures, or a council in deciding that a measure was improper, ought not to convey an idea which supposes guilt until guilt is proved, and not even then, unless they had been constituted a tribunal for the purpose of deciding on the guilt or innocence of the party to be tried, and that the party supposed guilty had had an opportunity given him of being heard in his own defence. This we have not had, and yet our conduct is said to be reprehensible. I feel myself so deeply chagrined at this conduct, that if my information is true, (which your Excellency can determine, and which I entreat you to do the soonest possible,) I cannot, consistent with my honour, remain in the Army, unless the Council at New-York are censured for the assertion by Congress or by your Excellency, or unless, conscious of the impropriety of their conduct towards us, they make a candid and full acknowledgment thereof. And permit me to beg you to lay a copy of this letter, with copy of mine of the 24th, before Congress, that they may see on what I founded my opinion for the removal of the Army to Ticonderoga, and what idea I have of the injury the General Officers who composed the Council at Crown-Point have sustained.

The account of General Lee's success reached us a few days ago, as also that of the captures to the eastward. May we soon hear that the enemy meets with other checks so decisive as to cause them to forbear any further attempts this campaign. It has several times been reported by the Indians, that part of Burgoyne's Army, joined by a body of Indians, will attempt to penetrate by the way of Oswego. Should this information be true, as I believe it to be, a greater force will be necessary in this quarter. I think it will be prudent to post Colonel Nicolson's regiment, which consists, by his own account, of about one hundred and fifty privates, on some part of the Mohawk River; but if time will permit, I shall wait your Excellency's order before I make this movement.

I am, dear sir, most respectfully, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To His Excellency General Washington, &c., &c.

Extract of a Letter from Captain VARICK to General SCHUYLER, dated ALBANY, August 4, 1776.

The wagoners will not ride, unless they can have prompt payment. It is shameful that publick officers are obliged to give their notes for money on interest to carry on the service. A number of wagoners had come down to this place this morning to carry sutlers' stores. I applied to Colonel Van Schaick for his order to prohibit sutlers' stores going up without his pass, which I begged him not to give. But the wagoners would sooner return home than ride for the publick. They say the publick is largely indebted to them, and they can get no money.

GENERAL WATERBURY TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, August 6, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: We have sent off so many gondolas, and there are none of the oars returned, that we are left almost destitute; and we shall be very much troubled to furnish the boats to forward the troops as they shall arrive; and should be glad your Honour would order some by the return of this boat.

I herewith send your Honour a few pounds of butter, which is all I could procure at present.

I should be glad to be informed whether I am to forward the Hampshire troops to Ticonderoga, or employ them here to the best advantage. A considerable number arrived last evening, but have not had their returns yet. Our galleys go on extremely fast, but fear we shall have to wait for iron and other articles.

I am, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

DAVID WATERBURY, Jun.

GENERAL GATES TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Tyonderoga, August 6, 1776.

SIR: In this packet, I have the honour to send you the proceedings of the General Court-Martial, held for the trial of Colonel Bedel and Major Butterfield. Immediately upon the President's delivering the proceedings into my hands, I ordered the sentences to be inserted in the General Orders, and hope the disgraceful example made of the offenders will deter others from committing so flagrant a crime. Perhaps a little more severity in the Court-Martial would have effected this in a stronger manner; but severity is not the characteristic of our military courts, any more than it is of our military law.

I have at last been able to send you something like a general return of this Army. It is also accompanied by the particular return of each corps. These, though as correct as our present circumstances will admit, are not so exactly so as I wish to have them, nor as I am resolved in future to have them; but time works wonders. General Waterbury's return from Skenesborough is also in the packet. I am daily informed of the Militia that crowd the roads, coming from the eastward. When I have a proper authority to say they are arrived, then I shall immediately declare it. You will likewise find in the packet a pretty correct return of the ordnance and military stores at this post. As, for want of store-room, we are obliged to place things much confounded, and stores for different purposes and services too much intermixed, it renders it impossible, as yet, to give Congress so distinct an idea of the ordnance branch as I am earnest they should know.

Some proper officer ought, without delay, to go and take an exact account of all the New-York regiments. I am confident, when that affair is properly examined, they will be found scandalously deficient. Regiments should not, without the most urgent necessity, be scattered and broken in bits, as some of those are. The service of the United States demands it, only in a few instances. When that is unavoidably the case, the duty should be done by detachment. As far as I can command it, the error shall be corrected.

Enclosed, you will find a list of the fleet upon the Lake, I mean what is actually equipped and sailed for Crown-Point. I hope it will soon be powerfully increased. Four row-galleys and as many gondolas will, I am assured, be added to it in a fortnight. Cannon, rigging, and powder, are, as things stand, more likely to be in request than the vessels to be armed; but General Schuyler wrote long since to New-York, to demand what was wanted, and sent a particular account of the whole. Perhaps it is so busy a time there, it prevents our affairs being attended to. Messrs. Cuyler and Gansevoort have been here some days, deputed by the Congress of the State of New-York to examine our real circumstances, and know our wants. They are fully informed of both; and, no doubt, what that Congress cannot supply, yours will be loudly called upon to furnish.

The whole of the field artillery, with all the attirail, being lost in Canada, it is necessary it should be replaced in the best manner possible. Six six-pounders, six twelve, four eight-inch howitzers, and six cohorn mortars, all brass, should be provided for the Army in this department. Shells for the mortars may be had here and at New-York. There are eight-inch shells here sufficient for the howitzers of that caliber. This Army cannot advance again into Canada without a field train; and I hope our good fortune will one day return. An army should in no circumstance be left without field artillery. When you order the above to be provided, carriages, and everything to complete them, must be provided also.

In a week, our fleet will, I am told, be in a condition to make sail down the Lake. General Arnold proposes to post them so as to command some narrow pass, opening into a broad part of the Lake, either near the Split Rock, or Isle-au-Motte; but of this you will, in time, be particularly informed.

Brigadier-General Baron de Woedtke died at Lake George the beginning of last week. He was buried with the honours due to his rank.

Enclosed is the examination of two Canadians, Captains in Colonel Livingston's regiment, sent here by the Committee of Safety of Newbury, (Cohos.) It may be true; the men seem sincere, and are well known to many officers in this camp. I shall send immediately for the four German deserters at Metcalf's.

The flag of truce sent from hence fourteen days ago by Major Bigelow, has not yet returned. As the reason for his delay can only be founded upon conjecture, I leave the Congress to make theirs.

The Militia begin to come up. This moment, about six hundred are arrived from New-Hampshire. I am told a large body will be at Skenesborough this week. Colonel Woodbridge, Lieutenant-Colonel Leonard, and Major Stacy, all from the County of Hampshire, in Massachusetts, left their regiment upon the march, and went home to be inoculated. An example so shameful in officers of their rank must be taken notice of. I shall bring them to a Court-Martial the instant they arrive in camp.

I have added to the packet a plan of the very important post at present occupied by this Army. The works are laid down in it so as to give Congress a general idea of the situation of this Army.

Our fleet flourishes amazingly; and by letters this moment received from General Schuyler, I find we shall be very speedily supplied with everything demanded for the rigging, arming, and fitting of the whole for action.

I beg, sir, you will assure Congress, that the utmost harmony prevails between the General Officers in this department, and that unanimity and good fellowship are taking place with the troops of different States. When the upper officers in an army are industrious to promote friendship, and by their example discountenance and discourage all illiberal animosity, there is no danger can happen from foolish dissensions.

With the greatest respect, I request you believe me, dear sir, your much obliged and most faithful humble servant,
HORATIO GATES.

To the Hon. John Hancock.

Extract of a Letter from General WATERBURY, dated SKENESBOROUGH, August 6, 1776.

You desired to know of me the names of those who had been inoculated. They are as follows, viz: Colonel Joshua Wingate, Chaplain Porter and Doctor Wigglesworth. The above gentlemen were inoculated at Number-Four last Saturday se'nnight. Captain Wethersby's company were quartered at Number-Four, and, as I am informed, were to march for this place directly after coming out of the Hospital last Saturday. The names of the three Field-Officers from Massachusetts that were inoculated, I am not able to give.

N. B. The Colonel from Massachusetts is Woodbridge, who served at Cambridge, with so much credit the last campaign.

General Waterbury has sent orders to Captain Wethersbee not to march on any account till he has particular orders.

To Major-General Gates.

SIR: We had the honour to write you a few days ago by one Monsieur Traverse, a Frenchman from the Parish of St. Francois, who came this way for protection and a safe conduct to the Army, whom we forwarded along under the care of Mr. Witherspoon, with a guard of four men, via Onion River; and now trouble you again by the bearers, four Canadian officers of Colonel James Livingston's regiment, as mentioned in Mr. Metcalf's letter they brought us, copy of which you have enclosed, and to which beg to refer for particulars. The purport or true intent of this letter, you will be better able to judge of than we are, being strangers to Mr. Metcalf. We trust the Frenchmen will prove to be honest men, as they appear to us by their story, and hope their information of affairs in Canada may be of publick service. We have accordingly showed them all civility in our power, as we shall any others that may come into our part of the country, friends to the American cause, not doubting of your approbation. And, with great respect, remain, sir, your most obedient, humble servants,

JACOB BAYLEY,
JAMES BAYLEY,

Chairmen of the Committees of Newbury and Haverhill.

To the Hon. General Gates, or the Commander-in-Chief at Crown-Point.

P. S. Names of these Frenchmen, viz: Messrs. Loseant, Allin, Basade, Menarere.

We intrust this letter to the care of Mr. S. Atkinson, who engages to see those men along to Head-Quarters; and as he will return directly here, shall be glad of a few lines for our further direction, should any more Frenchmen come across the country.

Copy of a Letter from Mr. S. METCALF to Colonel JACOB BAYLEY, dated PRATSBURG, July 21, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I am sorry I had not the pleasure of seeing Mr. Witherspoon. I make no doubt but you know or have heard of a set of sad dogs that have settled at Onion River, where I imprudently went to purchase some cows, a pair of oxen, and some seed wheat, during which the news of the Army's leaving St. John's unexpectedly arrived, which put the whole settlement in a violent commotion. They all determined to abandon the settlement immediately, and took me prisoner, and conveyed me to Crown-Point, after robbing me of my cows, oxen, money, boats, &c., &c., together with my people; but as they could prove no crime against me, I was immediately released. But the rascals made off with all my effects to the amount of upwards of two hundred, and what they did with my people, I could never yet learn.

My apprentice, Thomas Thompson, went to York and Philadelphia six weeks ago on my business, and has orders to return by Cohos with a quantity of horned cattle and sheep; and as the boy is a stranger in your country, I hope you will be so kind as to assist him, and forward him on his way. I did imagine you would have been out with the road here before this.

The bearers hereof are four Canadian officers, late of Colonel James Livingston's regiment, who inform me that the forces in Canada are no ways equal to what they were at first reported, and that General Carleton has miscarried in the plan he had laid to make himself master of this Lake, by drawing three vessels, which had been previously built for the purpose, over land, past the Rapids of Chambly, they being entirely broken to pieces in the attempt, and now totally abandoned; so that General Sullivan will undoubtedly remain master of this country for this season at least; he having fortified, with an intrenchment and cannon, Point-au-Fer, on the north end of the Lake, where stands a brick house commonly called the White-House. This is a very advantageous situation, as it commands the navigation towards St. John's, and is formed into a kind of an Island by a deep morass that runs behind it from one bay to the other.

I having no boat to assist these people with who are on their way to Albany, they were constrained to go this road; and as they speak very little English, you had better give them a pass to Albany.

I am desirous of having my boy home, that should you hear of him below, please to write or send him word to return with all possible expedition with the cattle.

I am, dear sir, your friend and obedient humble servant,
S. METCALF.

The following particulars were collected from the verbal examination and the conversation of two Canadian Captains (Captain L'Oiseau and Captain Allain) of Colonel James Livingston's Regiment of Canadians, who, having fled from the neighbourhood of St. John's, arrived on Sunday morning at Tyonderoga, and, after having been examined by Major-General Gates, were sent to Albany.

The enemy did not fortify any of the places we abandoned; but they cut a new road, or repaired the old, from

Isle-aux-Noix to Chambly. They had two thousand Germans at Isle-aux-Noix, under General Frazer; the like number at St. John's, under Governour Carleton; and likewise at Montreal, under the command of a General, whose name the Canadian officers did not know, but we suppose it was Burgoyne. No more than two hundred and fifty men were left at Quebeck. No English national regiment had arrived; but it was reported that four thousand English troops, who were intended as a part of that Army, had perished at sea, or fallen into the hands of the American privateers, which gave inexpressible uneasiness to Governour Carleton. The English fleet brought over from Europe, timber, &c., for no more than fifty boats, which they attempted to transport by land, from the mouth of the river Sorel to St. John's; but the carriages employed on that service having been ruined, Carleton employed Canadians in building others at St. John's, on the plan of our batteaus. That Governour has, very luckily for us, rendered himself odious to the Tory Canadians themselves, by exacting fifty head of cattle from every Parish, for the payment of which his Commissaries or other agents gave to the owners notes payable to the bearer. He exhibited to his Army a diversion which may cost his master very dear, as it awoke the sensibility of the Canadians, without the least necessity. The Militia officers who had served under the Congress were forced to burn their commissions, to the very minutest particle—an operation which, as was expected by the beholders, singed the fingers of such of the criminals who were not very dexterous in disappointing that most humane General. The officers who have accepted commissions in the corps raised under the sanction of the Congress underwent the same punishment; but immediately after this farcical execution, were confined on board men-of-war, to be carried to the West-Indies; and his Excellency confiscated the estates of all the Canadians who followed our Army, or who remain concealed in the country. The Indians have refused to fight against the United States.

Great numbers of the Germans desert daily, and are very zealously secreted by the inhabitants. Seventy Brunswickers made off together, four of whom are at Mr. Metcalf's, about twenty miles this side of St. John's. Their officers are so afraid of bushfight and ambushes, that they durst not head any party to pursue the runaways; but then, the common soldiers being checked by the same fears, deserters were but few to what it might have been, could our fleet have cruised on the Lake, and afforded them protection.

Between the 22d and 24th ultimo, Carleton and the other Generals abandoned all their posts on this side of the river Sorel, St. John's excepted, with the same precipitation that we did. They carried with them their artillery and provisions, without paying the inhabitants for the last article. It was reported that this unexpected motion was occasioned by the arrival and mysterious manœuvres of a fleet at Quebeck, supposed to consist of French ships, which now and then puzzled the garrison, by hoisting different flags, and fired at tenders sent from the town to know who were those guests. Two hundred men have been left at the Isle-aux-Noix, to send early intelligence of our operations; and if we return to Canada, which all the inhabitants seem to wish most devoutly, that garrison will immediately proceed down the river. The Canadian officers who delivered this intelligence last Sunday, the 4th instant, are men of good characters, and well known to several of our principal officers. They likewise say, that some time ago, Carleton, having heard that we were returning with a considerable reinforcement, was so terrified, that he would immediately have retired, had he not been informed by his spies of the deplorable condition to which the small-pox had reduced our Army. The names of the two Canadian Captains are Allain and L'Oiseau, who, with Captain Mesnard of the same regiment, fled from those parts at the same time. Captain Mesnard is hourly expected to arrive at this camp, where he is held in great estimation.

August 7, 1776.—Captain Mesnard arrived yesterday. Says he left Chambly the 14th ultimo, and, on the evening of that day, met with L'Oiseau and Allain, who told him they had left their homes about eight days before, and, as they were retiring from Canada, proposed to travel in company to the American Army, which was unanimously consented to. Captain Mesnard says there were about four thousand men at Chambly, St. John's, and on the Sorel, all English; and that the Germans were quartered at La Prairie and Montreal, one of whom had deserted, and was harboured in a house near the place, where he (Mesnard) met L'Oiseau. Told him that sixty of his comrades had deserted together on the same day. That deserter proceeded with them as far as Mr. Metcalf's, where they left him, he being over-fatigued. There was no other deserter at Metcalf's. The English Generals ordered artillery to be transported to and from St. John's, Chambly, &c. Mesnard confirms what L'Oiseau says respecting the commissions given to the Canadians under the authority of the Congress, and every other particular which is not contradicted by this examination of Mesnard, and therefore now omitted.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head Quarters, July 30, 1776.

(Parole, Winchester.)

(Countersign, Coventry.)

The General is exceedingly astonished and concerned to find such a supineness and indolence prevailing in the three Brigades stationed upon Mount Independence, as if it was a time of profound peace, and no enemy to contend with. He is therefore obliged to represent to Brigadier-General Arnold, to the Colonels commanding Brigades, and to every Commanding Officer of a Regiment belonging to those Brigades, how necessary it is, in the present emergency, for them, by their authority and example, to inspire all under them with a spirit of emulation in forwarding the works, clearing the ground, and preparing to receive the enemy. The Troops upon the Mount should be convinced, by their last year's campaign at Cambridge, of the utility of good works. The General trusts they will lose no time in raising them. Colonel Baldwin will this day acquaint the Commanding Officer of each Brigade with the work expected to be done by that Brigade; and the General is confident a spirit of emulation will animate each Brigade to finish the task assigned them.

The Commissary having just received a supply of 1,008 pairs of shoes, 177 pairs of moccasins, and 454 shirts, they are ready to be delivered to the order of the Commanding Officers of Corps, in the following proportion, they being exactly calculated according to the number fit for duty reckoned by each Corps:

	Shoes.	Moc.	Shirts.	Shoes.	Moc.	Shirts.

Udney Hay, Esq., is appointed Assistant Deputy Quartermaster-General, and is to be obeyed as such.

A mistake was made in the return of the articles of clothing ordered to be delivered this morning to the Troops. The number of shirts being 1,008, and the shoes 454, the Commanding Officers will draw accordingly.

The fatigue parties for the future are to begin work at six o'clock, and have their breakfast before they begin. They will be dismissed at twelve o'clock for dinner till one; then to work till seven.

Head-Quarters, July 31, 1776.

(Parole, St. Domingo.)

(Countersign, Berlin.)

Fishing in batteaus being prejudicial to the men's health, to the service, and to the batteaus, it is positively prohibited. The Batteaumaster will order those batteaus which are not wanted for immediate service to be drawn up and put in proper repair. Two batteaus are to be delivered to the order of the Commanding Officer of each Regiment for the use of each Regiment. He is to be answerable for them. The rest of the batteaus are immediately to be collected and placed under the care of the Batteau-Guard; and the Batteumaster is positively forbidden to part with any batteaus from the Landing, without a signed order from Head-Quarters.

Colonel St. Clair, Colonel Wayne, and Mr. Avery, the Deputy Commissary-General, to sit this afternoon, at four o'clock, as a Court of Inquiry, to examine into certain demands made upon the United States by Mr. Gilliland and Major Udney Hay, A. D. Q. M. G. They will certify such as they think just and reasonable, that the demands of the claimants may be settled and adjusted.

Lieutenant William Augustus Patterson, of Colonel Patterson's Regiment, is appointed an Assistant Engineer to Colonel Baldwin, and is to be obeyed as such.

Head-Quarters, August 1, 1776.

(Parole, Lee.)

(Countersign, Carolina.)

Two men from each Regiment, who understand making small-arm cartridges, to be sent to Head-Quarters to-morrow morning, at seven o'clock.

The Regiments of the Fourth Brigade are to apply immediately at Head-Quarters for an order on the Conductor of Stores for the cartridges wanted to complete them.

At a late General Court-Martial, of which Colonel Poor was President, a charge was exhibited against Colonel Bedel "for quitting his post at the Cedars," in May last. The Court, after having examined and maturely considered the evidences and the defence, do find Colonel Bedel guilty, and sentence him to be cashiered.

Major Butterfield tried at the same General Court-Martial for surrendering the post at the Cedars, in May last, is found guilty, and sentenced to be cashiered, and incapacitated forever hereafter to hold a commission in the Army of the United States.

The General approves the above proceedings of the General Court-Martial, and orders the sentences to take place immediately.

Whenever a Regiment receives new ammunition, they are to deliver in their old and damaged cartridges to the Conductor.

Mr. Bedel and Mr. Butterfield are immediately to adjust and discharge whatever accounts they may have open with the Regiment to which they lately belonged; after which, they are directly to depart the camp.

Head-Quarters, August 2, 1776.

(Parole, Amboy.)

(Countersign, Mercer.)

The Majors of Brigades will take care that the Weekly Returns of the Regiments are given in, seasonably and correct, to-morrow. Blanks may be had at the Deputy Adjutant-General's. The Colonels and Commanding Officers are desired to note, at the foot of their Returns, the time to which their corps are raised, and from what Colony.

Head-Quarters, August 3, 1776.

(Parole, Bath.)

(Countersign, Paris.)

The Commissary to issue sixteen pounds of soap to every hundred men in this camp; for the next week afterwards, he is to issue the usual Continental allowance. Until further orders, he is to issue six days' fresh and one day's salt provisions every week.

The following promotions are ordered to take place in the Twenty-Fourth Regiment, commanded by Colonel Greaton, viz:

Isaiah Bussey, First Lieutenant, vice Lieutenant Paine, deceased.

Benjamin Talbott, Second Lieutenant, vice Adjutant Rice, promoted.

William Kilpatrick, Second Lieutenant, vice Lieutenant Bussey, advanced.

Peter Crane, Adjutant and Ensign.

John Pratt, Ensign, vice Ensign Talbott, promoted.

David Doty, Lieutenant of Colonel Burrell's Regiment, is appointed Wagonmaster-General to this Army, and is to be regarded as such.

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. I.

Head-Quarters, August 4, 1776.

(Countersign, New-York.)

(Parole, Cambridge.)

Head-Quarters, August 5, 1776.

(Countersign, Pitt.)

(Parole, Niagara.)

The Commissary has received five hundred shirts from Albany; they are ready to be delivered to the order of the Commanding Officer of Regiments and Corps, according to the proper proportion for each.

The Troops are to receive one pound of flour, and one and a half of beef or one pound of pork per man a day, till further orders. The Quartermasters are ordered to apply to the Commissary, Mr. Yauncey, for forms of Returns for Provisions, which they are strictly to adhere to, that the Army may be served more expeditiously and regularly.

Colonel Winds's Regiment is to join St. Clair's Brigade; and the New-Hampshire Militia, just arrived, are to join Colonel Stark's.

GENERAL POOR TO GENERAL GATES.

Ticonderoga, August 6, 1776.

SIR: We do not make a doubt of your having heard that this Court has taken umbrage at some part of General Arnold's behaviour in the course of his prosecution of Colonel Hazen.

We are sensible men of rank should be treated with delicacy. We are also sensible that it is our duty to maintain the dignity and authority of the Court-Martial; and that an attempt to lessen the one, or render the other contemptible, is proportionally a greater offence as the person who makes the attempt is in station more elevated, and that passing over such attempts must have the worst effects on the discipline of the Army.

We know we have power to compel parties before us to decent behaviour, and to punish insults offered to us. It is a power incident to courts, and without which they would be ridiculous and nugatory. It is a power, however, we wish not to exercise in the case of General Arnold especially; a power, however, we must use in his case, unless he gives this court the satisfaction they have demanded. Justice to the Army and to our country require it of us. The case is shortly this:

A witness was offered to the court to support the charge brought by General Arnold against Colonel Hazen, to whom exception was taken that he was interested in the event of the trial, and therefore not admissible. The court, after hearing the allegations of both parties, adjudged that he was interested, and rejected him. Other witnesses were called, and the trial went on; after some time, General Arnold again pressed for the admission of the above witness, at the same time observing to the court, that he would enter a protest on their minutes, unless his request should be granted. He was refused. He then offered his protest against our proceedings, couched, as we think, in indecent terms, and directly impeaching the justice of the court. If he thought by his protest to stop the proceedings, he certainly has not considered how far that practice would lead. If either party has a right to stop the proceedings by protest, both parties must have the right, and there then needs nothing more to secure every offender from punishment. And on the other hand, it would expose a person who might have the misfortune to be obnoxious to his superior officer to perpetual persecution. However conscious of his innocence, in vain would he expect redress from a General Court-Martial, for in the very moment of a well-founded expectation of an honourable acquittal, a protest appears and blasts it all, and sends him back to his room a melancholy prisoner. But on the contrary, if his design was no more than by an entry of his protest upon the minutes, to operate against the justice and equity of our proceedings, we must and do consider ourselves as an improper conveyance to our superiors of that protest, which was so replete with crimination and abuse. We could add that the illiberal sentiments of the protest were not the only injury offered us. The whole of the General's conduct during the course of the trial was marked with contempt and disrespect towards the court; and by his extraordinary answer, has added insult to injury.

We mention these things that you may know what were our motives in this matter. And our principal design is this, that through you General Arnold may know the light in which we have seen this matter, which we flatter ourselves you will readily see the propriety of. And from the regard you have for the honour, the discipline, and subordination of the Army, you will not by a sudden dissolution, put it out of our power to obtain that satisfaction we are entitled to.

By order of the Court-Martial :

ENOCH POOR, President.

To the Hon. Major-General Gates.

To His Excellency General GATES, Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Troops at TICONDEROGA and CROWN-POINT :

The Petition of the Inhabitants of SHELBURNE, on Lake CHAMPLAIN, humbly sheweth :

That we are in great distress at this place, as Lodowick Potter, one of our neighbours, and one that petitioned to your Excellency by Mr. Logan, was carried away, with his wife and children, some time last week; and we expect the inhabitants of Onion River are also carried off, but are not certain, as the men we sent there are not returned, and we dare not wait longer. As we, the inhabitants, are well attached to the American cause, and had encouragement from your Excellency that if any alarm happened you would be so gracious as to send us relief, and as we have just begun our harvest, which is considerably large, we humbly pray your Excellency will be graciously pleased to send us relief by so large a guard as your Excellency's wisdom shall in our condition think proper.

As one of the men we send was one of the first that discovered the mischief done, your Excellency can further satisfy yourself by examining him. Pray consider us in our distress, and your humble petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

MOSES PIERSON,	KELER TROWBRIDGE,
JAS. LOGAN,	JACOB SMITH,
DERICK WEBB,	JAMES HILL,
JOHN ,	RUFUS COLE,
SAML. FILER,	WILLIAM BLANCHARD.

Shelburne, August 6, 1776.

Onion River, August 6, 1776.

To the Commander General in chief at TICONDEROGA :

SIR: We, the inhabitants of this place, being in distress by the enemy, would beg your Honour's assistance with a guard, so that we may secure our crops, that are now ripe, which are very valuable, or to help us away with our families. Colonel Warner is not come to us, as we expected. We have made some discovery of the enemy here; one family taken, in which are two men, one woman, two children. We leave to your Honour's pleasure to secure our crops, or to help us away.

We are, sir, your friends and humble servants.

Signed by the inhabitants of this place.

AZARIAH ROOD,	AARON MILLER,
EBENEZER LYMAN,	PARISH COBURN,
JOSEPH BROWNE,	JONATH. CLASON,
SAML. CHAMBERLIN,	LEVI MILLER,
JOSEPH TERWAY,	SILAS ROOD.
NATHANIEL BROWN,

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WADSWORTH.

Lebanon, August 6, 1776.

SIR: Yours of the 18th and 20th of July last, with the return of your brigade of the 19th last month, and the other letter of the 1st August instant, are all duly come to hand. Last week circular letters were sent to the Civil Authority, Selectmen, and Committees of Inspection, and all military officers, in the several towns of this State, to facilitate and promote enlistments in the several regiments raised here. Trust that the hurry of harvest being in a good measure over, and our common cause pressing, men will incline to enlist for its service. Recruiting officers are necessary, and suppose are left for the purpose. Shall be glad to know how they are filled, and for your brigade wish to have another return thereof. As to the mustering such as were not here, you will adopt the easiest mode for it.

This you will receive by Eliphalet Dyer and Richard Law, Esquires, who will inform what is needful. Shall at all times be pleased with the intelligence you can find time to communicate.

I am, with esteem and regard, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

JONA. TRUMBULL.

To the Hon. Brigadier-General Wadsworth.

NORWALK (CONNECTICUT) COMMITTEE.

Norwalk, August 6, 1776.

Whereas Cornelius Dyckman, of Norwalk, has been complained of to this Committee, for endeavouring to depreciate the Continental currency, emitted by the honourable Continental Congress; this Committee gave the said Dyckman the usual notice of six days, previous to their meeting this day, to answer to the charge, but the said Dyckman did not appear; whereupon this Committee proceeded to examine the evidence, by whom it appeared that the said Dyckman openly, and in a concourse of people, declared and offered to give one hundred dollars in Continental currency for ninety dollars in silver; this he did repeatedly in the course of his conversation, and at different times, adding reproachful reflections on the institutions of Committees of Observation. Whereupon this Committee, considering the high importance of supporting the credit of the Continental currency, by which the expense of our military operations are in a great measure defrayed, are of opinion that the said Dyckman did it with a design to depreciate the said currency, and thereby injure the cause of liberty, and oppose and counteract the operations of the United States in support of their invaded rights. Therefore, this Committee

Resolve, That it is evident to them that the said Dyckman is an open and malicious enemy to the proceedings of the United States in the noble stand they have made in defending their rights and repelling their enemies; and as such they publish him, requesting all persons to refrain all dealings and intercourse with said Dyckman.

By order of the Committee.

Attest : THADDEUS BETTS, Clerk.

JAMES WARREN TO THOMAS CUSHING.

Boston, August 6, 1776.

SIR: The bearer of this is Captain Samson, of the brigantine Independence, who arrived here this afternoon, and waits for his commission, &c. The Council have as yet ordered him but twelve-and-a-half hundred weight of powder, which is a quantity really too little for his cruise. I therefore could wish you to aid him in getting an order for two-and-a-half hundred weight more. You may depend on his economy and care. I think it not good policy to be too parsimonious, especially when it has a tendency to dampen the ardour and spirit of our men, as in this case, and when all that is desired is so trifling. I could also wish it may be agreeable to the Council to enlarge his orders, so as to give him a better chance for a rich prize or two.

Your attention to this matter will serve the publick and oblige your humble servant,

J. WARREN.

To Thomas Cushing, Esq.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO COLONEL DIKE.

In Committee of Council, Watertown, August 6, 1776.

You are hereby directed and commanded to order the several companies that may be raised in the Counties of Hampshire, Worcester, Middlesex, Plymouth, and Barnstable, as soon as they are formed, immediately to march to the Heights of Dorchester, where, as soon as the troops are collected, they will be formed into regiments. And you are further commanded to observe and follow such order and instructions as you from time to time shall receive from Major-General Ward, or his successor, to whom you are directed to apply to furnish your men with their quarters, with their subsistence and pay, as also such ammunition as the men under your command may from time to time stand in need of.

To Colonel Nicholas Dike.

FRANCIS SHAW, JUN., TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Marblehead, August 6, 1776.

Enclosed you have memorandum of sundries I received by your Honours' orders.

Captain Lambert is now ready to sail with a fair wind. He informs me that he has paid Mr. Perkins and Mr. Clark, two of his officers, one month's pay; since which he has not seen them. He thinks it possible that the same gentlemen, in his absence, will apply to your Honours for what wages may be due to them on the former voyage, and desired me to inform your Honours of their late conduct, for your government.

I am, with due respect, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

FRED. SHAW, JUN.

To the Hon. Council of the State of Massachusetts-Bay.

W. SEVER TO JAMES BOWDOIN.

Kingston, August 6, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Captain Samson is apprehensive that the limits to which he is confined by his orders will not admit of his crossing the line of the trade between the West-India Islands and Europe, as he tells me he finds, from inquiry, that from an apprehension of danger northward, ships pass more southerly than they usually have done. If this be fact, and it be the design of the Council that his orders should not admit of his cruising on that trade, perhaps it might be thought expedient to enlarge his orders. I have been informed that Captain Fisk, in one of the Colonial armed sloops, is at liberty to proceed as far south as 35°. Your Honour knows whether it be so or not. Captain Samson informs me that he is restricted to 37°.

I mention these things for consideration; and am, respectfully, your very humble servant,

W. SEVER.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO MESSRS. LOVEWELL, PATTEN, AND BLANCHARD.

In Committee of Safety, August 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: By Captain Dow we received your letter relative to your suspicions of many persons being concerned in altering, and thereby passing the Bills of Credit emitted by the Colonies at higher rates than they are originally set at. We are amazed any persons in this time of difficulty and distress should be so wicked as to endeavour to destroy the very sinews of defence against our very potent enemy; are also much obliged to you and the other gentlemen in the County of Hillsborough for their care in discovering the persons concerned in so vile a cheat, and almost treason against the States. The Act is not printed, but is in the press, and will be finished in a few days, when they will be distributed. In the mean time send you an attested copy thereof in manuscript, and advise that the Magistrates exert themselves in examining all suspected persons; and those they think guilty, to oblige them to recognise in large sums, and sufficient sureties, to appear at the Supreme Court, but on failure, to commit them.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM CHARLESTOWN, S. C., DATED AUGUST 7, 1776.

Not less than two thousand five hundred men have gone against the Cherokee Indians, who have Alexander Cameron at their head. An express last night from Major Williamson says our people are anxious to be amongst them. Generals Lee and Howe set off this morning for the southward; they have about fifteen hundred men. It is said they are going to St. Augustine, where they are to make reprisals for the emolument of each lucky and bold fellow. This will certainly be the means of keeping Georgia quiet; for the thieves of St. Augustine have committed some outrages on the back part of that Province.

Our people are taking up the Acteon's guns; three fine nine-pounders and a parcel of swivels, were landed in town yesterday.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.
[No. 118.]

Annapolis, August 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: This will be delivered you by Captain Thomas, who commands one of the Independent companies that was ordered up to Philadelphia by the late Convention. As Colonel Smallwood will not be at Philadelphia, we apprehend Captain Thomas may be at a loss who to apply to for orders; we therefore request you will give him any direction or assistance in your power. We are, &c.

To the Deputies for Maryland in Congress.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL HOLLINGSWORTH.
[No. 119.]

Annapolis, August 7, 1776.

SIR: If there should not be any provision laid in for the Flying-Camp Militia at the head of the Bay, as they arrive there on their march to the northward, or baggage-wagons provided, we request you will give them the necessary assistance. We are, &c.

To Colonel Henry Hollingsworth.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN BROOKE.
[No. 120.]

Annapolis, August 7, 1776.

SIR: We have no particular orders to give you, further than to let you know that we have given general orders to your Colonel; and as soon as your company is complete and well armed, you are to march immediately to the northward. We are, &c.

To Captain John Brooke.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.
[No. 121.]

Annapolis, August 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have been informed Lieutenant Stewart, of Captain Thomas's company, has lately accepted a commission from Congress in the Marine service. If the fact is so, it must supersede the commission he holds under us. And, upon a presumption of the truth of it, we have filled up the vacancy occasioned by the removal, and promoted the other officers, and enclose the commissions to you, to be delivered the several officers, if Mr. Stewart is removed, or return to us if he is not. We are, &c.

To the Deputies for Maryland in Congress.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN NICHOLSON.
[No. 122.]

Annapolis, August 7, 1776.

SIR: We have some powder and small-arms arrived at Great Wicomico, in Virginia. We want your small tender to go up that river for them, and the ship Defence to go down below the mouth of Potomack to protect her; come down, therefore, as soon as you can, and call on us for a letter to the person who has the military stores under his care. We are, &c.

To Captain James Nicholson.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DANIEL HUGHES.
[No. 123.]

Annapolis, August 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We are now much in want of the cannon you contracted to supply us with. We must, therefore, request you will, with all expedition, send down all you have ready, and that you will not delay, as quickly as you possibly can, complying with the whole of your contract.

We are, &c.

To Daniel & Samuel Hughes.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN TILLARD.
[No. 124.]

Annapolis, August 7, 1776.

SIR: We are informed by Mr. Chase, that the privates of your company are very uneasy on account of their not being taken into barracks and provided with subsistence. By the resolves of Congress, the Militia of the Flying-Camp are not to be allowed any pay or rations until they are properly armed and accoutred, and march to the northward; and as our Convention did not give any particular directions to the Council of Safety about them, we have not thought it proper to order them to be taken into barracks or subsisted; however, as your company may be very serviceable here, provided they will assist in working on the fortifications in and about this city, which we presume they will not object to, we will take them into barracks and give them all the assistance we can in getting arms. We are, &c.

To Captain Edward Tillard.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GEORGE SCOTT.

[No. 125.]

Annapolis, August 7, 1776.

SIR: Colonel Griffith wants some linen for his battalion; if you and he can agree about price, we are willing he should have it. We are, &c.

To George Scott, Esq.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO MR. NICHOLS.

[No. 126.]

Annapolis, August 7, 1776.

SIR: Being informed there is a large quantity of flint-stones on the wharf at Emerson's Warehouse, we request you will, immediately on receipt of this, favour us with your answer, advising whether there are any such there or not; and if there should be, we request you will endeavour to get them into a situation to be removed from thence to some place where they may be manufactured into flints. Any expenses which you may incur in this business we will cheerfully allow you; also a reasonable price for the stones to the proprietor of them. We are, &c.

To Mr. Nichols, at Emerson's Warehouse, Talbot County.

P. S. If it can be conveniently done, we would choose to have them manufactured on the spot.

A. BARNES TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee, St. Mary's County, Leonard-Town, }
August 7, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: Captain Mantz, with his company, is arrived here, we presume to assist in repelling the enemy from this quarter, as well as to supply the place of the Independent company ordered from hence to the northward. We beg leave to observe to you, that as the principal cause (that of the enemy) is now happily removed, by the fleet having left Potomack and passed down the Bay, there may not be so great a necessity for that company now as existed and appeared to your Board at the time you ordered Captain Mantz to march to our assistance. We would further observe to you, that we find the strongest dissatisfaction prevailing in these men at being stationed in this part of the country, proceeding from a representation of some persons that it is unhealthy; and from the difference of situation, disease and ill health must be expected as a certain consequence, especially to those who have been born and bred in a more healthy climate. Add to this their licentious behaviour since they have been at this place, in killing and destroying people's property, and threatening to disband and return, should any of their company fall sick; and being, as we perceive and observe, under no control or command of their officers, we fear they will rather prove a disadvantage than service to the people of this County. Under these circumstances, and for these reasons, we have taken the liberty to remonstrate to you, and entreat their removal from hence, hoping that this act (which we conceive to be the good of the whole) cannot meet with your censure or disapprobation. That it is right, agreeable to a resolve of Convention, to station some troops in the lower part of this County, we agree; and beg you will order that part of Captain Beall's company now stationed at Port Tobacco to move down, or any other you may think more proper. This we are of opinion will answer the purpose better. Upon this principle we have acted, without any intention to counteract your proceedings; and in that point of light we hope and trust you will kindly view it.

Signed by order:

A. BARNES, Chairman.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety.

COLONEL SIM TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Prince George's County, August 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: On the late alarm of Lord Dunmore's fleet coming up the river Potomack, it was thought necessary that the neighbouring Militia should be called out for the defence of the inhabitants; and as I was at that time absent in Fredesrick, an application was made to Major T. Sim Lee, who, as you will observe by the letter enclosed, ordered Captain Marbury's, Captain Wheeler's, Captain Bayne's, Captain Wade's, and Captain Leran's companies to march, which they did, and continued on the banks of Potomack till discharged. You have, enclosed, Captain Bayne's account for the time his company was in the service, and he now waits on you for the payment of his account.

By the appointment of Captain John Addison, as Lieutenant-Colonel to the Flying-Camp, Captain Bayne succeeds to the command of his company as First-Lieutenant; he therefore would be glad to receive his commission, together with commissions for his several officers, who rise of course.

I am, gentlemen, with great regard, your most obedient servant,

JOSEPH SIM.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland, at Annapolis.

P. S. Captain Wade also waits on you with his account, and will receive the money for Captain Bayne, who declines going up, and will likewise receive the commissions for Captain Bayne's officers.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JOSEPH SIM.

CHARLES GRAHAME TO THOMAS HARWOOD, JUN.

Lower Marlborough, August 7, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed is Captain J. A. Thomas's certificate of an agreement made with John David for the hire of his schooner to carry his company to Annapolis, and John David's account of the time he was on that service proved. You will please apply to the Council of Safety for an order on the Treasury for the money, and I will take it when I come up next week.

Our people have put it upon me to serve them once more, and I must accordingly give my attendance at the next Convention. My colleagues are Benjamin Mackall, of Hallowing-Point, Colonel Fitzhugh, and John Mackall. I am sorry to hear that Mr. Johnson is dropped by Anne Arundel County—it would have given me pleasure to have served with him; and as I have heard nothing of the city election, am still in hopes of his being elected for that.

I am, respectfully, dear sir, your very humble servant,

CHARLES GRAHAME.

To Mr. Thomas Harwood, Jun., Annapolis.

July 13, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I agreed to pay to Captain John David thirty shillings a day for his vessel, to convey my company to Annapolis.

J. A. THOMAS.

To the Hon. the Council of Safety.

JAMES KENT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY

Queen Anne's County, August 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your letter of the 29th July, with my commission enclosed, has been received.

I observe you request my attendance at your Board to consult on matters relative to the Flying-Camp. It would have given me pleasure to have received this request earlier, for at an election in this County for Delegates to serve in Convention, I have been very unexpectedly polled, and now stand second on the polls. This distinguished mark of the approbation of the freemen of this County forbids my leaving them at this time; and could I be permitted to hold both posts, do think I should be wrong in attempting it; therefore take the earliest opportunity of resigning my commission into the hands of the honourable body that honoured me with it. Although I am well convinced, when I consider the two departments, that my abilities in the military must excel any I have for the legislative, yet I must submit this to the choice of the freemen of my County.

I have the honour to be, with much esteem and respect, gentlemen, your obedient, humble servant,

JAMES KENT.

To the Hon. Council of Safety of Maryland.

JOHN CROCKETT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, August 7, 1776.

SIR: I shall be much obliged to you to let me know if the Council intend sending anything from Carolina. I have some thoughts of going out to St. Eustatia, in case I do not go to Carolina to do the business for you. I shall also be much obliged to you if you will, per this opportunity, (Capt.

Martin,) inform Mr. Vanbibber of what he may expect, and whether or no you intend sending anything from Carolina, as I have mentioned it to him, though he could not positively say whether you would send anything from there or not. You will please excuse my taking the liberty of writing you on this matter, as it is a requisition by Mr. Vanbibber of me.

Your humble servant, JOHN CROCKETT.
To the Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer.

GEORGE WOOLSEY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, August 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received your esteemed favour of the 1st instant, and delayed answering it until now on account of not being able to see all the owners of the vessel you write about sooner. They seem pretty generally to be against parting with her, as they still have large expectations from her, not doubting but she will answer their purpose.

I wrote you a few lines the 29th of last month, by Captain Thomas Yates, concerning flints, which you formerly spoke to me about, but have not any answer to it from you.

I intend going up to Philadelphia, and perhaps to New-York, soon; if there is anything there I can do for you, you may command me with the greatest pleasure to me.

I am, gentlemen, your most humble servant,
GEO. WOOLSEY.

To the Hon. Council of Safety, Annapolis.

P. S. I should be glad to know when you think you will want me for the service of the Province, as I would not wish to be out of the way.
G. W.

COLONEL EWING TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, August 7, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: The bearer, Mr. Chew, a Lieutenant in Captain Tillard's company in my battalion, has applied, he says, by your order, for orders to put his company into barracks until such time as guns and blankets can be got for them.

It is my opinion, from what I saw when down the country, that numbers of the poor soldiers were very badly off for want of subsistence. I therefore think it would much forward the good of the service, to put the soldiers, as raised, into barracks. I would be glad you would give me leave to issue such orders.

Mr. Chew tells me he thinks he could procure a quantity of guns and blankets, provided he had money. I should be glad you would let him have some.

I am, with respect, honoured sirs, your most obedient servant,
THOS. EWING.

To the Honourable Council of Safety.

Baltimore, August 7, 1776.

Captain John Campbell, commander of the Enterprise privateer, from this place, has taken and sent into Chingoteague a brig loaded with molasses; and a ship from Barbadoes to England, was sent into Sinepuxent on the 24th ultimo. When the brig left Captain Campbell, he was in chase of a ship, deeply laden, and expected to be in possession of her in a few hours. The prize ship which has safely arrived in Sinepuxent, is said to have on board a great quantity of Spanish dollars, &c., &c., and was taken by Captain Campbell the 18th ultimo.

SECRET COMMITTEE TO SILAS DEANE.

Philadelphia, August 7, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The above is a copy of our last, [of July 8,] which went by the Despatch, Captain Parker.

The Congress have since taken into consideration the heads of a treaty to be proposed to France; but as they are not yet concluded upon, we cannot say more of them by this conveyance.

You will see by the newspapers which accompany this, that the expedition against South-Carolina is foiled by the gallant resistance made there. The enemy, much diminished by sickness, it is thought will attempt nothing further in those parts. The people of North-Carolina, who at first had taken up their bridges and broken the roads to prevent the enemy from penetrating their country, have since, being ready to receive him, repaired the roads and bridges, and wish him to attempt making use of them.

General Howe is posted now on Staten-Island, near New-York, with the troops he carried to Halifax when he was driven out of Boston. Lord Howe is also arrived there with some regiments, and more are expected, as the great push seems intended to be made in that Province. General Washington's Army is in possession of the town, about which many intrenchments are thrown up, so as to give an opportunity of disputing the possession with Howe, if he should attempt it, and of making it cost him something; but it is not so regularly fortified as to stand a siege. We have also a Flying-Camp in the Jerseys, to harass the enemy if he should attempt to penetrate through that Province to Philadelphia. In the different Colonies we have now near eighty thousand men in the pay of Congress.

The Declaration of Independence meets with universal approbation, and the people everywhere seem more animated by it in defence of their country.

Most of our frigates are launched in the different Provinces, and are fitting for sea with all the expedition in our power. They are fine ships, and will be capable of good service. Our small privateers and Continental armed vessels have already had great success, as the papers will show you; and by abstaining from trade ourselves, while we distress that of our enemies, we expect to make their men-of-war weary of their unprofitable and hopeless cruises, and their merchants sick of a contest in which so much is risked and nothing gained. The forming a Navy is a capital object with us, and the Marine Committee is ordered to bring in a plan for increasing it very considerably.

The armed boats for the defence of our rivers and bays grow more and more in repute; they venture to attack large men-of-war, and are very troublesome to them. The papers will give you several instances of their success.

We hope by this time you are in Paris, and that Mr. Morris has joined you, whom we recommend to you warmly, and desire you may mutually coöperate in the publick service. With great esteem we are, &c.

To Silas Deane, Esq.

SAMUEL CHASE TO GENERAL ARNOLD.

Philadelphia, August 7, 1776.

MY DEAR SIR: I wrote you immediately on my return to this city, (about the 18th of July,) and acknowledged the receipt of your letter dated from Montreal the 11th June. In that you admit the receipt of my letter of the 31st May and 1st and 3d June. The last post brought me your favour of the 12th July, from Crown-Point. I have received no other letters from you than the above. As you do not inform me of the receipt of my long letter from Saratoga of 6th June, I presume it miscarried.

There are, in all, about one hundred and twenty sail of our enemy's fleet arrived at Staten-Island. Our Army at New-York consists of about eighteen thousand men, of which three thousand six hundred are sick; our Flying-Camp, in the Jerseys, of about five thousand. Seven battalions from Boston and two from Virginia are ordered to New-York. A battalion from the Delaware State passed through this city yesterday, and the Militia are coming in every hour. Our vessels are very successful in taking prizes.

I beg you will from time to time communicate, with your usual candour, and without any reserve, the numbers and condition of our Army, and such observations as you think will explain the subject to me, both of men and measures. No more will be disclosed than you desire.

I am distressed to hear so many reports injurious to your character about the goods seized at Montreal. I cannot but request all persons to suspend their opinion, and to give you an opportunity of being heard. Your best friends are not your countrymen.

Mr. Carroll requests his compliments to you. Make me remembered to General Gates. Tell him I saw his letter to Mr. J. Adams; that I cannot understand his message to me, and shall, if I can get the letter, write to him; if not, I wish he would explain fully and explicitly what he means. I take his letter unkind; think he ought to have written to me, or at least to have written so as to be understood by Mr. Adams or myself, which is not the case. He knows my esteem and friendship for him. Adieu.

Your affectionate and obedient servant,

SAML. CHASE.

To Brigadier-General Arnold.

P. S. In what condition is our Navy on the Lakes?

ABRAHAM CLARK TO REV. JAMES CALDWELL.

Philadelphia, August 7, 1776.

MY DEAR FRIEND: Your favour of the 26th July, from the German-Flats, I received, and the next day after wrote you by post; at the same time received a letter from Colonel Dayton, of the 25th, and since that I received one the Colonel wrote the 20th from Fort Stanwix, to which I wrote a long answer yesterday, which I have yet by me, as the President will write this day to General Schuyler, and hath engaged to send it in his packet, in which I purpose to get this a place. If this should find you at the German-Flats, and the Colonel is at Fort Stanwix, I hereby authorize you to open and read his letter, and then forward it to him, as I intend my letters to either of you will be considered as intended for both.

We have no news to-day. This morning one of our large frigates was launched; two others, of twenty-four and twenty-six guns, were some time ago launched, and are rigging.

I regret my being moved to this Congress. I think I should have been of more service in our own Province than here. I remember what Cæsar said in passing the Alps: "That he had rather be the first in a small village in the Alps, than the second in Rome." This will not exactly apply to myself, as I did not esteem myself the first in the Jersey Convention, and I am sure I am far below the second here. It is in some degree applicable.

In your letter you tell me of our feasting here. Indeed we have plenty; but I dare say you have the best feast: my want of health will not suffer me to relish delicacies.

News, as far as my present station will permit, I have given in the letter to the Colonel. More I might in confidence say, were either of you present; but I dare not risk more in a letter. I think I informed you in my last, that money to pay your regiment was sent forward, and the matter relative to your regiment's returning to the Jerseys in the fall, was not proper to mention yet, from the uncertain issue of the war to the northward.

I am, dear sir, most affectionately yours,

ABRA. CLARK.

To the Rev. James Caldwell, Chaplain of a Battalion at German-Flats or Fort Stanwix.

P. S. I don't recollect the death of any of your hearers since you left us, but Thomas Williams, who died two weeks ago, or something more.

A. C.

CUMBERLAND COUNTY (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE.

On Wednesday, the 7th instant, the Committee of Inspection for the County of Cumberland, in the State of New-Jersey, the Officers of the Militia, and a great number of other inhabitants, having met at Bridgetown, went in procession to the Court-House, where the Declaration of Independency, the Constitution of New-Jersey, and the Treason Ordinance, were publicly read, and unanimously approved of. These were followed with a spirited Address by Dr. Elmer, Chairman of the Committee; after which the Peace Officers' staves, on which were depicted the King's Coat of Arms, with other ensigns of royalty, were burnt in the street. The whole was conducted with the greatest decency and regularity.

The following, being the substance of the before mentioned Address, is published at the particular request of the Committee and all who were present:

"Gentlemen of the Committee, Officers of the Militia, and Gentlemen spectators:

"From what has now been read, you see the long wished-for, but much dreaded period has arrived, in which the connexion between Great Britain and America is totally dissolved, and these Colonies declared Free and Independent States. As this is an event of the greatest importance, it must afford satisfaction to every intelligent person to reflect, that it was brought about by unavoidable necessity on our part, and has been conducted with a prudence and moderation becoming the wisest and best of men.

"With the Independency of the American States a new era in politicks has commenced. Every consideration respecting the propriety or impropriety of a separation from Britain, is now entirely out of the question; and we have now no more to do with the King and people of England, than we have with the King and people of France or Spain. No people under Heaven were ever favoured with a fairer opportunity of laying a sure foundation for future grandeur and happiness than we. The plan of Government established in most States and Kingdoms of the world, has been the effect of chance or necessity: ours of sober reason and cool deliberation. Our future happiness or misery, therefore, as a people, will depend entirely upon ourselves. If, actuated by principles of virtue and genuine patriotism, we make the welfare of our country the sole aim of all our actions; if we intrust none but persons of abilities and integrity with the management of our publick affairs; if we carefully guard against corruption and undue influence in the several departments of Government; if we are steady and zealous in putting the laws in strict execution;—the spirit and principles of our new Constitution, which we have just now heard read, may be preserved for a long time. But if faction and party spirit, the destruction of popular Governments, take place, anarchy and confusion will soon ensue, and we shall either fall an easy prey to a foreign enemy, or some factious and aspiring demagogue, possessed of popular talents and shining qualities—a Julius Cæsar or an Oliver Cromwell—will spring up among ourselves, who, taking advantage of our political animosities, will lay violent hands on the Government, and sacrifice the liberties of his country to his own ambitious and domineering humour. God grant that neither of these may ever be the unhappy fate of this or any of the United States. To prevent which, while we are striving to defend ourselves against the unjust encroachments of a foreign and unnatural enemy, let us not neglect to keep a strict and jealous eye over our own internal police and Constitution. Let the fate of Greece, Rome, Carthage, and Great Britain, warn us of our danger; and the loss of liberty in all those States, for want of timely guarding against the introduction of tyranny and usurpation, be a standing admonition to us, to avoid the rock on which they have all been shipwrecked.

"Let us, as honest citizens and sincere lovers of our country, exert ourselves in the defence of our State and in support of our new Constitution; but while we strive to vindicate the glorious cause of liberty on the one hand, let us, on the other hand, carefully guard against running into the contrary extreme of disorder and licentiousness.

"In our present situation, engaged in a bloody and dangerous war with the power of Great Britain, for the defence of our lives, our liberties, our property, and everything that is dear and valuable, every member of this State who enjoys the benefits of its civil government, is absolutely bound, by the immutable law of self-preservation, the laws of God and of society, to assist in protecting and defending it. This is so plain and self-evident a proposition, that I am persuaded every person here present makes it the rule of his conduct on all occasions; and consequently, in a time of such imminent danger, will be extremely careful, at our ensuing election, not to intrust any one with the management of our publick affairs who has not, by his vigilance and activity in the cause of liberty, proved himself to be a true friend to his country. The success, gentlemen, of our present glorious struggle wholly depends upon this single circumstance. For though the situation and extent of the United States of America and our numberless internal resources, are sufficient to enable us to bid defiance to all Europe, yet should we be so careless about our own safety as to intrust the affairs of our State, while the bayonet is pointed at our breasts, to persons whose conduct discovers them to be enemies to their country, or whose religious principles will not suffer them to lift a hand for our defence, our ruin will inevitably follow.

"As it is impossible for any one possessed of the spirit of a man, who is a friend to the United States, and whose conscience does not furnish him with an excuse to stand by, an idle spectator, while his country is struggling and bleeding in her own necessary defence, all such inactive persons ought therefore to be shunned as enemies or despised as cowards.

And as I have reason to believe that many who plead conscience as an excuse are sincere in their pretensions, and as every man's conscience ought to be free from compulsion, this single consideration should restrain us from forcing such into any of the departments of Government. For to put such persons, at this time, in places of publick trust, is actually to deprive them of liberty of conscience; for we thereby compel them either to betray the trust reposed in them, or to act contrary to the dictates of their own consciences; a dilemma in which, act as they will, their conduct must be criminal. Besides, if we consulted only our own safety, it is plain, that to intrust the affairs of our Government, at this juncture, to such people, is as dangerous as to intrust the management of a ship in a violent storm to an infant or an idiot.

"As a friend to my country and a lover of liberty, I thought it my duty to address you on this occasion; and having now, as a faithful member of society, discharged my duty, I shall leave you to the exercise of your own judgment, and conclude with a request, that you would conduct yourself this day in such a manner as to convince the publick that your abhorrence of the cruel and bloody Nero of Britain, and his despicable minious of tyranny and oppression, arises, not from the mere impulse of blind passion and prejudice, but from sober reason and reflection; and while we rejoice in being formally emancipated from our haughty and imperious task-masters, let us remember that the final termination of this grand event is not likely to be brought about without shedding the blood of many of our dear friends and countrymen."

GENERAL MERCER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Perth-Amboy, August 7, 1776, seven P. M.

SIR: Enclosed is some intelligence from a deserter, who swam over to us. His account that the heavy baggage of the troops was ordered on board shows an intended movement of the troops from Staten-Island. By his information, no foreign troops have yet arrived. I will endeavour to procure some intelligence to-night.

I have the honour to be, sir, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

HUGH MERCER.

To General Washington.

Examination of RICHARD SHEA, a Deserter.

Inlisted in Waterford twenty-two months ago; an Irishman; of the Fortieth Regiment, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel James Grant; in Captain John Adlum's company; was clerk to the regiment. He has been six weeks on Staten-Island. Was at Boston last year from July to the 17th March. Went from there to Halifax. Remained there on ship, except now and then on shore to exercise. There are in the Fortieth Regiment three hundred and thirty-six rank and file. Supposed to have fourteen thousand on the Island. Two new Highland regiments very sickly. The Forty-Second Regiment of Highlanders. Expect some Hessians, but none come. The Fortieth Regiment opposite the Blazing-Star, in barns. Stretch two miles and a quarter on the right and left of the Old Blazing-Star. Had no leave to go one-quarter of a mile from quarters. If any soldier left quarters, severely punished. His reason for deserting was, he had £4 due for pay, and £10 as clerk, which he asked for, and was refused by the Paymaster. The officers are much afraid of the Riflemen; the soldiers in spirits; two thousand men sick—small-pox, the Highlanders with fluxes—poxes; not more than four thousand of the fourteen thousand clever soldiers. The Lighthorse and Marines remained at Halifax; also old men and others unfit for service.

Five days ago, ordered the officers' heavy baggage, and women of the Army, on board the fleet. As far as he heard, he believes they will not attack New-York, unless reinforced by the foreigners. He has seen in orders for working party at Billow's Point, where they are numerous, and have thrown up intrenchments. No works near the Blazing-Star. One company at the Old Blazing-Star. Don't know who is at the New Blazing-Star.

Two days' fresh provisions in a week. No vegetables in the week. Each company of the Fortieth Regiment have a guard in front—three men in daytime, six at night; no main guard. The inhabitants are sworn by the commanding officer.

There is on the Island Major-General James Grant, who was formerly Lieutenant-Colonel of the Fortieth Regiment; and the Lieutenant-Colonel James Grant, who is also there, was Major in the regiment.

He heard there were forty transports arrived last Thursday, chiefly store-ships; some few Highlanders. Heard Clinton was defeated, and he was expected to join them.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM ELIZABETH-TOWN POINT, NEW-JERSEY, DATED AUGUST 7, 1776.

I was ordered by Colonel Chevalier to wait on two gentlemen, Mr. Maddison and Mr. Johnson, one of whom is a clergyman, and both natives of Augusta County, Virginia, who arrived in the Lord Hyde packet from Falmouth, at Staten-Island, the 29th of July, and have brought papers from London to the 23d of May, which are now here, and kept for the use of General Washington, who, it is said, will be in town to-morrow. A copy of the King of England's speech is enclosed. The above-mentioned gentlemen left the Island this morning with Lord Howe's approbation, and inform that Lord Cornwallis and General Clinton, with all the troops, arrived there on Thursday last from Carolina, as a reinforcement, preparatory to the attack on New-York, which, these gentlemen say, would, in their opinion, be made in less than a week, without waiting for the arrival of the remainder of the foreigners, who were hourly looked for, having sailed three days before this ship; that the troops now on the Island amount to about twelve thousand, and those expected will make the enemy twenty thousand strong.

The current opinion of the British Generals is, that they will find no difficulty in taking possession of New-York; but are much afraid that the Rebels (as they call us) will destroy it, as they speak most contemptuously of us, looking upon us as an undisciplined rabble; and that they are confident of effecting a junction with Burgoyne from Canada, and thereby facilitate the subjection of this country. The gentlemen add, that the enemy are much distressed for want of fresh provisions.

The English papers inform that the Minerva, Wining, from Philadelphia, was arrived at Londonderry, in five weeks, loaded with three hundred and twenty hogsheads of flaxseed, and that she was immediately made a prize of, being American property. An article mentions, that on the question for Independence in Congress, the Pennsylvania Delegates voted against it, and in consequence thereof, the other Colonies kept a jealous eye over them. The papers contain many other matters, but I cannot keep them any longer to transcribe particulars.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read August 8, 1776.]

New-York, August 7, 1776.

SIR: In my letter of the 5th, which I had the honour of addressing you, I begged leave to recall the attention of Congress to the absolute necessity there is for appointing more General Officers, promising, at the same time, by the first opportunity, to give my sentiments more at large upon the subject.

Confident I am that the postponing this measure has not proceeded from motives of frugality, otherwise I should take the liberty of attempting to prove that we put too much to the hazard by such a saving. I am but too well apprized of the difficulties that occur in the choice. They are, I acknowledge, great; but at the same time it must be allowed that they are of such a nature as to present themselves whenever the subject is thought of. Time, on the one hand, does not remove them; on the other, delays may be productive of fatal consequences.

This Army, though far short as yet of the numbers intended by Congress, is by much too unwieldy for the command of any one man, without several Major-Generals to assist. For it is to be observed, that a Brigadier-General at the head of his brigade is no more than a Colonel at the head of a regiment, except that he acts upon a larger scale. Officers of more general command are at all times wanted for the good order and government of an army, especially when the army is composed chiefly of raw troops; but in an action, they are indispensably necessary. At present there is but one Major-General for this whole department and the Flying-Camp; whereas, at this place alone, less than three cannot discharge the duties with that regularity there ought to be.

If these Major-Generals are appointed, as undoubtedly they will, out of the present Brigadiers, you will want for this place three Brigadiers at least. The Northern Department will require one, if not two, (as General Thompson is a prisoner, and the Baron Woedike reported to be dead, or in a state not much better,) there being at present only one Brigadier (Arnold) in all that department. For the Eastern Governments there ought to be one, or a Major-General, to superintend the regiments there, and to prevent impositions that might otherwise be practised. These make the number wanted to be six or seven; and who are to be appointed, Congress can best judge. To make Brigadiers of the oldest Colonels would be the least exceptionable way; but it is much to be questioned whether by that mode the ablest men would be appointed to office. And I would observe, though the rank of the Colonels of the Eastern Governments was settled at Cambridge last year, it only respected themselves, and is still open as to officers of other Governments. To pick a Colonel here and a Colonel there through the Army, according to the opinion entertained of their abilities, would no doubt be the means of making a better choice, and nominating the fittest persons; but then their senior officers would get disgusted, and more than probable, with their connexions, quit the service. That might prove fatal at this time.

To appoint gentlemen as Brigadiers that had not served in the Army, (in this part of it at least,) would not wound any one in particular, but hurt the whole equally, and must be considered in a very discouraging light to every officer of merit. View the matter, therefore, in any point of light, you will see there are inconveniences on the one hand, and difficulties on the other, which ought to be avoided. Would they be remedied by appointing the oldest Colonels from each State? If this mode should be thought expedient, the enclosed list gives the names of the Colonels from New-Hampshire to Pennsylvania inclusive, specifying those who rank first, as I am told, in the several Colony lists.

I have transmitted a copy of a letter from Mr. John Glover, setting forth the nature and grounds of a dispute between him and a Mr. Bradford, respecting their agency. Not conceiving myself authorized, nor having the smallest inclination, to interfere in any degree in the matter, it is referred to Congress, who will determine, and give direction upon it in such manner as they shall judge best. I will only observe, that Mr. Glover was recommended to me as a proper person for an Agent when we first fitted out armed vessels, and was accordingly appointed one, and, so far as I know, discharged his office with fidelity and industry.

I received, yesterday evening, a letter from General Schuyler, containing Lieutenant McMichael's report, who had been sent a scout to Oswego. A copy of the report I have enclosed for the information of Congress, lest General Schuyler should have omitted it in his letter which accompanies this. He was at the German Flats when he wrote, which was the 2d instant, and the treaty with the Indians not begun, nor had the whole expected then arrived; but of these things he will have advised you more fully, I make no doubt.

The Paymaster informs me he received a supply of money yesterday. It came very seasonably, for the application and clamours of the troops had become incessant and distressing beyond measure. There is now two months' pay due them.

I have the honour to be, with great esteem, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. John Hancock, &c.

German Flats, August 2, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Lieutenant McMichael, who has been on a scout to Oswego, has just now delivered me a paper, of which the enclosed is a copy. If the intelligence it contains should be true, a reinforcement would be necessary in this quarter. I dare give no orders about the removal of the old Sergeant at Oswego, until the treaty is over. I have ordered scouts to be continually kept towards Oswego, and shall try to procure some of the best-affected Indians to make further inquiry into the matter, and give your Excellency the earliest advice.

I am, dear sir, most respectfully, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To His Excellency General Washington, &c., &c.

Intelligence brought from Oswego by Lieutenant McMichael.

Was informed at Oswego that three regiments of Ministerial troops had arrived at Oswegatchie, at which place they were joined by a number of Tories and Indians under the command of Colonel Johnson, and were to embark immediately on board two armed vessels, batteaus, and canoes, and proceed to Oswego, at which place they were to be joined by Colonel Butler with all the Indians under his command, and likewise by Colonel Caldwell with what Regulars could be spared from Niagara. They intend repairing Oswego Fort as quick as possible, in order that they might hold a treaty with the Indians, and be able to defend themselves against any attack. Immediately after the treaty, they are to march with all their force against Fort Stanwix and the German Flats, at the latter of which places they intend to fortify, (if they proceed); they are likewise to fortify at Johnstown, and to secure all the provisions they can.

Was likewise informed that the main Army, under the command of General Burgoyne, was marching to Crown-Point and Tyonderoga, to besiege those places. Was further informed that an Indian man, named Thomas Davis, was sent from Niagara by Colonel Butler, as a spy, to the German Flats, and he is to inform said Butler of the particulars that pass at the German Flats during the treaty.

This intelligence came from a person who resides at Oswego, who was a Sergeant in the Regulars last war, and likewise from a party of Indians who I conversed with that had left Colonel Johnson four days before, and had come as spies.

EDWD. McMICHAEL.

Albany, June 10, 1776.

DEAR SIR: At nine this morning I arrived from Fort-George, having left that place yesterday in consequence of the information contained in a letter and paper sent me by the Committee of this City and County, copies of which I do myself the honour to enclose you. I was apprehensive that something of this kind would happen, as your Excellency will perceive by recurring to some of my former letters. I shall do everything in my power to prevent the savages from succeeding; and if Dayton's regiment and the Militia of Tryon and this County drive them off, as I hope they will, I propose to take post at Fort Stanwix, as soon as I shall be in a condition to do it by the arrival of cannon, ammunition, and intrenching tools, having none of either here.

I am informed that Captain Forster's troops and the Indians that joined him, retired on General Arnold's approach; failing of success, their necessity will oblige them to turn elsewhere in search of subsistence, probably the Mohawk River.

Your Excellency's favour of the 7th instant I have this moment received. I am happy that Captain Wilkinson's conjectures were not realized.

I assure you, my dear sir, that I do all in my power to forward and arrange matters. Such a variety of business crowds upon me, that I hardly know which to take in hand first; a steady perseverance will, however, I hope, carry me through; and if I can find time, I will repair to Canada, though I hope and believe General Sullivan will put our affairs in good order, seconded by Generals Arnold and Thompson, who are also indefatigable. General Thomas died the 2d instant.

So far from having been able to procure two thousand Indians to join us, I shall be extremely happy if we can prevent them from acting against us; and I believe nothing will do it but the spirited measure I proposed in my last, of the 8th instant, to Congress, and the taking post at Fort Stanwix. If any Militia should come up, I shall certainly employ them on the communication, and send on the troops. I have already ordered three companies of Van Schaick's from Ticonderoga, as the exchanged prisoners were to be employed there; but if the Militia should take it in their heads to leave Fort George, Ticonderoga, &c., it will be difficult to carry on the provisions for the Army.

Yesterday morning upwards of an hundred barrels of flour left Fort George; I suppose thrice that quantity left it to-day, and Saturday next I expect fifteen hundred barrels will be sent, together with three hundred barrels of pork lately arrived here; after which none will be left, unless a fresh supply comes from New-York, which I hope will be the soonest possible.

I do not wish that Lady Johnson should be permitted to go to any place where she may escape, as her detention may induce her husband to seek an accommodation.

I am, dear sir, with every sentiment of esteem and respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. I believe I shall be under the necessity of going to Tryon County myself.

Extract of a Letter from Colonel FREDERICK PELLENGER, of the GERMAN-FLATS, June 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: This minute an express came from one of the best Indians, with the news that a great number of the far Indians had arrived at Oneida, being on their march down; so we sent an express yesterday to the Commanding Officer at Johnstown with the news which we got yesterday from Fort Stanwix, but could get no assistance; so therefore the necessity requires that you will come up with your regiment immediately, to meet them without delay, or we shall be slaughtered; and send the orders to the next regiment with speed.

Gentlemen, I am your most humble servant,
FREDERICK PELLENGER.

Albany Committee-Chamber, June 8, 1776.

HONoured SIR: We have this moment received from the Mohawk River an account of an intended attack of the Upper Indians against our western frontiers, a copy of which information we herewith enclose you. We immediately wrote to the Provincial Congress for a further supply of ammunition. Upon so alarming an occasion we find it necessary to apply to you for advice and assistance. We beg of you, in the most earnest manner, to give us both; together with such directions for our conduct as you may conceive will best answer the purpose of opposing the attempts of the savages and their more savage instigators.

We are, honoured sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient, humble servants.

By order: ABRM. YATES, Jun., Chairman.

Marblehead, July 20, 1776.

HONoured SIR: I am extremely sorry to take up one moment of your attention, engaged as it is in concerns of the highest importance to the United American States; but seeing, without your kind interposition, that I may be materially injured, I hope you will excuse me.

Your Excellency was pleased to appoint me one of the Agents for the Continental armed vessels; which office I have endeavoured to discharge with diligence and fidelity, and conducted, I would fain suppose, to your satisfaction. Among other things, when the ship Hope, laden with powder, was taken, I hastened to Pulling-Point Gut, through which they attempted to carry the ship to Boston; but she got aground; so I procured small craft, and, before night, got out twelve hundred barrels of powder. I procured a guard of one hundred and fifty men from General Ward, lest the enemy should take the ship by their boats in the night. I engaged the best pilot in Boston to carry up the ship, but he despaired of doing it in the night, because he could not see the marks, as the channel was crooked. I told him I did not choose to trust her there that night, and that she must be got up. He said it was impossible. I then proposed placing at anchor a number of the small vessels, with lanterns on board them, at the shallow places and bends of the channel; and after they were thus stationed, the ship fluting and the wind being fair, we made sail, and got her up to Boston safe at anchor off the wharf before daylight; and I ceased not till, with vast labour and fatigue, the whole cargo was secured. On account of this business, for four days and three nights I did not pull off my clothes, and scarcely slept at all. Afterwards I libelled the ship and cargo, and attended the trial and condemnation. In one word, I have taken the whole care of them; and nothing now remains to be done but making sale of the ship, and a few articles that are not military stores—the work of a day. In this stage of the business, Mr. John Bradford, of Boston, steps in and desires to sell this ship Hope and her cargo, and claims a commission on some others, against which I have either finished or commenced prosecutions.

I will take the liberty to fairly state his pretensions: He received a private letter, about six weeks since, from Mr. Hancock, informing him that, through his friendship, he was appointed Agent for all prizes brought into this Colony, and that his commission should be forwarded as soon as might be, and advising him, when he should receive it, to make known his appointment in the publick newspapers. This letter Mr. Bradford communicated to me. As I have received no intimation of this from your Excellency, who appointed me an Agent, nor from any person under the authority of Congress, and as Mr. Bradford's commission has not arrived, and perhaps never may, I thought it my duty, not only to myself, but to your Excellency and the Continent, to continue acting in that capacity as far as respected those vessels that had come into my hands; those that have since been brought in, to avoid any colour of dispute, I have not meddled with. Under these circumstances, I flatter myself my conduct will receive the approbation of your Excellency and the Congress. And if your Excellency shall judge it expedient, a line from the Marine Committee of Congress may settle this matter as in justice it ought to be, which is all I wish. Mr. Bradford has lately received a letter from the Marine Committee, which considers him as Agent respecting some matters yet to be done. This, with Mr. Hancock's letter, is all that gives him any authority.

I hope I shall be excused for thus troubling you. I was afraid the publick service would suffer by an altercation between us, and the captors. I shall esteem it a favour if your Excellency will give directions to have the military stores taken in the ship Hope appraised, in order that the captors may have their shares, as they are greatly in want of it, many of them.

I am, with the utmost respect, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

JONATHAN GLOVER.

To General Washington.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

SIR: Since closing the letter which I had the honour to write you this morning, two deserters have come in, who left the Solebay man-of-war last evening. One of them is a native of New-York. Their account is, that they were in the engagement with Colonel Moultrie, at Sullivan's Island, on the 9th July. The particulars they give nearly correspond with the narrative sent by General Lee. That they left Carolina three weeks ago as a convoy to forty-five transports, having on board General Clinton, Lord Cornwallis, and the whole Southern Army, consisting of about three thousand men, all of whom were landed last week on Staten-Island, in tolerable health. That on Sunday, thirteen transports, part of Lord Howe's fleet, and having on board Hessians and Highlanders, came to Staten-Island. That the remainder of the fleet, which was reported to have in the whole twelve thousand men, had parted with these troops off the Banks of Newfoundland, and were expected to come in every moment. That they were getting the heavy carriages and cannon on board; had launched eight gondolas with flat bottoms, and two rafts or straps, to carry cannon. These men understand that the attack will soon be made, if the other troops arrive. That they give out they will lay the Jersey waste, with fire and sword. The computed strength of their Army will be thirty thousand men. They further add, that when they left Carolina, one transport got on shore, so that they were not able to give her relief; upon which she surrendered, with five companies of Highlanders, to General Lee, who, after taking everything valuable out of her, burnt her. That the Admiral turned General Clinton out of his ship after the engagement, with a great deal of abuse; great differences between the principal naval and military gentlemen. That the ships left in Carolina are now in such a weakly, distressed condition, they would fall an easy prey.

I am, sir, with great respect and regard, your most obedient and very humble servant,
Go. WASHINGTON.

P. S. The ships are changing their position, and the men-of-war forming into a line, but I still think they will wait the arrival of the remaining Hessians before any general attack will be made. Monday's return will show our strength here.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE NEW-JERSEY CONVENTION.

New-York, August 7, 1776.

SIR: I have received repeated informations that a number of persons known to be inimical to the cause of the American States, or of a suspicious character, have lately removed from this and other places into the County of Monmouth, in New-Jersey, with intent, no doubt, from its situation, of communicating with and aiding our enemies. All those of similar character on Long-Island, and the other Counties adjacent to this place, will be secured by to-morrow morning; and I must urge the necessity of your Congress adopting the same measure in all those parts of your Province which are most contiguous to the enemy. There are some also of very dangerous character, who, I am informed, are lurking in the neighbourhood of Hackensack, and what they call the English neighbourhood, particularly Benjamin Hugget and Frederick Rhinelander. This measure is now become the more necessary, as, from the intelligence I have this day received, there is the greatest reason to believe that the enemy intend to begin their operations in a very few days, and that with a very powerful force; for not only a considerable part of the foreign troops, the British Guards, and an additional number of Scotch troops, are lately arrived at Staten-Island, but the Army from the southward, under General Clinton, also joined them last Thursday, and the remainder of the foreign troops have been spoken with on the coast, and are momentarily expected. This must also urge the absolute necessity of your Congress instantly adopting some effectual measures for completing the troops voted, and for affording every other reinforcement to this place that is in their power, by detaching a considerable body of the Militia, or in such other manner as will be more effectual. Of the three thousand three hundred voted by your State, we have but fourteen hundred and fifty, and in the same proportion from the other Colonies; so that you will easily conceive what an alarming situation we are in. As the harvest is now over, and the Militia engaged most cheerfully to return, if necessary, I persuade myself they will readily turn out upon a representation being made to them of the necessity. What from a deficiency of the old regiments, sickness, and the failure of new levies, we are in danger of being outnumbered by the enemy at least double, if not more. The consequences may be fatal, unless prevented by the spirit of the country. I have despatched expresses to Connecticut to call in their Militia immediately, with their arms, blankets, and what ammunition they have, as the supply here, to suit their guns, is attended with much difficulty and delay. I must beg your attention to the same circumstance, as far as the situation of things will admit, but so as not to hinder from marching those who cannot come so provided.

I am, &c.,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. Samuel Tucker, Esq., President, &c.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL GEORGE CLINTON.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 9, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 2d instant is duly received. Enclosed you have a resolution of the Provincial Convention, which came to hand last evening, by which you will please to regulate your conduct. I must beg you to inform me as soon as possible what number your brigade now consists of, and what number it will contain when a fourth part of the Militia are draughted agreeable to order of Provincial Congress.

By intelligence received and movements observed of the enemy, we have the greatest reason to believe a general attack will be made in the course of a few days. Our numbers are much short of the enemy. I hope no time will be lost in marching the reinforcements expected to our assistance from different quarters, with all possible despatch.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To Brigadier-General George Clinton.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL ELMORE.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 7, 1776.

SIR: On the 1st instant I wrote you, and directed you to march immediately with your regiment to join the Army here. When I gave this order, I supposed you and your regiment to be in Connecticut; but understanding that you have got to Albany with it, or near that place, I have thought proper to countermand the orders then given, and desire that you will put yourself under the command of General Schuyler, and comply with such directions as you may receive from him, being satisfied that you cannot be here in time to give the least assistance.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To Colonel Samuel Elmore, Albany.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

New-York, August 7, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Before this, I presume you have received a letter from Congress enclosing sundry resolutions of the 22d, 23d, and 24th ultimo; among which was one empowering their Commanders-in-Chief in every department to negotiate an exchange of prisoners upon the plan therein pointed out. There were two others, mentioning the case of Colonel Allen and the persons taken with him. That the views of Congress might be carried into execution in those instances as far as they could in this department, and for the enlargement of Mr. Lovell, whose case they have since mentioned, I wrote to General Howe, who has acceded to the several propositions I made him, as far as they came within the extent of his command. A copy of my letter and his answer, I have enclosed. By the latter, you will perceive prisoners made in Canada are subject to General Carleton's determination and pleasure. It is probable you have already written him upon the subject of an exchange; but if you have not, I think you should propose it immediately both to him and General Burgoyne, and try to obtain General Thompson for General Prescott, and also one for the other officers and men who are prisoners in their hands. Justice, and a regard to the merit and bravery of the officers and privates who were taken when General Montgomery unfortunately fell, require that your exertions should be directed to relieve their sufferings, and procure their enlargement among the first. It may not be improper to inform these two gentlemen of what has passed between General Howe and myself. Perhaps the copies of our letters will contribute in some measure to facilitate the work.

I was yesterday evening favoured with your letters of the 1st and 2d; also with one from Mr. Varick. It is impossible to spare any gunners or mates from hence, our posts being so extensive that we are obliged to draught upwards of six hundred men from different regiments to assist the artillery. Colonel Knox informs me you have four companies of gunners and matrosses at the Lakes as good as any here, which is a much greater proportion than we have. You must draw what are necessary from those and other parts of the Army. As to seamen, they are extremely difficult to procure, and I wish they may be got. As it is almost certain they would not engage in the service you mention upon the terms usually allowed here, there seems to have been a necessity for employing them on the best that can be had.

From Lieutenant McMichael's report, our enemies seem determined to push us on all quarters. It is nothing but what we may expect. Your utmost activity and exertions must be employed to counteract their designs, and prevent their penetrating the country. I hope Fort Stanwix ere long will be complete, and defensible against any attack they can make, if they have any such views. The garrison should by all means have a proper supply of provision in case it should be invested.

In respect to the articles in the list marked B, in Mr. Varick's letter, all that can be procured here are those set down in the list subscribed by the Quartermaster-General.

As to the cordage, lest a supply may not be got in Connecticut, Mr. Ivers has undertaken, and will immediately set out for Poughkeepsie, in order to manufacture six or eight tons of hemp. He has there an assortment of it, which will be forwarded to Albany with all possible despatch from thence. I hope the other necessities will be got by the person sent to Connecticut, and the anchors, &c., at the forges Mr. Varick mentions. Captain Bacon, sent in pursuit of seamen, &c., by General Arnold, is gone to Connecticut, to see what he can procure. I advanced him £500, lawful, all the money that was in the Paymaster's hands.

Having represented to Congress the expediency of employing the Stockbridge Indians, as they are desirous of it, they have authorized me to do it, as you will see by the enclosed copy of their resolution passed the 2d instant. If Mr. Edwards is at the treaty you are now holding, show him the resolve, and please to inform him that it is my request he should adopt the most expeditious mode of raising them; giving such of them that choose it, liberty to join the Northern Army, and those that prefer coming here, leave to do it, in case they incline to divide. If they do not, the whole may go to which of the armies they please. Lest Mr. Edwards should not be at the treaty, I will try to write him by another opportunity to the same effect. Congress, I see, too, have ordered $500,000 to be sent Mr. Trumbull for the Northern Army. I am hopeful they will be attentive to the necessary supplies of money in future.

By two deserters, we are informed General Clinton, with his whole Army from the southward, except three companies, has arrived. They also add, that about one thousand of the Hessians have got in. The remainder of the foreign troops they expect (about eleven thousand) will be in every day, those that have arrived having parted with them in a gale of wind off the Banks of Newfoundland.

Congress having resolved that Colonel Elmore's regiment should reinforce this Army, on the 1st instant I wrote him (supposing him in Connecticut with his regiment) to repair here with all possible expedition; but being informed that he is at Albany with it, or a great part of it, ere now, and fully convinced that he cannot be here in time to afford any succour, I request that you will retain him, and direct his regiment to such service as you may think necessary. I wrote him by this opportunity, countermanding my former orders.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Schuyler, Northern Department.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Head-Quarters, August 7, 1776.

SIR: By two deserters this day, we have the following intelligence, viz: That General Clinton and Lord Cornwallis, with the whole Southern Army, have arrived and landed on Staten-Island, from South-Carolina, in number about three or four thousand; that the fleet which came in a few days since are Hessians and Scotch Highlanders, part of twelve thousand who were left off Newfoundland, in the whole making about thirty thousand men; and it is said by officers of the Army and Navy, they are to attack New-York, Long-Island, &c., in the course of a week. The uncommon movements of the fleet this day, together with the above intelligence, convince us that, in all human probability, there can but a very few days pass before a general engagement takes place. When I consider the weakness of our Army by sickness, the great extent of ground we have to defend, and the amazing slowness with which the levies come forward, I think it absolutely necessary the neighbouring Militia should be immediately sent in to our assistance; and, agreeable to your letter of the 6th July, I have ordered the Colonels _____, with their regiments, to march with all convenient speed to this place. The disgrace of the British arms to the southward, and the season being far advanced, will make them exert every nerve against us in this quarter. To trust altogether in the justice of our cause, without our own utmost exertions, would be tempting Providence; and that you may judge of our situation, I give you the present state of our Army.

Copy from the General Return of the Army of the United States of America, now on New-York, Governour's, and Long Islands, and at Powles-Hook, August 3, 1776, viz:

Present fit for duty, 10,514; sick present, 3,039; sick absent, 629; on command, 2,946; on furlough, 97: Total, 17,225. By this, you will see we are to oppose an army of 30,000 experienced veterans with about one-third the number of raw troops, and these scattered some fifteen miles apart.

This will be handed you by Mr. Root. To him I must refer you for further particulars; and have the pleasure to be, your Honour's most obedient servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull, Connecticut.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL FITCH.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 7, 1776.

SIR: The spirit and zeal which the Colony of Connecticut has ever shown in the cause of America, make it only necessary to acquaint you with our situation, in order to ensure your assistance. General Clinton has brought his whole body of troops from South-Carolina; the foreign troops are every day arriving; and we have the most authentick accounts that in a little time our enemy's Army will amount to thirty thousand men. With these a decisive attack will be made upon the Army, which, in its present situation from sickness, the deficiency of regiments, and other causes, is far short of its intended complement. Under these circumstances, I am persuaded I need only remind you of the power given by the laws of the Colony to the Colonels of regiments, upon an alarm, invasion, or appearance of an enemy, by sea or land, to call out their respective regiments into service. Since the settlement of these Colonies, there has never been such just occasion of alarm, or such an appearance of an enemy, both by sea and land. I am therefore to request you to call forth your regiment without delay, and have them equipped with blankets, arms, and ammunition, if possible, and march them immediately to this place, agreeably to the power given by your Constitution, as explained by his Honour Governour Trumbull, in his letter to the honourable Continental Congress, dated the 6th July last. I can only add, that the greater the expedition used, the more essential and honourable the service will probably be. I am, &c.,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To Colonel Fitch, New-Haven.

[The same to Colonel Ichabod Sears, Stratford; to Colonel John Mead, Greenwich; to Colonel Edward Hinman, Woodbury; and to Colonel Joseph Platt Cooke, Danbury.]

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JESSE ROOT.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 7, 1776.

SIR: I have the most authentick intelligence that General Clinton, with his whole Southern Army, one thousand Hessians, and a number of Highlanders, have, within these few days, joined General Howe; and that ten thousand more foreign troops are hourly expected, having been left on the Banks of Newfoundland a few days ago. An attack is now, therefore, to be expected, which will probably decide the fate of America. The levies from New-Jersey, New-York, and Connecticut, are not completed within one-half of their establishment, and my whole Army much short of its complement. Under these circumstances, sir, I must desire you to apply to the several Committees, or other authority of Connecticut, to hasten down, as fast as possible, the Militia; and I cannot doubt but a sense of publick duty and the imminent danger to which everything that is dear to us is exposed, will induce every true friend and lover of his country to exert his utmost powers for its salvation and defence.

I am, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To Jesse Root, Esq.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO TIMOTHY EDWARDS.

New-York, August 7, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed copy of a resolution of Congress, entered into the 2d instant, will discover to you their sentiments on the subject of employing the Stockbridge Indians in the service of the United States. It is certain they differed some time ago from the Commissioners of Indian Affairs, and put a stop to their proceedings in this instance; but finding that our enemies are prosecuting the war with unexampled severity and industry, and that these Indians are anxious to take a part in our favour, they have instructed me to employ in the service of the American States as many of them as I may think proper. I therefore take the liberty to request your friendly exertions on this occasion, and that you will engage in the service as great a number of them as you possibly can. I would wish you to give the whole of them, or any part that may choose it, the liberty of joining either this Army or that in the Northern Department under General Schuyler. I do not think it will be proper, as they are desirous of becoming a part of the Army, to oblige them to join where they have not an inclination to go; and therefore recommend that they should be indulged in whatever way their fancy may lead, as to joining either the one or the other Army, partially or wholly. The situation of our affairs will readily suggest to you the necessity of despatch; at the same time that it will point out the expediency of engaging as many of them as you can. The business may be attended with a degree of trouble, which I could wish not to happen; but yet I am persuaded will be undertaken with alacrity.

I am, &c.,
To Timothy Edwards, Esq., Commissioner of Indian Affairs,
Northern Department, at Stockbridge.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY OF HARTFORD.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am to acquaint you that I lately received a letter from Major French, who is a prisoner in your place, signifying that his parole would be out the 12th instant, and that he had no intentions of renewing it. This conduct, I must confess, appears very extraordinary, as he cannot be ignorant that he has been hitherto considered as a prisoner of war, and that accepting his parole at first was an indulgence granted, solely to make his situation more easy and comfortable, and to prevent his experiencing the disagreeable effects of a close confinement. I have expressed my sentiments to him freely on the subject in my answer, which I enclose unsealed for your perusal. I doubt not you will pursue such measures as are most proper on this occasion. You will please to seal and deliver the letter enclosed without delay, to avoid any trouble that may arise on account of not delivering it previous to the date before mentioned.

I am, with due respect and regard, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.
To the Committee of Safety of Hartford.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO MAJOR FRENCH.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 7, 1776.

SIR: I am to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 22d July, intimating your expectations of release on the 12th of this month.

I have considered your parole, advised with those whose knowledge and experience gives weight to their opinion, and otherwise endeavoured to inform myself how far your construction of it is founded upon justice, reason, or usage. I do not find it warranted by either; my duty therefore obliges me to overrule your claim as a matter of right. As a matter of favour, indulgence is not in my power, even if your general line of conduct as a prisoner had been unexceptionable. I have therefore written to the Committee of Hartford, and sent them a copy of this letter, and hope you will, without difficulty, conform to the regulations already made with respect to prisoners by the General Congress.

It is probable a general exchange of prisoners will soon take place; it will then be a pleasing part of my duty to facilitate your return to your friends and connexions, as, I assure you, it is now a painful one to disappoint you in an expectation which you seem to have formed, in a full persuasion of being right, and in which, on mature deliberation, I am so unhappy as totally to differ with you.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,
Go. WASHINGTON.
To Major French.

JOHN BERRIEN TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

New-York, August 7, 1776.

SIR: In consequence of the resolution of the Convention, enclosed to us, we took the first opportunity of applying to the Reverend Mr. Inghiss, the only Governour of the College in town, who readily consented to the delivery of the telescope for the use of his Excellency General Washington, on which we produced him the resolution marked No. 2.

The General must have been anxious for the receipt of it, for before it could be come at, from the number of boxes, &c., stowed in the small room it was put into at the City-Hall, his Aid-de-camp, Colonel Webb, with some men, were ready to receive it, and it was delivered to him.

We have procured all the books and papers you required from the Custom-House, which we now forward you by Lieutenant Thomas Lawrence, with a guard, as they are in our opinion of great value, and of much consequence. Mr. Moran assures us these are all the papers and books belonging to the Receiver-General's office, and that he is certain there is not any cash.

We are, with much esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servants,

JOHN BERRIEN,
HENRY WILMOT.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Long-Island, Wednesday Evening, August 7, }
nine o'clock. }

DEAR SIR: Colonel Varnum reports from Red-Hook, about sunset and after, as many as one hundred boats were seen coming from Staten-Island to the ships, full of men. Three ships went towards the Narrows; previous to which about thirty boats with soldiers went on board them. From the best observations made by Captain Foster and others, there is a general embarkation.

I have enclosed a report from an officer of one of Colonel Hand's out-guards, sent by express this evening.

Your Excellency will pay the attention the intelligence deserves.

I am, your Excellency's most obedient servant,
NATH. GREENE.

WALTER LIVINGSTON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Albany, August 7, 1776.

SIR: I am greatly distressed for money to purchase provisions for the use of the Army. I am indebted very large sums for flour, transportation of stores, &c., to the amount of about $50,000.

The military chest belonging to this part of the Army is empty. I have written to the Commissary-General, informing him of the necessity there was of sending me money. He has it not, or I am persuaded he would have relieved me.

I have extended my own credit, and that of my friends. I have borrowed moneys on interest, that the service might not be impeded. I am apprehensive it will be impracticable for me to support the Army much longer, unless that sum is sent to discharge my debts, and I could wish a further sum might be advanced to enable me to furnish a future supply. I cannot procure cattle unless I have cash; they are bought in States where my credit does not extend.

I think it is a duty incumbent on me, in General Schuyler's absence, to give your Excellency this information by express, requesting if money can be obtained, that it may be delivered to Captain Teunis V. Vechten.

Hoping your Excellency will excuse this application, I remain your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

WALTER LIVINGSTON,
Deputy Commissary-General.

To His Excellency Major-General George Washington.

P. S. August 9.—By letters last night from Ticonderoga, we are informed that forty sail of French ships are within four leagues of Quebeck, and that General Burgoyne had retreated to the mouth of the Sorel. This account was brought by two French gentlemen in our service.

RICHARD VARICK TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, August 7, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I have only time to enclose you a return of such articles as have been forwarded since mine of the 1st instant. To-morrow I shall do myself the honour to enclose you a general return of all the articles that have been forwarded to Fort George and Wood Creek since General Schuyler's return from Tyonderoga; and after this day you may weekly expect a general return of everything that shall be forwarded from hence. All these articles are sent by General Arnold's and General Schuyler's directions to me, and on Colonel Trumbull's, Colonel Wynkoop's, and General Schuyler's requisitions.

The powder will leave this place on Friday morning, under a Captain's guard; and the shot will be forwarded as soon as the whole is finished; before which time I shall not have it in my power to furnish the moulds requested by Colonel Trumbull. Twelve of the anchors, in the enclosed return, arrived this morning, by the direction of Captain Bacon.

The cannon-shot will be sent as soon as Colonel Livingston shall furnish me with this article, which he promises to do as soon as they can possibly be cast.

I am, dear sir, yours, most respectfully,

RICHARD VARICK.

To the Hon. Major-General Gates.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WATERBURY.

German-Flats, August 7, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Your favour of the 3d instant, from Skenesborough, is come to hand. I thank you for your attention and the information you gave.

Apprehensive that iron and a variety of other articles would be wanted, I have repeatedly ordered every article that could be procured to be sent up. The iron and blacksmith's tools and bellows, I hope you received soon after the date of your letter, as I find they left Albany on the 1st instant. All the spikes that could be procured were sent, and the blacksmiths at Albany are employed in making more, which will be sent as fast as any quantity worth sending are made. A considerable number of axes are already forwarded; more are going up, and as many spades as can be procured.

My long stay here very much distresses me. It is, however, a great alleviation of my anxiety that you are at Skenesborough, as I am confident that you will expedite the work as much as possible.

I am, dear General, sincerely your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To General Waterbury.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

German-Flats, August 7, 1776.

SIR: I am honoured with your favour of the 31st July. A variety of business claiming my attention when I entreated you to aid me in procuring axes for the Army, I forgot to point out the route by which I wished them, and every article from your Colony, to be sent to the Army; and although I could not have been particular, I might have observed that the most direct road to Skenesborough would not only be the speediest, but cheapest; and that way I wish things to be sent in future. Colonel Campbell, I am informed, has left the Army. Who acts as Deputy Quartermaster-General now, I am not yet advised of. If any article you send is directed to the Deputy Quartermaster-General, the person acting as such will pass his receipts for what may be delivered to him.

I am this moment going to open the conference with the Indians, who are collected from all the Six Nations, and some Delawares and Mohegans. The number, including women and children, now here, is seventeen hundred and eighteen, and one hundred and sixty more are expected to-day.

I am, with great respect, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esq.

GENERAL ARNOLD TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, August 7, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I found on my arrival here last evening the galleys much more forward than I expected. Three will be launched in a fortnight, if not sooner, and timber is cut for three or four others. The carpenters are very industrious and spirited. Nothing will retard the building but want of plank and iron. I have written Captain Varick to hurry on the latter, and have ordered the carpenters to omit building more gondolas than those on the stocks; as they take a large quantity of plank, and retard the building of the galleys, which are of more consequence. One gondola will be launched to-morrow, and the eighth and last in a few days. The seamen will be draughted this afternoon, and to-morrow I hope to have the pleasure of seeing you at Ticonderoga.

I am, with sentiments of esteem and respect, dear General, your obedient, humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

To the Hon. General Gates.

P. S. Militia come in fast. Nothing new at Albany the 4th instant.

B. A.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL WATERBURY.

Tyonderoga, August 7, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: This will be delivered to you by Lieutenant-Colonel Connor, of Colonel Wingate's regiment of New-Hampshire Militia. I send him with a number of batteaus to bring the rest of Colonel Wingate's regiment and the rest of Colonel Wyman's regiment to this post, where ground is marked out and a station appointed for those two regiments. I will be much obliged to you to acquaint me what Militia regiments that arrive at your post are supplied with tents, and what not. When more are ordered to this place, you will send those first who are supplied with tents.

General Arnold, who went to Skenesborough this day, will apply to you for all the seamen that can be supplied from your post.

I am, sir, &c.,

HORATIO GATES.

To General Waterbury.

Orders and Instructions for the Hon. BENEDICT ARNOLD, Esq., Brigadier-General in the Army of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

Upon your arrival at Crown-Point, you will proceed, with the Fleet of the United States under your command, down Lake Champlain, to the narrow pass of the Lake made by the Split Rock, or to the other narrow approach down the Lake, made by Isle-aux-Têtes and the opposite shore. You will station the fleet in the best manner to maintain the possession of those passes, according as your judgment shall determine, cautiously avoiding to place the vessels in a manner which might unnecessarily expose them to the enemy's heavy artillery from the shore. You will most religiously observe that it is my positive order that you do not command the fleet to sail below the pass of the Isle-aux-Têtes, above mentioned, incessantly reflecting, that the preventing the enemy's invasion of our country is the ultimate end of the important command with which you are now intrusted. It is a defensive war we are carrying on, therefore no wanton risk or unnecessary display of the power of the fleet is at any time to influence your conduct. Should the enemy come up the Lake, and attempt to force their way through the pass you are stationed to defend, in that case you will act with such cool, determined valour, as will give them reason to repent their temerity. But if, contrary to my hope and expectation, their fleet should have so increased as to force an entrance into the upper part of the Lake, then, after you shall have discovered the insufficiency of every effort to retard their progress, you will, in the best manner you can, retire with your squadron to Ticonderoga. Every vessel in the fleet being furnished with a batteau, you will have it in your power to keep out scout-boats at night, and occasionally to annoy the enemy's small craft. In the daytime your boats can act, when opportunity offers, under cover of the cannon of your fleet.

As the most honourable the Congress of the United States rest a great dependance on your wise and prudent conduct in the management of this fleet, you will on no account detach yourself from it, upon the lesser services above mentioned. A resolute but judicious defence of the northern entrance into this side of the Continent, is the momentous part which is committed to your courage and abilities. I doubt not you will secure it from further invasion.

As I am entirely unacquainted with Marine affairs, I shall not presume to give any directions respecting the duty and discipline of the seamen and marines on board the fleet.

I have traced the great outline of that service which your country expects from the rank and character you have acquired. I have, as is my duty, fixed the limits beyond which you are not to go. But you must communicate that restriction to nobody. I wish, on the contrary, that words occasionally dropped from you, with that prudence which excludes every sort of affectation, and which, I believe, you possess, may, together with all your motions, induce our own people to conclude it is our real intention to invade the enemy, which, after all, may happen. It will keep up their spirits without affecting your reputation, whatever may be the event.

It only remains for me to recommend you to the protection of that Power upon whose mercy we place our hopes of freedom here, and of happiness hereafter. You will frequently report the state and situation of your fleet, and of every interesting occurrence.

Given at Ticonderoga, this 7th day of August, 1776.

HORATIO GATES, Major-General.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Tyonderoga, August 7, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed I have the honour to transmit to your Excellency a general return of the troops immediately under my command. It is as perfect as the circumstances will admit; but the numbers at the General Hospital at Lake George, and upon both communications, where correctness is not attended to with that diligence required by good discipline, obliges me to send it somewhat imperfect to your Excellency. The very great desertion from this Army has, I believe, been principally occasioned by the dread of the small-pox; but many have also been induced to desert by the vast bounty given for substitutes in the Militia: fifty dollars a man have, in many instances, been given to men who enlisted in the Militia from New-Hampshire. This aggravates and disgusts the Continental regiments so much, that I am apprehensive it will be extremely difficult to retain them for another campaign. This, as it well deserves the attention of your Excellency and the Congress, will, I dare say, be duly regarded.

In the packet your Excellency will find the examinations of four French Captains of Colonel Livingston's Canadian regiment. The two latter differ materially from the two former. My Secretary, who is an Old France gentleman, and perfectly skilled in the language, interpreted the facts contained in it. Upon the same sheet is the examination of Lieutenant Whitcomb of Colonel Burrell's Connecticut regiment, which corresponds in some degree with the information of Captain Mesnard and his associate.

Your Excellency will also find enclosed a copy of my letter of yesterday to the President of the honourable the Continental Congress. General Schuyler will doubtless by the same conveyance send his report of what has been doing upon the Mohawk River, and of the state of the troops there, and upon the communication from the great Oneida carrying-place to Albany.

Last night General Waterbury sent the enclosed report from Skenesborough. I believe your Excellency will think with me how justly Captain Wethersbee deserves to be punished. These men get an enormous bounty from their countrymen, are highly paid by the Continent, and then, rather than march where they are commanded, they get inoculated, by which a month of the short time they are engaged for elapses, and perhaps the health of the whole Army is endangered. I have sent a state of this scandalous affair to Governour Trumbull and Major Hawley. They, I think, will find some method to punish the delinquents; to bring them here, in our circumstances, would be ruin.

Colonel Stark, in the name of the Field-Officers of this Army, delivered me yesterday the enclosed paper. I think it beyond me to determine upon it, and shall wait your Excellency's commands thereupon.

The campaign in Canada has been, beyond a doubt, exceedingly severe; the retreat from thence distressful, and attended with a variety of calamitous circumstances. I am sure it is the wish of your Excellency and this Congress to reward the deserving officer. Some small soulagement to these troops would not be misplaced, to soften the rigours they have endured.

Major Pierce being extremely ill of a fever, leaves me and my Secretary more writing to do than we can possibly accomplish. The Congress, your Excellency, and General Schuyler, with all the necessary business of this Army, cause more writing than two hands can well perform.

With my most respectful compliments to your Excellency, I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To His Excellency General Washington.

Report of Captain ANTHONY MESNARD's Examination.

Captain Mesnard, who arrived here the 6th instant, was at Chambly the 14th ultimo, and on the evening of the same day accidentally met in the woods, about three leagues from that place, with L'Oiseau and Allain, who had left their homes about a week before, whose intelligence, therefore, could not be so fresh, and, moreover, was to have been supported by Captain Mesnard's. He confirms, indeed, what the others said relative to the commissions burnt by the Militia, and other officers, employed by Congress; but he denies the confiscation of any estate belonging to those who have retreated with our Army. He says there was a secret report of a fleet being down the river, but could not learn any of the motions mentioned by L'Oiseau and Allain. He affirms there were about four thousand men at Chambly, St. John's, and on the Sorel, all English, and that about two thousand, and no more, Germans were at Montreal and La Prairie; that one deserter, and no more, of these Germans, was at Mr. Metcalf's. This deserter, who travelled along with them from near Chambly to Mr. Metcalf's, where he was left, being over-fatigued, had been kindly entertained and concealed in a house near the place where Mesnard met with L'Oiseau and Allain; and he told them that sixty (not seventy) of his comrades had deserted together on the same day.

Mesnard reports likewise, that Governour Carleton transported his artillery to and from Isle-aux-Noix, Chambly, and St. John's, but does not know the reason of that manœuvre. His report is nearly the same as theirs respecting the enemy's batteaus, but then, he declares, that when the Committee of Newbury examined them, he upbraided L'Oiseau and Allain for giving false intelligence; but that they had the advantage of him, as Allain, who is an Acadian and speaks good English, could tell the Committee what he pleased to tell them. It is very necessary here to observe, that when Allain was examined in the presence of General Gates, he pretended he could hardly speak English, and therefore was questioned in French only by the General's Secretary. The other parts of the intelligence given by Allain and L'Oiseau are nearly similar to that of Mesnard, excepting the few particulars which are not mentioned in this, and not evidently contradicted by it.

Lieutenant Whitcomb's report, which shall be added to this as soon as delivered by him, in writing, seems to confirm Captain Mesnard's.

August 7, 1776.

N. B. Lieutenant Whitcomb has on this day, the 9th instant, delivered a Journal, sent herewith by the General.

A Journal of a scout from CROWN-POINT to ST. JOHN'S, CHAMBLY, &c., &c., by Lieutenant BENJAMIN WHITCOMB and four men, as follows, viz:

July 14th, set out from Crown-Point, went seven miles that night; the wind being very high, we could go no farther. Fifteenth day we got to Onion River at dark; the wind and rain being severe, we could go no farther. Sixteenth day was obliged to lay by, the weather being very tempestuous. Seventeenth, in the evening, we set out, and went twenty miles. Eighteenth the wind and rain being so severe, we could not move from our present station. Nineteenth, at night, we set out and arrived at the head of Masisque-Bay at break of day. Twentieth day we travelled till we came opposite St. John's. The two Frenchmen being uneasy and not willing to go near St. John's, I told them to take a Frenchman and examine him and return home; upon which we left them, and went towards St. John's. In the evening we came within about five miles of St. John's, heard the drum beat, &c. Twenty-first, the day being cloudy and rainy, we got to the river about noon; we lay there all day in hopes of taking a prisoner, but none appeared. Twenty-second, at day-break, we went down to the river side, staid there till the sun was half an hour high, counted thirty batteaus in the water all finished, nine on the stocks; there were also six saws employed by hand to saw boards, all appearing to work with great life and activity; staying there all day till night, and finding none except the guard, they keeping close, we imagined it difficult to get a prisoner there. We then set out to go to Chambly, and on the way saw four batteaus laden with barrels; we then proceeded to a French house, where we found a canoe, and crossed the river at the lower end of the Island, where we saw a large number of lights, and supposed them to be a party of Regulars consisting of about one hundred. We supposed there were at St. John's, of Regulars, between two and three thousand. Then going into the road leading into Montreal, we soon perceived we were discovered by the enemy; returned from the road a small distance, and then went forward about a mile and came into the road again. Immediately a file of men passed, upon which I concealed myself, and after they had passed me, returned again into the road and followed them a small distance, where I perceived them sitting, who discovered us again, upon which we concealed ourselves a second time. Coming again near the road, we made observations on the road and passengers; observed seventeen carts laden with barrels going towards St. John's; also seven armed Indians. That evening went in search of provisions, at which time the man who was in company left me. Twenty-third, early in the morning, I returned to my former place of abode, staid there the whole day, saw twenty-three carts laden with barrels and tents going to St. John's. Twenty-fourth, staid at the same place till about twelve o'clock, then fired on an officer,* and moved immediately into Chambly road; being discovered, retreated back into the woods, and staid till night; then taking the road and passing the guards till I came below Chambly, finding myself discovered, was obliged to conceal myself in the brush till dark. The 25th instant, on which I made my escape by the guards, I saw upwards of forty carts preparing to go to St. John's, and I judge there were lying at that place and on the road about one full regiment of Regulars. Twenty-sixth, on my march towards Montreal road, I saw a party of Regulars coming towards me, upon which I made my escape as fast as possible, by the way promising myself some provisions. Came to the aforesaid road again; saw twenty-seven armed Indians passing towards St. John's, and a considerable number of empty carts returning towards Montreal; at the same time heard thirty-four platoons fired towards Montreal, and heard near the same number fired every evening and morning from the same parts during the whole of my stay in those parts. Twenty-seventh, setting out for home, on the west side of the Lake, nothing remarkable happened, only detained by bad weather, and under great disadvantages in travelling for want of a compass. Arrived at this place on the 6th of August.

BENJAMIN WHITCOMB, Lieutenant.

* [General Gordon.]

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO NATHANIEL SHAW, JUN.

Lebanon, August 7, 1776.

SIR: I received yours of yesterday per Captain Richard Deshon. The sloop purchased from Captain Walker I trust will be got ready for service with all possible diligence and despatch. Captain Leonard Van Buren brings letters from General Schuyler. He will show you the invoice of articles to be purchased for the use of the United States. Be so good as to give him your best advice. If there is anything wherein you can furnish him, please to do it, and signify it to me. Mention is made as though Mr. Mumford is able to afford assistance in the matter: please to let Mr. Van Buren know concerning it, and direct him to apply to Mr. Mumford, if probable. It requires despatch. Gen. Schuyler writes for five Captains to command vessels on Lake Champlain, to engage and carry with them forty men apiece. Please to advise me on this head. I expect Mr. Van Buren's return to-morrow.

I am, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

JONA. TRUMBULL.

To Nathaniel Shaw, Jun., Esq.

COLONEL WARD TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Guilford, August 7, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I received your order dated the 1st of August, which I prosecuted with as much despatch as possible; last evening, those bearing date the 5th. Shall send orders to the several Captains with as much speed as I can, and hope soon to have the regiment on their march. Wish it might be as agreeable to the officers and men as to myself. I have received a line from Captains Cutler, Stedman, and Dennie, in which they express their fears that it will be very disagreeable to their soldiers to march anywhere but to Boston, which I was sorry to hear. Make no doubt your Honour will do all in your power to make them easy with their destination, should they be otherwise. From what returns I have had the regiment is not full—Captain Prior sixty-one, Dana eighty, Cutler forty-one, Stedman forty, and Captain Meigs forty, are all the returns I have received. Captain Prior told me he believed Phelps and Pettibone had more enlisted than he. The Field-Officers' commissions I have not heard whether they have arrived from Congress. We had a report in town last night by Colonel Walcott, that one of our row-galleys had returned to New-York, having split her gun; the others were playing on the ships up the river. I shall do all in my power to join the Army as soon as possible.

I am, sir, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

ANDREW WARD, JUN.

To Governour Trumbull.

GENERAL WARD TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Boston, August 7, 1776.

SIR: I beg leave to recommend to your notice Mr. Nathaniel Barber, Jun., Deputy Commissary of Artillery in this department; he has ever appeared to me to be a faithful, active officer, and very well calculated for the department in which he has acted; he has no establishment, and therefore applied to me to write to Congress that one might be made. I conceive that as it is an important office, and the duties attending it are not small, the establishment ought to be equal to a Captain's pay; however, of this Congress is the judge; and I should not have given any opinion respecting it, but from an apprehension that you might incline to have some information with regard to the duties of such an office in this department.

I am, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

State of Massachusetts-Bay, in Committee of Council, }
Watertown, August 7, 1776. }

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: Your letter of the 25th ultimo, enclosing a resolve of the honourable Congress of the 8th of July, respecting the place of rendezvous for the battalions raising in this State for Canada, has been considered by us, and it is with pleasure we can inform your Excellency that we apprehend everything that is necessary has been done respecting the matter, agreeable to the resolve of Congress, and that General Schuyler and Commissary Trumbull have been made fully acquainted with the route the troops were to take, and that they approve of the same, and have given directions for their being supplied accordingly.

In the name and by order of the Committee, I have the honour to be, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN WINTHROP, Chairman.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq., Commander-in-Chief of the Forces of the United States of America, at New-York.

JOHN AVERY TO ABSENT MEMBERS OF THE MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

In Committee of Council, Boston, August 7, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by the Committee of Council to acquaint you that there are many important matters now before them, which require the presence of the major part of the Council; therefore it is requested that your Honour would, without fail, give your attendance at the Board on Tuesday next, ten o'clock in the forenoon.

In the name and per order of the Committee of Council:

JOHN AVERY, Dep. Sec.

LORD GEORGE GERMAINE TO WILLIAM HEY.

Whitehall, August 8, 1776.

SIR: His Majesty's Province of Quebeck being cleared of the Rebels, it becomes highly necessary that the Courts of Justice should be forthwith opened, and publick business carried on in the usual form. I must, therefore, beg the favour of you to acquaint me, for his Majesty's information, by what time you can be ready to embark for that Province. I am, &c.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO JOHN HANSON.

[No. 127.]

Annapolis, August 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We send you the sum of £300 currency, for purchase of arms and blankets, in consequence of a letter of the 5th instant received from Mr. Hanson, your Chairman; but you will be pleased to observe that the riflemen find their own guns, which, by order of Congress, are to be appraised and paid for by the United Colonies. The German companies we have nothing further to do with, but to pay their bounty money, which we have already done. What arms or blankets you may purchase more than sufficient for the Flying-Camp; in your County, be pleased to send down to us under guard. Major Price alleges he contracted for a number of rifles, which have been given out without his directions. You will set this matter right, and will soon have an opportunity of doing so, as Major Price is coming up to Frederick-Town.

We are, &c.

To John Hanson, Esq., Chairman of Committee of Middle District of Frederick County.

MATTHEW TILGHMAN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Talbot County, August 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Upon the resignation of Mr. Thomas as Quartermaster of the Fourth Battalion, Mr. William Perry is desirous of being placed in his stead. I therefore beg leave to recommend him to your favour, as a person who, in my opinion, will not fail to execute the office properly, and whose appointment will give satisfaction.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

MAT. TILGHMAN.

To the Hon. Council of Safety of Maryland, at Annapolis.

August 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed you have my commission of Quartermaster, which I resign, and earnestly request you to appoint Mr. William Perry in my stead. His being appointed I think will give general satisfaction.

I am, gentlemen, your very obedient servant,

NIC. THOMAS.

To the Hon. Council of Safety of Maryland.

CAPTAIN MANTZ TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Leonardtown, August 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am sorry to inform you of the disappointment I and my company have met with; and am really sorry to say, that I believe I shall not have one-third of my men able to do duty, if we should continue here for ten or fifteen days. People here are unprovided with provisions, which I believe are not to be had at any rates. The greater part of my men have been obliged to live forty-eight hours without the least bit of bread or meat, by which means some of them were obliged to act disagreeably and dissatisfactorily to me, although I could not by any means prevent them. The water and climate here are very unhealthy to those people especially who came from my quarter. Although, gentlemen, if it is not in your power, or cannot be obtained by us to return to a place more healthy and agreeable to my men, and where they may perhaps be of more service to their country, I am willing to comply with your orders, and die in the cause. I am at present out of cash, and would be glad if you would furnish me as soon as possible, as nothing here is to be had without.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant,

PETER MANTZ.

To the Honourable Council of Safety.

ISAAC GRIEST TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore-Town, August 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to your instructions of the 6th, I have made inquiry for tent-makers, but could find none in this place, except those employed by the Council of Safety, and they tell me that they will engage to deliver between fifty and sixty tents every week, provided they are supplied with stuff to make them with. They say they have about twenty made, or will be by the last of this week, and have wrought up all the stuff they have. I shall have tent-polls made for each tent. Colonel Thomas Ewing has applied to me for a number of canteens, and them to be slung. Pray shall I have them slung, and let him have them? The slinging of them will be one shilling each. Should be glad of your orders in the matter. I have all the coopers that I can get employed at the canteens, but they come on but slowly as yet. Most people most approve of the oak ones.

All from yours to command,

I. GRIEST.

To the Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, August 8, 1776.

SIR: Your letters of the 7th, with the papers enclosed, are received and now under consideration of Congress.

Enclosed I send you a resolution passed respecting Lieutenant Josiah. He was first Lieutenant of Captain Nicholas Biddle, and was taken in a ship Captain Biddle had made prize of, by the Cerberus frigate. By a letter which he found means to convey, he informs, that "he is used worse than he ever thought one Englishman could use another; that he was sent before the mast with the rest, but upon refusing to do duty was given under the charge of three boatswain's mates, and expects the gangway soon, as he is daily threatened."

An order is this moment passed for calling General Lee from the southward, and to-morrow is appointed for electing a number of Major-Generals and Brigadier-Generals.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. You will please to mention the matter of Lieutenant Josiah as real information, but not discover that it was by letter, as it may prove injurious in case he is not exchanged.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL LEE.

Philadelphia, August 8, 1776.

SIR: The Congress having this day received a letter from General Washington, containing very important information, I do myself the honour to enclose you a copy of the same. You will there perceive that General Clinton, with the troops under his command, has joined General Howe at Staten-Island, having left South-Carolina soon after the defeat he and Commodore Parker sustained at Sullivan's Island. In consequence of this intelligence the Congress are convinced that the enemy, by collecting their whole force into a point, are determined to make a most vigorous exertion at New-York; and, in order to ensure success in that quarter, are disposed for the present to overlook every other object. The getting possession of that city, and the junction of the two Armies under Generals Howe and Burgoyne, seem to be the grand objects they have in view, to the attainment of which they give up every inferior consideration.

In this situation of our affairs, the Congress being of opinion your services in the Middle Department will be necessary, I have it in command to direct that you repair as soon as possible to the City of Philadelphia, there to receive such orders as they may think proper to give you. The attack at New-York being hourly expected, and the event of it uncertain, I am to request you will use the greatest expedition on the way.

With the best wishes for your health and prosperity, I have the honour to be, with the utmost respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Lee, South-Carolina.

CÆSAR RODNEY TO THOMAS RODNEY.

Philadelphia, August 8, 1776.

SIR: As I have received no letter from you by the last post, and have little or no intelligence except what you will find in the papers, am at loss what to write you.

The Delaware battalion is under marching orders for Amboy, subject to General Washington's further orders. They are completely armed—as fine guns as you could wish to see.

Having a few idle moments, I have enclosed you a paper containing a few queries, and submit to you whether that, or something like it, taken and copied in an unknown hand, and secretly distributed, so as to become publick at this time, might not be of use, by drawing the serious attention of the people at this important crisis. But as I know but very little, or rather nothing, of the present politicks or the disposition of the people at this time, wholly submit the matter to you, and wish the people may consider their true interest.

Mr. McKean is still in the Jerseys, and not likely soon to return. The terms of Confederation now before the Congress, and our Colony not represented without Read and me both, therefore cannot expect to see you in Kent very soon.

I am yours, &c.,

CÆSAR RODNEY.

War Office, Philadelphia, August 8, 1776.

The Congress having resolved "That the Commanding Officers of the several Battalions of Militia now in this city be ordered instantly to march to Amboy, in New-Jersey, and that in case any of the Militia want arms, that they be left under a proper officer until they can be provided with arms, and those that have arms march without any further delay; and that the Board of War be directed to see this resolution carried into immediate execution:" I have it in direction from the Board of War to notify all the Officers commanding Battalions or detached Companies, now in this city, of the said resolve of Congress, and they are hereby required to pay immediate obedience thereto.

RICHARD PETERS, Secretary.

Philadelphia, August 8, 1776.

The Commanding Officer of the Detachment of Associators left for the defence of the city, for the last time gives notice to the persons who have entered into the several companies and do not attend their duty, that they will be severely dealt with unless they immediately alter their conduct. It is extremely hard upon their fellow-citizens, some of whom are obliged to do double duty, owing to the negligence of others in not attending roll-calling, and thereby escaping being put upon guard. Those who have entered their names, as many seem to have done, to save appearances, will not be surprised if they see a catalogue of delinquents published, besides feeling the inconveniences of a rigid execution of the articles by which we are bound. The example of one is constantly an argument for the delinquency of another, and therefore every individual neglecting his duty does a double injury. Calling upon people, over whom command should be exercised, in this way, may, perhaps, be unsoldierly, but as they are his fellow-citizens, who from hard necessity have become soldiers, it will relieve the Officer from the least anxiety, after the Associators being thus reminded of their duty, when (with the concurrence and assistance of the other Officers and Privates, who have virtue enough to attend to the service and support authority) he executes his, as he ever has, and means in future to do, without distinction of persons. It is too late now to talk of those who, let their motives be inability, cowardice, or an aversion to our cause, have refused to enter into the service of their country. Leave them to be properly dealt with, as they certainly will be, by our Convention or Legislature. Those who refuse their duty on this account, afford consequence to people who deserve none, and give their tardiness or baseness double force. Every one has it in his election whether or not he will become a soldier. If he does not, he subjects himself to the disgrace and penalties attending his situation; but when he has engaged in that capacity, he is bound to an adherence to discipline.

TO THE COMMANDING OFFICER OF THE DETACHMENT OF ASSOCIATORS LEFT FOR THE DEFENCE OF THE CITY.

A private Associator, who has lately been a delinquent at roll-calling, having seen your publication of the 8th instant, desires to inform, that his absence has been entirely owing to the partial and unjust conduct exercised over those who had entered to do the necessary duty of the city. He should not think himself justified in neglecting of duty, had he not frequently desired the officers to exercise their authority, and enrol all Associators who had not joined their respective companies at the camp agreeable to the resolve of the Committee of Safety of the 17th ultimo. This would oblige you to compel some of rank and fortune, who have had the credit of associating, but never experienced any of the fatigue or duty attending it. Those, sir, you still seem inclinable not to notice, as persons of no consequence. There can be but little expectation of those persons being properly dealt with, who, from inability, cowardice, or an aversion to our cause, have refused to enter into the service of their country, if officers have not resolution enough to execute the Resolves of Convention or Committee of Safety, without respect of persons.

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. I.

He knows of no authority any commanding officer has to publish delinquents without a trial, yet is by no means surprised at this stretch of prerogative, as it is far short of what has been already exercised over those who have already submitted to your partial command; and should his name as a delinquent appear in publick, he shall expect it to follow those who never attended, nor have given any reasonable excuse for their neglects. If so, he shall think it his duty to return to his company; but if otherwise, he shall rest satisfied with the stigma of having dared to exercise the right of a freeman, knowing that his offence consists in refusing to crouch to the arbitrary designs and impositions of a few rich men. For his part, he knows no reason why any one Associator should enjoy privileges distinct from another of equal rank and degree. When this equality becomes the rule of conduct for our officers, he shall esteem it his greatest glory to serve under them.

GENERAL MERCER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Elizabeth-Town, August 8, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour this morning, and am very glad to find Mr. Maddison and Mr. Johnston here, who are immediately from Staten-Island. They intend to pay their respects to your Excellency. It will, therefore, be improper to take up your time with relating what you will hear from these gentlemen. That some attempt will speedily be made with the greater part of the enemy's force, is confirmed by all accounts. I shall endeavour to have the troops in this quarter in as good preparation as I can, and will with great alacrity give my assistance in such way as you are pleased to point out.

The Militia are brought into somewhat better temper. Their well or ill-founded complaints have given me a great deal of concern; but it has given me more anxiety to find, by a letter from Colonel Reed, that constructing lines of defence was expected here, when it was difficult to keep the troops from deserting the posts.

It will always give me pleasure to receive and obey your commands.

I am, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

HUGH MERCER.

P. S. Generals Roberdeau and Ewing accompanied me here in hopes of having the pleasure of meeting your Excellency.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read August 12, 1776. Referred to the Board of War.]

New-York, August 8, 1776.

SIR: By yesterday morning's post, I was honoured with your favour of the 2d instant, with sundry resolutions of Congress, to which I shall pay strict attention. As the proposition for employing the Stockbridge Indians has been approved, I have written to Mr. Edwards, one of the Commissioners, and who lives among them, requesting him to engage them, or such as are willing to enter the service. I have directed him to indulge them with liberty to join this or the Northern Army, or both, as their inclination may lead.

I wish the salutary consequences may result from the regulation respecting seamen taken, that Congress have in view. From the nature of this kind of people, and the privileges granted on their entering into our service, I should suppose many of them will do it. We want them much.

I yesterday transmitted the intelligence I received from the deserters from the Solebay man-of-war. The enclosed copy of a letter by last night's post, from the Honourable Mr. Bowdoin, with the information of a Captain Kennedy, lately taken, corroborate their accounts respecting the Hessian troops. Indeed, his report makes the fleet and armament to be employed against us greater than what we have heard they would be; however, there remains no doubt of their being large and formidable, and such as will require our most vigorous exertions to oppose them. Persuaded of this, and knowing how much inferior our numbers are and will be to theirs when the whole of their troops arrive, and of the important consequences that may and will flow from the appeal that will soon be made, I have written to Connecticut and New-Jersey for all the succour they can afford, and also to the Convention of this State. What I may receive and in what time, the event must determine. But I would fain hope the situation, the exigency of our affairs, will call forth the most strenuous efforts and early assistance of those who are friends to the cause. I confess there is but too much occasion for their exertions. I confidently trust they will not be withheld.

I have enclosed a copy of a letter from Mr. Bowdoin, respecting the Eastern Indians. Congress will thereby perceive that they profess themselves to be well attached to our interest, and the summary of the measures taken to engage them in our service. I have the treaty at large between the honourable Council of the Massachusetts, on behalf of the United States, with the Delegates of the St. John's and the Mickmack Tribes. The probability of a copy's being sent already, and its great length, prevent one coming herewith. If Congress have not had it forwarded to them, I will send a copy by the first opportunity after notice that it has not been received.

August 9th.—By a report received from General Greene last night, at sunset and a little after about a hundred boats were seen bringing troops from Staten-Island to the ships; three of which had fallen down towards the Narrows, having taken in soldiers from thirty of the boats. He adds, that by the best observations of several of the officers, there appeared to be a general embarkation.

I have written to General Mercer for two thousand men from the Flying-Camp. Colonel Smallwood's battalion, as part of them, I expect this forenoon; but where the rest are to come from, I know not, as, by the General's last return, not more than three or four hundred of the new levies had got in.

In my letter of the 5th, I enclosed a general return of the Army under my immediate command, but I imagine the following state will give Congress a more perfect idea, though not a more agreeable one, of our situation: For the several posts on New-York, Long, and Governour's Islands, and Paulus Hook, we have fit for duty 10,514, sick present 3,039, sick absent 629, on command 2,946, on furlough 97: Total 17,225. In addition to these, we are only certain of Colonel Smallwood's battalion in case of an immediate attack. Our posts, too, are much divided, having waters between many of them, and some distant from others fifteen miles. These circumstances, sufficiently distressing of themselves, are much aggravated by the sickness that prevails through the Army. Every day more or less are taken down, so that the proportion of men that may come in cannot be considered as a real and serviceable augmentation in the whole. These things are melancholy, but they are nevertheless true. I hope for better. Under every disadvantage my utmost exertions shall be employed to bring about the great end we have in view; and so far as I can judge from the professions and apparent disposition of my troops, I shall have their support. The superiority of the enemy and the expected attack, do not seem to have depressed their spirits. These considerations lead me to think, that though the appeal may not terminate so happily in our favour as I could wish, that yet they will not succeed in their views, without considerable loss. Any advantage they may get, I trust, will cost them dear.

Eight o'clock, A. M.—By the Rev. Mr. Maddison and a Mr. Johnston, two gentlemen of Virginia, who came from Staten-Island yesterday, and where they arrived the day before in the packet with Colonel Guy Johnson, I am informed that nothing material had taken place in England when they left it; that there had been a change in the French Ministry, which many people thought foreboded a war; that it seemed to be believed by many that Congress would attempt to buy off the foreign troops, and that it might be effected without great difficulty. Their accounts from Staten-Island nearly correspond with what we had before. They say that every preparation is making for an attack; that the force now upon the Island is about fifteen thousand; that they appear very impatient for the arrival of the foreign troops, but a very small part having got in. Whether they would attempt anything before they came, they are uncertain; but they are sure they will as soon as they arrive, if not before. They say, from what they could collect from the conversation of officers, &c., they mean to hem us in by getting above us and cutting off all communication with the country. That this is their plan seems to be corroborated and confirmed by the circumstance of some ships-of-war going out at different times within a few days past, and other vessels. It is probable that a part are to go round and come up the Sound.

Mr. Maddison says Lord Howe's powers were not known when he left England; that General Conway moved, before his departure, that they might be laid before the Commons, and had his motion rejected by a large majority.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress.

Boston, July 29, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed declaration is this moment sent to me by the Sheriff, which I thought necessary to be communicated to your Excellency. The ship Peggy, mentioned in it, was taken by two of the Continental cruisers, and sent into Marblehead. The passengers on board, who fled from Boston last March, came to town this morning, and are now in jail here, who, I understand, have been, or will be, examined by General Ward. It is probable you will have by this post the result of that examination; but if you should not, the enclosed may give you some necessary information. I cannot be more particular, as the post is just setting out.

I have the honour to be, with the most perfect regard, your Excellency's most obedient, &c.,

JAMES BOWDOIN.

To His Excellency General Washington.

Boston Jail, July 29, 1776.

I, James Kennedy, Master of the ship Peggy, in the merchant service, declare, that I left Halifax about the 1st instant, under convoy of the Renown, of fifty guns, with a fleet of sixteen transports, containing the Forty-Second and Seventy-First Regiments, and Frazer's new-raised regiment, about three thousand in all, and three large ships with Hessian troops on board, about six hundred in all, and one ship with five companies of English Foot Guards, and four victualling ships, the whole fleet bound to New-York. Off Nantucket Shoals we fell in with the Flora frigate, of thirty guns, and four transports, with the land troops, that had been in Boston Bay, where they got information from a fisherman that the town was evacuated, on which they stood for Halifax, until they met with us; they then joined our fleet for New-York. The Scotch troops were all to be of Colonel Campbell's division of the grand Army in America, (the whole of which Army, I was informed, would, by the last of July, amount to fifty thousand men.) The Hessian troops left England about the 12th of May. Some of the officers informed me that they came out with three hundred and four sail, under the command of Commodore Hotham, on board of whom were ten thousand foreign troops, and some English troops, (number unknown.) Last Friday se'nnight, in a gale of wind and thick weather, lost the fleet, and on Monday I fell in with two armed schooners, Captains Skinner and Tucker, to whom I surrendered after a short engagement, in which I had only one man wounded. The day after the fleet left Halifax, I saw from my deck forty sail of ships standing in for that harbour, and which I suppose to be part of the fleet under Commodore Hotham.

Boston, July 30, 1776.

SIR: At the time your Excellency's letter was received, requesting the aid of this Government in procuring a body of the Eastern Indians for the service of the United States, it happened very fortunately that a number of them were here as delegates from the St. John's and Mickmack tribes, in Nova-Scotia. They came on a visit to you, in consequence of your letter to them, which they produced; and soon after a couple of chiefs arrived here from the Penobscot tribe. At the conference held with the former, there appeared in them a very good disposition towards the United States, and the General Court having resolved that a regiment should be raised for the service of the State, to consist of five hundred Indians and two hundred and fifty English, it was strongly urged upon them to join with us in the war; and accordingly they have engaged to do it, and have signed a treaty for that purpose. By what they said at the conference, it appeared the six villages they represented could furnish about one hundred and twenty men; but as those villages are at a great distance from each other, their men dispersed in hunting, and they proposed to call the whole together, they said they should not be able, and they could not engage to come until next spring. The St. John's delegates, however, on being told they lived near, and could be soon here again, promised to return early in the fall, with about thirty of their tribe. There are six other nations of Mickmacks, who had not been informed of your letter, and had not therefore sent delegates, but are equally well disposed, and have about the same number of men belonging to them. These, therefore, probably will furnish for the service a like number of men with the other. With regard to the Penobscots, they appeared well disposed. They said that when General Washington sent his Army to Canada, five of their people went with them, and were at the siege of Quebeck, two of whom were wounded, and three taken prisoners, who had since returned; that they had been promised an allowance should be made to those who went with Colonel Arnold, the support of whose families in their absence had been a great burden to them; and that they had had no recompense for their services. They were told this matter would be represented to General Washington, and that what was right and just he would order to be done. They said further, they looked upon themselves to be one people with us, and that whatever Government we were under they were willing to subject themselves to; that they had no doubt their tribe would be willing to join General Washington, and that when they got home they would call the tribe together and consult them for that purpose.

This good disposition appearing in all the Indians, the Council thought it best, in consequence of your letter, to send with the Indians into their own country the most suitable persons that could be had, in order to procure, with the utmost expedition, the number of Indians you desire may be engaged in the service of the States, or as many as can be procured. An armed vessel is accordingly engaged to carry these Indians to Penobscot and St. John's, where those tribes will be respectively assembled, and all that can be persuaded to it enlisted into the service immediately. Mr. Fletcher, who came with the Penobscots, is engaged in this business with regard to that tribe, and Major Shaw employed with regard to the St. John's and their neighbours at Passamaquoddy. It being expected a considerable number might be had from these tribes in a short time, the said vessel was engaged to bring them hither as soon as may be. One Mr. Gilman is also employed to go to the St. François Indians, and engage as many of them as he can. On the conference with the St. John's and Mickmacks, (a copy of which is enclosed, together with a copy of the treaty,) three of them offered themselves to join the Army at New-York immediately, and their offer was accepted, as it might not only secure the fidelity of the tribes to which they belonged, but induce many others of them to engage in the service. Another has since joined them. Accordingly, these four (one of whom can speak French) will immediately set off for New-York, under the conduct of Mr. William Shaw, who is ordered to wait upon you with them.

The Council hope these measures will be effectual for the purpose they were ordered. In their name and behalf, I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of respect, your Excellency's most obedient, &c., JAMES BOWDOIN.
To His Excellency General Washington, &c.

P. S. The names of the four Indians abovementioned, viz: Joseph Denaquara, of Windsor, who speaks French and English; Peter André, of Le Heve; Sebattis Netobcobwit, of Gaspee; Francis, of St. John's.

A Conference held at WATERTOWN, in the Colony of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, between the Honourable the Council of the said Colony in behalf of the said Colony and of all the UNITED COLONIES, on the one part, and the Delegates of the St. JOHN'S and MICKMAC Tribes of INDIANS in NOVA-SCOTIA, on the other part.

In Council, Wednesday, July 10, 1776.

The honourable Board being informed that Major Shaw was desirous of speaking to them on business of importance, he was admitted into the Council Chamber; when he acquainted their Honours that a number of Indians of the St. John's and Mickmac Tribes, in Nova-Scotia, were come to town to see and talk with the Council and General Washington, from both of whom they had received letters; and that at the earnest request of the said Indians he had accompanied them, having brought them in his sloop from Machias to Salem, from whence they rode hither in carriages which were provided for them.

Major Shaw was desired to introduce them; which he did. After salutations, and they being seated and welcomed, the Honourable James Bowdoin, Esq., as President of the Council, was desired to manage the Conferences with them.

PRESIDENT. What Tribes do you belong to and represent?

INDIANS. The St. John's and Mickmac.

PRESIDENT. We should be glad to know your names, and to what villages you belong?

INDIANS. We will answer, each one for himself:

AMBROSE VAR, NEWELL WALLIS, FRANCIS: Of St. John's River.

JOSEPH DENAQUARA, CHARLES: Of Windsor Mickmacks.

MATTAHU ONTRAN, NICHOLAS: Of Merimichi and Rechbucto Mickmacks.

JOHN BATTIS: Of Beausejour, in Cumberland, a Mickmac.

PETER ANDRÉ: Of Le Heve, a Mickmac.

SEBATTIS NETOBCOBWIT: Of Gaspee, a Mickmac.

PRESIDENT. What number of men is there in your several villages? Let each answer with respect to his own village only.

AMBROSE VAR. There are sixty men belonging to the St. John's Tribe.

JOSEPH. There are sixty at my village, Windsor.

MATTAHU. In my village are eighty men.

JOHN BATTIS. In the village at Cumberland are forty men.

PETER ANDRÉ. There are fifty men at Le Heve.

SEBATTIS. At Gaspee are fifty strong men.

PRESIDENT. Are there any more villages of Indians in Nova-Scotia?

INDIANS. There are six more villages of Mickmacks, but we do not know what number of men they have.

PRESIDENT. As you want refreshment, we will defer hearing what you have to say to us; and we will let you know when we are ready to hear you. We have ordered good lodgings and entertainment to be provided for you; and Major Shaw will take care that the order be complied with.

Wine being brought, the President drank their health, and the health of the St. John's and Mickmac Tribes; which was returned by the Indians drinking the health of the Council.

They then retired with Major Shaw.

In Council, Friday, A. M., July 12, 1776.

A Message went from the Board to the honourable House of Representatives, then sitting in the Meeting-House, to inform them that certain Indians from the St. John's and Mickmac Tribes were in town, with whom the Board purposed to hold a Conference at eleven o'clock, and to invite the honourable House to be present at it; and to propose to them that it should be held in the Meeting-House.

A Message was received from the House in answer, that they would attend the Conference at the Meeting-House, which should be at the service of the honourable Board for that purpose.

The Council then proceeded to the Meeting-House, into which they were introduced by the Speaker. Being seated, and the Indians also come and seated, the Conference was renewed.

PRESIDENT. Brothers of the St. John's and Mickmac Tribes: We are glad to see you to-day, and hope you are all well.

AMBROSE. We thank you.

PRESIDENT. As some of you speak French, we have desired Mr. Job Prince, who speaks French also, to interpret what shall be said at this Conference. And we have appointed Mr. John Avery as Clerk to take Minutes of it. They will be each sworn to the faithful discharge of their office respectively.

[They were sworn by the President accordingly, and Colonel Lithgow, who understands the Indian language, was desired to assist as Interpreter.]

AMBROSE. We like it well.

PRESIDENT. At our first interview you told us that you came from and represented the St. John's and Mickmac Tribes. What evidence do you give us of this?

AMBROSE. Ambrose hereupon rose, and delivered to the President a large parchment, containing a Treaty made between those Tribes and the Government of Nova-Scotia in 1760. Also, a letter to them from General Washington, dated in February last, and a letter to them from the General Court of Massachusetts-Bay, dated in October last; and said that those letters were the occasion of their coming hither to see General Washington.

PRESIDENT. We are now ready to hear what you have to say to us, and shall give great attention to it.

AMBROSE. The St. John's and Mickmac Tribes are all one people, and of one tongue and one heart.

We are very thankful to the Almighty to see all the Council; the Almighty has given the English and Indians one heart.

General Washington sent us something (the letters afore-said) last fall and this spring, and that is the reason of our coming here now to speak.

The Captains that are come up with me, and all our people, are all one as Boston; our eyes and our ears will not turn to the other side of the water to see or hear what they do.

We want a Father or a French Priest.

Jesus we pray to, and we shall not hear any prayers that come from England.

We shall have nothing to do with Old England, and all that we shall worship or obey will be Jesus Christ and General Washington.

[Here Ambrose delivered to the President a silver gorget and heart, with the King's Arms and the busts of the King and Queen engraved on them.]

General Washington advised us to pray to Jesus for aid and assistance, and to be thankful for the lands that God had given us. All our old men and women pray that the Almighty would enable us to walk in the right way. General Washington wrote us a letter desiring us to pray for him, and assist him all in our power. All our Captains and Chiefs do pray that he and his brothers may be masters of this country. We are both one country. We are of their country and they are of our country.

There are Boston people down with us, and we esteem them there as our own people, and treat them as such.

There are a number of French people upon our land, who disturb us in hunting, and we want to remove them a little further from us, near the sea-coast.

[Here Ambrose presented and delivered a sword and pistol, which he said had been offered to them by one Anderson, and which they afterwards took from him; and he then proceeded—]

Mr. Anderson told us if we would be for England, as he intended to be, we might have that sword and pistol. He told us that if we lost any money by the Boston people, the King in Old England would make it up.

After we received letters from General Washington, we took the sword from Anderson, and told him we would have nothing to do with him, and set him up as a mark, and despised him.

We told Anderson when we took the sword from him, we would deliver it up to General Washington, if he would receive it.

We have now said what we had to say concerning this matter; and would again mention, that we want a Truck-House and a Priest.

PRESIDENT. You mentioned there were some Frenchmen in your country whom you wanted to have removed: Are they in opposition to the interest of this country?

AMBROSE. They are all for you.

PRESIDENT. For what purpose did Anderson give you the sword?

INDIANS. As Mr. Anderson would not be for the people of Boston, we took it from him.

PRESIDENT. Did Mr. Anderson appear as an Agent for the Government of Nova-Scotia, or only as a private individual?

INDIANS. Anderson told us in the winter and in the spring not to go to Boston, but to Halifax. He said it would not signify to go to Boston, but if we could go to the Governour of Halifax, we should have a hat-full of money given to us by the Governour.

INDIANS. We did not want money, but we wanted to lay our hearts open to the people of Boston.

PRESIDENT. Was Anderson a publick agent, or employed by the Governour of Halifax?

INDIANS. We believe he was.

PRESIDENT. What is the disposition of the English people in Nova-Scotia with regard to the disputes between England and America?

INDIANS. We do not know.

PRESIDENT. What is the disposition of the Mickmac and St. John's Tribes in general? Would they all enter heartily and with resolution into the war on our side?

INDIANS. Both the Mickmac or Cape-Sable Indians and the St. John's Indians are all for helping Boston; we know their hearts, for we had a talk with them.

The President then delivered a Speech to them, which was as follows:

PRESIDENT: Brothers: What you have said, we like well. It makes a strong impression on our hearts, and at our next Conference with you, we will give you a full and particular answer. We will now open our minds to you. You have heard that the English people beyond the great water have taken up the hatchet, and made war against the United Colonies in America. We once looked upon them as our brothers, as children of the same family with ourselves, and not only loved them as brothers, but loved and respected them as our elder brothers. But they have grown old and covetous; many of their great men have wasted and squandered not only their own money, but the money of the publick; and because they cannot obtain in their own country a sufficiency to support their excessive luxury and satiate their avarice, they want to take from us our money and our lands for those purposes; and at the same time to deprive us of our liberties and make us slaves. They have already taken away a great deal of our money and many of our privileges, and we have borne it with patience, having only told them that their doing so was unbrotherly and unkind, and most earnestly prayed them again and again to desist from their unfriendly and cruel treatment of us. But all our petitions have been disregarded, and they have trodden them as waste paper under their feet. After this ill usage and repeated insults, we have refused to part with any more of our money and privileges; and this refusal has brought upon us the war in which we are engaged. Our enemies, before they openly declared themselves to be such, we received as friends, and admitted them into our towns and sea-ports. Taking advantage of this peaceable disposition of ours, they sent ships and troops and took possession of Boston, and strongly fortified it, expecting we should permit them to do the same with other places, till they had secured the whole country. But they found themselves mistaken; for when a large body of them went from Boston secretly by night into our country in the month of April the last year, and killed some of our people, burnt or damaged many of their houses, stole and destroyed much of their property, and committed other acts of cruelty, a number of our warriors assembled and drove them back, and killed a great many of them; and a little while after killed a much greater number of them at Charlestown, with comparatively little loss of lives on our side. The war being thus begun, all the Colonies on the Continent, from New-Hampshire to Georgia, (including them,) determined in a great Council, held by some of their wise men at Philadelphia, to unite together for their mutual defence; and their Army, under the command of that great warrior, General Wash- ington, have lately driven away the British Army from Boston, where for many months they were held as prisoners, not daring to march out of the town to fight General Washington. And we doubt not, through the favour of Divine Providence, that, although the British troops have gained some advantages in Canada, the armies of the United Colonies will be able to drive them out of all other parts of America within the limits of the said Colonies; and out of Canada also if the Canadians are not blind with regard to their own interest and liberty.

We have given you this information, that you might know the true state of things. And we would inform you further, that as we and the St. John's and Mickmac tribes of Indians are countrymen, and not very distant from each other, we ought to be, and it is our interest to be mutual friends, and as brothers. And we are glad to find by what you have now said, that you are of the same mind. Accordingly, we, the governours of the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay, in behalf of this Colony and of all the United Colonies in North America, receive you to our friendship. Your acceptance of it entitles you to be considered by us as brothers; and your enemies we shall deem our enemies, and will do all in our power to protect you from them. We do not, however, ask you to join with us in the war, unless it is your free choice to do so. If you choose to join with the United Colonies in the war, and shall tell us so clearly, we will immediately take the matter into consideration, and let you know our minds at the next Conference. In the mean time we are glad to see you do not intend to join our enemies against us. It is probable that the Governour of Nova-Scotia, the Governour of Canada, and other enemies of these Colonies, will endeavour to deceive you, and by presents and threats try to make you join with them against the United Colonies. But be not deceived by them. Our love for you obliges us to forewarn you of their arts, and earnestly to caution you against being deceived. If they should engage you in the war against us, you will be undone, and will be a ruined people. We do not mention this, as supposing you will join them, but only as a friendly caution to you, that you do not suffer them to deceive you to your own ruin.

When you have considered what we have now said, and are ready to give an answer to it, we will hear you.

AMBROSE. We will consider it, and speak to you again.

PRESIDENT. You told us the sword and pistol you took from Anderson was at our disposal. We thank you, and now return them to you, in confidence that they will be employed by you only against your own enemies and our enemies.

[The silver gorget and heart, with the King's Arms and bust engraven on them, were delivered to the Interpreter to be returned to the Indians. He presented them to their Speaker, but with great vehemence and displeasure he refused to take them, saying they had nothing to do with King George and England. Whereupon the President told them they should have a new gorget and heart, with the bust of General Washington, and proper devices to represent the United Colonies.]

The Conference was then adjourned to to-morrow, after drinking mutual healths.

In Council, Saturday, July 13, 1776.

A Message went from the honourable Board to inform the honourable House that the Conference with the Indians would be renewed at three o'clock, P. M., to which the House returned an answer that they would then attend.

Accordingly, at three o'clock, the Council proceeded to the Meeting-House, and the Indians being come, the Conference was renewed.

PRESIDENT. Brothers of the St. John's and Mickmac Tribes: It gives us pleasure to see you to-day in health. We hope you have been well entertained at your lodgings, agreeable to our order.

We shall now give an answer to what you said to us yesterday. You told us you prayed to our Saviour Jesus, and wanted a French Priest to assist you in your prayers. We are glad you have such a regard for religion, and are ready to furnish you with a Priest to assist you in your prayers, and teach you the true religion; but we do not know that we can get a French Priest; if one of our Priests would be agreeable to you, we will endeavour to get you one, and will take care he be a good man.

You told us you wanted a Truck-House. According to your desire last year, we sent to our Truckmaster at Penobscot money to purchase ammunition, provision, and goods, as much of each as we thought sufficient to supply you the last winter, and we wrote you so in our letter to you last October. We hope the Truckmaster supplied you according to our order, which was, to supply you with what you wanted, and take your skins and furs in payment; and that you might be the better accommodated, we also sent a quantity of the same articles to Machias, with orders to our Truckmaster there to supply you. We shall send a further quantity, and order him to let you have the things you want at the same rate they cost us, and allow you for your skins and furs the same price they will fetch in Boston. We hope this will be satisfactory to you.

With respect to the war, we told you yesterday how it began, and mentioned to you some of the cruelties our enemies committed on our people. We shall now mention some more of those cruelties. After the British ships and troops were admitted into Boston as friends, they stopped all the trade of the town, and would not suffer our vessels to come in or go out to supply the town and country as usual. They then, fearing the people of Boston, after such provocation, would rise upon them, told them that if they would deliver up their arms, the inhabitants should be all safe, and no injury offered to them or their property; and that such as inclined to go out of the town should have free liberty to go with all their effects. The town, knowing themselves to be in the power of the troops, and being cut off from all communication with the country, agreed to the proposal, and accordingly delivered up their arms, relying on the promise of the British General, Mr. Gage, that he would perform his part of the agreement; but as soon as he had got their arms he broke his faith, and would permit only a part of the people to go, and would not suffer them to take their effects with them. Those that were obliged to remain in the town were insulted and abused by the soldiers, who burnt and destroyed many of their houses, stole a great quantity of their goods, and subjected them to great difficulties and hardships—all directly contrary to the plighted faith of the British General. And afterwards, when the British troops found that General Washington was determined to drive them out of the town, they broke open dwelling-houses and store-houses and took away and destroyed a prodigious quantity of goods, and then, with great precipitation, retreated to their ships, and quitted the town.

Some time before this, they burnt the large town of Charlestown, consisting of several hundred houses, taking away everything valuable they could find there; and several of their ships-of-war went and destroyed a great part of the town of Falmouth, in Casco Bay, burning near two hundred houses there, with many things of value in them. Much other damage they have done, and many other cruelties they have committed. This unjust, inhuman, and cruel treatment has compelled us to take up arms in our defence, and in earnest to engage in a war with them; and all the Colonies on the Continent, through fifteen hundred miles in extent, have joined with us in the war, and are determined to carry it on till we can obtain a peace on just and honourable terms.

We know our cause to be just: we can therefore place our confidence in that Being who is the great Dispenser of Justice, and who will not suffer such inhumanity and breach of faith to go unpunished. We trust that, by His favour, we shall be able to defend ourselves; and we do not desire you, as we told you yesterday, to enter into the war unless you choose it. You then expressed a disposition to engage in it; but we desired you to weigh and consider the matter well before you engaged, and to let us know your mind about it, fully and plainly, after you had so considered it. We shall now attend to what you have to say on this head, and to everything else you have to say.

AMBROSE. We have the same to say to-day that we said yesterday—that we are your friends and brothers, and will join in the war on your side. You may depend upon it that we will not break our words; we will not lie; all that are here present hear us, and the God of Heaven hears us; and we will engage in the war, for we are brothers. We would not lie to save our right hands. We pledge our faith that we will do what we promise. We love Boston. It gives us a great deal of concern they were so ill used. We should have been glad to have had the arms of Boston to keep. If we had had the Boston arms, we should have been able to defend ourselves. In case the people of England should come to drive us out of our country, we will give you information of it immediately. We shall be very glad to have proper goods for our furs and skins, and we want them up St. John's River. We are not capable of writing. We can't convey our mind as we would wish to do. We will pledge our right hands in faith of what we have promised. There are some of us here that are willing to go to war now, and would go to General Washington immediately.

[Upon this, three of them went from their seats into the aisle, and manifested a great desire to go.

These three are Chiefs of different villages, and are willing to go together.]

PRESIDENT. We thank them, and will let them know our minds. By what you said yesterday, and what you say now, it appears to be your disposition and intention to join in the war with us. Do we understand you right? Do you mean to join with us in the war?

AMBROSE. Yes; we are with our hearts ready to join you.

PRESIDENT. You mean not only yourselves particularly, but your Tribes in general.

AMBROSE. It is not in our power to answer now for the whole of our Tribes; but when we go home, we will call together all the young men, and see how many will go to war.

PRESIDENT. How many do your Tribes consist of?

AMBROSE. It is not in our power to tell.

PRESIDENT. You, Ambrose, are of St. John's. How many men are there in your Tribe?

AMBROSE. Sixty men that are able to do duty.

PRESIDENT. How many of your men would be willing to engage in the war?

AMBROSE. It is impossible to tell certainly till we go home and call our men together.

PRESIDENT. Do you think that thirty would engage?

AMBROSE. We can get thirty men to go, and three Captains for certain. This man that is next to me will make one of the thirty that will go with me.

FRANCIS, (of the same Tribe.) I can go and fetch from St. John's twenty men myself. I will return, and bring twenty men with me.

PRESIDENT. How many men, Joseph, would go from your village, and how many does it consist of?

JOSEPH DENAQUARA. Twenty-five would go, and there are fifty in the whole.

PRESIDENT. How many men in your village, Mattahu, and how many would go?

MATTAHU. I can bring ten men, and could bring more, if I wasn't afraid of the English coming to attack our village while we were gone. We have eighty men.

PRESIDENT. How many men in your village, and how many would go, Battis?

JOHN BATTIS. We can produce fourteen, but must have some to take care of the women and children. We have forty men in our village.

PRESIDENT. I want to know how many men there are in your village, Peter?

PETER ANDRÉ. Sixty men.

PRESIDENT. How many men can your village furnish?

PETER. It is not in my power to answer with certainty, as I am going myself to General Washington directly.

PRESIDENT. Do you think twenty?

PETER ANDRÉ. Thirty.

PRESIDENT. How many are there in your village, Sebattis?

SEBATTIS NETOBCOBUIT. Fifty men.

PRESIDENT. How many would go to war?

SEBATTIS NETOBCOBUIT. Twenty-five.

PRESIDENT. How many villages are there of the Mickmacs not represented here?

[Here several of them consulted together, and then the answer was given.]

AMBROSE. Six.

PRESIDENT. How many villages are there represented here?

AMBROSE. Six.

PRESIDENT. Are the other villages as big as those six?

AMBROSE. Some much bigger.

PRESIDENT. What is the reason that the other six villages did not send delegates as well as those that have sent?

AMBROSE. The reason is, that General Washington's letter had not reached them. Some of our people went after them, but we have not heard from them.

PRESIDENT. Do you think that the other villages have as friendly a disposition toward us as you have?

AMBROSE. The same. We are all brothers and cousins. We are of the same flesh and blood, and can't make war or be attacked separately.

PRESIDENT. Would your warriors form a body in conjunction with a number of our people?

AMBROSE. Yes; we are brothers now, and for that reason we would join our hands with yours.

PRESIDENT. From what you now say, we depend that you are hearty to enter into the war with us.

AMBROSE. Yes, we are.

[Hereupon all the Indians came from their seats, and shook hands with the President, in token of their heartiness and sincerity.]

PRESIDENT. We look upon this as an expression of your readiness to join with us in the war, and, accordingly, I shall immediately consult my brothers of both Houses here present, and let you know presently what our determination is.

After consultation with the Council, and with the Speaker and gentlemen of the House of Representatives, the President then proceeded:

PRESIDENT. Brothers: I would now inform you what the General Court have agreed to upon your having signified your readiness to enter with us into the war. They have agreed that a regiment be employed in the Continental service, under the command of General Washington, to consist of five hundred of the Mickmac and St. John's Tribes, and two hundred and fifty of our people with them. These are to form one regiment, to act together. The Field Officers or the chief officers are to be English. The other officers of the regiment to be one-half English, and the other half Indians. With respect to the pay of the officers, it will be determined the next time the Court meets. With respect to the soldiers, both Indian and English, they will have the like pay, viz: forty shillings per month, equal to six dollars and two-thirds; and each of the Indians is to be allowed a rifle shirt, such as the Riflemen have, a blanket, shoes and buckles, or moccasins. You will also have provisions supplied you while in the service.

PRESIDENT. Do you understand perfectly what has been said?

AMBROSE. We understood it exceedingly well.

PRESIDENT. Do you approve of the establishment of such a regiment, consisting of English and Indians?

AMBROSE. We are very glad of it, and we repeat it again, we are very well contented and pleased with it.

PRESIDENT. Brothers, are you well equipped with guns, and all things necessary belonging to a gun?

AMBROSE. We have few or none; nor can we find any knives to buy.

PRESIDENT. How do you hunt without guns?

AMBROSE. We have got guns, but reserve them for our children to hunt with in our absence from home.

PRESIDENT. Those that engage in the service must bring their guns with them. Have you anything further to say at this time?

AMBROSE. We have nothing further to say. All we have said we consider as an oath.

PRESIDENT. The next time we meet together, we will let you know how the regiments are to be regulated.

Then the President drank prosperity to the Indians of the Mickmac and St. John's Tribes, and wished that the friendship now established might continue as long as the sun and moon shall endure, which was pledged by the Indians.

PRESIDENT. We will bid you farewell to night, and will see you again next Tuesday.

In the Meeting-House, Tuesday, July 16, 1776, P. M.

The Conference was continued.

PRESIDENT. Brothers, we hope we now see you well. At our last meeting, you desired that the goods we should send to the Truck-House at Machias might be such as you most wanted. We should be glad you would now inform us what goods you want most, and like best, and we will endeavour the Truck-House shall be supplied with them, being desirous to accommodate you in the best manner in our power.

AMBROSE. We want strouds and blankets for winter and summer. Our children and families are always in want of those articles. We want powder, shot, flints, knives, and combs, hatchets, small axes of two different sizes, paint, some steel-traps to catch beaver, and we want guns, too, to go a-hunting with.

PRESIDENT. Major Shaw has delivered us a memorandum of a number of articles. We will order our Commissary to supply the Truck-House with them, if they can be procured.

AMBROSE. We are much obliged to you.

PRESIDENT. One of you desired yesterday that a Truckmaster, with goods, might be sent to St. John's.

AMBROSE. There is one Adderton, who lives a league from our village, who we should be glad might be appointed.

PRESIDENT. We should be glad to send a Truckmaster there; but as St. John's is not within the bounds of this Colony, we have no right to do it.

AMBROSE. We are much obliged to you.

PRESIDENT. Since we last talked together, we have received letters from General Washington, in which he mentions his brothers the St. John's and Mickmac Indians. As he thinks you are strong men and his good friends, and as you have expressed a great inclination to take part with him in the war, he desires you to come and join him at New-York, with all possible expedition. He wants five or six hundred of you; but if you cannot spare so many, desires you to speak to your brothers of Penobscot, Passamaquoddy, and other places, to come along with you, so as to make up that number in the whole. The pay and encouragement will be the same we mentioned to you last Saturday. We now desire your answer, that we may write it to General Washington.

AMBROSE. My brothers, it is not in our power to tell how many men we can raise. We will get as many as we can. We cannot say anything further. We will endeavour to furnish all we can.

PRESIDENT. You all promise to use your endeavours to engage all the warriors you can. They are to come here, and then go to New-York to join General Washington.

AMBROSE. Yes, we have said it already, that we will go and get all that we can.

PRESIDENT. You told us the other day how many you thought your several villages would furnish. We should be glad if you would mention the number again, according to the best of your judgment, that General Washington may know what to depend on.

AMBROSE. St. John's consists of sixty men, and will furnish thirty.

JOSEPH and CHARLES. Windsor consists of fifty men, and will furnish twenty or twenty-five.

MATTAHU. Miramichi and Rechibucto consist of eighty men, and will furnish ten.

JOHN BATTIS. Cumberland Beausejour consists of forty men, and will furnish fifteen, perhaps twenty-five.

PETER ANDRÉ. Lehève consists of sixty men, and will furnish fifteen.

SEBATTIS NETOBCOBUIT. Gaspee consists of fifty men, and will furnish twenty-five or thirty men.

PRESIDENT. How many can the other six villages furnish?

AMBROSE. We cannot tell. We would let you know it is not in our power to come this fall, except three, who are willing to go now. The rest say, they cannot come this fall.

PRESIDENT. If you cannot come yourselves this fall, perhaps some others of your Tribes can.

AMBROSE. When we go home, we will get all our people together, and advise with them, and we will certainly come in the spring.

PRESIDENT. General Washington writes he wants them now, as they are strong men, and his good brothers.

AMBROSE. We will endeavour to get them, and if it is possible, we will come this fall. We will get our men together, and come up, if it is possible.

PRESIDENT. Would the other six villages furnish any men?

AMBROSE. We are so far distant from each other, that it would bring it to Christmas before we could get together.

PRESIDENT. How long would it be before your people could get together?

AMBROSE. We are certain that we can all be here in the spring. It will be late before we can all get home, and it will be winter before our people will be able to get together.

PRESIDENT. Captain Shaw can carry you to Machias or St. John's quick, and you can be in your own country in a few days after.

AMBROSE. Some of us, after we get to St. John's River, have a great way to go, near two hundred leagues.

PRESIDENT. Those of the St. John's Tribe are near; they come in a short time.

AMBROSE. When we came from home, our Captain of the St. John's Tribe was gone to Quebeck to hear what news. He went to see the Boston people, not the King's troops. Perhaps when we get home, our Captain may be returned, and may bring the same tidings we get here. If not, as soon as he does return, we will endeavour to get the men here as quick as possible.

PRESIDENT. Do you think your neighbours, the Passamaquoddy Indians, can furnish any men? They are near.

AMBROSE. We will send people to inform them, and endeavour to get as many of them as we can.

PRESIDENT. Do you think the Cape Sable Indians can furnish any men?

AMBROSE. They are too far off to send to from St. John's.

PRESIDENT. Not if you can go across the Bay of Fundy to Cape Sable.

AMBROSE. We keep along the coast, except when we come across the rivers that are not too wide.

PRESIDENT. General Washington will depend on thirty men from St. John's to come up soon.

AMBROSE. Yes, all we can get.

PRESIDENT. Who lives next to St. John's?

AMBROSE. The Mickmacs are the nearest; they can't come this fall, for want of provisions for their families, who will starve if they come away.

PRESIDENT. Tell Ambrose that we thank him for his readiness to engage his people to come here as soon as they can; and we should be glad the rest of them would get their people together as soon as may be, and come to Boston with as many as they can get.

INDIANS. We will do all that we can.

PRESIDENT. When you get home, inform your Tribes and the other Indian Tribes what has been agreed between us. Such of the Indian warriors as incline to engage must come to this place; and General Washington says they must bring their own guns with them. Remember to tell them they must not fail to bring their guns, as General Washington depends upon it.

AMBROSE. Those that have two guns will bring one with them, and those that have but one gun must leave it at home.

PRESIDENT. Besides their wages, they will have a dollar for the use of each gun; and if their guns should be lost in the service, they will be paid for them. Everything else that's necessary will be supplied them when they come here. They must be very expeditious in coming. General Washington wants them immediately. Now you know what will be paid for your guns, you must prevail with your people to bring guns with them.

AMBROSE. Yes, we will all bring our guns, all that have any. We have all got guns, but they are not in very good order.

PRESIDENT. Bring the best you have got; you must come as quick as you can. We shall desire Major Shaw to procure you a passage up to Boston from Machias.

AMBROSE. If there was a vessel at St. John's we could come much quicker. We want to know who will carry us to St. John's now, for the sooner we can get home the sooner we can get together.

PRESIDENT. We shall desire Major Shaw to carry you to Machias certain; and if he can carry you to St. John's he will. When Major Shaw carries you to Machias, you must let him know when he must go there again to bring you up.

AMBROSE. We will let him know.

PRESIDENT. Your pay will commence on the day you sail from Machias to come up to Boston; our Commissary will send provisions for your passage up. The companies will be formed when you come here. You must engage and enlist for so long a time as General Washington shall want you, not exceeding two or three years, unless General Washington and you agree for a longer time; and from hence you will proceed to General Washington.

AMBROSE. We are willing.

PRESIDENT. Several of you, viz: Joseph Donaguard, Sabattis Netobcobius, and Peter André, offered themselves to engage in the war immediately; we thank them; we are much pleased they show so hearty a disposition to engage. We accept of their offer, and, according to their desire, will send them to General Washington, who will inform them what to do. The St. John's and Mickmac Tribes are now our brothers, and are become one people with the United Colonies. Those Colonies have lately, by their great Council at Philadelphia, declared themselves free and independent States, by the name of the United States of America. The certain news of it, and the Declaration itself, are just come to us; and we are glad of this opportunity to inform you, our brothers, of it. The said great Council, the "Representatives of the United States of America in General Congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of their intentions, do, in the name and by the authority of the good people of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connexion between them and the State of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that, as free and independent States, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent States may of right do: and for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, they mutually pledge to each other their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honour."

[Here the printed Declaration at large was produced to the Indians, and the Interpreter, Mr. Prince, fully explained it to them.]

AMBROSE. We like it well.

PRESIDENT. This is the Declaration of the United States of America. You and we, therefore, have now nothing to do with Great Britain; we are wholly separated from her, and all the former friendship and connexion with her are now dissolved. The United States now form a long and strong chain; and it is made longer and stronger by our brethren of the St. John's and Mickmac Tribes joining with us. And may Almighty God never suffer this chain to be broken. In pursuance and in full confirmation of what has, in these conferences, been agreed upon between us, we now lay before you certain Articles of Alliance and Friendship which, if you approve of them, we propose should be mutually signed, viz: by you, in behalf of the St. John's and Mickmac Tribes on the one part, and by us, in behalf of the United States of America on the other part.

The PRESIDENT then, holding out to them the Treaty, said, This is the Treaty to be read to you; if you approve of it, it will be fairly written and brought here again to be signed by you and us. I shall desire one of my brothers to read it to you, being obliged myself to go to Boston. Upon which the President, after shaking hands with the Indians, and bidding them farewell, retired.

The Honourable BENJAMIN GREENLEAF, Esq., then read the Treaty to the Indians, which was fully and clearly interpreted to them, and of which they expressed their entire approbation, and said they were ready to sign it. After mutual healths were drunk, the Conference was adjourned to the next day.

Wednesday, July 17, 1776.

The Council and the Indian Delegates being met, duplicates of the Treaty, fairly written, were produced and signed and exchanged.

Then the Hon. Benjamin Greenleaf, Esq., told them that the presents ordered them by the Government would be delivered to them as soon as they were ready.

The Conference being now ended, the Indians took leave of the Council and departed.

The following is a copy of the Treaty above referred to, viz: A Treaty of Alliance and Friendship entered into and concluded by and between the governours of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY and the Delegates of the St. John's and MICKMAC Tribes of INDIANS.

Whereas the United States of America, in General Congress assembled, have, in the name and by the authority of the good people of these Colonies, solemnly published and declared that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown; and that all political connexion between them and the State of Great Britain is, and ought to be, dissolved; and that, as free and independent States, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent States may of right do: We, the governours of the State of Massachusetts, do, by virtue thereof, and by the powers vested in us, enter into and conclude the following Treaty of Friendship and Alliance, viz:

1st. We, the governours of the said State of Massachusetts-Bay, in behalf of said State and the other United States of America on the one part, and Ambrius Var, Newell Wallis, and Francis, Delegates of the St. John's Tribe, Joseph Denaguard, Charles, Mattahu Ontrane, Nicholas, John Battis, Peter André, and Sebattis Netobcobwit, Delegates of the Mickmac Tribe of Indians, inhabiting within the Province of Nova-Scotia, for themselves and in behalf of the said Tribes on the other part, do solemnly agree, that the people of the said State of Massachusetts-Bay and of the other United States of America, and of the said Tribes of Indians, shall henceforth be at peace with each other, and be considered as friends and brothers, united and allied together for their mutual defence, safety, and happiness.

2d. That each party to this Treaty shall and will consider the enemies of the other as enemies to themselves; and do hereby solemnly promise and engage to and with each other, that when called upon for that purpose, they shall and will, to the utmost of their abilities, aid and assist each other against their publick enemies; and particularly that the people of the said Tribes of Indians shall and will afford and give to the people of said State of Massachusetts-Bay and the people of the other United States of America, during their present war with the King of Great Britain, all the aid and assistance in their power; and that they, the people of the said Tribes of Indians, shall not and will not, directly or indirectly, give any aid or assistance to the troops or subjects of the said King of Great Britain, or others adhering to him, or hold any correspondence, or carry on any commerce with them during the present war.

3d. That if any robbery or outrage happens to be committed by any of the subjects of said State of Massachusetts-Bay, or of any other of the United States of America, upon any of the people of said Tribes, the said State shall, upon proper application being made, cause satisfaction and restitution speedily to be made to the party injured.

4th. That if any robbery or outrage happens to be committed by any of the said Tribes of Indians upon any of the subjects of said State, or of any other of the United States of America, the Tribe to which the offender or offenders shall belong shall, upon proper application being made, cause satisfaction and restitution speedily to be made to the party injured.

5th. That in case any misunderstanding, quarrel, or injury, shall happen between the said State of Massachusetts-Bay, or any other of the United States of America, and the said Tribes of Indians, or either of them, no private revenge shall be taken, but a peaceable application shall be made for redress.

6th. That the said Tribes of Indians shall and will furnish and supply six hundred strong men out of the said Tribes, or as many as may be, who shall, without delay, proceed from their several homes up to the town of Boston, within this State, and from thence shall march to join the Army of the United States of America, now at New-York, under the immediate command of his Excellency General Washington, there to take his orders.

7th. That each of the Indians who shall, by their respective Tribes, be appointed to join the Army of the United States of America, shall bring with him a good gun, and shall be allowed one dollar for the use of it; and in case the gun should be lost in the service, shall be paid the value of it; and the pay of each man shall begin from the time they sail from Machias for Boston, and they shall be supplied with provisions and a vessel or vessels for their passage up to Boston. Each private man shall receive the like pay as is given to our own private men. The Indians shall be formed into companies when they arrive at Boston, and shall engage or enlist for so long a time as General Washington shall want them, not exceeding the term of three years, unless General Washington and they shall agree for a longer time. And as Joseph Denaguara, Peter André, and Sebattis Netobcobwit, have manfully and generously offered to enter immediately into the war, they shall be sent, as soon as may be, to General Washington, to join the Army, and shall be considered as entering into our pay at the time of their arrival at New-York.

8th. The delegates above named who may return to their homes, do promise and engage to use their utmost influence with the Passamaquoddy and other neighbouring Tribes of Indians to persuade them to furnish and supply, for the said service, as many strong men of their respective Tribes as possible; and that they come along with those of the Tribes of St. John's and Mickmac. And the said governours of the said State of Massachusetts-Bay do hereby engage to give such of the said Passamaquoddy or other neighbouring Indians who shall enter into the service of the United States of America the same pay and encouragement, in every particular, as is above agreed to be given to the St. John's or Mickmac Indians, and to consider them as our friends and brothers.

9th. That the said State of Massachusetts-Bay shall any will furnish their Truckmaster at Machias, as soon as may be, with proper articles for the purpose of supplying the Indians of said Tribes with the necessaries and conveniences of life.

10th. And the said delegates do hereby annul and make void all former Treaties by them, or by others in behalf of their respective Tribes, made with any other Power, State, or person, so far forth as the same shall be repugnant to any of the Articles contained in this Treaty.

In faith and testimony whereof, we, the said governours of the said State of Massachusetts-Bay, have signed these presents, and caused the seal of the said State to be hereunto affixed; and the said Ombrius Var, Newell Wallis, and Francis, delegates of the St. John's Tribe, Joseph Denaguara, Charles, Mattahu Ontrane, Nicholas, John Battis, Peter André, and Sebattis Netobcobwit, delegates of the Mickmac Tribe of Indians, have hereunto put their marks and seals in the Council Chamber at Watertown, in the State aforesaid, the nineteenth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PENNSYLVANIA ASSOCIATORS.
Head-Quarters, August 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I had fully resolved to pay you a visit in New-Jersey, if the movements of the enemy, and some late intelligence, indicating an early attack, had not induced me to suspend it. Allow me, therefore, to address you in this mode, as fellow-citizens and fellow-soldiers engaged in the same glorious cause; to represent to you that the fate of your country depends, in all human probability, on the exertion of a few weeks; that it is of the utmost importance to keep up a respectable force for that time; and there can be no doubt that success will crown our efforts, if we firmly and resolutely determine to conquer or die. I have placed so much confidence in the spirit and zeal of the Associated Troops of Pennsylvania, that I cannot persuade myself an impatience to return home, or a less honourable motive, will defeat my well-grounded expectation that they will do their country essential service at this critical time, when the powers of despotism are all combined against it, and ready to strike their most decisive stroke. If I could allow myself to doubt your spirit and perseverance, I should represent the ruinous consequences of your leaving the service, by setting before you the discouragement it would give the Army, the confusion and shame of our friends, and the still more galling triumph of our enemies; but as I have no such doubts, I shall only thank you for the spirit and ardour you have shown in so readily marching to meet the enemy, and am most confident you will crown it by a glorious perseverance. The honour and safety of our bleeding country, and every other motive that can influence the brave and heroick patriot, call loudly upon us to acquit ourselves with spirit. In short, we must now determine to be enslaved or free. If we make freedom our choice, we must obtain it by the blessing of Heaven on our united and vigorous efforts.

I salute you, gentlemen, most affectionately, and beg leave to remind you that liberty, honour, and safety, are all at stake; and I trust Providence will smile upon our efforts, and establish us once more the inhabitants of a free and happy country.

I am, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Officers and Soldiers of the Pennsylvania Association.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL LIVINGSTON.

New-York, August 8, 1776.

SIR: Before this reaches you, you will undoubtedly have heard of the unexpected arrival of the Carolina Army on Staten-Island, which, added to the Hessians and foreign troops under Lord Howe, exhibits a force justly alarming. When I compare it with that which we have to oppose them, I cannot help feeling every anxious apprehension. The new levies are so incomplete, the old regiments deficient in their complement, and so much sickness, that we must have an immediate supply of men. I have therefore written to Connecticut and to the Convention of your Province to call out the Militia immediately; but as it may take some time, and the necessity admits of no delay, I have thought it proper to apply to you also, under the resolution of Congress of last June, (copy of which was sent you when Lord Howe's fleet first arrived,) to beg you would use your utmost exertions to forward this most necessary measure. The consequences to the American interest of any failure here, are so obvious, that I need not enlarge upon them. Your own good judgment will suggest everything proper.

It would be a great saving of time and expense, if the Militia, when they come, would always equip themselves with arms, ammunition, blankets, canteens, and kettles, as far as they can. And in any order given on the present occasion, I would wish you to notice it specially.

I am, with much truth and regard, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Brig. Gen. William Livingston, New-Jersey Militia.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL MERCER.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 8, 1776.

SIR: The account given you by a deserter, as brought me by Mr. Tilghman, is confirmed by two sailors who came off the night before last from the enemy—that General Clinton is arrived with his Army from South-Carolina, and that preparations are making for an early and vigorous attack. They further add, that last Sunday one thousand Hessians landed—part of twelve thousand, the remainder being left off the Banks of Newfoundland, that may be expected every hour. Under these circumstances, and considering how much deficient this Army is, from the not filling up the new levies, and sickness, I must desire you to send over one of the Rifle regiments, as we have not one corps of that kind on this Island. I leave it to you to fix upon that which you think will come with the most cheerfulness and are best appointed, but would not have any time lost. The Quartermaster may set out immediately to prepare for them. From all accounts, the grand attack will be made here and at Long-Island. I cannot find anything meditated against New-Jersey at present. I have written to the Convention of Jersey and to Connecticut to send on the Militia with all expedition.

I am, sir, with much regard, your most obedient, humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To General Mercer, New-Jersey.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

New-York, August 8, 1776.

SIR: By this I mean to communicate to your honourable body the substance of the intelligence I received yesterday, from two deserters that came the evening before from the Solebay man-of-war.

They inform that they were in the engagement at Sullivan's Island, and give nearly the same account as that transmitted by General Lee, which you would see published by Congress. They add, that they left South-Carolina about three weeks ago, with General Clinton and his whole Army, who are now arrived and landed on Staten-Island. They also say that part of Lord Howe's fleet, with Hessian and Highland troops on board, have got in, and that the remainder, with a considerable body, is hourly expected, which those that have come in parted from in a gale of wind off the Banks of Newfoundland.

As the accounts given by these men are direct and circumstantial, and their authenticity corroborated by many other things that have occurred, it is not to be doubted but the number of the enemy's Army will greatly exceed ours. Their force it was generally expected would be considerable of itself, and the unexpected augmentation of General Clinton's Army makes it more so. On the other hand, ours does not come up to the intended establishment.

Under these circumstances, and as we may expect the period just at hand when they will make their vigorous push, I submit it to the consideration of your honourable body whether it may not be necessary for your exertions to be employed in calling, in the most expeditious manner, such reinforcements as you can obtain, to the aid of this Army.

I have the honour to be, &c.

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. Nathaniel Woodhull, President, &c.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

New-York, August 8, 1776.

SIR: I have been favoured with your letter of the 6th instant, and am happy to find the nomination I made of General Clinton, in consequence of your request to appoint an officer to the command of the levies on both sides Hudson's River, has met the approbation of your honourable body. His acquaintance with the country, abilities, and zeal for the cause, are the motives that induced me to make choice of him. However, I am led to conclude, from that part of your letter which desires me to transmit him his appointment, with the resolution subjecting the levies on both sides of the river to his command, that your honourable body entertain ideas of the matter somewhat different from what I do, or ever did.

When I was honoured with your letter of the 16th ultimo, with the resolves of Convention upon this subject, the state of the Army under my command would not allow me to send a General Officer in the Continental service to command the levies you then proposed to raise, supposing I had been authorized to do it. But considering myself without power in this instance, and the levies altogether of a Provincial nature, to be raised by you, and subject to your direction, I esteemed the nomination of a General Officer over them, intrusted to my choice, a matter of favour and of compliment, and as such I gratefully filled it. I am persuaded, that I expressed myself in this manner to the gentlemen who were pleased to attend me upon the occasion, and that they had the same ideas. Under the influence of this opinion, all I expected was, that an appointment would be made in conformity to my nomination, if there was no objection to the gentleman I proposed; conceiving then, as I do now, that if he was approved by Convention, he would be their officer, and derive his appointment and authority from them. In this light I presume General Clinton must be viewed, and his powers over the levies you allude to, flow from you. Lest accident may have mislaid the letter I wrote you on the subject, I have enclosed an extract of it, so far as it had relation to it.

It is not in my power to send an experienced officer at this time to the post you mention. I trust that Colonel Clinton will be equal to the command of both the Highland fortifications. They are under his direction at present.

In respect to the two Commissaries, I thought the matter had been fixed; but as it is not, I have requested Mr. Trum- bull, who has the charge of this, to wait upon and agree with the Convention, on proper persons to conduct the business, and in such a way that their purchases and his may not clash; to him, therefore, I beg leave to refer you upon this subject.

I am extremely obliged by the order for the telescope. I have obtained it, and will try to employ it for the valuable purposes you designed it.

I shall pay proper attention to your members, and persons employed in their service, and give it in General Orders that they be permitted to pass our guards without interruption.

Before I conclude, I cannot but express my fears lest the enemy's Army, so largely augmented, should possess themselves of the whole stock on Long-Island. When the further reinforcement arrives, which they hourly expect, they may do it without a possibility on our part of preventing them. I wish the Convention may not see cause to regret that they were not removed.

I have the honour to be, &c.,
Go. WASHINGTON.
To the Hon. Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President, &c.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL GEORGE CLINTON.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 8, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 2d instant is duly received. Enclosed you have a resolution of the Provincial Convention, which came to hand last evening, by which you will please to regulate your conduct. I must beg you to inform me, as soon as possible, what number your brigade now consists of, and what number it will contain when a fourth part of the Militia are draughted, agreeable to order of the Provincial Congress.

By intelligence received and movements observed of the enemy, we have the greatest reason to believe a general attack will be made in the course of a few days. Our numbers are much short of the enemy. I hope no time will be lost in marching the reinforcements expected, to our assistance, from different quarters, with all possible despatch.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,
Go. WASHINGTON.

To Brigadier-General George Clinton, New-York Militia.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO MAJOR FRENCH.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 8, 1776.

SIR: I was unwilling to determine, hastily, upon your claim of a release, founded upon your parole; and therefore delayed the acknowledgment of your favour of the 22d of July, until I should fully inform myself. I had accordingly written to you yesterday, that I was so unhappy as to differ from you in the construction you had put upon it, but as there was reason to believe a general exchange of prisoners might soon take place, I should cheerfully facilitate your return to your friends.

Last night I received your favour of the 5th of August, waiving your claim of a release, which makes any further discussion of that matter unnecessary. Your other proposal, of being exchanged for Major Meigs or Colonel Allen, will meet with no objection from me. Should you write to General Howe on the subject, the letter shall be cheerfully forwarded, and his answer returned.

Should any difficulty arise in the exchange, I am doubtful how far I should be authorized, without consulting the Congress, to grant you an indulgence similar to that of Major Meigs, which I have been informed was allowed in consequence of his saving the life of a British officer either nearly connected with, or much esteemed by, General Carleton. However, you may assure yourself, sir, that both duty and inclination lead me to relieve the unfortunate, and that I agree with you, that your long and early captivity, gives you a very just claim to special notice; and I shall be happy in furthering your wishes, as far as my station will admit.

I am, sir, your most obedient, and very humble servant,
Go. WASHINGTON.

To Major French.

DANIEL GOLDSMITH TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

New Jail, New-York, August 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: On Tuesday last Mr. Alderman Blagge sent for me, and showed me a petition he had received from the enclosed petitioner, and informed me he never had any proof appeared against him; therefore he saw no just cause for detaining him any longer, and advised a discharge of the petitioner. I replied, that he was now an immediate prisoner under your honourable House, and of consequence not in my power to discharge him without your approbation; which the Alderman acquiesced in, and told me he would wait on you concerning it; but if he did not, advised me to wait upon some gentleman in the Congress, which I have done, and was by him advised to write to the whole House.

Your petitioner appears to me to be very friendly to the cause, and I have been informed by several officers that he is one of the most complete fuglemen upon the Continent, and has proved himself very useful in disciplining the Jersey forces. He seems very desirous to enter the service if discharged.

I am, gentlemen, your most obliged and most humble servant,

DANIEL GOLDSMITH.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress for the Province of New-York, sitting at Harlem.

PETITION OF JOHN ANDREWS.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress for the Province of
NEW-YORK:

The humble Petition of JOHN ANDREWS, of POUGHKEEPSIE, in the Province of NEW-YORK, most humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner about seventeen weeks ago was committed to the new Jail, in the city of New-York, by Alderman Blagge, on suspicion of theft; and no witnesses having appeared against me, I took the liberty of petitioning the above Alderman for a trial and discharge, who advised Mr. Goldsmit, Continental Jailor, to petition your honourable House, from whom, he informed me, I might expect impartial justice and mercy in this my deplorable situation. I am willing to swear on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, that I am entirely innocent of the crime for which I am confined.

If you will be favourably pleased to take my unhappy case into your serious consideration, I shall, in gratitude, be in duty bound ever to pray, &c.

JOHN ANDREWS.

New Jail, August 8, 1776.

NEW-YORK CONVENTION TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

In Convention of the Representatives of the State of New-York, }
Harlem, August 8, 1776. }

SIR: I am directed by the Convention of the State of New-York to enclose to your Excellency sundry resolutions which they have entered into in consequence of part of your letter of this date.

The Convention have further measures in contemplation for the security of this State, which they conceive of the utmost importance to the general cause of America. So soon as they are determined on, I shall give your Excellency immediate notice, and at the same time answer your two letters of this date in a more particular manner than the hurry of business will at present admit of.

I have the honour to be, respectfully, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

NATH'L WOODHULL, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

In Convention of the Representatives of the State of New-York, }
Harlem, August 8, 1776. }

Resolved, That Colonel Josiah Smith be, and he hereby is, ordered immediately to march all his new levies to the western end of Nassau Island, and within two miles of Brigadier-General Greene's encampment; and that he obey such orders as he may receive from time to time from Brigadier-General Greene.

Resolved unanimously, That Brigadier-General Clinton be, and he hereby is, appointed to the command of all the levies raised and to be raised in the Counties of Ulster, Orange, Dutchess, and West-Chester, agreeable to the resolution of this Convention of the 16th day of July last.

Resolved, That General Clinton be informed of this appointment, and directed immediately to send expresses to the Counties of Ulster, Dutchess, Orange, and West-Chester, and order them to hasten their levies, and march them down to the fort now erected on the north side of King's Bridge, leaving two hundred men under the command of a brave and alert officer, to take possession of, and throw up works at, the pass at Anthony's Nose.

Resolved, That General Clinton be requested to order the Troops of Horse belonging to the Counties of Ulster, Orange, and West-Chester, immediately to march to such posts as he may think proper that they should occupy, in order to watch the motions of the enemy's ships of war now in Hudson's River.

Extract from the Minutes:

JOHN MCKESSON, Secretary.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN TO HIS FRIEND IN NEW-YORK, DATED OFF FORT-WASHINGTON, AUGUST 8, 1776.

On the morning of the 4th instant I gave you a short account of our brush with the Phenix and Rose, men-of-war, off Tarrytown, on Saturday last. Give me now leave to add thereto the following remarks:

The force with which we were to attack these ships being entirely inferior to theirs, our dependance, under Providence, was to find them, or to force them into such a situation as they could not bring their broadsides to bear upon our galleys; and indeed in this situation the Phenix was about twelve hours before we got up to her, being at that time fast aground; but before we could reach them, both ships were entirely clear, with springs upon their cables, and their broadsides ready to engage us. Let me observe here, that this was not at any time the case with the frigates that were attacked by our gondolas at Philadelphia, which makes all odds. For had the tide or the channel prevented the Phenix and the Rose bringing springs upon their cables, and their broadsides to bear, our galleys would no doubt have managed them in our river without much difficulty. But our gallant commander was determined to exchange a few shots with them at all events. The enterprise was worthy of a people contending for their dearest rights. For it is a fact that the ground-tier of even one side of the Phenix was equal to all the force of our galleys put together. Judge then—let the world, let our enemies judge—if the sons of Connecticut and Rhode-Island, from which States our galleys were almost wholly officered and manned, did not behave with a spirit and intrepidity becoming the descendants of such noble ancestors, in fighting, for two hours, an enemy of at least four times their force. Oh! ye despicable Ministerial bawlers! it could only have entered into such servilely dastard souls as your own to believe that the brave Americans were cowards.

COLONEL THOMAS TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Tarrytown, August 8, 1776.

SIR: Yesterday was brought before me Joshua Ferris, whom I send by the bearer, and whose examination is enclosed. He is an old offender, has been sought for long since by the Committee of this County to answer for his repeated offences, particularly in being in arms against this country. He was also suspected of being guilty of spiking up our cannon near the bridge. I therefore refer him to the honourable Convention of this State for trial.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

THOMAS THOMAS.

To the Hon. Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President of the Convention of the State of New-York, at Harlem.

P. S. Philip Scureman and Frederick Secore, who came on shore with the prisoner, having then made their escape, were immediately pursued by Captain J. Vermilyea's company of the Militia, who apprehended the prisoner.

EXAMINATION OF JOSHUA FERRIS.

Joshua Ferris, son of Caleb Ferris, being this 7th day of August, 1776, examined, saith, That he went on board of the Phenix last Friday week, (being the 26th day of July last,) and returned on shore the next day; that after having staid on shore until the Wednesday after, he returned on board again in the canoe, he put off in from Benjamin Lefigy's; that he saw on board of the Phenix one Bailey,

Philip Scureman, and Frederick Secore, both of whom came on shore with this examinant last evening; that he saw also on board one Lewis Purdy, from Croton River. That he was on board when the ships were attacked last Saturday by our galleys, when, as he was informed, one man was killed and two wounded on board of the Rose.

EXAMINATION OF JOSHUA FERRIS.

Joshua Ferris, being examined, says, That on Friday, the 26th July, he went on board the Phenix in the night, and returned on shore the next day, and after staying on shore till the Wednesday following, then returned on board the said ship; that he saw one Bailey on board the said ship; that he saw two persons on board the ship who came from New-York, while he was on shore, one of them with a laced hat and one eye, but does not know their names. Philip Scureman and Frederick Secore went on board the ship and returned with him. That he also saw Lewis Purdy, of Croton, on board. That when the ship was aground, she ran about one-half of her lower-deck guns forward to lighten her. That he was on board at the time of the engagement, and understood there was one man killed and two wounded on board the Rose, but there were none hurt on board the Phenix.

JOSHUA FERRIS.

Taken at Harlem, the 10th August, 1776, before us,
LEWIS GRAHAM,
JNO. SLOSS HOBART.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

German-Flats, August 8, 1776.

SIR: Last night I was honoured with yours of the 18th July, with copy of the petition of Captain Benedict, of the 11th July, to Congress, and the resolution of Congress of the 16th thereon.

Captain Benedict's pay was stopped in consequence of an order from the honourable Commissioners of Congress, before whom, it seems, he had been charged with some malpractices in Canada. What were the particular charges against him I cannot determine; I was only ordered to stop paying until further orders.

Yesterday afternoon the conference with the Six Nations was opened in form, previous to which two of their Sachems requested that we should publicly condole the death of one of their Sachems who fell at the Cedars, or in Major Sherburne's rencounter. We instantly rejected the proposal with indignation, deprecating the insult and their want of faith, and they waived the matter. This morning our speech is to be delivered to them. By their answer I hope we shall be enabled to judge whether it will be prudent to offer them the hatchet. Our emissaries unanimously think it will not, and that it will greatly prejudice our interests, as the friends we have amongst them have used it as an argument of our sufficiency to cope with the enemy without their aid, as we have never asked it. Whatever the result of this meeting may be—whether they engage to take an active part with us, whether they promise to remain neuter, or give evident marks of an unfriendly disposition—it will be incumbent upon us to prepare for the worst, as their promises are not to be relied upon however solemnly made.

That an ignorant multitude, instigated not only by my own enemies, but by those of the country, should have been instigated to traduce my character, is not very surprising, and I had already made myself easy on that score; but a late transaction of a Council of Officers held at New-York is so injurious, that I have found it necessary to resent it in a letter to General Washington, copy of which I have requested his Excellency to lay before Congress.

Of the half million of dollars which Congress ordered on the 22d of May last, only two hundred thousand have reached the military chest in this department. Half was sent to the Army, and the remainder paid out as fast as the war-rants could be drawn, much more than that sum being due when it arrived. And since that time the service has been carried on upon credit; but that, too, is exhausted, and we are driven to the necessity of borrowing money at interest, or leaving undone what is indispensably necessary to be done. But as no individual's estate is equal to the expense of supporting an Army, that mode will soon fail; and what the consequences will be is easily foreseen. Permit me, therefore, to entreat the attention of Congress to this capital article.

I am, sir, most respectfully, your obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. John Hancock.

CAPTAIN WYNKOOP TO GENERAL GATES.
Skenesborough, August 8, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I find the saw-mill here could not supply the carpenters here with white-oak boards, which occasioned me to go to Cheshire's, where they told me there were no oak trees; upon which I took a party into the woods, and have got thirty saw logs at the mill, which I had floated down the creek; so that now we will be supplied with four batteau loads every day. I have also been to take a view of the road from Cheshire's, near Fort Edward, and have marked the road out for the party there; so that in a short time I expect we will have a considerably good road from there to Fort Edward, for they are now hard engaged. Our carpenters go on very smart here; so that we expect in a short time to finish three galleys.

I would be exceedingly glad if your Excellency could possibly spare my two companies which are now in the fort, as I have four companies of my regiment stationed at the Mohawk River, and have never seen officers or men, and have written several letters to them, and also to the Committees of the different places for a return of the officers' names, and have as yet had none. Whether my letters are miscarried, or whether they neglect to answer them, is unknown to me; so that if those two companies could join me here, I would choose to let Colonel Cortlandt go and inquire into the state of the warrants and names of the officers there. I have received a letter from the Convention of the State of New-York, stating that they never had a return from the Committees, and for that reason can't send up the commissions.

I am, dear General, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

CORNELIUS WYNKOOP.

DOCTOR POTTS TO GENERAL GATES.
Fort George, August 8, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: The return of the sick remaining in the General Hospital, which you were pleased to order to be made weekly, will be delivered you by Captain Craig. I hope you will not attribute its late appearance at this time to any neglect on my part, as I can with truth assure your Honour nothing is left undone in my power to reduce every matter relative to the Hospital into order. The number of the sick being great, they employ our whole time; and having but one clerk, who has to enter the names of every person admitted, discharged, died, or deserted, as well as to superintend to issuing of provisions, makes it almost impossible to comply with your order so punctually as I could wish.

I am your Honour's most obedient and very humble servant,

JONA. POTTS.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL GATES.
Lebanon, August 8, 1776.

SIR: Captain Thacher came to me last evening, and showed me his orders. I apprehend the companies ordered to be raised are not filled. Those who are inlisted are marched. I sent out Circular Letters to the Civil Authority, Selectmen, Committees of Inspection, and all military officers in the respective towns in this State, to promote and facilitate further inlistments to complete the companies. It will be needful that officers to recruit be here till they find what can be done. The hurry of harvest will be soon over, and trust men will engage for the service.

The infection from the small-pox bath been matter of discouragement. It seemed to be removed in good measure on Major Ely's return. By the practice that is now carrying on by some companies from the Massachusetts and carpenters from Providence, in stopping on the way to inoculate, I fear a new spread of that infection. Men who have taken it by inoculation can't be fit for service and fatigue in less than three or four months. They are relaxed, liable to colds, &c.; so that it will be more for the benefit of the Army to have them return back than to join it; yea, they ought to meet some mark of displeasure. I wish this may be attended to. I have sent forward felling-axes, which hope are come to hand. Shall send clothing soon, and same route.

The matter of Chaplain, I supposed you would advise Colonel Swift of your intentions. Had heard of no mistake on that head till now; have enclosed a blank warrant, to be used as there may be occasion, and prevent uneasiness. No attention of mine shall be wanting to promote the service in your department. Regular returns will be necessary to show your numbers and condition. Shall send a post soon to Skenesborough and Ticonderoga by him. Shall expect all needful intelligence.

I am, with esteem and regard, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

JONA. TRUMBULL.

To the Hon. Brigadier-General Waterbury.

ANDREW WARD, JUN., TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.
Guilford, August 8, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: On receiving your Circular Letter yesterday afternoon, the Authority, Selectmen, Committee of Inspection, and Militia officers, immediately met, to consult what they could do more than they had already done towards promoting further inlistments, and were of opinion that there were but two methods which would effect their purpose: one by a subscription of money in addition to their premium; the other, if thirty or forty men would appear to join Captain Meigs's company for a short term of three or four months, on the encouragement the State had offered to others in the same regiment. I told them I did not know but that would procure the men. But Captain Meigs's orders were to inlist for one or two years; and whether it would be approved of by Governour Trumbull or Congress I know not. They desired I would request your Honour (if you thought it worth taking notice of) to give them your opinion. They further proposed the inlisting an Independent company, to go and join and do duty in any regiment thought best, as matters seemed so pressing at this critical time. They are warm in the glorious cause of liberty and their country, and will do everything in their power in compliance with your requisition.

I am, with the greatest respect, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

ANDREW WARD, Jun.

To Governour Trumbull.

THOMAS MUMFORD TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.
Groton, August 8, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: As one of the Selectmen and Civil Authority of this town, yours of the 1st instant was delivered to me, requesting our influence and exertion in forwarding the inlisting of the troops lately ordered by this Colony. I have shown it to such of the Authority and Selectmen as I have seen, a number of whom desired I would inform your Honour what methods we had previously taken to encourage and forward the raising said troops.

I therefore take the liberty to inform you that a number of us advanced to the amount of fifteen dollars to each volunteer that would immediately enlist, besides which, I engaged myself to supply the families of any such needy volunteers with provisions during their absence; and if, when they returned, they were unable to pay, I would freely give what I had so advanced. This is all the encouragement we could think of offering.

The number that have enlisted into our fort, and what have gone otherwise into the service, has left us very bare of men. Scarce any are to be hired now for common necessary service.

I am, with great esteem and respect, your Honour's most obedient and very humble servant,

THOS. MUMFORD.

To the Hon. Jona. Trumbull, Esq.

TOWN OF WOODSTOCK TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Woodstock, August 8, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: We take the earliest opportunity to inform your Honour, that in compliance with your Honour's requisition, in your letter of the 1st instant, we immediately, on receipt thereof, convened together; and having examined the state of our standing Militia, and the numbers gone forth from this town into the publick service, we find that seventy men have enlisted in and are gone from this town into the publick service since the last act of Assembly for raising troops for the three departments, viz: Canada, New-York, and Boston; which is near one-half the Militia in this town, as will appear to your Honour by your inspecting the return lately made to you of the Militia in the Colony, which is a much greater number than our proportion. But, notwithstanding our exertions have already exceeded our proportion, we are still ready, and ever shall be, to do everything in our power to advantage the publick cause at this critical day, as to forwarding enlistments, and every other way; and can assure your Honour that we ever shall be ready to coöperate with your Honour in promoting and encouraging any matter which you shall recommend for the defence of our cause, which your Honour so justly styles the "all-important cause;" and are, with the utmost respect and esteem, your Honour's most obedient and very humble servants.

Per order of the Civil Authority, Selectmen, Committee of Inspection, and Military Officers of the Town of Woodstock,

CHARLES CHURCH CHANDLER.

To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esq.

WILLIAM WATSON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Plymouth, August 8, 1776.

SIR: Captain Martindale, the bearer of this, will inform your Excellency that he, when he was about to sail in the Continental armed brigantine the Washington, was obliged to draw on the Agent for sundry articles in the clothing way, (for the use of his people, who were almost naked, and without which they could not go to sea,) amounting to £80, lawful money; which were delivered, and by Captain Martindale charged to such persons as received them.

Captain Martindale had taken from him his books and all the papers which related to this matter, and cannot tell to whom, or in what proportion, the said goods were delivered.

I have conducted as Agent with integrity, and with a view to the publick good, and flatter myself that my services have been approved, and that your Excellency will not let me suffer by this unexpected event, and that your Excellency will please to direct in what manner I shall be reimbursed.

I am, with great respect, your Excellency's most obedient, much obliged humble servant,

WILLIAM WATSON.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq.

RICHARD DERBY, JUN., TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Waterlown, Council Chamber, August 8, 1776.

SIR: We are informed that Major-General Ward, having leave from Congress, designs in a few days to retire from his military department. The troops at the lines in and about Boston will therefore soon be destitute of any General Officer. Such an officer is absolutely necessary to take the command of these troops, to give the necessary orders for their pay and subsistence, as well as their being supplied with what ammunition they stand in need of, and also from time to time to make to the Congress the necessary returns of the state of the Continental Army in these parts. We thought it necessary to acquaint the Congress with this matter, that a General Officer may be directed to take the command of the troops here as soon as possible.

In the name and by order of the Committee of Council, I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

RICHARD DERBY, JUN., Chairman.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

In Committee of Safety, New-Hampshire, Exeter, }
August 8, 1776. }

SIR: Having been encouraged by your honourable House of Representatives to expect the loan of a few large cannon to defend the extensive works at the entrance of our harbour, (which we cannot possibly obtain elsewhere,) if upon examination you could possibly spare them, we have directed Pierce Long, Esq., one of our body, to wait on you, and if you can do us so great a favour as to part with them, it will be esteemed a very particular kindness to the Colony; in whose behalf, as well as this Committee, I subscribe myself your humble servant,

MESHECH WEARE, Chairman.

To the Chairman of the Committee of War in the Massachusetts-Bay.

ETHAN ALLEN TO CONNECTICUT ASSEMBLY.

Halifax, Nova-Scotia, August 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have been prohibited from writing to friends during the course of my imprisonment, but hope these lines may find a channel to reach you. If they fall into the enemy's hand, it can do me no harm, as I ever have talked the same language to the King's officers. The fear of retaliation has been the sole cause of preserving me from an ignominious death. I have suffered everything short of it. Imagination is insufficient to paint the evils, nor shall I here attempt it. The heavy leg irons and handcuffs so benumbed my limbs that I expected to have lost their use; but on the 8th of January last, having been released of them, I have recovered my health and suppleness of limbs, and ardently desire to be with you, as I am fired with adequate indignation to revenge both my own and my country's wrongs. I am experimentally certain I have fortitude sufficient to face the invaders of America in the place of danger spread with all the horrors of war. I am apprehensive that Governour Tryon and sundry of my old land-jobbing combatants from New-York, exercise their influence to detain me a prisoner, hoping a conquest of America may in future put it into the power of the English Government to proceed against me as a criminal for taking the fortresses on Lake Champlain. You are sensible my confidence in presuming upon those achievements was predicated on the good faith of Connecticut. I have never repented that I did it; and inasmuch as this is the Colony in which I received my first breath, and in which most of my acquaintance and connexions are, have addressed these lines to your Honours, and further assure you, provided you can hit upon some measures to procure my liberty, I will appropriate my remaining days, and freely hazard my life, in the service of the Colony and in maintaining the American empire. I thought to have enrolled my name in the list of illustrious American heroes, but was nipped in the bud. News has been kept as close as possible from me. I have nothing more to inform than that the King's officers express less assurance of the conquest of America than they did some time ago. I have great confidence in the unity, bravery and strength of the Colonies, as everything worth living for is apparently at stake. Never had any people upon earth greater inducement to fight, and play the man. You cannot—nay, you must not, give over the cause, though you have to wade through seas of blood.

The 5th instant I was landed, and the prisoners that have been with me, and put into the common jail in Halifax. We have the liberty of the yard in the daytime. In this prison I found the wise and patriotick Mr. James Lovell, from Boston, who has greatly contributed to conversable happiness, and supplied me with the comforts of life. I am out of money, but am well supplied with clothes—a present from some gentleman in Ireland. I know nothing how long my confinement may continue, but if money could be communicated to me, it would put me out of the sovereignty of imperious officers. I cannot reconcile it to my feelings that the King's officers taken in America are treated as gentlemen, while I have but little, and, great part of the time, no distinction made between me and illiterate private persons. My compliments to my family and brethren, whom I have not heard from since I was taken, and to all my friends in America.

I subscribe myself your Honours' humble servant,

ETHAN ALLEN.

To the Honourable the General Assembly of the Colony of Connecticut, or to the worthy Council of War, for that Colony.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN LONDON FROM HIS CORRESPONDENT AT THE HAGUE, DATED AUGUST 9, 1776.

The differences between Spain and Portugal become daily of more importance; and we now plainly see that the war between Great Britain and America has a great influence over the above affairs. It is true that the Court of France pretends to be peaceably inclined; the Court of Spain pretends to be of the same inclination; but the whole Spanish nation (most undoubtedly led on by the nobles and grandees) all cry out for a war, insinuating that whilst Great Britain is so deeply engaged in a civil war, it will be impossible for her to defend Portugal. The whole Continent of America must then take part with the Spaniards; so that at any rate success is almost sure. The British Minister at Madrid openly declared that his Britannick Majesty would not leave his allies on account of the present civil war, Minorca and Gibraltar being well fortified, and battles by land and sea should be fought for the Portuguese, in case Spain insisted upon a war.

By the last advices from Madrid, dated the 11th ultimo, they were rather apprehensive that it would end in an open war. According to these advices, an army of forty thousand men were ordered to march towards the Portuguese territories, commanded by Count Aranda, the Duke of Gaillon, and Don Pedro Cevallos; and that the Portuguese Minister was just preparing to return to Lisbon when these advices came away. About ten thousand men were ordered to embark for Buenos-Ayres, notwithstanding it being almost too late in the season for that undertaking; nay, the intelligence from that quarter concerning the insolent behaviour of the Portuguese, is very alarming. On the other hand, we are astonished to find the obstinacy of the Court of Lisbon. In short, we may assert that several Courts of Europe are concerned in the affair; and though this dispute may appear trifling to many, yet it is the very beginning of a general war, in which many mighty empires may fall, and little ones grow opulent and powerful.

TO THE PRINTER OF THE PUBLIC LEDGER.

London, August 9, 1776.

SIR: The arrival of Mr. St. Paul from the Court of Versailles was unexpected at this critical juncture. You may assure the publick that he is charged with despatches from Lord Stormont, the delivery of which will much embarrass Administration.

Mr. St. Paul is a man of vigilance. He possesses that kind of penetration which renders it a very difficult matter to deceive him. During the absence of Lord Stormont he watched the motions of the Court of France with such success, that he traced the duplicity of that Court through all its different windings. He perceived that France intended secretly to afford America that assistance which she openly disavowed. He detected the Agents of the Cabinet in the very act of affording succours to the Colonies, and of giving every assurance of protection to the American leaders. Intelligence of this was communicated to Lord Stormont whilst his Lordship was in England. He was despatched in haste to Versailles, with instructions to remonstrate, in spirited terms, on the insult thus offered to the Court of London. Lord Stormont obeyed his instructions. He pressed for a categorical answer. The reply was couched in the most ambiguous terms. The affair was dropped. The Court of Versailles was more narrowly watched than ever. Enough was discovered to convince Lord Stormont of the intentions of that Court. Mr. St. Paul is now sent over to assure our Ministry of the resolution of the Cabinet of Versailles, which is simply this: That if the declaration of the Congress, setting forth the independency of America, shall be generally relished by the people throughout the different Colonies, then France, in conjunction with Spain, will hazard a rupture with Great Britain, by openly assisting the Colonists on terms highly advantageous to the commerce of France and Spain.

I do not pretend to specify every particular; but this I will venture to affirm is the substance of that intelligence which Mr. St. Paul is sent over to communicate to Administration. The publick will from hence perceive that it is entire madness to place any reliance on the pacifick assurances of France and Spain. They will not wantonly plunge into war; but no person can expect that they will forego national advantages out of compliment to the English Ministry. The idea is chimerical. Mr. St. Paul hath by this time told Administration thus much. The publick have only to expect what hath been repeatedly foretold: that the rupture with our Colonies will end in the loss of America, and a war with France and Spain. If these are eligible events, the people are very right in supporting those plans which must produce them. If the loss of America (which implies the total ruin of our commerce) is not a thing to be desired, then are the people blind to their own interests in not ceasing to protect Ministers who have long ceased to pay any regard to the commercial welfare of their country.

MATTER OF FACT.

Williamsburgh, August 9, 1776.

By advices from Hampton, we learn that last Wednesday morning the Right Honourable the Earl of Dunmore, Viscount Fincastle, and Baron Murray of Blair, Mouilli and Tillimet, after dividing his fleet and burning ten or a dozen vessels, took leave of the Capes of Virginia, where he has, for more than a twelvemonth past, perpetrated crimes that would even have disgraced the noted pirate Black Beard. One part of the fleet was seen to stand to the southward, it is imagined for South-Carolina, the other to the northward, supposed for New-York. Their strength, from the information of two negro deserters who came up to Hampton in the evening, amounts to near four hundred—Regulars, Negroes, and Tories; that they were now tolerably healthy, and had lately got a supply of provisions, which they took from a Rhode-Island vessel. So respectable a band will no doubt be a most valuable acquisition to the Generals Howe and Clinton.

We have just got a supply of 290 half-barrels of gunpowder and 90 stand of arms; and 436 barrels, with 18 chests of arms, arrived safe some little time ago.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COMMITTEE OF ST. MARY'S COUNTY.

[No. 128.]

Annapolis, August 9, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Captain Mantz's company being completely armed, as well as good marksmen, were the causes that induced us to send him to occupy Captain Thomas's station, whom we thought it our duty to order to the Flying-Camp so soon as the enemy left Potomack River. But as you are of opinion that this company will not answer the end for which it was sent, we have ordered Captain Mantz to march immediately to Annapolis, and have sent Captain Barry in a boat to the mouth of Patuxent to take in his baggage.

We cannot, without contravening a resolution of the Convention, order that part of Captain Beall's company stationed at Port-Tobacco to Saint Mary's, but have ordered Captain Forrest to take Captain Thomas's station, and we must depend upon the Militia lending Captain Forrest's company arms until we can supply them, which will be soon, expecting some arms from Virginia that we have lately imported. We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Saint Mary's County.

P. S. We have received information by one of our boats that the enemy's fleet had anchored in Hampton Roads.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.
[No. 129.] Annapolis, August 9, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have the pleasure to inform you that the enemy's fleet left Potomack River on Friday last, and is gone off down the Bay. They had collected a number of small vessels, which they had dismasted, and left on the point of St. George's Island, with intention to set fire to them, but a high tide floated them off, and they were driven on shore near our guard, who have taken possession of them, and have found sundry goods and other effects on board to the value of three or four hundred pounds currency. Some of the hulks may be repaired, and made fit for service. They burnt some other small vessels, and from appearances expect they are gone down to the Capes. Our pilot boat is just returned yesterday evening, and says he heard at Pyanketank that the men-of-war had stopped in Hampton Roads and were making demands of fresh provisions and water, and promised, on being supplied, to leave the Bay. The deserters, of whom many have come over to us, inform that the Tory families are going, some to the West-Indies, others to Halifax, and the Roebuck to New-York.

The Flying-Camp are beginning to move. Captain Good's company from Frederick will be with you by the time this comes to hand, and Colonel Charles Greenbury Griffith, with the battalion, with the remainder of the Frederick battalion, will follow him in a few days. Colonel Griffith appears to be active and spirited, and we beg leave to recommend him to your notice. Some little countenance from you might be of service to him. Captain Mantz's company were ordered to St. Mary's, but we have this day given an order for their moving to the northward. Captain Thomas is on the way to Philadelphia. Colonel Ewing's battalion is also under marching orders. Two or three companies of his battalion are nearly ready, and we are doing all we can to forward the others. They want everything. We have arms for one-half the battalion we keep, besides two hundred and seventy lately imported, not yet come to hand; these, with what we expect from the manufacturers, will enable us to complete Colonel Carroll Hall's battalion, which we propose to keep. Colonel Kent has resigned, and so we hear has Colonel Earle, both endeavouring to obtain a seat in Convention. Two or three East-Shore companies will be ready to march next week. Two other companies have borrowed arms, and are to supply the place of Captain Veazey and Captain Hindman; the rest will be very slow we fear in getting arms. Brigadier Dent hath also resigned, and is elected for Charles County. Under all these difficulties, arising from the want of arms and necessities, and also from resignations, we are exerting ourselves to the utmost. Money has flowed out of the Treasury very freely upon this important occasion. We hope for the approbation of the honourable Congress and Convention.

We shall say nothing particular about the elections, more than what relates to yourselves. S. Chase is in for Anne Arundel, Wm. P. and Carrollton Carroll for Annapolis. T. J. and S. S. are left out, and there is a very great change in the members in all Counties. According to the intelligence we have, Mr. Stone will have a list sent to him of all the Counties that we know, or have heard anything about, to which we refer you. There will be disputed elections we expect, particularly Queen Ann's, Prince George's, and Anne Arundel. We are, &c.

To the Deputies for Maryland in Congress.

LIEUTENANT POWNALL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.
August 9, 1776.

HONOURED SIRs: On the appointment of Edward Tillard to a Captaincy in the Flying-Camp from a Captaincy of a company of Militia in the Third Battalion of this Province, the Militia company, on Edward Tillard's completing his inlisting warrant for the Flying-Camp, wished to have a Captain. Accordingly, a majority of the company met, and Mr. Benjamin Galloway was unanimously chosen. I having been appointed to a first Lieutenantcy in the third company, and a commission conferred by the honourable Council of Safety at the time being, now beg leave to resign the same, (being enclosed,) having a daily expectation of a Marine commission from the honourable Continental Congress.

In the interim, am and shall ever remain a strenuous advocate for the welfare of America; and beg leave to subscribe myself, honoured sirs, your most obedient and obliged humble servant,

THOMAS POWNALL.

To the Honourable Council of Safety.

SAMUEL CHASE TO GENERAL GATES.

Philadelphia, August 9, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Mr. S. Adams showed me your letter to him from Tyonderoga, of the 17th of July, wherein you write: "I desire, if Chase is returned to Congress, he may know how much I have been deceived and disappointed in being removed from a place where I might have done the publick service, and fixed in a situation where it is exceedingly doubtful if it will be in my power to be more than the wretched spectator of a ruined army." "Mr. Chase passed too speedily through this country; he saw superficially, and, like a sanguine man, drew conclusions from the consequence, not the cause. Tell him if he and I meet, he must expect to be called to a serious account upon this matter. I know he is my sincere friend; but I also know he has deceived himself and his friend. I am not angry: I am only vexed with him." After this recital of so unkind, so unfriendly, so injurious a letter, permit me to ask you a few serious questions: Why not write to me, if you considered yourself injured or deceived? How have you been deceived and disappointed by your removal from New-York to the command in Canada, in what particular, and by whom? Did I ever make a profession, or communicate an opinion, or relate a fact, in which I was not sincere and faithful? When did I pass too speedily through the country in going or returning from Canada? and to what does this relate? What things did I see superficially? Deal in particulars, and point out when I was mistaken as to men, things, or circumstances. I admit that I am constitutionally warm and sanguine; but be pleased to name the instances in which I drew conclusions from the consequences, and not the cause? If ever you and I should meet, I will, with candour and integrity, and as a friend, answer you in all your inquiries, or I will with pleasure, by letter, give you full satisfaction. I will now only ask you one more question: In what instance have I deceived myself or you?

I will not be angry with you; but I am not only vexed, but mortified, chagrined, and exceedingly hurt by your suspicious and very unfriendly expressions. You have held up your friend as a man who had deceived and disappointed you, as a superficial observer, and of so warm and weak a constitution as to draw conclusions from the consequence, and not the cause. An imputation on my understanding I can forgive; a charge that I have disappointed and deceived you, from want of knowledge and without design, I can forget. I will add no more, but that I always was, and still am, with sincerity, your affectionate and obedient servant,

SAML. CHASE.

To General Gates.

IN CONVENTION FOR THE STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Friday, August 9, 1776.

Whereas the time for which the Committee of Inspection and Observation for the City and Liberties of Philadelphia, as well as the times for which the Committees of several Counties of this State were elected into that office, are near expiring; and whereas the Associators of the said City and Counties, who compose a great majority of the electors, are or may be, at such expiration, absent in the service of their country, and it would be highly inexpedient that the said City or Counties should either be without such Committees, or that they should be partially elected:

Resolved, therefore, That the present Committees of the said City and Counties respectively shall continue to execute the duty of their said offices, until the Militia of such City and Counties respectively shall return, and other Committees be regularly chosen; excepting from this Resolve the Committees of the Counties of Cumberland, Bedford, Northumberland, and Westmoreland.

Resolved, That no Tavern-keepers or others take out any Licenses from the officers of the late Government of this State.

On motion, Ordered, That two thousand copies of the particulars of the Rations allowed for the Flying-Camp be printed and distributed among the men.

The Ration for each man, as copied from the Minutes of the Honourable the Continental Congress, is as follows:

One pound of beef, or three-quarters of a pound of pork, or one pound of salt fish, per day. One pound of bread or flour per day. Three pints of peas or beans per week, or vegetables equivalent, at one dollar per bushel for peas or beans. One pint of milk per man per day, or at the rate of 1-72 of a dollar. One half-pint of rice, or one pint of Indian meal per man per week. One quart of spruce beer, or cider, per man per day, or nine gallons of molasses per company of one hundred men per week. Three pounds of candles to one hundred men per week, for guards. Twenty-four pounds of soft, or eight pounds of hard, soap for one hundred men per week.

GENERAL MERCER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Perth-Amboy, August 9, 1776.

SIR: In consequence of your Excellency's letter, Colonel Miles will march with all his Riflemen. The two battalions will make about seven hundred. As we have numbers of Riflemen lately arrived, it seemed to me more for the service to order the Second Battalion, and it will be more agreeable to the men. I hope they will be in time to render you essential service.

A cowardly infamous spirit of desertion prevails here too much. Your letter will be read to each corps, and must have good effects.

Some wagons have been discovered going from Billop's Point to-day, which confirms your former intelligence, and the enemy do not appear so numerous.

I have the honour to be, sir, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

HUGH MERCER.

To His Excellency General Washington, Commander-in-Chief.

COLONEL GUY JOHNSON TO LORD GEORGE GERMAINE.

Staten-Island, August 9, 1776.

MY LORD: I have the honour to acquaint your Lordship that I arrived here the 29th ultimo, after a long passage, and much molestation from the Rebel vessels for the last three weeks, one of which attacked us near Bermudas, but was, after a pretty close engagement of an hour and a half, beat off with much loss, though she damaged our masts and rigging so much that we could not pursue her. My Surgeon is shot through the leg, and five others slightly wounded—a trifle, considering her great superiority, for she had more than double our complement of men, and carried fourteen six-pounders, and swivels, against our twelve three-pounders. My officers and the Indians behaved very well, and were very useful at small-arms.

The General had been arrived here some time with the troops from Halifax, and from him your Lordship will doubtless receive an account of affairs here. I, however, think it necessary to enclose your Lordship a copy of the best and latest intelligence I could procure respecting the back country and the Indians, and I have good hopes that my officers there have discharged their duty, and conducted the Indians agreeable to my instructions and the promises of the latter. At present everything awaits the grand operation, and on its issue our future measures must depend. I think the prospect is favourable, and that the declaration for an independency must totally silence any advocates they had in England. At all events, I flatter myself I shall discharge my duties as far as time and circumstances will admit; in good hope that I shall soon be enabled to meet our friends to the northward, when I shall endeavour to merit his Majesty's favour and your Lordship's patronage, by a zealous attention to the trust reposed in me. This moment an inhabitant of the Mohock River has found means to reach our camp, and informs that he had heard that Sir John Johnson had reached General Burgoyne; that a Colonel Dayton, with six hundred men, was repairing Fort Stamwix; and that General Schuyler had opened a Congress at the German Flats, but that only some of the Oneidas and Oughquagys attended it; and adds, that the Rebels had carried off my negroes, &c., and demolished everything on my estate. The Indians that attended Schuyler have been long under the influence of New-England missionaries, and I found some difficulty with them last year.

I beg to be honoured with your Lordship's commands; and I am, with very great respect, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient and most humble servant,

G. JOHNSON.

To the Right Honourable Lord George Germaine.

Declaration of Mr. THOMAS GUMERSALL, Deputy Assistant to the Commissary-General of Stores and Provisions, born at LEEDS, in YORKSHIRE.

That he left the Mohock River about the beginning of June, of the present year, and had been for several weeks in that country, where he was acquainted. That Sir John Johnson, through intelligence he had received, partly by means of Mr. Gumersall, found it necessary to leave his home and withdraw to Canada; to effect which he procured three Indians from the adjacent village, as guides through the woods, and was accompanied by about one hundred and thirty Highlanders, and near one hundred and twenty other inhabitants of the country, attached to Government, with whom he proceeded from the house of Mr. McDonnell, called Callaghy, on or about the 13th of May last, for Osvegatchie, in Canada. That the said Mr. Gumersall, who was instrumental to him on the occasion, accompanied him a few miles further on his route, and then took his leave; after which, with much difficulty, after secreting himself and marching by night about five weeks, he arrived at Staten-Island (where his Majesty's troops were) on the 19th of July, and was by General Howe's favour (through the accommodation of John Small, Esq., Major of Brigade) appointed to his present office, in consideration of his sufferings and service, having been obliged to abandon a very advantageous branch of trade in which he was largely concerned. Mr. Gumersall further declares that he was credibly informed that John Butler, Esq., who was left at Niagara by Colonel Johnson Superintendent of Indian Affairs, with other officers, to encourage the Indians to join his Majesty's troops, this season received several letters from Mr. Schuyler, a Rebel General, inviting him down, and promising him protection, &c.; but at the same time employed the messenger, (an Indian,) in case he refused, to bring his scalp, for which he was to have a reward of one hundred dollars. That about three days after Sir John's departure, Lady Johnson received a letter from John Butler, Esq., addressed to Sir John, acquainting him that he had, agreeable to Colonel Johnson's instructions, assembled a considerable body of Indians ready to go on service, and only waited to receive news from Colonel Johnson, or orders to proceed; and Mr. Gumersall believes, and has heard, that the Indians had proceeded agreeable thereto, and that Lieutenant Gray, late of the Forty-Second, and Mr. Gumersall, helped to raise the men who accompanied Sir John, and Mr. Gumersall advanced them money on that occasion.

THOS. GUMERSALL.

Signed at Staten-Island, the 6th August, 1776, in presence of

JOHN DEASE,
GILBERT TICE,
JOSEPH, Indian Chief.

Copy of a Letter intercepted from S. KIRKLAND, a NEW-ENGLAND Missionary among the ONEIDAS, to Mr. SCHUYLER, a Rebel General and manager of their affairs.

Oneida, May 22, 1776.

BROTHER GOVERNOUR: We, the Oneida Chiefs, think proper to acquaint you with the result of the meeting at Niagara with Colonel Butler. This we do, at our own option, without being desired by the other parts of the Confederacy, though it has been reported among them that General Schuyler ought to be informed. We sent two Oneidas to hear what should pass at Niagara. They returned the night before last, and bring the following account:

The Representatives of the Six Nations delivered the answer to Colonel Butler's belts, that was formed and agreed upon in full council at Onondaga, of which we suppose you have been made acquainted. The purport of our answer was, that the Six Nations, with the Caughnawagas, and the Seven Tribes in that vicinity, had all united and resolved to maintain peace, both with the King and the Bostonians, and receive no axe from either.

Colonel Butler replies:

"Brothers: I am glad to hear you are all united, but I am surprised to find you talk of maintaining peace with the Americans, and at the same time support the King's peace or Government.

"Brothers, your resolutions are very surprising. Where is there any one or body of men to be compared to the King? As for General Schuyler, (and the other Commissioners,) of whom you boast so much, what is he? He was born but yesterday; just now, as it were, started up out of the ground, and to-morrow will return into the earth whence he came. It will not be the space of a month before you hear him cry. He has no men, guns, cannon and ammunition, or clothing; and should he survive the summer, he must perish by the cold next winter for want of blankets. But the King wants neither men nor money; there is no computing his numbers. As to the Caughnawagas claiming seven tribes as under their jurisdiction, it is false; they tell a lie. The Caughnawagas are by themselves alone, and they are become Bostonians. But the other six tribes in that vicinity, with all the back nations, are at the King's command and will take his side. And as for Canada, they are all (except twelve persons) returned to the King's side.

"Brothers, you had better recall your resolutions, and determine to keep the King's peace, and the King will then be glad to hear from you. What a wretched situation must you be in when the King attacks all the seaports of America, and comes in earnest to sweep off the Americans, if he finds you supporting the Americans!"

To this the Sachems made an immediate reply:

"Brothers, we will support the King's peace or Government, and we now speak from our very inside, and don't think it proceeds only from our lips."

For this, Colonel Butler returned thanks, and expressed great joy.

Then the commanding officer of Niagara (whom the Indians call Oguhaenjes) addressed the Indians as follows:

"Brothers: The King of England is very great and wise; he was never yet conquered. He has subdued both France and Spain. Pray, what can this handful in America do with such a King? The King is very subtle, he has deceived the Bostonians with a witness. He ordered his forces to continue at Boston till the Bostonians had collected all the cannon that could be found, from Philadelphia, New-York, and even from Virginia, and brought them to that place. The Bostonians, having all their force and cannon collected, were about to destroy the town; but the King's officer commanding there forbade them, telling them he would leave it in a peaceable manner, as the purpose of his coming there was now answered. And now, brothers, you will soon hear that the King's ships have laid waste all their seaports, as they can make no resistance, having sent all their cannon and stores to Boston. Virginia has had all already.

"Brothers: I shall not give up this post (Niagara) to the Bostonians without a struggle. My men must fall first before the Bostonians shall take possession."

After this Colonel Butler proceeds, addressing himself to the Sachems:

"Brothers: I propose to your consideration that a number of your warriors should go in quest of Colonel Johnson. Here is a large vessel ready for sailing; let them embark who desire a speedy interview with Colonel Johnson. He must at this time be at Quebeck or in the rivers; and upon my hearing of his actual arrival, I shall immediately pursue, and will certainly see him. If the Bostonians should be betwixt me and Colonel Johnson, I will turn out of the road and pass by them. I have also another vessel prepared for the back nations, as soon as they come."

The Sachems reply:

"We shall not consider the matter, for we know it is already settled, and they are now embarking. Did we know that Colonel Johnson was actually arrived at any particular place, we would consider the affair."

Brother General Schuyler: We now inform that Colonel Butler prevailed, and upwards of fifty of the Six Nations have embarked, twelve days ago, in quest of Colonel Johnson, and a number of the back nations, the whole amounting to one hundred.

Brother, we dread the consequence. We this day send off four of our young men to acquaint you, and then proceed to Caughnawaga to inform them. The one from Oriske is a chief man, and one of the two sent to Niagara, and will give you particulars. The next, called Kanaghwidiga, is a young Sachem of great influence in this nation. The third, Sewajis, is chosen to a Sachemship. We, the Sachems of Oneida, send our love to you, and wish you success.

From your faithful Brothers,
SUGHNAGEVRAT, JIMMEY, AGHSHINHARE, TIGAWI,
TEKEONGO,
KAGHNEGLORIES.

From the Oneida Chiefs.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL DUBOIS.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 9, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of the 5th, by your brother, is received. By him, I forward you eight hundred dollars. Would have you order your regiment to march for this place as fast as an officer's party are inlisted. You will make a return to me immediately of the number of men already imbodyed, and continue to make your returns, by which you may call for money as wanted. I conceive that taking men from the four or five months' Militia will not answer our present necessity, as it will not add to the number in service; but of the Militia which is only ordered in for a few days or weeks, you have an undoubted right to take such as have a mind to inlist with you. Previous to your men arriving in this city, you will order a Field-Officer here, to take charge of them as they come in.

I am, sir, yours, &c., GO. WASHINGTON.

To Colonel Lewis Dubois, Poughkeepsie.

COLONEL HARDENBURGH TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

New-York, August 9, 1776.

SIR: As I am at New-York, with four companies of Militia from Ulster County and one company from Livingston's Manor, and as some of them have not got guns, cartridge-boxes, or any accoutrements of war, I think it very hard that men are taken away from their places and business, and brought down to defend their country without arms. I here enclose you a true state of the deficiencies of the five companies, by which you may see how the matter is. I have done all that lies in my power to get a supply for them while I have been in town, but cannot perform. I therefore once more, gentlemen, supplicate to your House, whether you cannot put me in some way to get a supply for these men. They are willing to allow for it out of their pay:

I am, with regard, sir, your very humble servant,
JOHS. HARDENBURGH, Lieut. Col.

To Nathaniel Woodhull, President of the Congress of the State of New-York.

HUGH WALLACE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, August 9, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: Lord Stirling has acquainted the prisoners brought from Long-Island, that they are to attend your Excellency's orders to-morrow morning, at nine o'clock, and to be then ready to be sent out of the Province.

I beg to let your Excellency know the unfortunate situation my brother and partner and I are under. Our books, papers, &c., are at the house at Jamaica chiefly, where they are very unsafe, only women to take care of the house and them; that we have also many valuable papers, &c., here, which we must leave behind. In short, this affair may probably ruin us.

Could your Excellency, in compassion to our distress, allow my brother to stay with his small helpless family, he could take care of our widely-scattered affairs, and he is satisfied to give security to remain on his farm. As for me, though in a very infirm and disagreeable situation, I must be content.

If your Excellency cannot indulge us in this request, will you be so good as to allow one of us to go to Jamaica this day, to bring clothes and necessaries for our journey, and to secure our books and papers there in the best way we can, engaging, by all that's sacred and honourable, to be here by nine o'clock to-morrow, to receive your Excellency's commands. The other gentlemen will also beg to have clothes, &c., sent for. I am sorry thus to trouble your Excellency; hope my situation will be my excuse.

I am, respectfully, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

HUGH WALLACE.

To His Excellency General Washington.

COLONEL MCDUGALL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Friday, August 9, 1776.

SIR: I have seen, in the hands of Mr. Palfrey, a copy of a resolution of the Continental Congress, resolving that a Paymaster be appointed to each regiment. If the appointment is in your Excellency, I should be glad Mr. John Lawrence (a person who has had some trouble with the papers respecting the payment of my regiment) may be appointed. I will engage for his faithful discharge of that duty.

I am your Excellency's obedient servant,

ALEX. MCDUGALL.

To His Excellency General Washington.

EBENEZER HAZARD TO GENERAL GATES.

New-York, August 9, 1776.

DEAR SIR: This is at least the fifth letter I have written you since you left New-York, and I have not yet received one from you. As you remained silent so long, I began to suspect you considered me a troublesome correspondent, and intended to get rid of me by absolute neglect: the natural consequence of this, you know, was a determination not to be troublesome any longer; and I was just about concluding upon it, when our friend Trumbull told me you had complained of receiving no letters since you reached Ticonderoga. This absolutely astonished me, as I could not account for it without supposing some person or other guilty of villainous practices, which I was unwilling to do, but am forced upon the conclusion. The letters must have been stopped somewhere between Albany and Ticonderoga.

We have very little among us at present that is material. Clinton and Sir Peter Parker have fled from the southward, after being beaten by Lee, and have arrived at Staten-Island with the remnant of their fleet and army. About one thousand Hessians have arrived there, too; and in consequence of information received by two persons who left the enemy, and two gentlemen lately from London, by way of Staten-Island, we are in daily expectation of an attack. Howe musters now about thirteen thousand men in all, and affects to hold the "Rebel Army" in contempt. One would have thought experience had taught him better. The Vicar of Roxbury inquires very often after you, and wishes for a letter. Don't disappoint his wishes and mine. I send you some of the latest newspapers; and am yours, affectionately, EBEN. HAZARD.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

New-York, August 9, 1776.

SIR: I am informed that there is a quantity of salt at Norwich, in the Colony of Connecticut, and its neighbourhood, in care of some person or persons to me unknown: I suppose in the hands of Mr. Shaw or Mr. Stamford, &c., which belongs to the Continent, and has been imported on their account, and has lately been offered for sale. I would humbly suggest to Congress the necessity of a large quantity of that article being secured by the Congress for salting provisions for the Army the next season, and wish that orders may be given Congress agents for that purpose.

I am, sir, with esteem and respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Congress of Delegates from the United States of America, Philadelphia.

New-York, August 8, 1776.

Yesterday two deserters came from the fleet, who say that Lord Howe is preparing for an attack; that the field-pieces were put on board a vessel, and it was supposed the forces would land on Long-Island, while the ships attacked the city.

We hear from Elizabeth-Town that on a late alarm there, when an immediate attack of the regulars was expected, and every man capable of bearing arms was summoned to defend it, there were three or four young men, brothers, going out from one house; when an elderly lady, mother or grandmother to the young men, (who, without betraying the least signs of timidity, had, with a resolute calmness, encouraged and assisted them to arm,) when they were ready to go, and just setting out, addressed them thus: "My children, I have a few words to say to you: you are going out, in a just cause, to fight for the rights and liberties of your country; you have my blessing, and prayers that God will protect and assist you; but if you fall, His will be done. Let me beg of you, my children, that if you fall it may be like men, and that your wounds may not be in your backs."

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, August 9, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Colonel Hand reports the three ships mentioned in my last evening's Report gone down the Narrows, are at anchor in and a little below the Narrows. I was at Red Hook this morning about three o'clock, but nothing further had been discovered, neither has there since, that has come to my knowledge.

General Heard gives furloughs to the troops of Colonel Foreman's regiment. I conceive it to be capitally wrong, and very injurious to me and Colonel Foreman both, as neither can know what to depend upon if the troops are furloughed without our knowledge or consent. This is not the only evil; for if the troops are refused the indulgence here they request, and get it elsewhere, it will naturally lead them to form an opinion that we are tyrannical. I must beg your Excellency to put a stop to it immediately.

I am, with all due respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

N. GREENE.

To His Excellency General Washington, Esquire, Headquarters, New-York.

ROBERT R. LIVINGSTON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Harlem, August 9, 1776.

SIR: It is with peculiar pleasure that I acknowledge the receipt of your Excellency's favour of yesterday, since I cannot but consider it as an additional mark of that confidence with which your Excellency has hitherto honoured me. I have made the proper use of it, and imparted it in confidence to those members of the Convention on whose secrecy I thought I could most safely rely, and from whose influence I hoped to draw the most effectual assistance.

I early foresaw what has since happened, and therefore made it my endeavour to enforce the drawing out as much of the strength of this State as could possibly be collected. I cannot but hope that the good effect of this measure will very shortly appear. A considerable body of troops will, as we suppose, begin their march for King's Bridge to-morrow, and I flatter myself that in five or six days their number will be increased to sixteen or eighteen hundred men. Such is my idea of the importance of this post that I could wish your Excellency to count as little as possible upon the raw troops we send there, but to send thither all you originally designed for that station. Your Excellency is best able to judge whether it can be rendered tenable without some cannon, gunners, and Matrosses, and how far it is prudent to supply that want under which it now labours, by sending them from some other place.

Since I am upon this subject, I will take the liberty to hint what may possibly have escaped your Excellency's attention in the multiplicity of business in which you are involved; I mean the possibility of the enemy's destroying the bridge (if their fleet should get above the town) by means of a body of troops sent up the creek in boats, before any assistance could come in, unless some small work was thrown up for its defence, which the situation renders very practicable.

The troops raised on Long-Island, and which we have subjected to your Excellency's command, and ordered to join General Greene's brigade, may amount to about eight hundred men; but as part of them are very remote, they may possibly not all arrive at their stations in less than eight days.

We shall this morning endeavour to raise some more of our Militia, to occupy the passes in the Highlands, and that of the northern Counties which have hitherto been reserved in case of any misfortunes happening to the Army at Ticonderoga. I fear they will not come in time to assist your Excellency at New-York, if the enemy should be speedy in their attack, as they are very remote and but ill-armed. Perhaps we may be able to send some of the neighbouring Militia to General Greene, to be dismissed when the Long-Island levies are all come in.

Your Excellency may be assured that the little influence I have shall be exerted to forward any operations which your Excellency may form, since I am fully satisfied that they will always be directed by that spirit of patriotism which has so deservedly secured to you the esteem of this Continent, and shall therefore think it a happiness to be honoured with your commands.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest esteem and respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

ROBT. R. LIVINGSTON.

To His Excellency General Washington, Esquire, Headquarters, New-York.

JOHN SCHENCK TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

In Committee, Poughkeepsie, August 9, 1776.

SIRS: From the present situation of publick affairs, the Committee of Poughkeepsie labour under many difficulties for the want of cash, as well to answer publick accounts already due, which they have become bound for, as to answer emergencies of which the following are instances: Colonel Clinton wrote us to send him a number of boards down to Fort Constitution, to make shelter for the troops then ordered there, which the barracks would not contain. On his request we purchased a quantity of Mr. Child, and sent them down. On return of the sloop, Mr. Child received an order on us for the money, which we could not pay; in consequence of which he returned the order to Colonel Clinton, which we are informed remains yet unpaid. Colonel Clinton also drew on us to pay the freight of the above boards.

Major-General Schuyler sent down a party of men for stores from the shipyards. These men called upon us to provide them provisions. We have to request the honourable the Convention of the State of New-York would intrust the Committee of Poughkeepsie with a sum of money as a bank, to answer publick emergencies, for which they will give any security that it shall be expended for the use and to the satisfaction of the State. We have herewith sent in our account against this State, which we request the Convention will order paid unto the bearer, Robert North.

Signed by order of the Committee, by, gentlemen, your most obedient,

JOHN SCHENCK, Secretary.

To the Hon. the Convention of the State of New-York.

RICHARD VARICK TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, August 9, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Agreeable to my promise and duty, I do myself the honour to inclose you a return of the stores forwarded for Tyonderoga and Skenesborough. I am sorry to disappoint you in not sending the powder as soon as it might be expected by you; but it is not a neglect in me. I have endeavoured to procure wagons, but cannot get them now, in harvest, even for cash. The farmers complain that their wheat is blasted, and must be attended to. However, I expect that the whole, or at least the greater part, will be moved from hence on Monday. I shall try every means to effect it. Be assured, my dear sir, that I do not withhold either my time or attention from the publick interest. Some of the shot and of the blocks I do expect next week. I shall forward them as fast as possible. Some of the swivels will be sent as soon as Governour Trumbull's order can be obtained for sending them from Salisbury to this place. The anchors and cables sent from New-York are not yet arrived. I expect them, with some others, in three days. The handspikes and rammers, with sponges, will be finished next week, and forwarded, as also some powderhorns and priming-wires.

My respects to the gentlemen of your family. I remain, with every good wish, your most obedient and very humble servant,

RICHD. VARICK.

To the Honourable Major-General Gates.

COLONEL DAYTON TO INDIAN CHIEFS.

Fort Schuyler, August 9, 1776.

SIR: Yours of yesterday was just handed me. I observe the contents. By the bearer I send two barrels of powder. Lead, I have deferred sending any more for the present. As there is a probability of an attack being made here, cannot tell what we may have occasion for, and especially as I have understood our brothers at the Castle are not in much want of that article at present.

Three of the Oneida Indians are gone to Oswego for intelligence, which I hope will answer as well as though some of my people had gone with them. As I place the greatest confidence in the Oneidas, shall listen to what they say at all times.

I thank the great men very sincerely for their kind wishes respecting my health, and pray that the great and good Spirit may ever continue his protection to us all.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,

ELIAS DAYTON.

P. S. We have a report here that a battle has lately been fought near New-York, and that General Washington has killed a great number of the Regulars; but for the truth of it, cannot positively say.

GENERAL WATERBURY TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, August 9, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I received your Honour's favour of the 7th instant, by Lieutenant-Colonel Conner, and have complied with your Honour's orders as to forwarding Colonel Wingate's and Colonel Wyman's regiments to Ticonderoga. The Militia that are still to come who have tents, shall be sent forward as fast as they shall arrive, by the orders that I shall receive. There are none of the troops who have tents, except the small parties of the New-York regiments.

DAVID WATERBURY, Jun.

To the Honourable Major-General Gates.

GENERAL GATES TO CAPTAIN RICHARD VARICK.

Ticonderoga, August 9, 1776.

DEAR SIR: This morning I was favoured with yours by Mr. Hughes, with the invoices enclosed. I am much obliged to you for your diligence and attention in forwarding to this post, and with such despatch, the articles of which we stand so much in need. Spades, and cartridge paper for muskets, are the things at present most in request. Flour will become scarce soon. I am told there are three thousand barrels at Fort Edward. Surely the harvest is now over, and the teamsters ready to serve the publick. As to money, I can have no idea that that can long be wanted; nor ought fellows who get so much from the United States to hesitate at this time. They know they are sure of their pay. In case the enclosed packet gets early enough to Albany to go by the post on Monday, send it by that conveyance; if not, you will despatch a special express with it to General Washington. I fancy General Schuyler cannot have yet returned to Albany; so defer writing to him until to-morrow or Sunday, when perhaps I may have something material to say. There is nothing new since Messrs. Cuyler and Gansevoort left us. Yours,

HORATIO GATES.

To Captain Richard Varick.

OBADIAH JOHNSON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Canterbury, August 9, 1776.

HONoured SIR: I have concluded to have the Reverend Ephraim Judson, Chaplain to Colonel Ward's regiment, if agreeable to your Honour, &c. And if your Honour pleases to send warrants for Chaplain and Surgeon's Mate, or whatever commands, the bearer will convey them to me. The Surgeon's Mate agreed upon is Dr. Thomas Shaw.

I am, sir, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,
OBADIAH JOHNSON.

To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull.

COLONEL COOKE TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Danbury, August 9, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: Upon receipt of orders from your Honour of the 6th of July last, requiring that upon notice given me by General Washington, or the Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the United Colonies, of the necessity of assistance, I should call forth and march with all expedition so many of the able-bodied effective men of my regiment as might be necessary and convenient for the defence of the Colonies,—I immediately sent my orders to the commanding officers of the several companies in my regiment to have them properly equipped and hold them in readiness to march at the shortest warning; which I trust have been generally executed agreeable to your Honour's direction.

I would now acquaint your Honour that I this day received a letter from General Washington, dated 7th instant, informing me that General Clinton had brought his whole body of troops from South-Carolina; that the foreign troops are every day arriving; that he hath the most authentick intelligence that the enemy's Army in a little time will amount to thirty thousand men; and that a decisive attack will be made upon our Army, which, in its present situation, from sickness, the deficiency of regiments and other causes, is far short of its intended complement. His Excellency therefore requests me to call forth my regiment without delay, and have them equipped with blankets, arms, and ammunition, if possible, and march them immediately to New-York. Which orders I am carrying into execution with the utmost despatch, and expect to march in a very short time. I hope your Honour will order some small supply of money, without which it will be difficult to proceed, as many of the men will probably have none of their own; but I mean not to wait for that.

As the General says nothing about the time the Militia may be detained, I would beg leave to observe that the present season of the year is a very important season, especially to this part of the Colony, where large crops of wheat are raised, this being the usual time when the ground is prepared for seed, and about three or four weeks hence will be the proper seed time, upon which the hopes of a future harvest altogether depend; so that, should the whole Militia be detained much beyond that time, it would present a melancholy prospect for the ensuing year, especially when joined to a very scanty harvest the present year.

These, sir, are thoughts which very forcibly strike the minds of people, and would very much damp their zeal upon the present emergency, was it not for the expectation of being soon dismissed. I therefore hope your Honour will represent the matter to the General in such a manner that they may not be detained longer than absolute necessity requires.

I am, sir, with all due respect, your Honour's most obedient and very humble servant,

JOSEPH P. COOKE.

To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esq.

COLONEL CRAFTS TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Boston, August 9, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The bearer hereof, Lieutenant Raney, in the battalion under my command, has an inclination to serve his country in the sea department. As I am doubtful of my power to discharge him, have referred him to your Honours.

I am, with all due respect, your Honours' most obedient, humble servant,

THOS. CRAFTS.

To the Board of Council of the State of Massachusetts-Bay.

TIMOTHY LANGDON TO JOHN AVERY.

August 9, 1776.

SIR: I should take it as a favour if you would look over the records of Council for August and September, 1775, and inform me if Lieutenant Nathan Smith delivered any paper relating to the schooner Susannah, Gammon or Philips Master. If there are any such papers, you will send me a pass from Admiral Graves that is amongst them, or a copy of it; you shall be satisfied for your trouble.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

TIMO. LANGDON.

To Mr. John Avery.

COLONEL MITCHELL TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Falmouth, August 9, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: As I have some particular business of a private nature which renders my being personally at Boston about the middle of September, of very great importance to me, I therefore take the liberty to ask your Honours' permission for leave of absence to go thither at that time, which (should you think proper to grant) I shall esteem a particular favour.

I can, with the greater freedom, solicit your indulgence herein, as we shall soon be in a tolerable state of defence at this place, and I hope as well prepared for the reception of the enemy as our number of men and cannon will permit. I wish to tarry no longer time than what is absolutely necessary for the accomplishing my business.

I am, with profound respect, your Honours' humble servant,

JONA. MITCHELL.

To the Honourable the Council of the State of the Massachusetts-Bay.

In Committee of Council, August 14, 1776.

Ordered, That the prayer of the within Petition be granted, and that he, the said Colonel Mitchell, have a parole of absence to go to Boston and attend his own private business about the middle of September next, agreeable to his request, and to return to his duty as soon as he can.

JNO. AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

Watertown, August 12, 1776.

We hear that on Wednesday last was sent into Portsmouth, by the Hancock privateer of Philadelphia, a large ship (formerly a twenty-gun ship) now mounting fourteen guns, bound from Jamaica for London, having on board seven hundred hogsheads of sugar, two hundred of rum, besides other valuables; a fine prize. We hear she was taken by the following stratagem, viz: Just before dusk in the evening the Hancock came across her; the Captain of the prize taking the Hancock to be one of the tyrant's pilferers, was very much rejoiced to fall in with her, and doubtless vice versa; when the Hancock at night threw out a light for a signal as a pilot. At daylight the next morning, the vessels being near together, the Captain of the ship invited the Captain of the Hancock to come on board and take a breakfast; who replied, his hands were so few and sick, that he had not enough to man his boat and work the vessel, and in his turn invited the Captain of the ship to come on board him, which he readily complied with, by ordering his boat out, when he and about a dozen of his hands went on board the Hancock, and were taken as good care of as men in such circumstances could allow. The Hancock then sent an equal number of her own hands on board the ship, when, alas! she fell into the hands of the United States of America.

COLONEL GALE TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

State of New-Hampshire, East Kingston, }
August 9, 1776. }

Pursuant to orders from Nathaniel Folsom, Esq., Major General, &c., requiring me forthwith to raise and see equipped one hundred and eleven men out of the regiment under my command, to be ready to march and reinforce the Northern Army, in consequence of which orders, the number of the soldiers raised, equipped, and marched the 20th of July, are as followeth, viz :

1 Captain, 4 Subalterns, 5 Sergeants, 5 Corporals,
1 Drummer, 1 Fifer, - - - - -	17
90 Privates, 2 privates marched the 25th, - - -	92
1 Jonathan Carlton inlisted from Newtown under Captain Johnson for the Massachusetts State in the same expedition, - - - - -	1
Total number of men, - - - - -	110

The above Return from Colonel Josiah Bartlett's regiment, exhibited by JACOB GALE, Lieutenant-Colonel.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety of said State.

La veille de mon départ d'Utrecht, j'écrivis ce qui suit à la personne que vous savez, Messieurs:

21^e Juin.

"M.: Dans l'espérance que vous avez bien voulu me faire concevoir, que je pourrai quelque jour vous être utile, je crois devoir vous prévenir que je partirai demain de cette ville, pour aller passer l'été à une campagne à moitié chemin d'ici à . J'y recevrai en toute sûreté vos ordres, si vous envoyez vos lettres chez, &c. Je me propose d'ailleurs de passer à le plutôt que je pourrai, uniquement pour profiter de la permission que vous m'avez donnée de vous rendre mes devoirs de temps en temps. Sans avoir du nouveau à vous faire voir, l'ouvrage ébauché a besoin des vos bonnes directions pour le temps où vous ne résideriez plus à ; et je serois bien fâché de manquer l'honneur de vous entretenir au moins une fois encore avant votre départ, s'il étoit proche."

RÉPONSE.

23^e Juin.

"M.: J'ai reçu la lettre que vous m'avez fait l'honneur de m'écrire le 21^e de ce mois. Vous me flattez de l'espérance de vous voir à , dont vous rapproche le séjour que vous allez faire pendant l'été à une campagne. Cette proximité vous donnera la facilité de faire des voyages, dont je profiterai avec grand plaisir. Je sens l'estime qui vous est due, et l'avantage de mériter l'amitié d'un homme instruit tel que vous, réunissant la littérature aux devoirs de la société. Je vous entendrai toujours avec une grande envie de profiter, et cela sur toutes les matières qui ont intéressé la sagesse de vos réflexions. Je ne sais pas encore le temps que je resterai à . Peut-être sera-t-il assez long pour jouir plusieurs fois de l'honneur de vous recevoir; cela dépend des ordres qu'on me donnera de la cour; et rien ne paroît jusqu'ici devoir les accélérer. Nous sommes dans la saison la moins active, ou la plus dissipée. Les affaires ne reverdissent guère qu'à la chute des feuilles, ou même ne s'échauffent qu'au retour des glaces. Je parle du vieux monde: car je ne veux pas trop généraliser le tableau. Avez vous, Monsieur, des nouvelles du Docteur et de ses amis? Je vous serois très obligé de soigner à cet égard mon instruction. Je ferois volontiers les frais d'un exprès que vous m'enverriez quand vous le jugeriez à-propos; sinon, la poste tout uniment.

S'il m'arrivoit à moi-même de voyager, j'aurois l'honneur de vous marquer mes stations et mon adresse. Je ne saurois trop vous exprimer, Monsieur, le désir que j'ai de vous servir, et de mériter une part dans vos sentiments," &c.

Environ 15 jours après, j'écrivis ce qui suit au même:

Juillet, 1776.

"M.: La lettre dont vous m'avez honoré en date du 23^e Juin, m'a donné la sécurité qu'il falloit, pour me consoler des contre-temps qui m'ont retenu ici. Peut-être serai-je à Lahaie Dimanche matin. Soyez persuadé, M., que s'il me parvient quelque chose qui mérite votre attention, vous en serez instruit sur le champ. Je n'ai pas de raison pour m'attendre à recevoir sitôt des nouvelles directement. J'ai écrit deux lettres par deux différents vaisseaux partis d'Amst. pour St. E.; et j'attends qu'un autre vaisseau parte pour leur en dépêcher une troisième. Avant que j'aie réponse, il se passera bien du temps, et dans ce temps bien des choses. Il y a cependant un homme chargé de quelque commission de leur part, à qui l'on a donné à L. mon adresse; et j'ai reçu deux lettres de cette ville, l'une du 21^e Mai, l'autre du 11^e Juin, où l'on me prie de lui rendre service. Voilà tout ce que j'en sai; car cet homme n'a pas encore paru.

"Plus je suis favorisé de vos lettres, M., et plus j'ambitionne de mériter avec le temps que vous ayez bonne opinion de moi. En attendant je dois me tenir en garde contre trop de présomption, et penser combien il est naturel de faire un accueil gracieux au serviteur pour l'amour du maître. Je vous avouerai, M., qu'en rendant compte au Docteur et à ses amis de notre correspondance, j'ai cru devoir les prévenir là-dessus, non que je doutasse de leur pénétration, mais de peur qu'ils ne soupçonnassent le geai de vouloir se parer des plumes du paon. Ils seront instruits de l'obligeant intérêt avec lequel vous me demandez de leurs nouvelles. J'espère que le temps viendra où vous pourrez me permettre de ne plus leur faire un secret de votre nom.

En conséquence je m'abouchai avec lui; nous convinmes de tout ce que nous dirions chacun; il alla dîner à cette même maison, dit que j'avois été chez lui, et que je lui avois dit que j'irois aussi à l'autre maison le lendemain à 11 heures. J'y fus effectivement. On me reçut tête-à-tête, en grande cérémonie, dans la salle d'audience. J'exposai brièvement mon sujet, et tirai un mémoire pour le lui lire. Il me dit qu'il ne pouvoit pas m'écouter sans ordre de son maître. Je lus pourtant, et il ne boucha pas ses oreilles. Je le priai de recevoir et garder le mémoire. Il refusa, alléguant toujours qu'il ne pouvoit rien sans ordre. Je tirai alors mes originaux, et lui montrai mes trois signatures, qu'il regarda avidement. En vous séparant je le priai de taire mon nom à ; il me dit qu'il le tairoit partout. Il me demanda pourtant si c'étoit mon vrai nom. Je l'en assurai.

Il me dit quelques gracieux étés personnelles: nous nous quit-tames; et je sus dès le lendemain par un autre canal, qu'il avoit pourtant rendu compte à son maître de cette visite; ce qui me suffit, car je n'ai proprement besoin, pour ce que vous savez, que d'une de ces bonnes maisons. J'y suis toujours bien poliment reçu, et en ami; c'est tout ce que je demande. Je n'y multiplie pas trop mes apparitions; mais pour les rendre toujours désirables, je n'y parois jamais sans avoir quelque chose d'intéressant à dire; et pour cet effet, les lettres de mon cher et digne correspondant de Londres me sont fort utiles. Ce dernier m'a adressé dernièrement quelqu'un, dont la conversation, jointe à ce que me disoit la lettre dont il étoit porteur, m'a servi à la composition d'un mémoire qu'on a goûté, et j'ai lieu de croire qu'on l'a envoyé.

Ce quelqu'un m'a fait vous écrire une lettre, datée du 4^e Août, par voie de Bourdeaux à St. Domingue, sous enveloppe de M. Caton, marchand au Port St. Nicholas, dans cette Isle, d'ont voici l'extrait:

"A gentleman belonging to Jamaica, a particular friend of Dr. B. Fr., and very well known to him, m'a chargé de lui écrire, pour l'assurer de bonne part de l'estime singulière qu'a pour lui et ses amis ce qu'il y a de plus sensé en Angleterre; qu'ils ne doivent pas croire, and that he prays him to let them know it, que la voix du Parlement actuel soit la voix du peuple Anglois; qu'il existe et se renforce a great body, qui, à la vérité, n'est pas le plus fort, mais qui regarde la cause des Américains comme la sienne propre, leur salut et leur liberté comme la sienne, qui préféreroit de les voir indépendants plutôt que subjugués, et qui fera à la future rentrée du Parlement les plus grands efforts en leur faveur; que la base de ce parti est déjà de 40 pairs, et de 160 membres des communes.

"Ce gentilhomme m'a avoué qu'il étoit un des plus actifs dans ce parti, qui seroit bien aise qu'il y eût en H. un homme de confiance, un agent de la part du Congrès. La lettre que ce gentilhomme m'avoit apportée débutoit ainsi:

"Dear Sir: This will be delivered to you by ———, a friend of Dr. Fr., of liberty, and of America. He is a philosopher, very well instructed on the subject of America, and I trust will be both an agreeable and useful acquaintance while he remains near you."

"Cela me rassurant, je lui découvris que j'étois l'homme qu'il cherchoit, muni de créances et ordres suffisants du Congrès, pour faire passer par mes mains tous les bons offices que voudroient lui rendre ses amis. Là-dessus je lui montrai ma créance; il en fut satisfait; nous nous donnâmes nos adresses; il me promit de m'écrire quand il en seroit temps; et nous nous séparâmes satisfaits l'un de l'autre," &c.

Enfin ma dépeche C vous portoit aussi copie de deux lettres d'un officier fort habile dans la petite guerre, et des conditions aux quelles il passeroit au service des Colonies Unies. Un guerrier très expérimenté me l'avoit recommandé non seulement comme excellent officier pour le commandement en chef, mais aussi comme très versé dans le génie. Mais lui-même m'écrivit qu'ayant négligé depuis longtemps cette partie de l'art militaire, il ne s'engageroit jamais comme ingénieur, mais pour la conduite d'un corps de troupes en chef, surtout pour la petite guerre, qu'il a étudiée à fond; et qu'en cette qualité il consacrerait avec plaisir et zèle sa capacité et son zèle en faveur de peuples qu'il admire, et avec lesquels il voudroit, lui et 6 enfants qu'il a, passer le reste de sa vie, aux conditions suivantes:

1^o. Que le Congrès lui paiera au moins 1000*l.*, (c'est-à-dire, à peu près 100 livres sterling,) tant pour l'arrangement de ses affaires, que pour se pourvoir des choses nécessaires dans une pareille situation et pour le voyage, sans être obligé à rembourser cet argent.

2^o. Que le Congrès lui donnera des assurances, qu'au cas qu'on ne lui procure pas un établissement solide, et équivalent à son emploi militaire, dans ce pays-là, à la paix, on lui paiera 1000 ducats, (environ 500 livres sterling,) pour dédommagement de ses peines et risques, et pour s'en retourner dans ses foyers.

3^o. Qu'on sera payer par quelque négociant de ce pays-ci, pendant 2 années, à ses enfants, la pension qu'il tire actuellement, et qu'il perdra, du moment qu'il quittera l'Europe, savoir, 600*l.* environ 60 livres sterling par an, de 6 en 6 mois, chaque fois 300*l.*, ou 30 livres sterling. Cet article il le remboursera s'il reste en vie: mais s'il mourroit en route, ou s'il étoit pris par les Anglois, le Congrès continueroit cette pension pendant 6 ans.

4^o. On lui confiera le commandement d'un corps de troupes légères, avec un grade proportionné, et la disposition de toutes les places d'officiers, et la liberté d'engager ici en Europe de bons sujets, d'une bonne conduite et capacité. Pour cet effet on lui fournira les pouvoirs et les moyens pour leur transport en Amérique. Cet article pourra être éclairci en son temps.

5^o. Ses gages doivent être au moins de 125 dollars par mois courant.

Il est bon d'ajouter à ceci, que M. le Marquis d'Engenelli, en 1756, et après lui le Général Wunsch en 1758, lui ont offert une compagnie dans leurs régiments; ce dernier avec la majorité au service du Roi de Prusse. La même année M. Van Hellen, alors ministre de ce Roi à Lahaye, le fit venir chez lui par M. le Colonel de Courvoisier, lui offrit le commandement d'une troupe avec 200 ducats pour le voyage, et les postes franches du Roi. Mais n'ayant pu obtenir des sûretés pour sa capitulation, cette raison, et l'instabilité de ce service, l'ont empêché d'accepter ces offres.

J'ajouterai, Messieurs, à ce que vous venez de lire, que cet officier, qui est veuf, avec 6 enfants, Suisse, bon républicain, voudroit rester avec eux en Amérique après l'avoir servie. S'il est vrai ce qu'on dit, et ce que vos amis-mêmes me marquent de Londres, que vous n'avez pas assez d'officiers commandants en chef pour l'étendue vaste de vos opérations, je crois qu'il seroit bon que vous prissiez celui-là pour la campagne prochaine; il me semble que ces demandes ne sont pas déraisonnables: et comme il n'est pas apparent que vos ennemis quittent la partie sitôt, je crois qu'il pourra vous être fort utile.

[Translation.]

CHARLES W. F. DUMAS TO THE COMMITTEE OF SECRET CORRESPONDENCE.

August 10, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Arthur Lee, in his letter of the 11th of June, observes, that "Mr. Story goes from hence directly to America. A French gentleman named Hortalez having something to negotiate for the Congress, I have given him your address." On the eve of my departure from Utrecht, on the 21st of June, I wrote as follows to the person whom you know:

"SIR: In the hope that you have consented to make me understand that I shall be one day useful to you, I think it my duty to advise you, that I shall depart to-morrow from this city, to pass the summer at a country house half way from here to ———. I shall receive there in all safety your orders, if you send your letters to, &c.

"I propose, also, to pass to ——— as soon as I can, merely to profit by the permission you have given me to render you my services from time to time. Without having any new plan to propose, the work already marked out has need of your good directions, for the time which you will no longer reside at ———; and I shall be very sorry to fail of the honour of an interview with you at least once more before your departure, if it is near."

To this I received the following answer, dated June 23:

"SIR: I have received the letter you did me the honour to write me the 21st of this month. You flatter me with the hope of seeing you at ———, to which you are brought near by the residence you intend to make during the summer at a country house. This proximity will afford you opportunity to make journeys, by which I shall profit with much pleasure. I am sensible of the esteem which is your due, and of the advantage of meriting the friendship of an experienced man like yourself, uniting literature to the duties of society. I shall listen to you always with an eager desire of profiting by your counsels, and this on all subjects that have engaged your thoughts. I do not yet know the time that I shall remain at ———. Perhaps it will be sufficiently long to enjoy often the honour of receiving you. This depends on the orders of my Court, and nothing has as yet appeared which will hurry them. We are in the least active, or most dissipated season. Business will not flourish much till the fall of the leaves, or even not get warm till the return of snow. I speak of the Old World; for I wish not to extend the picture too much.

"Have you any news of the Doctor and his friends? I shall be obliged to you to follow my instructions in this respect. I will bear willingly the charge of an express, whom you may send to me when you shall judge proper; otherwise write uniformly by the post. Should I be on a journey, I shall have the honour to inform you of my residence and address. I do not know how to express to you sufficiently, sir, the desire I have to serve you and to deserve a place in your thoughts."

About fifteen days after, I replied to this letter as follows:

"SIR: The letter with which you honoured me, dated 23d of June, has given me the assurance which was needed to console me for the disappointments that have detained me here. Perhaps I shall be at the Hague on Sunday morning. Be assured, sir, that if anything comes to my knowledge worthy of your attention, you shall be informed of it immediately. I have no reason to expect soon to receive news directly. I have written two letters by two different vessels, that have sailed from Amsterdam for St. Eustatia; and I expect, when another vessel departs, to despatch a third. Before I have an answer much time will pass, and in this time many events. There is, however, a man charged with some commission on their part, to whom they have given my address at Leyden; and I have received two letters from that city, the one of the 21st of May, the other of the 11th of June, in which they pray me to render him service. This is all that I know of him, for the man has not yet appeared.

"The more I am favoured with your letters, sir, the more I wish to deserve your good opinion. In the meantime, I ought to be on my guard against too much presumption, and to think how natural it is to give a gracious reception to the servant for the love of the master. I own to you, sir, that in giving an account to the Doctor and his friends of our correspondence, I have thought proper to forewarn them thereon; not that I doubt their penetration, but from fear that they might suspect the jay of a desire to appear in the feathers of the peacock. They will be informed of the obliging interest with which you ask news of them. I hope that the time will come when you will be able to permit me to reveal your name to them.

"After having thought long and much, it seems to me, that in order to answer completely their intention, I ought to present myself also to the Hotel d'Espagne, to be known there simply as charged with such a commission, to open to myself thereby ways of serving my constituents on diverse occasions, which may present themselves at one moment or another, and not incur the blame, which may be reflected even on these gentlemen, of having neglected a power so worthy of their confidence and notice. For the rest, I shall not do or say anything in this respect till I have had the honour of seeing you, sir; and I pray you to believe that I shall observe scrupulously the conduct and the discretion that you have had the goodness to prescribe to me."

In consequence, I have again conferred with this gentleman. We agreed upon all that each of us should say. He went to dine at that same house, said that I had been with him, and that I told him I would go also to the other house the next day at eleven o'clock. I went in fact, and was received tête-à-tête with great ceremony in the hall of audience. I opened briefly my business, and drew out a memoir to read to him. He told me that he could not hear me without the order of his master. I read notwithstanding, and he did not stop his ears. I prayed him to receive and keep the memoir. He refused, alleging continually that he could do nothing without orders. I drew out then my originals, and showed him my three signatures, which he looked at eagerly. In separating, I asked him to keep my name concealed at ; he said to me that he would keep it secret everywhere. He asked me, however, if that was my true name. I assured him it was; he paid me some personal compliments, and we parted. I learned on the next day, by another channel, that he had, notwithstanding, given an account to his master of this visit; which suffices me, for I have need, as you know, of only one of these good houses. I am always very politely received, and as a friend. This is all that I ask. I do not multiply too much my visits; but to render them always desirable, I never appear there without having something interesting to say; and to this end the letters of my worthy correspondent at London are very useful to me. This last has addressed to me lately a person whose conversation, joined to the contents of the letter of which he was bearer, has served me in the composition of a memoir which they approve, and I have reason to think they have sent. This person has induced me to write a letter to you, dated the 4th of August; by way of Bordeaux to St. Domingo, under an envelope of Mr. Caton, merchant at Port St. Nicholas in that Island, of which here is an extract:

"A gentleman belonging to Jamaica, a particular friend of Dr. Franklin, and very well known to him, has charged me to write to him, to assure him, on good authority, of the singular esteem that there is for him and his friends among the more judicious in England; that they ought not to think, and that he prays him to let them know it, that the present voice of Parliament is the voice of the English people; that there exists, and gathers strength, a great body, which, in truth, is not the strongest, but which regards the cause of the Americans as its own, their safety and liberty as its own, which would prefer to see them independent rather than subjugated, and which will make, at the future meeting of Parliament, the greatest efforts in their favour; that the basis of this party is already forty Peers and one hundred and sixty members of the Commons.

"This gentleman owned to me that he was one of the most active in that party, who would be very glad that there was in H. a man who could be confided in, an agent on the part of Congress.

"The letter which this gentleman brought me began thus: 'This will be delivered to you by Mr. Ellis, a friend of Dr. Franklin, of liberty, and of America. He is a philosopher, very well instructed on the subject of America, and, I trust, will be both an agreeable and useful acquaintance while he remains near you.' This assuring me, I discovered to him that I was the man whom he was seeking, provided with credentials and orders from Congress sufficient to do all the good offices that his friends could wish to render; thereupon I showed him my credentials; he was satisfied with them, and we exchanged addresses. He promised to write me when he had time; and we separated satisfied with each other," &c.

Finally, my despatch C carried to you also copies of two letters of an able partisan officer, and the conditions upon which he will enter the service of the United Colonies. An experienced soldier had recommended him to me, not only as an excellent superior officer, but also as well versed in engineering. But he has himself written to me that, having for a long time neglected that branch of military science, he would not engage as an Engineer, but as commander of a corps, especially for partisan service, which he has studied thoroughly; and that in that capacity he will, with pleasure and zeal, devote his ability and energy, in the service of a people whom he admires, and among whom, with his six children, he would wish to spend the rest of his life, on the following conditions:

1st. That the Congress shall pay him at least one thousand francs, (that is, nearly one hundred pounds sterling,) to enable him to arrange his affairs, and procure articles necessary for his situation, and for the voyage, without having to reimburse the money.

2d. That the Congress shall give him assurances that, in case they should not obtain for him a permanent situation, and equivalent to his military rank in this country, on the conclusion of peace, they shall pay him one thousand ducats, (about five hundred pounds sterling,) to remunerate him for his trouble and risk, and to enable him to return home.

3d. That they will pay, through some merchant in this country, for two years, to his children, the pension which he actually draws, and which he will lose the moment he leaves Europe, to wit: six hundred francs (about sixty pounds sterling) per year, every six months three hundred francs, or thirty pounds sterling. This he will reimburse if he lives; but if he should die on the way, or be taken by the English, the Congress shall continue the pension six years.

4th. They shall give him command of a corps of light troops, with a proportionate rank, and the arrangement of all the officers, and liberty to engage recruits in Europe, of good conduct and capacity. For this purpose, they shall furnish him with power and means for their passage to America. This article can be explained at a proper time.

5th. His pay shall be at least one hundred and twenty-five dollars per current month.

It is well to add to this, that the Marquis d'Engenelli, in 1756, and after him General Wunsch, in 1758, offered him a company in their regiments, the latter with the rank of Major in the service of the King of Prussia. The same year, Mr. Van Hellen, then Minister of that King at the Hague, caused him to be brought to him by Colonel Courvoisier, and offered him the command of a troop, with two hundred ducats for the journey, and the posts of the King free; but having been unable to obtain sureties for his agreement, this reason, and the instability of the service, prevented his accepting these offers.

I will add, gentlemen, to what you have just read, that this officer, who is a widower, with six children, a Swiss, a good Republican, wishes to remain with them in America, after having served it. If it is true, as has been said, and as your own friends inform me from London, that you have not sufficient commanding officers for the wide extent of your operations, I think it would be well to engage him for the next campaign. It seems to me his conditions are not unreasonable; and as it does not appear that your enemies will give up the contest soon, I think he could be very useful.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

DUMAS.

ARTHUR LEE TO C. W. F. DUMAS.

London, July 6, 1776.

DEAR SIR: This will be delivered to you by Mr. Ellis, a friend of Dr. Franklin, of liberty, and of America. He is a philosopher, very well instructed on the subject of America, and I trust will be both an agreeable and useful acquaintance while he remains near you.

I thank you for your favour of the 21st of last month. By the last advices from America, General Howe was prepared to sail from Halifax, and, it is imagined, to land at New-York, where he will certainly be strongly opposed. He numbers ten thousand regulars, and it will be fortunate for us if he makes attempt before he is joined by the Germans, who sailed the 6th of May. The Americans have taken post upon the river Richelieu and the lakes. General Lee is in Virginia, with ten thousand men; expecting Lord Cornwallis and General Clinton. General Washington commands at New-York, and General Ward in Boston.

The strange timidity de la Cour Française requires great patience and management; but I think it will at last be brought to act an avowed and decided part. When that happens, Angleterre must submit to whatever terms they please to impose, for she is totally incapable of sustaining a war with France.

Adieu,

ARTHUR LEE.

SILAS DEANE TO C. W. F. DUMAS.

Paris, July 26, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed letter from Doctor Franklin will hint at my business in this city, where I arrived the 7th instant, and I should have sent forward this earlier had I not had hopes of having the honour of presenting it to you in person. This I now find I cannot expect, without delaying it beyond all bounds. I therefore forward it by the common conveyance, and inform you that my address in this city is to Messrs. Germany, Guardot, & Co., Bankers; that I shall tarry here till the last of August, when I propose going to Dunkirk, thence to Amsterdam and Hamburgh, in which journey I hope for the pleasure of seeing you. In the mean time I shall be happy in a correspondence with you on the subject of the dispute between the United Colonies and Great Britain, or any other that shall be agreeable to you; and I wish to be informed if I shall be in danger of any disagreeable treatment in my journey through Holland, in a private capacity, though it should be known that I was in the service of the United Colonies. It has been suggested to me that I might meet with some interruption or difficulties from the friends of the British Ministry, which occasions my making this inquiry.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

SILAS DEANE.

P. S. I read and understand the French language tolerably well, though I am unable to write it.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED CAPE FRANÇOIS, AUGUST 10, 1776.

Although our Government appears here in a profound tranquillity, letters of undoubted authority, just arrived from France, inform us that an armament is now fitting out at

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. I.

Brest, of twenty sail of the line, twelve frigates, and fourteen thousand land forces, whose destination, it is presumed, is for this place. I think this armament will occasion no uneasiness to your Continent, as France has from the beginning shown such a partiality in favour of your cause, and now does in a more open manner. You have none but zealous friends in this Island, and if there be any Tories, they are from your parts. The American vessels have our ports open to them, and they will be protected.

Savannah, (in Georgia,) August 10, 1776.

A Declaration being received from the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., by which it appeared that the Continental Congress, in the name and by the authority of their constituents, had declared that the United Colonies of North America are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States, and absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, his Excellency the President, and the honourable the Council, met in the Council Chamber, and read the Declaration. They then proceeded to the square before the Assembly House, and read it likewise before a great concourse of people, when the Grenadier and Light-Infantry Companies fired a general volley. After this they proceeded, in the following procession, to the Liberty Pole: The Grenadiers in front; the Provost Marshal on horseback, with his sword drawn; the Secretary with the Declaration; his Excellency the President; the honourable the Council and gentlemen attending; then the Light Infantry and the rest of the Militia of the town and district of Savannah. At the Liberty Pole they were met by the Georgia Battalion, who, after reading of the Declaration, discharged their field-pieces and fired in platoons. Upon this they proceeded to the Battery, at the Trustees Gardens, where the Declaration was read for the last time, and cannon of the Battery discharged. His Excellency and Council, Colonel Lachlan McIntosh, and other gentlemen, with the Militia, dined under the Cedar Trees, and cheerfully drank to the United, Free, and Independent States of America. In the evening the town was illuminated, and there was exhibited a very solemn funeral procession, attended by the Grenadier and Light-Infantry Companies, and other Militia, with their drums muffled, and fifes, and a greater number of people than ever appeared on any occasion before in this Province, when George the Third was interred before the Court-House, in the following manner:

Forasmuch as George the Third, of Great Britain, hath most flagrantly violated his coronation oath, and trampled upon the Constitution of our country, and the sacred rights of mankind, we therefore commit his political existence to the ground, corruption to corruption, tyranny to the grave, and oppression to eternal infamy, in sure and certain hope that he will never obtain a resurrection to rule again over these United States of America. But my friends and fellow-citizens, let us not be sorry as men without hope for tyrants that thus depart; rather let us remember America is free and independent; that she is, and will be, with the blessing of the Almighty, great among the nations of the earth. Let this encourage us in well-doing, to fight for our rights and privileges, for our wives and children, for all that is near and dear unto us. May God give us his blessing, and let all the people say, Amen.

HUGH LYON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Prince George's County, August 10, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: To comply with your request for purchasing arms and blankets, the Committee of Observation for the County aforesaid find it necessary to have a sum of money, not exceeding £50, for that purpose. If you think proper, they would be glad to receive that sum by the first safe hand; and am, for and on behalf of the Committee, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

HUGH LYON.

To the Honourable Council of Safety.

ARCHER AND HARRIS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Harford County, August 10, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed you have a bill of what the hemp linen delivered to the Commissary of Stores cost us per yard, as near as we can make it out at this time, as we have not got all the materials which we purchased manufactured; when we have, shall cheerfully submit a just and true account thereof to you, agreeable to our proposals. At this time we have as much thread spun as would answer our contract with the Convention, if we could get it wove; but there is great difficulty in procuring weavers, as great numbers in our parts have inlisted in the Flying-Camp, and those that remain have advanced their prices.

We have now delivered to the Commissary of Stores two hundred and sixty-nine yards of hemp linen, as per receipt, and hope in a short time to deliver a quantity more.

We are, gentlemen, with great respect, your most obliged and very humble servants,

ARCHER & HARRIS.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, August 10, 1776.

SIR: Conceiving it highly necessary that you should be informed as soon as possible of the promotions the Congress were pleased to make in the Army of the American States, I do myself the honour to enclose you a list of the same by express.

The Continental battalion commanded by Colonel Haslet will begin their march this day for the Jerseys, where, on their arrival at Amboy, the Colonel has orders to acquaint you of the same.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest esteem and respect, sir, your most humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Washington, New-York.

P. S. The enclosed letters please to order to be delivered. The commissions enclosed in each.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL HEATH.

Philadelphia, August 10, 1776.

SIR: The Congress having yesterday been pleased to appoint you a Major-General in the Army of the American States, I do myself the pleasure to enclose your commission. Confident of your zeal and attachment to the liberties of America, I am persuaded you will do everything to merit the honour your country has now conferred on you.

With the warmest wishes for your health and prosperity, I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Major-General William Heath.

Same to Major-General Joseph Spencer; to Major-General John Sullivan; and to Major-General Nathanael Greene.

N. B. They are to take rank according to the order in which they stand.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL JAMES READ.

Philadelphia, August 10, 1776.

SIR: The Congress having yesterday been pleased to promote you to the rank of Brigadier-General in the Army of the American States, I do myself the pleasure to enclose your commission, and wish you happy.

I am, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Brigadier-General James Read.

Same to Brigadier-General John Nixon; to Brigadier-General Arthur St. Clair; to Brigadier-General Alexander McDougall; to Brigadier-General Samuel Holden Parsons; and to Brigadier-General James Clinton.

N. B. The said Brigadier-Generals are to take rank according to the order in which they stand.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO WILLIAM TUDOR.

Philadelphia, August 10, 1776.

SIR: I have it in charge from Congress to inform you that they have this day been pleased to give you the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel in the Army of the American States. It is their order that you repair, as soon as possible, to Head-Quarters, there to attend the execution of your office as Judge-Advocate-General. I have written to General Washington to acquaint him of your appointment, and that you will set out immediately for New-York.

Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To William Tudor, Esq., Judge-Advocate-General.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, August 10, 1776, six o'clock, P. M.

SIR: I am this minute honoured with your favour of the 8th and 9th instant, per post. Having sent off an express this morning, at which time I forwarded commissions for the General Officers appointed yesterday by Congress, I shall not detain the post to send the commissions ordered by the enclosed resolves. In the mean time, you will please to direct the persons to do such duty as you shall think proper. Their commissions shall be transmitted by the first opportunity. I will lay your letter before Congress on Monday morning, and immediately inform you of the result.

I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Washington, New-York.

LETTER FROM WILLIAM FLOYD, OF NEW-YORK.

Philadelphia, August 10, 1776.

SIR: The situation of our Province or State is truly alarming; and it gives me concern that I cannot hear more particularly what its true state and circumstances are. I beg you would favour me with a few lines on that subject as often as your time will permit. Be pleased to let me know what you hear of the situation of our friends on the eastern part of Long-Island. What is become of General Woodhull, Mr. Hobart, Tredwell, Mr. Smith, and others? Have you heard anything from my family? Have any of our friends got off the Island with their families, or what must they submit to? Despotism or destruction, I fear, is their fate. We have nothing new here; all important news is with you. Is our Convention sitting? Are they forming Government? Where are the two armies? What are their probable intentions? Is New-York to be evacuated, as well as Long-Island, without fighting? Or will our Army, like the Romans of old, consider the invaluable prize for which they are contending, and, with their fortitude, attack the enemy wherever they can find them, knowing that death is rather to be chosen than life upon the terms our enemies will suffer us to hold it? If our Convention is not sitting, please to inform me who I can draw upon for money to pay my expenses; and you will very much oblige, sir, your very humble servant,

WM. FLOYD.

IN CONVENTION FOR THE STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Saturday, August 10, 1776.

Resolved, 1, That the Commanding Officers of the several Battalions in the respective Counties of this State immediately march into Jersey with their whole Battalions.

Resolved, 2, That the Associators of the Counties of Bedford, Northumberland, Northampton, and Westmoreland, and the Guards of the City of Philadelphia retained by the Council of Safety, and two Companies of Colonel Ross's Battalion, and two Companies of Colonel Slough's Battalion, of about fifty men each, left to guard the prisoners, and about sixty carpenters and workmen retained by the Committee of Lancaster, be excepted out of the foregoing Resolve.

Resolved, 3, That a bounty of £3 be paid to every Associator who has entered, or will enter, into the service of the Flying-Camp, to continue until the first day of January next, if not sooner discharged, unless such as have already received a bounty.

Resolved, 4, That such Battalions as have, or shall furnish their quotas for the Flying-Camp, and have been in actual service six weeks, shall be permitted to return home, if the Generals and Field-Officers shall judge it consistent with the publick safety; and where the whole cannot be permitted to return, furloughs are to be granted in cases of particular necessity.

Resolved, 5, That three Commissioners be appointed to go to Head-Quarters in Jersey, to form the Flying-Camp.

Resolved, 6, That the Commissioners, with the Field-Officers of the Counties respectively, shall nominate the Officers for the Flying-Camp, where they are not already nominated.

Resolved, 7, That money be put into the hands of the Commissioners for the purpose of paying the bounty.

Extract from the Minutes.

JOHN MORRIS, Jun., Secretary.

LANCASTER COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Observation, Inspection, and Correspondence, at the house of Adam Reigart, the 10th August, 1776:

Present: Mathias Slough, William Atlee, William Bowsman, Christopher Crawford, Henry Dehuff, Casper Shaffner, Daniel Elliot, Michael Musser, William Bowsman, John Miller.

William Atlee in the chair.

Resolved, That Englehart Holtzinger, an Associator in Captain Morgan's Company of Militia, being a Gunstock Smith, now at work with Mr. Jacob Graeff, ought not to be marched to the Camp with the Militia, but be continued at that work.

Resolved, That the men in Town of Captains Pedan's and McKee's Companies, amounting to about sixty, or between that and seventy men, of Militia of Colonel Galbreath's Battalion, ought to be marched for the Camp, and not be kept on billets in this Town; and if neither of their Companies receive additions by to-morrow at two o'clock sufficient to make up a full Company, that they be joined and marched together under the eldest Captain of those two gentlemen; being first mustered, and their advance paid them on the junction.

IN CONVENTION OF THE STATE OF NEW-JERSEY.

Brunswick, August 10, 1776.

Resolved, That to prevent Desertion, no person or persons belonging to, or coming from, the Army in the State of New-Jersey, be permitted to go over any of the Ferries in, or travel through, said State, without a pass, signed either by General Mercer, General Dickerson, General Livingston, Colonel Griffin, or Colonel Biddle. And all persons in general, and in particular the members of Committees, Militia Officers, and owners or keepers of Ferries, are strictly enjoined to carry this Resolution into effect, by apprehending and securing every person belonging to, or coming from, said Army, who shall not have a pass signed as above directed, until he can be conducted to the Army aforesaid.

That no Troops in service of the United States, or of any of them, nor their Baggage, Ammunition, or their other Wagons or Carriages, shall pay for passing any of the Ferries within this State more than one-third part of the ferriage paid by such as are not in said service. And to prevent a misconstruction of this Resolve, it is hereby declared that Commissaries and other persons supplying the Army with Provisions, Stores, &c., are not intended to be included in said Resolve, so as to receive any private benefit from the same.

Extract from the Minutes.

WM. PATERSON, Secretary.

GENERAL MERCER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Perth-Amboy, August 10, 1776, ten o'clock, A. M.

SIR: I received the favour of two letters from your Excellency this forenoon.

In consequence of these, I shall push forward to New-York as many of the troops as I can prevail on to march. Colonel Atlee's battalion of Musketry will march this afternoon. Col. Miles's two battalions of Riflemen set out this morning.

A tender, of ten carriage guns, came up this morning to Billop's Point; was under sail about an hour ago, seemingly with a view to pass up the Sound; the wind failed, and she is come to. The distance is too great to fire on her as yet; we are prepared when she comes near enough. As the enemy probably draw off from this end of Staten-Island, the tender may be sent to prevent our passing over.

Your letter I hoped would have had good effects on the Militia; but fear nothing will do. None have gone off from hence last night; but some battalions are in very ill-humour, and very abusive to their officers. Colonel Dickinson writes me that thirty of his men have gone off with their arms this morning. I have written to the Congress to take some measures to stop this infamous desertion, and to the Convention of New-Jersey to raise their Militia to take up the deserters, and to supply proper guards for these posts. I have ordered one company of General Dickerson's brigade to be stationed at Trenton, one at Princeton, and one at Brunswick, to stop all deserters.

I have the honour to be, sir, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

HUGH MERCER.

To General Washington.

RICHARD H. HARRISON TO GENERAL MIFFLIN.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 10, 1776.

SIR: I have it in command from his Excellency to request in his name your particular attention to the works erecting on the other side of King's Bridge. He conceives them to be of great consequence, and therefore is desirous that they should be carried on with every degree of diligence that the situation of affairs will admit of. As they are of such importance, and to make them more tenable against any attempt that may be made by the enemy to possess them, he desires that you will send five or six cannon from your post as can best be spared, and have them mounted immediately.

Apprehensive that the enemy, if they go up the North River, may attempt to go down the creek in their boats and destroy King's Bridge, his Excellency judges it necessary that you should direct Colonel Putnam and Monsieur Wiebert to mark out some convenient spot where a small work proper for its defence and security must be thrown up as speedily as may be.

His Excellency wishes you to sink as fast as possible the vessels, &c., for obstructing the channel; and should you want more, that you will certify General Putnam of the same.

Having set down the things given me in charge, and being in haste, I have only to add, I am, &c.

R. H. HARRISON.

To General Mifflin.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL HAY.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 10, 1776.

SIR: Your favours of the 2d and 7th instant, are duly received. The Commissary-General, to whom I had referred the matter of your appointment, was to have written and desired you to undertake the business. Since which, it is determined that those troops under General Clinton are to march to King's Bridge, and of consequence will receive their supplies from the general store there. It cannot be long before matters may take a capital turn this way. The issue will determine whether a post from your part of the country is necessary or otherwise. Any movements of the enemy, which you think may be of consequence, I shall be obliged if you will transmit me.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Colonel Ann Hawkes Hay, Haverstraw.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO RICHARD VARICK.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 10, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of the 5th instant, with its several enclosures, is come safe to hand; and I now enclose you a list from the Colonel of Artillery and Quartermaster-General of what is, and will be, forwarded from this place; which is all that can be procured. There was some duck arrived at Providence, out of which I have requested Governor Cooke to supply the Northern Army, provided it is not otherwise disposed of. The water communication being yet stopped, makes it exceedingly difficult to transport these articles to Albany.

I am, sir, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Richard Varick, Esq., Secretary to General Schuyler.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO TIMOTHY EDWARDS.

Head-Quarters, New-York, August 10, 1776.

SIR: This will be delivered to you by Samuel and John, two of our friends of the Stockbridge Indians, who have been here, and expressed the desire of their people to become part of the Army of the United States. Having written to you fully on the 7th instant, and transmitted a copy of the resolution of Congress upon this subject, (which I presume will have reached you before this comes to hand,) I have referred them to you for information, in the instance of their application, and have only to request the favour of your early attention to what I then recommended to your care and direction.

I am, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Timothy Edwards, Esq., Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

AARON BURR TO TIMOTHY EDWARDS.

New-York, August 10, 1776.

DEAR UNCLE: I have received your letters from Stock-bridge, with my watch, for which I thank you. Our six galleys which went up the North River attacked the British ships. They behaved well, but were driven off with the loss of three killed and twelve or thirteen wounded. A second attack is proposed. Vessels and chevaux-de-frise are sunk in the North River. The channel is said to be effectually stopped. We are endeavouring the same in the East River. The British fleet have been largely reinforced at different times. They are now said to be upwards of two hundred sail within the Narrows. They have drawn up seven of their heaviest ships in a line, nearly two miles advanced of the rest.

By two Virginia gentlemen who went to England to take the gown, who returned in a packet and landed on Staten-Island, where they tarried several days, and were permitted to cross to Elizabethtown on Thursday last, we have some intelligence of the enemy. Clinton has arrived with his shattered fleet and about three thousand six hundred men. By this it appears that he has either fallen in with part of Dunmore's fleet, or picked up the remainder of his own, which had been separated, and were not in the action near Charlestown. Of the Hessians only thirteen or fourteen hundred have arrived. The remainder, about nine thousand, are daily expected. They were left near the Banks of Newfoundland. Those already here are not much esteemed as soldiers.

The King's land Army is at present about fifteen or sixteen thousand strong. They expect very soon to exceed twenty-five thousand. They have taken on board all their heavy cannon from Staten-Island, and have called in several of their outposts. Thirty transports have sailed under convoy of three frigates. They are to come through the Sound, and thus invest us by the North and East Rivers. They are then to land on both sides of the Island, join their forces, and draw a line across, which will hem us in and totally cut off all communication; after which they will have their own fun.

These Virginia gentlemen lodged in a house with several King's officers. They hold us in the utmost contempt. Talk of forcing all our lines without firing a gun. The bayonet is their pride. They have forgot Bunker's Hill.

Your nephew,
A. BURR.
To T. Edwards.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Long-Island, August 10, 1776.

SIR: Colonel Hand reports three ships at the Hook. A large schooner sailed from the watering-place late yesterday in the afternoon. She seems to direct her course towards Amboy this morning. From the firing heard at sea last evening, it is supposed the remainder of the Hessian fleet is at hand. Everything at the watering-place remains quiet.

Nothing remarkable has happened in this camp since yesterday's report.

I sent over nine suspected Tories this morning to the City Hall, under the care of Lieutenant Randal. I reported their names to Colonel Harrison. There is one Benjamin Hewlet, that lives on the Northside, who does not appear to be an object worth sending away.

There appears several insignificant characters amongst these last. How extensive their influence may be, I can't pretend to divine; but from their appearance, they don't look like doing much mischief.

Lieutenant Skinner is as industrious as possible in apprehending the disaffected. By what he writes to me, many have gone off. He says the Tories had an account amongst them that they were to be taken for several days before the attempt was made. I wonder whether anything of this sort has been in contemplation by the Provincial Congress. It is surprising to me how it could be known. They expected it was an order from Congress.

I am, dear sir, with the greatest respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

N. GREENE.

To His Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters,
New-York.

COLONEL HARTLEY TO GENERAL GATES.

Crown-Point, August 10, 1776, five o'clock P. M.

HONoured SIR: I congratulate you on the safe return of Major Bigelow, though his embassy may have proved abortive in some measure.

We hear the disagreeable truth that Captain Wilson and his party of near thirty men of our regiment, are taken prisoners, one killed. We also understand that the Canadian Indians are against us, and that sons of Britain will avow that they were present at the cruel murder and scalping at the Isle-aux-Noix.

The fleet, if of any use, ought to be lower down. The enemy might land on the eastern shore, fifteen miles from this, and could make such a lodgment in a short time as might prevent our vessels from going down.

We had an instance to-day of a false alarm from the Navy. The Regulars were said to have landed about nine miles off, and were intrenching. Was there a good lookout on the vessels lower down this could not happen.

In consequence of your orders to me, on the flag's going down, I have sent but few parties on the Lake.

I fear the orders from General Arnold were so positive that he (Captain Wilson) could not return before he was taken, without an apparent disobedience. Captain Wilson had notice that he was discovered by two scoundrels that went down in a canoe: the one is a step-brother and the other a tenant of Gilliland's. A point of honour, or something else, must have prevented him from returning back as soon as was prudent.

You will find that the enemy are coming up the Lake, but not in large bodies. This induced Major Bigelow to advise a party of seven to return from near Gilliland's, who were going down to Cumberland-Bay on the business I mentioned to you.

I have three men down toward St. John's, who do not appear yet to have been discovered. I have some hopes from them; and had the party not been so great under Captain Wilson, he might have returned, and our regiment not so materially injured. However, the treachery of the two men who were in the canoe ruined the scheme.

The important matter submitted by you to me is advancing fast towards maturity. A number of suspected men are hourly waiting on them. I have given them an additional pass, and all things seem to stand fair on their side. Should they have gone on, it would have been the worst policy in the world. The youth has been watching all our motions to-day. He shows much sagacity. To-morrow I shall be able to tell you of some matters of consequence, if I am not much mistaken.

I am, honoured sir, with the greatest respect, your most humble servant,
THOS. HARTLEY.
To the Honourable Major-General Gates.

Head-Quarters, Newport, August 10, 1776, }
Ten o'clock, evening. }

SIR: This moment arrived Captain Harris, who brings us the following intelligence: That Thursday last he fell in with a fleet, and distinctly counted one hundred and eight sail, seventeen of which he took to be ships-of-war, the rest transports, about fifteen leagues, S.E. by S. from Nantucket-Shoals, their course W.N.W., close to the wind, about the latitude of Sandy-Hook. The next morning, ten o'clock, saw nine sail, supposed to be part of the same fleet.

I thought it to be my indispensable duty to give your Excellency the earliest intelligence, by express, of so important a piece of news, as without doubt they are destined for New-York.

I am, with respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

WILLIAM RICHMOND, Col. Commandant.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Lebanon, August 10, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed is copy of a letter from the Committee at Albany, by Ensign John Fisk, who escorted under guard, from Albany, twenty-three prisoners, represented to be inimical to the rights of these States, to be secured and taken care of. The Jails here are so filled that it is difficult to find a proper place of security for this additional number. For the present they are ordered to the Jail in New-London, and shall expect soon a resolution from your Convention in what manner you would have them treated, and how or by what means supported.

The Mayor of Albany, and five others sent with him by the Committee of that city some time ago, are at Hartford. Those sent by your body under the care of Mr. Depeyster are imprisoned at Hartford, Norwich, and Litchfield.

The present necessity, attention to the service of the United States, and real affection to our sister State of New-York under the present calamities of a siege and invasion, induce us to receive such troublesome and inimical men into our care and custody. We wish to have them removed, and to be released from the trouble they occasion, as early as is convenient.

I am, with great truth and regard, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN TRUMBULL.

To the Honourable Convention of the State of New-York.

Albany Committee, August 2, 1776.

SIR: Agreeable to a resolve of this Committee we take the liberty to send to the care of your Honour the persons named on the within list, and have affixed to their names the crimes which they have committed.

We are of opinion that Alexander Campbell, William Pemberton, Henry Van Schaack, Joseph Anderson, and John Munro, and Samuel Anderson, are to be maintained at their own expense; and that Frederick Williams, John Duzenberry, Walter Scott, John Scott, Samuel S. Gardiner, Benjamin Greenman, Dugald Campbell, Henry Westerkouser, Thomas Sword, Jacob Zimmerman, Nicholas Weaver, Owen Conner, Ralph Walton, and William McMullen, are to be maintained at the expense of the publick.

The situation of this County as a frontier induces us to be particularly careful in lessening the number of our internal enemies, besides the great number of disaffected amongst us. Their constant meetings, plots, and conspiracies, oblige us to consult every method for placing them in a situation where they can do no injury to the general cause, by joining with the forces of the British King, assisting his army, or by opposing and preventing the support and preservation of our forces to the northward and westward. The influence of these men, if exerted, would, we conceive from their avowed principles, have been used against the American States.

The places of confinement here are full; and since the retreat of our Army from Canada, and the arrival of the regular troops at New-York, disaffected persons, whose principles before were concealed, are daily appearing in every part of the country; and by reason of the great numbers of men drawn from us for the publick service, we are unable to apprehend and guard with security all such persons as we are convinced, from the fullest proof, are inimical to the rights of America.

We would recommend it to your Excellency to separate them as far distant from one another as they conveniently can be, and to prevent any communication between the persons now sent from this County to your Honour's care and those formerly transmitted, as some of the persons now sent are particularly dangerous, though their abilities, their address and insinuation, may place them in a different point of light.

We are your Honour's most obedient servants.

By order of the Committee:

JOHN BARCLAY, Chairman pro tem.

To His Honour Governour Trumbull.

Albany Committee Chamber, August 10, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In obedience to your resolve of the 26th day of June last, requesting this Committee to lay before your honourable Board the proceedings had against Abraham C. Cuyler, Henry Cuyler, Stephen DeLancey, John Duncan, Benjamin Hilton, and John Monier, inhabitants of this City and County, sent to Hartford in the Colony of Connecticut, and the misdemeanors with which they stand charged, this Committee beg leave to acquaint your honourable Board that the representation respecting Henry Cuyler is groundless; and as to the others, we refer you to the matters contained in the paper herewith sent, distinguished by No. 1, which sets forth the conduct of some of them previous to this Committee's proceedings against them.

At a meeting of this Committee on the 9th day of May last, the said Abraham C. Cuyler, Stephen DeLancey, and John Monier, among other persons of this city, were judged to be notoriously disaffected to the American cause; whereupon it was resolved, that the said disaffected persons should be cited to appear before this Board, and that the Association made by your honourable Board the 27th day of March last should be tendered to them. They were cited accordingly, and appeared before this Committee on the 11th day of May last, which Association they refused to sign; upon which it was resolved that the said persons should be disarmed, as will appear by a certified copy of the Minutes of this Board, herewith sent, marked No. 2.

Respecting Benjamin Hilton, we refer you to Nos. 3 and 1.

The morning of the 4th of June was ushered in with the firing of guns, pistols, &c., by boys, negroes, &c., a circumstance not agreeable to the inhabitants of this city, knowing the scarcity of powder. We were no longer at a loss to guess from whence this untimely liberality proceeded than the evening following, when a number of unfriendly persons assembled at the house of Richard Cartwright in order to celebrate that anniversary. The Mayor was conducted to this noble banquet by Thomas Barret, a cooper, and Charles Folliott, a carpenter, supported by them under each arm. The unusual noise on this occasion alarmed many of the inhabitants of this city, who went to Cartwright's, to inform themselves of the occasion of this indecent meeting, when, to their astonishment, they found Abraham C. Cuyler, Stephen DeLancey, and John Monier, with a number of the lower sort of people, carousing, and singing God save the King, &c. Their former conduct having so exasperated the good people of this city that they could no longer refrain taking notice of this daring insult, upon which they rushed in, seized Stephen DeLancey and John Monier, among others, and committed them to the Tory Jail. The next day the petition No. 4 was presented to this Committee by a number of respectable inhabitants of this city. Shortly after, a verbal request was made to this Board by the said petitioners, praying that the said Abraham C. Cuyler, Henry Cuyler, Stephen DeLancey, John Monier, John Duncan, and Benjamin Hilton, might be removed out of this city. Whereupon this Committee, on the 13th day of June last, on motion, resolved that the said six persons above named, and Lieutenant Angus McDonald, should be removed under guard to Hartford in Connecticut. See the Resolve No. 5.

During the residence of these men in this place, our enemies were daily increasing in number and insolence, boasting that they were to make returns of their proceedings to some of the greatest men in the country. We plainly foresaw that nothing could be done with the rabble who were influenced by them till they were removed; and indeed the conduct of the Committee of Albany was freely and loudly censured by the good people of this County in all parts. Complaints were made that the most atrocious offenders were screened in Albany, while every poor low fellow was immediately prosecuted for only lisping out things which those people uttered daily in the most daring language. Since the removal of those leading enemies to our freedom and repose, this place has enjoyed much more tranquillity than heretofore. Many iniquitous plans have since been discovered, and their execution prevented; for they now, being destitute of council and support, when taken some of them have made full and free confession. We may also observe, that during the stay of these gentlemen in this place complaints have been made by the officers of almost every regiment that passed through here, that the minds of their men were immediately poisoned on their arrival, and many who had marched in the most peaceable manner from Philadelphia had deserted from here, and others turned almost ungovernable; which complaints have, since their removal, entirely subsided.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient servants.

By order of the Committee:

JOHN BARCLAY, Chairman pro tem.

To the President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

COLONEL FITCH TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-Haven, August 10, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I received a letter from General Washington yesterday in the afternoon, requiring me to call forth and march my regiment forthwith to New-York, to the assistance of the Army there. I have accordingly drawn my orders to each Captain in the regiment. I sent to Colonel Thompson to march with the regiment, but he being sick as well as myself, I now hold the orders in my hands, as I cannot inform the Captains who will take the command of them. I desire that your Honour would order some field-officer in the Colony to take the command of the regiment, and let me know who it is, so that I may give out the orders, &c. I send, with the bearer, General Washington's letter to me, for your Honour to peruse, &c.

I beg leave to subscribe myself your Honour's most humble servant,

JONATHAN FITCH.

To His Honour Governour Trumbull.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO MAJOR HAWLEY.

In Committee of Council, August 10, 1776.

SIR: Your letters of the 31st ultimo and 5th instant are now before us, and we have thought proper to enclose you a copy of a resolve, passed the last session of the General Court, respecting the Test Act; and we apprehend your Honour has seen the last order of this Committee, calling upon all Magistrates, Sheriffs, Committees, &c., to be vigilant in causing the laws and orders of this State to be put into execution, to prevent the good people from being exposed by persons inimical; which we think is all that is necessary for us to do in the recess of the Court. As to passing a resolve similar to that passed by the Governour and Committee of Safety of Connecticut, it is not in our power. We have never seen it, and you have not furnished us with a copy of it.

We are sorry to hear of the mistake respecting the kettles and canteens; but as there is a Committee appointed by the Court to take particular care of this matter, and we have written to them not long since respecting the same, we cannot but think they will take effectual care about it.

We did not expect to raise and march the men without money, but we expected the Committee of Hampshire County would, agreeable to what the rest of the Committees have done, apply to us for a warrant on the Treasurer for the same, which we should readily have granted, it being to be made payable to them only. We should also have supplied them with blank commissions. Please to send down one of your Committee for these purposes.

We have not the pleasure of knowing Mr. Cranston, whom your Honour mentions, and we are at a loss to know how he could understand that we were not in haste to have the fifteen hundred men raised. We are sure we did not employ him to construe the resolve of the Court.

We are sorry to hear it is so difficult to raise men in your County to support the Northern Army; but we hope it will be otherwise when the harvest is over; and it gives me some satisfaction that they inlist to support the lines at Boston, notwithstanding you are now in the midst of your harvest.

We do not pretend to say that the resolve for raising the men was the best that could have been formed, but look upon it as our duty to comply with every resolve of the Court, so far as it is in our power.

We are concerned to hear of any apprehensions of deficiencies of supplies at No. 4, and that you are assured that there will be no mileage paid there. We apprehend you have been misinformed with respect to this matter. Everything has been done agreeable to the resolves of Court. Everything in our power has been done to prevent any deficiencies of supplies at No. 4, and Commissary Trumbull has engaged to take proper care respecting the same; in answer to one of theirs upon this subject, he writes the Council the 21st of July, "that a person is at No. 4, and everything in readiness to receive and forward the troops from New-England going to Crown-Point, as fast as they arrive there, agreeable to your expectations and my engagements." We hope, therefore, the Committee will cause the men to march to Ticonderoga with all possible despatch.

In the name and by order of the Committee, I am, with great respect, your most humble servant,

THOS. CUSHING.

To Major Hawley.

COLONEL STEPHEN TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL OF VIRGINIA.

August 11, 1776.

SIR: The bearer is a native of Hesse, has seen a great deal of service, and seems to have a good military turn. He is lately arrived from Eustatia. If he cannot be employed here, I should think it advisable to send him to Congress. He might probably be useful in seducing the Hessians, as he is acquainted with their natural disposition, and seems to have a good deal of address. Please to introduce him to General Lewis.

I have the honour to be, with great esteem, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

ADAM STEPHEN.

To the Honourable John Page.

COLONEL EWING TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, August 11, 1776.

HONOURED SIRS: I did myself the pleasure of writing to you the 7th instant per Lieutenant Chew, to which beg leave to refer. Since which have been honoured with yours of the 6th current, accompanied by Captain Young and his company. I observe you have given him £125, which he has laid out in shoes, stockings, hunting and body shirts, for his soldiers; he has laid out more, and has applied to me for more money. I would be glad if you would send him £60, or allow me to give it to him, as it will be for the good of his company, and of course of the service. The Committee cannot procure the quantity of guns ordered. Mr. John Smith, son of Captain Young's Lieutenant, tells me the Committee of Harford had thirty stand, and that Mr. Richard Dallam had thirty stand more completed. I shall be much obliged for an order for them to complete Captain Young's company, so as to send them off. You omitted enclosing me an order for necessaries to complete Captain Young's company, which please send me with the order you mention for the blankets. You will please likewise give me an order for the tents now made, or what you allow I should take with me. With respect to arms, I do not doubt but if I was to march all my battalion without arms to the camp at the Jerseys, there would enough of the gentlemen Militia be very glad to lend them arms, on account of being relieved by us. I understand some of the Militia are grumbling very much, and want to be relieved; and I am convinced Generals would rather have those whom they can with more propriety command. The Captains here have come to a resolution of buying linen and having hunting-shirts made for all their soldiers. Captain Posey, with his company, arrived here the 9th, and I expect Captain Forrest this day or to-morrow. You will please send an order for things to equip Captain Forrest out. Capt. Posey will write you for some money, which please send. The gunsmith wrought all night and works all this day. I am as industrious as I can be, but can do but little without your assistance. For God's sake, if any way possible, let me have some arms. The gentleman I sent to Frederick and Virginia has brought none, which is a great disappointment to me. He tells me they give £4 5s. in Virginia, for muskets, that currency.

The present accompanies Captain John Hawkins's son, who goes down to settle his account. I don't expect to be able to get his or any of the companies from this before Wednesday next. There will be a quantity of haver and knapsacks made together. You will please send me an order for a sufficiency to supply four companies, and I will not lift the others. I shall esteem it a favour your not detaining Captain Lowe, as he will be wanted here.

I am, with due respect, honoured sirs, your most obedient humble servant,

THOS. EWING.

To the Hon. Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

CAPTAIN THOMAS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Head of Elk, August 11, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: After a tedious passage of almost four days, I arrived here this morning; the other boats are all in sight. On my arrival here I applied to Colonel Hollingsworth for provisions, and was informed by him that he had no orders from you for that purpose. However, I have procured what beef and bread I want for the present, and propose to start from here early on the morrow. Colonel Hollingsworth informs me that if you would give him a general order to supply the troops that come here with provisions and baggage-wagons, he would take care to have all these necessities on the shortest notice; but without such an order, he thinks it would be wrong in him to do it. I have therefore mentioned it to you, submitting whether such an order would not be proper. One thing, also, give me leave to mention: the victualler at Annapolis will find the troops coming by water but little salt provision. I drew two days' provision, chiefly fresh; all the fresh was totally spoiled on the second day, so that we could not use a morsel of it; it must happen so to others, and I submit it whether it would not be better to direct him to furnish the troops going by water principally with salt provisions while the hot weather continues. For want of salt provisions, I have been obliged to buy on the passage at extravagant prices. I hope the freedom I have taken will be excused, by, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

J. A. THOMAS.

To the Hon. the Council of Safety of Maryland.

JAMES GIBSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

August 11, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Whereas it does appear that Mr. Nicholas Thomas has resigned up his late warrant of Quartermaster in the Fourth Battalion of Militia: We therefore are in hopes this honourable Board will issue their warrant to a worthy gentleman who now applies, and also is recommended by us, the officers of the Wye company, William Perry, Esq., who offers his services as Quartermaster. He is well known by every man in the County. He ever appeared to be hearty in the cause of the liberty of America. He stepped forth early in the present cause, and his integrity seems to be supported with zeal and earnestness to the present cause. Your compliance, I make no doubt, will give great satisfaction to the people in general.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servants,

JAS. GIBSON,
ROBT. HALL,
ROBT. DUGGINS.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland, at Annapolis, now sitting.

JOSIAH BARTLETT TO JOHN LANGDON.

Philadelphia, August 11, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 28th ultimo is come to hand, and I congratulate you on your late appointment. Colonel Whipple sets off to-morrow morning for Portsmouth, and takes with him your commission as Continental Agent, and will be able to inform you of everything relative to it. He will be likely to make a little stop at New-York, and will go by the way of Providence, and, if possible, procure the guns for your ship, &c., which stops may prevent his being with you as soon as this may reach you, but will no doubt in a few days after. He takes with him $60,000 for the account of New-Hampshire.

By the publick prints you will see there is a new emission of Brigadier-Generals, and four of the former Brigadiers promoted to Major-Generals. We find some difficulty to give satisfaction in the appointment of officers; and, on the whole, it was thought the appointing the first Continental Colonel in the respective States to the rank of Brigadiers was the least liable to objection.

You have no doubt heard that Clinton and Cornwallis, since their defeat at South-Carolina, have joined General Howe. Governour Dunmore and his ragamuffins, it is said, have left Virginia, and are supposed to be going to join General Howe. I think we may expect that some important event will soon take place at or near New-York. God grant it may be favourable to the United American States.

August 13. Colonel Whipple left us for New-Hampshire yesterday at two o'clock.

I am your most obedient, JOSIAH BARTLETT.

STEPHEN PARKER TO JONATHAN SMITH.

Philadelphia, Saturday, August 11, 1776.

SIR: I am about returning to Machias, and your commands that way shall be proud to receive. My coming here has not been attended with such success as the deplorable circumstances of that people constrain me warmly to wish. Conscious of the extreme disadvantages I labour under, unaided by purse, and unknown in person, I have thereby been prevented from making effectual applications in their behalf. I am not insensible how much complaints increase, and how indelicate it is to appear on that list, nor uninformed that imposture and knavery patrol this Continent, deceiving the Christian, benevolent, and honest. Since my arrival, I have taken all pains to engage lumber, but find the price here will scarcely more than pay freight, and already anticipate the distress our people will be thrown in when on return I inform them they can obtain no relief from hence. Money the inhabitants have not, what little was among them being sent away for provision long before my coming; and when I left, there were only two hundred bushels of Indian corn, one hundred of rye, a tierce or two of rice, with a small quantity of pork and flour, for one hundred and twelve families, besides a number of single men—families industrious, and many of them frugal, but wholly employed in the lumber way, and dependant thereon for support. Every avenue to New-England, the centre of our usual intercourse, is stopped, so that from thence we can receive nothing.
